NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (A.P.). — Mrs. Edith V. Willey, 76, who has been "Mother Willey" to thousands of homeless United States marines for many years, died yesterday. She retired two years ago after 25 years of conducting Women's Christian Temperance Union sessions in the Marine Barracks, at Washington; but she continued writing to marines in all parts of the world.

Two Fires Burn House, Barn In Tweed Area

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Aug. 17.—As owner and neighbors stood by helpless to aid, a large frame barn of Sydenham Lawrence Morgan, on his farm on the 9th Concession of the township of Huntingdon, was completely destroyed by fire shortly after six o'clock Monday evening, after a lightning bolt had struck the gable, igniting the structure.

The season's crop of grain, 100 hens and a milk house were destroyed by the fire.

Hurrying to get in the last load of grain before the threatening rain arrived Lawrence and his brother had just reached the barn when the bolt struck. Instantly, the upper section of the barn burst into flames.

Efforts of neighbors in saving a stack of hay nearby the burning barn were successful. No loss of other stock was suffered because of the fact the cows were in pasture, and the horses were working.

Flames of undetermined origin that threw a glow in the heavens for miles completely destroyed the house and contents of William Sowers, farmer residing five miles north of Northbrook over the weekend.

Sowers and his family were in Belleville at the time and knew nothing of his loss until his return home. Neighbors, who saw the glow thought a bush fire had broken out, as the Sowers farm is situated on a more or less isolated spot in the vicinity.

Decision on the part of some of them to investigate, however, revealed the Sowers home in a mass of smouldering ruins. The loss was partly covered by insurance.

CENTREVILLE

Mrs. Sherman Cooper had as guests on Friday her sister, Mrs. Charles Phillips, Toronto, and her niece, Miss Josie Schooley of Cleveland, Ohio.

Douglas McNairn and Miss Grace Norris, Toronto, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson.

Malcolm Hutcheon, B.A., and Miss Edith Wallace of Burnbrae were visitors at the manse on Saturday.

Farmers in this vicinity are in the midst of the harvest season. Many had to thresh to make room for the grain. Reports received from those who have threshed, state that fall wheat is yielding very well. On the whole it is evident that the harvest will be of decided material benefit to the farmers.

Electrocuted In Tangle

Socialite Singer Will Wed

Sally Clark, sister of Mrs. John Roosevelt, sings a song to her fiance, George Xavier McLanahan, of New York, after the engagement of the couple had been announced. The wedding will be held on January 6, after Sally, a professional singer, finishes an engagement in New York.

THE HUMAN CANNON BALL!

Blind Groom Honeymoon Undaunted Over Failure To Restore Sight

A BLIND YOUTH whom surgery failed to aid materially found courage today in his battle for sight from the bride he never has seen, while a middle-aged minister, his vision partially restored, longed for the first clear look at his wife and daughter.

The blind bridegroom, undaunted by an unsuccessful operation, was John Terry O'Connell, 21 honeymooning today with the former Betty Scotchler, 19. They fell in love three years ago when she was a reader for the sightless in a Berkley school.

O'Connell, University of California Student, said he hoped some day he would be able to see his wife, who guided his hand as he slipped a wedding ring on her finger in Berkley yesterday.

The Rev. U. E. Harding, Nazarene Minister of Portland, Ore., was one step closer today to his first clear vision of his wife and 27-year-old daughter, evelyn. Mr. Harding has been blind 43 of his 53 years.

Springbrook Lodge Parades To Church

(Examiner Correspondent)

BONARLAW, Aug. 17. — Springbrook Lodge, I.O.O.F., No. 429, attended divine service at the [illegible] Church, Bonarlaw, on Sunday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. There was a splendid attendance. The rector, Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne, gave a splendid sermon taking as his text, "A three-fold cord is not easily broken." The church was beautifully decorated with flowers. During the offertory J. F. Baker sang "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say."

Immediately after the church service the Oddfellows, preceded by Stirling Community Band, marched to Mount Nebo Cemetery where the decoration ceremony was performed. The band rendered excellent music at the church, preceding the church service, during the march, and during the decoration ceremony. The Noble Grand's oration was given by Noble Grand Clayton Burkitt. Past Grand H. Mumby acted as secretary, Past Grand S. Mason as marshal, and Past Grand J. F. Baker as chaplain.

A large number of brethren from neighboring lodges were present, as well as members of Springbrook Lodge from a distance.

WARKWORTH

The beautiful farm residence and spacious lawn of Mr. John Diamond (The Elms), Norwood, afforded an ideal place for his grandson, Jackie Honey, son of Mrs. W. J. Honey, to entertain about thirty little playmates Thursday afternoon from two to five. The children enjoyed games of various kinds. Tables were arranged on the lawn at the supper hour, where an abundance of tempting things good to eat were served. Waitresses at the tables were Mrs. Fred Denike, Dartford; Mrs. Norman Gummer and Mrs. W. J. Honey, Norham, and Miss B. G. French, Campbellford. The following were in attendance: Lillian, Myrtle and Ruby Vansicklan, Marion and Lorraine Stillman, Malcolm and Murray Laver, Marilyn and Bobby Huycke, Keitha and Jim Greenly, Howard Denike, Lloyd Gummer, Donald and Jackie Peterson, Billie Johnson, Ray Kelly, Edna and Shirley Windover, Gordon and Donald Platt, Helen Denike and Marjorie Foster.

BABY FRETFUL?

FRETFULNESS is not natural. It is a sign of trouble. A warning alarm to which you must quickly respond.

Read how Mrs. George Mitchell responds: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets so helpful when my baby gets irritable and upset. I give him one or two tablets and in a short time he is relieved and sleeps so soundly."

Read how Mrs. Stewart McEachern, of Palmerston, Ont., prevents fretfulness: "When my baby shows signs of fever or fretfulness I give her Baby's Own Tablets which change her to a good baby."

They also bring quick relief from diarrhoea, colic, upset stomach, simple croup, colds, constipation, summer complaint and simple fever.

The most delicate baby can take Baby's Own Tablets with safety. They act quickly. Are free from opiates and stupefying drugs. An analyst's certificate in every box. Money back if you are not satisfied. 25 cents. Get a box today. Sickness so often strikes in the night.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Baldwin Ousted Edward Says Author

LONDON, Aug. 17 (CP).—In a more dispassionate mood than during the critical days of December, 1936, British readers again are engaged in controversy over the abdication of Edward VIII, with publication of "Windsor Tapestry," a current best seller, by Compton Mackenzie.

In his book of nearly 600 pages, the author alleges the former king in his extraordinary dilemma was forced into exile by the marshalling of constitutional usage, press opinion, religious prejudice, popular ignorance and political nervousness. He accuses Earl Baldwin, prime minister at the time of the crises, of having "manoeuvred" the abdication.

"General belief," he writes, "had grown up that when Mr. Baldwin made himself responsible for the handling of the king, the editor of The times made himself responsible for the handling of the people.

"It was common talk in Fleet street that a leading article delivering what amounted to an ultimatum to the King wa salready in type at Printing House Square, and it was presumed that this leading article was to be published at the moment most serviceable to the plans of those who had resolved that the king should not have his way."

Clear U. S. Press

Mr. Mackenzie exonerates the United States press of the charge of scandal-mongering in dealing with rumors preceding the abdication and has this to say regarding the self-imposed censorship of the British press:

"Virtue had been carved out of necessity before 1936. What paper would have ventured to distinguish between gossip and fact during that spring and summer? The British press was afraid of publishing libels. That was the predominant reason of the golden silence."

The author contends that Edward had given every promise of being an efficient and sympathetic ruler, conscious of economic conditions within his realm; that he would have made every effort to bring about a better start of affairs at home and abroad and that his determination to marry Mrs. Ernest Simpson was seized upon eagerly as a means to frustrate him, by interests, privileged and jealous parties.

"The deciding emotional factor which prevented revolution during the decade which succeeded the Peace of Versailles, was the captivation of the popular fancy by the personality of the Prince of Wales," the author says.

After a lengthy survey of the marriages of the Hanoverians, the Royal Marriage Act and the attitude of the Church of England on marriage, the author suggests the King's morganatic marriage would have been the proper solution of the problem.

Commenting on the book, The Times says that Mr. Mackenzie in setting out to write the life of the Duke, tells his story in such a way as to make critical treatment almost impossible to anyone who shuns the indecency of argument about the former monarch's most intimate affairs."

FICTION AND FEATURES

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

READ THIS FIRST:

Determined to show Dr. Julian Paige, the man she is in love with, that she can make her own way in the world, Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl burns her bridges behind her, moves to a rooming house, and for lack of anything better, obtains a job as a taxi dancer at the Peacock run by Nick Luigi. She is living with a girl named Laurie Evans, whom she met in the park, and, who, is a cashier at the restaurant which Julian patronizes. Noel feels she has a dangerous rival in Ruth Chester, Julian's pretty nurse. During an outing in the country, Julian tells Noel he wants to kiss her but doesn't think he should. One evening at the Peacock, Luigi tries to kiss Noel. She slaps his face and threatens to quit. Noel gets a job in a laundry but loses it arter 3 days because she doesn't work fast enough. Still dancing at the Peacock, Noel meets a young man named Chris Landers, whose refinement makes him stand out from the others she has danced with there. Noel is happy when Chris returns to the Peacock a week later.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 18

THE NEXT night, before going to the Peacock, Noel had a simple dinner of soup and a sandwich at a little place on Main street. But her appetite, which had been so lusty for a while, now seemed to have deserted her. She managed the soup, but the sandwich was left untouched, although she knew she should have eaten it regardless of whether she wanted it or not. Dancing was strenuous exercise.

Promptly at the hour she was at the Peacock, hoping that Chris would be there. The hours didn't seem near so long when he came. She slipped into the brocade and the new slippers, which did not feel very comfortable because they were stiff. Noel hoped they wouldn't hurt her feet. If she had only thought, she would have realized that it was better to get at least a half size larger when buying cheap shoes. But it was too late to think of that now.

There were not so many dancers at the Peacock tonight, and Noel found herself actually sitting out a few dances, a fact for which she was grateful indeed because the new sandals were hurting her feet.

Many of the girls were sitting out tonight at the tables lined against the walls. Most of them were a great deal more friendly now. Even the tall dark girl who had been so catty at times often gave Noel a friendly smile.

Maida was back tonight. She came up and stood for a moment beside Noel. There was a thick coating of rouge on her rather thin hollow cheeks. She had been sick she said, and terribly afraid Nick wouldn't let her come back. But he had.

"Say, kid, how on earth do you do it?" she asked.

"Do what?" Noel asked puzzled.

"You know, make 'em come back again and again and beg for dances. And you even know how to handle Nick, and tell him where to get off and he likes it. And that young fellow, he's a swell or somethin'—anybody can see that he's nuts about you," she broke off. Then exclaimed, "Look, there he is!"

A rush of warmth came to Noel's heart as she looked up and saw Chris standing there in the middle of the floor, his eyes searching for her. In another minute he was moving toward her.

Maida smiled and walked on.

Chris had a long string of tickets, and the thought came into Noel's mind that perhaps Nick wouldn't mind it if she danced a number of times with Chris tonight since there wasn't a very big crowd.

Then she and Chris were dancing. And he was looking down at her from his tall height. "Haven't been able to get you off my mind. The way you dance, the way you look, your pretty gold hair and blue eyes—everything about ou. 'Fraid I've got an awful crush on you, sweetheart."

"I'm glad—you came back, Chris," Noel murmured. "I was hoping you would."

"Did you miss me?" he asked.

"A lot," Noel assented.

"Well, then," Chris went on in his blithe boyish voice, "you won't be missing me any more. Not when there's a chance to see you and dance with you. Besides there's a special reason why I've been thinking of you—" he broke off then, and his boyish face darkened. "But first, you must tell me something. Is there anything between you and this Luigi fellow. Tell me the truth."

"Of course there's not," Noel exclaimed quickly. "I dislike him, and I'm getting away from this place before long."

Chris almost stopped dancing at that. His arms held her a little more closely. "And am I glad of that? Now, listen, I shouldn't be surprised if I can't find you a way to get away from here. I may be in position to make you an offer—"

Noel gave him a quick questioning look. "Oh, I mean, in a perfectly nice way," he hastened to say. "I'll tell you about it when—my plans are better formulated."

They had drinks, then, and danced another dance. Then Chris beckoned to a number of the dancers and bought drinks around. He certainly didn't mind spending money, and seemed to have plenty of it, which was possibly the reason Nick had not again interfered with his taking up Noel's time.

But even at that, Noel thought it best to dance with some of the others who were asking her for dances, even though she hated herself for her weakness in trying to keep Nick in a good humor.

And then she was dancing again with Chris and enjoying it so much because their steps matched so beautifully. And Chris wouldn't let anybody cut in, though several tried. "Ever do any professional dancing?" he asked

Noel said she hadn't

"Are you a professional?" Noel asked. She felt that Chris might easily be from the beautiful, graceful way he danced.

Chris smiled and admitted that he was. And then went on with his first train of thcugh. "I dont suppose it takes much more, energy dancing professionally than it does in a place like this.

"I don't believe it would," Noel said with the knowledge, born of her experience. "You see, you have to dance with so many different kinds of dancers. Some of them can dance, and lots of them are rank amateurs. And there are so many cut-ins, and while the dances are short, the intermissions are shorter. "You can't tell me. I know it's strenuous work," Chris said. "But in a way it's absolutely splendid practice. And I'm really glad because—" But Chris didn't finish for Nick was standing there with another man he had brought to claim a dance with Noel. This was one of the men who had tried to cut in, and he gave Chris a look of malice when he put his arms around Noel and danced away with her.

"That blond fellow can't have everything his way, you know," he said to Noel.

She didn't even look up at him, and didn't consider it necessary to answer. She was paid to dance, but her conversation was extra.

When the dance was finished, Noel's partner looked down upon her a little ruefully. "Did I make you angry?"

Noel shook her head. Then said apologetically, "I'm sorry. I have on a pair of new slippers and they're rather tight."

The man bowed politely and went away. Then Noel saw Chris at the tables, buying drinks again. It occurred to her that he too was trying to keep Nick in a good humor.

He waited until Noel had finished several other dances, then quite coolly took possession of her. As soon as they danced off, he said, "Say, sweetheart, when will this thing be over? Does it go on forever and forever?"

"We close a little after 1," she told him.

Chris looked at his watch. "Then it won't be long now. And of course I'm going to take you home. Got things to talk over."

Noel nodded. She wasn't feeling half as tired as she thought she would be, even though the shoes were too tight. But Chris' presence was stimulating. Also the cocktails she had had gave her an artificial strength.

Noel, of course, had no idea what had happened at the De Luxe about 10, just when Laurie was getting ready to leave.

Julian had come in and asked her again about Noel. Then he wanted to know where to find her. Quite innocently Laurie told him that she was dancing at the Peacock where she had been for quite some time. And that the place would close at 1.

So Noel, all unsuspecting, was dancing and laughing and feeling a little happier than usual.

She left Chris waiting and went in the dressing room to get out of the hateful brocade. When she came out, Chris was waiting at the entrance. And so was Julian, his eyes very dark and angry.

Want to Know Why You're Constipated?

Would you give a million to shake off that dull, dopey, played-out feeling that often comes with common constipation? Then stop a minute and think.

What have you had to eat this week? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? Probably the reason you're constipated is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't entirely consumed, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines which helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat some Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains both the intestinal tonic vitamin B_1, and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. See if you don't get off your heels and on your toes! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

DOROTHY DIX

A "Good" Woman Can Do Much Harm To Her Children Or Husband By Not Being Firm When the Occasion Arises Or Too Bossy At Other Times

WE ALL know how deadly is the influence of a bad woman over a man. We have all seen everything that is fine, generous and idealistic in a man wither and die under the influence of a narrow, selfish, stingy woman, as a flower does under an August sun. We have seen women turn honest men into thieves; sober men into drunkards; gentle men into murderers, and so the most earnest advice we give to our sons is to beware the scarlet woman as the greatest danger that can ever threaten them.

But, curiously enough, we never think of the harm that the influence of "good" women does; yet that ruins more men, brings about more unhappiness and turns more men into failures than all the combined gold-diggers, temptresses and vamps have ever effected. Because, for one thing, the "good" woman's evil intentions against a man are so camouflaged by love that he does not recognize them for what they are and hence has no chance to escape. For another thing, no other human being is so relentless and tireless in pursuit of her purpose, as the "good" woman who is determined to dominate a man. She is like the continual drop of water that wears away the hardest stone. And, most of all, she counts her evil doings into herself for righteousness and never doubts that she is doing the thing she does for the good of her victim.

If you want proof of this assertion, you have only to look about you. Aren't nine-tenths of the good-for-nothing, lazy, shiftless parasitic young men, who are living on their fathers long after they should have been supporting themselves, Mother's spoiled darlings? They were born with good strong minds and bodies and should have made worthwhile upstanding men, but Mother's influence ruined them and made them what they are.

Mother couldn't deny her precious pet anything he desired and cried for, so he grew up selfish and self-centered, and expecting life to give him everything he wanted without his having to work for it. Mother never taught him to control his appetites, and he drank too much whisky as an adolescent as he ate too much fruit cake when he was a kid.

Mother never taught him to work, or let him go through with anything he had undertaken or to do anything he didn't want to do. She always blamed the teachers when he got bad marks, and let him move from school to school, trying to find out where he would be understood. And so when he started out in the world to make his living he threw up his hands and quit whenever the sledding got hard or the job got monotonous. He became one of those drifters who are always going into new occupations and who never get anywhere.

Almost without exception, you will find that what a man is, is due to his mother's influence. If he is a success, she bred strength, grit and determination into him. If he is a failure, she made a weakling of him.

Millions of wives ruin their husbands by bossing them. The woman who henpecks her husband gratifies her love of power, but she does it at the expense of his success in the world. She has broken his spirit and taken all the spunk out of him, and all that he will ever do is just to take orders abroad as well as at home, and be as weak and as inconspicuous as possible.

Millions of other wives ruin their husbands by making trouble between them and their partners and forcing the breaking up of a prosperous business. Others ruin their husbands by shutting the door of opportunity in their faces and refusing to leave Mother and the girls and their bridge foursomes by going to live among strangers.

Others ruin their husbands by pleading and wheedling until they force them to give up the good-paying, commonplace occupations they are in and going into some profession for which they are not fitted, but which the wives consider more elegant and stylish.

And many a wife makes a failure of her husband by her lack of faith in him; by her belittling him and wet-blanketing his every plan and aspiration until he loses courage and hope and faith in himself, and gives up even trying to climb the ladder of success. A powerful thing is a woman's influence, for good or ill.

Learn New Etiquette for These New Times

Put Your Escort at Ease

New manners for new times! It's the girl who knows the code of this age of automobiles, clubs, restaurants, movies who's invited out. Her friends can count on her not to cause blunders.

Going to the club dance, she has her escort drop her at the entrance before parking his car. She repairs her complexion in the dressing room, joins her escort where they agreed to meet.

Asked to "bring a man along" to a party, she says to her new neighbor, "The Joneses are giving a party Saturday. Could you come with me?" She doesn't embarrass him with "What are you doing Saturday?"

If she has no place for entertaining, she invites her dinner hostess to a tearoom or restaurant, or sends her a small gift. Occasionally she gets tickets, asks a faithful escort to a dance or concert.

You'll find more tips on smooth up-to-date manners in our 32-page booklet. Introductions, invitations, travel. Learn the social graces that attract friends.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of ETIQUETTE FOR ALL OCCASIONS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

As soon as the lights were out, Knarf, the shadow boy, gave a sharp tug with his feet and snapped himself away from the footsteps of the little boy he belonged to.

Knarf slipped through the house. In the playroom he found Hanid, the shadow girl, getting ready to take a nap in the corner of the ceiling.

"Come down!" he called to her. "We have an important errand to do to-night."

"What important errand?" Hanid

He grabbed her around the waist.

mised to go to the garden and tell asked sleepily.

"Don't you remember? We promised the Mole family not to build any more of their tunnels under the lawn."

"I dont remember that at all. Please go away and let me sleep."

"No, you have to come with me. And there's something else we must tell them, too. We must tell them that unless they stop building their tunnels under the lawn, Father is going to set a trap for them. We mustn't forget to tell them about the trap. Well, are you coming down?"

Makes Her Get Up.

Hanid didn't answer.

"Oh, so you've fallen asleep again! I'll wake you up!"

With that Knarf slid up the side of the wall (shadows can do that trick with less trouble than you can slide off a log) and grabbed her around the waist.

"Ouch!....I'll be right down!" And she did come down.

"Well!" said Hanid impatiently, "where do those moles live?"

"In the garden, of course....I mean, under the garden. All we have to do now is find the entrance to their tunnel. That shouldn't take long."

Hanid gazed around the dark garden. She could see the hedge and the wall, and the apple tree and the pansy bed, and the hollyhocks. But she couldn't see the least little sign of a tunnel!

13,000 Feet Cable Stolen

WELLAND, Ont., Aug. 17 (CP).—Thirteen thousand feet of cable covering a mile of ship canal transmission line, strung on 60 poles, has been stolen during the last few months.

This was revealed in evidence at the special magistrate's court here yesterday, when George Marko, Humberstone farmer, was committed for trial on a charge of being in illegal possession of a quantity of aluminum cabling, the property of the Welland ship canal.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, August 18.

Promises, omens, and portents of unpredictable character are discernible in this day's planetary map. Surprising if not spectacular occurrences may mark the day, in which tempest and turmoil, quarrels, and drastic activities may hold sway, unless checked by calmness, good judgment and the restraining and subduing influence of an elderly woman.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year in which things move with the suddenness and fury of a tornado. And while there may be surprising and spectacular developments, they hold promise of much progress and definite benefits if impetuosity, recklessness, violence and wild judgment are not permitted to wreck and ruin them.

A child born on this day may be endowed with much creative ability, possibly in original or scientific lines. This, backed up by an ardent, impetuous, quarrelsome nature, and dramatic tendencies, may take it to sensational (or tragic) heights.

Miss Dorothy Rowland Entertained At Shower

Mrs. Jack Sheward of 548 Edison Avenue entertained recently at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Dorothy Rowland, whose marriage to Mr. Lemuel Pammett takes place this month.

During the evening piano duets were given by Margaret and George Young, and Shirley Garner and Kenny Simmons gave tap dance numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. Sheward and Miss T. Dobson.

After the bride-elect and her fiance had thanked their many friends for the lovely gifts, the hostess served dainty refreshments, assisted by Mrs. J. Sheward, Sr., and Mrs. J. L. Rowland.

Guests present included: Muriel Pellow, Toots Dobson, Muriel Dunford, Keitha Dunford, Dora Dunford, Margaret Young, Shirley Garner, Dorothy and June Lowther, Marian Edmison, Enid Hancock, Marjorie Ruth, Helen Mesley, Elva and Jean Gray, Messrs. Kenny Simmons, George Young, Bobbie Milburn, John Edmison, Allan Boate and Mrs. J. L. Rowland and Mrs. J. Sheward, Sr.

August Bride-Elect Given Kitchen Shower

A bride of next week, Miss Agnes Condon, was guest of honor recently at a kitchen shower in ivory and red enamelware, which was held at the home of her sister, Mrs. James MacFarlane, Park Street.

The rooms were tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers centred by large white bells. During the evening games and contests were enjoyed, and the prize was won by Mrs. J. Cooper. Later a gaily decorated basket laden with gifts was drawn into the living-room by little Rita Doris and Maurie MacFarlane and presented to the bride-to-be, and a dainty lunch served.

Bride-Elect Of The Week Is Honored

Several miscellaneous showers have been given recently in honor of Miss Jean Jewell, 121 Stewart street, whose marriage to Mr. Jimmy Levergne takes place on Thursday, August 18.

The Star of Bethlhem Lodge members called at the bride's home and showered her with many delightful gifts which were presented in a pink and white basket; Miss Annie Weaver of 136 Park street was hostess at a miscellaneous shower, and Miss Kay Vinette of 933 Water street entertained a number of the bride-elect's friends, who presented her with a large number of lovely gifts, and Tuesday evening Miss Jewell and her fiance were presented with a reversible wool blanket by Mr. W. J. Geraghty on behalf of the F. and G. staff, of which Mr. Levergne was a former member, and their hearty good wishes were extended to the young couple.

Showers Held For Janetville Bride-Elect

Miss Beatrice McNeil, popular August bride-elect, was guest of honor Friday evening when about two hundred neighbors and friends of the community gathered at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Herbert McNeil, Janetville, and presented her with a miscellaneous shower of gifts.

Mrs. McNeil received the guests. Before the presentation of gifts, Mrs. Bert McMullen read a well-worded address to which the bride-elect replied in a few appropriate words inviting all to visit her at her new home near Reaboro.

Guests from a distance included: Mr. and Mrs. Harwood McGill, Cavan; Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Shea and family, Fleetwood; Mr. and Mrs. McCabe, Lotus; Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson and Miss Hazel Wilson of Lotus.

Other showers given in honor of the bride-elect included: The presentation of a silver casserole by the Young People's League, Sunderland, of which Miss McNeil has been a member for the past three years; a miscellaneous shower given by friends at Vroomanton; and a linen shower by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Janetville Presbyterian church, of which the bride-elect is a member.

Entertains At Birthday Party

In honor of her 12th birthday, Miss Ellen Lundy entertained at a pleasant party at Camp Camouflage this week. Her guests included: Mr. and Mrs. J. Barton of Windsor, Ont., and their two sons, Billy and Tommy, Mrs. John Beavis of Chicago, Mrs. J. Jackson and daughter Ruth, Mrs. J. D. Arbuthnot and two daughters, Audrey and Joan of Lansing, Clara and Fanny Ruskin, Orville Sellon, Pauline Zacks, Edgar and Jack Naish and Phyllis and Helen Dummitt, Peterborough.

BEES INVADE FACTORY

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I.—(CP). — Either there was a queen bee in the truck, or the bees mistook the truck for a queen. In either case, a large swarm of the honey-harvesters followed a truck belonging to a local concern from some distance out in the country right into the concern's factory here. Aid of a bee fancier was summoned, and he gathered the swam into a hive. Spectators watched from a polite or discreet distance.

Lovely, Colorful Handkerchiefs Are Vital Wardrobe Accessories

Petit point flowers are embroidered on a black chiffon handkerchief by Burmel to accompany a clever black and white dinner dress.

By LISBETH

It was Marie Antoinette, the French queen who lost her head on the guillotine, who invented the handkerchief.

The story goes that when this young Hapsburg princess was ready to leave Vienna for Versailles to wed the son of Louis XV, she burst into tears, and having nothing on which to dry them, she tore off part of the square lace fichu from the neck of her dress, and with it wiped her eyes and cheeks.

Madame Dubarry, Louis XV's court favorite, took up the idea, and handkerchiefs became the fashion, even the king demanding one. As the ladies of the French court often used this new invention to dust the powder off their black mouches or beauty patches, it became known as the mouchoir.

The mouchoir became the handkerchief, most dear to every modern woman and man, and one of their most important accessories with every type of costume.

Aiding China

Right now the popularity of handkerchiefs is helping to keep rice in Chinese bowls, for the undeclared war with Japan has stimulated one of China's leading export industries, needlecraft or hand-embroidery and other handwork on linens, especially handkerchiefs.

But in modern usage handkerchiefs are not only used for wiping away tears. In the pockets of suits and dresses they add a last dainty touch; suspended from the wrist by a rhinestone bracelet they accompany formal dresses to concerts, dances, etc. Or tied, peasant-fashion over the head they take the place of hats and caps for sports or evening wear.

Flowers on Chiffon

Petit point flowers are embroidered by the same designer, on a cobwebby chiffon hanky, center. This handkerchief accents a black and white formal costume for dining under the stars. These kerchiefs come in a number of different patterns and colors, so that you have a different mouchoir for each gown.

Another petit point embroidered kerchief covers the hair of the lady on our right. Worn with a fluffy ostrich boa it exudes softness and femininity.

Catherine E. Burch Is Noon Bride

The marriage of Miss Catherine Ellis Burch, daughter of Mrs. Burch, of Stirling, formerly of Winnipeg, and the late Reginald Burch, to Mr. Grant Linn Thain of Madoc, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Thain of Harold, Ontario, took place in Mark street church at noon today, August 17. Ferns and vari-colored gladioli decorated the church, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. E. W. Rowland.

The bride, given in marriage by Dr. W H. Pedley, wore a fitted afternoon frock of Copenhagen blue, with matching felt hat and coat, and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of roses and cornflowers. She was attended by Miss Joyce Mounsey of Montreal, and the groomsman was Mr. John L. Good of Stirling.

Following the ceremony an informal luncheon was held at the Empress Hotel, and later Mr. Thain and his bride left for a motor trip to the New England states. On their return they will live in Madoc. Miss Burch is a graduate of Manitoba University, and Mr. Thain of Queen's University.

Guests at the luncheon included: Mrs. M. Burch, Stirling, Rev. E. W. Rowland and Mrs. Rowland, Miss Joyce Munsey, Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Good, Miss Clara Thain, Mr. and Mrs. James LaGrow, Mrs. Nora Westcott, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Pedley, Mrs. Nina Morton and Mrs. J. C. Thain, all of Stirling

Accessorize Your Floors

Floors, like clothes, are taking to accessories, and you may be in the mood to make some room a present of a spattered floor. You can spatter your own and make it as dramatic or as demure as you like. It won't cost much, and this treatment is as brightly suited to a gay little bedroom, with chintz draperies and slip covers, as to an enclosed porch, game room, study, or den. Black always is good for a foundation coat, and you can "spatter" dots in several colors, to carry out the color scheme of the room.

Yellow is a lovely color to include in the scheme of a room. It is the hue of sunshine, of daffodils, and buttercups, cheerful and gay. Following are several complete color schemes for the living room, each with a note of yellow.

1. Silver and gray walls; lemon yellow draperies; yellow, off white and green upholsteries; white accents; deep green carpet.

2. Light yellow walls; gray and blue chintz draperies; blue and yellow upholsteries; white accents; gray carpet.

Fountain Pens in Use for Long Time

Fountain pens have been in use for a much longer period than one realizes. As far back as 1657, in a "Dairy of a Journey to Paris," under date July 11, a man is mentioned who "makes pens of silver, in which he puts ink which does not get dry, so, without having to take any, one can write a half-quire of paper at a sitting."

Samuel Pepys, in his Diary, August 9, 1663, tells us; "This day I begun to make use of the silver pen to carry inke in." They were also known as "reservoir pens" and "fountain horns."

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"For what is it that faith does with these lives of ours? It just lifts them up out of our weak, trembling, uncertain control and puts them into the hands of God. It makes them part of His great plan. It binds them fast to His pure and loving will, and fills them with His life."—Van Amburgh.

Dear Friends:

I think more people would try having faith in God, if it were not stressed so often by religious people, that "you can't do this, and you mustn't do that, if you are serving God." And so, making of the love of God such a dry, arid, dusty thing, they turn others from it.

But get to know more about God, and you find it isn't like that at all. We do not rebel against the laws of the land, even although there are some we do not agree with at all. We know they were put there for our protection and so we accept them.

And there are the laws of God, the commandments and the Lord's prayer. If you read your bible, you will see in the old testament entirely different teachings to what is in the new testament.

It used to be "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," wars in which God was on one side and against the other. Burnt offerings with which even then, men used to try and chisel on God by giving the culls and the maimed to take care of their sins, until He laid down the law that they had to be pure and whole.

But, in the New Testament the law is love. When our Lord came down as a little child, I think they must have consulted with One another, God the Father, God the Son, and the Holy Ghost, saying in effect, "There has to be a change. All this fighting and scrambling amongst men is getting them nowhere. Why do they act like that?"

And so, being Divine, they could not understand humanity, how they act, and how they react. So, they decided that the Son would come down and alter them. (Understand, these are only my own ideas.) And before He could do that He had to be a man from the ground up, and Infant with a Mother and Father.

Living as they did, eating, sleeping, suffering with toothache, and headaches maybe, working, and maybe even having a touch of indigestion. Coming to His mother with His little troubles and being comforted as we have done.

And, out of all this great vast compassion, a greater understanding, for you must experience a thing before you are in sympathy with others. Then He went about doing good, curing the sick, helping the poor. He did not give them fame, nor honors, nor riches. He gave them better than that, a close understanding of the love of God.

He taught them to have faith. He condemned certain things while showing them better things. And all the while He preached love. What use is life if there is riches of every description, and no one to love, and none to love you?

Why do people endure heat and cold, long hard hours of work, everything and anything they do endure, if they are not doing it for those they love? And love is worth it all, so He said "Little children, love one another."

He showed them the miracles God allowed Him as a man to perform, telling them they could do these things too if they had the faith. He tried to cure them of worry by telling of the lillies of the field who did not toil but were clothed, of how even a sparrow could not fall without Him seeing it. I say without fear of contradiction that faith will cure anything and everything. Add love of God to it and you have the key to the universe. More later. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

FILET CROCHET PATTERN 1819

Thrills await the needlewoman who tries her skill on this filet crochet. She can make a chair or buffet set—scarf ends of the larger piece—and a pillow top to match! Shell stitch (easy to do) gives the quaint figures depth — and open mesh sets them off effectively. Pattern contains charts and directions for making the set; materials required; illustrations of stitches.

Send 20 cents in coins or stamps for this pattern to The Examiner, Needlecraft Department, Peterborough. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

Wear Loose Clothing In Hot Weather

In hot weather wear clothes that fit you loosely. You don't want tight collars to interfere with the circulation of your brain, or you may faint. Also loose clothing allows the air to get to your skin and to increase the loss of heat from your body.

The skin of white people is not well suited to sun-exposure because the skin-temperature rises more in them than it does in brown-skinned people. The skin tans, of course, as the result of exposure to sun, and then becomes a better heat-regulator.

So, if you're the possesor of a white skin, be careful not to overdo sun-bathing, at all events until your body is protected by a layer of bronzed skin.

Don't hurry unnecessarily. As your principal object is to keep your body as cool as possible, and as exercise increases combustion and acts rather like drawing out the damper of a furnace, it pays to avoid all violent exertion.

No Money In Spiders

That's the advice Dr. F. C. Bishopp gives the dozens of people who write the United States Bureau of Entomology asking whether there is enough scientific demand for the spiders to pay anyone to make a business of collecting them.

New Plane Plant

LONDON, Aug. 17—(CP-Havas) Government-financed expansion of A. V. Roe and Co., permitting it to build a new £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) plant for the construction of fighting planes and to double its present force of 5,000 workers, was announced last night by Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood.

Sir Kingsley made his visit to the A. V. Roe works, near Manchester, the occasion for the announcement.

"Harvest Home" Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (AP). — There was a "harvest home" day tinge to Magistrate Edgar Bromberger's court to-day. He fined three women $2.00 each for raising chickens in their Manhattan apartments, then slapped a $50 fine on Harry Seigel, nabbed in the act of pelting a peddler with three pecks of Idaho potatoes. There is a health ordinance against chicken-raising in apartments here.

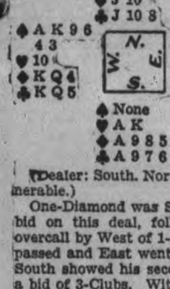
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T UNDERRATE HIM

GIVE THE other fellow credit for using his brains, too. If he is a good player, consider usually that the bid he has just made was based on about the same kind of hand you yourself would have required in the circumstances. Using this thinking process may save you from making many costly bids and doubles which at first thought appear thoroughly sound.



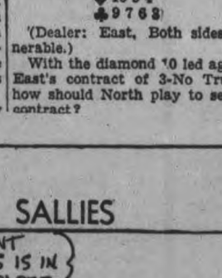
(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

One-Diamond was South's initial bid on this deal, followed by an overcall by West of 1-Spade. North passed and East went to 2-Hearts. South showed his second suit with a bid of 3-Clubs. With a singleton in his partner's suit and, as he considered, two tricks in each of the minors, West promptly doubled this bid.

To his dismay, South not only made the bid, but an overtrick. He won the original lead of the heart 10 with the A and followed with the heart K, which West ruffed with the club 5. The spade K was next offered and ruffed by declarer, who then cashed his club A, leaving West with the outstanding high trump. The diamond A was next played and followed by a small one to West's Q. West then took the club K, but was obliged to return another spade for South to ruff. A diamond ruff cleared that suit and the club 9 afforded South an entry to his hand to run the remaining diamonds.

• • •

Monday's Problem



(Dealer: East, Both sides vulnerable.)

With the diamond 10 led against East's contract of 3-No Trumps, how should North play to set the contract?

Complaints against the local plant of Canada Packers were voiced before the Board of Health at Tuesday's meeting by Ald. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who waited on the board to state his case.

The deputation of one charged that industrial liquid waste from the plant, including parts of entrails, was dumped into the Otonabee River instead of being disposed of through the city sewer.

"I have been down to Point St. Charles several times lately," said Ald. Gordon, "and I could see oil, grease and excreta of some kind on the logs there."

The complainant also voiced a protest against the odor from the plant, giving the dates on which he said conditions had been particularly bad recently. He told the Board that the sale of a property in Ashburnham had been lost because the prospective purchaser happened to visit the property on an occasion when the smell from the C.P. plant was very offensive.

Ald. Gordon said that he had been informed that this odor could be eliminated. He stated that the Medical Officer had power to deal with the matters he complained of.

Ald. Gordon also complained of odors from the stable of Sunshine Dairy and from the grating in front of Beuhler's store.

Sanitary Inspector MacPherson stated that he had made a checkup at the Canada Packers plant recently and he had found that in regard to the odor the chief cause of complaint was from the roasters used. It was believed that the installation of condensers would eliminate most of this trouble and he had found that the company had already arranged to have these condensers put in.

Ald. Gordon was informed that the Board would consider his complaints and he withdrew.

Later a letter was read from G. S. Matthews of Canada Packers in which he referred to a number of recommendations that had been made by the Sanitary Inspector. He stated that the condensers suggested were already being installed and that in view of that fact a water washing system was not necessary. As for the suggested chlorination of waste material, Mr. Matthews stated that the river was already so polluted from other sources that chlorination in their case would be a useless expense. He promised co-operation with the Board in other matters mentioned.

"I think we will gain more by working with the company than any other way," was Ald. Dutton's comment.

Hespeler Move Cleaned Up River Condition

A special report of an investigation made by Sanitary Inspector MacPherson and Plumbing Inspector A. G. Metheral of the Auburn plant of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds in regard to the alleged pollution of the Otonabee River by refuse from the mill was read at Tuesday's Board of Health meeting.

The report showed that so far as bacterial contamination went the Auburn plant was entirely blameless as tests of water taken from above the plant and other samples taken from below showed the same bacterial content. The investigators found that the chief complaint in regard to the Auburn mill was the wool that sometimes went into the river and was a nuisance to the swimmers at Inverlea.

At the same time it was stated that there would be no more trouble from wool in the water as the dye house and finishing room of the Auburn were being removed to Hespeler.

Millbrook W.I. Plans Course For Lectures

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 17.—Mrs. H. J. Armstrong was hostess for the August meeting of the Women's Institute, the vice-president, Mrs. E. C. Richards, taking the chair for the first part of the business session.

After full discussion of the letter from the Department of Agriculture relative to the annual training school for leaders, it was decided to appoint Mrs. H. J. Armstrong as the local leader, and to take full advantage of the course offered on "Buymanship". Each of the eight branches in East Durham will similarly appoint a leader, and the school will be held at Millbrook on September 23, October 28, and November 25, session beginning at 10 a.m., and closing at 4 p.m.; Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke was chosen as local alternate leader with Mrs. Armstrong.

All names of leaders are to be sent at once to Miss Edyth M. Collins, Field Secretary for Clothing, Toronto.

It was decided to have a booth, as usual, at the school fair this fall, the committee on supplies to include Mrs. G. O. Fallis, Mrs. D. Olan and Mrs. J. W. Hilton The secretary was instructed to write a letter of thanks to F. C. Scott for his courtesy in giving his car to convey local members to Morrish, his travelogue talk at that meeting that day, and for the use of the shuffleboard when the Morrish branch was entertained here last week.

The matter of the picnic, postponed from last Thursday on account of rain, was discussed and the event will be held on the school grounds on August 23, providing the consent of the school board is obtained, Mrs. William West to see the chairman regarding this matter.

The invitation from the Elizabethville branch to be its guests on September 7 at 2.30 p.m., the Millbrook branch to provide the program, was accepted with thanks, the committee on transportation to be Mrs. B. L. Richards, and Mrs. H. Nattress, cars to leave at 1.30 sharp. The program committee is Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke and Mrs. W. H. Armstrong

The Mizpah benediction closed the meeting.

ROOSEVELT PLEDGES CANADA SAFETY

King Greets President At Kingston

Two Talk Weather As Thousands Hail Noted Visitor

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 18 (C.P.)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King was among the first on the station platform to greet President Franklin D. Roosevelt when the head of the United States Government arrived here to-day in his special train. Cheers broke from the crowd as the President left his private car "Marco Polo" at 10.45 a.m. (E.D.T.).

"Is it going to rain," asked Mr. Roosevelt, as he came down the ramp from his private car and glanced at the murky skies. Earlier showers had cooled the air.

"No, Mr. President, it is going to be fine," replied Mr. King.

The Prime Minister proved a good prophet. By the time the procession reached flag-draped Richardson Stadium, where President Roosevelt received the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Laws from Queen's University, the sky had cleared and the sun shone brightly.

Thousands Line Streets.

Thousands lined both sides of the gaily decorated streets as the President was driven in an open motor car from the railway station to the Stadium. Hundreds of law officers, some in uniform and others in plain clothes, swarmed about the distinguished visitor to ensure his safety.

"Thank you, I am very pleased," the President said at the station when Mayor H. A. Stewart presented a teakwood souvenir box containing two miniature cannons of teakwood and brass, all made by Canadian Legion members here from an old cannon used in the 1812-14 War between Canada and United States. "I read about this in the papers," Mr. Roosevelt said.

Once seated in his car President Roosevelt relieved the tension among photographers, who up to this time had been restained by secret service agents from taking pictures.

"There we are—we can all be photographed together," the President said with a smile and indicating Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews of Ontario and Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's University who were seated beside him.

Closer, Please!

"Get closer," cameramen instructed him.

"I assure you I will get as close as possible to the President," Mr. King replied.

"That works both ways," said President Roosevelt, smiling broadly.

A 21-gun salute was fired as the President and his party left the station, escorted through a military guard of honor and along streets of cheering thousands by a dozen motorcycle constables.

Monroe Doctrine Is Extended Over Dominion

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP). — State Department officials interpreted President Roosevelt's speech at Kingston today as an extension of the Monroe Doctrine to Canada.

In his speech at Queen's University the President pledged the United States "will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire," and called the Dominion a member in the fellowship of the Americas.

Hitherto the doctrine has been interpreted as applying solely to the Latin-American republics. It states the United States' determination to oppose aggression by an outside power in the western hemisphere.

When the doctrine was originally stated by President Monroe December 2, 1823, the declaration excluded colonies already established in the western hemphere by European powers.

President Roosevelt's speech recalled his last Pan-American address when he said all the nations of the western hemisphere would join in resisting aggression from without. This was interpreted here as a statement of a new pan-American Monroe Doctrine.

Civic Dinner Is Given To Minister

Tribute Is Paid To Co-operation City And County

Hon P. M. Dewan, Minister of Agriculture paid generous tribute to the county and city leaders today in the way they are walking hand and hand to great achievements for the district, and explained that this splendid spirit of friendly co-operation between the rural and city people is reflected in the success of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, one of the finest Class A fairs in the province. He spoke briefly at a civic luncheon tendered by the City Council in the Empress Hotel at noon today, at which members of the County Council, members of parliament from the neighboring ridings and Department of Agriculture representatives with prominent Peterborough business men in attendance.

Mayor James Hamilton tendered a warm welcome to the distinguished visitor and remarked that the minister had seen fit to miss a cabinet meeting to be on hand for the formal opening of the Peterborough Exhibition. He expressed the hope, Mr. Dewan would see fit to visit the city often and stated the Department of Agriculture under the minister's guidance would be certain to make real progress. He also welcomed the Department of Agriculture representatives and the other guests and voiced the hope that the fine spirit of friendly co-operation that has existed down through the years between the city and county would continue and thus bring about greater success for the Exhibition.

Alex. Elliott, M.L.A., introduced the guest of honor in a brief address which sketched Mr. Dewan's activities since high school days. Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., chairman of the reception and legal committee of the city council, was chairman.

Appreciates Reception

"This in indeed a happy occasion for me," said Mr. Dewan. "I realize that this civic welcome is superfluous and therefore is appreciated by me all the more. I appreciate this splendid reception, and must admit I am amazed at the beauty of your city. In my trip through the city streets today I found many streets of beautiful homes and many industries which were pointed out to me are the prosperous type which suffer only slightly during periodic depressions.

I am happy too that my ideals are being fostered in Peterborough. I have always sought to give young men and women in rural centres the greatest aid in educating them for the task of solving the many problems of the farm. Last evening I was privileged to address three hundred of these fine young people. It was an inspiring sight to know that everyone was taking the short courses provided by the Department of Agriculture with the assistance of local leaders.

"A happy, contented rural people is the greatest asset of a nation, and I am pleased that city dwellers are doing their share in bringing about such a condition in so much as they are assisting in the education of these young men and women.

I wish to commend the citizens and civic leaders of Peterborough for the sound financial position which the city enjoys, and I pay high tribute to you for the splendid community spirit which is being fostered particularly between the farmers and the city dwellers. You are walking hand in hand down the

Roosevelt Warns American Interests After Power Monopoly, Urges Speed In Treaty To Develop St. Lawrence Project

IVY LEA, Ont., Aug. 18—(CP)—In politics as well as in road-making Canada and the United States have learned and practised the art of bridge-building. Prime Minister Mackenzie King said here today as he joined with President Roosevelt in the dedication of the Thousapd Islands international bridge.

"The peoples of this continent, whether concerned with steel and stone or with the invisible realities of the mind and spirit, have, for the most part been bridge-builders worthy of the name," he said. "In politics as in road-making it is a great thing, Mr. President, to know how to build bridges.

"In the art of international bridge-building there are two structures, each with its association with the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes, of which I should like to say just a word. They stand out as monuments of international co-operation and good will. Each has its message for the world of today. The one is the Rush-Bagot agreement of 1817 and the other the international joint commission, created in 1909."

Start of Real Peace.

By the Rush-Bagot agreement, coming on the heels of the war of 1812, Canada and the United States did away with armaments on the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes. It was the start of the undefended frontier now stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. By that agreement the two countries placed reliance on reason instead of force.

Creation of that bridge led to others outstanding among them being the international joint commission set up in recent times to settle all differences arising along 4,000 miles of frontier. The commission, substituting investigation for dictation and conciliation for coercion, had already settled many questions likely to lead to serious controversy.

"This bridge of peace (the com-

Crossing Smash Kills Five In Quebec Town

CHAMBORD, Que., Aug. 18 — (CP)—Five men were killed today and a sixth injured seriously when their automobile was struck by a Canadian National Railways passenger train at a level crossing here today.

The dead, on their way to work at nearby Ile Maligne when the accident occurred were: Louis Lavoie, Joseph Boucher, Joseph Martel, Leonce Tremblay and Cleophas Fortin. Lavoie's son Jean, driver of the car, was rushed to hospital at Roberval.

Residents of St. Francois de Sales, the victims were thrown from their car by the force of the collision. Doctor Boudreau and Father Tremblay of the Dominican Order, both of Chambord, hurried to the scene of the crash and the priest administered last sacraments of the Roman Catholic Church to the dead and dying men.

IVY LEA, Ont., Aug. 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt made a vigorous plea for the long-debated St. Lawrence waterway treaty today and said that unless the United States and Canada take joint governmental action a "group of American interests" may gain a monopoly in developing the river.

The United States president spoke at dedication ceremonies for the winding bridge across the St. Lawrence connecting Ivy Lea, Ont., and Collins Landing, N.Y.

"Mr. Prime Minister, the President said, it has always seemed to me that the best symbol of common sense was a bridge. Common sense is sometimes slow in getting into action, and perhaps that is why we took so long to build this one.

It is a particular pleasure to me to meet you here, where a boundary is a gateway and not a wall. Between these islands an international gap, never wide, has been spanned, as gaps usually are, by the exercise of ability, guided by cooperative common sense. I hope all our countrymen will use it freely. I know they will find, as I have done, a happy welcome on either shore, and for the right fellowship from neighbors who are also friends.

More Than Just a Line.

The St. Lawrence River is more than a cartographic line between our two countries. God so formed North America that the waters of an inland Empire drain into the Great Lakes basin. The rain which falls in this vast area finds outlet through this single natural funnel, above which we now stand.

Events of history have made that river a boundary, and as a result the flow of these waters can be used only by joint agreement between our two Governments. Between us, we stand, therefore, as trustees for two countries of one of the richest natural assets provided anywhere in the world. The water which runs underneath this bridge speels unlimited power; permits access to raw materials both from this continent and from beyond the seas, and enhances commerce and production.

Common Sense Idea

When a resource of this kind is placed at our very doors, I think the plain people of both countries agree that it is ordinary common sense to make us of it. Yet up to now the liquid wealth, which flowing water is, has run in large part unused to the sea. I really think that this situation suggests that we can agree upon some better arrangement than merely letting in contribute a miscroscopic fraction to the level of north Atlantic ocean. The bridge which we here dedicate is a tangible proof that administration by two neighbors of a job to be done in common offers no difficulty. Obviously the same process applied on the larger scale to the resources of full sea-going navigation and of

Says U.S. Will Not Stand Idle If Domination By Another Empire Looms

Wants Land a Citadel Where Civilization Can Flourish Unimpaired President Tells Queen's Audience

By William Ardery
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 18 (AP).—President Roosevelt asserted emphatically today the people of the United States "will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

The chief executive, speaking at Queen's University, expressed sincere friendship for Canada as a member in "the fellowship of the Americas." He added:

"We in the Americas are no longer a far away continent, to which the eddies of controversies beyond the seas could bring no interest or no harm.

"Instead, we in the Americas have become a consideration to every propaganda office and to every general staff beyond the seas.

"The Dominion of Canada is part of the sisterhood of the British Empire. I give to you assurance that the people of the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

The President, speaking only two days after Secretary Hull's call for a seven-point program to bring about world peace, spoke in vigorous terms about "wanton brutality" and "undemocratic regimentation" by a government. He did not, however, name any foreign nation.

Example To The World

Through Mr. Roosevelt's address ran the theme that civilization and education transcend international borders, and that the Americas now are largely responsible for maintaining the tradition of a free interchange of ideas between nations.

The occasion of the president's talk was his acceptance of an honorary degree from Queen's University.

Referring to the United States and Canada, the president said that as good neighbors the nations are "True friends, because we maintain our own rights with frankness, because we refuse to accept the twists of secret diplomacy, because we settle our disputes by consultation and because we discuss our common problems in the spirit of the common good."

Then, discussing the workings of public opinion, the chief executive had this to say:—

"We can not prevent our people from having an opinion in regard to wanton brutality, in regard to undemocratic regimentation, in regard to misery inflicted on helpless peoples, or in regard to violations of accepted individual rights.

"All that any government, constituted as is yours and mine, can possibly undertake is to help make sure that the facts are known and fairly stated.

Young Farmers Urged To Take Short Courses

Your task to-day is not alone one of self-preservation, but one of lending assistance to the entire industry of agriculture, the Hon. P. M. Dewan, Minister of Agriculture, told 300 young farmers at a banquet held in the Empress Hotel on Wednesday night as a fitting climax to the greatest program of Junior Farmer Judging competitions in the city's history. Upwards of 300 girls and boys from five counties vied for honors and most of that number attended the banquet, as guests of the Canada Packers Company, with Gordon Matthews, manager of the local plant, as host and chairman.

The Minister lauded Mr. Matthews for his generosity in entertaining the young farmers and expressed the hope men in other centres would emulate him in this respect. He said no banquet which he had ever attended afforded him such inspiration as this affair which showed such a large number of intelligent and aggressive young people taking advantage of the short courses to better fit themselves in making a success of farm life.

"I have a great appreciation of the problems which the farmers of to-day are facing," said Mr. Dewan. "The greatest of these, at least, must be solved before farming is as satisfactory as it should be and the farmers will get a fair margin of profit for their efforts. These problems must eventually be solved by those who live upon the land with the assistance of those who govern. You as the youth of to-day must prepare yourselves for this great task which calls for ability and the genius of organization.

Must Practise Economy.

"Each year farming is becoming more competitive and more complicated and every farmer to be successful must practise economy in production just as the manufacturer of to-day utilizes every means at his

Roosevelt First President Given Canadian Degree

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 18 (CP).—Making his third official visit to Canada since he became President of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived in this historic city early today to become the first person holding that office to be laureated by a Canadian university.

In the George Taylor Richardson Stadium before a great throng of Canadian and United States citizens, President Roosevelt was presented by Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's University for the honorary degree, Doctor of Laws, which was conferred by Chancellor J. A. Richardson.

Arriving by special train from Niagara Falls, where he entered Canada during the night, President Roosevelt was met by distinguished Canadian citizens headed by Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Dominion and Provincial Cabinet Ministers and university officials.

A sky heavily overcast and occasional shower of rain took away some of the color of the reception but furnished a welcome change from the sweltering heat which has prevailed in this vicinity for a week.

Expert Not Needed

CALGARY, Aug. 18 (CP).—A director of birth control will not be engaged by the city of Calgary, the civic relief committee decided yesterday. Application for appointment of a birth control expert to handle relief cases was supported by Mrs. Gordon Whitehal, secretary of the Calgary branch of the birth control society. Dr. W. H. Hill, medical health officer, said he did not require services of "such an expert" on his staff.

5 Teetotal Monkeys Stay Free By Resisting Rum

Montreal, Aug 18.

FIVE TEETOTAL monkeys jeered today at attempts to lure them back into captivity with a bait of rum and molasses.

Perched in Dan Plouffe's apple orchard since they escaped from an amusement park a week ago, the fugitives descended cautiously to sniff the inviting brew, but righteously resisted temptation and scampered back to the branches to hurl monkey insults at exasperated animal trainers, who figured drunken monks might be easily captured.

Preview Of World's End To Be Gloomists' Treat

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18 (AP).—The Franklin Institutes Fels Planetarium cordially invites prophets of doom to a special preview of the end of the world.

With scientific zeal, Planetarium officials sought today to round up half a dozen of the gloomy fellows and give them a glimpse of the calamity they periodically predict is at hand.

Projections of what the super-disaster may look like—if there's anyone left to look—were arranged for the night of August 30. There'll be hot and cold waves, thunderstorms, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and an explosion of the moon — with sound effects.

The Planetarium's prophet-search will take an official tomorrow to Freeport, L.I., where dwells "Apostle of Doom," Robert Reidt, waiting impatiently for a judgment day 13 years overdue—according to Reidt's calculations.

This pessimist predicted the world would come to an end at midnight, February 6, 1925. Two persons committed suicide to escape the horror of it all. When Reidt's prophecy blew up instead of the earth, he blamed photographers' flashlights.

1919 Date Another Flop.

The Planetarium also seeks Prof. Alberta Porta of San Francisco who sent the nation's church attendance soaring when he set December 17, 1919, for the calamity to end all calamities.

Superstitious persons fasted, and several Oklahoma miners refused to enter their pits while there was a chance that the earth would crumble. A train whistle stuck in Indianapolis and believers in the professor's theory thought it was Gabriel's trumpet.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, of Zion, Ill., most renowned of the prophets of destruction, is invited, too. Voliva, it may be remembered, predicted seven years ago that the world "will go 'boom,' like a firecracker" on September 10, 1934. He corrected himself on September 11, 1934, and postponed the awful event to September 10, 1942.

Loose Safety Chain Stops Roosevelt Train At Cobourg

Cobourg, Ont., Aug. 18.

THE TRAIN carrying President Franklin D. Roosevelt to Kingston, Ont., where he will receive a degree at Queen's University, stopped unexpectedly for a few minutes here today. The stop was ordered by a car inspector to repair a loose safety chain.

The Roosevelt train left here at 7.50 a.m. E.D.T. for the remaining part of its journey to Kingston, 80 miles east of here. A small crowd was on hand at the station when the train made its unscheduled stop.

Dig Up Skull

ARDEN, Ont., Aug. 18 (CP). — Police here have been advised of the finding of a skull and other human bone on Darrett Shortts' farm, seven mile north of Arden, during digging of a barn foundation. The discovery was made some time ago, and the bones reburied before police were notified.

Fear Dodge's Body Has Drifted Miles

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont., Aug. 18 (C.P.). — A strong current in the inside channel of Georgian Bay today led to predictions by searchers that the body of Daniel C. Dodge likely would have drifted miles from the spot where the young millionaire was drowned on Monday.

Dragging operations were halted yesterday because of stormy weather, but with clear skies to-day 12 boats left Little Current while seven more put out from Gore Bay to search for the body. Fishermen said the current, however, was one of the strongest in years.

Dodge, on his honeymoon, was injured badly in a dynamite explosion at his summer home. He was drowned when he either fell or jumped from a speed boat carrying the blast injured across the bay from his cottage to Little Current. His bride of less than two weeks, the former Anne Laurine Macdonald of Gore Ont., is recovering from injuries in a hospital at nearby Mindemoya.

Piloted by Ted Douglas, a big amphibian plane left here early this morning for Toronto to obtain more grappling equipment. It was believed that Douglas also would fly back with dragging experts to aid in the search. The pilot was flying the Osa's Ark, a plane owned by Dodge.

Czech Nazis Open Door To Runciman

Henlein Consents To Meeting On Neutral Ground

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 18. (AP).—A foreign office official disclosed today that a meeting had been arranged between Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator in the troublesome Czechoslovak minority question, and Konrad Henlein, leader of the autonomy-seeking Sudeten German minority.

It will be the first direct contact between Henlein and the British statesman. It was understood Lord Runciman would plead that the Sudeten Germans take a less uncompromising attitude in negotiations with the Czechoslovak government over demands for autonomy.

It was revealed the matter of prestige featured dealings to bring about the conference, which would be a sequel to the manifesto the Sudetens issued yesterday expressing dissatisfaction with present procedures which "lead nowhere."

Henlein took the attitude that as leader of the Sudetens he should not make the first call because one of Lord Runciman's first acts here was to make a courtesy call on president Benes.

The Sudeten Germans, pro-Nazi and the most energetic of the minority groups, demand autonomy in government of their own group of 3,500,000 and have a sympathetic ear in Germany.

Doubting the "good will" often publicly voiced by the Czechoslovak government, the Sudeten statement also criticized Czechoslovak newspapers which "certainly lack this good will."

Diplomatic quarters felt the stand of the Sudetens plainly indicated that Viscount Runciman, sent here by Prime Minister Chamberlain had not yet brought closer together the Berlin-backed Sudetens and the Czechoslovak government.

As in past pronouncements, the Sudeten party leaders expressed readiness to continue negotiations on how, "through expedient reconstruction of the state, the minorities problem and therewith the crisis of state could be solved on the basis of Konrad Henlein's eight-point Karlovy vary program."

Heenan Is Out

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 18 (CP).—Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario Minister of Labor will be unable to come to Windsor to mediate in a dispute at the Walker Metal Products, Ltd., plant, according to a letter received here by city clerk C. V. Waters. The minister is under medical care for injuries suffered in an automobile accident. Deputy Minister advised that the matter was being referred to the chief conciliation officer of the province.

Doug. McDonald Wins Car On First Night

Douglas McDonald, 6 Crescent street was the lucky winner last night of the first of the four Chevrolet master coaches that are to be drawn for at the Peterborough Exhibition at the rate of one a day during the four days of the big fair.

It was the first ticket selected by the Exhibition head and less than half the five minutes during which the holder of the coupon drawn must claim the car had elapsed when word came over the Exhibition telephone that a winner had been located and that he was Douglas McDonald.

A moment later Mr. McDonald, who had been at the gate leading into the grandstand end of the grounds was seen making his way down the race track and he was greeted with cheers. He produced his ticket with the number as drawn by President Brown printed on it and the handshake with which he was welcomed by the president signified that he was the winner.

Speaking briefly through the loud speaker the lucky winner of the first exhibition car told the audience that he did not think he had had more than fifty tickets in the churn.

The winner was selected last night in surprisingly short time after the grandstand performance had ended. The churn containing the tickets, placed on a truck, was displayed in front of the grandstand and President Tom Brown with E. F. Mason standing by in the absence of Mayor Hamilton made the draw. The number was given out over the loud speaker system and at the same time displayed on the truck and in a very short time Mr. McDonald arrived on the scene to claim his car in which he drove off shortly afterward while the crowd cheered again. J. H. Jamison and Alf. McKee were the oficial time keepers but their task was a light one as the car was won on the first draw and well within the time limit.

Chinese Hill Batteries Play Havoc With Jap Warships, Transports

SHANGHAI, Aug. 18 (A.P.). — Japanese warships and warplanes bombarded stubbornly-held Chinese positions on the south bank of the Yangtse River to-day in redoubled efforts to brea kthrough to Hankow.

Chinese reported strong Japanese reinforcements landed 120 miles downriver from Hankow. Japanese expected the arriving troops to revitalize their drive toward the provisional Chinese capital, in virtual stalemate since the invaders occupied Kiukiang on July 25.

Hwangmei, 25 miles north of Kiukiang, was the spearhead of sanguinary battles in which the primary Chinese aim was to prolong the stalemate through persistent counter-attacks.

Chinese military sources reported their batteries mounted on hilltops overlooking the Yangtse succeeded in disabling "numerous" Japanese transports and warships.

After many previous assertions that they had conquered Shansi Province in the north, Japanese military authorities admitted to-day the Chinese had established a strong 45-mile defence line linking Pinglu and Puchow, the southern terminus of the Shansi Railway, thus blocking one gateway to Shansi.

Japanese aviators bombed Changsha, capital of Hunan Province and treaty port about 180 miles southwest of Hankow, and inflicted heavy damage with direct hits on two railroad stations and military warehouses. Despatches from Hankow said there were several hundred victims.

Officials Discover How Kentucky Registers Death

Washington, Aug 18.

THE SOCIAL Security Board waived today documentary proof of the death of a man who "died right now". The man was a resident of the Kentucky mountain country. His heirs asked the board for payment of a small sum under the old-age insurance plan. A request for proof of death brought this reply:

"This deceased didn't have no doctor.

"He didn't have no undertaker.

"He died right now.

"He died from gunshot wounds."

complete power development offered by the St. Lawrence River can build and maintain the necessary facilities to employ its magnificent possibilities.

I suppose it is true, as has been true of all natural resources, that a good many people would like to have the job—and the profits—of developing it for themselves. In this case, however, the river happens to be placed in the hands of our two governments, and the responsibility for getting the results lies plainly at our doors.

At various times both the people of Canada and the people of the United States have dreamed of the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes development. They have translated those ideas into plans which can easily be carried out. While there has been no difference between us as to the object, history compels me to say that we were not able to arrange matters so that both peoples have had he same idea at the same time. How would it do for a change, if, instead of each of us having the idea at alternate intervals, we get the idea simultaneously. I think we are rapidly reaching that happy and desirable event.

More Work For Railroads

I am very clear that prophets of trouble are wrong when they express the fear that the St. Lawrence waterway will handicap our railroad systems. We know now that the effect of a waterway is not to take traffic away from railroad lines. Actually, it creates new possibilities, new business, new activity. Such a waterway generates more railroad traffic than it takes away.

There is today, a 14-foot channel carrying traffic from the Great Lakes through the St. Lawrence River into the Atlantic Ocean. If this were deepened—which can easily be done—to 27 or 30 feet, every city on the Great Lakes, now inland, would become an ocean port. The banks of the St. Lawrence valley would become one of the great gateways of the world and would benefit accordingly. Here all that is needed is co-operative exercise of technical skill by joining use of the imagination and the vision which our two countries have. Can anyone doubt that, when this is done, the interests of both countries will be greatly advanced? Do we need to delay, and to deprive our peoples of the immediate employment and profit, or prevent our generation from reaping the harvest which is awaiting us?

A Presidential Warning.

Let me make, now, an unusual statement. I am sure you will not misunderstand. I consider that I have, myself, a particular duty in connection with St. Lawrence power. The almost unparalleled ity which the river affords has not gone unnoticed by st... friends in our side of the boundary. A conception has been emerging in the United States which is not without a certain magnificence. This is no less than the conviction that if a private group could control the outlet of the Great Lakes Basin, that group would have a monopoly in the development of a territory larger than many of the great empires in history.

If you were to search the records with which my government is familiar, you would discover that literally every development of electric power, save only the Ontario-Hydro, is allied to, if not controlled by, a single American group, with, of course, the usual surrounding penumbra of allies, affiliates, subsidiaries and satellites.

In earlier stages of development of natural resources on this continent, this was normal and usual. In recent decades, however, we have come to realize the implications to the public—to the individual men and women, to businessmen, big and little, and even to government itself, resulting from the ownership by any group of the right to dispose of wealth which was granted to us collectively by nature herself.

The development of natural resources, and the proper handling of their fruits, is a major problem of government. Naturally, no solution would be acceptable to either country which does not leave its government entirely master in its own house.

After An Empire.

To put it bluntly, a group of American interests is here gradually putting itself into a position where, unless caution is exercised, they may in time be able to determine the economic fate of a large area, both in Canada and the United States.

Now it is axiomatic in Canadian-American relations that both of us scrupulously respect the right of each to determine its own affairs. For that reason, when I know that the operation of uncontrolled American economic forces is slowly producing a result on the Canadian side of the border, which I know very well must eventually give American groups a great influence over Canadian development, I consider it the part of a good neighbor to discuss the question frankly. The least I can do is to call attention to the situation as I see it.

Our mutual friendship suggest this course in a matter of devolpment as great and as crucial as that of the St. Lawrence. Fortunately among friendly nations today this is increasingly being done. Frank discussion between friends and neighbors is useful and essential. It is obvious today that some economic problems are international, if only because of the sheer weight which the solutions have on the lives of people, as well as inside any one country. To my mind, the development of St. Lawrence navigation and power is such a problem.

I look forward to the day when a Canadian prime minister and an American president can meet to dedicate, not a bridge across the water, but the very water itself, to the lasting and productive use of their respective peoples. Until that day comes, and I hope it may be soon, this bridge stands as an open door. There will be no challenge at the border, and no guard to ask a countersign. Where the boundary is crossed the only word must be, "pass, friend."

mission) has been the more significant in that while countries on the continents of Europe and Asia have been increasing their frontier and armaments, the United States and Canada have settled all thei boundary differences by the method and processes of reasoned discussion," said Mr. King.

"The international bridge building of which I have been speaking and of which our international bridges are fitting symbols, has grown naturally out of our common needs and our common will to live together as friends and neighbors. All stand as acts of faith in human intelligence and goodwill. They mean for us a precious cultural and constitutional heritage which it is our joint purpose to foster and maintain.

Many Challenges Abroad

"It will be at once obvious that the challenges to an international order, founded upon the rule of law, are many and dangerous. No one who looks at the distracted and disordered state of the world today can fail to be impressed by the extent to which the forces of international anarchy are seeking to prevail and to subvert those standards of human conduct which we have come to regard as essential attributes of our civilization.

"The task of the bridge-builder remains. I think I speak the mind of both countries when I say that, not only are we determined to preserve the neighborly relations and the free ways of life which are our priceless heritage but that we earnestly wish to see them become a part of the common heritage of mankind. To that end we are prepared to go on building bridges, to throw the span of friendship and of freedom across the troubled waters of our time."

The prime minister greeted President Roosevelt as personal friend of many years and said his own efforts in the sphere of international relations had the same objectives as Mr. Roosevelt's.

"Like him," he said, "I have sought whenever and wherever the opportunity has presented itself, to further and cement ties of international friendship and goodwill, not alone of the world but between all countries.

"It is a joy to me to be able to join with the President in drawing to the attention of the citizens of other lands, as well as our own, the wide significance of today's proceedings."

The Government and people of Canada felt honored by Mr. Roosevelt's presence. It is his third official visit to Canada in as many years although he has often visited this country privately in spending vacations at Campobello Island, N. B.

"Personal and official visits," Mr. King said, "alike remind us how near to the heart of the President, and I might add to the hearts of us all, is his policy of the good neighbor. For the many expressions of International friendship and goodwill towards our country by the chief executive of the United States the Government and people of Canada are profoundly grateful. It is a gratitude which may well be shared by an anxious world."

The new bridge was another bond between two peoples who rivalled one another, not in armaments but in devotion to the ways of peace. It was fitting that on this bridge the representatives of the two countries should celebrate anew more than a century of peace between them.

With disputed frontiers threatening peace in the other parts of the world the ceremony had a world-wide significance for it was not by chance that the frontier between Canada and the United States differed from others.

The St. Lawrence frontier in its time had witnessed strife and bitter enmity. The present good-will and understanding, like the new bridge, was a series of man-made structures connecting pieces of solid ground. In International relations the two countries had learned to bridge their differences.

Mr. King said the Governor General, Lord Tweedsmuir, had hoped to represent Canada at the bridge opening but had been unavoidably detained in England.

IVY LEA, Ont., Aug. 18.—(CP)—Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, said at the opening today of the international bridge in this Thousand Islands area he felt a deep sense of gratitude that "here on this continent of common sense we are blessed beyond measure with every gift that the heart of man can desire." Adding his welcome on behalf of Ontario to President Franklin Roosevelt, Mr. Matthews continued:

"Not the least of these gifts is this mighty waterway with its five great fresh-water seas—a waterway that from the head of Lake Superior to the Gulf of St. Lawrence enriches the lives of millions and gladdens the heart of man with its matchless scenery.

"It is a boundless storehouse of food, it supplies us with the purest drinking water in the world, it lights the homes of millions in city and town and village and farm, its turns the wheels of industry and bears up our keels of commerce, carrying the products of our farms, our factories, our forests and our mines to the Atlantic Ocean for distribution to the markets of the world.

"With the history of this noble river is entwined the life story of the struggles and sufferings and achievements of our pioneer forefathers, of our progress in the development of this continent, and of those continued happy relations which have enabled our streams of destiny to flow side by side in the ways of peace.

"Well may we rejoice at the completion of this great undertaking that makes communication between our peoples more convenient and binds us closer together," he said after remarking that Canada and particularly Ontario were honored signally by the visit of "our good neighbor," President Roosevelt.

Bringing Of 10,000 British Settlers To British Columbia Is Discussed

Prince George, B. C., Aug. 18.

EFFECT ON Canadian business of ten thousand British settlers and their families living on British Columbia Agricultural lands was discussed last night by Sir Henry Page Croft, British Parliamentarian studying mass migration to this Pacific Coast Province.

Speaking at a formal dinner tended him and his party by the Prince George Board of Trade, acting hosts for the Provincial Government, Sir Henry said:

"If the plan can be devised by which 10,000 settlers backed by a capital of say $25,000,000, could be established in central British Columbia, the wheels would be again started toward prosperity.

"These 10,000 settlers with their wives and families would at once require livestock. They would need at least 20,000 horses, 50,000 dairy cows, 10,000 head of swine and 100,000 poultry.

"They would need machinery for land clearing and road making, they would require materials for fencing, for furniture, for clothing and food and all the hundred and one articles necessary for civilized life.

"Imagine what it will mean for British shipping, for your dock workers, your transport workers and your stores."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 18 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat prices sagged from early gains of about a cent to losses of 1½ cents at low levels to-day. Hedging pressure and lack of support in the late trading accounted almost entirely for the decline.

At the close prices were 1¼ to ⅝ lower, with October 67⅜, November 67⅝a, December 67⅛ to ¼, and May 70⅛a.

The session was exceedingly dull throughout the day, with some hedging at mid-session as well as at the close providing most of the activity. Sales of October were in favor of the deferred month at Chicago.

Local hedging was also evident with the nearby month against being sold against purchases of deferred options. Export business was difficult to confirm, but it was generally believed to be confined to odd loads.

14 Polio Deaths

LONDON, Aug. 18 (CP-Havas).—Death of a 12-year-old child from infantile paralysis at Ipswich today raised the death toll in England's current epidemic to 14.

Summer Complaint

Few people, especially children, escape an attack of summer complaint, but let it go for a day or two only and see how weak and prostrate it will leave you.

The quickest and safest way to get rid of it is to go immediately to your drug or general store and get a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

This bowel complaint remedy has been on the market for the past 92 years. You do not experiment when you use it. Be sure and get "Dr. Fowler's" and feel safe.

free can prevent every fireside and home within its borders from considering the evidence for itself and rendering its own verdicts; and the sum total of these conclusions of educated men and women still, in the long run, become the national verdict.

"That is what we mean when we say that public opinion ultimately governs policy. It is right and just that this should be the case."

Many Happy Days In Canada

To the pleasure of being once more on Canadian soil where I have passed so many of the happy hours of my life, there is added today a very warm sense of gratitude for being admitted to the fellowship of this ancient and famous university. I am glad to join the brotherhood which Queens has contributed and is contributing not only to the spiritual leadership for which the college was established, but also to the social and public leadership in the civilized life of Canada.

An American president is precluded by our constitution from accepting any title from a foreign prince, potentate, or power. Queen's University is not a prince or a potentate but it is a power. Yet I can say, without constitutional reserve, that the acceptance of the title which you confer on me today would raise no qualms in the august breast of our own supreme court.

Civilization is not national—it is international—even though that observation—trite to most of us, is today challenged in some parts of the world. Ideas are not limited by territorial borders; they are the common inheritance of all free people. Thought is not anchored in any land; and profit of education rebounds to the equal benefit of the whole world. That is one form of free trade to which the leaders of every opposing political party can subscribe.

America Vital In World Peace.

In a large sense we in the Americas stand charged today with the maintaining of that tradition. When, speaking recently in a similar vein in the republic of Brazil, I included the Dominion of Canada in the fellowship of the Americas, our South American neighbors gave hearty acclaim. We in the America's know the sorrow and the wreckage which may follow if the ability of men to understand each other is rooted out from among the nations.

Many of us here today know from experience that of all the devastations of war none is more tragic than the destruction which it brings to the processes of men's minds. Truth is denied because emotion pushes it aside. Forebearance is succeeded by bitterness. In that atmosphere human thought can not advance.

It is impossible not to remember that for years when Canadians and Americans have met they have light-heartedly saluted as North American friends, without thought of dangers from overseas. Yet we are awake to the knowledge that the casual assumption of our greetings in earlier times today must become a matter for serious thought.

A few days ago a whisper, fortunately untrue, raced round the world that armies standing over against each other in unhappy array were to be set in motion. In a few short hours the effect of that whisper had been registered in Montreal and New York, in Ottawa and in Washington, in Toronto and in Chicago, in Vancouver and in San Francisco. Your businessmen and ours felt it alike; your farmers and ours heard it alike; your young men and ours wondered what effect this might have on their lives.

We in the Americas are no longer a far away continent, to which the eddies of controversies beyond the seas have become a consideration to every propaganda office and to every general staff beyond the seas. The vast amount of our resources, the vigor of our commerce and the strength of our men have made us vital factors in world peace whether we choose or not.

Happily, you and we, in friendship and in entire understanding, can look clear-eyed at these possibilities, resolving to leave no pathway unexplored and no technique undeveloped which may, if our hopes are realized, contribute to the peace of the world. Even if those hopes are disappointed, we can assure each other that this hemisphere at least shall remain a strong citadel wherein civilization flourish unimpaired.

Pledges Canada Protection.

The Dominion of Canada is part of the sisterhood of the British Empire. I give to you assurance that the people of the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire.

We are good neighbors and true friends because we maintain our own rights with frankness, because we refuse to accept the twists of secret diplomacy, because we settle our disputes by consultation and because w discuss our common problems in the spirit of the common good. We seek to be scrupulously fair and helpful not only in our relations with each other but each of us at home in our relations with our own people.

But there is one process which we certainly cannot change and probably ought not to change. This is the feeling which ordinary men and women have about events which they can understand. We cannot prevent our people from having an opinion in regard to wanton brutality, in regard to undemocratic regimentation, in regard to misery inflicted on helpless peoples, or in regard to violations of accepted individual rights. All that any government, constituted as is yours and mine, can possibly undertake is to help make sure that the facts are known and fairly stated. No country where thought is free can prevent every fireside and home within its borders from considering the evidence for itself and rendering its own verdict; and the sum total of these conclusions of educated men and women will, in the long run, become the national verdict.

That is what we mean when we say that public opinion ultimately governs policy. It is right and just that this should be the case.

Same Bill of Rights.

Many of our ancestors came to Canada and the United States because they wished to break away from systems which forbade them to think freely and their descendants have insisted on the right to know the truth—to argue their problems to a majority decision, and, if they remained unconvinced, to disagree in peace. As a tribute to our likeness in that respect, I note that the bill of rights in your country and in mine is substantially the same.

Mr. Chancellor, you of Canada who respect the educational tradition of our Democratic continent will ever maintain good neighborship in ideas as we in the public service hope and propose to maintain it in the field of government and of foreign relations. My good friend, the governor general, in receiving an honorary degree in June at that university at Cambridge, Massachusetts, to which Mackenzie King and I both belong, suggested that we cultivate three qualities to keep our foothold in the shifting sands of the present—humility, humanity and humor. All three of them, imbedded in education, build new spans to reestablish free intercourse through the world and bring forth an order in which free nations can live in peace.

The Government of New Zealand wants all sporting goods made in that country.

Libby's Tomato Products

"Gentle Press" makes it a 2 to 1 bet that Libby's Gentle-Press Tomato SOUP Libby's Gentle-Press Tomato CATCHUP Libby's Gentle-Press Tomato JUICE are the best you have tasted

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK OFFER
Should you not agree that Libby's three "Gentle Press" Tomato Products are the best you have ever tasted, Libby will pay you double your money back. Just print your name and address, the purchase price, grocer's name, on the back of any one or all three labels and mail to Libby, McNeill & Libby of Canada, Limited, Chatham, Ontario.

If you could come with us to Libby's Canadian Kitchens during the tomato season you would quickly convince yourself that Libby's patented "Gentle Press" method (Canadian patent No. 334,356) does bring to you the succulent juices of garden-fresh tomatoes with a taste-pleasing flavour that is exclusively Libby's.

Standing at the "Gentle Press" machine, you would sense its magical performance, as before your eyes it rejects the tough outer skin—the bitterness from seeds and coarse fibre—eliminating those parts that mar flavour—extracting only the satisfying, zestful juices. Before Libby's invented this "Gentle Press" process, a large portion of these undesirable parts of the tomato were crushed into a pulp and became a part of the so-called juice which enters into tomato products—tomato juice—tomato catchup—and tomato soup.

The tomatoes themselves are heavily laden with vitamin health-giving juices. They are the result of twenty-five years of careful selection of seeds from the juiciest, most flavourful tomatoes of each year's crop. The result is that Libby's tomatoes today are firm and smooth with practically no skin blemishes—a tenderloin heart—and comparatively free of seeds—but full of luscious appetite-teasing juice. They are grown right at Libby's Canadian Kitchens and picked and processed all within a few hours.

Libby's make this friendly challenge. The next time you are at your grocer's, order a small supply of Libby's "Gentle Press" TOMATO JUICE, TOMATO SOUP and TOMATO CATCHUP. Taste them yourself—ask the whole family to compare them with any Tomato Products they have ever eaten. If you do not agree that they are positively the most flavourful—the very best you have tasted—Libby's will cheerfully refund DOUBLE the purchase price.

If your grocer cannot supply you, send his name to us at Chatham, Ontario, and we will see that you are supplied.

He Remains a Vagrant

Attorney-General Conant has issued instructions that vagrants are no longer to receive suspended sentence on the understanding that they will get out of town. That is an old custom and it has been in operation for years; it was with us long before we knew what a depression looked like.

In principle the thing is wrong. For instance a person might be arrested in Lindsay on the covering charge of vagrancy; the individual might have no visible means of support and that seems in itself to be some sort of a crime in this age. He appears in court at Lindsay, admits he is guilty of being a vagrant but the decision is that he shall receive suspended sentence if he will leave town and do so quickly. Rather than go to jail the vagrant agrees to leave. He heads for Peterborough. He was undesirable and undesired in Lindsay, and he is the same here. So again he may be picked up and it is possible he may be allowed to go if he promises to keep on going.

Mr. Conant says each case must be tried on its merits, and if a sentence is thought necessary it must be imposed. It cannot be suspended on the understanding that the accused leave the community. That is all very well, but how far will it go and what will it accomplish? The vagrant appears in court and the magistrate decides he should have a ten-day sentence; perhaps he has been pan-handling or begging. He spends ten days in jail and then he is a free man.

But he remains a vagrant.

Where is he going to do? If he was in this city without visible means of support before he received the ten-day sentence, then he will be in this city and without visible means of support after he has served his ten days. So apart from having taken the vagrant out of circulation for ten days what will the sentence of the magistrate's court have done? The answer is—nothing at all.

We don't suppose there is a magistrate in the province who has not realized the futility of trying to deal with transients who are brought into his court. Magistrates would deal effectively with the problem if they knew how. But we don't know who can tell them the proper method. If we could give them the option of work or jail we might be getting nearer the answer, but as things stand at the moment we find it hard to see where Mr. Conant's instructions are going to help remedy the situation.

Selling Wheat At 60 Cents

E. C. Drury former Premier of Ontario, talked to the Canadian Institute on Economics and Politics, and his topic was the condition of the Canadian farmer. Mr. Drury is certain we are growing too much wheat in Canada today, and he was certain if Russia were in the wheat market to the extent of pre-war days the farmers in this country would be reduced to the state of the peasant class of Europe.

The speaker did not believe the young people from the country were responding to the lure of the "white lights" of the city because they wanted to. His opinion was that many boys and girls from the farms were living in small boarding house rooms when they really wanted to be back on the farm, but they had made the transfer because they hoped to make the living in the city which they could not secure in the country.

The trouble with Mr. Drury's address is that what he says is true enough of some cases, but it is not true of others. All farmers are not poor although many of them are hard pressed to make a decent living from their effort. The farmer who has to sell his grain as a cash crop and sell it about as soon as he puts it through the separator is in a different position from the one who is going to use his grain as raw material to finish off stock.

The Wheat Board may have set a price of 80 cents in the West, but wheat is selling at points in Ontario around 60 cents today. Only a few days an Examiner representative was talking with a farmer in Middlesex County and he sold his wheat a day or so after he finished threshing. He had 13 acres in wheat and he had taken out 350 bushels, and he considered his yield was fairly good as there were other farms not doing as well. The price at which he sold his wheat—60 cents—brought him about $16.20 per acre of ground, and out of this he had bought seed, twine, paid for machinery repairs and had attended to the preparation of the soil, and finally he had paid the man with the threshing outfit $2.50 per hour. This farmer was certain there was nothing in it for him and he doubted if he had broken even. He believed he could make his farm pay if he were able to have an income equal to $25 per acre. He sold his grain at once because he needed the money, and he said that even if there were prospects of better prices later on he would not have been able to wait for them.

Possibly Mr. Drury would find that the young people on such a farm would find it difficult to see a future there. The farmer there was growing 13 acres of wheat and millions of farmers the world over are doing the same thing. Such a farmer would be glad enough to come under the kindly arm of the Wheat Board which says 80 cents is the price for wheat. It is different when the price is 60 cents and the farmer needs the 60 cents.

So They Fought

Two men from Finland took up land on the Vermillion River, near Espanola in Algoma. They had homes there, and were married and one had reached the age of 65 and the other was 60.

There was something about the boundary line which caused them to have a dispute. Without knowing much about the trouble we take it that each considered the other was occupying land which was not his. Most disputes run that way.

Finally they undertook to settle the matter, and one was armed with a piece of scantling while the other made use of a butcher knife. When it was over the man who had used the butched knife was lying out in the yard dead and the man who wielded the plank was so wounded he had to be taken to the hospital.

People who have been in that district will know well enough just how much land and territory and open space there is. Much of it. Sufficient to contain many people and many line fences if they desired to build them. And the land was all there before the two Finns came to settle on it and it will remain there now that one is dead and the other in the hospital. Fighting over a fence line along the Vermillion River is no more crazy than fighting over territory elsewhere, but it is about the same as fighting over a pail of sand in the Sahara desert where there is so much of it.

He Speaks For Many

A reader sends the following note:

"I believe a good many newspaper readers are weary to picking up their favorite papers each day and finding space given over to the threats of Germany, Italy, to affairs in the Balkans and reports of a few more battles in Spain. I leave out reference to the war in China because I am always hoping for something to happen which will show the Chinese are getting the best of it. But for the rest I am getting sick of it—as the boys in the house say, rather fed up."

The Examiner has a belief that such feeling is not confined to the reader who wrote that note, and this paper would gladly change the news if it were possible to do so. We dare say there are members of the British government who are sick of trying to keep the lid from being blown off the war pot in Europe; sick of hurried trips to Berlin, to the Balkans, to Rome and all over.

A good many statesmen in other countries are sick of it. We dare say Cordell Hull, Secretary of State in Washington, must have felt that way when he addressed his latest broadcast to the world saying there would have to be a decision made very soon as to whether the world was to be ruled by force or ruled by reason and the observance of international contracts. Mr. Hull must have had that in mind when he stated that when freedom was being destroyed elsewhere in the world it was being jeopardized right in United States. If one were to ask Mr. Hull a straight question we dare say he would reply that he was sick and tired of all the war talk and all the plans and preparation for war.

There were people the world over who watched the approach of August 15 with dread. It was stated that was the day set for the German move in Czechoslovakia. The day came and passed and nothing happened. One could well say perhaps "That was just more war talk and it actually amounted to nothing at all." But a writer in the thoughtful and thorough-going New York Herald Tribune says that something could have happened. In countries where all power is centred in one man war could be declared on a half-hour's notice, or war could be started without any declaration being made.

We appreciate the attitude of the reader who is sick and tired of reading war talk and war news, and we can assure him he is not alone. We would go so far as to say he would be one of a great company the world over. At the moment, though, the news which is being printed, and which has been printed, merely reflects the tension to which the world has been strung. Britain did not reverse her policy of less armament to one of greater armament because she desired so to do. It was this repeated war talk and war plans elsewhere which forced her to the decision. And possibly like the reader who sent along his note of protest, John Bull is also sick of the whole business.

An Old Story Revived

Compton Mackenzie has written a book, and already London admits it will rank as one of the best sellers of the season. The name is 'Windsor Tapestry' and the theme is the abdication of Edward VIII. Mr. Mackenzie extended his book to 600 pages before he considered it time to cease. He has placed the blame for the abdication on the rather broad shoulders of Stanley Baldwin, the then Premier. Edward VIII. did not step from the throne of his own free will, but he was forced into exile. And so on.

It is well to remember that Compton Mackenzie's idea in writing a book is that people shall come and buy copies and thus make it profitable for him. Possibly he enjoyed the writing, but primarily he was in a commercial undertaking.

People threshed the matter out in December of 1936 and they made a fairly thorough job of it. The exact conversations between Baldwin and King Edward VIII. were never published, but the British public knew what it was all about. The King had decided on a course which parliament would not sanction and in order to complete a marriage on which he was bent he left the throne and his brother took his place. It was as much a demonstration of the supremacy of parliament as anything else.

Quite likely the book will make interesting reading and Compton Mackenzie will make some money out of it, but it will change nothing at all. Those who think that Edward VIII. was given a bit of a shove to hasten his departure from the throne will continue to think so, and those who were certain the proper course was taken will not change their belief. But Mr. Mackenzie will sell a number of books.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Evidently the folk in Belvidere H. J. have no Nipponese prejudices. A story from that town says Japanese beetles are being used there for bass bait.

Value of stocks and bonds in Germany is falling rapidly. Crying Heil Hitler! is not sufficient to offset the coming of a financial crisis.

POETRY

Man in Stratford bought a snow shovel on the hottest day of the year because he found the thing on a bargain. People laughed, but that man was a good buyer.

Woman in Brantford is in trouble because she bought goods and paid by cheque. A good custom but the trouble was she signed them with another name.

Mary Pickford is to be tendered a civic reception in Toronto. We wonder what would have happened if she had not achieved fame in the movies and came back to Toronto as Gladys Smith.

Papers are full of stories about hay fever these days. Years ago nobody bothered about the thing and ragweed would have had no chance of making the front page.

Premier Aberhart has approved of the stand of Mr. Hepburn in regard to the Rowell commission. Now nearly everybody else will feel certain that Ontario's premier must be wrong.

Douglas Corrigan who started to fly from New York to California and landed in Ireland, made a trip from New York with the intention of going to Albany, and there he arrived. We expected he might have landed at our fall fair grounds.

Hon. J. T. Taggart, Minister of Agriculture for Saskatchewan, says "We couldn't lose much if we lost all, and we couldn't get further into debt because no one will lend us any more money." Which seems to be another way of saying that the only people who need to do any worrying are the creditors.

London, Ont., Board of Education hears that teachers who have been attending summer schools will have only a couple of weeks' vacation and will be too tired to resume work when school opens. We dare say the little folk who attend school would be able to offer a ready suggestion for remedying this situation.

PUZZLED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Uncle Eben used to say, that folk should lay some jack away, and nail it flat and cold; then they would have a nest-egg made, they'd have no cause to be afraid, or shiver when they're old.

¶ Each week when pay day came around, he'd spade some more financial ground; at first it would seem slow; at things you wanted shake your head, and put more dollars off to bed, and then you'd see them grow.

¶ My Uncle Eben did it too, and through the years his savings grew, he found his method best; when he got up in years a spell, and found he couldn't work so well, he settled back to rest.

¶ I've tried my Uncle Eben's plan, I tried to be a thrifty man, I found his way was fine; each pay day I laid by some kale, and kept the custom without fail, I put my cash in brine.

¶ But now and then the time would come, when I had let some big bills run, I faced some urgent men; the ducats that I'd laid away, to guard against the rainy day, I took them out again.

¶ I must ask Uncle Eben quick, just how it was he did the trick, of rules I'll get a list; I try to do like what he said, but I can't seem to get ahead—there's something I have missed.

The Professor Came to His Aid

(By DR. R. W. FRANK)

GENEVA PARK, Lake Couchiching, Aug. 18.—The three-day battle of the Labor Unions closed here last night with no casualties. In fact it might be said with no animosities. When the heat rose too far above normal the chairman politely declared the discussion closed. That was not often.

It would be impossible in a short article to attempt any technical analysis of the various theories or rival claims of the various labor organizations but it may be enlightening to those not intimately acquainted with labor organization to give some general background against which they may better view these labor problems.

I tried to give the general background of labor organizations yesterday particularly the difference between the policy of the Trades Unions and the Industrial Unions. Today I should like to view them from another aspect namely from the national and international view points.

We have in Canada four major labor groups, two national and two international. When we use the word international in this country with respect to Labor Unions we use it in quite a different sense from its European sense. Here we mean American or more narrowly Canada and the United States.

The International Unions are first, those trade unions which come under the American Federation of Labor and secondly those Industrial Unions coming under the C. I. O. The Canadian Unions are the Catholic Federation of Labor in Quebec and a rather new organization the All-Canadian Labor Congress.

I shall make no attempt to pass on the virtues of any, but shall attempt to give some of the main arguments in favor of each group.

The Internationals

The claims of the International group can I think be abbreviated to two. Firstly, that because Canada and the United States are virtually one economic unit with fairly free intercourse between one and the other, and because most of the Canadian industries are subsidiaries of the greater American industries with their management in the United States, the labor problems are almost identical and ought to be closely allied. The second claim is argued on the basis of sound insurance. That is to say, supposing the Quaker Oats plant insured against fire for say 2 million dollars. Would anyone company assume the risk? Certainly not. They would farm the risk out to perhaps 50 companies because a disaster by fire would wreck any one insurance company. Well then it is argued the small Canadian unions alone could not possibly build up a reserve to weather catastrophy in the nature of a prolonged strike. The argument that we are sending our good money out of the country all the time to highly paid American organizers was met by the answer that in 1932 Canadian Unions sent to United States Union headquarters $600,000 and received back $800,000 (both in round numbers).

The answer that Canadian Labor policy is dictated by American organizations was met by the answer that Canadian Unions are 100% autonomous and were connected internationally only by affiliation. So much for that.

The Other Arguments

The argument for the All Canadian Congress was mostly on nationalistic and patriotic grounds, an argument that is difficult to criticize on anything but economic grounds. These I hope may be overcome.

The Catholic Federation argue that they serve a coherent group, both racially and economically and that as their ideals and viewpoint are different they can best take care of their own problems.

It was said by an impartial representative of the Dominion Labor bureau that if we could throw our prejudice aside we should have to admit that the Catholic Federation of Labor was accomplishing more for their workers than was possible under the other schemes.

After a long conversation with Mr. Charpontier who represented that organization I was quite convinced that they had a much clearer conception of the responsibilities of labor, or shall I say of the relationship between wages and the general economy. That is to say, you can raise wages until they defeat their ends. All costs go into prices and if wages raise prices too high the public will not buy or hire and you have unemployment and consequently a decrease of real wages or earning power.

Now they are the only group as far as I have seen who recognize that delicate balance. Or least they were the only ones who expressed it. The attitude of the rest seemed to me as an outsider the attitude of get what you can for your own group and let the other groups do likewise. There was a clear evidence of the idea that the workers were the only ones suffering and that if their condition was bettered all would be well. I suppose self preservation is the first law of nature and I do not intend to criticize their policy as long as we continue to operate under a competitive system and there does not seem to be anything else within reach yet.

In the open forum which wound up the labor section of the course I drew the attention of the group to the fact that labor generally was basing its contentions on two fallacies. The first of these was that the purposes of industry was to provide employment when as a matter of fact the purposes of industry was to produce goods with the least amount of employment, and that all our science and engineering was directed to that end which was a correct end. The difficulty of course in appreciating that inevitable trend is the fact that we have not applied our minds to a financial system that will distribute the product of automatic machines. The other fallacy was that a general rise in wages increased buying power. It is true, I said, that an increase in wages to a particular group will temporarily benefit that particular group, but that, because all costs go into prices, these increased wages are reflected in increased prices and the rest of the public in paying more for the goods contribute to the benefit of the fortunate group by decreasing their own buying power.

To say the least I was not popular for a time but after several had vented their spleen on so preposterous a theory a professor from Dartmouth University came to my rescue, and with an air of finality which such a lofty position bestows so clearly argued the correctness of my contentions that no one cared to continue the debate even if unconvinced.

I was asked if the labor unions in Canada used the services of any economists and the answer was "No", that Queens University had set up a department for research on labor problems but that as yet its services were not asked for. That to me is a regrettable indictment against the leaders of our organization that means so much to the welfare of the working man.

"One to where, did that girl says?"
"Sunnybeach."
"Another, please.".

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

VISIONARY

Editor Examiner:

Sir: While agreeing with the opinion you express in your editorial relative to free speech, headed, "An impossible position," Examiner Aug. 12, I believe your comments should not be allowed to pass unchallenged.

In direct opposition to your expressed opinion, re Visionaries, I should like to draw your attention to the fact that the same visionary ideals and theories have been adopted in theory and practice in four countries, namely, Sweden, Denmark, Norway and New Zealand, where they have worked to the advantage of both the individual and the state.

The C. C. F. being the official opposition in two provinces, British Columbia and Saskatchewan, and apparently the only constructive opposition in the Dominion House, one would think there must be something very practical and stalwart in the C. C. F. theories.

Judging from the results achieved in the countries who have adopted "these visionary ideals", the same could be used to advantage in other schemes of life, in editing a small city newspaper for instance, the purpose of which is assumed to be the dissemination of news, and the moulding of public opinion in the common good.

If, as you state, political oblivion can be achieved for the C. C. F. by airing of its views, it seems rather strange the press of Canada in general, passed up this chance by refusing to, (as you phrase it), air the visionary doctrines.

The results of the last by-election in Saskatchewan where a C. C. F. candidate defeated a cabinet minister would seem to indicate that more and more the people of Canada realize the necessity for men of vision in government. When as happened today, 12,000 hard working, straightforward, miners, should decide to affiliate in one body, in Nova Scotia, surely, Labor also has been able to find through the C. C. F. a practical approach to constructive social legislation.

Surely, everyone else can not be wrong.

Sincerely yours,
WM. JOHNSON.
Peterborough, Aug. 17.

• Why There Is No Utopia

(From the New York Sun)

ONCE upon a time there was an Ideal Community. It was ideal in every way. The weather there never went to extremes, became neither hot nor cold, but stayed within the limits of three moderate degrees. It rained only in the early morning, doing so daily, and this discommoded nobody, because everybody was in bed and asleep at that time.

There were no policemen, because no one ever did anything criminal. There was no gossip, because no one ever did anything naughty, and everyone avoided even the appearance of evil. Food was good and wholesome; not only was there never any bad food, there was never any so rich as to cause indigestion, so exotic as to arouse apprehension. Water was the drink, always cool, though never iced; in the constant climate there was no need for iced water, anyway.

There was never an accident, not even a minor physical one to inflict a scratch, never a psychic one followed by worry, remorse—no pangs whatever of any nature. There were no lawyers, no doctors, no need of either. There were clergymen, but their duties did not include visiting the sick, comforting the afflicted, cheering the sorrowing, for there were none of these. They never preached hell-fire - and - damnation sermons, but gentle ones of temperate thanks.

There was no poverty, there was no great wealth, neither sinking nor skyrocketing. For amusement there were plays about life in the community—some dealing with the violences of elsewhere were presented, but were not understood—music of the sort which would not disturb unduly, and games. These contests were of a kind in which there were no losers. There was no hurry, there was no shouting, no one's toes ever were trod on, in any way.

But that was once upon a time, for the Ideal Community has ceased to exist; everybody in it died of boredom.

• Big and Good Looking

(From The Sarnia Observer)

THE IMPOSING stature of Canadians has been the subject of comment in various parts of the world, and a plausible reason for the clean, vigorous physique is given by Rt. Hon. Sir Earl Page, deputy prime minister of Australia, now on a visit in Canada.

Sir Earl spoke at Niagara Falls in praise of Canadian women, whom he said appeared to be taller than the average men he had seen in Canada, and had more than a normal share of beauty.

Naturally the women will be "tickled pink" by that speech, but the visitor's explanation of the extra stature, which he attributed to the excellent food available and the high standards of living, will be generally accepted as applicable to the situation.

This is a subject that does not engage serious consideration here but it is a matter of anxiety in some countries not so favored. In Japan, for example, there is much concern about the poor physique of the population. The people of Japan have never had an over supply of the kind of food that would best promote physical growth, consequently the race has become stunted. The same applies to the Coolie classes in China and the submerged hordes of India. It is almost always the case, that where food supplies are inadequate and inferior, the people are of small stature.

In Canada and the United States, however, it is impossible to overlook the appearance of men and women who bear the characteristics produced by a plentiful supply of good food. In every centre of population in these countries it is striking to note the number of men and women who are better than the average in size. They look as if they had never been stinted in the matter of food. Unfortunately, some show signs of having abused a great privilege. They suggest a too-vigorous application to the dining table.

It is believed that the majority of Canadian boys and girls, who are now nearing the adult stage, will be taller and heavier than their parents.

CHANCE FOR FORTUNE.

(Financial Post)

A SMALL fortune awaits the inventor who can add two more years to the life of a rubber tire for farm tractors. At present the life of the average tractor is estimated at 10 years, the tire at 8 years. The lag assumes vital importance when one realizes that re-tiring would cost at least $250, and an eight-year-old tractor is worth considerably less.

Only recently have Canadian farmers been demanding rubber instead of steel treads on their tractors, but already the bulk of sales call for that sort of equipment. Even subsidiary machines, such as combines, binders, and mowers, are now being mounted on rubber.

Advantages appear overwhelming. In addition to more comfort and less dust, saving in fuel through better traction is placed at 20%. Even if they won't last as long as the machine carried, rubber tires are here to stay. In the meantime, manufactures are confident that some enterprising country lad will rise to the occasion and solve their present difficulty.

It ought to be a matter of gratitude that Nature has been so prolific in provision of agreeable food for human beings on this continent. It is a great national and economic asset to have an exceptionally vigorous population.

Old Main Building Is Changed Into A Place Of Beauty With Exhibit For Flower Show

Southend Of City Is Well Represented Amongst Exhibitors.

Transferred to the old main building, the flower show at the Exhibition has caught the season at its full tide of bloom changing a shabby interior into a place of beauty, brief gorgeous color and fragrance that will be all but faded and gone with the days they brighten until Saturday night.

The horticultural directors have been highly complimented on their achievement by their fellow members of the Board and by the public generally. Floral freshness can hardly be expected to endure from Tuesday night until Saturday night, and it may be suggested to those who are especially attracted to this department that they should visit the Exhibition as early as possible.

W. H. Young is convenor of the flower show committee, and remained on the job until one o'clock Tuesday night. His assistants are Dave Jordan and W. J. Kennedy, also E. W. Watson, Fred Dummit, S. T. Harris and Alex Kirkcaldy.

Mr. Kirkcaldy recommended to the chairman for special mention the fact that there are 44 more entries in the show than last year, and the juvenile section shows an increase of 17 entries. But, the gain is not only in quantity. It is obviously in quality, against a more congenial background. Briefly the flower show has surprised itself with its masses of bloom.

South End Prominent

But, before expanding that idea, it is only fair to recall that gardeners of the south end of the city have just about monopolized the show, and of their company the subsection of the Alfred-Chamberlen-Monaghan Road section take precedence over any other section. Here are some of them: Al Spencely, George Clarke, W. H. Young, Henry Turner, Wm. C. Wilks and George East. They all live about a stone's throw from one another. S. T. Harris is only a short distance away on Perry street, and further in the south end is George Downer over on Morrow street, Mrs. K. Waterman on Lock street, Okies Gardens from St. James street, and so on.

If all the other sections of the city were equally represented, the Peterborough flower show would be almost in a class by itself at least for small cities. And these southenders are all home gardeners; they do the work themselves, and their manner and success of doing it is reflected by the broad swath they have cut through the prize list.

Brookdale Kingsway Limited of Bowmanville have built up an attractive centre bed of flowering and foliage plants with all the individual varieties named; and another fine show piece has been assembled from the Blade greenhouses.

The vivid colors of carnations, sweet peas, the Picardy gladioli, also Tiger lillies and the "lillium Henril," fling up a striking mass of blooms leading from the main door. Then there are miniature gardens, and floral mats, to say nothing of the baskets and wreaths and other designs.

Leonard Mahood's miniature garden with the house and garage made of countless matches lost some of its original completeness from yesterday's heat. The front porch had dropped off and the garage was slightly wilted, perhaps because sustaining glue weakened under the excess of humidity. W. H. Young's design was the Kiwanis Dream House drawn to scale in its Prince Albert lot.

Special commendation was excaped by the judge for the wild bouquets which featured wood gathered from its wild along the country roads. Mrs. Hanbidge won a second vase was hidden behind of burrs. Miss Mina Stewonabee was a first prize Her bouquet from the ungardens of the fields and was included an effective use ...nes.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

MAY WE EXTEND felicitations to Westclox gals and condolences to the Keene lasses? On account of Westclox retained their softball title last night by knocking off the Keenesters by a 21-2 score at the Bowl. They left no doubt, in this fourth playoff game, of their superiority—which they have shown most of the season. They are worthy champs and might do a lot of damage in the P. W. S. U. playdowns. The Ottawa squad wired that they would not be ready to start at home this Saturday—after our men softballers twice postponing games!—so the first fray will be here at Riverside next Wednesday eve at six. Barb Blade hurled lovely ball last p.m. and had plenty of hitting support. Gotta give the Armour Hill damsels credit for a good showing, and ya gotta mitt Ivan and his Keenesters for making it a real series when they didn't seem to have a chance. A good season for the gals, despite Lindsay dropping out in midseason.

* * * * * *

IF WE RECALL RIGHTLY, it was some six years ago that the girls' softball circuit here was revived. Westclox came in then and have been in every year, generally up around the top. They gathered a gang of young gals, many of 'em around 16 years of age—and this is like dynamite for us to go delving into a woman's age, but we're foolhardy!—and they are mostly still playing. Girls like Barb Blade, Ag Sturgeon, Marie Ferguson, Dot Merrett and Gladys Mortimer. A few others were added a bit later, Marg Hawthorne—our choice as the best player on the squad—as a junior and then Marie Allison from Cobourg. With Jean Corley and Dot Botting from Lindsay a month or so back when the Scugog crew folded. With always Ab Delahaye, a swell junior and intermediate baseball catcher in his day, coaching 'em. We wish these chomming damsels well in their Provincial playdowns.

Out At Chemong's Lake

NOTHING LIKE A DAY by the lake, and we did it yesterday at Chemong's Lake for the Children's Regatta. A fine program with good weather blessing the 36 events, though it got chillier (no such word, eh?) than a landlord's look when you say: "Well, it's like this, er . . . etc." All the ossifers in charge worked hard and put it over oke and the competitors made it a race in every event. Eleanor Somerville led the girls with 15 points as Jack Matthews topped the boys with 17. Took the last race to decide it, too, Spike Matthews winding up with 16 and Frank Somerville with 15. Lot of good kid swimmers and paddlers out at Chemong and this regatta promotes em.

A LITTLE STATIC ON THE O. B. A. broadcast comes from Niagara Falls, the scribe there writing: "According to a Toronto dispatch the O. B. A. intends allowing the veterans who organized for the Canadian Corps reunion to play in Provincial playdowns against the winners of senior leagues in Ontario. Without debating the merits of this team, it seems most unfair to permit their coming in at the 11th hour and starting from scratch with the clubs that have been forced to win a league title. If this evergreen collection feels it has a chance to beat the present-day nines, let it spend the rest of the year practising and start off in a league next season. Their presence in playdowns is not going to improve gates and it is safe to assume they would be not go very far, but the principle of the thing is wrong and deserves consideration from diamond rule-makers." We disagree; these grand old veterans will prove an attraction and if modern clubs, the Falls included, can't beat 'em in playdowns, these modern clubs deserve no sympathy.

We're a-Comin', Oshawa

THE PETES ARE practising muchly this week for that all-important C. O. B. L. playoff number in Oshawa the day after tomorrow. With the series squared at one win each, the third tilt will probably prove a real ball barometer, and the Petes can take a firm grip on the serial by coming out on top. They have a better club right now than the GM-men and if they lose again in the Motor City they should hit the back alleys home, no kidding. We rather expect Russ Kitchen will get the slab assignment against Biddle and it will be a a good game, but the locals are over-due to begin slugging the apple around the orchard again, and Jake isn't the mystery to the Murphy men he once was. We look for a local win on Saturday and another back here the next week—and if this be unreasonable optimism, why make the most of it.

BY DRIBS AND DRABS Dame Rumor's jabs are sizzling on the iron. And a few familiar names in the football world are popping up in the town of Peter's borough on the Otonabee. Curly Krug is here now and will be in the backfield for Orfuns in their senior schedule come Thanksgiving Day. Ted Reeve says of Krug "a twisting, low running husky who gained so many valuable yards for the Tricolor on his knifing excursions through the line." Ted will be surprised when he hears Krug will be playing here and not in Toronto this year, but that'll teach the coach of Queen's not to go calling Curly "low" or to speak casually of "knifing excursions"—a most libellous statement in some states! Anyway, it is fine news to hear that the former starry gridder at Queen's will be wearing local livery in future football wars.

He Quits Poundin' Pavements

AND HERB HENDRIE, ace centre for Balmy Beach the past four years, turned in his badge and uniform to the Toronto police department last eve and stated he had a job with a future to it in Peterborough. A youthful husky, noted for his defensive prowness Hendrie had built himself a real rep as a tough hombre when the going was hard—he loved to mix it up, and wore a "No. 13" sweater, which shows he recked not of the usual hoodoos of sportdom. The ex-cop will inject a huge hunk of starch in the local line and his experience will prove invaluable to any of our intermediates who may be moulded into the front wall on either side of him. Bill Flack, formerly of Montreal, now working at Mount Julian, is another newcomer to Peterborough. He stands six feet two and jars the beam at 220 pounds, a strong lineman. And there'll be more.

* * * * * *

COLORS FOR THE Orfuns this season will be burnt orange with black, and practises for the players begin officially Monday night at six in the Exhibition Grounds. Some of the huskies have been loosening up lately and it is quite possible a number of 'em will be drilling at the Oval on Saturday aft. Nightly workouts next week, while the new gridiron is being laid out, the Ex holding up proceedings this week. Players' arena is being arranged smack in front of the big grandstand and will be not many feet in front of the seated customers. With plenty of publicity throughout Central Ontario, local ossifers expect to pack in close to 4,000 fans here each home game. At that, we'll have but three tilts here this semester.

GRAB-BAG: Two members of the St. Thomas Yellow Jackets, who won the intermediate Dominion rugby title several seasons ago, have written us asking for a job and a chance to play with Orfuns. . . . Oshawa trimmed Cobourg, 6-2, last e'en to win the Lakeshore Junior Ball Loop title, McCabe out-pitching Smith. . . . Omemee and Westclox men softballers clash tonight in the Bowl in a round-robin playoff. . . . The 2.27 and 2.14 classes in harness hoss races are being run off tomorrow at the Exhibition here. . . . Eleanor Somerville of Toronto, who won the junior gals' trophy at the Chemong Regatta yestiddy, is but 10 years old. . . . P. C. I. ballsters practise tonight and Friday at 5.30 in Riverside. . . . Pete's lacrossers are down on the schedule to play at East York tonight; no tussle here tomorrow. . . . Quakers trounced Leafs, 13-2, last p.m. in a sudden-death Southend Softball Loop fray to take first place in the second half. . . . R. N.: Your letter arrove and we.ll be seein' ya. . . . Gees who want a stiff workout to get in shape for rugby might get in the middle of that nightly car-cravin' crowd at the Ex., eh?

Shooting For Canadian Open Golf Crown At Toronto

With the greatest galaxy of stars in the history of a Canadian tournament on hand the Canadian open golf championship gets under way at Toronto's Mississauga course. All the leading pros from across the line will be on hand in an attempt to keep the trophy from staying in Canada, something they have succeeded in doing for the past 20 years. And for the first time in seven years there will be a challenge from abroad in the person of Sid Brews, South African and French open champion, and ranked by many as the equal of Henry Cotton. A hand of five aces, all favored to be at or near the top in the tourney, is dealt ABOVE. At the LEFT is Harry Cooper, winner last year, who will be defending his crown. Top CENTRE, is Paul Runyan, diminutive winner of this year's United States P.G.A. title. Below, Paul are Lawson Little, LEFT, who took the Canadian crown in 1936 and holds the record score for the event, and Ralph Guldahl, present king of the links, and for the past two years U.S. open title-holder. Swinging at the RIGHT, is the South African, Sid Brews. Canada's native sons will have to produce some gaudy scores to stop the title leaving the country again.

Cincinnati Reds Oust Chicago From Third Place In National

Yanks Rained out; Red Sox Win Two

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (CP)—They laughed when Pie Traynor came right out and said the Pirates feared Cincinnati more than the Giants or any other club in this year's National League feuding. They laughed, but they're getting around to agreeing with him, now that the fine Scandinavian hand of the good deacon of Wilkinsburg, Will McKechnie, is working its magic.

The good deacon has those rude Reds riding high, wide and handsome in third place.

Will won a pennant for Pittsburgh in 1926, another for the Cardinals in '28 and kept a woefu Boston outfit in fifth place or better for four of his eight years there. After last season, he moved bag and baggage to the Rhineland, and, despite his fine record, there's nothing in his long career of pulling rabbits out of hats to compare with his latest stunt.

Harry Craft led Cincinnati's parade yesterday with a two-run homer in the 8-4 beating they handed the Chicago Cubs. The loss dropped Gabby Hartnett's hapless crew to fourth place, and gave the Reds a record of 10 wins in their last 16 starts.

The Bucs came through yesterday with another of those close ones. Johnny Rizzo's single sent home the winning run in the 10th for a 4-3 decision over the Cardinals.

The Giants stayed right with them on that one, largely through the efforts of George (Zip) Myatt, fresh up from the International League, who hit a homer and two singles, stole a base, and generally was a large ball of fire in a 4-2 victory over Brooklyn's Dodgers.

Yankees Rained Out

The Yankees were idle — rained out in Washington—but their American League lead stretched to 8½ games, when Cleveland's collapsing Indians dropped a 10-7 verdict to the St. Louis Browns. The third-place Boston Red Sox trimmed the Athletics twice, 4-3 and 5-0, on neat pitching by Jackie Wilson and newcomer Joe Heving.

Ira Hutchinson's six-hitter gave the Bees a 3-0 win over the futile Phillies. Detroit Tigers' hurling clicked for a change and they whipped the White Sox, 4-3 and 3-2.

Liani's The Name

This is Mario Liani, former light heavyweight champion of Italy, and more recently campaigning in South America, where he is said to have established quite a record. Mario is shown as he arrived in New York en route to a bout with Harry Balsamo, the former Belting Breakman of the middleweights, who is making a successful (thus far) comeback after several reverses.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Through the courtesy of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, the Lindsay Club were enabled to carry on their open doubles tournament scheduled for Wednesday afternoon. When time came to play, the Lindsay greens were so completely soaked that it was decided to call the tournament off, and later transferred to this city.

Twenty-two rinks entered the contest, and when all scores were handed in, it was found that W. Harris and F. Stevenson of Port Perry were the winners, and oddly enough it was the first time this pair had ever played in an open tournament, and it seems fitting that R. F. Downey, who was celebrating a wedding anniversary, got in the money, as did Jack Sedgewick whose birthday it was.

In presenting the prizes, President Hussey of the Lindsay Club thanked the local boys for their kind consideration in allowing the use of the greens. Fred Brown made a good job of handling the tournament.

The winners:

First—Port Perry (Kenwood blankets)—W. Harris and F. Stevenson.

Second—Peterborough (Blankets) —F. Dearborn and R. F. Downey.

Down in Oshawa at their annual mixed, there were fourteen rinks entered, three from Peterborough. T. Donaldson lost out only after an extra end....At Cobourg there were 24 entries in the annual mixed doubles, two rinks from our club were there, but report a good time only....Renaud and Coleman were beaten 20-9 by an Ottawa duo in the Willison doubles at Toronto.

Cricket Results

LONDON, Aug. 18 (C.P. Cable).—Close of play scores in English cricket matches started on Tuesday follow:

Soccer Crown To Vancouver

WINNIPEG, Aug. 18—(CP)—Vancouver North Shore had its main opportunist in reserve all the time it was playing South Porcupine Dome Mines in four games of the longest Dominion soccer final in history.

Then the Coast club brought Big Swede Larsen back from the injured list for the fifth game last night and he led the attack that brought a 6-2 victory over Dome and the national championship. His two first-half goals left the Ontario club with no alternative but to open up in the late stages, and with the game wide open Vancouver ran up a handy victory.

Scheduled to last three games, the series opened last week with a 1-1 tie and with Larsen on the sidelines through injuries suffered in the semi-final with Winnipeg. He was still out as Dome won the second game 3-1, lost the third 1-0 and tied the fourth 2-2.

The main fault in North Shore's play through those four matches was lack of ability to seize chances. With the return of the big blond forward the westerners again became a smooth attacking machine.

By its victory Vancouver retained for British Columbia the trophy the coast province had won for two years, presented to the Dominion Football Association in 1926 by the English Football Association. New Westminster Royals won in 1936 and Vancouver Johnston Nationals last year.

Quaker Oats Cops 13 to 2 Victory

Quaker Oats took a 13-2 Southend Softball League win over Cogs last night at the Brinton Field, a sudden-death game for first place in the second half. Minus their main hurler, Leafs were never in the hunt after the fourth frame. Heffernan and Anthony of the losers gave 20 hits between them, including homer by Dixon and triples by Stanley, Coughlin and Caccavelli. Shine pitched fine ball to give but six hits as he fanned 10. Crary and J. Corbett shone in the field and all the Quakers looked good. Teams:

Quakers — Cournyea, 3b; Stanley, 2b; McCullough, 1b; Dixon, cf; Shine, p; Coughlin, lf; Caccavelli, ss; Delpellaro, c; Webb, rf.

Leafs ..... 000 200 000—	2	6	3
Quakers ..... 040 801 00x—13	20	0

Umpires—Smith and Coursey.

Quakers have a bye into second-half finals, while Cogs play Leafs in two out of three. To-night, Little Harlem meets DeLaval in the second game of the first-half semi-finals, and a loss for DeLaval will finish them for the season, while a win would force a third tilt.

Rough Sea Provides Thrills For Veteran Water Athletes

Close Competition Adds To Pleasure

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Aug. 18. — Rough water and several spills provided thrills aplenty for contestants and spectators alike, at the Alderville regatta on Wednesday afternoon. They proved too much for Pat Perrin and Bill Taylor in the mixed gunwale race. However, these two righted their canoe, climbed in and finished second in the race.

Men's single canoe—Bill Taylor, Herb Cardwell.

Ladies' single canoe—Pat Perrin, Doreen Deyell.

Ladies' crab race—Doreen Deyell, Pat Perrin, Mrs. Ben Chubb.

Announcer—H. Perrin.

Toronto Bowlers In Trophy Hunt

TORONTO, Aug. 18—(CP)—Leading bowlers of Ontario and Buffalo swept into the fourth day of the Ontario tournament today with the Willison doubles and the Ellis trophy competition as the centre of interest.

George Hall skipped his Toronto St. Matthew's rink to a 23-9 victory over Dr. A. Walkey's Hamilton Argyles in the Eaton Gold Cup final yesterday.

E. Leinert of Buffalo scored an easy victory in the Henry trophy over W. J. Whitty's Toronto rink by 27-10.

George Hatcher's Toronto Canada's disposed of the London Thistles, skipped by N. C. Hart by 18-14 and went on to win the Toronto trophy with an easier victory over a Rusholme four led by J. Dempster by 23-13.

Dr. E. G. Wheeler's Balmy Beach four captured the Ontario Cup final after trailing until near the end in a close-fought competition with A. Crawford's rink from Wingham. The final score was 18-17.

Heavy rains during yesterday delayed the Willison doubles draw, so it did not get beyond the third round.

SPORT SPICE

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP)—A great fight, a great champion and a great loser . . . that's the only way to sum up Ambers vs Armstrong... How those boys went to town . . . Mike Jacobs can pack the Garden again if he can re-match 'em . . . Too bad about all those boos at the end . . . From where we sat Armstrong won and no doubt about it, but some who saw it from other angles thought Ambers at least earned a draw . . . How about that return go, Mr. Jacobs?

Nearly 600,000 cash customers have watched the Dodgers at home this year . . . Not so bad for a 30 to 1 division shot, eh? . . . Pro football fans are going to have to get along without old Bronko Nagurski this season . . . He's off on a world's tour to show the boys and girls the latest wrestling grips . . . Chicago's Bears won't seem the same without him . . .

Canada Trackmen Beaten At Munich

MUNICH, Germany, Aug. 18.—(CP)—Two touring Canadian track men, Bill Fritz of Toronto and Jonny Loaring of Windsor, Ont., were also rans Wednesday in an international meet here.

United States athletes, competing in the fifth meet of their German tour, won ten out of fourteen events before a crowd of 20,000.

Ray Malott, Stanford's quarter-miler, started the string of United States triumphs by whipping Robins of Germany and Loaring in 48.9 for the 400 metres. Robins was timed in 49.6 and Loaring in 49.7.

Howie Borck of Manhattan followed this with a victory in the 800 metres. Timed in 1.52.6, the I.C.A.A.A.A. mile champion beat Eichberger and Schmidt of Germany and Bill Fritz of Toronto. Eichberger, who finished second, was caught in 1:53.

HENRY ARMSTRONG IS BOXING'S FIRST TRIPLE CHAMPION

Colored Fighter Beats Ambers To Win the Lightweight Title

Bout Goes Route, 18,240 At Match

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP). — Shooting the crest of an amazing 10 months' campaign that has seen him dethrone three title-holders and run his string of consecutive victories to 39, Henry Armstrong, relentless little negro, today is the unprecedented champion of three fistic divisions—featherweight, lightweight and welterweight.

The man who fights like a machine added the lightweight crown to his collection last night in a rip-tearing 15-round battle with Lou Ambers that had a crowd of 18,240 practically uprooting the chairs in Madison Square Garden.

At the conclusion, when Armstrong's sodden glove was lifted, the audience raised a ruckus for 10 minutes and scores of straw hats sailed through the ring, some of them dispatched no doubt in a wild hope that they would clip Referee Billy Kavanagh, whose vote of seven rounds to six in Armstrong's favor decided the issue after the two judges had split.

Wins Crowd Admiration.

The demonstration, though reflected admiration for the desperate fight made by Ambers in defence of his title rather than any firm conviction that he had won. Except for three rounds awarded him by the referee because of Armstrong's low punching, the Associated Press scorer could give Ambers only one chapter.

Armstrong knocked Ambers down twice with looping rights for counts of one and eight and again slammed the game defender clear across the ring with a knock on the button.

Several times in the early rounds Ambers looked like he was ready to fold. As early as the third stanza a right winged him and those who had backed the Herkime, N.Y., Italian at odds of 1-3 thought he was a goner right there.

Ambers Tries Hard.

In the 13th he actually punched Armstrong all over the ring Twice Lou connected with a series of lefts and rights that stopped Armstrong in his tracks, almost made him buckle. The negro was bleeding badly from the mouth, as he had all through the fight, his left eye was swollen, and he generally didn't look like the Armstrong that New York fans had come to know.

But Ambers didn't have the stuff to follow it up. He, too, was armweary and battered, and Armstrong came back to take the last two rounds and sew up the victory.

Mako Returns One

Here's action in one column. Gene Mako, known mostly as Don Budge's double partner, returns a hard drive to John Foreman in a singles match as the latter shifts gears to get nto position to take the shot.

Junior Regatta At Chemong

Eleanor Somerville, with 15 points, and Jack Matthews, with 17, won the silver trophies for highest point-makers yesterday at the annual Children's Regatta at Chemong. A crowd lined the bank along the lake in front of J. K. Hughes' cottage where the 36 events were staged, and an entertaining program was run off in excellent order. Restricted to Chemong Park and Bridgenorth residents only, most of the events drew good entries and keen competition was shown by the youthful swimmers and paddlers.

Held under the auspices of the Chemong Park Cottagers' Association, Dr. A. W. McPherson was honorary chairman and J. A. Dewart the chairman. Ross Thompson, secretary-treasurer, acted as starter for all events. Other active committee officials at the regatta were Gordon S. Matthews, J. K. Hughes, Fred Hills, Fred Jopling, G. Eastwood, Karl Duffus, Jerry Duffus, F. J. Overend, Dr. H. J. Long, J. H. Jamison and J F. Strickland. Prizes were presented the winners immediately after the final race, and several land races run off for tots of six and seven years of age. Following are the firsts and seconds in the water events:

OLD EX-JOCKEY DIES

BLETCHLEY, England—(CP). — Believed oldest ex-jockey in England, William Hunt, 82, died at his home here the other day.

Lighthorse Harry Cooper Is Defending Canadian Title Against Golf's Best

TORONTO, Aug. 18 (CP).—Lighthorse Harry Cooper brought his finely clipped game and his magnificent tournament temperament to Mississauga Club today for defence of the Canadian open championship he won last year, when he was golf's leading money winner.

But it wasn't a case of the Chicago veteran against the field of 160, or against a few of the game's select. Cooper met at 72 holes a big group of top-flight United States stars and a band of Canadians whose improving play has rekindled hopes of returning the title to Canada. No domestic player has won it since the war.

With lighthorse Harry from the tournament circuit came a brilliant flock that included Tony Manero, former United States professional titlist; Jimmy Thompson, long-hitting Scot from Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa.; Horton Smith of Chicago; Lawson Little of San Francisco, once the brightest light among amateurs and winner of the open here two years ago, and Sam Snead, the West Virginia sensation.

Luftspring Beats Saban In Garden

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (CP).—Lou Ambers no longer was lightweight champion of the world today but in spite of that his manager Al (Waistcoat) Weill, seemed to be in a pretty fair spot among the fistic solons and for no other reason than smiling Sammy Luftspring of Toronto.

The rugged Canadian Hebrew welterweight defeated Salvy Saban of New York last night and supplied the only bright note of the evening for Weill who watched Ambers make a courageous but losing stand against Henry Armstrong in defence of his lightweight title.

Luftspring won on ring generalship. He piled up sufficient points in the early rounds to stave off a late rally by Saban and gain his fifth win in as many starts since signing with Weill last spring.

Luftspring's six-round victory was his first start in Madison Square Garden. He weighed 146½ against Saban's 147 pounds. On the Canadian Press score sheet the Toronto boy won the first three rounds, dropped the fourth and fifth to Saban and split the sixth. There were no knockdowns.

Westclox Girls Win '38 Title

Westclox girls won the championship of the Girls' Softball League last night at the Bowl before a good crowd with a 21-2 decision over Keene. It was the fourth game of their three-in-five finals for the city and district and sends Westclox into the P.W.S.U. playdowns, first game being here next Wednesday. They had good pitching last night, hard hitting and neat fielding. Barb Blade hurled six-hit ball, giving one walk and fanning thre in a smart slab showing. Bea McDowell for Keene was reached for eight safe hits and two walks as she fanned three, being replaced in the third by D. Warner who gave 11 bingles and two walks while striking out two.

A. Sturgeon of the 1938 champions had a triple, double and single; with M. Hawthorne and J. Corley getting a double and two singles each; D. Merrett a triple and single; and D. Botting a double and single. For Keene, G. Nelson got two safeties and M. Miller a double, while D. Warner, R. Wood and T. Mills hit safely once each. Fielding features were supplied by R. Wood and T. Mills of Keene, and M. Hawthorne, A. Sturgeon and M. Ferguson of Westclox. The losers also pulled off a double play, H. Nelson to B. McDowell. The teams:

Westclox: A. Sturgeon, cf; M. Ferguson, ss; M. Allison, 2b; M. Hawthorne, 3b; D. Merrett, lf; G. Mortimer, 1b; J. Corley, rf; D. Botting, c; B. Blade, p.

Newark Swamps Toronto Leafs In Two Games

TORONTO, Aug. 18 (CP.—Good pitching, which isn't exactly plentiful in the major leagues these days, has given the International League an interest it hasn't had since Newark Bears stretched out that league lead like a rubber band.

The Bears' hurling has been none too good this past week but Lee Stine and Norman Branch stepped in with two games last night. Stine beat Toronto Maple Leafs, 8-0, with four hits in the opening game, and Branch allowed nine in winning the nightcap, 10-1.

In the only afternoon game scheduled, Red Barrett of Syracuse blanked Montreal, 4-0, with three hits and ran his string of scoreless innings to 23. At Buffalo Jim Reninger of the Baltimore Orioles allowed the Herd three hits in taking the opener, 4-1, and then Harry Matuzak allowed the same number of hits in the nightcap but was beaten, 2-1, by Bob Kline, who gave 10.

Si Johnson of Rochester Red Wings downed Jersey City, 3-2, in the second game after Roy Joiner had won the opener, 7-1, allowing the Wings only seven hits.

FIVE FOR FIVE

POONA, India—(CP).—The Governor's Eleven opened the cricket season with a 73-run victory over Royal Bombay Sappers and Miners. Shanker Krishna took five wickets for five runs for the winners.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation

OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

Death Rumor False, Says Berlin

Berlin has officially denied stories from London that Baron Gottfried Von Cramm (ABOVE), famous German tennis star, committed suicide in a Nazi prison. Von Cramm, who has been in prison many months on a morals charge, was reported to have taken his life by a columnist in a London newspaper, who got news of the affair from what was termed "reliable sources." Von Cramm, once one of the world's leading tennis players, has not played this year

Council Favors An Early Start Bancroft Road

The municipal council of Burleigh and Anstruther met in the town hall with all members present on August 13, when the following business was transacted.

H. B. Taylor and Sons will be billed $6.00 as their share of the cost of removing brush on the Clarincarde road to reduce fire hazard on motion of Councillors Booth and Kilborn, and H. H. Dinsdale will receive a letter from the clerk on the same matter on motion of Councillors Kilborn and Booth.

Application to the Highways Department for subsidy on money spent on roads up to July 31 instead of June 30, as formerly decided, will be made, on motion of Councillors Booth and Kilborn. Moved by Councillors Booth and Kilborn that action be deferred until next meeting of council on proposed road to Cedar Lake, and that Councillor Bolton and the clerk be authorized to make any necessary changes re same. Carried.

It was decided on motion of Councillors Kilborn and Bolton to renew the road insurance policy with A. E. Wilson and Company, and to pay the premium of $135.00.

Russell Hales was granted the timber on the west side of Anstruther-Chandos boundary along the east side of Lot 39, Concession 3, Anstruther in lieu of a public road across said lot, on motion of Councillors Kilborn and Booth.

The clerk was instructed to prepare a building bylaw and submit it to the council at the next meeting, on motion of Councillors Bolton and Booth.

Moved by Councillor Booth, seconded by Councillor Bolton, that the township pay 50 per cent of the M.O.H.'s expenses to convention, and also pay the cost of the toxoid treament of school children amounting to $30.11. Carried.

Moved by Councillors Booth and Kilborn, that the clerk write Mrs. Robbins in reply to her protest re removal of fence on road allowance at Jack's Lake explaining reason for such action. Carried.

Re C. W. Louden's claim for damages to car, the clerk was instructed to notify Mr. Louden that the road on which the accident occurred is not under the jurisdiction of the council, it being now assumed by the Department of Highways as a secondary highway, on motion of Councillors Bolton and Booth.

A plan of a subdivision of Lot 34, Concession 1, Anstruther, was approved by council on motion of Councillors Bolton and Tucker.

The road paylist for the month of July amounting to $155.00 was approved on motion of Councillors Tucker and Kilborn. Moved by Councillors Tucker and Kilborn, that the road rate be struck at 8 mills. Carried.

The township rate was struck at 8 mills and relief rate at 2 mills, on motion of Councillors Bolton and Tucker.

Moved by Councillors Booth and Kilborn, that the collector's roll be returned to the treasurer on August 25. Carried. The Reeve and Clerk were appointed to investigate the matter of the equalization of assessment of S. S. 5, on motion of Councillors Kilborn and Bolton.

It was decided to notify the Department of Highways to cut weeds on Highway 28 north of Apsley, on motion of Councillors Tucker and Bolton.

Start Highway Work

Moved by Councillor Tucker, seconded by Reeve Brown, that the council request the Department to commence work on the construction of Apsley-Bancroft highway at an early date. The increasing number of unemployed men in this district and the amount of traffic on this road justifies the work being undertaken at once, in the opinion of the council. Carried.

The Reeve, Councillor Kilborn and the clerk were authorized to draw up an agreement with Simon and Vernal, Windsor, for the construction of a drain across their property, in the event of the Department of Highways making a grant of $200 for the propect, on motion of Councillors Tucker and Bolton.

The folowing accounts were passed on motion of Councillors Kilborn and Booth.

Road pay list for July, $155.00; S. J. Charlton, road insurance permtum, $135.00; D. Carr Harris, convention expenses, $18.70; expenses re Mrs. Bronson, $7.75; Toxoid treatments, $30.11; Municipal World, placards, $3.81; London Guarantee and Acident Company, bond premiums, $31.00; Gordon Lean, sanitary inspector, time and mileage, $4.00.

Set Two Atlantic Speed Records

THE "QUEEN MARY" CAPT. IRVING

Following a record-breaking westward crossing from Southampton to New York, the crack passenger liner Queen Mary steamed past Bishop's Rock, Scilly Islands, three days, 20 hours and 42 minutes after leaving Ambrose Light, outside New York, on the eastward journey, to set up a new mark each way. Secret changes were made to the liner in drydock before the voyage which lifted the blue riband of speed from the masts of the French steamer Normandie. Capt. R. B. Irving of the Queen Mary, in command during both crossings, declared that the vessel was not seeking speed laurels when she chalked up the records.

Three In Hospital

PORT HOPE.—Joseph McClarey, Harold Twelley and William Duncan, the latter the owner and driver of the car in which the three were riding, were admitted to Port Hope Hospital early today after a collision on Highway No. 2 at the corner of Walton and Mill Streets here.

Given Two Years

WHITBY.—R. Y. Buglass, former manager of the Beaverton branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was sentenced to two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory today when he pleaded guilty to theft of $3,000 in Dominion bonds from an estate. He also pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted suicide.

Well Balanced Programme Is Presented Audience That Overcrowded Grandstand

Programme Moved Ahead At Top Speed With Real Good Acts

The thousands of people who filled the grandstand at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition on Wednesday night or occupied the benches placed on the racetrack would probably vote that the program presented was one of the best-balanced and most entertaining in the history of the Exhibition.

In a sentence the performance before the grandstand had everything. Thrills, color, music, dancing, a generous supply of comedy, circus features all were intermingled to supply a fast-moving melange of entertainment that had not a dull moment. There were no waits, no padding; on the contrary, the program moved ahead at top speed, and there were no weak sisters among the acts.

Amid such an array of talent it is difficult to know where to start, but possibly, because of the important place it holds in the program the Polly Ann Revue, owned by a very clever and versatile woman, Miss Pearl Haynes, might be given the distinction of leading the list. This unit, including ten youthful, comely girls who know how to dance and how to show to best advantage the many colorful and beautiful costumes in which the revue is garbed, was a wealth of entertainment in itself. The dance routines were new and clever, and varied enough to hold the interest of the audience from start to finish.

A Clever Artist.

Miss Haynes, head of the revue, not only scored heavily in her dance numbers, but demonstrated her ability as a musician by some very artistic marimba playing. Probably the highlight of the whole revue program last night was Miss Haynes' rendition of "Poet and Peasant" on the marimba, with the chorus supplying a very effective dance routine. "Sylvia" was another smash hit on the marimba, with four of the chorus contributing a chimes obligato. Mickey Norton was a smooth-working master of ceremonies for the revue, and found time to furnish some very effective dancing, his eccentric solo dance being outstanding. The revue troupe offered four different acts, and all of them found favor with the audience.

In this connection it is well to remember that Miss Haynes' company will present an entirely different program for the last two days of the Exhibition.

A sensational and beautiful act was the high trapeze work of Winnifred Colleano, the Australian girl who was recently featured in Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey's Circus. The clever performer brought more than one gasp of excitement from her fascinated audience by her thrilling dives apparently into space from the trapeze only to catch and hang on by her heels. It was one of the finest acts of its kind seen here, and Miss Colleano won a big hand from the crowd.

Another aerial act that was different and yet a most successful and unusual performance was that given by the Deteros, two aerial artists, who work at a dizzy height without a net, and who perform any number of difficult feats suspended from two miniature airplanes which keep the high bar continually revolving.

The layout of this very outstanding act was elaborate and the clean-cut work of the two performers made it a highlight of the program.

An Animal Act.

Torelli's circus, a much smarter than ordinary trained animal act featuring four ponies, six clever dogs, and two rather sour-looking monkeys scored a big hit. The ponies danced, the dogs contributed a number of clever tricks, including flips and somersaults, and the monkeys demonstrated their proficiency as jockeys. Later the Torelli came back with a comedy mule number that drew roars of laughter from the grand stand patrons.

Another number that rated equally as high as a producer of merriment and also showed exceptional cleverness was the bicycle act of Will Morris and Bobby. Comedy was stressed in this laughable contribution, but mixed in with the laughs was some skilful bicycle riding, and the audience liked the result immensely.

Oshawa supplied a charming pair to the program in the persons of Eva Vickers aged 12 and her sister Joyce who is 10. These two little artists, who are under the management of their uncle, H. S. Wilcox, a member of the original dancing Dunbars, proved to be very clever little dancers, and their tap dances and other program contributions were very much appreciated.

Dick Lush was the capable announcer for the vaudeville program, and he kept the show moving rapidly. The musical accompaniments were furnished by the Prince of Wales' Rangers Band, under the direction of Lieut. W. H. Peryer.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, August 19.

Although there are auguries of many interesting and successful activities on this day, judging by the lunar as well as mutual aspects, yet the general summing up would be one of "mixed influences" astrologically. There may be precipitous changes, probably unwelcome and startling. There may be a sudden spurt, with high-pressure stimulus, to old matters, and new interests may hold peculiar angles or definite hazards, particularly as related to investments and finances. Be careful with papers. The intimate life also holds intriguing or mystifying angles.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves precipitated into a year of intriguing, surprising and yet very strenuous and promising situations. New matters hold hazards, but discretion and caution may assist, while old matters receive fresh impetus. Be wise with finances and careful with papers. The private or emotional life may encounter peculiar experiences.

A child born on this day may be energetic, practical, versatile, and dependable. It also may be shrewd, crafty and may resort to expediency rather than strict principle to gain its ends. It may have a captivating personality and enjoy much popularity.

Agriculture Class For Seymour Fair

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, August 18. — Classes in agriculture were revealed as a possibility for the Campbellford Fair according to a report of a directors meeting held on Monday. Called for the purpose of re-arranging the prize list members showed keen interest in the plan offered by District Agricultural Representative A. A. Martin to hold special classes on the grounds for the particular benefit of children attending rural schools. Although no definite plans were made it was thought that a special school would be held during the afternoon of the second day of the fair.

T. J. Horkins who is again head of the racing committee was authorized to give $250.00 in prizes for the speeding events. President E. A. McCook presided at the meeting which was held in the Township Council Chambers.

Peterboro' Boys Win First Inter-Club Test

The junior farmers' division of the Exhibition branched out into a new idea this morning described as the Boys' Inter-Club Demonstration contest, and to paraphrase a comment of judges and others who attended they intended to say "we think you've got something there."

Six teams of two boys each, two of them from Hastings and two others from Prince Edward counties, and one each from Northumberland and Peterborough entered this competition, a new feature of boys' work, although, according to W. P. Watson, one of the judges, he had seen a similar event ten years ago at the Fort William fair.

The Peterborough team composed of Gordon Stalker and Jim Moore of Smith was awarded first prize with Northumberland second. Agricultural representatives of the seven counties of the district and about 50 of the boys who registered on Wednesday comprised the audience and the consensus accepted the idea as a development in junior work that will likely be promoted in the future. M. C. McPhail of Toronto said the Peterborough Exhibition was the first place this type of competition had been held, and that several others were including it in their exhibition program for young men of the farms.

Oral and Objective

The demonstration was both oral and objective, the subjects ranging from treatment of warble flies to the feeding and fitting of dairy cattle. Not only was knowledge of the subject essential, but also the ability to present it to an audience, and some of the boys who doubtless knew their work lost points for nervousness and simply lack of experience in address.

The Peterborough team performed smoothly and expertly, leaving the impression as they were called first that they would be exceedingly difficult to displace from top honors. Their subject was feeds and feeding program and also the fitting and showing of dairy cattle. They gave evidence of a broad knowledge of caring for dairy calves and both of them had the ability to talk easily and effectively.

The personnel of the teams, their subjects, and the order of their stand in the awards by the judges were:

3rd, Hastings county—Bruce Prindle of Thomasburg and John Mitts, on treatment of cattle for warble flies.

6th, Prince Edward—David Smith and Donald Thompson, on a simple method of making a colt behave, and also the use of twitches.

The judges were W. P. Watson, Toronto, assistant of the livestock branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and Alex McLaurin, director of Boys' Club work for the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The judges were unanimous in their decisions, and both complimented the Peterborough county team on the excellence of their material and the harmony in their presentation of it. They paid special tribute to Bruce Trimble of Hastings county for the outstanding individual demonstration of the contest, and remarked that the nervousness shown by his teammate was mainly due to his dependence on memory which failed him.

Wins First Car

Douglas McDonald of 6 Crescent Street stepped briskly across the track at the Exhibition Grounds on Wednesday night, a flimsy piece of paper clutched in one hand. And for that piece of paper, which had been given to him, he received a brand new car, in the front seat of which he is shown here. He was the first of four lucky people who will win such cars before the Exhibition closes.

Cases Of Sudden Illness Are Given Attention By St. John's Ambulance

TO PERSONS eating restaurant salads it would appear that any one substance may be mixed with another and eaten.

But one little girl at the Peterborough Exhibition yesterday found that such a supposition is false. She ate maple sugar and drank a soft drink at the same time. The result was disastrous. A couple of hours later the St. John Ambulance Brigade had her in good enough condition, although she was somewhat weak and empty, to go home.

The Brigade, whose tent is located at the south side of the Manufacturers' Building, dealt with more than twenty cases of sudden illness during the day. Several children became lost and rested in the Brigade tent. One of them was returned to her north end home when she remained unclaimed at 11 p.m.

BANK CLEARINGS

A decided decrease in the total bank clearings passing through the Peterborough Clearing house for the week ending today as compared with the same week a year ago was reported. Past week's clearings totalled $537,072 and for the same week a year ago $630,746.

USED AS GRANDSTANDS

Complaints were registered yesterday by owners who left their machines parked close to the Lansdowne street fence outside the Exhibition grounds that the cars had been used as temporary grandstands by persons who preferred to save the price of admission. Several car tops were badly marked up as a result. In this connection it is pointed out that the cars were wrongfully parked in the first place.

RAIN HURT TOMATO PLANTS

Gardens in the district report that the recent heavy rains did some damage to the heavily laden tomato plants. The plants were flattened to the extent that the tomatoes are pushed into the mud and as a result ripening is delayed and rot often results from such a condition. The damage is not extensive but in the large tomato fields, at least ten per cent. of the crop is affected.

VERY MUCH ALIVE

E. Stanley Jackson, local Cockshutt plow dealer wishes his friends to know he is alive and well, despite the fact that Monday's paper carried a story of a Stanley Jackson being killed in a motor accident at Marmora on Saturday. The general manager of the company at Brantford reading the item telephoned Peterborough to learn if Stan was still gracing this earth. At least six other people phoned the Examiner to obtain the same information. At the Exhibition Wednesday Mr. Jackson said the man killed was about his age and the same name but no relation.

EVAPORATOR ON DISPLAY

An indication perhaps that the Peterborough District was becoming better known in recent years as a producer of high quality maple syrup is given by the fact that Grimm Manufacturing Company of Montreal have a display in the Manufacturers Building at the Exhibition, which includes a modern exaperator for making syrup, and all supplies. The booth has a background of maples in a winter setting painted on the canvas walls. Thousands of people particularly city dwellers who are familiar with the old style open iron pot system of maple syrup making will be interested in seeing the modern equipment.

AN ADDED ATTRACTION

The Vicker Sisters, the clever young dancing team who have been pleasing Exhibition audiences are an added attraction to the grandstand program. The accomplished youngsters hail from Oshawa.

STILL A FEW PATRONS

The counter-attraction of the Exhibition has not succeeded in luring all the patrons away from the police court. There have been a few of the regulars still in their accustomed places for the proceedings of the last two days.

CARS DAMAGED

Cars driven by A. E. Marshall of Elderson, Ont., and Jock Goddard of 83 West Lodge Avenue, Toronto, collided at the junction of Stewart and Reid streets Wednesday and both machines were damaged. The drivers were not hurt.

POLICE BUSY

Exhibition days are busy days for the police department and every member of the force is working extra hours during the Exhibition. The night shift men are doing especially long grinds as the result of the extra work at the big fair.

AUTOMOBILE RECOVERED

A car belonging to Dr. D. W. Clark was stolen from the garage at the doctor's residence on Charlotte street last evening and this morning Peterborough police department, which sent out notices last night, was informed that the stolen machine had been recovered in Toronto in good condition.

CLAIMED THE BEER

After a liquor charge against Fred Hull had been dismissed in police court yesterday afternoon T. J. Carley asked for a court order to have the beer returned to his client at the place where it had been seized by the police. The possibility of an appeal however prevented the request being granted, whereupon Mr. Carley protested that by the time the beer was finally handed over it would have deteriorated enough to be valueless.

A BEWILDERED BUS DRIVER.

A nattily dressed child rode the bus to the Exhibition Grounds yesterday and when the small boy asked what the fare was, he was told three cents. A look of amasement however crossed the face of the bus driver when the child leaned back in the seat and lit up a large cigar, blowing clouds of smoke around the ears of the bus operator. He was Charles Koestner, 29 year old dwarf from one of the Exhibition Grounds shows, who is about as tall as the average five year old child.

RUGBY ALREADY

Unofficial practises of prospective members of the Peterborough Orfuns, senior O.R.F.U. entry, are being held these evenings in the Oval, a number of players shoving up about 6.30 each night to throw the pigskin around. Oficial drills will commence Monday night at the Exhibition Grounds.

NEARLY TWO POUNDS

W. H. Merrill of 191 Dublin street brought into The Examiner today a tomato of the "Beefsteak" variety which weighed one pound and 15 ounces. Mr. Merrill said there was another tomato of the same size on the vine and several smaller ones.

HIS 90th BIRTHDAY

John Corkery, 487 Gilmour Street, former postmaster in Peterborough, began today his ninety-first year. Mr. Corkery has almost completely recovered from an accident of some time ago, and has been able to resume reading and also to be up for a few hours every day.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

A lady telephoned the Examiner today and suggested that the city's health authorities put an exhibit of ragweed in one of the windows of a vacant store on George street. "So many people do not know what ragweed looks like and if they could see a sample they then could aid in the work of exterminating this weed," she said.

FIRST AID FOR SUCKERS

The St. John Ambulance Brigade officers have been called on to do strange things at one time or another, but the strangest of all occurred at the Exhibition last night when a shorn lamb appealed to them to temper the wind. Evidently believing from their uniforms that they were police of some sort or another, a Toronto man asked the members of the Brigade to help him get back $15 he said he had lost in a game of chance. The game was crooked, he claimed.

RELAY FAILED

Some hitch in the announcing system at the Exhibition Park Wednesday night interfered with the telephone connection between the grandstand and the main building when the first draw for an automobile was made. The hook-up didn't reach to the outer fringe, and one of the directors said "it's a good thing the holder of the first number wasn't in that section of the crowd where they didn't hear about it until quite a while after it was announced at the secretary's office." It was reported that the system would not fail tonight.

DIFFICULT JUDGING

For the first time in the history of the Peterborough Exhibition the judging of beef cattle had to be extended into a second day. Beeram Blackburn concluded his work this morning about eleven o'clock while the judging of the dairy classes was under way in the main ring at the southeast section of the Park. The exhibits of Herefords, Shorthorns and Aberdeen-Angus were regarded by directors as the most uniformly outstanding they had ever seen here, the quality being so closely balances in nearly all the classes that Mr. Bradburn had a difficult task all Wednesday afternoon until he adjourned for the day after six o'clock.

Special Meeting Of Board Discusses Rift Amongst Health Employees

THE BOARD OF Health, holding a special meeting last night, discussed a major rift that has apparently arisen between some employees. The press was barred from the meeting.

No action would be taken at the meeting, according to the chairman, Ald. Walter Stocker. It had been called to discuss a situation and presence of the press would hamper that discussion, said Mayor James Hamilton. He said the discussion would centre around the nursing services. Also present at the meeting were Ald. James Dutton, Dr. G. Murray Fraser, M. O. H. and Ald. Herb McCannan. All voted to exclude the press. Any action to be taken will come at a regular meeting of the board, said Ald. Dutton.

Continued Rains Hurt Grain, Stop Threshing

LINDSAY, Aug. 18.—Wednesday's heavy downpour of rain greatly increased the hardships and discouragements of many farmers in this district. The rain was particularly heavy in the Manilla district, and threshing operations are at a standstill. The land is very soggy, and it is impossible to get a binder into the fields on a great many farms. In the low lands the crops are practically submerged, and some of the farmers fear they will have to abandon plans for threshing. Grain rust is developing on some farms and the outlook is very discouraging.

The residence of William Trumbull in the village of Minden, was entirely destroyed by fire this week and the United Church, just east of the Trumbull home, narrowly escaped destruction. The fire is believed to have had its origin in a pile of shavings at the rear of the house, and had made considerable headway before it was discovered. Very little of the furniture was saved.

Bert Davies, of Lindsay, who is employed at a creamery in Claremont, suffered serious injuries on Tuesday. He was working beside one of the machines when his arm became entangled in a pulley. The member was broken in two places.

Breaks Bone When Car Hits Hole

W. J. Brown, local Relief Officer, sustained a broken breast bone on Tuesday. He was driving on Logie street when his car struck a large hole in the highway. The front axle of the car was also broken and a fender caved in.

The American tourists at the different lake resorts in this district have been thinned out considerably this week, many of them returning to their homes. Lunge fishing has been poor this season and many of them were disappointed in their failure to land the big ones. The bass fishing has been excellent. Fishermen state the lunge are in the waters in goodly numbers but refuse bait.

F. R. Wilford, of Lindsay, has secured the contract for the new power house and flume at Bobcaygeon.

The jury, which this week, inquired into the cause of the death of Stewart Park, of Toronto, a Boy Scout, who was thrown from a horse at Norland, recommended that when horseback riding was indulged in at Scout camps more supervision should be exercised and that toe bags be used.

neighbor" visit. During the Laureation Ceremony here workmen were busy 25 miles down the St. Lawrence River putting finishing touches on preparations for the dedication of the new International bridge between Ivy Lea, Ont., and Collins Landing, N. Y.

Open the Span

Accompanied by Prime Minister King, Mr. Roosevelt later cut a ribbon on "The International Bridge," a tiny span that crosses a St. Lawrence River channel down the middle of which runs the boundary line. The small bridge is one of five separate bridges connecting various islands to form a span eight and one-half miles long across the river. The bridge ceremony was set for 3 p.m. after which Mr. Roosevelt crossed over the bridge to United States.

After he received the blue-bordered black hood from Chancellor Richardson to signify the degree of Doctor of Laws, President Roosevelt was greeted with loud applause from the hundreds in Richardson Stadium as he made several references to Canada's century-old peaceful neighborliness with United States.

After the Convocation Ceremonies the President and his official party lunched with Queen's University officials before proceeding by motor car to the bridge dedication ceremonies at Ivy Lea. The President and Mr. King rode together in Mr. Roosevelt's personal open touring car which was sent here for him.

Two Tourists Hurt In Crash

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hart of 1423 Riverside Avenue, Cleveland, O., were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday night suffering from injuries sustained when their car left the road and crashed into a culvert on Highway 28, the accident happening near the Millbrook turn.

The Cleveland couple were on their way to Peterborough when the mishap occurred. Trouble with the steering gear is blamed for the car getting out of control and shooting off the highway.

Mr. Hart was the more seriously hurt, being injured about the chest and internally. It is thought that he came into violent contact with the steering wheel when the car struck the culvert. Mrs. Hart sustained facial injuries and shock and had several teeth knocked out.

The Hart car was very badly damaged, one estimate naming $400 as the amount.

Mrs. Patch Bereaved

OTTAWA, Aug. 18 (CP).—Mrs. Frances C. Farmer, 82, formerly of Knowlton, Que., died at the home of her son, Earle Farmer, here last night. She was the widow of John E. Farmer and came to Ottawa a year ago. Mrs. William Patch of Peterborough, Ont., is a daughter.

Four Boys Fined For Trespassing At Exhibition

A stern warning was issued by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to people who try to see the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition without going through the formality of paying the admission fee.

Four boys were lined up before him on a complaint laid by President Tom Brown of the Exhibition Board and charged with trespassing on the property of the Exhibition.

All four pleaded guilty, several of them admitting that their conduct had been foolish and Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., pointed out that the Exhibition Board was at present conducting a fair and that it was inconvenienced by the actions of people who attempted to climb the fence and enter the grounds without paying. Heavy punishment of the boys charged was not being asked but it was necessary that they and others should be warned that such conduct could not be overlooked.

"This is the first charge of this kind that has been brought before me," said Magistrate Langley, "and for that reason I am only going to fine you boys $1 without costs. I want to warn you however that if there are any more charges of this kind the penalty will be much more severe."

The magistrate told the quartette of boys that there was nothing smart in their conduct and that it was tantamount to stealing. "You all look as if you could have got the 35 cents admission without trouble," he remarked.

"They could have got in yesterday for 5 cents," Chief Newhall stated.

"That makes the thing all the more foolish," remarked the Court.

There will be further prosecutions if persons attempt to evade paying admission to the grounds, The Examiner was informed.

Lad 17, Drowns Near Bancroft

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Aug. 18. — Dean Black, seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrie Black of Turriff, was drowned in the York Branch, a few miles from here, late Tuesday afternoon.

He had been employed at a mine on the property of Edward Vardy, and with some of his fellow-workmen had gone in for a swim after their work. The accident happened so quickly his companions could do little. A large crowd of men from Bancroft and vicinity carried on dragging operations for several hours without recovering the body.

FICTION AND FEATURES

TWO WORLDS
BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

READ THIS FIRST:

Determined to show Dr. Julian Paige, the man she is in love with, that she can make her own way in the world, Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, burns her bridges behind her, moves to a rooming house, and, for lack of anything better, obtains a job as a taxi dancer at the Peacock, run by Nick Luigi. She is living with a girl named Laurie Evans, whom she met in the park, and who is a cashier at the restaurant which Julian patronizes. Noel feels she has a dangerous rival in Ruth Chester, Julian's pretty nurse. During an outing in the country, Julian tells Noel he want to kiss her but doesn't think he should. One evening at the Peacock, Luigi tries to Kiss Noel. She slaps his face and threatens to quit. Noel gets a job in a laundry but loses it in three days because she doesn't work fast enough. Still dancing at the Peacock, Noel meets a young man named Chris Landers, whose refinement makes him stand out from the others she has danced with there. Noel is happy when Chris returns to the Peacock a week later. Leaving the Peacock one night, Noel is greatly embarrassed to find both Chris and Julian waiting for her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 19

WHEN NOEL saw Julian standing at the entrance of the Peacock waiting for her, it seemed as if her heart leaped right up into her throat. For a moment she didn't know what to do or say.

Chris was standing there, his eyes questioning. Finally, Noel gained control of herself, and presented him to Julian. Then she said, "I'm so sorry. You see I— hadn't any idea that Doctor Paige—"

"I quite understand," Chris said coolly, and moved away.

Then Noel's eyes found Julian's again. And she knew that Chris didn't matter. A thousand Chris Landers couldn't matter. Julian was here. He had cared enough to find her. Her heart was suddenly singing like a nightingale under the stars.

Julian was angry. Noel knew that. But even this fact could not overshadow her joy at seeing him again. The only thing of which she was really conscious at the moment was the fact that he was here after all the desert of the days that had passed.

Then she heard him speak, saying calmly, "I am sorry about your friend. Perhaps I'm the one who should give way."

"Oh, no—no, Julian," she said hurriedly.

He moved up then and took her arm. "Shall we go?"

At his touch, Noel was conscious of a rush of feeling which threatened almost to overwhelm her. Now that Julian had come, all of her worries had been quickly relegated to the background of her thoughts. Her hatred of this garish club, Nick's disapproving eyes, even the look of hurt disappointment on Chris' boyish face—was it only tonight that she had tried to convince herself that in time she could care for Chris?

And then she and Julian were going out into the cool, star-sprinkled night. There wasn't a moon, but never had the stars shone with such brilliance.

There was Julian's shabby car parked under a street light. She recognized it with a little thrill.

Julian said nothing as he helped her into the seat. Even in the semi-darkness, Noel could see that his face had a pale, set expression. Was he really as angry as he seemed?

Noel managed a little laugh at last and said, "How did you know where to find me?"

"I waited, hoping you'd get in touch with me as you had promised Julian began. "Called you over the phone a number of times. You never called back so—"

Noel drew in her breath sharply. Julian had called her. A number of times he had said. Then there was only one thing that could have happened. Mrs. Blarsom had forgotten to tell her. The rooming house keeper was geetting more absent-minded all the time, or else she didn't care whether messages were delivered or not.

"When I didn't hear from you," Julian continued, "I did the only thing left to do. I asked Laurie where I could find you." Julian's voice was controlled, but it had a cold, steely quality that frightened her a little. He was still angry, but she could see that he had himself well in hand. Would she ever be able to explain, to make him understand?

"Julian," she began timidly, "I— I hope—that is—" but she stopped because she couldn't think of just how she should begin the explanation.

His expression was so uncompromising. He looked so stern and—and unyielding.

"You see there—there are several things I want to explain," she managed to say at last.

"Yes?" Julian's voice came coolly. He did not look at her. Then, before she could find the courage to go on, he asked: "Where do you live? You'll have to tell me now since I'm taking you there."

She gave him the number on Court street in a voice that was a little shaky. She hadn't wanted Julian to see the rather down-at-heel place where she lived. It would only make him try harder than ever to persude her to go back to her old life. And, too, she had a feeling of pride about it. This was the only place she had yet been able to afford on her earnings. And she had made such proud boasts.

Julian turned the car toward Court street. He drove smoothly and not too fast, and maintained a rigid silence. It was as if there were a stone wall between them, which she couldn't break through in order to reach him. The silence seemed to grow more and more ominous.

Finally she said in a voice that held a tiny note of desperation. "Julian, I can explain really. Please don't look like that."

"There isn't any explanation," he said coldly. "Facts have an odd way of speaking for themselves."

Noel drew a sharp breath, which was almost like a pain. It was going to be more difficult to explain, to win him over than she had expected, for she saw now that his attitude was absolutely unbending. He didn't appear as if he had any intention of listening to her, much less believe in what she had to say. What could she do? What could she say? She had to think fast. She couldn't let him leave her in this angry, unyielding mood. And in a few minutes the car would be stopping!

Suddenly her throat was aching dreadfully. Many, many times in her imagination she had pictured herself sitting here beside him in the shabby car, Julian smiling and happy, his dark eyes seeking hers with warmth and something akin to tenderess. And now—

She was afraid he would never believe anything else but that she had deliberately lied to him as to where she was working and the nature of the work. He was like that. Everything to him was always simple. It had to be one way or the other. There were no deviations with Julian.

Of course she had permitted him to have a misconception of things, but not because she had really wanted him to. Only because she had failed so miserably in getting the place she had wanted at the Garwoods, and was still hopeful and almost confident of getting another place similar to that one. It wasn't her fault that she had not been able he had approved of. And she couldn't to find another place like the one bear for him to know that so far, she had ben almost a total loss at making her own living.

They were in front of the Court street house now. Julian stopped the car. Noel hesitated and did not get out immediately. In another minute he would be driving off with a curt goodnight, which probably meant goodby as well. She couldn't bear it. She couldn't!

But to her surprise, when Julian stepped out to help her from the care; he did not get back in the seat. Instead, he took a small black bag from a compartment in the car. Then they were walking together toward the house.

"You're going in?" she asked, mystified.

"Yes."

"But Julian, I—that is—the landlady—" Noel was puzzled beyond words.

"You seem to be forgetting my profession. Your landlady or anybody else could have no possible objection to my going with you to your apartment or room or wherever it is you live. You see I'm going to have a look at your foot. I'm almost certain you have rubbed a bad blister on your heel."

"Oh!" Noel gasped. So he had noticed that. It was true she had been conscious of pain, but she thought it was because the shoes were too stiff.

"You were having such a happy time, you probably didn't even realize that one of your heels was blistered. I could tell the way you walked on it when we came out."

They had entered the room now. Julian didn't even glance around. He just sat down at her feet and said quietly, "Take off your sandal and stocking."

She obeyed. There was a blister, quite a large one.

Julian reached for a roll of medical cotton and a small blue bottle containing some kind of antiseptic. In a few minutes he had her heel neatly bandaged.

Julian shook his head. "She'll be as good as new in the morning. No need to worry, Laurie."

Then he went over to Laurie and put his hand on her head. "You don't look any too perky yourself, young lady. Oh, you girls if you will rip around all night—"

"Laurie never does that," Noel told him quickly.

Julian looked at her as if to say, "Well, I know you do," and then moved to the door with his bag.

Noel followed him out into the hall, limping a little. They faced each other on the porch. "So it was just a lark after all, wasn't it?" Julian said a little bitterly.

"No, Julian, honestly, it wasn't" Noel exclaimed. But it was quite evident he didn't believe her, for he started walking on to the car regardless of her little cry, "Wait just a minute—please."

DOROTHY DIX

Don't Worry Too Much Because You Do Not Attract Men To You; Almost Invariably It Is The "Alice" Type Of Girl Who Gets the Best Husband.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a daughter who is 20 years old. She is stunning-looking, clever, a fine dancer, has a lovely disposition, a combination of qualities that should make a girl popular, but she will not pet and do the things which the girls do who have swarms of men all about them. So she sits at home and watches girls with lesser standards of morals walk off with the high-class men while she clings to her ideals. At her age every girl craves popularity and she is unhappy without it. Bitterness is clouding her outlook on life and an inferiority complex threatens. So what can I do about it?

A PERPLEXED MOTHER.

ANSWER:

Virtually nothing. Neither can the girl. When Nature fails to give a girl that mysterious something that we call sex attraction and that we can neither explain nor define nor describe nor acquire, it is just one of those things that we have to accept as a decree of Fate, as we do our height, the color of our eyes and the amount of brains that have been allotted to us.

"Which of us by taking thought can add one cubit to his stature," asks the Good Book in enumerating impossible things. And the same thing applies to the girl who lacks attraction for men. There is no scientific formula by which she may acquire it. No technique she may learn. No tricks of the trade in which she may become an expert. And there are no rules or regulations that govern it. It may be the perquisite of the beauty, or the consolation prize of the girl who is as ugly as a mud fence. The dumbbell and the college PhD. may have or lack the "no-one-knows-what" that makes men get up and follow a woman wherever she goes.

Hundreds upon hundreds of letters come to this column from girls who pathetically state that they are pretty, well educated, intelligent; that they dance well and are good at sports; that their parents have given them cars, entertained for them and done everything in their power to make them popular and help them to have good times, but for all of this they sit at home of evenings, figuratively sucking their thumbs and watching the fun that girls with not half their good looks or advantages have. When they go out it is with Mamma or Papa or a group of other girls. At dances they are wallflowers, or some lad, prodded by his mother or the hostess, asks them for a turn with the air of a lamb being led to the slaughter.

And the girls want to know why this is thus. No one knows the answer. They ask how they can make themselves popular and have boys swarming around them like bees about a honeypot, but no Solomon has arisen to solve that problem either.

These dateless girls almost universally ascribe their lack of attention from men to the fact that they will not pet and kiss and permit familiarities in payment for being taken to the movies or on an automobile ride. This is a mistake, because there are plenty of self-respecting girls who keep men at arms' length who are still popular, and there are other girls who are willing to sell themselves cheaper than the lowest drab on the streets who have no takers.

So you can only wonder, with pity as well as with scorn, why any girl who has plenty of decent pleasures and amusements and the whole world of interests open to her regards herself as a failure; why she is unhappy and bitter because she is not dated up by men whose attentions she believes are dishonorable, and who expect her to get drunk and carouse with them when they take her out for a good time.

The only consolation that I can offer these girls who are heartbroken because of their lack of attraction for men is to remind them that their cases are not hopeless. Men differ in tastes about girls as they do about food and amusements and the very qualities that left the herd of men cold may be the very thing that will fire the fancy of some individual man. Also, girls should bear in mind the fact that popularity does not necessarily mean matrimony. Because a man dates a girl doesn't indicate that he will pop the question to her. It is notorious that belles seldom make good marriages, while many an Alice-who-sits-by-the-fire cops the catch of the season.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Our daughter, who has recently divorced her husband, has come home to live with us, bringing her four children. So far the children's father has not contributed a cent to their support, although they have been with us two years. This comes very hard upon us, as we are in our seventies and have a very limited income. At our age we also crave peace and quiet and we find the noise and restlessness of the children very disturbing. Just how much are parents and grandparents obligated to their children?

SEVENTYISH.

ANSWER:

It is idle to discuss what parents owe their children and how long they should sacrifice themselves to them, because the heart instead of the head settles the matter, and just as long as the children have need, just that long will fathers and mothers give to them.

You may say that when a child comes to a man's estate he should stand on his own feet. He should earn his own living. He should meet his own responsibilities. His father and mother have done their duty toward him by feeding and clothing and educating him and he should not lay his burdens on the old shoulders. True enough. But let the child be in distress and the parents do not balance accounts with him. They open their doors to the prodigal. They mortgage their home to help the shiftless. They divide their last crust with the hungry.

I often think that the chief sufferers in a divorce, when a disgruntled wife leaves her husband and goes back home with her children, are the old parents who have to assume burdens for which they are not fitted at their age. It seems to me that in common humanity a woman might keep on with a marriage, even if she was not ideally happy in it, rather than force her old father to go back to work to support another family and for her old mother to be turned into a nursemaid.

As for the duty of the father to support his children, in this particular case there can be no question and you should force him to do so by law if he lacks the sense of honor and decency that will make him do it voluntarily.

DOROTHY DIX.

The Examiner Home Service

It's just a forward - backward transfer of weight, three changes to the measure. Count 1 — Man steps forward with left foot. Count 2 — Right foot forward. Count AND — Shift weight to left foot without moving right from its position. Count 3— Quickly shift weight forward again to right foot. Girl does reverse of this.

The man indicates lead by a light pulling pressure with right arm and hand. He relaxes arm after weight is transferred to rear foot and forward walk is resumed.

Self-assurance, ease, grace, relaxation come as the result of knowing how. Our 32-page booklet gives diagrams and instructions for basic steps of waltz, fox-trot, rhumba tango by world-famous teacher.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf said to Hanid: "Now you sit down on this stone for a little while, Hanid. I'll be right back."

"Where are you going?"

"I'm going to find the entrance to the Mole family's tunnel. It's in this garden somewhere. I think I see it now, right by the side of the hedge."

Hanid smiled to herself as Knarf slipped quietly off. She was quite sure he wasn't going to find the entrance to the Mole family's tunnel as easily as he thought. She could see him searching up and down along the hedge. After five or six minutes he came back. "The entrance isn't there. I looked as hard as I could," he explained. "Where do you think it is, Hanid?"

"I don't know," she answered. "Why don't you ask somebody?"

"Ask somebody!" he said in surprise. "There isn't anybody to ask. Everybody is asleep. Besides, I don't have to ask anybody. If I keep on looking I'm sure to find it. I think I'll look behind the apple tree. I remember now. Mole families always build the entrance to their tunnels behind apple trees."

Stranger Appears.

Then he went off again. Hanid was just curling herself on top of the flat rock for a nap when she heard a little voice saying: "What are you doing out in the garden at such an hour, my young lady?"

She sat up suddenly and looked around. No one was there.

"You might look under the rock," the same voice said. "It's the usual place to find me."

So she looked under the rock. There she saw Earthworm, all dressed up in his best suit of clothes with a fine new derby hat and a walking stick. "Good evening," he said pleasantly. "I'm going for a stroll. Would you care to come along with me. It's a very pleasant evening."

"Oh, thank you very much," Hanid replied, thinking of how curious it would be to go strolling with a worm. "But I can't go now. I must find out something first. Perhaps you could tell me about it. Where is the entrance to the Mole family's tunnel?"

"Oh, that! Why, dear me! That's just where I was going to stroll to!"

We Noticed

....At the Exhibition yesterday: A tiny urchin clutching a teddy bear in one hand and a dilapidated ice cream cone in the other. He was evidently lost, but perfectly happy.

◇ ◇ ◇

....Someone wearing a very lovely knitted suit in a rosewood shade that has a grosgrain ribbon belt of pink, white and blue. The upturned brim of her matching straw hat was criss-crossed with ribbon in the same pastel colors.

◇ ◇ ◇

....Sateen is among the cotton revivals that is of interest to those who like fabrics that are different for housecoats. One print is an allover paisley design carried out in characteristic cashmere colorings.

◇ ◇ ◇

....Fur prints are especially well-liked for jackets to top knitted or woollen dresses. Leopard is a carryover from last year and more popular than ever. There is also a python print launched this year that is interesting sportswear designers.

Ennismore Wedding Party

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth H. Kyle of Ennismore, whose marriage was solemnized Tuesday, are pictured above with their wedding party. The bride was formerly Helena Marie Holland, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Holland, Ennismore, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Kyle of Medicine Hat, Alberta. Reading from LEFT to RIGHT, Back Row, the party includes: Mr. Joe Sullivan, best man, and the groom. Front Row: Miss Julia Hickson, bridesmaid, and the bride. (Roy Studio Photo.)

Ohio Wedding Of Local Interest

A wedding of interest took place recently in East Cleveland, Ohio, when Isabelle Allardyce, youngest daughter of Major and Mrs. J. M. Bygott, Sebastopol street, became the bride of William Andrew Nelson, B.Sc., only son of Mr. P. Blythe Nelson and the late Mrs. Nelson of Campbellford.

The wedding was solemnized quietly at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Shaker Heights, East Cleveland, by Rev. Mr. Fortune.

Fall Sports Wear

Two-piece dresses with short sleeves and convertible high or low necklines and novelty metal buttons are underscored in velveteen. In suits companion tweeds rough, sometimes handwoven, in stripes and plaids with plains are accented. Very lightweight woollens, mossy and plain or in monotone checks, are also featured.

The Children Can Make A Doll's House At Home

A big cardboard box will make a house with one, two or four rooms, just as you want. Carpets, curtains and table-cloths can come out of the scrap bag. A shiny bead will make an electric light bulb. Match-boxes used matches and corks will do for furniture, and the inhabitants of the house can be made from cotton-reels.

The result may look silly to you, but not to the children. They will like stout Mrs. Cottonreel, with a smudgy face painted by themselves, as much as or more than, an expensively dressed doll from a shop.

Quilt Display At Exhibition Larger This Year

A tour of the women's work on display at the Exhibition this year contradicts the present-day theory that needlework is becoming a forgotten art, particularly in the quilt department. More quilts are shown than last year, and cotton piecework quilts, using the Grandmother's Flower Garden pattern, which is formed of circles of colorful bits of print; the Wedding Ring pattern; and a delicate, exquisite pattern called the Dresden Plate, are lovely products of many industrious hours.

New entries this year are the candlewick trim bedspreads. They are beautifully made, and the colors are chosen with the eye of an artist, and carefully blended. These seem to be the centre of interest and comment among the womenfolk.

Hooked rugs are not as plentiful as usual, but the ones shown are of good design and workmanship. There are some lovely braided rugs in the collection, too.

Truly exquisite pieces of work are the embroidered sheets, pillow slips and guest towels. Particularly fine are the tablecloths and towels done in cutwork. There are some excellent sample sof needlepoint on stools, chair seats and cushions, and lovely knitted things for babies and grown-ups.

A display of work done by ladies over 75 years of age is well worthy of special mention, and shows piecework quilts finely stitched, a number of large crocheted wool afghans in softly-blended hues, and some durable looking socks and mitts.

The home-made cooking display is not quite so large as last year, but the quality is higher, and there are some grand loaves of home-made bread, and plates of tiny, golden-brown rolls.

The art work shows talent, and covers a wide variety of subjects. Of general interest is a clever painting of the quintuplets carrying snow shovels, and wearing short little white coats and matching caps. A portrait of Premier Mitchel Hepburn is there ,too, and his broad smile is very true to life.

Hats Are Petite And Feminine

Diminutive chapeaux, tilted at fantastic angles, have completely captured feminine fancies. A clever toque made entirely of rather wide pleated bands of sheer dull jersey, is draped intricately, crisscross fashion, one fold of the fabric falling gracefully scarfwise to the right shoulder. Another hat of the same material, shallow, tilted daringly forward, has a narrow swirled brim, and two gay-colored feather birds perched at the top centre crown.

Some Thoughts On Women

The woman who is always pleasant to you is not necessarily your friend; though you should appreciate her courtesy, you should not overestimate her sincerity.

Woman's envy makes her uncharitable, her vanity makes her unjust.

Most every woman is guided by her heart rather than by her head, and this is usually the cause of her mistakes and her troubles.

A good woman without charity is like a sun-baked desert without an oasis—there is no element of comfort in her virtue.

No woman should feel that she has a monopoly on virtue; temptation walks with us to the grave. Evil thoughts, though unexpressed, are as dangerous as evil actions.

The woman endowed with a strong body, calm emotions and a reasoning mind, who attains success, may not be so worthy of our admiration as a frail sister lacking poise and the power of judgment, who never really achieves, yet struggles on.

Do You Know?

Digging the fingernails of both hands deeply into soap before starting to dig in the garden will prevent the nails clogging with dirt, and the soap will form a rich lather which helps float off soil later when the hands are washed?

◇ ◇ ◇

◇ ◇ ◇

Discolorations which form on the inside of bottles can be removed if the bottles are nearly filled with buttermilk and potato parings and let stand for several hours? They should then be emptied and rinsed thoroughly with clean hot water.

BUY BY GRADE
BUY WITH CONFIDENCE

When ordering your beef, eggs, poultry, canned fruits and vegetables, and creamery butter, ask for the quality you want, by grade — then look for the grade mark on your purchase. When you buy by grade, you buy with confidence.

BEEF
The Government grades of Beef are RED BRAND - BLUE BRAND

BLUE BRAND, "Good" quality, is marked similarly, with a blue ribbon-like stamp.

EGGS
The Government grades of Eggs are
(GRADE "A1") - GRADE "A" - GRADE "B" - GRADE "C"

GRADE A (three sizes: Large, Medium, Pullet), best quality, suitable for poaching, boiling, frying.
GRADE B, good quality, slightly inferior to Grade A for poaching, boiling, frying, but entirely suitable for cooking purposes.
GRADE C, lowest graded quality. (Grade A1, Large, Medium, Pullet, finest quality fresh eggs from Government-inspected flocks, are available in limited quantities in certain localities.) Grade names are marked clearly on egg containers.

POULTRY
The Government grades of Poultry are
GRADE "A" - GRADE "B" - GRADE "C"

GRADE B, good birds but not as well-fleshed, fattened or flavoured as Grade A.
GRADE C, lowest graded quality. Graded poultry may be identified readily by a coloured tag on the wing or breast of the bird — Red for Grade A—Blue for B—Yellow for C.

CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES
The Government grades of Canned Fruits and Vegetables are FANCY QUALITY - CHOICE QUALITY - STANDARD QUALITY

FANCY QUALITY, packed from a selection of the best fruit and vegetables available; practically uniform in maturity and free from blemishes; uniform in size and colour; canned at the proper time, so that excellence of flavour and appearance may be preserved.
CHOICE QUALITY, packed from fruit and vegetables selected for tenderness and flavour. Not as uniform as "Fancy Quality"; allows slight variation in size, colour and maturity.
STANDARD QUALITY, packed from fruit and vegetables of good quality but not necessarily meeting the higher grade requirements as to size, colour and maturity.

CREAMERY BUTTER
The Government grades of Creamery Butter are
FIRST GRADE - SECOND GRADE - THIRD GRADE

FIRST GRADE—highest quality; excellent flavour; well made; smooth, waxy texture; uniform in colour.
SECOND GRADE—usually imperfect in flavour; may be defective in texture or uneven in colour.
THIRD GRADE — inferior to Second Grade in flavour, texture or colour.

Children Make Merry At Fair With Plenty Of Carnival Fun

Children's Day at the Exhibition Wednesday afternoon resounded with all the carnival fun and clamor of thousands of girls and boys too young to know much, if anything, about agriculture and industry and their implications, but old enough to enjoy the thrills of swift movement, at least swift for their experience, and the strange sights that seemed a circus to them.

They rode on the merry-go-round, and on the miniature automobiles that are really intended for the older youngsters some of them ascended to the heights of the ferris wheel, and others yelled and shrieked to the accentric flinging of the "Whip"; and even those who had seen all the rides before were introduced to new excitements such as the flying scooter, the Tiltawhirl, the Rideeo, the Octupus and so on down the longest midway avenue that has even been seen in Peterborough..

The Midget Village.

And it may be news to adults that Conklin Brothers have enough fun making machines to send 3 carnival shows on the road at once. They brought to this city for the first time an interesting feature called the Midget Village, comprising twelve little men and women five of them from Czechoslovakia, four from the United States and three from Germany. They have been together for eighteen weeks. Conklin Brothers sent one of their representatives to the country of the Czechs to complete this undersized little company who are going to be one of the headline attractions of the midway for both children and their parents this week.

Ubangis From Africa

The young people were also goggle-eyed at the sight of the six Ubangis, four women and two men, from one of the tribes of natives of Central Africa. The Ubangi women are especially known throughout the world for the hideous deformity of their lips, expanded from birth until at maturity they are called the saucer-lipped women. And then there was the new Fun House, devised for unexpected surprises, with little "dignity chasers" at nearly every twist and turn.

A lot of other attractions were strung along the lane of laughter, and then for only five cents each the children had the grandstand all to themselves for the afternoon vaudeville program. It was a big day for junior and his sister from both the city and district, and there are other afternoons ahead of them, if they "can make the grade" again.

A little girl of three year sor thereabouts presumably starting out on her first ride on the merry-go-round may not have been typical of the youth of Wednesday afternoon care free, happy throng. Probably she was still too young; maybe she will not remember that first ride. It was apparently a frightening adventure, even with her mother standing beside the brightly colored horse; and as the wheels started to roll she was crying in alarm. But, her mother reassured her and by the second round she was smiling through those first tears and apparently enjoying the motion and the music.

And that's what they make merry-go-rounds for, the amusement of children; the eternal wellspring of the innocent carnival spirit and of joyous laughter that reaches out to mothers and fathers, shutting out the worries of the world. And when it infects adults it makes Children's Day a worth while investment even if it is far removed from the realities of everyday striving and toiling for the little folks.

Milk Stops a Bull

CHICOUTIMI, Que., Aug. 18 (C.P.). — Perhaps the familiar song, "Beware of the Bull," won't ward off picnickers and berry-pickers so effectively after this if they bring a pail of milk along with the lunch basket, for here's a recipe that sets Mr. Bull back on his haunches.

Samuel Gagne was attacked by an infuriated animal while milking his cows yesterday, and suffered abdominal injuries and face lacerations before his sister-in-law dashed a bucket of milk into the bull's face, deterring it long enough for Gagne to roll under a fence to safety.

Denies Romance

During an interview aboard the liner returning him to New York, grey-haired Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Philharmonic Orchestra, denied that he and Greta Garbo would wed. Stokowski said that his work came before everything. He had just returned from an extended trip abroad where he spent his vacation with the exotic movie star.

Mouse Hitch Hikes

PENELON FALLS, Ont., Aug. 18 (C.P.). — Mayor Isaac Naylor picked up a hitch-hiker the other day without realizing it. Driving near Penelon Falls, he saw he was carrying an uninvited passenger, but a very harmless one. The passenger was a field mouse.

Professor Murders

LENINGRAD, Aug. 18 (A.P.). — Vakhid Ashuroff, professor of the Leningrad Pedagogical Institute, married one of his students, and asked her to abandon her studies to become a housewife. She refused, and the professor killed her. He has been sentenced to death.

Looking Back
On This Date

AUGUST 18.

Twenty-four years ago to-day (on August 18, 1914) the Dominion Parliament met in special session to consider the course of Canada in the war with Germany. The Speech from the Throne called for the sanction of measures already taken and the passing of further legislation to "repel the common danger." On that day Sir Wilfrid Laurier made a declartion which might be recalled to-day when some parties within the state are urging that Canda must abstain from any further participation in any war in which Britain may be involved. The words of Sir Wilfrid were:

Fred Williams.

"We are British subjects and to-day we are face to face with the consequences which are involved in that proud fact. Long we have enjoyed the benefits of our British citizenship; to-day it is our duty to accept its responsibilities and its sacrifices. We have long said that when Great Britain is at war, we are at war; to-day we realize that Great Britain is at war and that Canada is at war also. If my words can be heard beyond the walls of this house, in the province from which I come, among the men whose blood flows in my own veins, I should like them to remember that, in taking their place to-day in the ranks of the Canadian army to fight for the cause of the Allied nations, a double honor rests upon them."

There was then no racial cleavage in Canada; there was then no third party seeking to split the unity of Canada by appeals to the foreign elements and the discontented of British stock. It was a united Canada. In Parliament all parties and both races were united. Even Mr. Bourassa, in Le Dovoir, said: "I have not written and will not write one line, one word, to condemn the sending of Canadian troops to Europe."

A few weeks later Sir Wilfrid laid down the policy which is now that of our present Prime Minister:

"We are a free people, absolutely free. The charter under which we live has put it in our power to say whether we should take part in such a war or not. . . It is for the Canadian people, the Canadian Parliament and the Canadian Government to decide."

And who doubts but that if the need should come again the people of Canada will say with Sir Wilfrid: "When Britain is at war, Canada is at war." But God forfend that the decision shall have to be made again in our day and generation.

Hastings County Girls' Team Wins First Place In The Inter-County Contest

Popularity Of Clubs Increasing Yearly 154 Girls Participated.

Under a big white tent at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition on Wednesday, one hundred and fifty-four girls participated in the exhibits and judging, and in the demonstration of projects undertaken by Home Making Clubs, which included club members from the counties of Peterborough, Hastings, Northumberland, Durham, Victoria, Prince Edward and Ontario.

When the day's results were totaled up the inter-county team demonstrations were awarded the following positions: 1, Hastings, "Would You Be Well Groomed"; 2, Peterborough, "Milk the Child's Delight"; 3, Northumberlands demonstration, "Clothes Closets Up to Date" and Prince Edward County's "Table Setting" were tied for third place; 5, Ontario "Lets Make Tea Biscuits."

The popularity of these clubs is increasing yearly, and this year eighty-four more girls were registered than in 1936. These clubs are a branch of the Women's Institute, and are sponsored by the Departmena of Agriculture. Each spring and fall two-day leadership courses are conducted by Miss Greta Pollard of Bowmanville, Home Economics coach of the Women's Institute branch of the Department of Agriculture. These leaders are trained to form Project Clubs in her community which are conducted in a business-like way, the courses of study recorded in achievement record books by each girl, and the year's work criticized by the Home Economic coach on their annual Achievement Day.

Girls Receive Excellent Training

The training which these farm girls receive is an excellent one, developing in them a knowledge of sewing, organization, food vaues and housekeeping technique which would make even their grandmothers sit up and take notice! Besides forming a new interest, these clubs create for the girls a social life which they might otherwise miss, and the keen and splendid rivalry which was evident between the various counties yesterday clearly demonstrated the enthusiasm which the girls bring to their work.

Judging Made Fine Progress

Beginning at nine in the morning, which meant very early rising for some of the girls who had come a great many miles to participate in the activities, the judging made fine progress. Fifteen minute periods were allowed for the judging and demonstrating. Of particular interest were the cotton dresses which the girls had made, and which they modelled themselves. These colorful little frocks were of excellent workmanship and clever styling, and were smartly enhanced by the good grooming and fine posture of the wearers. A descriminating taste was shown also in the choice of accessories.

During the afternoon demonstrations were given by teams composed of three or four girls from each county. These short skits were well handled, and the girls took their parts with a poise and assurance which must have been the result of careful and extensive training. The demonstrations covered the various projects undertaken by the clubs, which included the following units of work: The Supper Club, The Milky Way, Cottons May be Smart, Being Well Dressed and Well Groomed, Clothes Closets Up to Date, and Cotton Accessories For The Club Girl's Bedroom.

The day's events concluded with a dinner at the Empress Hotel in the evening, when the girls were joined by the junior farmers, whose program during the day had been directed by Frank C. Paterson, local representative of the Department of Agriculture.

The girls were under the direction and supervision of Miss Pollard, and Miss Florence Eadie of the Women's Institute Branch, Toronto, assisted for the day by Miss Lillian Hawell, Cainsville, and Miss Flora Durnin, Dungannon, members of the Women's Institute branch of the Department of Agriculture.

The results, homemaking club exhibits, judging and demonstrations, were announced as follows:

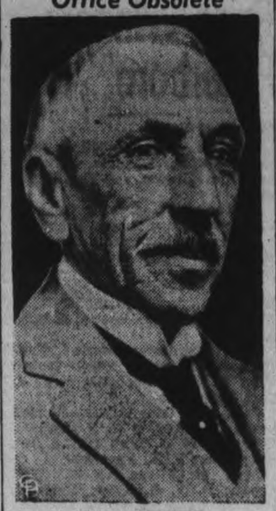
Office Obsolete



W. M. HUGHES

Terming England's dominions office as "obsolete as the muzzle-loading rifle and the hansom cab" because the conditions that brought it into existence have disappeared, Australia's wartime premier, W. M. Hughes, in a speech at Canberra, Australia, declared that if the dominions were to have an effective voice in foreign policy, messages should come direct from the foreign office or the prime minister. The dominions office, he claimed, was a creaking machine, lagging and superfluous and merely acted as a dispatching office.

ROSENEATH

The members of the Mission Circle gathered at Dunnet's Landing, Rice lake on Friday for the regular meeting of the society. The business session presided over by the president, Miss Ruby Blodgett, was brief and the remainder of the time was spent swimming, boating, ball games and other various games and sports. Picnic meals were important features of the day.

Jack's Creek Man Is Not Guilty Illegal Possession Of Liquor

Stating that the defense had offered a reasonable explanation, Magistrate E. A. Gee found Fred Hull of Jacks' Creek not guilty of the charge laid against him of having illegal possession of liquor. The judgment was given at the afternoon session of police court after defense evidence had been heard.

Hull, taking the box in his own behalf told of ordering beer through Joseph Fontaine to whom he said he sent a proper order and the money. He ordered five cases and at the same time Joseph McDonald ordered ten cases and the orders were sent in together. On the day the beer was delivered at Hull's place Hull and his wife were absent and when they returned home they found that all fifteen cases of beer had been left there and Hull's nineteen-year-old son Norman had placed it in the cellar thinking it all had been ordered by his father.

Mrs. Hull and Norman Hull corroborated that evidence and James McDonald who testified that he worked for the Nephelene company at the dock at which the scows were loaded and rented a cabin from Hull which he occupied on week-ends, the only time he could get away from his work, swore to sending in the order for ten cases. He had not given instructions that the beer was to be put in Hull's house and thought that it would be delivered to his own cabin. He said he had given Hull $27 to send to Peterborough for his boer and told Mr. Kerr that his salary amounted to $33 every two weeks.

Witness stated that he ordered ten cases because it was impossible for him to get away from his work, his appearance in court being the first time he had been in town since June 1.

It was stated in effect by the crown that the explanation of how McDonald's beer got into Hull's house was a frameup but Magistrate Gee said the orders showed the beer had been procured legally and the explanation given was a reasonable one. Under the circumstances he must find the accused "Not guilty."

Mr. Carley asked for an order requiring the officers to return the beer to the place from which it had been seized but Mr. Kerr pointed out that the exhibits would have to be held in case the Department decided to enter an appeal.

A charge against McDonald arising out of the same set of circumstances was adjourned by consent until September 19.

IN MEMORIAM

TAYLOR.—In sad but loving memory of our dear son Robert (Bobby) Taylor, who went to be with Jesus August 18, 1933.

At early morn when all was still,
God gave his great command,
And called the son we loved away
Into a Better Land.
There was no one heard the footsteps
Of the angel drawing near,
Who called from us to heaven
Our only son so dear.
When the evening shades are falling
And we're sitting all alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing:
If we only had him home.
Then we sit and wonder
If we're doing just what's right
To wish back that little angel
God called away in night.
Oftimes our thoughts do wander
To a grave not far away
Where we laid our dear son Bobby
Five years ago to-day.

—Sadly missed but always remembered by Mother and Father and two sisters, Alma and Audry Taylor.

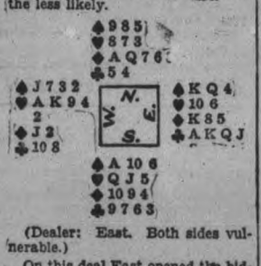
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

WALK TO THE EXITS

THEATER OWNERS tell us that in case of fire we should walk, not run, to the exits. So it is also in bridge. If a defender does something different from what we expect, flying into a panic and acting hastily will not help. Then is the very time to weigh the possibilities coolly and decide which situation is the more likely and which the less likely.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

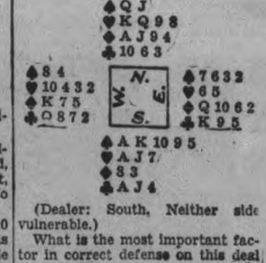
On this deal East opened the bidding with 1-Club, South passed, West responded with 1-Heart, North passed, East called 2-No Trumps and West 3-No Trumps.

South selected the diamond 10 his original lead. When the J was played from dummy, North made the killing play of the Q and East, placing the A with North, decided to duck the first round.

With no entry to cash his diamonds, when set up, and hoping South held the diamond 9, North returned the diamond 6. This fooled East, who decided he might have been wrong about the location of the A. He now hastily figured South's lead was probably from the A, 10 and a very small card, so played the 8. South won with the 9 and returned, so that his side captured five diamond tricks and the spade A, setting East one more trick than necessary.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South, Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the most important factor in correct defense on this deal at 6-No Trumps?

JUNIOR FARMERS FROM 7 COUNTIES COMPETE AT EXHIBITION

Junior Farmers from seven counties held the spotlight when the Peterborough Exhibition opened on Wednesday. Largest and most representative group of young men and women ever to participate in the opening day; they boosted officials' hopes that this year would be the most successful in the entire history of the Exhibtion.

In (1) are the three Ontario Department of Agriculture officials in charge. They were caught by the cameraman at the conclusion of the first day's activities. Left to right they are W. P. Watson, Livestock Branch, Toronto; Frank C. Paterson, popular Peterborough County Agricultural Representative; and M. C. McPhail, Assistant Director of Agricultural Representatives, Toronto.

(2) Would you be well-groomed? The answer was given by these three girls of the Smart Stitchers' Club from Madoc, who put on a demonstration of how to be well-groomed before Home Making Clubs of seven counties. The demonstrations were under the direction of the Women's Institute Branch of the Department of Agriculture. Left to right are Gladys Aylsworth, Helen Whytock, and Edith Miller, all of Madoc. The girls were placed first in the inter-county team judging demonstrations.

(3) One young winner was Mary Whittington of South Monaghan, age 12, who won first prize in colt showing over a large field. Youngest entrant in the contest was Eleanor Bowles of Ida, age 7.

In (4) are two girls from Northumberland County with their leader. They tied for third place with a demonstration on "Clothes Closets Up-to-date," before 154 Home Making club girls. Left to right they are Irene Purle, Campbellford; Mrs. David Durran (leader), Campbellford; Margaret McCulloch, Campbellford.

(6)—Keen-eyed youths, trained to spot every fault in a farm animal, were on the alert yesterday as they vied for honors in judging competitions. Here are a group of them entered in horse judging for club members. The event was won by Harold Donaldson of R.R. No. 7 Peterborough.

Dealers' Car Supply Lowest Since '34

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 — (AP). —Reduced automobile inventories "provide a sound basis for increased production," Commerce Secretary Roper suggested to-day.

He said industrial reports indicating a decrease of 60,000 in the number of automobiles on dealers' floors in the United States during July and a prospective decrease of 80,000 in August would bring the average number of cars on hand to less than four cars per dealer, the lowest inventory position since 1934.

Roper discussed the automobile situation in connection with a report on world automobile statistics just completed.

The report showed the number of registered motor vehicles in the world was at a new record high of 43,078,630 on January 1. More than 30,000,000 of these were in the United States.

The survey showed further that 81.7 per cent. of all the registered motor vehicles in the world were American makes and that the average of United States cars in foreign countries alone was 39.6 per cent.

"We must bear in mind that today every farm family spends between $200 and $600 for the comforts of modern life. These comforts were not available twenty years ago, and the farmer has as much right to have them as the city dweller. In order to earn this extra money farms must be managed and operated very economically. The short courses which you are taking advantage of will fit you for this task, and will also give you a business training that should be of exceptional value."

His Position on Farm.

Hon. Mr. Dewan spoke of the advantages of living on the farm, and added that even though the farmer may be underpaid for his labor, he is in a much better position than the laborer in the city who may be thrown out of work at any time. "One can at least get a decent living on the farm at all times," he said.

He expressed delight that Junior Farmer activities had been existing in the Peterborough district since 1924, and each year had seen more growth and interest. He paid high tribute to the women who acted as local leaders in this work, and lauded the Department of Agriculture representative Frank Paterson and his two predecessors. "I am anxious to see the greatest possible advantage taken of the short courses and competitions, and I can assure everyone here that the Department will take every opportunity to give greater scope to these courses.

Among those at the head table were M. C. McPhail, assistant director of Department of Agriculture representatives; Frank Paterson, local Department of Agriculture representative; Tom Brown, president of the Exhibition Board; Miss Greta Pollard, Bowmanville, Homemakers' Club coach, Institute Branch; Miss Florence Eadie, assistant director W.I. Branch, Department of Agriculture, Toronto; Mac Gordon, Dominion Government hog grader.

Ted Hicks, Victoria County, sang two songs during the evening, and his rich baritone voice did full justice to the "Rose of Tralee" and "Trees." Community singing led by Mac Gordon was also part of the entertainment.

Miss Florence Eadie announced the various winners in the girls' competitions and told the audience that 154 girls had taken part during the day. She added her praise to the ever-patient, hard-working local leaders, and expressed satisfaction at the high quality of the work. Mr. McPhail named the winners in the boys' division, and extended his congratulations to the contestants.

Gestapo Nabs Briton Stirs London

Takes Serious View As Vienna Official Jailed

LONDON, Aug. 19 (CP Cable).—Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador to Berlin, has been instructed to inform the German foreign minister the British government takes "serious view" of the arrest of Captain Thomas Kendrick. The British government expects a "full and speedy explanation."

Sir Nevile in an interview yesterday asked the German foreign ministry to let him have all particulars of the charge against Captain Kendrick, official of the British passport office in Vienna.

The ministry promised an immediate and full inquir. It was hoped in London representations made in Berlin would lead to his release.

Captain Kendrich has been the passport comptroller at Vienna for 13 years. He was arrested while motoring to England on leave.

Pressure on Rome

Meanwhile it was learned Great Britain was making stronger representations at the other end of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Sir Noel Charles, charge d'affaires at Rome, interviewed Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister, yesterday on instruction from London. He reminded Count Ciano of an interview Aug. 7 at which allegations of increased Italian supplies of men and materials for insurgent General Franco were drawn to his attention, and asked when London might expect a reply.

When that interview was first made public here it was stated it was unlikely Count Ciano would make a reply, that being the usual custom.

However, it now is evident Britain is insisting upon a reply based on Rome's investigation into the accuracy of the allegations.

Held In The Metropole?

Capt. Kendrick was believed held in the Hotel Metropole, secret police headquarters of Vienna. In foreign office circles here there was some speculation as to whether he might have been arrested because he granted more British visas to Austrian Jews than the German government considered discreet.

Another suggestion was that he might have been held because his passport gave him his wartime rank of captain and he had failed to convince the German police that he was not on active service.

Grabbed On Way Home

British reserve officers were warned last week they had to have special certificates to "avoid trouble" if they go to Germany, which forbids for-

Budge In Finals

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 19—(AP)—Don Budge, rated as the world's best amateur tennis player, today gained the final round of the Newport Casino tournament by defeating Frank Parker of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-3, 6-1, 6-3. Budge has been the victor here twice and another triumph would enable him to retire the tourney's historic bowl.

Budge and Parker, Canadian singles champion, played from the baselines most of the match, but Burge's slicing placements were too much for his steady rival.

Mystery Call Leads Police To Boy 8, Chained By Leg In Yard Of Filth

Sudbury, Ont., Aug. 19.

AN EIGHT-YEAR-OLD boy was discovered chained by the ankle in a backyard "filthy as a pig pen" here late Tuesday, police reported yesterday. No charge has yet been laid.

The heartbroken child, held by a heavy 12-foot chain to a big timber, was found by police when they answered an anonymous telephone call summoning them to the address. When they arrived there, they were informed nothing was wrong but the faint clanking of a chain in the backyard attracted their attention.

When police went out to investigate, the fair-haired child burst into tears and crawled back against a woodpile. The father was ordered from the house and at once released the boy. Father, boy and chain were taken to police headquarters.

The father told police he chained the boy up to keep him at home. The child said his father caught him two hours before they arrived and chained him up because he thought the lad was going to runaway and break windows. The child said he had been chained up several times before.

65 Die, Hundreds Wounded In Two-Day Battle With Holy Land Arabs

Irish Guards Ambushed At Sharon, British Warplane Crashes As Terrorists Retreat To Hills

JERUSALEM, Aug. 19 (CP).—A fresh clash between Great Britain's Irish Guards and Scotsmen of the Black Watch and an Arab guerilla band today brought the casualty list for two days of conflict to 65 dead and hundreds wounded.

Today's conflict occurred on the Plain of Sharon and followed closely Thursday's skirmish on the outskirts of Acre. The two days' fighting was the heaviest the Holy Land has seen in the current disorders which became serious July 5.

Sixty Arabs were killed—50 near Acre and at least 10 in the Sharon fight—and hundreds wounded in the two engagements(while five British soldiers lost their lives. Thirteen Britons were wounded.

The Sharon fighting started near Kalkilyeh, an Arab centre, when a patrol of the Irish Guards was ambushed and a British army motor-truck damaged when it passed over a land mine.

Detachments of the Black Watch joined the skirmish after the Guards had deployed and wirelessed for aircraft and other reinforcements.

One flying officer and one aircraftsman of the Royal Flying Corps were killed when a plane, answering the call for help, crashed near the scene of the battle.

Single Reliefers Rallying For Trek

TORONTO, Aug. 19 (CP).—Unemployed have been converging on Toronto in recent weeks in preparation for a march on Ottawa, the Toronto district labor council was told last night by Talbot Walker, president of the Toronto single unemployed men's association.

The statement was made incidentally in a discussion of the plight of single unemployed men, when one council delegate asked why so many unemployed men were to be seen around Toronto now.

Council decided to ask Premier Hepburn to replace single unemployed men on the relief rolls.

Jersey Exhibit Surpasses C.N.E. Entries

When the Roslyn Park Farm's senior sire was awarded first place in the opening class of bulls three years and over in the judging of Jersey cattle at the Exhibition Park this morning, a group of visitors from Galt and Woodstock in all probability had to restrain a strong impulse to toss their hats in the air.

It was the first local victory of a comparatively new herd of Jerseys that is being built up around some notable imported animals from the Island of Jersey by W. N. Hancock and George Hancock of Galt, and in the openning score of first place in excellent company the Western Ontario man anticipated further cheering results before the judge, Professor G. E. Raithby, of the Department of Animal Husbandry at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, completed his work to-day.

Farming An Avocation.

W. N. Hancock is a lawyer who several years ago went into farming as an avocation, and is apparently one of the keenest breeders in the county with an enthusiasm for Jerseys that reaches out and includes his brother and friends. Mr. Hancock's last visit to Peterborough was to attend the funeral of the late R. R. Hall, K.C.

George Hancock, who is associated with his brother in the Roslyn Park Farms, has been a member of the Galt Public Utilities Commission for twenty years. Accompanying them were Harvey Hawke, chairman of the Galt Utilities Commission; John Allison, chairman of the South Waterloo Agricultural Exhibition; Leslie Herbert of Woodstock, and Douglas Thomson, a director of the Woodstock Exhibition. They were joined here by Ross L. Dobbin, manager of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, as a guide and host for a day when the Roslyn Park herd was engaged in virtually its first herd competition and against seven other herds that may be the largest and best class assembled any-

Urge Britain Begin Storing Empire Food

CAMBRIDGE, England, Aug. 19—(CP).—Establishment in the United Kingdom of a vast storehouse for Canadian wheat, other surplus Empire foodstuffs and raw materials was suggested to-day by Professor John Maynard Keynes as protection against starvation in event of war.

In an address before the economics section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, the distinguished Cambridge University economist, who is Food Storage Adviser to the Government, estimated the United Kingdom could store £500,000,000 (roughly $2,500,000,000) worth of goods at an annual cost of about £20,000,0. He mentioned specifically Canadian wheat, British West Indies sugar, Indian jute, Australian wool, West African vegeteable oils and various metals, including ding pig iron.

Dr. Keynes declare adoption of his plan would have a highly important effect not only on this country's war defences, but also on world trade generally.

Some experts say a successful blockade of only a few weeks' duration would bring Great Britain to the point of starvation, as most of her foodstuffs are imported. David Lloyd George, Prime Minister during the Great War, has said the country once was "within a few weeks" of starvation.

Two Drowned In River Above Nassau

Tragedy Witnessed By Two Men Who Were Fishing

The Otonabee River claimed two more victims Thursday night at 8.30 o'clock when Ferne Lambert, stenographer with the Peterborough Canoe Company and William Evans, mechanic at Hood and Cumming's garage, got into difficulties while bathing a short distance above Lock 22, the first lock above Nassau, and both lost their lives.

Apparently Evans was teaching Miss Lambert to swim when the accident happened. There is a stone ledge running out from the east side of the river at the point where the two were bathing and some thirty feet from the shore there is a sharp drop and the water deepens to about eight or nine feet. It is thought that the girl slipped off the ledge into the deep water and that her companion, tried to rescue her but failed and lost his own life in the attempt.

Evans' body was recovered at approximately 9.05, about half an hour after it had disappeared under the surface of the Otonabee and a squad of city firemen, directed by Dr. Murray Fraser, M.O.H., assisted by volunteer helpers worked for two hours in a determined effort to resuscitate the unfortunate man. They did not desist until rigor mortis had begun and Dr. Fraser declared that further resuscitation efforts would be useless.

The body of the girl was not located until shortly after ten o'clock after it had been in the water for an hour and a half. Dr. Fraser pronounced life extinct.

Saw The Tragedy

The double drowning was witnessed by Charles Carson, 484 Sherbrooke street and Bob Runnett, 273 Thomas street, who were fishing from the west shore almost directly across the river from the scene of the tragedy.

"We saw them come down to the shore in their bathing suits and go into the water," Mr. Carson stated. "The man was apparently teaching his companion how to swim and they were talking and laughing as he held her up while she swam. Suddenly we noticed a difference in the sounds from across the river, a sort of muffled cry that later we recog-

Clerk, Girl Quarrel So He Shoots Her

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. — (AP).—With priest at his side, John Bellinger, 33-year-old clerk, entered a police station early today and confessed the slaying of his sweetheart.

He told an astonished detective that a few minutes before he had shot Miss Joyce, 25-year-old private secretary through the back of her head with a sawed-off rifle.

He handed a leather briefcase to the detective. Inside was the gun. "I carried it around all evening," said Bellinger.

He thanked the priest, the Rev. Father Joseph Sheehan of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, for going with him to the police station, then was taken to Miss Joyces apartment.

There in the hall, in front of the door to her second floor apartment, lay the body of Bellinger's sweetheart.

Bellinger told police he was born in Brighton, England, that he came to the United States 10 years ago.

Last night he quarreled with Miss Joyce. Bellinger said he wanted to announce their engagement and Miss Joyce wanted to call their romance quits.

Thief Robs Detectives

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 19.—(AP)—A thief was among the visitors to the convention of the International Association for Indentification and, said Detective Robert Cooke, got away with four magnifying glasses and three devices for identifying cloth. The loot was part of a crime prevention exhibit.

Good Neighbors

President Roosevelt is seen driving to cut the ceremonial ribbon signifying with the friendly stroke of a good neighbor the formal opening of the new international bridge connecting Ontario and New York State, from Ivy Lea, near Kingston, to Collins Landing across the boundary. The entire atmosphere of this event of primary historic importance in the relations between Canada and the United States is reflected in the happy smiles of President Roosevelt and Premier W. L. Mackenzie King.

Roosevelt Call For Seaway Action Catches King Unprepared

Hepburn Speaks Up Says Ontario Will Not Consent

OTTAWA, Aug. 19 (CP)—Whatever President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King said to each other during their 25 miles drive together from Kingston to the Ivy Lea bridge dedication yesterday, the United States government leader, in his two addresses, left no doubt as to what was in his mind with respect to relations between his country and Canada.

Official Ottawa and the capitals of other nations were given fresh food for thought by the president's assurance in Kingston, when he received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Queen's University, that "the people of Canadian soil threatened by any other empire."

President Roosevelt put into words what has been the general impression here of United States policy with respect to the possibility of Canada becoming the victim of another power. In public statements Canadian parliamentarians have declared that one of Canada's safeguards, particularly on the Pacific, was the power of the United States.

Of more immediate interest to official Ottawa and particularly to the Ontario government, was the president's blunt appeal to Canada for action on the long projected joint development of the power and navigation resources of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River.

Oshawa, Aug. 19.

CYCLISTS WHO persist in riding bicycles without licenses will be issued summonses, the Oshawa police warn. During the past few weeks police have been stopping all riders of bicycles who have no licenses, and warning them that licenses must be procured. This has resulted in almost 500 licenses being issued.

Japs Prepare Million New Fighters

TOKYO, Aug. 19 (AP).e — Th Japanese Government acted today to make quickly available an estimated 1,000,000 more men for its fighting forces, as negotiations with Soviet Russia for settlement of the Siberian frontier dispute reached a new stalemate.

A new order by the War Office instructed all males in the recruit division, made up of men between 20 and 34 who have not received active training, to "stand by."

This was taken to indicate they might be called soon and that Japan was planning to throw huge numbers of reinforcements into what would be a grand drive to end the war in China.

The Foreign Office spokesman made known that conferences in Moscow and Tokyo had failed to reach agreement on selection of a joint commission to fix the Siberian-Korean frontier in the vicinity of Changkufeng.

After one month of diplomatic tension and bitter fighting at Changkufeng Hill, Russia and Japan agreed in a true on August 11 to name the commission o ftwo Russians and two Japanese to demarcate the frontier. Both nations claim ownership of the Changkufeng territory.

The Foreign Office informant added that all Japanese troops had been withdrawn to the south bank of the Tumen River, opposite Changkufeng, but that Soviet troops still occupied the top of the hill in violation of the truce.

Tribute Is Paid To Builders Of Exhibition

Hon. P. M. Dewan, genial Minister of Agricutlure officially opened the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition shortly after midday Thursday and in a brief but eloquent speech paid generous tribute to the men whose untiring efforts has built the Exhibition. At the same time he spoke in appreciation of the remarkable community spirit which prevails in the friendly and beautiful city of Peterborough.

Thomas Brown, president of the Exhibition Board whose sane judgment and business ability in the capacity of pilot has had a material effect in making the Exhibition a ranking Fair in the province introduced the Minister. J. J. Duffus, M. P. and Alex. Elliott, M. L. A. were with Mr. Dewan on the platform.

Industrial Exhibition

Mr. Dewan in his remarks said "I like agricultural and industrial exhibitions and I have added appreciation for these exhibitions when they are making progress and serving the purpose for which they are intended" Peterborough Exhibition is in this latter class and I am honored to officiate at this opening ceremony."

"My considerable association with Fairs and executives of Fairs has developed within me a warm regard for officers and directors who sacrifice themselves unsparingly in time and energy that their particular Fair may grow and prosper, and so Mr. President I commend you and your associates on your

Shriners' Picnic

COBOURG, Ont., Aug. 19 (CP).—Rochester and Toronto shriners as well as members of district lodges are holding a monster picnic and outing today, some 2,000 coming via car ferry Ontario No. 1 and the steamer "Dalhousie City."

The former boat has been chartered by Rameses officials and the latter by Damascus Temple.

This is the first time that Rameses Temple, Toronto, has joined with American shriners in a picnic here. Following a civic welcome by the mayor and council, the program calls for an afternoon of sports.

A family in which six brothers and sisters are receiving old age pensions has been found in Wales.

Huge Surplus Of Power —Hepburn

Lays Ontario Plight Upon King, In Fighting Seaway

TORONTO, Aug. 19 (CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn told Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a letter today the Ontario government opposed the proposed St. Lawrence waterways project on "economic" grounds.

The letter was sent less than 24 hours after President Roosevelt urged at the opening yesterday of an international bridge at Ivy Lea across the St. Lawrence, the early development of the river by the United States and Canadian governments to provide increased electric power and shipping facilities.

Mr. Hepburn's letter said:

My Dear Prime Minister:

Sometime ago you sent to me a copy of a communication addressed to your government by the Department of State at Washington, having to do with the St. Lawrence waterways project. The communication was read with considerable interest but as the document itself was addressed to your government and you forwarded a copy to this administration without comment and inasmuch as ample time has elapsed now for you to give sufficient study to the problem, I would like to know what your policy is, if any, and should you have a policy, what proposal have you to submit to this government for consideration.

Huge Surplus On Hand

Insofar as power requirements are concerned, the fact is well known to you that Ontario has an ample supply for many years to come—indeed, a huge surplus—for which it must pay and receive no benefit. This unsatisfactory condition would not obtain at this moment had you granted us, when you had the opportunity, the right to export this surplus at a profit which would have enabled us in turn to grant a further reduction in rates to the power con-

Conant Upholds Cadis Against Labor Attack

TORONTO, Aug. 19.—(CP)—The same consideratioJn should be given by Ontario magistrates to the basic civil rights of citizens as to the mine owners of Northern Ontario, the Toronto District Labor Council urged in a recent letter to Attorney-General G. D. Conant protesting against New Toronto's so-called "padlock law."

That letter, with the Attorney-General's reply, were read before last night's council meeting. Council referred to many magistrates as "political appointees," to which Mr. Conant replied that appointees traditionally could not be influenced by political or other considerations.

"We have always insisted and must continue to insist that this shall be the case and it does not assist in the upholding of this precept to suggest the contrary," Mr. Conant said. "The independence and impartiality of our own judiciary are the best guarantees of our liberties, including the right of free speech and assembly."

Every German Under Call To Practice Air Defence

BERLIN, Aug. 19 (AP) — A new German regulation provided today that all Reich citizens may be drafted for civil air defence training.

Men who have served in the army were included. The purpose of the order is to augment membership in the air defence league which trains Germans in performing specific duties in case of air raids.

Because of the inadequacy of other accommodations, school-houses in many districts have been commandeered to house reserves called for drilling in fundamentals and modern military advances preliminary to participation in the biggest military manoeuvres since Great War days, next month.

All trips to the Rhineland, sponsored by the Nazi "strength through joy" workers' organization, were cancelled because of the preparations. Excursions were scheduled for other sections, away from the French-German border area.

All available horses and other means of transport were requisitioned. Entirely new arm units were being established for the reserves (who, it was reported, may number as many as 1,000,000 men) instead of absorbing them into regular army units which under the German system are kept always at full strength.

Such a setup was said to make it possible for them to move into action overnight.

Albino Blueberries Latest Oddity Around Porcupine

Timmins, Aug. 19.

Bill Masicotte, local barber, paid a visit to the Drinkwater pit section this week and came across two patches of berries with all the characteristics of the ordinary blueberry except color. The fruit was almost completely white, odd berries having a trace of red near the stem.

In taste and texture they were identical with the large areas of blueberries in that area. Masicotte brought home a liberal sample to substantiate his find.

Cobb Does 300 m.p.h. In Salt Flats Test

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Aug. 19 (AP).—John Cobb of England streaked across the desert today in a test run of his low-slung silvered Railton speedster at a top speed of approximately 300 miles an hour.

Capt. George E. T. Eyston, who also is here from England to attack his own world record for the measured mile, set the present mark of 311.41 miles an hour here last November.

Boarder Joins Family Spat, Held After Farmer Dies

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 19 (CP)—Robert Findlay was held in jail here today as a material witness in the death of Kenneth Colville, 25, farmer near Algonquin, six miles north of here, who died following a quarrel in his home last night. Findlay lived with the Colvilles.

The story, as gathered by provincial police, who arrested Findlay, was that Colville and his wife were quarrelling and Findlay intervened. Colville dropped to the floor and Findlay called a doctor who pronunced Colville dead.

There were no marks of violence on the body. Findlay and the doctor notified the former's uncle who called police.

Findlay was then taken into custody as a material witness.

Police said there would be an inquest and a post-mortem. Findlay will appear before a magistrate in the morning.

Colville is survived by a widow and two infant children.

Find Woman Gassed

TORONTO, August 19—(CP). — Breaking the window of a vacant Montrose Avenue house in Toronto's west-end, a policeman crawled through and found the body of an unidentified woman on the kitchen floor early to-day. The woman had died of illuminating gas poisoning.

Constable James Sockett went to the house after a next door neighbor Ronald Boyd, told police he smelled gas. Occupants of the house are out of town. The woman had been dead for about 12 hours.

Body Of Youth Identified Through Verses

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 19.—Verses penned under the heading of "Some Mother's Boy," and widely circulated by R. A. Dean, clerk of the village of Norwood near Peterborough in the hope of identifying the remains of a young man drowned in the mill pond there on July 28, were the means solving the drowning. The young man is Gordon Cady, aged 19, son of Mrs. Barbara Cady, 87 Fifth Avenue, city, whom she had last seen four days before the drowning.

Mrs. Cady read the verses describing the dead youth and the contents of his pack. Mention of a silver wire found in a stiffened arm, convinced her that she was reading about her own son. She wrote at once to Mr. Dean and received further description of a flowered shawl, a large affair, which Mrs. Cady had given her son when he left home and which definitely confirmed her suspicions.

Gordon Cady was the only son of Mrs. Cady and the late William Cady. Since leaving school he had worked in various places in the city and county. He was quite capable of taking care of himself, and being of a roaming disposition, had set out in search of work. Correspondence is now being carried out between Mr Dean and Rev. J. M. Laird to investigate the practicability of bringing the body home for burial.

The identification has ended the Norwood authorities' long effort to ascertain the identity of the youth. The radio and newspapers in the district had published descriptions of the youth and his possessions, and the final effort in verse was sent out by Mr. Dean with a request that it be used in the hope of ascertaining the identity of the dead youth.

Medicos Lay Health Insurance Plans

SUDBURY, Ont., Aug. 19 (CP).—Canada's medical associations have a compulsory health insurance plan prepared and will co-operate to bring it about as soon as citizens and governments are ready for it.

Dr. W. A. Jones, of Kingston, president-elect of the Ontario Medical Association, told a district meeting of doctors here yesterday the medical profession in Canada does not want to institute such a scheme, but would co-operate in organizing it when governments and people are ready.

Better a Parachute

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 19 (AP).—If you want to try parachute jumping, be sure you have a parachute. That was the advice Albert Brewer, eight-year-old negro boy, gave friends today. Albert was speaking from experience. Yesterday he climbed to the roof of a barn, then, grasping an imaginary parachute, Albert jumped. On the way down a ring on the index finger of his right hand caught on a nail protruding from the side of the barn. His finger was skinned to the bone.

Mine Strike Ends

RUDA, Poland, Aug. 19 (AP).—Three thousand coal miners ended a 48-hour hunger strike in protest against wage cuts today and pulled down their black flag inscribed "Hunger occupation strike until victory." Most of the miners' demands were granted.

Missionary Dies

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 19 (CP)—Rev. Frederick Wood, 70, retired missionary with long service in India, died last night at his home here. Born in London, England, he came to Canada at an early age and when 19 years old was accepted for service as a missionary in India by the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States and occupied a pastorage at Bradford, Pa., for eight years, moving to Montreal and finally to Brockville.

William Gaskin Car Winner On Second Night

Bill Gaskin, 378 George street south, stationary engineer, and employed in the steam plant at the C.G.E. Company, is a happy man to-day. He held the winning ticket on the second Chevrolet car given away last night at the Peterborough Exhibition, and was driven home with his wife in the new car, which he now must learn to drive.

The grandstand was jam-packed with an overflow record-breaking crowd, but when the number was drawn and posted, Gaskin, who had been sitting with his wife, scrambled through the crowd and presented his ticket before the timers had started to clock the five minute time limit. The ticket was No. 491702, and Mayor James Hamilton made the draw.

Gaskin does not own a car, can't drive one and can never remember having won anything in a draw before. He refused to get into the car until Dick Lush, asked Mrs. Gaskin, through the microphone, to come down out of the crowd and the lucky couple drove away with the cheers of the crowd in their ears.

Roosevelt Call

was apparently unprepared for the president's frankness. He hastened to express appreciation, at the bridge dedication, of the president's assurance of United States interest in Canada's sovereignty. But he would not comment at once on the references to the St. Lawrence project, other than to say he "deeply appreciated" what President Roosevelt said.

Only a few months ago President Roosevelt submitted a draft proposal as a basis for resumed negotiations with Canada for a St. Lawrence agreement, but there has been no action.

Hepburn Snags It.

In Toronto, Premier Hepburn of Ontario, chief opponent of the project, was quick to react to the President's words. He said plainly that the power was not needed and that Ontario would not consent.

The draft treaty submitted by the United States envisioned the completion of a 27-foot deep seaway from the Atlantic to the head of the Great Lakes by 1949. An international commission would develop plans and advise the governments.

Ontario's demand for more power from Niagara Falls would be met by providing that water diverted from the Albany River basin in Northern Ontario would be considered Ontario's property at Niagara Falls.

The 1932 treaty, subsequently rejected by the United States Senate, the estimated additional cost to the Dominion of the International and Canadian sections was $38,071,000. Canada would be given full credit too for her expenditures on the Welland Canal, already capable of handling ocean-going ships.

Unofficial comment in Ottawa on the President's interpretation of United States attitude toward Canada's safety from invasion was definitely indicative of the belief his assurance should not be allowed to delay in any measure the Dominion's own efforts toward preparations for defence.

Possibility of greater co-operation between the two countries in defence measures was seen here, involving possibly, construction of the often mooted highway through British Columbia connecting United States with her Alaskan Peninsula.

There was also the possibility raised that the President's remarks might tend to hasten or at least favorably influence the negotations now proceeding in Washington for a new Trade Agreement between United States and the United Kingdom, and for a revised trade agreement with Canada.

Speeding Up Arming

In the past 18 months Canada has sped up the modernization of her defences. The non-permanent militia has been reorganized. Much mechanization has been carried out. Canadian factories and workers are being prepared for production of machine guns and other war implements.

Speculation arose as to the distance United States would go if Canada were involved in war because of her affiliation with the British Empire. It was assumption, however, that President Roosevelt was referring only to actual invasion, or threatened invasion, by a foreign power.

Generally the President's words were taken as a new interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, hitherto understood to apply only to the American countries south of the border.

The Monroe Doctrine, in brief, Pledges the United States to the attitude that any act of aggression against an American country will be considered as an act of war against the United States.

It is considered possible Mr. Mackenzie King will make some reference to the President's statements when he addresses a Liberal party picnic at Woodbridge, near Toronto, Saturday afternoon. He is not expected to return to Ottawa until next Monday.

Czechs Offering Sudetens Political Plums

PRAHA, Aug. 19 (CP).—Premier Milan Hodza today disclosed the Czechoslovak government would give choice political positions in an attempt to pacify its autonomy-seeking Sudeten German minority.

The premier made the disclosure in a conference with Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator in the troublesome minority issue. It was announced in a communique issued by Lord Runciman's staff.

Lord Runciman's conference with Hodza followed his meeting for the first time yesterday with Konrad Henlein, leader of the 3,500,000 Nazi-supported Sudeten Germans. Some quarters believed their interview might have found a way for softening the Sudeten Germans' insistent demands.

Seven postmasterships in larger communities—including Bodenbach, Asch and Rumburg—are to be given the Sudeten Germans.

From their ranks, it was said, also would be selected the chief of overseers—who directs public works—at Bruenn; district governors at Asch, Trautenau, and possibly other communities; and more employees of the railroad administration.

A member of the British mission said these were concessions of a "positive, specific nature which form a substantial basis for negotiations with the Sudeten German opposition."

The concessions were regarded as the first tnagible fruit of British mediation into the dispute between the government and the minority.

sumers of Ontario. It is the responsibility of this administration and not yours to provide the necessary power for our present and future requirements and in this respect we are fully cognizant of our responsibility.

Says Rails Not Improved

I have on various occasions ventured the opinion that the St. Lawrence Waterways Project could not be justified on economic grounds. Our interests are confined to power, but nevertheless as the keystone province of the Dominion, we are also interested in the Railway situation which has not been improved since you have been head of the administration at Ottawa. Until such time as you solve what is considered to be one of the major problems of Canada—that of the National Railway deficits—I cannot conceive how you could seriously consider spending public funds for the purpose of creating another public, competitive avenue of transportation which would undoubtedly have the effect of further increasing the deficits of the Canadian National Railways; furnishing a further threat to the security of the employment of the railway men of Canada; even to the extent of placing more people on our already overburdened relief lists; and endangering the very credit of the Dominion, the provinces, and the municipalities.

No Accurate Estimate

No one has yet been able to estimate with any degree of accuracy the cost of this entire project but I do know, according to a memoandum submitted to me by Dr. Thomas Hogg, chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, that under the old agreement Ontario was obligated to pay as its share a sum varying between $62,000,000 and $ 73,000,000,000 (not including the cost of interest).

Irrespective of any propaganda or squeeze play that might be concocted by you, you may rest assured that this government will resist any effort to force us to expend public funds in such an unwarranted manner or to foist upon the people of Ontario an additional burden of debt and taxation.

Yours truly,
M. F. HEPBURN.

Canada's First Mosque

EDMONTON, Aug 19—(CP).—Work started in Edmonton to-day on the first Mohammedan mosque ever built in Canada.

The structure, dedicated to the worship of Allah and the teachings of the prophet Mahomet who died in Arabia 13 centuries ago, will cost about $6,000, and will open in November.

There are about 2,000 Mohammedans (Moslems) in Canada, including 350 in Alberta and 150 in Edmonton alone, members here said.

where in Canada this year.

Certainly, the Peterborough Exhibition never before produced such a large showing of this breed. Directors reported 122 animals in competition, and it was stated that the entries for the Canadian National Exhibition in the class for Jerseys are less than 100.

Best Breeders in Canada.

The Jersey breeders whose animals went into the ring to-day are Alfred Bagg of Edgely, D. J. Begg of St. Thomas, J. W. Innis of Woodstock, whose senior bull was grand champion throughout the Western Canada circuit this summer; Silver Stream Farms of Richmond Hill, Roslyn Park Farms of Galt, Allan E. Hubble of Havelock, George W. Jarrell of Cannifton, and F. C. H. Bent & Son of Omemee. According to directors in charge of the dairy classes, and including also Arthur Brethen of Norwood, this large and outstanding representation of Canadian Jerseys surpasses by a wide margin anything Peterborough ever witnessed in the last twenty-five years of the Exhibition.

The Hancock brothers' sire that won the first class led into the ring to-day is "Patier's Valiant Oak," son of "Valiant King," winner of the first honors in the spring exhibition on the Island of Jersey last year. Several of the animals were purchased from Island breeders through Edmund Butler of Chester, New York, one of the oldest importers in America, and in that connection Douglas Thomson has had more than a friendly interest in the establishment of Roslyn Park Farms' herd.

W. N. Hancock informed the Examiner this morning on his arrival from Galt, with his friends, that his herd includes six importations from the Island of Jersey, delivered this year, and one that competed with high honors at the Island shows last fall. The junior sire was bought in the United States.

"I'm no gentleman farmer," W. N. Hancock said, "but I am a real lover of Jersey cattle. This herd is not merely a hobby. We have every intention of making it profitable, and to that end we felt we had to have foundation stock around which we could hope to build a herd for the future, and at the same time do our part in improving Canadian Jersey strains by buying a considerable number of our animals from breeders on the Island."

George Hancock intimated to the Examiner that the Galt-Woodstock party hit the trail for Peterborough, arriving about ten o'clock this morning, because they had a hunch the Roslyn Park herd was likely to encounter just as strong competition here as anywhere else in the country, and they were eager, if not a bit anxious, to see how their Jerseys stood up against the seasoned show ring stock of the other breeders.

"I think it speaks a great deal for the Peterborough Exhibition that you have such a group of Jersey cattle men showing here," Mr. Hancock said. "The herd is going on to Ottawa, Toronto, London, and the Royal. We have had a little experience with several of the animals in exhibition work last year, but the herd as a whole is going into action for the first time this morning."

Every farmer and most city people could imagine and share in the enthusiasm of the Hancock men and their friends, and also in their feeling that might be approaching tension as their exceedingly well selected Jerseys were led into the show ring. And that first victory will leave a warm spot in their memories for the Peterborough Exhibition. It may become for them the site of their first major "battle."

Three Britishers Killed.

One Irish Guardsman was killed and a sergeant of the Black Watch and four Guardsmen were wounded in the Sharon fight. Two British soldiers were killed and eight wounded at Acre.

The latter fight started after a heavily armed Arab band in the hills sniped at a column of the Manchester Regiment returning from a punitive expedition.

The British troops spread into fighting positions and sought to force the Arabs from their strongholds with repeated thrusting attacks.

British planes, flying low with their machine guns blazing, drove the Arabs deeper into the hills, while troop reinforcements pursued the scattered band. Planes bombed the Arabs' secondard positions.

The R.A.F. men killed were Flight Officer R. C. Waddell and Pte. R. Jennings. Pte. G. Griffith of the Irish Guards and Sgt.-Major John Currie and Pte. William Harper of the Manchester Regiment were the other British fatalities. Major G. L. Usher of the Manchester Regiment was among the wounded.

Edwards Brothers Win Trophy For The Best Herd Of Beef Cattle Shown at "Ex"

Edwards Brothers of Watford, breeders of Aberdeen-Angus cattle won the Bank of Montreal silver cup for the best herd of beef cattle shown at the Peterborough Exhibition this week.

For quite a number of years now Edwards Brothers have included Peterborough in their circuit, and their successes in the prize rings here and elsewhere across the continent, and also across the border, are followed by farmers of this district with considerable interest.

Their three-year-old bull added another grand championship to its notable string of such titles now numbering twenty-six, an outstanding performance for this young male of the bleck breed. The Edwards herd recently arrived in the east from the western circuit where it duplicated its prize winning of other seasons. Its greatest victory was the grand championship it won at the international livestock show at Chicago. According to the reports including this information the Edwards bull is valued at more than $7,500.

The Shorthorn class was considered the strongest ever seen here, and that comment did not overlook some of the herds of this breed that have been seen in Peterborough from time to time during the last seven or eight years. The competing breeders were John Gardhouse and Sons of Weston, W. E. Parker and Sons of Watford, J. E. Leask of Seagrave.

Add to them the Herefords shown by W. A. Crawford-Frost of Nanton, Alberta, C. Carman Lyons of Dutton, Ontario, Jeff L. Ashmore of Victoria county, O'Neill Brothers of Denfield, and also the Angus herds owned by Edwards Brothers and by the Windsweep Farms Limited of Sturgeon Lake, and the entire assembly of beef cattle will find few superiors at any of the other exhibitions elsewhere in Canada.

Inventor Claims Transatlantic Ship Is Foolproof

Travellers by air will in future be conveyed across the Atlantic in aircraft similar to this model, if plans of its inventor, Herman Kuhn, seen holding it aloft, materialize. Kuhn, 64-year-old German-American, calls it a "diriplane" and claims it is a foolproof flying machine, at the same time announcing the formation of the International Dirigible Airship Co., which he says will manufacture the airplanes and put them into regular transatlantic service. The new craft consists of a huge seaplane suspended from a helium-filled dirigible. There will be accommodation for 24 passengers and the safety factor is that the giant airplane can neither nose-dive nor sink.

Blame Rural Slums On Timber Grab

UXBRIDGE, Ont., Aug. 19 (CP)—Failure to reforest bushland in Southern Ontario is indirectly responsible for the development of rural slums as sordid as any city slums, according to E. C. Drury, former Premier of Ontario.

Removal of bush was responsible for the destitution of countless families settled on poor agricultural land where deforestation leads to the blowing away of the soil, Mr. Drury told a forestry dinner here last night, sponsored by York and Ontario Counties and the Ontario Forestry Branch.

The same cause was responsible for the drying up of streams and wells in many other areas, he said, and was to blame for miniature cyclones which periodically struck the Lake Simcoe and Lindsay areas. Such storms never started in districts containing forested areas.

W. P. Mulock, member of Parliament for York North, at nearby Ballantrae, earlier warned that Ontario would likely be faced with the development of dried-out areas such as the West now suffered unless reforestation was pushed.

Dr. G. J. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, cited Germany as an example in reforestation, where an acre had to be planted in forest for every acre cut, to the benefit of agriculture as well as the timber industry.

A Significant Address

When President Roosevelt of United States and Premier King of Canada met at the official opening of the new bridge across the St. Lawrence it was anticipated there would be speech-making. And when the visiting President received an honorary degree at Queen's University in Kingston it was known he would make suitable reply to the honor bestowed upon him.

President Roosevelt said something which will probably have been heard pretty much around the civilized world before this appears in print. The exact wording was this:

"The Dominion of Canada is part of the sisterhood of the British Empire. I give to you assurance that the people of United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

We are certain enough that President Roosevelt was not speaking for effect under the impulse of an impressive occasion. He was not moved by enthusiasm or oratorical desire to say more than he had intended to say. He was plainly stating the policy of the government of United States.

We hope the people of this country understand just what he did say and for that reason the exact wording quoted above is worth careful study. The President before speaking of the relationship between Canada and United States first paid his respects to the British Empire, placing Canada in the family of British nations and that is exactly what he should have done. He was not cutting any corners in that speech.

Nor was he patronizing this country when he said the people of the States would not stand idly by if domination of Canada was threatened by any foreign power. He was quite aware of the steps which we would take to protect our own country; he was not asking us to forget Britain and lean heavily upon the arm of United States. He was actually following a line of thought which has been given more prominence in recent months than ever before—the drawing together of the English-speaking nations for the protection and continued existence of the ideals and customs which these nations have in common.

The address of President Roosevelt was delivered in Kingston, Ontario, Canada, but it was one which we are certain was meant for world consumption and probably world warning

Going To The Fair

People who live in the city should go to the Fair, and they should go and see the livestock. If they do not know what it is all about then there are plenty of people around the place who would be only too glad to tell them. The person who knows nothing at all about the farm or farming would find it interesting to have things explained, and we have yet to meet the farmer or herdsman who has taken the trouble to produce show stock who is unwilling to talk about it.

The manner in which the younger generation on the farms of this district have taken possession of much of the Peterborough Fair is sufficient in itself to warrant all the time and expense spent on the event. On the first day the adult farmer was sitting in the back seat and the exhibition was in the hands of the younger folk. With all possible respect for the farmer of today, and yet even at the risk of hurting his feelings, we believe the sons are going to be better equipped than their fathers and the girls are going to know more than their mothers. And they should.

Visiting officials from the Department of Agriculture from the Minister of Agriculture on down readily admit that things are taking place right here which meet with their entire and enthusiastic approval. The work of organization and instruction which centres in the office of the county representative of the Department has been having its opportunity to come to the front and show just what has been taking place.

So we would advise the people in the city to go to the Fair. Go right away. Ask questions. Get acquainted with what the good folk in the country are doing.

Ticklish Time To Sell

The visible wheat supply in the world which can be considered available for export trade is computed to be 1,000,000,000 bushels. And of that total the world is expected to be able to use just about half the amount.

Canada is expected to have 300,000,000 bushels for export, and what is referred to in United States as a bumper crop will put another 400,000,000 bushels in the export class.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at Washington says he does not want to engage in any marketing scheme which is going to make for cut-throat competition with Canada. He believes that if the two countries enter the world market regardless of what the other is doing, and with nothing else in mind than selling as much as possible as soon as the selling can be attended to, then there will be a glutted market.

The suggestion is one which might at least be favorably considered. If the Canadian Wheat Board buys wheat at 80 cents it will have to sell it in the world market; the Board is not in any favored position regarding price. Whether United States and Canada could come to some agreement for what might be called orderly marketing is worth thinking about. There is no guarantee that such a scheme could affect prices to the extent of a cent per bushel, but it might be possible to keep from glutting the market and thus further depressing prices. Selling millions of bushels of wheat in a year when there are other millions of bushels seeking an outlet is a ticklish enough business. So Washington and Ottawa might at least talk it over.

Seems Right Enough

Mayor Ralph C. Day of Toronto has found that money voted for the use of supervised playgrounds is actually being used to teach elderly women how to dance. How to do the polka and how to waltz and hop about generally. The Mayor cannot see any sense to the plan and says it will have to stop.

Centralized governments such as municipal councils, provincial and federal ruling bodies have been doing so many things for the people within recent years that it may have been natural enough for some folk to take it for granted it would be quite right for public funds to be used for teaching them how to dance a jig.

We are satisfied the Mayor of Toronto is dead right when he turns his official frown upon adults learning how to dance with the general public paying the bill.

The average ratepayer today is doing sufficient dancing every day in the week, and he is called upon to put in some extra fancy steps on the day when he goes to pay tribute to those who sit at the seat where revenue is received. He works about 54 days in the year to square himself with the taxing authorities of the country and we are certain he should not have adults who wish to dance camping on his already bent back.

The Wheat Price

Reports from Alberta tell of meetings of executives of the C.C.F., Communist and Social Credit parties to consider what the farmers should do about making deliveries of wheat at the 80-cent price set by the Wheat Board. The feeling has been expressed several times that if deliveries are started immediately the creditors will rush in and ask for the proceeds of sales to satisfy debts. That is a matter which the provincial government could attend to by the use of the moratorium, but it should be reasonably used, because the payment of debt remains a useful and an honorable custom.

Apart from the announced fear of creditors the wheat growers consider the price of 80 cents for No. 1 northern wheat as too low. They want 87 1-2 cents, a figure which they cannot obtain from any grain buyer today. The Wheat Board will take delivery and guarantee 80 cents. If the wheat can eventually be sold by the Board for more than that then the growers will receive the increase. If the selling price is below the 80-cent mark then the Wheat Board stands to lose and the Wheat Board is actually the government of Canada. The government of Canada, if it were required to put up several millions of dollars in case of loss, would take the money from the consolidated revenue account into which the people of the Dominion pour their offerings in the form of taxation. So it actually means that the farmer in Ontario who is selling his wheat for 60 cents is called upon to stand behind the guarantee that the Western grower shall receive 80 cents for his wheat.

Counting Bacteria

The struggle to make the world safe for democracy does not cease. It has been extended to include the wading pools which are now established in most of our cities. Toronto has the habit of taking samples of the water from such pools, and scientific men whose business it is to understand and deal with such matters announce that the bacteria count in a cubic centimetre of water is indeed very great. A cubic centimetre is about the same as half a teaspoon, so if the bacteria count is high there then it would be alarmingly great in a bucket or a barrel, while the bacteria count in an entire pool would need the services of several mathematical wizards to make possible correct calculation.

It is said that children have the habit of sitting down in many of these pools and the suggestion is made that it may be necessary to scrub them with soap and water before allowing them to enter. It is also claimed the water should be chlorinated in order that the bacteria count or germ life may be kept in its place.

Probably there are folk today who are grown to a fair degree of adult age who must marvel at the way in which they managed to withstand the attacks of bacteria in times when science was less vocative in declaring the margin and extent of danger than it is today. In the village ditch along the roadside became a wading pool after a summer shower and it remained so until the laws of evaporation and penetration removed the small body of water. Broken glass in the ditch was regarded as a greater source of danger than the germ life which might be lurking in the muddy water. We dare say the bacteria count per cubic centimetre ranked high indeed.

At the swimming hole in Mud Creek we are willing to admit without argument or test that the bacteria count would have run to an alarming figure. The stream at best was sluggish, and in the dry season of July and August the water in the swimming hole would have run away if the law of gravity had made such movement possible. But the water stayed and we have no doubt the germs did the same. The blood suckers and the turtles and a form of water crab remained along with the germs; they formed a family which was not easily to be broken up or dispersed. Likewise when the youth of the community emerged from such water the bacteria count would probably run into figures which would have made the tax levy in the village and township look drab, small and insufficient. To have survived all that, in view of the light which science today sheds upon bacteria count gives one the comfortable feeling of having emerged from a place of great danger unbroken and unscarred.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Georgetown man reports seventeen tomatoes on one stalk. That looks like another triumph of centralization.

Eight-year-old Toronto boy has been found riding the rods. He probably feels that hitch-hiking is too sissified.

We knew the Dionne quints would get it in the neck some day. They are going to start to school on September 1.

What may start out as a first-class reason may turn out to be a second-rate excuse.

Thieves took 10 golf balls from a car in London, Ont., and it may be the car owner is the sort of golfer who knows where to look for stray balls.

Some people never have any luck. Ottawa man nursed a grievance for five years and then assaulted the wrong fellow.

It has been discovered that Toronto has no power to appoint a traffic czar. That is probably a good thing for the man who might have been unlucky enough to have been chosen for the job.

Toronto paper claims two of its staff were the first newspapermen to cross the new Ivy Lea bridge. Still the other newspapers will continue to publish, we presume.

Scarboro is erecting a cairn to the memory of its first reeve. Most municipalities would find it difficult to give the name of the man who first held the office.

Premier Hepburn was too busy to take part personally in the welcome to President Roosevelt. The public will feel that is it a shame to work Ontario's premier so hard.

The magistrate in Guelph says "young fools" cause a good many of the traffic accidents, and fathers in general may possibly roll that under the tongue and repeat it at the supper table.

According to custom prominent men gather annually at the grave of Sir Adam Beck in Hamilton and lay wreathes there. After which we once more proceed to manage Hydro much as Sir Adam never would have done.

Man in Montreal was taken ill while operating a lawn mower. We do not know if there was any special significance attached to the news, but it may be a handy thing for a husband to know about.

BRINDLE COW

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My brindle cow went to the fair, with happy and contented air, with pride within her eyes; I thought she was a pretty sight, was sure the judges too were right, they pinned on her a prize.

¶ We'd fixed her up a week before, we couldn't shine at her no more, with milk she filled a pail; we curled her and we scrubbed her too, till there was nothing else to do, we likewise combed her tail.

¶ And folks admired my brindle cow, they kind of took to her some how, said many pleasant things; they liked the easy way she stood, they knew I'd used her pretty good, they sang their praise in rings.

¶ The brindle cow perhaps has heard, and gathered up each honeyed word, I fear they've spoiled her now; when she gets home she'll have to learn, to stand aside and take her turn, be just a brindle cow.

¶ For even if she won a prize, she'll have to battle with the flies, she'll have to fill the pail; if she won't stand at milking time, I'll get a piece of binder twine, and tie the brindle's tail.

¶ She's had her spell of glory now, enough for any brindle cow, been washed and brushed and oiled; I hope it hasn't turned her mind, and that I'll get a shock and find—as how my brindle's spoiled.

A Certain Man Had Five Sons

(From the Argonaut, San Francisco)

A RECENT ISSUE of the Saturday Evening post contains an article entitled "The Rockefeller Boys," dealing with the family training and educational background of the five sons of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and so striking a picture is painted in this article of the success this famous father has had with his sons that a comparison with families of other men in equally high places seems inevitable.

Recalling the stern upbringing which the founder of the Standard Oil fortune gave his son, Mr. Fistere, the author of the article, says of the elder Rockefeller: "He would have given the entire fortune away rather than see it pass to a son who did not deserve it," and he makes clear that he is still the philosophy of John D., Jr. Each of the five sons has been reared in a strict almost puritanical atmosphere, yet the last thing any one of them would be called is a prude. Of course, because of their name, their slightest action is reported by the press, but although all the newspaper "morgues" contain large files on the sons, there has never been a night-club fight, or an encounter with photographers, or a divorce reported.

The training of his sons has always been regarded as a public trust by Mr. Rockefeller, for he feels, as his father felt, that the enormous wealth in the family's hands was mainly a Divine accident, and that the family was to be nothing more than a steward, taking care that the money would be spent "to further the well-being of mankind throughout the world." John D., Jr., according to Mr. Fistere, has "watched his boys grow to manhood with the same concern as his father watched him, and with the same conviction that only those of the five who proved competent to handle the responsibility of great wealth would be given it."

None of the boys has lost the common touch though all, in the words of Kipling, "have walked with kings." One of the principal things that was reiterated in the training of each was that they were no different from anyone else—indeed when the sons were younger their parents, by dint of small allowances and unostentatious living, prevented them from realizing that they were in any different circumstances than the average.

Comparisons were indeed odious, and Mr. Fistere is to be commended for not undertaking the obvious comparison of the Rockefeller family with the family that is referred to in the press as "America's First Family." But an article which appeared in the Post a short time ago, titled "Jimmy Gets It," and numerous other happenings which the newspapers delight in recording, indicate if nothing else, the extreme value of careful home training and guidance by parents who do not seek to transfer their obligations to servants.

WORSE THINGS THAN HOGS

(From the Huron Expositor Seaforth)

THERE ARE WORSE things in this world than hogs. Much worse things. But, of course, we are speaking of the animal variety.

In fact that variety of hog has been more than the farmer's friend all through the depression. It might even be said that hogs have been the farmer's salvation.

At no time since the bottom dropped out of the farming markets, and that is quite some years ago, has the hog slipped below the five cent mark. And that is a lot more than can be said about the comparative price of everything else on the farm, including the land itself.

And for quite some time now, hog prices have been steadily marching upwards. There have been periodical slips, of course, but on the whole the trend has been upwards.

Today there is money in hogs and the farmer who has them is lucky and knows it. He is being mighty good to his hogs, and mighty generous with the feed that goes into them.

As we say, there are worse things on the farm today than hogs—much worse. Not to mention weeds, there are the cattle. About a year ago this time, after a patient wait of some years, cattle prices took a real jump.

About that time some farmers made some money out of cattle too. But the opportunity did not last long. But by the time the rest of the farmers had replenished their cattle stocks, the bottom dropped out of the market again. And there they were. And what is still worse, it has been pretty much that way ever since.

Perhaps it will be that way with the hogs, too. By the time every farmer has a bunch to sell, there won't be any place to sell them. Farming is very much like that. But only a clever gambler can be a good farmer.

In the meantime the hog is king on the farm. And long and prosperous may his reign be.

HOPELESS QUEST

(Lethbridge Herald)

THE PRIVATE members of the Legislature are not being deceived. They know Mr. Aberhart hasn't a real winning trick in his whole hand. They know he is only playing for time in the hope that the 1935 luck will return. But it won't. Meantime, we are faced with two more years of chaos and incompetence, two more years of collecting Alberta taxes while seeking to prevent others from collecting just debts.

TWO MILE A MINUTE

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

A SPEED OF 125 miles an hour was attained recently by a London and North Eastern Mallard locomotive drawing a streamlined Coronation express. This is 11 miles an hour faster than any British train has travelled before.

The record was made between Grantham and Peterborough, over a distance of 306 yards, which was covered in just over five seconds. The train carried only engineers and staff, who were having tea during the test run; not a drop was spilled!

SO WHAT?

"Well, what if I haven't got a license? The magistrate said I wasn't to have one again."

Onions and Wild Carrots

One Place and Another in Western Ontario: Being a few observations of a scribe during that delightful season generally referred to as vacation time:

FOUND OUT THAT the old custom of putting a crouper on the neck of a steer which had the habit of jumping the fence could have disastrous results. There was such an animal on the farm of Jacob Fisher in Huron county, but the steer is there no more. After having the apparatus placed upon its stout neck the steer still contended it could jump a fence; what's more tried to prove it, Result was a broken leg, and the next result was that the beef ring in the district was presented with an anmial on which it had not reckoned.

Then to be housed in a small cabin in the bush. In a bush where oak trees had probably been standing for over a hundred years, where the beech was green of leaf and clean of trunk; where sufficient young maples were forging into growth to stock another bush of large size.

Then to sit at night and watch the moon fight its way through fleecy clouds. To watch the giant pines on the ridge bend as the wind blew them about and to think their great branches were like hands and arms that were always reaching out for something which they could hardly grasp, but under the urging of the wind they always kept on trying.

To find also that the sun by day beats hard upon the indoor skin and causes it to burn and become as a thing which blisters.

TO LEARN YET once again that the trucks set the pace on the highways. On the way to Toronto I drove behind three trucks and the one immediately in front had as a passenger a large and well ribbed sow. It was a fat sow and it looked out through the slats at the back as though it wondered where the trip would end.

Going up Rouge Hill the pace of the trucks decreased to 10 miles in one hour of daylight saving time. I stuck in behind the sow truck so long I think the animal began to recognize me as some one she had seen before. When the chance finally came to get away the sow looked as though she were parting company with an esteemed acquaintance.

✧ ✧ ✧

Then to attend an outdoor church service on a Sunday at Grand Bend on the shores of Lake Huron where Rev. G. A. Leichliter was the preacher for the day. Comes from Toronto but spends his summers at Balsam Lake. Packed house in the morning and more packed for the evening. Sunday evening there would be enough folk on hand to fill the body of most of our largest churches in the city.

✧ ✧ ✧

Would seem that a holiday at a summer resort would be no holiday at all without shorts or slacks for the girls and the ladies—for those who are tall and slim and for those who are short and more inclined toward rotundity. One does not need to go on a tour of search or investigation for the summer regalia rushes at you, comes upon you singly and in pairs and in larger numbers.

Even the casual observer would come to the conclusion that a bit of dress goods worked into the shape of a skirt would often enough improve the scenery.

Then to see a couple of grown men coming into a public eating place on a warm day dressed in nothing but trousers. And also to see three other customers walk out by way of silent protest. The quasi-naked men might have looked right enough if they were buffeting the breakers on the beach, but in a restaurant they looked nothing far short of crude and vulgar.

✧ ✧ ✧

Renting a bicycle at 25 cents an hour is popular at most of the Huron Lake resorts. People are learning to ride the things too. You see the wabblers along the road with some person running along the side offering assistance and desiring to make the rider gain a knowledge of the laws of gravity and of balance.

✧ ✧ ✧

PEOPLE GROW BEANS and onions to a greater extent in Huron county than most places. Several places, they were taking in the little white pickling onions. One grower was explaining he got nine tons to the acre while others producing larger onions were said to have been getting as high as 13 tons to the acre of ground. Was told it took a great deal of work and was inclined to believe the report. They brought the little onions in on large trays, then hand-sorted them and counted on the wind to blow a good deal of the dirt and stuff away. They were packing them in 11-quart baskets and each morning there would be another load ready. Most of the sales were made direct to the stores in towns and cities within a radius of 50 miles. The basket of onions brought 90 cents.

If you want to find out things get off the highways and drive on the side lines and concessions. Was doing that one day between Bayfield and Clinton and was not sure where the road went. Climbed the fence to where three men were having a conference over a binder. You never get snubbed when you go across a field to talk to a farmer, especially if you are not trying to sell him anything.

They were talking about their crops. The wheat had been cut and threshed and most of the mixed grain had been put through and they were starting on the oats but the knotter of the binder was acting kind of mean and miserable. That's why the farmer and his son and the man from across the road were having a conference.

Then to be listening to a recital of the dry spell through which they had passed and to hear "Since the 11th of June until a week ago Sunday we didn't have any rain." And that meant from the 11th of June until the first Sunday in August. Looked like rain plenty of times they said, but it never got around to it.

They didn't know there how much grain they were taking out of an acre of ground. "We just put it in the bins and pay the thresher $2.50 per hour, but the grain wasn't any too good this year. It was not plump. You couldn't expect much in a season when there were 54 days in a row without any rain."

OF COURSE ANY farmer would resent the suggestion that his chief crop appeared to be the wild carrot, but there are large parts of Middlesex and Huron where it looks that way. There are fields which are covered by it, plastered with it. Some of the farmers were telling me that when the sheep and cattle were turned in the crop seemed to lessen, but no one was at all certain that there was much food value in wild carrot, and all were ready to admit that it was taking moisture out of the land, and they would be glad enough to be rid of the pest if they knew how to go about it.

Finally to hear one farmer remark: "We have plenty of people out of work in this province. What would happen if the decree went forth that the province should be rid of its weeds. I don't think the farmers themselves could ever rid their lands of sow thistle, wild carrot and blue devil." And after looking over miles of the district one is inclined to agree with the opinion.—A.R.K.

• She Was Struck By Lightning

WINGHAM.— Mrs. Jacob Fischer, of Cranbrook, is actually "one in a million." She was struck by a severe electrical bolt last Wednesday night, with sufficient strength to paralyze her and yet she has every chance of recovery, although she has been confined to bed since then.

"I left my husband, Jacob, my son, Stanley who is 22, Mae who is 18, and Hartley who is 11, downstairs and went up to the bedroom. Verla was across the hallway and in her own room. This was about 8.30 when I decided to write a letter before going to bed and so I sat down on the side of the bed and had just started when I heard a terrible explosion. Then the room seemed to fill up with dust and smoke and I could hear the stovepipes falling down. All I can remember is being partly paralyzed and I screamed for help. There was a terrible pain in my legs as if they had been cut with a knife. Then my husband and children came to the room and I yelled something about taking me out of the room. When they reached down to pick me up, I went unconscious and after that I can remember very little until the doctor came and gave my arm an injection. It was the most awful moment of my life," declared Mrs. Fischer.

Husband's Story

According to the husband, Jacob Fischer, when they removed Mrs. Fischer to the kitchen she regained consciousness while they were taking her shoes and stockings off. The shoes were literally blown to pieces on the front. The lightning had come from the iron bed on which she was sitting, had run down her legs and then out through the front of the shoes. She screamed with pain as they tried rubbing her legs and feet and the flesh turned black. Even the marks of the shoe eyelets were burned into her skin. A son, Stanley, the oldest of the family, was dispatched to call the doctor as their own telephone had been wrecked by the same bolt as had struck Mrs. Fischer. He went to Hunters, and finding they were not home, he went on to Nobles, who drove to Ethel, a distance of five miles, and summoned Dr. Richmond. Dr. Richmond came at once and administered a hypo to quiet Mrs. Fischer's nerves. Since that time, Mrs. Fischer has been confined to bed.

As far as can be ascertained, the lightning bolt separated into four parts after hitting the chimney. It blew the entire top from the chimney and split it from top to bottom. One bolt knocked the pipes down in the bedroom and down through the kitchen ceiling. A second went through a door into an adjoining bedroom and then struck right through the wall, tearing a hole in it. Another tore in between the wall and knocking a piece of plaster down, it went out through the telephone and down the ground wire. The bolt which struck Mrs. Fischer hit the bed and after going down her limbs and out through her shoes, went down through the floor. A window in the front of the house was burst by the concussion of the lightning.

Visitors are streaming to the Fischer home, carrying off parts of the bricks that were scattered all over the yard and taking pictures of the shoes that Mrs. Fischer was wearing at the time. In the meantime, Mrs. Fischer will be confined to bed for some time.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

LET THE WICKED forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts. —Isiah lv, 7-9.

✧ ✧ ✧

For I know the thoughts that I think toward you, saith the Lord, thoughts of peace, and not of evil, to give you an expected end.—Jer. xxix, 11.

✧ ✧ ✧

Art thou not from everlasting, O Lord my God, mine Holy One? . . . Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity.—Hab. i, 12, 13.

✧ ✧ ✧

Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man. . . . Do not err, my beloved brethren. Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.—James 1, 13, 16, 17.

FEELING THE PINCH

(Chatham News)

JAPAN'S MATCHES are going to be shorter, hereafter — shorter by exactly 29 one-thousandths of an inch. Furthermore, Japanese housewives are going to have to get along without iron fraying pans; cotton clothing will no longer be on sale, and Japanese motorists will be able to buy no more than two gallons of gasoline a day. These odd little items are part of a new win-the-war drive. Japan gets most of her raw materials from abroad, and subduing the wily Chinaman leaves little cash for outside purchases. So the pennies have to be pinched. Shortening the match-sticks, for instance, will mean a saving of some $290,000 a year. Japan might as well declare war now for surely she realizes by this time she has a war on her hands.

THIS MACHINE AGE.

(New York World-Telegram)

THE HAZARDS OF life in the machine age increase daily, as the following sad incidents illustrate:

Guards and clerks in the Allegheny county pail at Pittsburg, Pa., wept at their work when accidentally crossed electric wires opened eight tear gas valves in the prison office.

Allen Hilton, 20, of Salt Lake City, arrested for driving 80 miles an hour, explained to police that he couldn't help it because "the fellow riding with me had his foot on the accelerator."

And Jean Kinder, 12, of Rochester, Ind., bending over to close the front of her blouse, caught her lip in the zipper fastener and had to be rescued by a doctor.

A Bit of Nonsense

JUST A HINT

After nearly an hour it suddenly dawned on a long-winded speaker that he might be exceeding his time. He turned to the chairman and asked him if he had a watch.

"No," came the reply, but there's a calendar on the wall.

Driver Cleared In Jackson Road Fatality

HAVELOCK, Aug. 1.— "No blame attached to the driver" was the verdict reached last evening by a coroner's jury sitting under Dr. Herbert Young of Peterborough, at an inquest into the death of Stanley Jackson, 47, of Marmora, who died on August 13 in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, from injuries sustained the same day when struck by a car driven by Leo Cleary of Hastings.

The jury, composed of H. Bruce Puffer as foreman, Walter Nobes, Alec Kennedy, Glenn Wright, Max Poste, William McAdam, Thomas Sarginson, Arthur King, William Platt, and William McBurney, after more than an hour's deliberation, returned the following verdict: "We find that Stanley Jackson came to his death in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, on Saturday, August 13, about 9.35 p.m., from injuries received when struck on No. 7 Highway between Marmora and Madoc about 4 p.m. on the same date by a 1937 Chevrolet car driven by Leo Cleary of Hastings. On the evidence submitted we find that death was accidental, and that from the evidence submitted we find no blame attached to the driver."

Evidence disclosed that Stanley Jackson, on Saturday, August 13, had been engaged on Highway No. 7, seven miles east of Marmora, throwing stone away from the centre of the road, following grading. About 4 p.m. that day Leo Cleary, driving east, saw Jackson at work some 100 yards distant and blew his horn twice. Jackson looking up started for the south side of the highway, turned back towards the centre, then started moving excitedly back and forth across the centre of the road. Cleary driving along about 45 miles per hour turned north to avoid the unfortunate man and applied his brakes, skidding some 69 feet, but could not stop in time. Jackson was struck down by the front of the car and dragged underneath the vehicle for a short distance. Other occupants of the car were Mr. and Mrs. V. Keogan and Miss McFadden, all of Hastings.

Harry Vansickle, truck driver, witness, appeared at the scene of the accident as the car came to a halt, and saw Jackson lying beneath the vehicle. Vansickle called for Bruce McInroy, road foreman, and then left to call the police and doctor in Marmora.

Dr. H. Crawford, summoned to the scene of the accident, said that he had the man taken to his home in Marmora, then later advised his removal to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough. There was no evidence of intoxication, he said.

Drive Slowly Signs.

Bruce McInroy, next witness, foreman of the road work, said that he had helped take Jackson from beneath the car and was present until he was removed to his home. There were two drive-slowly signs, he stated, about 4-10 mile west of the scene of the accident and another one mile west. There was also a "fresh gravel" sign about 1 3-10 mile west. A driver, he said, would have clear vision for 1,300 feet west and 800 feet east of the scene of the accident. Manley Lavender, truck driver, corroborated McInroy's statements.

Constable Danford of Madoc, who in company with Provincial Constable A. Dymond of Madoc, investigated the accident, said that both car and the injured man had been removed when they arrived at the scene. From marks on the road, he said that the car had been travelling well on the right side of the highway and that there were skid marks of 69 feet. He produced several photographs and a sketch showing the scene of the accident. Danford testified that he was with Constable Dymond when the latter questioned Cleary. The driver in his statement had said that he first saw Jackson on turning a bend in the highway some 400 yards distant.

Drawing closer the man had started moving back and forth across the road and he had applied his brakes. He estimated his speed about 45 miles per hour. A test of the brakes on Cleary's car showed them to be in good order. Cleary said that he had wished to remain at the scene of the accident, but that he could get no one to take the injured man to the doctor, and as he was bleeding badly he decided to take Jackson into Marmora.

Constable P. Grey of Marmora, who was also present when Constable Dymond was questioning the driver, corroborated Danford's statements.

Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield and Dr. Morgan of Peterborough, who performed the post-mortem examination, stated that death was due to shock and blood in the chest cavity caused from a violent blow. Four of Jackson's left ribs were broken in several places, and there were skin abrasions on both sides of his face, both forearms, back and his right ankle was badly swollen.

Blew His Horn.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Keogan and Miss McFadden, other occupants of the car, testified that Cleary blew his horn about 100 yards distant and applied his brakes when Jackson started to move excitedly back and forth across the highway.

The witnesses were examined by F. D. Kerr, K.C., acting Crown Attorney. W. B. Gordon acted as advisory counsel for Cleary.

Search Goes On In Georgian Bay For Body Of Dodge Heir

Dragging operations are continuing in the waters of Georgian Bay, near Little Current in a search for the body of Daniel Dodge, late heir to the automobile millions, who plunged overboard from the speedboat bearing himself and other members of his party injured in a dynamite explosion at the Dodge summer camp, to hospital at Mindemoya on Manitoulin Island. Mrs. Dodge, formerly Loreen MacDonald of Gore Bay, and the camp caretakers, Lloyd Bryant and Frank Valiquette, were also injured in the blast. Valiquette is shown (TOP LEFT) after his wounds had been dressed. Mrs. Dodge and Bryant, the latter most seriously hurt of the survivors, remain in hospital (pictured CENTRE). Alfred B. Wilson of Detroit (RIGHT), stepfather of the Dodge heir, arrived at Little Current to direct the search and offered $1,000 for recovery of the body. One of the tugs, using grappling irons and nets in an effort to locate the body in the Georgian Bay currents, is shown at work (BELOW). Sitting in the Dodge speedboat, moored at the Little Current dock, is Mrs. Bryant, wife of the injured caretaker who tended the injured on the boat dash for Little Current which ended in tragedy.

PETES REGAIN LOST GROUND WITH A 10-8 LACROSSE VICTORY

Petes Lucky To Defeat East Yorkers

Peterborough's O.L.A. senior "B" squad took a 10-8 league decision last evening in East York to regain the ground lost by their recent loss in Brooklin. The Petes were lucky to win last evening. East York having an edge on them in all-around play in the last half.

It was a speedy, exciting and clean contest most of the route, with both sides turning on the heat in every frame, dishing up all kinds of fine plays and earning few penalties. Peterborough players earned a good margin on the melee in the second quarter but had to battle hard through the third and fourth quarters to maintain the edge.

Graham got the first goal of the game and he was followed by McWhinney, former senior star, Bendy got one for the Petes and Miller tied the score on a pass from Crowe. Graham got another for the homesters, and then the Petes opened up to assume a good lead. Bowen notched a nice one, followed by E. Creighton Then Crowe countered smartly, after Loucks had taken a pass from Bowen for a goal. McWhinney fooled the goal to give the Yorks a nifty marker but Bowen got it back on Miller's assist. Davis slipped one in as the homesters threatened with a hard rally. Graham got another and then Davis took McWhinney's pass to dent the hemp. Prosser got a pass in close from Graham for a good goal but the Petes finished strong late in the final to take the nod. E. Creighton scored from Miller, Chute got another and then Reid wound it up.

All Go Good

All the Petes, who were minus several regulars, played a bangup style of lacrosse against their bolstered rivals. The work of Bowen, Crowe, Miller, E. Creighton and Chute was particularly effective. The best of the losers were the Graham brothers, Davis, and McWhinney. Penalties were drawn by Rinehart, Puncheon, Sinclair (2) and E. Creighton. The teams:

Petes: Goal, R. Creighton defence, Loucks and Miller; centre, Crowe; wings, Magee and E. Creighton; rover, Bowen; alternates, Chute, Sloane, wings, A. Graham and Pammett.

East York: Goal, Hayward, defence, Sinclair and Carr; centre, J. Graham wings, A. Graham and Prosser; rover, Rinehart; alternates, Puncheon, Wilson, Lindow, McWhinney, Davis, Hedley, Wallace and Barley.

Referee, Jerry Kendall.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

For some time past we have been under the impression that the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club was located on the corner of McDonnell and Monaghan Road but after last night we are forced to believe that maybe a good part of it has been transferred to Lansdowne street.... Our men's tournament will commence at 7.30 this evening, draw from the board....We notice that the draw for the ladies' club doubles has been made and is posted up in the clubhouse, also the draw for the men's doubles. In both of these contests, the players must look up the draws, as no further notice will be given. The men's games commence on Monday evening and the ladies on Tuesday afternoon.

Up at Bobcaygeon on Thursday two ladies rinks from our club back in the tournament. There were altogether 12 entries, Peterborough pairs finishing one-two.

First—Peterborough, kitchenware: Mrs. J. Cullen Mrs. H. McIlmoyle Mrs. E. Crowe Mrs. H. Hepburn, sk.

Little Harlem Ousts De Laval

Little Harlem last night at the Brinton Field eliminated DeLaval in the first-half Southend Softball League semi-finals in two straight, 19-6. Naish started for the losers but was knocked out in the sixth after allowing 16 hits all told for 15 runs. Wright relieved him and went fair, giving five hits. They had poor support. Dennie pitched good ball for the winners but was wild to walk eight, giving up 12 hits. Craig and Price hit homers for Little Harlem and Wiley and Pearson had three hits each for DeLaval. Dallin, Abbott and Pearson played good ball for the losers with McNabb, Craig and F. Maloney making neat catches for the winners. The teams:

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

DESPITE THE FACT THAT we park in with the starter and judges at the harness hoss races at the local Exhibition—and though fans frequently become impatient with false starts—our sympathies lie with the drivers. We don't blame 'em a bit for trying to get the jump on the other guy since everyone is trying the same thing in everyday business. And if a driver gets left in the rear of the field, it's going to take that much more out of his horse to get up with the leaders in a mile run. A couple of the heats in the two races yesterday at the Ex. were thrillers, whilst several more were more in the nature of a parade. But there are over 50 good trotters and pacers stabled here now for the three-day meet and every race should be a good entry of first-rate hosses. The 2.27 and 2.14 classes were on today and the 2.18 and 2.24 listed for getaway day tomorrow.

* * * * * * *

AS A GEE WHO ONCE dropped a few shekels on the running hosses and then switched to the harness pacers as being more entertainment and less worry, perhaps we are not a real authority on the bike-pullers. But we think the features of yesterday's races were the fine showing of Senator Peters, a local horse, driven by Chappy Chapman of Toronto, and the speed of the second heat in the 2.22 class. It was clocked in 2.10 and the track record is 2.08½. Senator Peters made it a parade in the 2.30 race and Margaret Dale of Weston took two firsts and a second in the other, with Widower Grattan getting a first. Still lots of Grattans around in the racing game, this clan apparently being a prolific and terrific family in in the county fairs' circuit. Jack Climie of Tillsonburg was starter and announcer with M. Storey and Lou Ferguson the judges, Fred Willshare timer and Dave Fleming clerk.

Clockmen Were Wound Up

WESTCLOX MEN SOFTBALLERS upped and 17-4'd Omemee at the Bowl last twilight in a round-robin playoff fray. No doubt envious of the Westclox gals winning the ladies' title the other night by a big score, the men winder-uppers at the Armour Hill plant decided to do ditto, which they did most decisively. Paced by Jim Ellis, who poled out a lengthy homer with the sacks clogged, as well as a double and single; and Dormer with four and Calladine and Curry with two apiece. Bateman twirled fair ball for the winners and Stevenson replaced Reeds in the third for the O's. The latter crew pulled off a nice triple play, but they couldn't hit in the clutches like their rivals did in two big innings early.

THE BIG BEWDLEY REGATTA is on next Wednesday, starting at two bells, fast time, with 22 events listed. They have men's single canoe, same for ladies, sea flea and hydroplanes, boy's skiff for 14 and under, ditto with gals, and mixed tandem canoe. There will be a single canoe for Indians only, and a 50-50-50 race, as well as boys' skiff closed, a tug-of-war with two to a canoe, and an outboard motor of 5 h.p. and under. Also the single gunwale, the boys' swim of 14 and under, the men's tandem canoe and the ladies' tandem. Not forgetting the swims for men and for ladies, double decking, dinghy race, tilting contest and speedboat racing. Should be quite an aquatic affair and ought to draw a big crowd.

Hoist That Big Brogan

BIG RUSS KITCHEN IS likely to get the twirling assignment for the Petes when they resume their playoff serial in Oshawa on the morrow. With Jake Biddle forksiding 'em across for the GM-men. And if Russ can get that No. 9 of his up about shoulder height on each pitch and keep up the pace he will be mighty tough to beat. Oshawa don't like him a bit and they are as worried over this series now as a guy coming up on a selling charge in court. But the Petes must press all the way, no letup, if they want to beat the Motor Citizens on the wide expanse of Alexandra Park tomorrow.

* * * * * * *

THOSE EAST YORKS, plus the starry senior McWhinney, gave the Petes an awful lacrosse battle last p.m. before bowing. Game was at East York and the visitors took a 10-8 decision but were rather lucky to win—especially as they were minus a few players. Still and all, we believe they fielded just as good a team as usual and the Yorks crowded 'em in the last half like a motorbike when you get hitting 60. Lots of speed and smart play shown in this game, but no fights. A nice clean contest for a change with everybody happy, though the losers didn't exactly break forth into beaming smiles at the conclusion. The Petes will now take a well-earned rest until Monday when they journey to Long Branch.

Help Yourselves, Huskies

WITH NO ONE GIVING us the authority, we will extend an invitation to prospective gridders for the senior Orfuns to attend informal drills at the Oval tonight at 6.30 and tomorrow aft about three. Official practises start at six Monday eve at the Exhibition Grounds and run nightly, but some of the huskies are loosening up this week, Curly Krug included, so why wait? New outfits are being measured up and are about ready for distribution now, but of course it'll take more than a good physique to fill one of these monkey-suits, oh yaas, indeedy! Besides wondering how many strange faces will fill up our grid horizon, we keep wondering who the coach will be here.

TORONTO STAR EMOTES: "Balmy Beach lost a fine footballer and the police force a promising young officer when Herb Hendrie decided to pack his duffle bag and hike to Peterborough. A new job with splendid prospects for advancement was the reason for the sudden shift on the part of the youthful snapback. Herb should help the new O. R. F. U. senior entry no end. He is a good centre in any man's league and has plenty of the old giddyap in his system. It seems those Petes are really going in for this senior rugby in a big way." And Reeve writes: "Peterborough got a good second defenceman for their football team when Herb Hendry walked off his beat in the direction of that city. He will play centre for the new entry and patrol the middle aisle of the defence. They also obtained a fine running back with the transfer of Curly Krug to Peterborough, a husky thickset fast-running fellow, Krug thrives on work and can knife through a line or start an end run with any halfback in the game. If they can dig up a kicker and a few more men like this, the Jackson-Cranfield entry will not be pushovers."

* * * * * * *

UP AND DOWN SPORTS' RIALTO: Lew Hayman believes the several grid rule changes this year will give offense a pull over defence and make the game more open. . . . Likely Dan Howley and Clyde Engle of Toronto Leafs will have their two-day baseball school here Aug. 29-30. . . . Next men's softball playoff at the Bowl will be Monday eve, Motorists playing Omemee. . . . Slip us the right standing, Secretary Max, eh?... Westclox gals have Ottawa here at six in Riverside next Wednesday in the first of the P. W. S. U. playdowns. . . . And they go to Ottawa the next Sat'day for one game or two, if necessary. . . . Herb Payne's Harlemites took a 19-6 win over Delaval last eve in a Southend Loop softball section playoff; tonight Leafs and Cogs clash at 6.30 in the Brinton Field. ...When do the midget lacrosse playoffs commence?. . . Nothing further heard on a proposed amachoor mitt show locally, but probably in Sept....Norm Worthy is limping around with a mighty sore leg; no doubt a lacrosse souvenir. . . . Summer playoffs and summer's end are approaching rapidly—and it won't be long for youse school kids, either!

Local Trotter Wins Ex. Race

Senator Peter, a Peterborough horse, took three firsts in the 2.30 Class yesterday as the three-day harness horse race meet opened at the Exhibition before a good-sized crowd. Leading home a field of 10 in each heat, the local colt, owned by A. Thompson of Peterborough and driven by "Chappy" Chapman of Toronto, was never seriously threatened. The time of the heats were 2.19, 2.17, and 2.19¼. Margaret Dale of Weston won two firsts and a second in the 2.22 Class, there being eight entries, with Widower Grattan, a Picton pacer, winning the other heat.

Several of the heats in the every-heat-a-race classes were keenly contested, while others saw the winner well out in front most of the mile trip. For the size of the fields little scoring was required and the races were concluded before the grand stand acts were finished. Stan Lowe is chairman of the Race Committee at the Ex., with Jack Climie of Tillsonburg the official starter and announcer. Judges are M. Storey and Lou Ferguson, with Fred Willshare the timer and Dave Fleming the course clerk. Following are the race results:

Stirling Rink Wins Top Prize

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 19.—At a mixed rinks tournament held here Wednesday afternoon, F. Mallory of Stirling was the winner of first prize for three wins. The event staged on the local greens attracted a somewhat smaller number of entries than were expected with only 12 rinks from Brighton, Belleville, Stirling, Warkworth and Madoc represented.

E. H. Greig of Campbellford captured the high score for two wins and A. Wragg skipped his team to a third place victory with high score for one win.

Wes Ferrell Wins Debut Honors In New York Yankee Uniform

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP).—King Carl Hubbell joined Lefty Grove on the sore arm list today, and New York Giants' pennant stock, like that of Boston Red Sox before it, hit the skids.

Hubbell, clubbed by Brooklyn Dodgers 5-3 yesterday, came up with an ailing pitching wing that may necessitate an operation. It will definitely keep him on the sidelines for at least a week or two, and may prevent him from taking his place on the firing line the rest of the year.

Somehow it seems hard to believe. Here are the two greatest lefthanders of their day, old squarepants and Old Mose—probably the most feared pitching pair in the game in last six or eight years—and both shelved in the same month. Grove's arm went "dead."

There are many who don't put the screwball ace among the all-time southpaw greats. He never had the stuff or the blinding speed of Grove. But he has playing "brains"; he has been the Giants' meal-ticket for at least five years; he has pitched them into three pennants in that time, and he has a competitive temperament, a coolness under fire, never surpassed in any sport.

Helped Bill Terry

And consider, too, that he and Melvin Ott, the "heritage" John McGraw handed down, have made manager Bill Terry look like a "genius" ever since the terrible one took over the reins from the old man.

Meantime the Giants are five games back of the Pirates right now, and with the season past the two-thirds mark, every day that deficit lasts makes the Bugs' chances surer

Fortunately for Terry's Terriers, their setback yesterday didn't send them farther in the hole, for the Pirates absorbed a 5-1 drubbing at the hands of St. Louis Cardinals and Lefty Bob Weiland's four-hit flinging.

Nine Games Ahead

The Yankees, despite a doubleheader split with Washington, saw their American League lead stretched to nine full games when the second place Cleveland Indians (and Bobby Feller) had their ears pinned back 9-1 by St. Louis Browns. Wes Ferrell, making his Yankee Debut, outclassed his ex-mates for a 6-5 win in the 11-inning opener. Harry (the castoff) Kelly tossed a six-hitter for a 6-3 decision for the Nats in the nightcap.

Throughout the big league program, good pitching abounded. Buck Newsom's three-hitter featured the Browns' win over the Indians, enabling the Brownies to climb into a seventh-place tie. Jim Bagby turned in a thre-hitter and the Red Sox whitewashed the Athletics 2-0. Paul Derringer allowed seven hits, chipped in a homer himself, and the Cincinnati Reds ripped the Cubs 9-1. Long George Gill's eight-hit effort gave the Tigers a 5-1 verdict over Chicago White Sox.

England has issued a booklet giving postal rates and services in Esperanto.

U.S. PROS TIE AT 67 MARK IN CANADIAN OPEN GOLF SERIES

Californian Ranks Next Opening Play

TORONTO, Aug. 19. — Two unattached United States professional golfers, who pooled their resources and motored together to Toronto to become post-entries in the Canadian open golf championship tournament at Mississauga Club, were sharing the lead with scores of 67, five under par, when the first day's 18-hole firing died down after sunset last evening.

These room-mates, whose flashing, brilliant strokes created a colorful finish on the palette of an opening day that was a record-breaker in more than one respect, are Gene Kunes of Philadelphia, who won the Canadian open crown at Montreal in 1935, and Ed. Oliver, of Wilmington, Del., who made a very fine showing in last year's Canadian classic at St. Andrew's Club.

The big field of 167 was being led late in the afternoon by two top-ranking stars—Sam Snead and Paul Runyan—who only a few weeks ago battled it out in the final of the United States P.G.A. tournament. Snead, the long-range expert, and Runyan, master of the short game, had tied with scores of 69. And, since Old Man Par had been doing considerable chortling all day along the Credit River while a host of great players failed to break or equal his figure of 72, those scores of 69 had appeared to be pretty safe.

Late Starters Get "Hot."

Then, as the shadows began to pattern the greens, word spread around that three lads still out on the course were "hot." They were Oliver, Kunes, and Bill Williamson, the latter a former caddy from the Glendale Club of Los Angeles, Cal., who had hitchhiked his way to Toronto after having competed last week-end in the open tournament at Cleveland, O.

Williamson, whose young brother was caddying for him, went out in 33 strokes, lowest first nine holes of the day, but eased up to a 37 on the homeward journey. However, the plucky lad's 70 put him very much in the picture. Only four entrants have lower scores.

Oliver was first among the late starters to post a 67. He was warm enough when going out with a 34, two under par, but he steamed up more coming back with a 33, three under perfect figures. That looked very much like the score that would take medalist honors when Kunes missed the eighteenth green by a wide margin with his approach shot. But he chipped from near the roadway to within five feet of the pin and then ran down his putt to equal Oliver's 67. Kunes was out in 35, one under; then he really turned it on coming back with a 32, lowest second nine of the day.

Only three strokes off the hot pace set by the stocky, 22-year-old Oliver and the slender 29-year-old Kunes, and just one stroke back of Runyan and Snead was a quartette in the 70 bracket. They were Bill Williamson, Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N.J., Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., and Sid Brews of South Africa. Brews got and earned a big cheer when he tinned a putt of about 50 feet for a birdie on the home hole. This is Brew's first trip to Canada and the

Cruiser Reports

Anxiety had been felt for the party aboard the cruiser because of a four-day storm whipping the lake. Whitcomb advised the boat would continue on to Goderich, about 80 miles east of here.

HART TAKES OVER

LONDON — (CP). — E. A. Hart, former English and Leeds soccer player, has been appointed player-manager of Tunbridge Wells Rangers today, temperament and all. He has saved diligently, even painfully, ever since he joined the Indians 10 years ago. During his whole major league career he has been a "loner." He never has made friends because by nature he is shy and suspicious. He never has gone in for social pursuits, that is, if it cost anything. Even when he was drawing a salary of $15,000 or more with the Indians, he lived in "reasonable rooms."

Impatient Over Errors.

He usually worked with bonus clauses in his Cleveland contracts. This made him especially impatient with infielders who kicked away ball games (and bucks) for him. He had plenty of opportunities to display his disgust when he was with the Indians, because that club has had several infielders who just kicked away games by habit. That isn't saying they wouldn't have been willing to boot one away for Ferrell now and then, for it is a fact that his mannerisms engendered dislike. No ball player who has muffed a chance likes to see a pitcher tear his hair in public, and try to make him look like someone who got into the park by mistake.

One of his favorite tricks has been to walk off the mound without warning when he became dissatisfied with the way things were going—a sort of Max Baer of the major leagues. Roger Peckinpaugh suffered some loss of prestige among the Cleveland fans because he let Ferrell get away with this act a couple of times. If John McGraw had been Ferrell's first manager, the whole story of the young man's life (he's still only 30) might have been very different.

Cronin Had a Try

Joe Cronin tried to handle him at Boston by slapping him a $500 wallop right on the hip—and Cronin told me afterward that Ferrell had to pay that one, too, but that Tom Yawkey gave it back to him during the winter. It is significant that Boston, needing pitchers in the worst way right now, made no effort to acquire Ferrell when Washington cast him adrift. Let the Yankees have him! That was Cronin's attitude. Joe has all the headaches that he can use, with Lefty Grove's ossified arm, and the bones of other pitchers cracking all over the lot.

Still Ferrell may turn out to be a winning pitcher with the Yankees for a while, and that is probably all that Marse Joe figures on—the present emergency.

His effect on the morale of the team, however, even a team like the Yankees, eventually will be depressing. At least that's my guess, after following Ferrell's career very closely for 10 years. He was Cleveland's best pitcher, but Peck will bear me out when I say that he finally hurt the ball club. He was a good pitcher for Boston, too, but Joe Cronin will tell you that the Red Sox would have been better off if Cleveland had sent him to the Browns.

This is not exactly a letter of recommendation, but it's all we have to-day. Thank you. Come again!

Westclox Men Beat Omemee

Westclox men banked out a 17-4 playoff decision over Omemee softballers at the Bowl last night before a fair-sized crowd. Hard hitting with good twirling and fielding in the clutches gave the Hayden gang the nod in easy fashion. Bateman was reached for 14 hits, fairly well scattered, and one walk as he fanned three. Reeds gave 11 hits as he fanned one before being replaced by Stephenson in the third. The latter allowed seven safe blows and two walks while striking out two. The O's f[illegible]ng was poor.

Dormer led [illegible]our hits as Ellis got a long h[illegible]h bases loaded and a double [illegible] single. Calladine and Curry had three hits each with O'Leary getting two and Gainey a double. For the losers, Brockley had four bingles, with Weir getting a triple and single, Williamson a double and single, and Parsons and Stephenson two hits each. Good fielding was shown by Brockley, Pogue and Weir of Omemee; and O'Leary, Calladine and Dormer of the winners. Omemee pulled off a triple play, Stephenson to Hehill to Brooks. Feature catches were turned in by Pogue, Brockley and Gainey. The teams:

Score by innings:

Omemee	110 001 001—	4 14 3
Westclox	808 000 10x—	17 18 3

Ferrell, Any Pilot's Headache But His Wins Rather Helpful

Defeats Old Mates 6-5 In 11 Frames

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The luck of Wesley Cheek Ferrell is holding up rather well, don't you think? Canned by Washington, rejected by Cleveland and Boston, the temperamental curver from Carolina can't do any better for himself than sign up with the ball club that is leading the American League! No sooner had Ferrell been dismissed by the Senators than Pitcher Joe Vance of the Yankees came down with appendicitis.

Marse Joe McCarthy needed a pitcher immediately, for the Yankees were about to ride pell mell into a series of double-headers. And there was Ferrell, winner of 13 games for the Senators, while losing eight. Marse Joe probably figures that he can stand for a lot of temperament if Ferrell can win for him.

Still Got Plenty.

He may be not far wrong about Ferrell's pitching possibilities, for though Ferrell's fast one has gone away, he is a crafty workman who still can fool a lot of batters throwing a ball up there that has nothing on it but a trademark and some seams. Ferrell steps up a whole lot in rating, too, when there is money on the line, and there will be some coin at stake in every game the Yanks play from here on in—the hope of a world series pot. That is right down Ferrell's alley.

Ferrell is probably the most astute business man in the major

WES FERRELL

His temperament has been the bane of more than one manager's existence . . . and his pitching the support of more than one ball team. How will he fit in, mentally and physically, with Joe McCarthy and the New York Yankees?

Bob Weiland, Cardinals — Held Pirates to four hits for 5-1 win.

Manager Joe Consoles Pitcher Joe

It was a case of "one man's meat is another man's poison" when Joe Vance, recalled by New York Yankees from the American Association to bolster a weakened pitching staff, was stricken with appendicitis. With Vance unable to play, the Yanks signed Wes Ferrell, shortly after he was released by Washington. Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager, is shown visiting pitcher Vance in a New York hospital.

No Surprises In 3rd Round For Ellis Cup

TORONTO, Aug. 19 (C.P.). — Singles play started to-day in the Ontario lawn bowling tournament with entries so numerous the matches were divided between two Toronto clubs.

Play went into the fourth round to-day in the Ellis doubles, with no surprises to match the defeat yesterday of Hall and Liberty, skip and vice-skip of the St. Matthew's Toronto four that won the Gold Cup. Dunbar and Roberts of the Toronto Monarch Club defeated the favored pair by 14-11.

C. Norris and T. Mead of the Balmy Beach Club put their club in the lead for permanent possession of the Willison Doubles Trophy yesterday when they defeated Dr. E. A. Carleton and Dr. H. G. Carlton of Stirling, Ont., by 22-14. The Stirling pair had some good ends, but never threatened the Toronto team's lead.

Meade and Norris won their way to the finals in a close victory over Brown and Perry of Ottawa, 14-11.

Four Ottawa rinks were eliminated from the Ellis doubles during the first day's play. Cannell and Burgess of Ottawa lost 12-10 to Wheeler and Baillie, Toronto stars; Palen and Grills of Ottawa bowed before the skill of McCrae and Vellans of Windsor 17-4.

Pitching—Ruffing, New York, 16-4.

Barn Roof Blaze Brings Three Threshing Gangs

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, August 19.—Excitement ran high in this neighborhood on Monday afternoon when the farmers were congregated at the farm of Willis Whiteside busily engaged in stook threshing. The telephone alarm sounded the news that the barn of Gordon Robinson, a brother-in-law of Mr. Whiteside, living on the Wright farm a few miles west, was on fire and help was needed. Immediately the men jumped in cars and made haste to the scene of trouble arriving just as the fire had been brought under control.

Art Bailey of Cartwright, a thresher of good repute, was doing the threshing at the Robinson barn when in some unaccountable manner a spark lit on the roof of the barn and had made lively headway before noticed. Only the very creditable and speedy activity of three young men, Norman Wilson, son of Mr. George Wilson and Carlyle and Cliff McGill, sons of Mr. Roland McGill, saved the building from total destruction. Norman rushed with water to the inside of the barn where the blaze was breaking through, while the two brothers soaked the outside blaze and thus saved a serious situation.

Soon after the gang from the Whiteside farm arrived another truck load of men with a tank of water arrived from the neighboring farm of Russel Kerr where threshing operations were going on with Kerr brothers' machine.

The excitement subsided and all three threshing gangs speedily returned to their work which was again interrupted before six o'clock owing to a heavy downpour of rain. Such is life on the farm in a busy season.

Poor Yield Of Alsike

Alsike threshing is completed for this year in this neighborhood with a comparatively small yield per acre owing to the extreme difficulty experelnced by farmers in harvesting this crop in a season of frequent rains.

The majority of the grain crop is still in the field although cutting has been completed. While wet weather is delaying harvesting considerably, the pasture land is in thriving condition and farm stock enjoy grazing on pastures which have been so mercilessly parched during the past two summers. Root crops are also looking splendid. Farmers are preparing ground for fall crops of wheat and rye when weather conditions will not permit harvesting.

Miss Lynn Harper of Port Perry, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harper, has been engaged to teach Lifford school for the coming year.

Mr. Grant Real, also of Port Perry has accepted the vacancy at the neighboring school at Fleetwood.

Both teachers hold first class certificates and come very highly recommended.

Ready For Antarctic Voyage Of Exploration

Ready to sail on a voyage to the Antarctic during which her commander hopes to explore the Enderby quadrant, least explored section of the south polar regions, is the ship Wyatt Earp. Noted explorer Lincoln Ellsworth will head the expedition and he expects to be joined by Sir Hubert Wilkins, himself a famed polar explorer. The expedition will use an airplane and a veteran Canadian flier, J. H. "Red" Lymburner, formerly of Dunnville, Ont., goes as chief pilot with Ellsworth. The Wyatt Earp is pictured as she was prepared for a previous exploration cruise and Commander Ellsworth is shown in CENTRE. At LEFT is Pilot Lymburner and at RIGHT, Sir Hubert Wilkins.

Discovered In Field Bomb Injures Lad

TORONTO, Aug. 19 (CP).—Watkin Roberts of Toronto said today provincial police should immediately investigate a bomb explosion east of Kingston which injured a Toronto student and in which his own son narrowly escaped.

"I think the public is entitled to know how a dangerous bomb came to be lying in an open field across which pedestrians and autos were constantly passing," he stated.

Bonar McLeod, 18, Toronto high school student, showed a large, half-healed wound in his left arm and a scared shoulder which he said resulted from the accident. He added that one eardrum had ben split by the blast which brought cottagers to their doors from summer homes on Lake Ontario.

"I was lucky," said his companion, 15-year-old Paul Roberts. "I moved away from Bonar when he went over to examine the object he found in the field. I was 30 feet from him when it blew up. But I felt a blast of air go past my head and it deafened me for a minute."

The injured youth said he had lit a fuse attached to the bomb and the blast had followed.

nized as a call for help. When we looked across Evans seemed to be standing up as if he were still in shallow water and then his hands went up and the two disappeared."

Carson and Runnett had no boat so they ran down the west bank to the dam and crossed over to the east side, notifying Albert Russell lockmaster at Lock 22 of what they had seen. Russell grabbed a life buoy and ran to the scene but by that time there was no trace of the missing bather. Carson went to the power house at Nassau and telephoned in an alarm to the fire hall.

Help Is Secured

Within a very short time a squad of firemen were on the scene and Dr. Murray Fraser, and Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton had arrived and Provincial Constable Silvester reached the spot later. A boat was procured and soon after Fireman Bill Sorrie and Joe Drummond located Evans' body and it was brought ashore. At once the prone method of resuscitation was begun by Firemen John Masters, Bill Sorrie and Ed. Wigg, aided by volunteers including Len Quartermaine, of Toronto and William O'Neill. Hot water bottles were applied to Evans' body and the effort to revive him was kept steadily up, with the workers relieving each other at frequent intervals. Flashlights and lanterns supplied the illumination.

Meanwhile a second boat had been obtained and manned and the search for the body of the girl, the only clue to whose identity at that time was her name in a spectacle case found in Evans' car, was continued. Several times the searchers were near success but it was after 10 o'clock when James McGrath, James Parsons and Bill Clapper finally located the body about 30 feet from shore and close to where Evans had been found. It was brought ashore and placed on the bank alongside of the workers who were still striving to revive a sparke of life in the body of the girl's companion.

No attempt was made to resuscitate Miss Lambert as she had been in the water too long to justify any hope of success. The battle to save Evans was however continued for a long time after the girl's body had been found. Finally, however, the effort was reluctantly abandoned as hopeless.

Both Well Known

Both victims of the double tragedy were fairly well known. Evans had been a garage mechanic here for a considerable period and for the last two-and-a-half years had been in the employ of Hood and Cumming. He is survived by a young son living at Warsaw.

Miss Lambert's home was in Bobcaygeon where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lambert and one sister, Mrs. Clive Tully reside, while another sister is Mrs. Marcus Dean of Selwyn. The girl had been employed by the Peterborough Canoe Company for a considerable time some years ago and later had worked for the Gordon Boat Company in Bobcaygeon. Early this year she returned to Peterborough and was again employed by the Canoe Company. She was boarding with Mrs. Allison at 634 George street. Miss Lambert was 35 years of age while her companion was around 40.

Calves Go Up 50 But Hogs Lambs Drop

TORONTO, August 19—(CP). — Trade was dull on the moderate cattle supply with prices down 25 cents on weighty steers and about steady on other killers on the Toronto Livestock Market this week, the Dominion Livestock Branch reports.

Calves opened active and fully 50 cents higher and held the gain for the balance of the week. Hogs opened steady and closed 50 cents on the week while sheep held to previous price levels throughout.

Fresh cattle receipts included 1,300 from the West, mostly stockers. The carryover from last week was 700 head which was reduced to 300 or so by the end of the week. Stockers sold fairly actively at steady prices. Top price for weighty steers was $7.35 for a choice load, with others selling from $7.25 downward to $5 cwt.

Good butcher steers and heifers brought $6 to $6.25 with a few light steers up to $6.40. Common butchers ranged downward to $3.75 cwt. Cows were steady at $3 to $4.25 for butchers and $2 to $2.75 for canners and cutters.

Good butcher bulls opened at $4 to $4.25, and closed at $3.75 to $4 with bolognas from $3 to $3.50. Fed calves were steady at $7 to $9.50 according to quality.

Feeders Up to $5.50.

Common to medium quality stockers traded from $3.75 to $5 cwt, and a few good feeders, averaging around 900 pounds, ranged up to $5.50. Milkers and Springers were steady at about $65 for tested tops. No cattle were shipped off the Toronto market this week for export to Great Britain or the United States.

Choice veal calves opened at $9 to $9.50, with occasional tops at $10. Common vealers sold downward to $5. Grassers and drinkers moved from $4 to $4.75.

Off-truck bacon hogs started at $10 and firmed to a range of $10 to $10.15 on Tuesday and Wednesday, closing at $9.50 with only a few long hauls going a little higher. Sows sold generally at $6.50 off-trucks for both grades.

Sheep and lamb receipts were moderate. Good ewes and wether lambs were down at $8.50, with bucks at $7.50 and culls at $6.50 to $7. Sheep sold steady at $2 to $4, according to quality. One car of lambs from Alberta was sold at $7.75 for killers and some other fat Western lambs were received at the packers' sidings.

good work and the fine community spirit which you evince in carrying on. Last year your Fair showed a slight surplus under trying condition including the paralysis outbreak.

Fairs have a high educational value particularly to the farmers. No farmer worthy of the name can attend an exhibition such as this without returning to his home with renewed inspiration and a determination to do better and perhaps emulate the achievements of the winning exhibitors. The social and cultural values that accrue from association which arise from Fair work are decidedly worthwhile.

I am keenly interested in the strides you have made in Junior Farmer Work. We cannot lend too much encouragement to the youth from the farm. With you this work I understand experienced fifteen years of development and I am told that in this connection it is most fitting to pay tribute to the late Mr. Shields, Holstein breeder, the late William Knox and to our good friend Vivian Milburn, at present of the Ontario Milk Producers Association of Ontario.

"For this year I wish you success in every quarter, and I trust as the years pass your Fair will prove increasingly worthy of the ranking which it now has.

Keep Midway Clean

Above all things may I respectfully beg of you at all times to keep your midway a model of cleanliness and innocent amusement. This I am determined that all Fairs must do if they are to receive Provincial support.

Gestapo Arrest

eign soldiers to travel over certain border areas.

Kendrick was arrested Wednesday when he crossed the border at Freislassing, Bavaria, en route to England with his wife, for a vacation. He was returned to secret police headquarters in Vienna, but Mrs. Kendrick was permitted to go to her home in Vienna.

It was surmised Kendrick's route might have been through frontier territory and areas designated for German military manoeuvres. Another theory was that Nazi officials did not appreciate Kendrick's jokes and political annecdotes for which he was known in English and American colonies in Vienna.

He worked hard, sitting at his desk 15 hours daily for weeks when hundreds of Austrian Jews sought visas at his office, but he found time to participate in social gatherings of the British colony in Vienna, where he is popular.

The propaganda ministry spokesman in Berlin confirmed facts of the arrest and said, "It must have been for very serious reasons of which we have not yet been informed."

Customs Men Get $400,000 Haul

United States treasury department agents, noticing a mysterious launch tie up at a Brooklyn, N.Y., pier, investigated and found waterproofed sealed cans of opium hanging from the back of the ship. Other bags were fished from the river. The value of the dope is estimated to be between $400,000 and $600,000 and the raid is described as the largest seizure "made any place in the world in the last 10 years," by police officials. ABOVE are shown government men examining the "catch," while BELOW appears the tug and the equipment which held the dope cans dragged behind the ship by its operators.

Man Operates Hand Loom At Exhibition

To battle the depression William Dawson, 175 Dublin Street, has gone back to the pioneer days of Canada or to the days before the industrial revolution swept England and changed the lives of working people the world over.

At the Peterborough Exhibition, in the vegetable tent, Dawson has set up a hand loom which he made himself, and is turning out all manner of fabrics—suit lengths, drapes, bedspreads, afghans, luncheon sets. A victim of the depression, he is trying to solve his economic problem by returning to the days of his ancestors when thousands upon thousands of homes each had their spinning wheel and hand loom.

Those people of long ago were his ancestors in the strictest sense of the word. For he is an Englishman and his family for generation upon generation have been hand weavers. He started at the trade himself when he was only seven years old, and has been employed at it in some fashion or another from that time on.

From his mother he learned how to build a hand loom and he is operating one—with a few of his own alterations—at the Exhibition. A believer in the trade, he is teaching his own 7-year-old boy the trade. The boy, Kenneth, is operating a small loom beside his father in the vegetable tent.

The loom that William Dawson operates makes cloth a yard wide, is cheap to operate. Contrary to general opinion, the cost of hand-woven fabrics is not great, he said, for overhead is not nearly as high as in factories. His work is of the most intricate design, beautiful and strong as iron.

Dawson is proficient at his trade, can weave a yard of cloth every thirty minutes. His designs are his own, and no two are alike. At one time he operated the largest hand loom in the world at the Canadian National Exhibition, working for the Guild of All Arts.

Oshawa Girls Get Big Hand

Two talented little ladies making their debut in the world of professional entertainment stole the show in front of the grandstand at the Exhibition Ground Thrsday night. Eva Vickers, 12, ad her sister, Joyce, 10, sang and danced their way into the hearts of a record crowd that jammed every available bit of space in and near the grandstand.

The audience demanded a second appearance and even then indicated they would appreciate another act, bt the two little artists concluded the act with two curtain bows.

The girls danced a modern tap then sang and came back with an acrobatic dance act that was well executed. Their voices are rich and they harmonize well in the songs, while their costume and professional manner are both excellent.

The two got their start four years ago when they won first prize in an amateur contest at Ernie Marks theatre in Oshawa. Since then they have taken lessons from Toronto teachers and from their manager and tutor, H. S. Wilcox of Port Hope. This man is their uncle and old timers will recall him as a member of the dance duo, the Dancing Dunbars, who were headlined as leading exponents of the buck and wing and soft shoe dancing between 1908 and 1914, when the war broke out and Wilcox went overseas.

Streetsville Man Dominates List In Holstein Class Peterboro' Breeders Do Well

Herd Of 17 Cattle Wins Eleven Firsts And Six Seconds.

J. M. Fraser, veteran stock breeder of Streetsville dominated the prize list in the Holstein-Friesian division at the Exhibition yesterday afternoon when his herd of seventeen animals captured eleven first prizes and six seconds. Local breeders took their share of the prizes also the western breeder, Hays and Co., and Legault Brothers of St. Hermas, Quebec.

Hay and Company of Calgary, Alberta, showing at Peterborough Exhibition for the first time had 13 animals and took the grand championship, also reserve championship, three firsts and three seconds with minor awards. Legault Bros. with a herd of 17 garnered two firsts and six seconds. This also is the first time the French breeder has shown at Peterborough and both expressed much satisfaction at the fine reception afforded them and the facilities available for the stock.

Local Breeders Prominent

Norman W. McConkey, Joe Tully, Stewart Nelson and Matchett Bros. of the Peterborough district took many of the main prizes and Stewart Nelson's "Keendale Pontiac Chieftain" won the reserve junior champion ribbon. Peterboro' Builder Gets School Job

LINDSAY, August 19—F. Hickey, contractor, of Peterborough, has the contract for the erection of a three-story addition to St. Margaret's school, Kirkfield, conducted by the community of St. Joseph. The new addition will be completed before the school term commences. The attendance at this school comprises pupils in residence and day pupils. A high standard of education is imparted from public school to matriculation.

The section of the Lindsay-Newcastle highway running through Porter's Swamp, south of Linsday, is under water as a result of the heavy rainfalls of the past week. Several other highways in the township of Ops are also badly flooded.

Game Overseer A. Hodgson, after lying in wait all Monday night, arrested two Indians on Tuesday morning from the Curve Lake reserve. The two men were caught inside the Bobcaygeon game preserve with a canoe and fishing equipment, they had two bass in their possession. The equipment was seized and a charge will be laid by the Overseer. It is alleged that the Indians admitted selling bass in and around Bobcaygeon.

Champion Males

Senior and Grand Champion Bull—Hays and Co., "Hay's Taxpayer."

Mechanized Brigade Scheduled To Visit Peterborough Next Tuesday and Wednesday

Visit Promises To Give Citizens An Idea Of Modern Armaments.

Peterborough will have some idea of the fever pitch of excitement that comes to a city in a warring country when huge guns rumble up George street next Tuesday and Wednesday.

But their visit will be neither the triumphant entry of victorious troops nor the dismal retreat of the fallen. It will be a visit of courtesy, arranged by the local militia. The troops and guns will be enroute from Petawawa to Camp Borden and will halt briefly at the Armouries for inspection by citizens here.

Huge 60-pounders and the latest anti-aircraft equipment will roll up George street after entering the city by way of Highway 7 next Tuesday afternoon sometime between 3.45 o'clock and 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon. At the entrance to the city they will be met by Mayor James Hamilton and representatives of the Peterborough Garrison, and will be officially welcomed and escorted into the city. The units will be under command of Col. W. G. Hagarty, D.S.O., Officer Commanding the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, and Colonel of the Royal Canadian Artillery.

Two Batteries On Tuesday

On Tuesday the units will be the 3rd Medium Battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery and the 4th Anti-Aircraft Battery of the same unit. They will bring with them the largest guns ever to be seen here, and the anti-aircraft unit will carry with it the very latest equipment in protection.

They will proceed up George street to the Armouries and will halt, probably on Murray street, for a half hour before going on by way of Lindsay to Camp Borden for the manoeuvres there at the end of the week. On a close schedule, their visit here was arranged by officers of the local garrison as a special favor. It will be the first time in the city's entire history that a mechanized brigade has pounded over its pavement.

On Wednesday morning about 9 o'clock the second group will roll into the city by the route. They will be the Brigade Headquarters of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and A and B batteries. The guns will be smaller, but still large to most Peterborough eyes.

The visit of these units gives promise of a real thrill to residents of this city. The huge guns will be drawn by tractors, all men will be in full army uniform. The entire show will resemble for all the world the moving up of troops and guns in a war-tossed land.

OBITUARY

ANNABELL FERN LAMBERT.

Miss Annabell Fern Lambert, whose tragic death by drowning has shocked the community, was born in Bobcaygeon, but had lived in Peterborough for about ten years. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lambert, reside in Bobcaygeon, as does one sister, Mrs. Clive Tully, and another sister, Mrs. Marcus Dean, lives on R.R. 1, Lakefield.

The deceased was employed as stenographer with the Peterborough Canoe Company, and had made many friends in the city.

She was a Presbyterian in religion.

The funeral will take place on Sunday, August 21, from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Clive Tully, Bobcaygeon, at 2.30 o'clock, and interment will be made in the Verulam Cemetery, Bobcaygeon. Rev. Wm. McRoberts will officiate.

MRS ROBERT FINDLEY

The death of Mrs. Robert Findley, 418 Water street, occurred at her home on Thursday.

She was born in Londonderry, Ireland, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Harrighan, moving to this country many years ago. She lived in Picton, Ontario, before coming to this city twelve years ago. She was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Surviving are her husband, one son, Purcell Findley, of Peterborough, one daughter, Isabell Findley of Peterborough, and one brother in Ireland.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian church officiating. Interment will be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

BAD FOR THE BATS

BERWICK, England — (CP). — Ringing town hall bells here Robert Wetherburn was showered with charred pieces of wood. A beam supporting the five tons of bells was on fire.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

CASE ADJOURNED.

A charge of illegal possession of liquor against a local man was adjourned for a week when the case was called in police court this morning. The accused pleaded guilty at first and then asked for an adjournment and was allowed to change his plea.

FLORAL WREATH FEATURE

A floral wreath and stand, a beautiful design by Don Jordan, is a conspicuous feature of the flower show at the Exhibition. It was entered merely as a display, and not for competition.

BICYCLE DAMAGED

Frank Bell, 625 Union street, escaped unhurt when he was knocked off his bicycle in a collision with an automobile driven by Wilfred Galvin, 558 Gilmour street at the intersection of Park and McDonnel streets yesterday but the wheel did not get off so luckily, being damaged to the extent of $12.

GUIDE GETS TRIP

Henry Taylor, Jr., a Curve Lake guide is today enjoying a trip to Loraine, Ohio, as the guest of W. Ashbolt of that city. Mr. Ashbolt and party have been fishing at Chemong Lake and became interested in the young Indian. As a mark of their appreciation he was invited to visit Loraine as a guest of Mr. Ashbolt.

SWIMMER INJURED.

Cyril Clements of Park Street gashed his lower lip when he dove at Inverlea Bathing Beach and struck the bottom. It required four stitches to close the wound in his lower lip and one stitch for another cut on the upper lip. He was given first-aid at the beach before being taken to a doctor's office.

AN UNUSUAL SPECIMEN

H. Brinson, 102 Western avenue, arrived in the Examiner office today with an unusual specimen of insect which he found in his garden. It looked like a match stick with long legs and after pouring over a ponderous volume the staff decided that it was a sample of what is called the American stick insect.

UNUSUAL FISHING

Jack Stinson of Millbrook has the reputation of being a persistent and successful fisherman but never in his long career until a few days ago did he ever angle for a catch a member of the feathered tribe. He got his opportunity to perform this rare feat when a parrot escaped from the Wainman collection of unsual birds and perched in a tree. There was no way of getting the bird down until Mr. Stinson produced his fishing pole to cast a snare over the parrot and capture him.

MORE SEATS FOR GRAND STAND.

Taken unawares last night by the largest grand stand crowd in the city's history, Exhibition officials grabbed every available bench to place outside the fence. To-night they are taking no chances and assure everyone that there will be ample accommodation. Seats are being brought down from the Legion Hall and other buildings to form a section on the track immediately in front of the stand.

HUNDREDS OF CARS.

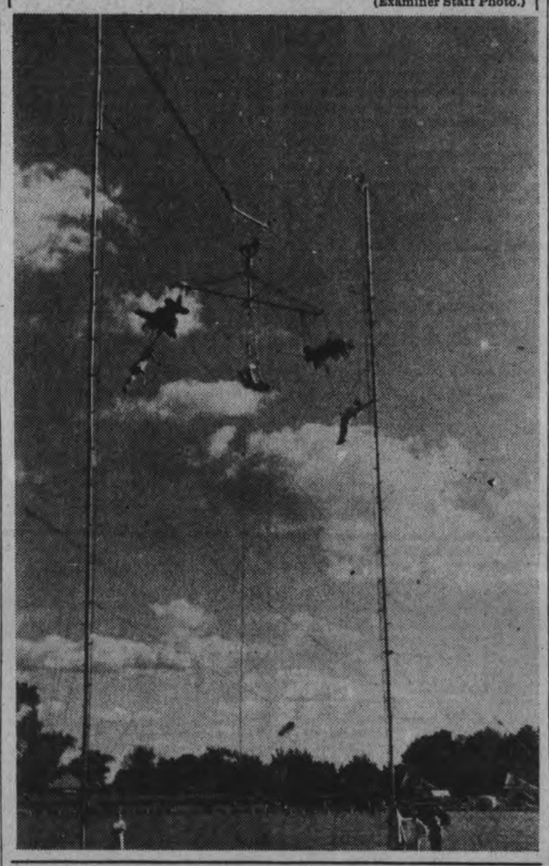
For the first time in the city's history every available bit of parking space from Romaine Street to the Exhibition Grounds was occupied last night. Every main street running north and south and all intersecting streets were jammed. Both sides of Romaine Street, which is four blocks north of the main gate were lined with parked autos, and after the grand stand performance was over the traffic stream upstreet was a steady line for more than two hours.

Reserve Seat Demand Heavy

Demand for reserved seats at Bond's drug store and also at the Exhibition office indicated that the attendance tonight might reach some five figured numeral perhaps as large as Thursday night's. The air carried a promise of ideal weather, Polly Ann held the band for an hour's rehearsal of new numbers after last night's performance, and it was likely that the total attendance for the day would bring the aggregate within reach for Saturday's final.

Some of the automobile owners who had to drive around south end streets looking for parking space last night commented that some of those who had preceded them showed a lack of consideration for others, by occupying more street margin space than they really needed. It was said that many other cars could be accommodated if the cars were parked more closely together.

Beautiful No artist could have provided as beautiful backdrop for the Flying Deteros at the Exhibition, as Nature herself did yesterday afternoon. Fleecy white clouds and a deep blue sky added a fairy touch to the spectacular act, performed 90 feet in the air, without safety nets. This picture was taken at the act's peak, when the male star is balancing, arms overhead, on a bar at the right. Should he slip or in some way lose his balance, he would plunge to certain death. (Examiner Staff Photo.)



Gambling Instinct Causes Boy To Repeat Trespassing Offense

The strength of the gambling instinct in humanity generally was effectively illustrated in police court this morning when three boys were charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., with trespassing on the property of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

One of them was one of a quartette who had appeared on a similar charge yesterday morning and who had pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $1.

Magistrate Langley uttered an exclamation of astonishment when he saw him again today.

"Why you were here yesterday morning," he said.

The boy admitted that he had been.

"And you went right back and did it again."

"Yes," admitted the youthful offender—and then gave the explanation.

"I only had a dollar," he said, "and if I had used some of it to pay my admission into the grounds I wouldn't have had the dollar to claim the car if one of my numbers had been called."

Adjourned For Week

Magistrate Langley decided to adjourn the case for a week, remarking that he wanted to consult with the boy's father. Two other boys similarly charged, pleaded guilty and one of them admitted that he had read in The Examiner of fines being imposed for climbing over the fence into the Exhibition grounds.

"And yet you went there and did the same thing," said the Magistrate. "Did you think you could trifle with the law?"

There was a week's adjournment in these cases, too. The boys had no money and the magistrate remarked that he did not want to send them to jail.

A similar charge against two other youths will also be heard next Friday. They had been released by the police to appear today and did not show up and summonses have been issued in their case.

Deny Any Extension Of Monroe Doctrine

HYDE PARK, N.Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt indicated today that no extension of the Monroe doctrine was involved in his address at Kingston, Ont. yesterday. The United States President arrived here this morning for an indefinite stay.

In his Kingston speech, the President asserted that the United States would not stand "idly by" if domination of Canadian soil were threatened by a foreign aggressor.

Newsmen at his informal press conference informed Mr. Roosevelt of reports that the state department in Washington interpreted his speech as an extension of the Monroe doctrine.

The President suggested that his questioners read the original language of the Monroe doctrine. He called attention to the fact that he had not said anything about Latin America in his Kingston talk.

Decoration Days Planned By Legion

Recognizing the fact that the passing years are taking their toll from the strength and vigor of the men who fought in the great war the officers of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion have made different arrangements for the annual Decoration Day ceremonies this year.

Graves will be decorated at Little Lake cemetery on Sunday and a week from that date St. Peter's cemetery will be visited.

The long march from the Legion Hall will be cut out. Instead the veterans will assemble at 2.30 o'clock at King Edward Park and start their parade from that point. The band of the Prince of Wales Rangers will supply the music. It is expected the service at the Little Lake cemetery will begin at 3 o'clock and the speakers for Sunday will be Mayor James Hamilton, Alex. Elliott, M.L.A. and Rev. George Easton.

Instead of placing flowers on the graves it has been decided to use artificial poppies in addition to the small crosses of remembrance used on other similar occasions.

CONSTABLE AT 80 YEARS

Five Under Par Runyan Leads Golfers

MISSISSAUGA COUNTRY CLUB, TORONTO, Aug. 19. (CP).—Paul Runyan of White Plains, N.Y., fired a scorching 67, five under par, taking the lead today among early finishers at the half-way mark in the Canadian open golf championship with a 36-hole score of 136. He scored 69 yesterday.

The United States professional champion equalled Mississauga's competitive record for the third time in two days. Gene Kunes of Chicago and Ed Oliver of Wilmington, Del., scored 67's to share the lead after the first round. They were late starters today.

In a commanding position when he teed off early today, Runyan reached the turn in 33, three better than perfect figures, and made the back nine in 34. His putt for a birdie and a record breaking 66 missed by an inch on the 18th green.

Not once over par, Runyan was so accurate with woods and irons that he was trying for birdies on nearly every hole. He had birdies on three of the four par-fives.

Members of the International Christian Crusade, a body of scientists are drawing attention to the crisis in religion that has come at last, for it is impossible that ministers should, without protest, be allowed as such to continue teaching the young when they declare that "God is open to criticism as any other author" and the "Bible as any other book". It can hardly be possible that such ministers can long go unchallenged by Christians at any rate. Why do these ministers continue in the ministry? No man could face a God he believes in and make such statements.

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

READ THIS FIRST:

Determined to show Dr. Julian Paige, the man she is in love with, that she can make her own way in the world, Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, burns her bridges behind her, moves to a rooming house, and, for lack of anything better, obtains a job as a taxi dancer at the Peacock, run by Nick Luigi. She is living with a girl named Laurie Evans, who is a cashier at the restaurant which Julian patronizes. Noel feels she has a dangerous rival in Ruth Chester, Julian's pretty nurse. At the Peacock Noel meets a young man named Chris Landers, who is far more refined than the other men she dances with. Then one night she is amazed to find both Chris and Julian waiting for her as she leaves the Peacock. Julian takes her home but he is angry, because Noel had failed to tell him where she was working and he doubts her sincerity.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 20

JULIAN hesitated when he reached the car after Noel had called to him. Then unexpectedly he turned, and came back to her where she stood on the porch.

"All right," Julian's voice came coolly, "what is it you want to say?"

Noel drew a quick breath. Now that she had been given another chance, to convince him, she must not fail. "I know it probably does look as if I have—just considered this whole thing as a lark," she began hurriedly, with a feling all the time that she wasn't really goin gto get anywhere with her explanation, "but I haven't really, Julian. I'm serious about this thing—have been from the first. Won't you please believe me?"

He looked at her for a moment in silence. Then he said, "How long before you're going to get tired of it anyway? I supopse dancing in such a place with all kinds of strange men—does have its exciting moments, but I assure you, it gave me a shock to find you there. The last place on earth I expected."

"It isn't really as—awful as it looks," Noel began hopefully. "You see, I had to have a job, and that was the only one I could find. Of course I—intended to get another."

"You didn't have to do that kind of work. There was no reason for it except that—well, it appealed to your love of novelty. When you get bored, you'll quit. And probably not before." Julian's voice was still uncompromising.

Of course he didn't—couldn't understand that she really had no choice, Noel thought. She stood quite still, one arm encircling a porch pillar, trying to think of some way to convince him of her sincerity, without divulging the fact that she had started on the adventure with only a little more than a hundred dollars most of which had been stolen from her. If Julian knew that, she hadn't any doubt whatever of what he would do—insist on financing her out of his own small earnings. Everything would then be spoiled. For Noel was still firm in her intention of showing him that she could stand alone.

"I am hoping to get another place at any moment," Noel went on. "And when I do—" she hesitated.

"I still can see no possible reason why you should have lied," Julian's voice was as stern and cold as before.

She must make him understand, Noel told herself desperately, "Julian, please try and see my position" she began again. "I did have this other place I told you about. At least I felt fairly certain of getting it for several reasons and then—"

"And then you preferred the one at Luigi's club because it promised more excitment," he finished for her.

"That wasn't it at all," Noel cried unhappily, but Julian ignored her protest and went on, "I can easily see that dancing at Luigi's would prove far more interesting than spending your time teaching a child French verbs and five finger exercises, and" he added, "I couldn't help observing that you are a lovely dancer."

"And I suppose telling falsehoods when they suit your convenience is another?" Julian observed with biting irony.

That was the unkindest, the most cutting thing he had said.

"How can you be so unreasonable?" Noel cried, stung.

Once again Julian ignored her hurt voice, and went on in a still bitter and angry voice: "I suppose at this cheap club nearly all the man make love to you, including Luigi, the proprietor, and the tall blond young man with the corrugated hair."

If Noel hadn't been feeling so desperate, she might have laughed at Julian's characteristic description of Chris' hair. But instead, she answered him earnestly. "Not all of them, by any means, Julian. Only—" She started to tell him about Luigi, but her courage failed her.

"You needn't tell me that fellow Luigi doesn't make love to you. I happen to have eyes in my head."

"I'm not—denying it," Noel said unhapoily. Then she added with spirit. "Why on earth, Julian, can't you realize that I'm quite capable of taking care of myself."

"I'm ready to admit it now," he rejoined. The coldness of his voice lashed at Noel like the things of a whip. It was unbelievable, incredible, that she and Julian should be quarreling like this. Her heart felt as if it would burst from the pain of it.

Standing here, facing each other on the porch, Noel knew they couldn't be any farther apart than if he were here alone, and she off on some far distant desert island. If there were only some way to reach him! If he would only unbend ever so little—

"Julian," she began gently, "you've always felt too much responsibility toward me. I started this thing to prove to you that I could make my own way. And that's only what I'm trying to do."

"You've proved yourself quite capable," he returned, "though I think very little of your method. However," he hesitated, then went on, "from now on, my responsibility ceases."

"You mean—" the words came from Noel's lips hoarsely.

"I mean," Julian went on, "that hereafter I'll simply look at your being down here as merely the whim of a rich girl who is bored for a time with buying clothes and traveling, and with all her gay sophisticated friends and so she's doing a bit of slumming for the thrill of it, or any tiny bit of excitement she can find."

He stepped down, and started to the car. "As for any further responsibility toward you, I'm going to take you at your word, and realize that you can look out for yourself without any help or advice from me."

"Julian, wait another minute," Noel pleaded, hating herself for the abjectness of her voice. But if Julian went off like this, so cold and angry, she would probably never see him again. "Listen, Julian," she heard herself pleading, "if I give you my solemn promise not to go back to the Peacock, if I get another situation—"

"Can you find another one as exciting where all the men will fight each other to make love to you, to dance with you?" he demanded.

This was the last straw. A sudden wave of anger rushed over her. "Why do you have to be so unsufferable-Do you want to make me hate you?" she cried.

"Perhaps that would be best," Julian said coolly. "If we could manage to work up a good, healthy hate toward each other, instead of this—this constant pull—" he stopped, as if unable to say more.

Noel stood there, her head drooping against the pillar. The anger he had aroused in her had turned to one vast agonizing pain. No matter what he might say, or how he hurt her, her love for him rose up and triumphed over every other feeling.

And then Julian delivered the last crushing blow. "You may not know it, but I was actually beginning to believe that your coming into the hard, workaday world was taking on the nature of a noble experiment. I was beginning to see you differently, as more human, more real. I believed you were actually learning something about life and living—"

He stopped and gave a short bitter laugh. "It only goes to psove how a man can fool himself into believing the thing he most wants to believe, when his common sense and good judgment tells him a different story."

With that he walked to the car and drove off.

Somehow, Noel stumbled into her room, undressed as if in a daze, and lay down beside the sleeping Laurie. Then all at once her slender body was shaken with sobs.

DOROTHY DIX

Faultfinding, Criticism and Censure Are Sure to Drive Your Husband From Home, So, If You Are Guilty, Change Your Ways

"WHEN I was first married," said a woman the other day, "I remembered it my sacred duty to keep my husband continually reminded of all of his faults and weaknesses and to boss him aroumd as if he were a 3-year-old child or a moron. Looking back at it now, I know that I didn't give him as much liberty as a pet dog on a leash.

"If he failed to punch the home time clock on the minute, I bawled him out good and plenty. If he stayed downtown occasionally to play pool with the boys, I was waiting for him with a curtain lecture. If he brought an old friend home to dinner, I served him such a large slice of cold shoulder that he never returned.

"I criticized his family, his taste in clothes and the way ne had his hair cut. I corrected his grammer and pronunciation, and when he tried to tell a story I set him right about dates and facts, and reminded him that every one had heard that one before. I didn't even let the poor soul eat what he liked.

"In short, I assumed what I considered a wife's privilege to nag and rule and find fault with her husband and make him like it. It never once occurred to me that I was taking the surest and quickest way to kill his love for me, and that no man who had an inch of backbone would stand for such treatment.

"Then, suddenly, I got my awakening. My husband told me that he had fallen in love with another woman and wanted his freedom to marry her. I was appalled. I had never suspected that he would resent my faultfinding and nagging and that it would lead to this. Then I realized that life without him would be cinders, ashes and dust.

"So I begged him to give me another chance. I told him that if in a year I could not win back his love and make him prefer me to the Other Woman, that I would fade out of the picture without making any trouble. He agreed to it, for he no more wanted to break up our home, clutter up our business and family relations and figure in a scandal than I did. I rolled up my sleeves and started into a camping campaign that I knew was going to take all of the courage and self-control and intelligence I had, because it is a lot harder to blow half-dead embers into a flame again than it is to kindle a fresh fire.

"But I won out in the end, and what do you think my husband told me? He said: 'I know now that deep down in my heart I never ceased to love you, and that the only reason I wandered away was because our home had become a place of squabbles and strife that I dreaded to come back to after a hard day at the office. You took every particle of self-confidence out of me by your continued faultfinding. You made me feel that I was a prisoner in a jail and I was stifling for a breath of freedom.

"'That is what set me roaming. I wanted some woman with whom I could talk without getting into a row; some woman who would show me sympathy and understanding, who would flatter me a little and applaud me and make me feel that I was a man instead of a mouse. And when I found one who looked up to me instead of down on me I thought I was in love with her.'

"Believe me," said the woman in conclusion, "that gave me my lesson. It taught me that if a wife wants to keep her husband eating out of her hand she must keep sugar in it instead of vinegar. Every man wants some woman to tell him how big and strong and wise and wonderful he is, and if his wife doesn't do it he hunts up another lady who will.

"But I make the mistake of being a faultfinding wife no longer. I am the best little yes-yesser in three countries, and as a salve-spreader I can beat any gold-digger at the game, because I not only know what unquent is the most soothing to him but where the sore places in his vanity are and where the application of a liberal amount of soft soap is most effective. And that is a special knowledge that the wife has and the Other Woman hasn't.

"But my experience makes me wonder if the wives who bemoan themselves over their husbands' unfaithfulness aren't often responsible for their philandering."

It's Your Background That Pushes You Ahead

Gain Knowledge at Home

Jim's still this side of thirty, but he already has an important executive job. And Betty, his attractive secretary, is so capable she's really her boss' right-hand man.

Neither of these young people could go to college. But they're both convinced they owe their success to a cultural background acquired at home.

Because of the absorbing reading course he follows in economics, Jim always holds his own with older business men when present-day problems are discussed.

He's invited out to dinner with the most interesting people because his knowledge of modern art and philosophy makes him a stimulating companion.

Combining pleasure with business, Betty studies famous characters in great novels. This helps her to understand better the people she meets in daily life. Now she's taken up psychology, too.

Our 32-page booklet shows you now to start and carry out an engrossing, valuable program of home study. It includes book lists recommended by the Committee on College Reading.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Hanid, the shadow girl, thought it was very curious that she should be taking a stroll through the garden with an earthworm. But so she was.

"So you'd like to know where the Mole family lives, eh?" he remarked to Hanid as they went slowly past the pansy bed.

"Yes," said Hanid. "You see, they've built their tunnels under this garden. And Father says they are ruining the whole lawn. If they don't move away or something, Father is going to set a trap for them. So I've decided to warn them."

"A very good idea." said Earthworm. "Traps aren't the nicest things to get caught in. Of course, they don't bother me any. What I don't like are shovels. Some of my best friends have been caught in shovels."

"Really!"

Nasty Things.

"Oh, yes. Shovels are nasty things, especially when there is a man or a boy, or even a girl, at the other end of them. Along come these shovels and dig themselves into the ground and—pouf! up comes the earth with our houses and furniture. And then, as though all that weren't bad enough, the poor worms are picked up and dropped in a can and taken on a fishing trip."

"Oh!"

"Perhaps the fishing trips they went on were very pleasant. Only—only they never came back. That's the part of it I don't like. But it's a very good idea of yours to warn the Mole family about the trap."

"And will you take me to the entrance to their tunnel? I can't find it anywhere."

"Of course I will. I know a short cut. Would you mind tilting that flat stone just a bit? Ah, that's fine. Now just crouch down a little and follow me."

At that instant Hanid said "Oh, I almost forgot something!"

Campbellford Ties Trenton

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 19—Playing against Trenton on Wednesday afternoon, the locals tied their second away from home game when they matched the Trenton Club two even in the four events. The remaining two events which were postponed owing to darkness, will be played in Trenton on Saturday afternoon with J. Heptonstall and Art Orr representing Campbellford in the second men's doubles and Don Meyers and Jessie Weston upholding the mixed doubles.

Of the four events played the one which claimed the most comment was the gruelling test Jean Hill and B. Milliken of Trenton gave Lois Meyers and Grace Cairns before they defeated them after nearly three hours of playing by a score of 6-2, 8-10, 6-2. The loss of the second mixed doubles caused no small amount of surprise, at least among the ranks of the visiting players, when what was thought to have been their most invulnerable team was defeated to give Trenton their second win of the day. It was Wib Kingston and Polly Ferris who handed the surprise to the locals when they took their first trimming of the year at the hands of I. Hinds and George Noble by a score of 4-6, 6-2, 8-6.

In the men's singles, Ken Kingston of Campbellford smashed his way to an easy two-set victory over S. Martin who he defeated 6-0, 6-3 while in the second men's doubles, the locals presented some new material when W. Peliquinn appeared for the first time to team up with Cliff Weston and take a 6-0, 8-6 victory from Pat Mainguy and C. Jamieson.

Herd Make Farce Of Jersey Game

TORONTO, Aug. 19.—(CP)—Jersey City never do things by halves. One time out they are good, the next time they are bad.

Last night was one of the latter. Buffalo Bisons trimmed the Giants in a hilarious ball game 21-6. Elsewhere the league stuck to conventional baseball. Rochester and Syracuse split a double bill, the Wings winning 3-0 in 11 innings and then losing 7-2. Toronto beat Baltimore 7-4 and Newark's double bill at Montreal was postponed because of rain and wet grounds.

The affair at Buffalo was something. To go into the awful details the Bisons collected 24 hits, nine of them for extra bases; scored five runs in each of the first two innings and seven in the seventh; every starting player got two or more hits; Dan Carnevale, Joe Martin and Ollie Carnegie hit home runs.

OMEMEE

Mrs. Jago of Toronto is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. Clement.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Nimmo and small son of Detroit visited friends in the village recently

Mr. and Mrs. A. Stephenson and son, Tommy, of Toronto are guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stephenson.

The many friends of Mr. Thomas Rowan will be pleased to know he is progressing favorably following his recent illness.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, August 20

A particularly lively and probably refreshing and productive day is forecast from the ruling astral influences. It is possible that private, social or romantic interests also may play an important part in business relations. But be wise as to cunning or deceptive situations or agreements, although proper subtlety has advantages.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a rather arresting and intriguing year, with secret and curious playing a part in both business and private relations. Strategy may help in both, and friendship is a factor to be manipulated tactfully.

A child born on this day may be clever, enterprising, and industrious, but may have an attractive and compelling personality that may prove a chief asset, winning it preferment from those in position.

210 Islands Visible From New $3,000,000 International Bridge

IVY LEA, Ont., Aug. 19—(CP).—Five distinct spans make up the International Bridge opened to-day by President Franklin Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King in this Thousand Islands district. The system is eight and one-half miles long and cost about $3,000,000.

Bridge officials expect a revenue of about $250,000 a year and the Canadian section of the bridge reverts to the Ontario Government when tolls have paid for it. Representations are being made to both the Canadian and United States Governments to have the bridge right-of-way converted into international parks.

Two fairly large islands, Wells and Hill Islands, are integral parts of the bridge. Canadian immigration and administrative offices will be on Hill Island and similar United States offices on Wells Island.

The largest bridge in the system spans the American channel and connects the United States mainland to Wells Island. This 800-foot steel arch suspension bridge provides a 150-foot clearance for river boats. The steel and concrete approach to this bridge from the mainland is 4,500 feet long.

World's Biggest Little Bridge

The next bridge, at the end of a four and one-half mile road across Wells Island, is a 90-foot concrete span linking Wells and Hills Island. A brass strip on the roadway and bronze tablets on the railings of this structure, called "The Biggest Little Bridge in the World," mark the international boundary. Faced with native granite, it virtually is built of the material from which it springs.

The bridge connecting the two Canadian islands, Hill and Constance Islands, is a 600-foot span with a centre pier on Benson's Island, a small rock island midway between Hill and Constance.

Constance and Georgina Islands, both Dominion national parks, are joined by a 348-foot arch bridge. It spans the famous Lost Channel of the Thousand Islands.

The final and dominating section is the suspension bridge from Georgina Island to the Canadian mainland. It has a main span of 750 feet with a vertical underclearance above high water of 120 feet. A steel and concrete approach, 2,000 feet long leads to this suspension bridge which towers even above the tree tops, providing an unparalleled view of which the designers were mindful when they provided low railings to give motorists a clear view. More than 210 of the 1692 islands in the river are visible to the naked eye on a clear day from the series of bridges.

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!

Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Cavan Farmer Wins Crop Competition

Robert Armstrong of Cavan township was the winner of first prize in the standing field crop competition conducted by the Peterborough Exhibition in connection with its grain and seeds department, retaining also the J. Says U.S. Nazis Removed Diplomat

Shown here is John C. Metcalfe, former Chicago newspaperman, who joined storm troopers of the German-American Bund to get the inside facts as an investigator for the committee investigating un-American activities as he demonstrated the Nazi salute. Metcalfe testified that Fritz Kuhn, Bund leader, boasted that he was responsible for the removal of Dr. Hans. Luther, former Reich ambassador to the United States.

Toronto Lawyer Gets Hinds' Registrar Job

TORONTO, Aug. 19. — Charles Walter Smyth, Toronto barrister, and a prominent Liberal in Eglinton Riding, will succeed Leonard D'Arcy Hinds as Registrar of the Supreme Court of Ontario, it was announced Thursday by Hon. Gordon Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario.

Coincident with this statement, the Attorney-General announced that D'Arcy Hinds, by a special Qrder-in-Council at Thursday's Cabinet meeting, will be created a King's Counsel upon his retirement in October

"The honor is richly deserved in recognition of Mr. Hinds' many years of public service," said Mr. Conant.

The new Registrar will take office October 19, and in the meantime, Mr. Hinds has been granted leave of absence from September 1 to October 19, with full salary.

Charles Smyth is a lawyer of considerable experience. He was born at Byng Inlet, Ontario, and received his early education there. He graduated from Victoria College, University of Toronto, in 1914, and interrupted his studies to serve overseas with the Canadian Army Medical Corps from 1916 to 1918. Following the war, he obtained his degree in law at Osgoode Hall, and was admitted to the bar in 1919.

For the past four years, Mr. Smyth has carried on his law practice under his own name, and previous to that time, he was with the firms of Corley, Wilkee and Hamilton, and Mulholland and Smyth. He is a resident of Eglinton Riding, is married, and has no children.

D'Arcy Hinds' retirement brings to a close an active and picturesque career in the public life of Toronto.

Politician, soldier, lawyer, public servant, poet and song-writer, Mr. Hinds possesses a host of friends.

High Sabotage Toll In Manchoukuo Makes Jap Domination Costly

HSINKING, Manchoukuo, Aug. 19—(CP).—The Japanese Army after seven years in Manchoukuo still is beset by a host of enemies, a compilation of recent incidents of supposed sabotage indicated today.

Japanese Army Officers admit Chinese irregular units remain active in the country in which Japan established a protectorate after wresting it from China. They say the irregulars are communist-inspired.

Japanese here admitted their fire insurance rates have been tripled in a year because of fires and explosions extending from Tsitsihar, near the northeast border, to Dairen on the south.

The Tsitsihar Power plant was destroyed twice by fires, officials put damage at 500,000 yen (the Japanese yen is worth a fraction over 28 cents), but unofficial estimates were 1,500,000 yen. Saboteurs of a "certain foreign power" were blamed.

Cut by "Children"

Last November all telephone and telegraph communications from Hsinking south were cut for three days, the only official explanation being that children at play dug up the cables, buried several feet underground.

Mukden has been hit hardest. The first aviation assembly plant burned last March with at least 30 and possibly 100 planes destroyed, among them some of late Italian design.

In June fire destroyed the military food and clothing depot near Mukden and damage was put at 1,250,000 yen. A nearby gasoline installation narrowly missed being burned.

Four huge explosions rocked Mukden in late July. Powder stores of thee ast arsenal were destroyed. Damage unofficially was put at 2,500,000 yen.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Canning Season Awaits You But Be Careful In Selection of Your Fruits

(By MARY MOORE)

YOU EXPERIENCED FOLK who have been "doin' down" your own fruit for years have to bear with us for printing this, for there are many of our neighbors who are attempting it for the first time—and haven't the slighest idea how to start—it is so every year.

Word of Warning to The Wise.

When you know the price of the fruit you propose to can—buying only the choicest quality to be canned the day it is picked—sit down with a pencil and paper and figure out how much it will cost you per can to do it yourself—then compare the price with the canned food you can buy. If you are using quart jars—compare the prices in ounces—for the average can of fruit holds 20 ounces and an imperial quart holds 40 ounces.

Commercial canners to remain in existence have had to perfect their canning methods so that there is no spoilage—one can of spoiled goods will do them thousands of dollars' worth of harm. So they use only perfect produce, pop it into the can the day it is picked, use only sugar that is best quality, and process it under steam pressure the proper length of time to insure sterilizing, and cool it quickly to retain attractive appearance.

The fast moving process of peeling putting in cans, filling with hot syrup, and closing the cans (sealing) and immediate cooking under steam pressure retains all the viamins and mineral salts possible—open kettle canning exposes fruit and vegeables to the air (oxygen is the foe of vitamins once the fruits containing them are peeled).

Canned Peaches.

Fruit should be perfectly ripe to obtain best flavor—however some cooks and canners select peaches that are slightly underripe for when sliced in the cans they retain a very sharp cut edge and smooth appearance—ripe fruit becomes a little ragged at the edge when peeled and stoned, but the flavor is superior.

Scald ripe fruit by dipping in boiling water for about 30 seconds—until skin is easily removed. Cool by removing to cold water. Then drain and peel and halve the fruit and remove stones. Drop into jars as you peel,—when jar is full fill to overflowing with boiling hot syrup in the proportion of 1 cup sugar to each 2 cups water—or if you wish them to be in heavy syrup use 2 cups sugar to each 3 cups water. Process in boiling water 20 minutes. Tighten screw tops to within quarter turn of tight before processing—tighten, never loosen, seal after processing. Leave clamp UP on clamp-top jars before processing—put it down when done. Cool jars as quickly as possible—we have been running a slow stream of water into the processing kettle to begin cooling more quickly. If started slowly enough this will not crack jars.

Canned Pears.

After doing pears for two years—once cold pack, once partially cooked—we have decided they are better with the partial cooking before packing.

Select firm but ripe pears. Peel without removing stems, cut in halves, scoop out seed section with ball cutter, cut out stem and seed stringy portions with sharp pointed knife and drop into bowl of cold water while enough are being peeled to fill syrup kettle. Make a medium light syrup of 1 cup sugar and 3 cups water, bring to boiling point and when pears are ready drop enough in to fill quart jars. Have next portion of syrup ready when this is used up. When they boil 4 minutes, skim out, with sterile spoon and fork, drop into sterile hot jars, cover with boiling syrup to overflowing, seal. Boil 20 minutes in hot water bath.

Can plums whole. Lombards and very large green plums are my favorites. Prick skins after washing plums, fill into jars, fill jars to overflowing with medium heavy syrup—that is, 1 cup sugar to each 2 cups water—syrup must be boiling hot—seal and process in hot water bath 20 minutes.

Canned Apples.

Wash, pare and core apples. Cut into ½-inch slices. That is, cut the apple through the core 4 times, resulting in ⅛ segments. Soak in solution of 1 lb. salt to 3¼ gallons water at 115 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes—using enamel, stainless steel or aluminum utensils. Rinse and dip in boiling water 1 minute. Fill hot, packing down thoroughly, using a plunger (sterile end of handleless rolling pin is good or coarse round bottomed tumbler). Add boiling water and process in boiling water 15 minutes. If you wish to pack apples with syrup use medium light syrup—1 cup sugar to each 3 cups water. Pour over packed apples boiling hot, then seal and process.

If readers desire detailed directions for canning other fruits and vegetables we have not covered on this page kindly write—giving me three weeks in which to send reply. Do not buy your fruit, then write.

Trim, Snappy Suits Worn by Smart Bathers

Those Who Seek Happiness in Cool Waters Must Dress for Comfort as Well as Looks

By LISBETH

THE ZEPHYR KNIT swim suits may not be the most dramatic, but they certainly are good looking, and are as practical as possible for the girl who really swims—and who doesn't these days?

These two suits have all the details that make smartness for summer swimming.

A raised cable stitch is used horizontally for the half-skirted wool knit swim suit shown by the young woman standing. This suit has composition hook-and-eye buckles fastening the narrow shoulder straps at the front. It is a nicely fitted and very smart model.

Form knitted wool is used in a novelty matelasse pattern for the other suit, worn by the model reclining on the beach. It is nicely molded and is in midnight blue.

Accessories Add Distinction.

New sandals, beach hats, beach coats and other accessories make such suits distinctive, and with a suit of this type you are in style and sure of your figure looking its best wherever you may swim—the old swimmin' hole, the river, a fresh water lake, or the ocean.

These same zephyrs in waffle knits, blister and ripple stitches, quilted or raised effects, and novelty jacquard designs are made with shirred uplift tops and adjustable straps, and are very attractive.

The all-worsted knitted suit with large raised block pattern is a newcomer this year, and the wool jersies are lovely in conservative patterns and designs as well as plain colors.

Then there are the suits in two-color floral and scrool prints, ship designs, white anchors and actually a cactus design, too—very amusing and attractive—and stripes are everywhere on the beaches.

Nurse Shortage In English Hospitals

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 19.—Certain London hospitals have been forced to limit the admission of infectious cases owing to shortage of nurses. The number of women entering the nursing profession has become fewer every year since the war, and of those who do enter it 50 per cent. now leave without completing their health of its citizens unless it is prepared to improve conditions and rates of pay in a profession which, training. London is thus faced with a serious menace to the lives and because it has always been looked on as a vocation, has been neglected by social reform.

The hours of duty are said to be long and concentrated. 170 hours a fortnight, which works out at 11½ hours a day for six days a week, is by no means uncommon. In addition, the rates of pay are low and the food and the accommodations poor. In the circumstances the shortage of nurses, which has been referred to as a "dumb, unorganized, unconscious and appalling effective strike" on the part of young Englishwomen, is not surprising.

"Look upon the bright side of all things. Believe that the best offering you can make to God is to enjoy to the full what He sends of good, and bear what He allows of evil, like a child who believes in all its father's dealings with it, whether it understands them or not."—O. S. Marden.

Dear Friends

So many make of life a bleak thing, thinking to themselves that they are living as God would have them to do. They take up the cross, but they take up nothing else. They forget that our Lord was not a gloomy person in any way, and that He only carried the cross at the end.

Gloomy people have no following, but our Lord had multitudes who came with Him wherever He went. He left joy behind Him, joy in being cured of disease, of seeing again, of hearing, of walking once more.

He preached love, not gloom, He took away pain, and that is what it means to take up your cross and follow Him. Never does it consist in making others sad, nor in turning away from the joys He sends us, for we were meant to enjoy the earth and the fruits thereof. The true Christian is never gloomy. He has an inward grace, a joy of life, a peace which passes all understanding. Hell-fire may be true, trouble may come, death will arrive some day, but while he is alive he lives.

The young maidens danced in the bible, the people had feast days when they rejoiced. They had marriage days when they made merry, and just as earthly parents smile when they see their children, so also must God smile when He sees His children enjoy the things He sends to them.

Too long has He been taught as a God of wrath, not often enough as a God of love. And often it is not He who punishes us, but we ourselves by putting the wrong interpretation on His teachings, or letting someone else do it for us.

When we see our child dull or unhappy, we hurry to help him to better things. How then must it be to God, to see us turn down the things He gives us for our happiness, and make a sad thing out of our love for Him.

There used to be those in the who thought they were doing the will of God when they ran around shouting "woe, woe, to those who were worshipping Him in dignity and secrecy, while minding their own business. And there are still those who see only woe, never the brightness of friends meetings, never the blue of the sky, or the stars that shine.

They make of life a drab unworthy thing, not the shining thing it was meant to be. They crawl to God like a worm, belittle themselves to Him, yet there is no true humbleness in them anywhere.

Talk to God with dignity and trust, as a child who respects his father, yet does not fear Him. Why did He say, "Come let us reason together?" You don't reason with a worm, you stamp on it, pass it by, or use it for bait when fishing.

Why, out of all created things are human beings the only ones who can laugh outright, make merry, have intelligence so that their body obeys their brain? Not like sheep, or cattle or dogs, who obey instinct, but who say I will do this and do it, or I won't do that and don't do it.

Because they were made in the image of God, that's why. So, live up to the godhead within you by enjoying life in a clean decent manner, thanking Him for the pleasures He sends you. Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

Cobblers

Since we must out of self defense serve this month's fruits occasionally not just "as is" a cobbler is the most delicious variation:

Dixie Apple Cobbler

Grease baking dish (below the Mason Dixon line they often as not use a "skillett"), with 2 tablespoons butter. Fill bottom of pan with 6 apples cut in segments as for pie. Spread 1 cup brown sugar over apples. Make a batter by beating together 3 eggs, 3 tablespoons cold water, 1½ cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ cup sugar, grated rind 1 lemon. Pour batter over brown sugar and apples. Start this in a hot oven of 450—reducing heat to 325 to finish—in the South they bake it about 1 hour in all and serve it hot with heavy cream.

Peach Cobbler

Put 1 quart sliced juicy peaches in a deep buttered baking dish and and 1 cup sugar mixed with 2 tablespoons flour. Mix and sift together 1½ cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Work into this ¼ cup butter and mix to a dough with 1-3 cup milk. Turn out on floured board and fit to top of dish by rolling. Lay on top of fruit, making several incisions. Bake at 450 for about 25 minutes. Serve with heavy cream.

Bride-Elect Entertained At Kitchen Shower

FOWLER'S CORNERS, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Joe Hunter opened her spacious home on Tuesday evening, when she entertained at a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Dorothy Rowland, a bride of this week.

Contests were enjoyed, followed by a mock wedding, those taking part being the minister; Gordon McGregor, groom; Mrs. Harry Fowler, Jr., bride, Mrs. George Tully, while Mrs. M. Moncrief played the wedding music.

The bride-to-be and her fiance were asked to take chairs beneath a watering-can, suspended from the ceiling, and prettily decorated in pink and white. Mrs. M. Moncrief read an address, while Neal Millen and Russell Fife carried in the gifts which had been piled in a pink and white basket, topped by a miniature bride.

After the gifts were unwrapped, the recipients each thanked the guests for their gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home, following which the gathering sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellow."

At the conclusion of a pleasant social evening lunch was served by the hostess.

College Girls Go In For Hair Ornaments

College girls, store people insist, go in heavily for little hair ornaments to keep their locks in place. For evenings there are small curled ostrich tips on short combs that do the required job and look quite regal in the bargain. These come in white and in pairs of odd colors, two feathers to a comb. For girls of the china-doll type of looks there are tiny enamel flowers and little artificial nosegays on short combs. And for daytime there are flat leather bows in brown and white, matching the well-known saddle oxford, likewise mounted on short combs.

Matched Accessories

The really fashionable woman is particular about her accessories—particular that gloves and bag match exactly, not just almost. Two famous manufacturers of gloves and handbags have recently co-operated to this end to such an extent that they have both purchased together and had dyed together the leather used in their merchandise. Gloves and bags will be available matched identically in all the leading fall colors as well as black

Jean A. Jewell Weds James L. Gilmour

A very pretty wedding ceremony took place Wednesday afternoon, August 17, at 3 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Jewell, 121 Stewart street, when their youngest daughter, Jean Annie, became the bride of James Levergne Gilmour, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Gilmour, 4 Grandview avenue. Rev. E. W. Rowland officiated, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Rowland.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of white sheer, toe-length. Her embroidered tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she wore white kid shoes, and carried a bridal bouquet of red roses.

Miss Annie Weaver was bridesmaid, wearing a charming gown of pale blue sheer, toe-length. She wore pink shoes, a wreath of roses in her hair, and carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses.

The gift from the bridegroom to the bride was an overnight bag, to the bridesmaid a gold compact, to the best man a gold tie set, and to the pianist a brooch.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmour will live in the city.

MELOROL ICE CREAM CHOSEN FOR THE QUINTS

Famous Five Enjoy A MelOrol Cone On Fourth Birthday

What an occasion for the little girls! Ice Cream for their birthday! Of course, it had to be the finest ice cream obtainable. Those responsible for the well-being of the Quints always insist on the best, and that is why they chose Borden's MelOrol Ice Cream in preference to any other.

They knew that these rich, round, individual portions of wholesome ice cream are automatically wrapped right at the freezer. This special wrapper gives the utmost sanitary protection to MelOrol . . . preserving its purity, perfect freshness and fine flavour.

©NEA

MORE FUN THAN A PICNIC! And what an attraction is MelOrol Ice Cream! Heartily enjoying it in five different ways are (left to right) Emilie, Annette, Marie, Cecile and Yvonne.

Two shipments of MelOrol Ice Cream go up to the Quints every week . . . with all its "fresh-from-the-freezer" goodness and fine flavour preserved intact . . . absolutely pure and wholesome, not touched by hand.

These advantages make Borden's MelOrol entirely different from ordinary ice cream. Moreover, MelOrol is scientifically blended and frozen amazingly fast, making it smoother, creamier, more satisfying. Try Borden's MelOrol Ice Cream today. Try it in cones, sundaes, sodas, malted milks. Mothers, insist on it for your children.

EACH KEEP ONE SUIT

WHEN A NO TRUMP slam declarer sets out to run two solid suits, the defense usually faces a discarding problem. It must protect the other two suits. Seldom can one defender guard them both. But if one signals high on his first discard, he tells his partner he will accept responsibility for that suit. The partner then can blithely toss away that suit while covering the fourth suit.

Against South's contract of 6-No Trumps. West led the heart 2. South won with the 8 and then ran three more heart tricks and followed with five spade leads.

On the seventh trick both East and West made mistakes in their discards, West tossing the club 2 and East the diamond 2. On the eighth trick, West gave up the diamond 5 and East the club 5. When it came to the ninth trick each began to feel the squeeze, and their decision was the giving up of a club by each. The result was that West retained the diamonds K-7 and clubs Q-8; East diamonds Q-10-6 and club K, dummy held diamonds A-J and clubs 10-6 and declarer had the diamond 8 and clubs A-J-4. Having watched the discards, South led a low club, which East won. He returned a diamond, which was won with the A and a club to the A and J took the last two tricks.

Proper discarding by the opponents would have set declarer one trick.

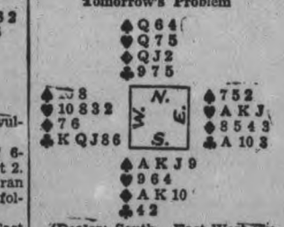
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. East-West Vulnerable.)

With the club K led against South's 3-Spades contract, how should East defend the hand?

Westwood W.I. Hears Address On Child Aid

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Aug. 19. — About thirty members attended the August meeting of the Women's Institute on Tuesday afternoon in the Westwood Town Hall. Mrs. James Clysdale, the president, took charge of the meeting, with Miss Mary Barrie as secretary-treasurer.

Following the opening exercises, a business session was held. Miss Edith Bray was appointed convenor of Home Economics, Miss Kathleen Cameron was chosen to represent the Institute as leader for the training school to be held at the Agricultural office in Peterborough on certain days during September and October; Miss Rita Faux, a substitute in case Miss Cameron was unable to attend.

Answers to the roll call on "How to teach boys and girls the management of money," offered many valuable hints, although some felt themselves incompetent to advise, since they found difficulty in saving their own money.

Current events of interest to all, were given by Mrs. F. E. Birdsall. A sale of donated articles was held, Mrs. Birdsall making a capable auctioneer, and the proceeds amounted to $7.52. A "cat" contest was won by Miss Kathleen Barrie. Convenor for the September contest will be Mrs. Birdsall and convenor for current events will be Miss Margaret Comstock.

The feature of the meeting was an excellent address by Miss Young of the Children's Aid Society, Peterborough.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the group in charge.

Routine Business Omemee Council

OMEMEE, Aug. 18.—The usual discussion of village matters took place at regular meeting of the village council with correspondence read as follows: From Weldon and Lacey regarding installing a culvert on Mary street. Moved by Burgess and seconded by Parsons, that a culvert 12' x 12" be purchased for Mary street entering the property of Mr. Chas. Ivory. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Bent, seconded by Stephenson, that clerk be authorized to write H. Wilford, county engineer, to have a dust layer applied to county road north of railway tracks on Sturgeon street. Carried.

The following accounts having been examined and found correct it was moved by Stephenson, seconded by Parsons, that treasurer be authorized to issue cheques for same: Street lights, July, $84.67; L. Parker, $1.25; C. E. Jones, $5.76; J. Knight, gravel, $92.50; John Magee, work on streets, $2.25; W. W. Hicks, account, $5; W. Henderson, cement streets, $9.75; A. L. Williamson ,cut weeds, $4; A. Lloyd, cut weeds, $4; G. Lloyd, cut weeds, $3.88; relief, $9.36; A. L. Lloyd, work for W. Brandon, $8.25; H. McQuade, work, streets, 50c. Total, $231.17.

The council will again meet on September 12 at 8 p.m.

MILLBROOK

Mrs. F. L. Edworthy left on Monday morning for Montreal where she will spent the next month with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Paquin, and Mr. Paquin.

Mr. George St. Lawrence of Toronto was the guest of his friend, Mr. William Edworthy, on Snunday.

The munecipal council has received word that the Ontario Hydro Commission will have a representative here on Tuesday, August 30, when a public meeting will be held to discus purchase of the local plant. All ratepayers are urged to attend this meeting as the question is of great importance and a considerable amount of money is involved.

G. F. Harington, who has purchased the bungalow on King street which belonged to the late Miss Eva Gillott, is carrying out an extensive renovation scheme, and when the property is put in proper shape and Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Boneville are expected to occupy the cosy home.

With glittering sunshine still dazzling the city and record crowds in attendance, Peterborough Exhibition officials have hopes the number of people to pass through the turnstiles will far exceed any other year.

On Thursday Junior Farmers again held the spotlight, giving city folk a new conception of the industry and intelligence that goes into farming. (1) shows Gordon Stalker, R.R. No. 4, Peterborough, with his first prize Holstein calf. Gordon also won first prize in showmanship, competing against boys from five counties.

(2) Peterborough county boys catured first place in the inter-county team demonstration contest. They showed the proper feeding of dairy calves. On the left is a smooth looking animal fed to calf club standards on good quality hay. The second calf is immature because of improper feeding and the third is too thin. The winning boys are Jim Moore, R.R. No. 2, Peterborough (LEFT) and Gordon Stalker, R.R. No. 4, Peterborough.

(5) All Junior Farmer winners took part in a parade past the grandstand during the afternoon performance while an announcer told over the loud speaker system their names and accomplishments.

Rebel Lines Resist Loyalist Attacks

HENDAYE, France, Aug 19. — (AP)—Heavy fighting spread along the winding Zujar River in southwestern Spain today as Government troops tried to drive Insurgents out of the foothold they gained in the mountain barrier to the Almaden Mercury mining Zone.

Insurgent dispatches said all Government counter-attacks failed. Government bulletins, however, reported the Insurgent advance which crossed the Zujar at the extreme northern flank of the Almaden sector was driven back across the rive.

On the Ebro River front in eastern Spain, another main theatre of operations, fighting was concentrated in the Pandols mountains which control the Gandesa sector carved out by a Government offensive which began nearly a month ago.

20,000 Italian Immigrants To Find Homes Built; Soil Irrigated In Libya

Italy Plans To Settle Millions of Immigrants In her Overseas Possessions Pay For Land Out Of Expected Harvests

ROME, Aug. 20 (AP).—A vanguard of 20,000 of the millions Italy plans eventually to settle in her overseas possessions will cross the Mediterranean in October to found new homes and work in agricultural colonies in Libya.

Unlike thousands who poured out of Italy in former times to seek a better living elsewhere, they will go as an organized group disciplined in the Fascist concept — not as humble immigrants hunting work among strange people whose language they do not speak.

When they arrive in North Africa, they will find homes, stables and irrigation wells constructed and waiting for them. Their job will be to work the newly irrigated soil and harvest its fruits. They will pay for the land out of the expected harvests of many years.

The agricultural colonies to be opened this autumn are scattered throughout Libya, wherever soil experts thought the desert was easiest to reclaim.

1,000 Families

The 20,000 represent only 1,000 families. Large families, with many husky sons and daughters to help on the farms, were chosen.

Fascists are proud of Italy's new emigration policy. It fosters resettlement under the native flag in the Italian empire's colonies. Emigration to foreign countries is prohibited now. Except in special cases.

Libya, more than five times the size of Italy, lies between Egypt and French Tunisia directly across the Mediterranean from the mother country. Its population includes 780,000 natives and about 60,000 Italians. Colonization plans envisage the movement there of several hundred thousand more Italians.

Libya was much more fertile in the days when it was part of the old Roman empire and supplied ancient Rome with much of its wheat and lions for the arena. Under the desert sands which have crept up on once-green fields are many Roman ruins.

Italy took the colony from the crumbling Ottoman empire in the war with Turkey in 1912. She neglected it during the Great War and afterward had to reconquer it from the native tribes of Berbers and Arab Semites.

Lloyd Campbell Is Arrested In Ottawa Court

OTTAWA, Aug. 20 (CP).—Lloyd Campbell of Toronto, brother of Oscar Campbell charged with the $12,000 armed robbery of the Richmond, Ont., bank of Nova Scotia, was arraigned on a charge here today of being an accessory after the fact. He was remanded for a week by Magistrate Lester Clayton.

Lloyd was taken into custody as a material witness yesterday when he appeared in the courtroom during the preliminary hearing of the robbery charge against his brother. Oscar will be committed to stand trial and will come before the fall assizes of the Ontario Supreme Court opening here Sept. 12.

Police allege Lloyd, father of two children, assisted Oscar to evade arrest by driving him and Mary Donnelly, also charged with being an accessory after the fact, away from Peterborough, July 21.

Evidence in the preliminary hearing of the charges against Mary Donnelly of conspiracy to rob and of being an accessory after the fact was concluded today. Defence counsel H. J. Burns was granted an adjournment until Wednesday when he will argue as to sufficiency of the evidence.

Police allege Mary Donnelly purchased an automobile in Toronto for Oscar Campbell to aid his escape and also that she attempted to pass bank notes knowing them to be stolen.

Liquor Vendor Under Arrest

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 20 (CP).—Harold A. Taggart, manager of the Ontario Liquor Control Board store in Westport, village in the Rideau Lakes district, was arrested yesterday on theft charges. Information by Peter Beaton, chief inspector for the board, alleged Taggart stole $425 cash and $79 in stock.

Taggert was arrested by provincial constable W. N. Durnford, of Gananoque. He was brought here and appeared before Mrs. Geraldine Edgar, Justice of the Peace. He was remanded to jail to Aug. 27.

70 Tomatoes On Plant

CLINTON, Ont., Aug. 20 (CP).—Mrs. J. W. Shaw, Clinton, seems to have an idea tomato growers might copy. She took a tomato plant from the garden last fall, and transplanted it in her basement. This spring, she planted it in the garden again. The plant is six feet tall, and bears 70 tomatoes.

Mackenzie King Inspects Troops At Camp Borden

"A fine, clean-cut set of Canadians."

Cavalry, infantry, mechanized transport, tanks and air force went through their routine training throughout the afternoon, under a blazing sun, while the Prime Minister looked on.

He expressed great satisfaction over the appearance and efficiency of all ranks, and showed particular interest in the workshops of the R.C.A.F.

Watched Tanks.

Brigadier W. H. P. Elkins, in command at Camp Borden, met Mr. King at Barrie. Air Vice-Marshal G. M. Croll flew from Ottawa to escort the Prime Minister through the R.C.A.F. training schools.

Mr. King expressed his gratification to Lieut.-Col. Hennessy, who is in charge of the camp; to Lieut.-Col. Caldwell, Royal Candian Dragoons; Lieut.-Col. Flynn of the Royal 22nd Regiment; Lieut.-Col. M. K. Green, Royal Candian Regiment; Lieut.-Col. Garstine, R.A.M.C. and Squadron Leader Collis, commanding the R.C.A.F.

The Prime Minister was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Ley, by Mr. Ley and their daughters, Jean and Rosabel, and by the members of Parliament for East and North Simcoe, G. A. MacLean and Mrs. MacLean, D. F. McCuaig and Mrs. McCuaig.

All arms of the service participated in the March Past as the Prime Minister took the salute, later in the afternoon.

Algoma Wolf Club Gives Tourist First Taste Of Hunt

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug.

A WISCONSIN tourist ran into the Algoma Wolf Club in action at Dayton today and probably figured he'd been close to being held up by bandits. There were a dozen wolf clubers on the road, togged up in somewhat disruptable attire when the Wisconsin man drove along. He stopped his car and waited to see what the twelve fellows, armed with shotguns, were going to do with him. Then long Lynn Hollingsworth, club captain, solemnly walked up and motioned him along without a word.

Silence is the rule on a wolf hunt. But now Lynn's thinking he should have explained to the visitor won't go back home and tell how he escaped a bad, bold band of Algoma bandits.

3 Spies Executed

BERLIN, Aug. 20—(AP). — Three Germans were executed to-day for entering into "relations with the information service of a foreign power for monetary gain." The men were Karl Weishoff, Peter Heinz and Wilhelm Braun. They were convicted by court-martial of treason.

Working On The New Dock Off Crescent Street

A strangely garbed figure is walking about the bottom of Little Lake these days, unconcerned as to its depth or the fact that most people drown when they stay under water for any length of time. He is Bob Allen, professional diver, who is assisting in the erection of a new dock off Crescent Street from the new rip-rap. Diver Allen is seen at LEFT with his crew of helpers, some of whom pump air to him when he is submerged, others who watch his life-line. At the UPPER RIGHT is Diver Allen just after he came to the surface, his waterproof clothing ballooning. Almost in need of divers' suits are the two men at LOWER RIGHT. They are sawing these thick spiles three feet beneath the surface of the water. The water is 25 feet deep at the spot and they are suspended on a submerged raft to do their work.

50 Unemployed Given Work Relaying Rails

Work was begun today on the relaying of heavy rails on the C.N.R. spur line from Peterorough to Lakefield to carry the steady flow of nepheline from the quarry in the Blue Mountain at the east end of Stoney Lake.

D. E. Bell, local C.N.R. agent, confirmed the report this morning. "We have engaged fifty men from the city's relief list and will have work for them for ten days or two weeks until we get the heavier steel laid on the six miles of track," he said. "The rails were too light for the heavy loads of mineral from the quarry, and it was decided to put down a heavier material."

The action of the C.N.R. may be accepted as a promise of the continued shipment of nepheline from Lakefield through Peterborough and across the border.

Three Are Injured In Car Crash

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Aug. 20.—Albert Lacroix, 38-year-old resident of Eastview, near Ottawa, was rushed to Belleville General Hospital on Thursday afternoon, suffering from chest injuries and three fractured ribs sustained following a motor accident on No. 7 highway, one mile east of the village of Arden.

Lacroix was accompanying his twin three-year-old children, one of whom is blind, and the other a helpless victim of infantile paralysis to Orillia, where they were to be placed in an institution for treatment. The children, who were riding in the back seat of the car with their father were injured.

Following the accident the children were placed in the care of Captain T .E. Ruston, Children's Aid Superintendent, who arranged for transportation for the remainder of their journey to Orillia. The mayor of Eastview arranged for payment of any expenses occurred for the children's removal, via telephone to Captain Ruston.

Lacroix, with his children were travelling in a Blue Seal Company taxicab westward from Eastview to Orillia along No. 7 highway, when Ronald Papineau, driver of the car, after rounding a sharp curve, noticed a light truck travelling toward them on the wrong side of the road, according to a statement given by Papineau to Chief of Police Clair Hayes of Tweed who investigated the accident.

Attempting to avoid a collision, Papineau swung his car in a futile effort to avoid being struck, but the truck driven by Frank Conger of Arden, crashed the taxicab, driving it into the south ditch.

Lacroix was treated at the scene of the accident by Dr. Whytock of Sharbot Lake. Lacroix was anxious to continue on the journey to Orillia, but pain of his injuries proved too much, and he fainted away at Tweed, where he was examined by Dr. Doyle, who immediately ordered the injured man to hospital.

Chief of Police Hayes stated that charges were pending against Conger. Both car and truck were considerably damaged.

Frontier Guards Are Increased To Stop Exit Of Jews

BERLIN, AUG. 20—(AP)—More than 1,000 Austrian Jews, it was estimated today, have been smuggled into Switzerland the past month by the modern versions of the Scarlet Pimpernel and the underground railway.

Three hundred Swiss Frontier Guards are trying to cope with the problem and police in the northern Swiss cantons have been mobilized. France reinforced her guards at border points. Germans promised increased vigilance.

The migration has been helped by a secret organization of Germans and Austrians who, with earlier fugitives, supplied money and shelter for fugitives on the way to the borders, much as negro slaves were aided secretly to reach the Canadian border by the underground railway in American civil war days and as Frenchmen escaped to England during the French Revolution.

Jews, fearing for their future under the Nazi Regime, frequently are willing to take resperate chances to get away. Emigration from Germany has become inreasingly difficult as a result of International border regulations and German and Foreign laws, despite the expressed Nazi determination they must go.

The "underground" border traffic is particularly active near the Swiss town of Dispoldsau, whose limits extend five miles along the former Austrian border.

Suitabe Area.

Jewish men and women, young and old, have found this area suitable for fleeing Germany. Crossing the frontier is much more difficult in other places where the Rhine formers a natural boundary and is dangerous because of whilpools and treacherous currents.

Small groups of three or four Jews at first began entering Switzerland illegally. Then there were 20 to 50 in a band. When 48 successfully entered Wednesday night, the Swiss acted to increase the guards.

Some Jews have crossed the line by jumping from trainsw hich barely crawl along the border near Buchs. On a few have vailid travel paper. Some have birth certificates only.

They have arrived in Switzerland

Excitement Fatal To Mother Greeting Her Long-Absent Son

Glasgow, Aug. 20.

THE EXCITEMENT of welcoming home her son, Ralph Davidson of Vancouver, B. C., whom she had not seen for twenty-seven years, today proved fatal to Mrs. Davidson of Mount Road, Tweedmouth.

As the liner in which he was a passenger was entering the Clyde, Mrs. Davidson had a seizure and lost her voice. Arrived home, Davidson watched over his mother for five days and nights hoping she would recover sufficiently to be able to join a family reunion planned to coincide with her eighty-fourth birthday. Mrs. Davidson died today.

England Scores 89 Runs For One

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(CP Cable)—England had scored 89 runs for one wicket at lunch today in the fifth and final cricket test with Australia. Twenty thousand spectators saw England go to the wickets when Wally Hammond won the toss for the fourth successive time in the current international series.

Leonard Hutton, Yorkshire, and William Edrich, Middlesex, opened the innings but the latter went out leg-before wicket to W. J. O'Reilly with only 29 runs on the board. Maurice Leyland, another Yorkshireman and veteran international player, stayed with Hutton until lunch. At the interval Hutton was not out with 39 while Leyland, opposing Australia for the first time in the 1938 tests, was credited with 35.

Injuries weakened both teams. Don Bradman announced E. L. McCormick, Australia's fastest bowler, would be unable to play on account of neuritis.

Leslie Ames, England's sterling wicketkeeper, suffered a finger injury in a match against Leicestershire this week and in the same contest Douglas Wright hurt his bowling hand.

United States Likely Reword Neutrality Act

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's declaration the people of the United States would not stand idly by if Canada were attacked by a foreign power may result in a rewording of the Neutrality Act.

Informed observers predicted an attempt would be made in the next Congress to insert Canada among the nations excepted from application to the Act which gives the president power to declare neutrality when a state of war is deemed to exist between foreign nations.

Section four of the act excepts the American republics. It says: "This act shall not apply to an American republic or republics engaged in war against a non-American state or states, provided the American republic is not cooperating with a non-American state or states in such war."

Logical Consequence

Officials say that because Canada was not included in the term American Republics it may have to be mentioned specifically. This would be a logical consequence of President Roosevelt's declaration with regard to the Dominion some observers believe.

Hearings before the senate and house foreign affairs committees while the present neutrality law was in preparation disclosed a considerable opinion in favor of giving special consideration to Canada with regard to neutrality policy.

Some witnesses objected to the neutrality law on the grounds it might cut off United States trade with Canada if Great Britain were involved in war.

Secretary of State Hull is refusing to be drawn into a discussion as to whether President Roosevelt's declaration was an extension of the Monroe doctrine to Canada. The president said at a press conference he did not have that idea in mind

Retired Officers Are Called Up

BERLIN, Aug. 20—(CP-Havas)—Notices were posted in Berlin today calling on all retired and reserve army officers to register with the Berlin police prefect before Sept. 20.

The white placards, which attracted widespread attention, also called on officers on leave to register.

Exceptions are made for officers having the rank of Major-General, or higher, as well as those over 65. The officers, the notices said, will receive "Military cards" upon registration. The placards were signed by Count Wolf Heinrich Von Helldorf, the Berlin Police Prefect.

The orders affected only the Berlin region. It was not known immediately whether similar steps were taken throughout Germany.

Last Minute News Flashes

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. — A frame building, owned by Canadian Canners, situated near the vacant Cattelli Macaroni factory, was in flames here today and a general fire alarm was sent out. The blaze was still out of control at noon. One fireman was overcome by the dense smoke.

Arabs Invade Ancient Town Of Hebron, Destroy Bank Battle With British Troops

80 Tanks Are Sent Into Action With Hundreds Of Soldiers Largest Combat In Present Riots

JERUSALEM, Aug. 20 (CP-Havas).—Hundreds of Arabs today invaded the ancient town of Hebron, burned the post office and the Barclay's Bank building and engaged in a severe fight with British troops.

Fighting which began shortly before midnight continued into the morning. Eighty tanks went into action with hundreds of soldiers and aircraft.

It was the largest combat in the wave of Palestine disorders that has claimed a heavy toll in life and property during the past few months.

The Arabs seemed to have planned their attack systematically, looting and burning many buildings in the heart of the town.

The post office met the same fate. The Arabs then set up the home of the assistant police inspector, killed the guard and set fire to it.

Seized Ammunition

Mean while a large body of terrorists attacked police headquarters where they obtained ammunition and guns.

An armored police car, rushed to the scene of the disorders, was destroyed by the Arabs, who killed its driver.

Fighting followed in the city's streets on the whole Hebron area. No time was lost in getting British troops to the historic city, since it is only 21 miles southwest of Jerusalem.

The position of the city gave the Arabs full advantage of their attack. Situated in the deep narrow valley of Mamre, the city was the scene of serious disorders during the Arab riots of 1929.

Hebron is one of the oldest cities in Palestine, and in biblical history figures as the place where King David spent his seven-years' residence before conquering Jerusalem. It is the burial place of the patriarchs, Abraham. Issac and Jacob.

The city was occupied by British troops in December, 1917, two days before the fall of Jerusalem.

Serious terrorist attacks also occurred in other parts of Palestine. A man was killed when Jewish colonies in the Hedera region were attacked by outlaws. The raiders set crops afire. A Jewish auxiliary policeman was killed and five persons were wounded when terrorists attacked a Jewish bus in the Haifa district.

British authorities rushed 80 tanks into action, with hundreds of soldiers and aircraft, when the Arabs invaded Hebron.

Airplanes sought out the positions of organized bands and reported them to army headquarters. Authorities sent heavy reinforcements into the terrorized northern sections, trying to drive the bands into a pocket along the Syrian border. Arab casualties were reported heavy.

Reports said many Arabs were attempting to reach Syria with their wounded.

Perkins Bull Gives 2 Books To The Library

W. Perkins Bull, K.C., prominent Toronto barrister, presented two of his latest published books to the Peterborough Library, through his close friend, Alderman G. N. Gordon, K.C., when he visited the city on Friday to view the Exhibition, and was taken on a sightseeing drive to the beauty spots of Peterborough.

One of the books is entitled "From Brock to Currie," a story of the military development and exploits of Canadians in general and some of the Peel County men in particular, from 1791 to 1930. The book is dedicated to his brother, Major Jeffrey H. Bull. The second book also written by Mr. Bull, entitled "From Rattlesnake to Hockey," deals with sports in Canada in a historical way and sketches brief histories of many prominent athletes in Peel County from 1798 to 1934, and the book is affectionately dedicated to his four sons, Bertie, Michael, W. Perkins, Jr., and Thomas. It contains information on every sport in the entire realm of competition with its origin and method of play.

Athletic Family.

This volume also covers the athletic history of the author's four sons and their successes which were numerous as there was perhaps never a family where the four sons were so prominent in such a wide variety of sports.

The visitor also presented Mr. Gordon with a morocco-bound copy of his history of the Anglican Church in Canada, entitled, "From Strachan to Owen." All three books are autographed by the author. The first two will be handed to Mr. DelaFosse by Mr. Gordon to-day.

Mr. Bull and his party which included his son Bartle Bull, K.C., a barrister in London, England, and his wife, the Hon. Michele Hennessey, were guests of Mr. Gordon at the Peterborough Exhibition where Perkins Bull watched the judging of the Jersey cattle in which he has been actively interested for several years. Later they were escorted through the local plant of the Canadian General Electric Company by Thomas Glover, works accountant, Mr. Salmonsen being absent.

The sightseeing tour included a visit to Armour Memorial Park

Boy Would Run From Home So Father Chained Him Up

SUDBURY, Ont., Aug. 20—(CP)—A dream was shattered when their eldest son was killed three years ago by a motor car while he was playing in the street, so the parents pinned their hopes to the younger brother. Peter, now eight years old, the parents said today, explaining why they occasionally chained him by the ankle to a heavy timber in their back yard.

But Peter was not the first class student his brother had showed himself. The younger boy's marks were poorer and he would stay away from school, playing in the street and breaking windows, the father said today in broken English while his wife filled in the gaps of speech.

"There is no place for Peter to play but in the street, and I don't want that," the father said. "I tried to keep him home, for we were afraid he might get into an accident like his brother. But Peter doesn't do what he is told, so I had to tie him up in the yard. The neighbors thought it was cruel, but if a boy won't do what he is told, I have to do something."

Police released the boy from the chain in the yard after a neighbor complained. The boy said his father "caught him" about an hour before, accused him of running away and breaking windows and attached him by a heavy chain and padlock to the timber. It was the third time he was punished in this way, the boy said.

32,327 Attendance Carries "Ex" Close To Record

WITH A total attendance Friday of 10,044 as compared with 10,017 for the corresponding day last year, boosting the aggregate to 32,327 as against 28,855 for the three days in 1937, directors of the Exhibition just about gave up hope this morning of reaching 50,000, but they believed they were going to make a new record somewhere in the 40,000's. The figures announced by Fred Holmes this morning were:

Gate attendance	1938	1937
Children's Day	12,054	11,642
Second Day	10,229	7,226
Third Day	10,044	10,017
Total	32,327	28,885
Gain—3,442.

Returns With Rabbit

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 20.—(AP) Six-year-old Blair Hildebrand's pet rabbit dug out of its pen and ran away while the boy was ill. Alarmed because their son worried, Blair's parents searched fruitlessly for three days and then put "Ted," a 15-year-old hound, on the cold trail. Two hours later "Ted" returned, carrying the wriggling cottentail carefully in his mouth.

Release Of Kendrick Is Promised

British Minister Asked To See Man Leaves Reich

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(CP Cable)—The British embassy in Berlin has notified the foreign office that Captain Thomas Kendrick will be released this afternoon, it was announced today.

The announcement said the British ambassador, Sir Nevile Henderson, had been requested to see that Captain Kendrick leaves Germany at the earliest possible moment.

The laconic communique which closed the Kendrick incident so far as Germany is concerned, was issued by DNB, official German news agency. The announcement reads:

"The head of the passport division in the British Consulate General in Vienna, Captain Thomas Kendrick, has been arrested because there were proofs of his conducting espionage.

"The British ambassador who made inquiries into the case has been requested to see to it that Captain Kendrick leaves the Reich's confines within the shortest time possible."

No Apology Offered.

The Foreign Office had no details of the arrest and detention of the British official and no apology was received from the German Government.

(A brief communique issued in Berlin stated Captain Kendrick had been charged with espionage and ordered to leave the country immediately.)

Diplomatic machinery was set in motion on Friday to obtain liberation of Captain Kendrick, seized by the Gestapo (German Secret Police) while motoring to England on leave on Tuesday.

Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin, was instructed to inform the German Foreign Ministry the London Government took a serious view of the incident, and demanded a full and speedy explanation.

It was believed Captain Kendrick, passport officer at Vienna for 13 years, will continue his journey to London by motor, not arriving until Monday. When he was arrested his wife was also detained, but was permitted to return to their Vienna home. Captain Kendrick was held at the Hotel Metropole, Gestapo headquarters in the capital of the former Austria.

Whitby Plans Welcome To Greenwood

WHITBY, Aug. 20.—A civic reception will be extended to Viscount Greenwood when he visits his old home to dedicate a memorial plaque to his parents in All Saints' Anglican Church, it was decided at a special meeting of the Council yesterday. The unveiling ceremony will take place at a special service on the morning of Sunday, September 4.

It is understood that during his stay here, Viscount Greenwood and his party will be the guests of Joseph King, a former schoolmate.

Council decided to hold a civic welcome for Viscount Greenwood on Saturday, September 3, providing this was satisfactory, and Mayor Rowe was instructed to wire the Viscount at Montreal for confirmation of this arrangement.

Catholic Action Reaches Agreement With Fascists

ROME, Aug. 20 (A.P.). — The Fascist Party to-day announced an agreement ending the recently growing friction between Fascism and Catholic Action, lay organization of the Catholic Church.

The Fascist Party bulletin said that at a conference between Achille Starace, Fascist Party secretary, and Marquess Lamberto Vignoli, president of the Italian Catholic Action's central office, an agreement had been reached "to conform to the accords reached in 1931."

The 1931 accords ended an earlier dispute between Fascism and Catholic Action. The settlement that year permitted Catholic Action to function in Italy but limited its scope to purely religious and spiritual matters.

Catholic Action has been under attack recently by a part of the Fascist press.

Miss McConnell Wins Car On Third Night

Miss Laura McConnell, McFarlane avenue is the proud owner of a new Chevrolet car today. She held ticket number 94245, the first one drawn from the revolving churn at the Exhibition Grounds Friday night by Mayor James Hamilton.

Miss McConnell's home is in Emily Township where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William McConnell live, and she is employed as a domestic in the home of Claude Rogers, McFarlane avenue. When the ticket was announced the winner was enjoying the midget show of the midway and broke all records getting through the audience, and was assisted over the fence by willing hands as she sped towards the grandstand. She arrived before two minutes had elapsed with the single ticket gripped in her hand and an official of the midget show acting as running interference. She turned to thank the midway man, then was assisted to the truck where Dick Lush announced the winner's name, after Tom Brown, Exhibition President had checked the number and extended his congratulations.

Like Bill Gaskin who won the car on Thursday night, Miss McConnell does not own a car but can drive, and told the announcer she would have no trouble finding a place for the car last night. Miss McConnell had 36 tickets all told.

A tremendous crowd filled the grandstand to capacity and benches were placed between the race track fence and the edge of the vaudeville platform so that everyone was able to sit through the performance. Polly Ann, leader of the Revue, featuring seventeen dancing girls put on an entirely new show, and every number delighted the huge audience. Exhibition officials are confident that there will be ample seating accommodation even though 1000 more people over last night's number turn out for tonight's final performance.

where Mrs. Bartle Bull remarked the view was equal to anything on the Continent, with the possible exception of the Swiss Alps. She expressed the opinion there should be an open-air pavilion on the hill-top where women and children might rest and be protected from the sun by a canopy.

Previous books written by the Toronto barrister are "From Boyne to Brampton," a history of the Orange Order, "Spanduck" or "From Paganism to Davenport United," which is the history of a community and its religious, social and economic growth. On the press at the present time is "From Humming-Bird to Eagle," a novel account of bird life in Eastern Canada, combining the attraction of a reference work and a story. "From Ogle R. Gowan to Derry West" is the picturesque narrative of the Loyal Orange Association, with the ideals and manners of the men who have filled its ranks from year to year.

Death Adopts Him

Out To Keep Young

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho, Aug. 20—(AP).—Instructors gawked when they opened a learn-to-swim campaign here. Standing among a swarm of children was 76-year-old Gothold Knap. "Swimming's a good way to keep young," explained Knapp.

Shame-Faced Youth Requires Aid After Hopping Fence

THE BUSIEST of three days in the St. John Ambulance Tent on Friday saw a shame-faced youth admit success of the Exhibition's Board of Strategy for the Elimination of Indigent Children and Others. After dressing a severe jagged-wound, one of the voluntary workers obtained a confession. "I got it climbing over the fence," the sheepish youngster admitted. No policeman, the ambulance workers winked their official eye.

Most severe case of the day to be treated was that of a young lady struck across the nose with an iron bar on one of the midway rides. She received a fracture of one of the small bones in her nose, was referred to a surgeon for treatment. Stumbling over tent pegs and guy ropes was responsible for eight of the injuries treated.

Rescued Man Tries To Take Boat Of Guard

TORONTO, Aug. 20. — After being rescued from the lake at the foot of Woodbine Avenue last night and hauled into a life-saving boat, a man attempted to take the oars from Life Guard Robert Bell.

The life guard managed to row the boat to shore. As the boat got into shallow water the man put up a struggle and the guard blew his whistle, bringing several other guards from nearby beaches to the scene.

The life guards finally overpowered the man and turned him over to the police.

He gave the name of Leslie Graham, 32, of Winnipeg. He was employed by a Western racing stable quartered at Woodbine Park. His employer assured the police he could look after the man, and he was released in his charge.

Life Guard Bell was patrolling at the foot of Woodbine Avenue in a boat when he heard cries for help out in the water. He rowed to the man and hauled him into the boat. After getting him into the boat the rescued man put up a fight, insisting on taking the oars to row the boat out into the lake, but was overpowered by Bell.

Beggs Cow Wins Two Championships

Readers of the Examiner may remember a story from the Exhibition Park during the week about a Jersey cow so seriously overcome by the heat that a veterinary had to be called in severeal times Tuesday or Wednesday, and the herdsman, James Atkinson of Woodstock, was alarmed by the condition of the animal and worried about the chance of saving it.

This cow from the herd of D. J. Begg, of St. Thomas won the senior and grand championships in the Jersey class, against competition Mr. Atkinson regarded as about the strongest he had ever encountered since he was a boy.

"She didn't get started to eating again until Friday morning, and she went into the ring under a handicap, but as they say all's well that ends well," Mr. Atkinson commented to the Examiner this morning. "We brought sixteen head to Peterborough and every one of them got a piece of the prize money. I think it was Tuesday and Wednesday nights I stayed up most of the time watching the grand champion cow, as she turned out, taking her out into the cool air at times, and generally doing all I and the veterinary could to save her. And we did. She was in the aged class in milk, and personally I think she'd be hard to beat by any other in Canada."

In most cases the 10 marks ($4.00) permitted by Nazi law is their only money. Authorities said those caught did not try to resist but "as soon as they saw Swiss uniforms threw themselves at the border guards and shouted for joy at such assurance that they were on Swiss soil."

Although the Swiss have taken measures to stop illegal entry, those who have succeeded hitherto in crossing the frontier are being permitted to remain temporarily.

With Germany behind them, the refugees talk of emigrating farther—to France, Great Britain, the United States if possible.

Memorial Service Is Held At Grave Midway Worker Who Was Drowned

RECALLING A tragedy within their ranks three years ago, employees of Conklin Brothers' Midway held a short memorial service at the grave in the Little Lake Cemetery, of Donald McCaffery who was drowned one evening while swiming near the C. N. R. bridge at the end of Lansdowne Street. More than 250 men were present including the heads of the Midway, the general body of employees and some of the directors of the Exhibition. The grave was blanketed with flowers, and the service was conducted by Rev. Canon Paterson, who had conducted with the funeral service, and had led in the memorial each year. This morning's was the fourth time the Conklin staff assembled in the cemetery to pay a passing tribute of respect for the associate whose life was cut off suddenly in 1935.

Disorderly House Charge Laid

Melville Taylor, 26, of Burleigh Falls, pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to permitting his shack at Burleigh Falls to be used as a disorderly house, and George Mace, 21, also of Burleigh Falls, pleaded guilty to being "found in." The latter pleaded not guilty to a second charge of supplying liquor to a fifteen-year-old girl.

The two were remanded until Monday morning for sentence.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 20—(CP). — A closing spurt that carried Winnipeg wheat prices from fractionally lower levels up to slight gains featured a drab session yesterday. Ten minutes before the close, prices advanced ⅜ cent to the day's top level. At the close quotations were three-eighths cent to one-eighth higher, with October at 67⅝, November 67¾a, December 67⅜ and May 70¼.

Liverpool was firm at the start, but later declined and was ¼d lower at the finish. Buenos Aires showed strength, holding a gain of ⅛ cent at noon.

WEEK'S REVIEW OF WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG, Aug. 20—(CP). — Trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange during the past week reflected uncertainties of the European political situation with nervous covering and commission house buying in evidence at times.

Operations were generally drab with spreading operations comprising the bulk of trade. Futures prices Friday closed ⅞ to 1⅞ lower for the week. October at 67⅝ cents, November 67¾, December 67⅝ and May 70¼.

Export demand was fairly brisk with the week's sales placed at 1,000,000 bushels, most of it new crop wheat. Selling by elevator interests, believed to represent hedging was in evidence, but was not important.

Crop information in North America produced nothing startling. Scattered showers appeared almost daily in Western Canada, retarding harvesting operations, but generally this factor was ignored in the pits. The American Spring wheat crop is being harvested under fairly good conditions, with a crop of around 270,000,000 bushels indicated.

Reports the United States Government might subsidize exports was an unsettling influence early in the week and induced cautionness and nervousness in the Winnipeg market. The reports were taken as an indication of keen competition in world export markets this season.

Cheesman Flies Sick Woman Out

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 20 (CP).—Port Arthur's flying alderman, Al Cheesman, who accompanied Sir Hubert Wilkins last fall on his Arctic Circle search for the lost Russian airmen, Sigismund Levanevffsky and his five comrades, has added another flying feat to his record.

Responding to an emergency call Thursday night from Kawene, Ont., 100 miles west of Port Arthur, where Mrs. John Bickford was stricken ill, Cheesman braved night flying above the rugged bush country. He flew to Kawane and returned in three hours with the sick woman.

Miss Margaret Allen Is Honored Bride-Elect

Miss Phyllis Whatley, of 478 Mark street, was hostess at a miscellaneous shower given Friday evening in honor of Miss Margaret Allen, whose marriage to Mr. Cyril E. Whatley is arranged to take place the third of September.

Rainbow streamers of crepe paper reached from the centre of the room to a table on which shower gifts were piled, and after the daintily wrapped gifts had been presented, the evening was spent in games and contests, and lunch served by the hostess.

Clements—Myers

A pretty wedding was solemnized at George Street United Church Parsonage on August 13, Rev. M. C. Parr officiating, when Marguerite Viola, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Myers, Warkworth, was united in marriage to Ivan S. Clements of Warsaw.

The young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Millage of Lakefield.

The bride was becomingly attired in a rust and beige suit with matching accessories, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas.

Program Enjoyed At Miscellaneous Shower

Miss Claire Killoran and Miss Dorothy Dodds were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower held at Miss Dodds' home at 225 Engleburn avenue this week for Miss Jean Millen, whose marriage takes place next month.

The many lovely gifts were drawn in by little Beverley Anne Lillico in a prettily decorated basket of pink and white. Following the presentation of gifts, a program, in which Miss Viola Sexsmith entertained the guests with several vocal solos, and piano selections were given by Miss Thelma Harris, Miss Lillian Mason and Miss Violet Britnell, was much enjoyed. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses to about 50 guests, which included girl friends of the bride-elect from the Westclox, her business associates.

Dunham—Sutton

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 20.—A quiet wedding took place at the rectory of Christ Church, (Anglican) when Rev. T. H. Floyd joined together in holy wedlock Elsie Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sutton, River Road, to Gordon Thomas Dunham, son of Mrs. Margaret Dunham and the late George Dunham of Healey Falls.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a navy sheer dress with matching accessories and tailored felt hat. On her dress she wore a corsage of sweetheart roses and fern. Mrs. Charles Collard, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, wearing a wine-colored crepe dress and accessories to match. Mr. Charles Collard assisted the groom.

We Noticed

Chic Play Clothes Picked in August Sales

By LISBETH

IT'S NOT too late yet to pick up some pertty swanky play clothes in which to frolic for the rest of the season.

The active sports dress, left, could be worn as a house dress after the season for tennis and whatnot is over. It is made of printed silk crepe, polka dots on luggage tan, with hollow sleeve pleats and princess lines. The straw sun bonnet is cute, isn't it?

Polka dots are used for the design of the other suit, too, as chic a little play suit as you've seen all summer. It is in one piece and shows white polka dots on turquoise silk crepe.

The dirndl influence has been at work everywhere, it seems, and is appearing even in ski wear. Hip-length jackets are in suede and cotton are shirred at the waistline. Elastic worked through a drawstring tunnel is used to gather these jackets at the waist.

For golfers there is the boxy bush jacket, or the packet worn like Giddy Giddy Gout, with its shirt-tails out. It comes in supple suede or chamois. Short sleeves make these little jackets ever so interesting.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Upon every fact is written the record of the life the man or woman has led; the prayers, the aspirations, the disappointments, all they hoped to be and were not —all are written there; nothing is hidden, nor indeed can be."

—O. S. Marden.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes people think they are getting away with the things they do, the discourtesies, rudenesses, incivilities. But you carry the record of these things in your face, no matter how you try to hide them by false smiles, and falser actions.

Your weaknesses show up there, your lack of sincerity shows mostly in your eyes. But don't forget there are many people who can look you straight in the eye, while there is not a true note in them.

And, don't forget, if your bad points show on your face, so also do your good points. If your weaknesses are visible, so also are your greatnesses. Each one of us show these things, none of us escape.

So, when we know all that, the only one we fool are ourselves when we don't do the right thing, yet want to pose before others as being so upright. The money lovers show themselves, the little crawly natures are so obvious. Meanness shows through outward generosity, cowardliness through apparently bravery.

And each and everyone of us are inclined to put our own face value on others. The mean one thinks all others are mean, the money-lovers imagine people want to take some of it away from them.

The cowardly think all men are base, and the insincere see the same thing in their fellowmen. The only way we can ever know ourselves is in studying others, copying the good we see, and discarding the bad.

That is why so many generous people are taken in, they take people to be like themselves, even although they may be good judges of human nature, and good readers of character. They are so afraid they may be reading the signs wrong, and so they get fooled time and again.

You may think your sorrows do not show, especially if your countenance is smooth, and your complexion clear, but your eyes give you away. I remember going to a doctor when I was feeling wretched.

I had a nice glow in my face, my eyes seemed to sparkle, and one look at me and you would have said, "What a healthy woman she is." And I though to myself, what chance have I of his finding out what ails me, looking as I do?

But he was very kind, and told me to take off my glasses, then he looked deep into my eyes. I told him that due to low blood-pressure I rarely run a temperature, but he found I was running one of 103 at that time, and that an operation was urgently needed, so I had two inside of four days, and another four months later.

He had "the seeing eye, and the hearing ear." And we too need both these things when we study our faces in the mirror. We need to jack ourselves up in our habits if we don't want to give ourselves away to others.

We need to show more kindness, to be bigger in our ways, not to forget that we cannot be a lamb in wolf's clothing, for sometimes the wolf-skin will slip, or our eyes will show we are no lamb. Neither can we grouch at home, then seem to be so kind away from home.

Paint or powder will not cover us, ill-nature will show through. Pulling a mask of geniality will not do, for every so often it will slip and the real person peers forth. Pretence will not work, for the evidence is there for all to see, the record of us as we are. So, look at your face, everyone else does.

Your Friends,, ROBERTA.

Thoughts For The Business Girl

What are you doing, holding down a job or filling a position? And for where are you headed, or are you just drifting along with the tide of business?

If you are interested enough in your future to consider these questions seriously, you may think further; and if you do you will find yourself some day washed up high and dry, like driftwood on a barren shore.

Business conditions are continually changing—new methods are constantly replacing old methods. New ideas, new plans are ever being introduced and adopted. Do you expect to go round and round in the same old track indefinitely? Indefinitely; what a harribly vague and uncertain word! Tracks, especially round ones, eventually become grooves, and grooves are but graves. You don't want to be a dead one in an open grave. You can't be a live one in a grave.

Don't settle down to the apparently comfortable routine of a pleasant work; don't feel too secure because of a present good salary.

The firm may be at the moment perfectly satisfied with you and your work, or it may only be too occupied with a general prosperity or too harassed with greater problems to question your usefulness to it. Or it may be that the firm is slow to discard old methods, old employees. Think about these things — but "think," "don't worry." Thinking and worrying are two different things; when you worry you cant think. When you really think, calmly, logically and without fear you act and act intelligently.

We woman of today must leave a heritage of common sense, courage and initiative in business for the women who shall come after us, and we must give evidence of our value as business women by protecting our futures.

You can do all this by being alert, by keeping informed on all the conditions in your particular business, especially those that affect your work.

Learn all you can about allied businesses and their requirements of employees. Specialize by study, and practical work if you can, in one thing in your present business, or in something that is allied with it and should mean eventually a chance of advancement, a change of position to more congenial work, to better pay, to a secure future. A job holder drifts from one character of business to another, with no thought in mind but the present weekly pay.

The girl or the women who is determined to be a factor in business makes a place for herself by gaining experience and knowledge in one particular business and its allied interests, and then, by intelligent effort, keeps moving onward and upward to the goal of her ambition.

Marriage Is No Cure For Jealousy, So If Your Young Man Shows Too Violent An Attack Of It Before The Wedding Better Not Make the Trip to the Altar

DEAR MISS DIX—I went with a boy for four years whose only fault was that he was extremely jealous. He never wanted me to speak to a boy or even to go with other girls; he even made me give up my chum I had grown up with. I married him because he told me he would not be jealous after we were married but I find that he is worse than ever. If I go to town, he asks me where I went, why I stayed so long, whom I saw, and accuses me of meeting strange men and running after them. He phones the house several times a day and, if I am not there, he thinks I am out with a man. I have only been married seven months and I feel that I can't stand a lifetime of this. Won't you please tell me something I can do to make him realize that I am human?

DISGUSTED BRIDE.

ANSWER:

Sometimes I think that when a woman falls in love her brain ceases to function and she becomes, for the time being at least an idiot incapable of knowing "the nature and quality of her acts," as the law says in defining the mentally incompetent.

How else, except that she has taken leave of her senses, can you explain a girl marrying a man so jealous that he has already shown her that he will be a grinding tyrant who will deprive her of all association with any one but himself; who has already made her give up her best friend; who will not even let her speak to other women, and who has insulted her past forgiveness by his suspicions?

And certainly you would think that a girl with a grain of gumption left would not be silly and credulous enough to believe that such a man would change after marriage, for she would know that marriage is no cure for jealousy. It incites it rather than soothes it, because jealousy is founded on egotism and a sense of possession, and anything that threatens that is just so much fuel on the flames. A jealous husband is always a hundred times more green-eyed than a jealous lover.

You had your warning and you refused to heed it. Now you are paying the price, which is one that will make you miserable as long as you live with your jealous husband. There is no cure for jealousy. There is nothing that you can possibly say to your husband that will change him, no plea that you can make that will touch his heart, no sense of fairness or justice to which you can appeal. No consideration for your happiness will ever even enter his mind. That he is making you wretched and spoiling your life will not matter to him in the least.

There is nothing that you can do to allay his jealousy. No matter how circumspect your conduct, he will always believe you guilty of some crime. You may be as chaste as Caesar's wife and he will accuse you of unspeakable vileness. You won't even be able to speak to your mother without his eavesdropping. He will open every letter to see if you are not carrying on some clandestine affair.

Whether jealous people are themselves devoid of all decent feeling and judge others by themselves, I do not know, but I do know that I have never known a jealous person who did not believe his or her wife or husband to be a liar and a libertine, without honor, or honesty, or loyalty and utterly unworthy of any trust, and who did not hesitate to accuse their mates of the lowest crimes.

Nothing else in the world will so surely wreck a marriage as jealousy. It is the one thing that any girl or boy should be on the lookout for in selecting a mate, and when they perceive even the slightest tinge of green in the eyes of the ones they love they should be warned in time and call the marriage off.

DEAR MISS DIX—I work at a cigar counter in a hotel and I am very much in love with the clerk who works with me. He is the finest fellow I ever knew and we are the best of friends, but that is as far as it goes. He doesn't notice me at all. I make myself as attractive as I can. I wear the colors that I know he likes, but he never pays any more attention to me than if I were a boy. How can I make him see me as a girl and not somebody who just works with him?

TROUBLED.

ANSWER:

Nobody can tell a girl any surefire way of turning an indifferent man into a fiery lover. There are no lists of "do this" and "don't do that" can be guaranteed to attract a boy to a girl, because no man knows just what it is that makes him fall for a girl, or pass her up. He just does it.

Many a girl takes the water route to the altar. When a man gets suspicious of her intentions and tries to break with her, she weeps over losing him and because she loves him so much, until he melts down into a soggy mass of complaisance and dries her tears on a marriage license.

Many a girl attracts the attention of the man who has never noticed her by flouting him. All the other girls are yes-yesing him, she no-noes him. She refuses dates. She sasses him. And just because she runs away from him, he runs after her and lands in her trap.

Many other girls play a waiting game. They disguise their purpose under the guise of platonic friendship. They never talk sentiment or look romantic. They are all business. They are just nice, pretty, chirpy little helpers who are always amusing to talk to and interested in what the man is interested in, and they make a lunch taste so much better when they are along. They are just like a boy chum, only better. Then some day something happens that makes the poor blind man see that Sally isn't a boy after all, and it is all over but sending out the wedding invitations. So take your choice of methods.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am of a rather dour nature and a poor mixer. Though I am happy to be as I am, will my inability to make friends be a hindrance to me in the business world?

ETTA.

ANSWER:

It will be one of the greatest handicaps you can possibly have. Kissing goes by favor, as the old proverb says, and people will do things for you because they like you that they would never do because it is your right.

DOROTHY DIX.

Fashions

What an urge for cool frocks seems to course through us when the mercury rises. And how one is attracted to the new looking cool collarless neckline and brief sleeved models, as to-day's lovely pattern. It is made of a gay multi-colored sheer cotton on a cool and frosty white ground. The intriguing soft feminine neckline is exceedingly flattering. It's a dress one enjoys wearing in or out of town. Other fascinating schemes are dotted Swiss with navy or luggage background, hopsacking weaves, and washable silks. Black crepe marocain is stunning for early autumn in the long sleeved version.

Style No. 2757 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material.

What About Your Manners?

Q. When passing a cream pitcher, syrup pitcher, or any such article, should the handle be turned towards the one who is to receive it?

A. Yes, always, just the same as in handing a person an open knife.

Q. Should wedding gifts be sent to the bride or the bridegroom?

A. All gifts are sent to the bride, never to the groom.

Q. What is the correct pronunciation of valet?

A. The preferred pronunciation is val-et, a as in add, e as in let, accent first syllable.

Q. Is it proper to have a monogram on the envelope of social stationery?

A. No; the monogram should appear only on the note paper.

Q. What tip should be given to a porter who carries luggage to or from a train?

A. Twenty-five to fifty cents, according to the number and weight of the pieces of luggage.

Q. Is it necessary for a woman to keep her hat on at a bridge party?

A. No; if she wishes, she may remove it.

What Would Happen?

Sir Henry Page-Croft, British parliamentarian is making a study of conditions in various parts of Canada with a view to mass immigration. He was speaking to a gathering in Prince Rupert telling what would happen if there were 10,000 British settlers and their families placed in the coast province backed by a capital of $25,000,000. The coming of so many people would in itself make the province prosperous. Sir Henry argues the case this way:

"Those 10,000 settlers with their wives and families would at once require livestock. They would need at least 20,000 horses, 50,000 dairy cows, 10,000 head of swine and 10,000 poultry. They would need machinery for land clearing and road-making, they would require materials for fencing, for furniture, for clothing and food, and all the hundred and one articles necessary for civilized life.'

One might be ready enough to admit at first glance that Sir Henry Page-Croft was setting forth an attractive scheme. People like to hear about people coming into the country with a good deal of purchasing power behind them. There are plenty of people in Canada who would probably be glad enough to sell these new settlers everything they needed; they would welcome the opportunity to supply these customers and share in the dollars which they had brought with them.

When the scheme is sifted a little more one finds that 10,000 settlers and their families would possibly use all the money mentioned in making a start, and afterward they would have to go ahead and attend to their own financing. They would have to grow something, produce something or make something which they could sell and secure sufficient revenue to make themselves self-sustaining.

At the moment there are many people in British Columbia who are not in that class. Whether they should be or could be is something on which we cannot speak with assurance. All we know is they are not in the self-sustaining class and provision has to be made for them out of public funds.

One does not desire to anticipate failure for any scheme such as this British parliamentarian suggests, but the whole plan will rise or fall on the class of people selected for such a project. If they can endure hardship for a season and look forward to the time when they can at least make a living for themselves all might be well. If they are inclined to lean upon the assistance they know will be theirs and show a tendency to continue leaning after it has been exhausted then the plan will never succeed. Picking 10,000 settlers who will not be leaners is quite an assignment for any man to tackle.

The Games Of Chance

Being a Director of an exhibition the size of the one operating in Peterborough is not merely a matter of wearing a badge and walking around the grounds. It means getting blamed for everything which goes wrong. Every fall fair board has for years faced the same problem in operating a midway. There always has to be a cleaning out of the games which come along to the fair. A good many people are ready to try their luck at fair games, but they soon come to know when they are playing at a game where they have no chance to win. It is at such places people go and reach the point where they are cleaned out and when they reach that stage they begin to make complaints and state their case. If they had been winning they would have said nothing about it.

The weakness about the games of chance is that it is difficult to defend them on any sound and logical grounds. For a good many years there has been considerable latitude extended to fall fairs generally. It was claimed they needed the midway attractions to draw the crowd and entertain the people, and the rentals they received plus the added gate receipts went a long way toward providing the necessary finances.

The history of the games of chance is pretty much the same. Officials and inspectors will go through the place and close down on those which they know are unfair but the chances are that in the meantime a good many people have found out the unfairness by having parted with their money.

If people would stop and think for a moment they would come to the conclusion that games of chance are not operated for the benefit of the public. The people who operate the games know how they work; they are well enough aware of the odds which are in their favor. They do not travel from place to place for the purpose of giving away to the people more money than they take from them. The operator knows well enough he is going to make money, otherwise we can think of no one reason why he should desire to operate a game of chance at a fall fair or elsewhere.

The individual who comes to the point where he realizes he cannot beat these games is the one who can walk safely. As long as there are attractions at fall fairs so long will the directors be somewhat on the spot. They will weed out the ones which are too heavily and surely loaded against the public, but they are always left with the problem of deciding what to do for people who want entertainment and yet who have not arrived at the point that they have become convinced that it is not possible to beat a man who is playing at his own game.

Worth 2 1-2 Cents An Hour

One event generally leans against another. Brantford is apparently operating buses now as well as street cars, and the Street Railwaymen's Union has asked for an increase in wages for the men who operate buses. They suggested they should get five cents an hour more than the men who were running street cars, and in the end they were given an additional 2 1-2 cents per hour.

The contention was that it was worth more money to make a bus go straight and keep on going where it ought to go. The extra skill and energy required was worth an extra five cents an hour.

A man operating a street car hasn't got to make the thing go straight. All he does is turn on the tap and the rails do the rest. So it is that negotiations at Brantford have demonstrated that steering a bus is worth 2 1-2 cents per hour more than making a street car go. We are learning something or other every day, so thus endeth today's lesson.

Odd Points In Law

It does look as though "leaving the scene of an accident" is a crime at one place, but a few feet away it is not so classed. A motorist was in court at Hamilton and there were several charges against him.

The driver pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge and was fined $15 and costs or 21 days in jail. The particular brand of driving had resulted in several things happening. The car had gone through the hedge on a property at the roadside and then crashed into the verandah of the house, after which the driver had gone on his way. He had failed to remain at the scene of an accident.

But the magistrate could not convict on that count, because the "leaving the scene" charge is good only on the highway, and after the car had jumped the curb and left the highway it was on private property. It was all contained in one and the same bit of driving, but part of the driving was here and part of it was there.

Then there was another case in Toronto where an employe of an oil and gas company was charged in court with having worked on the Sabbath day. He was delivering gas from a big tank to a service station and was late; he did not complete his work until 3 o'clock on Sunday morning.

The magistrate did not convict. He wanted to know if the same police scrutiny had been extended to all gas stations, and was informed it was not. Then he wanted to know if the gas which had been delivered was not going to be sold on Sunday and the answer was in the affirmative. The bench was not able to see a clear line between delivering gas at 3 o'clock Sunday morning and selling it on Sunday. Often enough the magistrates have some interesting points to ponder and decide.

He Has Something To Say

William Mitchell, described as one of the best-known fruit growers of the Grimsby district has been talking plainly about the way in which peaches are being marketed. His complaint is that the fruit is taken from the trees when it is green and not fit for use, and then a red netting is placed over the basket to give the impression that the peaches are ripe. Mr. Mitchell says they might as well be putting as many stones or sticks in the basket, and he also says plainly they might just as well be stealing the money the consumer pays for such stuff as he is not getting value for his outlay.

If one desired to have a little more of Mr. Mitchell's opinions it is worth noting that he says he has seen green fruit going out in recent days because each grower wants to beat the other to the early market and "the stuff should be sent to China or Japan to be used for bullets."

We are certain enough housewives will agree with what Mr. Mitchell has to say about putting green fruit in a basket and then covering the container with a red netting to make it look as though the contents were ripe. Just why that form of juggled marketing should be permitted is something we have never been able to understand.

As It Was On The Tenth

We read something in a weekly paper from Western Ontario the other day and it told about plans for the fall fair, which does not come for a month or so yet. The committee making rules had put in a new one saying that grain exhibited could not be hand-sorted. It would have to "be a fair sample of grain as it came from the separator."

That used to be a point for a good deal of discussion on the Tenth Concession when fall fair time was coming near. Grandfather had some good wheat land; it grew good straw and filled nice heads and it was fairly plump. But he found other people along the Tenth were beating him at the fall fair although they were not taking out as many bushels per acre nor did a bushel of their wheat weigh up to his.

Then it was that the hired man spilled the news that they were hand sorting their wheat. Hired men have a way of knowing almost anything that takes place along the concession; at least it used to work out that way. When the weekly paper came to the home with news from the Tenth Concession the hired man used to read it and snort, and then he'd say he knew all that days ago. So he reported that the kitchen tables were cleared along the Tenth and the whole family set to work to pick out a bushel of the plumpest wheat they could find—one piece at a time. They said they were picking it that way for next year's seed, but the hired man snorted again and said they were picking it over to show at all the fairs within driving distance.

Grandfather never did approve of that but he allowed it to be done and he accepted the prize ticket when his hand-picked wheat was shown and asked no questions. Perhaps the knowledge that he had no part in the process helped to ease his conscience.

But he had a way of growing mangolds which resulted in the half dozen he exhibited being much greater than the average crop in the field. After the roots had been thinned he kept on watching them for a spell, and then picked on eight or ten which looked as though they had a lot of health and energy in them. Then he thinned the others out and dug a trench around the few selects. The trench was kept a fair distance back and was a foot or so deep, and into it was packed fertilizer—otherwise barnyard manure. If there was a drought on it never touched those pet mangolds because that trench had to be kept moist. The mangolds seemed to catch the idea for they grew and kept on growing. Most of them had to be banked up a bit as they looked as though they might get top heavy and heave themselves out of the ground. Those mangolds were never taken out until late afternoon before the fair day, and out of the ten selected grandfather used to attend to picking the half dozen which were going to the fair to be exhibited as what was being done on Lot 4, Concession Ten. He never did like the idea of hand-picking the wheat, but he went whole-heartedly into the business of growing a few mangolds which would have made fair-sized fence posts. Come to think of it, the name used to be Gate Post mangolds. Whether they grow them now we don't know. But they did on the Tenth.

NOTE AND COMMENT

From Nevada comes a story that the crickets there are devouring the rattlesnakes. Evidently the side with the heaviest armament does not always win.

It is reported that white blueberries have been discovered in the Porcupine district. We would like to know what color they are when they are green.

It would be interesting to know how the Attorney-General would react should the Oshawa police round up a score or two of vagrants and have them all committed to the Ontario county jail.

Perhaps the reason Mr. Hepburn did not go to welcome Mr. Roosevelt was that he was afraid he would not be able to withstand the pressure of the President's engaging personality.

Epidemics are breaking out in China and one of the causes is said to be the number of dead people in the wells. We realize that information of that sort may be offensive to sensitive readers, but war is hell and there is no use trying to disguise that fact.

London, Ont., man speaking in Toronto said "The trouble with most ministers is that they pray for 20 minutes at a stretch." We don't believe it. The London man was away from home for the day and felt he had to say something out of the way.

HOBO MEN

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The hobo men come to my door, like what they've always done before, complain about the heat; they all look like some rusty gent, who does not own a battered cent, with blisters on the feet.

¶ I go and fill the kettle then, and talk with these hard faring men, through holes I see their toes; and every one chants his refrain, and speaks in terms of grief and pain, and tells me of his woes.

¶ I fill them with great chunks of cheese, to try and strengthen up their knees, I feed them apple pie; I pour for them good cups of tea, they gulp them down with strident glee, and sadness leaves the eye.

¶ And in between they spin their yarn, of dogs that chase them from the farm, of nights upon the hay; of constibules who head them off, and at their stories laugh and scoff, and chase them on their way.

¶ I wish at times they'd change their gait, nor always chant a hymn of hate, and spill on me their woe; the hobo man must find in time, a door that's opened up like mine, where he can come and go.

¶ All through the harvest time they roam, these men who have no friends or home, it's hard to understand; 'twould build my faith could I see one, who toiled beneath the summer sun—a pitchfork in his ha

Nothing To Eat Little To Wear

(By H. Dingman in Globe and Mail)

HALIFAX, N. S.—Come along and see these people, see the inhuman, un-Christian thing that is happening to these families whose forefathers settled the North American Continent before there was a Dominion or a United States.

Come to Terence Bay, only twenty miles from the old garrison city of Halifax. Out of the hundreds of villages up and down this coast we picked it because things were supposed to be "pretty good" in the villages where the fishermen are close to a market.

What we found in Terence is typical of scores of villages along the coast. Terrible want. A scarcity of fresh vegetables and milk and fresh meat. A standard of living far below the relief allowance of any family in any city.

Here in Terence Bay a five-weeks-old baby lies in the lean-to of a fisherman's shanty, open sores on its tiny hands and arms and face. We sat there an hour talking to the fisherman and his wife. The baby hardly moved, never whimpered. It was sickly. It might live.

There was no food in the shack.

Eight Live in Lean-to.

In the lean-to, nine feet by twelve at the most, lived eight human beings—the fisherman, his wife and six children. All six born without doctor's care or even a midwife's.

Through the open doorway we could see thirty or forty more shacks, all about the same. All weather-beaten and falling to pieces. They have been standing for sixty or seventy years.

In the shanty owned by Lincoln M. Harris, where we sat, the winds blew through great chinks in the walls. (Warm now in summer, but how cold in winter!) There was no bed, no bedding. Two benches against the wall, three straight-backed chairs on shaky legs, a table, a rusty, ancient stove that could be used only for fry cooking, and an oil lamp with the glass chimney long ago smashed so that the black, oily smoke choked the lungs and made them cough incessantly.

A little boy, perhaps 4 years, sat nearby, eyes dancing with excitement at the sight of strangers in the tiny village. "What's the matter with his neck?" we asked.

"Malignant."

"'Rough neck'," answered his father, reluctant and unwilling to talk. "He's been that way some time."

In the dimness of the little room we peered closer. Ugly black scales covered his neck up to his tiny chin. Malignant. The answer was written all over his puny body, his skinny legs and arms and the deep black rings around his eyes. No milk. No vegetables. No fresh meats. Sleeping on damp floors, shivering under old sacks. For there were no blankets.

"You can't farm here?"

"Farm," cried the fisherman. "Look out there." We looked. The whole coast as far as the eye could see was rock, without an inch of top soil. A tough green grass was growing there, nothing else. "Even the grass has a hell of a time," said Harris.

"Come," he said, "Look here. I'm not ashamed any more." We took three steps across the room as he opened another door. The front room was square, perhaps twelve by twelve. Curtains hung on the windows, pictures on the walls.

Floor Just a Hole.

From the four sides the floor sagged to a black hole in the centre, where the rotten boards had collapsed. There was water beneath the flooring and the long tough grass was growing. This was their parlor. On the right a stairway had led to the upper room in the house. But the staircase hung in the air, a grotesque thing. The last few steps had snapped off when the floor caved.

"It's been that way since winter," said the fisherman. "The water down there," pointing to the black hole, "froze. That's why it was so cold sleeping on the floor out here in the shed."

"Couldn't it be repaired?"

His face flushed red with anger. "I haven't got five cents to buy nails," he said. "I haven't got a dollar to buy a few sticks of wood. If I had a dollar I'd eat."

His explanations came in brief jerky sentences, charged with deep emotion. For to dwell upon the naked misery of his family weakened his stoicism and the reserve of strength that had carried him through all the years of fishing on the Atlantic in open dories, with fish selling at a half-cent and a cent a pound. And his wife and kids hungry most of the time, and the scabs growing on the little bodies.

Hunger Everywhere.

He closed the door to the front room and we went back to our seats in the shed, to resume the slow questioning and the prompting. But we had had enough. For days the wretched story had been dinned into us up and down this coast. Hunger in every village. Squalid huts far worse than Toronto's slums. Leaky boats with sputtering engines that should not venture three, let alone twenty miles out on the open sea.

"Why? Why? Why?"

We almost screamed it.

"Why?" answered the fisherman. "We have nothing here. Nothing. Many a day we go without anything to eat. When I say without anything I mean without a crumb of bread. We," he looked with dull eyes across the room to his wife, "just sit here sometimes looking at each other, with the kids crying."

"And the fishing?"

"There is none now. It's summertime and not much doing. This year has been worse than since I can remember. But in the winter there's fish all right, but no price. Fifty cents a hundred (pounds) or may be a dollar. Not enough to buy food with. And we have gas to buy, and bait. And clothes. We have none hardly, not any that's warm."

UNEXPECTED

"Now, children," said father, "tell me who has been most obedient during the last month, and done everything mother asked him to do?"

"You, daddy," the eldest replied.

• Mr. Hepburn vs. Mr. King

(Brantford Expositor)

THE RIFT IN THE Liberal lute has become wider. Many people declined, a few months ago, to regard as serious the designation of party members as "Hepburn Liberals" and "Mackenzie King Liberals." And, admittedly, the then existing tension between the Provincial and Federal leaders did appear as a bit of political stage-play.

Premier Hepburn, however, has been rather unrelenting in his criticisms of the Dominion Government whenever the latter administration did something that displeased him. Now the breach has assumed more serious proportions, as a result of Mr. Hepburn advising the Prime Minister and the Rowell Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations that the Ontario Government does not intend to participate, henceforth, in the Commission's sittings.

Premier Hepburn doubtless is under some provocation, as, indeed, is everyone. Mr. Mackenzie King's Government does appear to have been aggravatingly slow in approaching a number of vital national problems, one of which is that of unemployment and unemployment relief. The inclination at the Capital seems to have been to appoint a Commission and hope for the best, which, after all, differs little, in its ultimate effect, from the attitude of the famed Mr. Micawber, except that the larger gentleman dispensed with the formality of naming a commission.

Mr. Hepburn's latest attack on Federal policy was evidently inspired, or aggravated, by the Barry's Bay speech of the new Conservative chieftain, Hon. R. J. Manion, who pointedly advocated assumption of the entire relief responsibility by Ottawa.

Subscribing to essentially the same view, Mr. Hepburn complains that the Ottawa administration promised to do just that before the last general election. No such course having been followed, Mr. Hepburn accuses the King Government of having shirked its responsibility.

Without accepting, unamended, Dr. Manion's "blanket" plan, it is easy to understand Mr. Hepburn's annoyance and impatience. At the same time, to say the least, he has not been tactful. His critics at the Capital will doubtless counter with the accusation that he is assuming an "I-won't-play" attitude.

Certainly Mr. Hepburn is inclined to rashness and too often makes the mistake of "talking out of turn". Also his present attitude is scarcely consistent with his recent West-coast advocacy of national unity. Nor can his tactics be expected to improve the Party morale, as a whole.

Perhaps, however, his words and action may act as a timely goad, and impress upon the Federal Government the realization that the people are becoming restive, that something more than long but merely talkative sessions of Parliament are demanded, and that something more productive of results than academic inquiries will be required to speed the way to recovery.

• Only Cut Once A Season

(From the New York Times)

IT MAY BE that one of the cruelest forms of slavery still existing in these United States is about to be abolished. This is the slavery imposed on the householder forced out in the blazing sun to mow his lawn. Oddly enough, it would be no chore at all in Wintertime, at least before the snow falls—just a brisk stretch of invigorating exercise. But in July and August it is one of the most efficient perspiration-inducers known to science.

Perhaps we have been cultivating the wrong kinds of grass, species that thrive only with constant application of the lawn mower and the sprinkler.

The search for a velvety lawn culminated in the bent grassers which depend on heavy fertilizing, frequent watering and close clipping. Kentucky blue grass is considered the best, but it should be cut every other week and freely watered. In the old days camomile, which exudes a delicious ripe apple fragrance, and thyme, which has an even more pronounced odor, were considered good enough. Even before the lawn mower arrived, however, these required the ministration of the sickle and scythe.

Now, according to horticultural experts, the "turfing daisy" is coming to make life easier for the man of the house.

It is said to develop rapidly into a close mat of foliage never more than two inches high and of a rich green hue. It grows wherever ordinarily lawn grass will sustain itself.

And it has virtues beyond the dreams of the most imaginative household. It does not require any water except that supplied from the sky. And it has to be mowed exactly once a year in late May or early June, just after the little flowers appear.

For the rest of the Summer the turfing-daisy fancier just sits luxuriously in the shade and watches it grow.

• Japan Decides to Be Cautious

(By Clearway in Christian Science Monitor)

IT IS AN ACCEPTED view of Far Eastern observers that Japan intends, if possible, to drive Russia farther back from the northern Far East where Japan feels upon itself a "manifest destiny" to lead and to rule. The scene of this week's border fighting illustrates Japan's reasons for wanting to push the Soviets back.

Russia's Maritime Provinces thrust a finger down along the coast of the Japan Sea to within a few hundred miles of Japan's industrial centers. Vladivostok is only about 300 miles by the air route from Tokyo. In 1933 this writer saw Tokyo blackened as children ran through the streets wearing gas masks and planes roared in the dark to simulate a Russian bombing raid.

Manchuria was taken from China in 1931-32 primarily to supply Japan with a substantial buffer against Soviet Russia. Yet the Maritime Provinces negative in large part the value of Manchukuo as a buffer. They bring Russia to the border of Korea, and place air and land bases along an extensive front facing the Japanese islands.

During the last seven years Japan has pursued a military policy that has the strategic effect of flanking the Maritime Provinces. Japanese armies in Manchukuo are in a position eventually to drive north from the Amur River. They would seek to cut the Trans-Siberian Railway and pinch the Maritime Province from Russian control.

Be that as it may, Tokyo showed no disposition this week to take on such a large military order. Gold reserves were draining away. Since March, 1937, Japan has sent $352,800,000 in gold to the United States. The war in China drags on. Japan chose to tread softly for now in the vicinity of the Russian Bear.

German writers blamed Russia for the border conflict, but have indicated that Japan would not receive material aid from the Reich under the anti-Communist pact in event of war.

• Out At Our Summer Home

(Letter in Ottawa Journal)

SIR:—A CLEVER article on "How to use your head," tells us to make a list of all the little things which annoy us or "make us see red." This will eliminate our pet peeves and enable us to think straight again.

So dear readers, possibly I can interest you in a few pet peeves. We may be able to get together on this question as it pertains to the timely subject — our Summer home. Here they are:

1. Radios, which the possessor keeps going, regardless of others. Morning, noon and night its raucous voice pursues us. In the hands of thoughtless, selfish people it is a menace to our peace of mind.

2. Guests who stay up until 2 a.m. and who walk around over our heads with shoes on. (Single floors and ceilings notwithstanding.)

3. Uninvited guests by the car-load who descend upon us any day of the week, to go swimming and stay for meals.

4. The tenant who holds drinking parties which last until 4 a.m. (Sunday) and keep the whole neighborhood awake with their shouts, screams and loud laughter.

5. Drunken women, cigarette-smoking nuisances who are a disgrace to their sex.

6. Fat women in slacks or shorts.

1. Beautiful sunsets—a feast to the eye and peace to the soul.

2. Children playing on the beach.

3. The beauty and grandeur of nature, the song of birds and the quiet of early morn.

4. A Summer storm, wild and furious, sweeping over the water, followed again in a few minutes by the sun.

BRITISH SWAN SONG

(New York Times)

IN THESE DAYS of the high cost of living and general failure to distinguish the difference between meum and teum even a king cannot afford to overlook any property which belongs to him. Consequently King George's fleet of swift rowboats swarmed up the Thames in charge of the royal swankeeper to mark the royal swans.

The annual ceremony is a little confusing because the King's swans are never marked. They are designated as royal property by being left unmarked. But the other swans that belong to two of London's liveried companies, the Vintners and the Dyers, have their beaks nicked. Needless to say, the swans don't like this. The cygnets, or baby swans, which receive the nicking, can't help themselves, but the elder swans resent the indignity. A full-grown swan is an ugly customer with an ingrowing disposition, and there has been many a historic tussle in the centuries since the custom originated.

FINANCIAL NOTE

(Wingham Advance-Times)

DURING A FINANCIAL panic a farmer went to the bank for some money. He was told the bank was not paying out money but was using cashier's cheques.

He could not understand this and insisted on money.

The officers took him in hand, one after another, with little effect. At last the president tried his hand, and, after a long and minute explanation some inkling of the situation seemed to be dawning on the farmer's mind.

Much encouraged, the president said: "You understand now how it is, don't you?"

"I think I do," admitted the farmer. "It's like this: When my baby wakes up at night and wants some milk, I give him a milk ticket."

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

READ THIS FIRST:

Determined to show Dr. Julian Paige, the man she is in love with, that she can make her own way in the world, Noel Shayne, wealthy so-her, moves to a rooming house, and, for lack of anything better, obtains a job as a taxi dancer at the Peacock, run by Nick Luigi. She is living with a girl named Laurie Evans, whom she met in the park and who is a cashier at the restaurant which Julian patronizes. Noel feels she has a dangerous rival in Ruth Chester, Julian's pretty nurse. At the Peacock Noel meets a young man named Chris Landers, who is far more refined than the other men she dances with. Then one night she is amazed to find Both Chris and Julian waiting for her as she leaves the Peacock. Julian takes her home but he is angry because Noel has failed to tell him where she was working and he doubts her sincerity. After a bitter quarrel, Julian leaves in a huff.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 21

FATE HAS a bag of curious tricks. It was the morning after the bitter quarrel with Julian that Noel found the situation as governess in the Garwood home was open again.

Laurie told her there was another ad in the paper, and that she felt sure Noel could get the place this time.

Noel was still in bed. She had slept very little, and her face showed the strain of the sleepless hours.

Laurie took one look at her and said, "You need some coffee." She busied herself with making it, while Noel got up and began dressing.

"How's your heel?" Laurie asked when the coffee was ready.

Noel hadn't even looked at it. "Seems to be all right," she said listlessly.

"Doctor Paige is a good doctor," Laurie observed; then said, "now drink you coffee and eat some toast."

Noel sat down in her slip, and pinned her curls back from her pale face. "What'll you do when you don't have me to fuss over?" she asked with an attempt at a smile.

"I don't know," Laurie said slowly. "If you get that governess place, you'll have to live out there, won't you?"

"Yes, I suppose so." Noel was thinking how very strange it seemed that she and Julian should have quarreled because she had let him believe she had a governess situation, and now here was the very place open again. And ten chances to one she would get it this time.

It was a contrary world.

In less than an hour the two girls were out on the street, Laurie going to the De Luxe, Noel to catch a bus for Belvedere place. She could afford bus fare now. In fact she was almost a plutocrat. She had even managed to buy two $1.98 voile dresses from the basement of a department store, with Laurie helping her make the selections, and still had nearly $5 in her purse. Whether Julian would believe her or not, she considered that was making progress.

To get away from Luigi's, from all the sordid hatefulness of the place, seemed too wonderful to be true. She would miss Chris, of course. But she couldn't be sure that he would ever come back to the Peacock anyway, for he had been angry when he had turned away and left her with Julian. She was sorry, for Chris was really a darling. She thought unhappily that it would perhaps have been better if Chris had taken her home last night, for then she and Julian wouldn't have quarreled so bitterly.

Once again Noel found herself facing the big stone house on Belvedere. She didn't make the mistake of going again to the imposing front door, with its graceful fan-light, but walked around the flagged walk to a side entrance. She was admitted by the butler, stiff-necked as usual, whose only recognition of her was a slight gleam in his eyes. Once again she followed him to the over-furnished, flower-filled room and faced the blond woman with the slightly protruding blue eyes.

The butler coughed. "Yes, modom, she applied once before. But if I may say so, modom, it might be well to give her a chance. It's not so easy to get a girl to stay out here, so far from the bright lights, as you might say."

The woman glared at him. "Tell her to go. She didn't—have no—she didn't have references even before."

"Oh, but I have this time," Noel said eagerly. She had hoped so much to get this place. Was she going to be turned away for the second time?

"I don't want you," the woman said, turning her face away pettishly.

Noel turned to leave. Then she heard Hichen's voice, "It'd be better, modom, to take her name and address—just in case—er—"

Noel remembered giving her name and address before. She supposed it had been lost. Or was this the usual procedure?

She was instructed to write down her name, address and the name of her reference. Noel wrote it down, giving Frankie's name as reference. Frankie of course wouldn't care.

Then Noel laid the paper down on a table and once again followed the butler to the side entrance, where he said as before, "Your trouble is in being too pretty—just as I said."

Then the door was shut, and Noel was again walking around the flagged walk, which was now bordered with lovely purple iris. Suddenly she heard hurried footsteps in the house and a voice—two voices in fact, calling her name. "Miss Doran—oh, I say, Miss Doran—come back, please."

Noel stopped and turned around. The butler was hurrying out in the yard. Mrs. Garwood stood in the side door, peering out anxiously.

When Hichens reached her, panting just a little, he said, "Mrs. Garwood has changed her mind. She wants you to have the job."

Noel gazed at him incredulously. "But I thought—"

Then she was going back into the house and Mrs. Garwood was waiting in the little hallway which opened out the side door. She was smiling. "I just thought—I mean—I'll give you the place after all. You go and get your things and—and come back at once. And oh, yes, I'll pay you $15 a week and your board and room. And I'll give you Wednesday off and part of Sunday. Now, ain't—I mean, isn't that fair enough for anybody?" Her voice held a cajoling note.

"It's satisfactory," Noel said calmly, still puzzled as to why the woman had changed her mind so suddenly.

When she left a few minutes later, everything was arranged. On the way back to the Court street house to pack up her few belongings, Noel reflected again on the strange inscrutable ways of fate. If she could only have gotten this place before Julian lost faith in her! Now that she had, it wouldn't make any difference to him.

But anyway, Noel's thoughts went on, she could live with more dignity now. The work wouldn't be hard, and she felt that she would have no trouble in loving the little pale-faced girl whose face she had glimpsed from the window, even though the child's mother did not seem to be an agreeable person. She was probably nouveau riche, Noel decided, which would account for her queerness.

So Noel went back feeling more confident of the future, and yet conscious of a little pang when she thought of leaving Laurie. Still she would see her often on her days off, which would help.

And then upon arriving at her room, she found the place in confusion. Mrs. Blarsom was there in her none-too-clean gingham apron, and on the bed lay a still figure over which a doctor bent with a stethoscope.

It was Laurie. She had collapsed at work, and had been brought home unconscious.

Noel stood there pale and frightened, while the white-haired doctor administered a hypodermic, and then sat quietly holding Laurie's hand, while he waited for it to take effect.

At last there was a faint tinge of color in Laurie's cold, white face, and a tiny sigh came from her lips.

The doctor rose and looked about him. His eyes fell on Mrs. Blarsom in her soiled apron and untidy hair. "We have a very sick girl here. Better notify her people at once."

"She hasn't any people," Mrs. Blarsom snapped. "And you might as well know it, she hasn't any money either. So the sooner you get her to a charity hospital, the better."

The doctor regarded her gravely over his spectacles which were attached to his coat with a long black ribbon. "I would not take the risk of moving her, not even in an ambulance." He looked around again. "Isn't there someone who will take the responsibility?"

Noel spoke up at once. "I will doctor. I'll see that she has everything she needs."

It was perhaps a little reckless in Noel to make such an impulsive promise considering her own circumstances, but she had spoken with a quiet determination which gave the doctor confidence that she would do as she said.

"You," Mrs. Blarsom snorted, "why you can't even half way take care of yourself!" She turned to the doctor. "This girl is just a taxi dancer in a cheap dance hall, doctor. You can't depend on her. I tell you, you'd better send this sick girl to the charity hospital."

"And I tell you again, that I won't take any such risk," the doctor returned with asperity.

Mrs. Blarsom left the room in high dugeon. Then the doctor moved over to Noel, and put a hand on her shoulder. "You're very young, but you look dependable." Then he went on "This girl has double pneumonia. I'm going to send a nurse, who will stay on duty all night, and remain in the house during the day for her period of rest and sleep. During that time you will have to carry on under her directions. Do you think you can do it?"

Noel straightened her shoulders. "Yes, doctor."

The doctor scrutinized her face again. "You are not the hysterical type, are you?"

Noel shook her head. When he went away promising to send the nurse at once, and leaving two prescriptions for Noel to have filled immediately, she realized what her promise had meant. She couldn't leave Laurie to go to the Garwoods. She couldn't even leave Luigi's until Laurie was well.

500 Pigs Are Burned Barn Destroyed

SHERIDAN, Aug. 29.— Five hundred pigs burned to death last night when flames destroyed six barns on the Hanford farm, owned by Fred Bowman, near the Middle Road. Volunteers and firemen, armed with pitchforks and sticks, braved the menace of the fire and succeeded in driving some 400 pigs to safety.

Early this morning the flames were under control.

It was one of the most spectacular fires in some time, and the Middle Road was blocked by hundreds of motorists who stopped to watch the fire brigades of Cooksville, Oakville, and Port Credit battle the blaze. Several adjoining buildings were saved.

No estimate of the loss was available immediately, but it is believed it will be heavy. The fire is thought to have originated in one of the old buildings, a frame structure. The flames quickly spread to adjoining buildings, among them a new piggery.

George Turney, foreman, said the fire was first noticed by a motorist on the Middle Road, who stopped his car and called to him that smoke and flames were coming through the roof of one of the buildings. The alarm brought the fire brigades quickly to the scene, but by that time the blaze had made considerable headway.

The squealing of the frightened piglets and the crashing of weakened timbers cause a huge crowd to assemble at a safe distance. Some of the spectators helped round up the scared animals as they came dashing from the doomed buildings.

Cathedral Musings

The Lords of Compassion look down upon humanity and although their hearts bleed at all the sorrow and suffering, yet they may not interfere, nor lighten the burden of man's self-inflicted woe. They strive to lead, to direct and guide, to show us the way, but it is for us to either heed or disregard their teaching and example. Well is this planet termed the "Sorrowful Star," for God made it a Paradise and man made it a hell. In the hour of despair and anguish we ask why evil is inflicted on us and we blame everything, even God Himself, and fail to see that the sole author of suffering is ourselves. We each have a lesson to learn in this incarnation and no other can learn it for us. We each have our own fruits of our acts to gather, no other can reap what we have sown. The individual experience is for the individual alone, he must work out his own destiny. In sickness and in death we feel we are hardly done by, but sickness is the result of violation of the laws of health and we must remember that what seems death to us is really life, when considered from the spiritual standpoint. The death of the body is as natural and inevitable as the wearing out of any other garment and it is wiser to grieve for those still on earth than to mourn for those who have left us for a while. It is recorded that Jesus wept when at the importunity of the friends of Lazarus He recalled the dead man back to earth. It is likely that the Master wept more for the sake of Lazarus than for any other reason, for He knew that the glory of the other world is but a poor exchange for the drab sorrow of this life. It may be a platitude to say that things are rarely what they seem, but spiritual things are never what they seem to those of earthly mind, for as we polarize ourselves more and more to the Light of God, so does our vision expand, so do we approach nearer to the inner cause that is behind the outward effect. "A primrose by the river's brim" is just a primrose to the earthy man, but if we could fully understand the little flower we would understand the riddle of the Universe. All creation yearns towards the Creator, to man alone is given the privilege of hastening or retarding his progress, for he alone has the freedom of choice.

Comedy Team Broken Up By Studio

OLIVER HARDY STAN LAUREL

The film comedy team of Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy was broken up by announcement from the actors' employers, Hal Roach Studios, that Laurel's contract had been terminated and that Harry Langdon will team with Hardy for future pictures. The sad-faced Laurel and his fat and merry companion are pictured here together at a supper party, in Los Angeles.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"My brother, Knarf, wants to come along with us, too," Hanid, the shadow girl, said to Earthworm.

"Ah! Glad to have him. Where is he?" the earthworm queried, putting on his glasses and gazing around the garden. "I don't see him."

"I'll call him. He went to look over by the garden wall for the entrance to the Mole family's tunnel. I'll fetch him here in a minute. Knarf! Where are you?" she called loudly.

There was no reply from Knarf.

"I guess he didn't hear me that time." Then she called again, this time louder than before. "Knarf! Knarf!"

Still Knarf didn't answer.

"You don't suppose he's gone off somewhere else, do you?" Hanid said, turning to the earthworm.

Wandered to Sleep. ... ...

Earthworm thought about this for a moment or two. Then he said:

"Well....I have heard of people wandering off. In fact, I do it myself sometimes. But what I really think is this: He's wandered back to the house and wandered into his bed, and wandered off to sleep."

Hanid sighed. "He shouldn't have done that. He promised to warn the Mole family that unless they moved out of this garden by to-morrow, Father was going to set a trap for them. And now he's gone to sleep and left me all alone."

"All alone!" the earthworm exclaimed. "Humph! I suppose I'm nobody!"

"Oh, I didn't mean that!" she said quickly, not wishing to hurt his feelings. "I just meant—I know," she exclaimed suddenly. "You come with me to the Mole family. We'll tell them together about how important it is for them to move out of this garden right away."

Knows Short Cut.

Earthworm smiled. He felt quite pleased again. "Fine," he said. "There's a short cut to their tunnel right under this flat stone. I'll crawl under it first and you come right after me."

So the worm crawled under the flat stone and Hanid, after making herself small enough (which isn't the least bit of trouble for a shadow to do, you know), crawled right after him.

The next instant she came down with a little bump.

"And now we want a light, don't we?" the earthworm said. "I'll switch it right on."

Hanid couldn't help wondering what sort of light the earthworm was going to turn on, down deep under the garden.

"And now we want a light, don't we?" the earthworm said.

Don't Suffer From Inferiority Complex

"Swell!" says Jim admiringly, as Jill clambers out of the pool. And Jill, proud of her topnotch swimming, smiles up at him, without a trace of her old self-consciousness.

How bashful Jill used to be! Then she took a famous psychologist's tip —Set out to cure her inferiority complex by learning to do one thing well. She chose swimming. How hard she worked perfecting her strokes! She's making herself take an interest in other people; too studying them, helping them. She's coaching Jim in diving, for instance. Now life is more fun!

You, too, can cure inferiority feelings of all kinds. Our 32-page booklet helps you analyze and conquer your particular complex Learn the way to gracious self-assurance. Get rid of embarrassing stubbornness and jealousies, too.

Too Many K.C's In Ontario Lawyers Agree

TORONTO, Aug. 20.—Attorney-General Gordon Conant had little comment to offer when asked last night what his opinion was of the statement made before the Canadian Bar Association annual meeting in Vancouver yesterday that King's Counsel patents were "a political honor in the hands of politicians" and that it was an "insult" to be offered a K.C.

"Theory and practice are often entirely different things," was the only comment Mr. Conant would make.

The charge was made by R. M. Willes Chitty, K.C., Toronto lawyer, and it received support from legal circles last night. Prominent lawyers agreed that there were too many King's Counsels and that the Upper-Canada Law Society and the Judges on the bench should have some say in the appointments.

G. W. Mason, K.C., Bencher of the Upper Canada Law Society, said: "The general feeling in the profession is that there are far too many K.C.'s in proportion to practicing lawyers. There has been much discussion in the profession as to whether or not lawyers who have accepted the silks should be disbarred from practicing in certain courts. This, of course, would entail much hardship for lawyers, particularly in the rural sections of Ontario."

Richard H. Greer, K.C., said: "I agree with Mr. Chitty. There should be somebody in the law society, who, in co-operation with the Judges of the courts, would decide upon appointments."

Max Aiken, lawyer: "The Attorney-General of Ontario is in charge of the administration of justice in the Province, and also is in charge of making K.C. appointments. Theoretically, they come from the King. Nevertheless, I believe he should take some of our leading lawyers and the Upper Canada Law Society into consultation before such appointments are made."

Baby Hercules

Here, according to his modest father, is the "reincarnation of Samson" 8 months old, Wallace Gough, son of a movie stunt man and already following in paternal foosteps with his gymnastic feats, in which chinning the bar is classed as "elementary stuff." "The first of a race of supermen" is seen hanging from one of his father's fingers. Wallace eats what all babies eat, says Mrs. Gough, except for a "secret formula" in

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, August 21.

Sunday's horoscope is an excellent one for affairs of church, state and philanthropy, as well as for dealing with those in position and power. It is auspicious for seeking promotion and favors.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which they are encouraged to seek honors, preferment and promotion from superiors or those in influential positions. But there might be a peculiar financial complication in connection with a stranger. Generally, happiness should prevail.

A child born on this day may enjoy outstanding personality, winning esteem and popularity from those in high places. It may take pride in its social status and appearance, while being full of fun and good fellowship.

For Monday, August 22.

Conflicting conditions must be read from this day's lunar transits. While there are auguries of fair activities, with some progress and headway, yet there is portent of a tenacious obstacle or difficult situation, possibly a bereavement, illness or grief to cope with. Money may cause anxiety.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of contradictory auguries. While there are promising aspects of enterprise and stirring events, yet an obstacle or possibly an illness or bereavement may cause unhappiness.

A child born on this day may be lively, progressive and enterprising, tenacious and stable, yet fond of change and adventure though home-loving and devoted. It may inherit property or accumulate possessions by practical applications or acquisitiveness.

Daring In Business

MONTREAL, Aug. 20 (C.P.). — Perhaps Yvon Lamarre thought the best place to conceal something was in plain sight. At any rate, he appeared in court yesterday accused of keeping a betting establishment in the shadow of the courthouse, and not far from both the Provincial and Montreal police headquarters. Trial was set for August 24, when he pleaded not guilty.

OPENS

TUESDAY, SEPT. 6th

In order to raise the present high standard of Business Training to even a higher level, and to offer to the young people of this district the best obtainable, the management has added MR. TREVOR MILLER to its present staff of experienced teachers.

SUGGESTION To YOUNG PEOPLE and THEIR PARENTS

It is only a short time before our term opens. Why not write, phone, or call for full particulars NOW. The Office is open each day for interviews and registration. We like to serve the public to the best of our ability, and it is advisable to arrange interviews early, so that every phase may be discussed and considered. Last minute decisions sometimes are not satisfactory.

To Beautify Ottawa

World renowned as a specialist in the art of town planning, Jacques Greber, of Paris, has been invited to supervise plans to beautify Canada's capital city of Ottawa, Ont. Premier King is reported to be especially interested in Mr. Graber's work.

War Minister Proves He's On Job

Britain's energetic, never-tiring Minister of War, Leslie Hore-Belisha, squints through the sights of a trench mortar at the territorials' camp at Lympne, England, where a London infantry brigade is in summer training. The picture is illustrative of the close personal interest the man who has "made over the army" takes in the country's defence preparations. His latest move was the retiring of 13 officers in the higher ranks, made necessary by his plans for the promotion of younger officers.

War Games Halt When Poilus Hear "Soup's Up"

When the French equivalent of "Soups On!" rings out in the Celebier mountains, where part of the French army is holding manoeuvres scenes like this take but a few minutes to form. Gathered round the field kitchen are members of the Alpine Poilus and the serving of the soup brings a contented appearance to all faces, especially the party just receiving his helping.

United States

when he made his speech.

Effect Be The Same

Some observers said the effect would be the same. An international league expert close to the state department said the president's declaration was "analagous" to the Monroe doctrine.

Observers added that, at any rate, the president had stated for the first time what actually has been a fact for many years, that the United States would come to Canada's assistance if she were attacked by an outside power.

Officials were disappointed with the letter sent by Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn to Prime Minister Mackenzie King that Ontario would oppose the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway project. Mr. Hepburn argued that Ontario did not need the electric power contemplated by the treaty draft and that Canadian railroads would be hurt by the waterways.

At the state department it was believed Ontario probably would begin to need more power about 1941 or 1942, and the water-power project under discussion could not be completed in less than seven years. President Roosevelt was believed to have anticipated Premier Hepburn's objection when he said in his speech Thursday that waterways actually produced more business for the railroads.

Trading Slow Few Issues Are Turned Over

TORONTO, Aug. 22—(CP)—Canadian stock markets marked time in the last week while waiting for the end of the holidaying season, more definite indications of the next business trend and for a clearing of the political atmosphere in Europe.

Trading on the Toronto Exchange dried up to the smallest volume since early June with the industrial list particularly suffering from neglect. But despite the shortage of buying orders the market's price tone remained firm to strong.

Ownership of Lake Shore stock has in recent weeks, been changing hands in greater than usual volume and that issue was about the only one of the gold leaders to register a gain in the last week. The price advanced better than $1 while the other seniors showed adjustments of only small fractions of a point.

The Toronto Exchange gold share index posted a gain of 1.56 and to this result some of the medium-price issues made the greatest contribution. Net gains of 15 to 30 cents were recorded by Teck Hughes, Wright - Hargreaves, Little Long Lac, Macassa and Preston. There were no recessions greater than a few cents.

Waite-Amulet again supplied the fireworks for the base metal group, slipping off sharply in the early part of the week and making an effort to recover on Friday. The net result is the loss of an even dollar to $5.50 in the period. A low of $5.15 was touched during the week, the decline appearing to result from publication of a less glowing report on mine developments than traders had been led to expect.

International Nickel, Noranda, Hudson Bay and Consolidated Smelters moved up 25 cents to $1 each on comparatively small turnover. Silver issues traded quietly at steady prices and the western oils posted no worthwhile changes. Royalite held steady at $46 and the week finished with moderate strength for Okalta, Anglo-Canadian and some of the penny issues.

Gets Separate Trial

The rather dubious honor of being Tammany leader James J. Hines' co-defendant in the $100,000,000 policy racket trial in progress in New York almost went to Martin Weintraub, shown ABOVE, as he arrived at court where the rackets trial is in progress. A plea for separate trial was granted leaving Hines to face District-Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's assaults by himself. Weintraub will be tried later.

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, CANADA, SATURDAY, AUGUST 20, 1938

Shot And Killed By Dog

LONDON.—William Hatcher, 42, a farmer of Maidstone, was shot and killed by his own dog. Hatcher fired at a rabbit from his automobile, exciting the dog which jumped against another gun, discharging its bullet into the farmer's body. Hatcher died later in hospital.

Gold Ring Returned

TEXAS, Ky.—A thief with a slow working conscience has returned Mrs. R. T. Begley's gold ring. Thirty-three years ago the ring was stolen from her bedroom. This week she found it on a rock step near her home. The ring showed signs of long wear.

No Bumper Crop In The West Minister Claims

Newspapers and Government officials to the contrary, the West will have no bumper crop this year, according to Rev. Horace Ashmore, old Peterborough boy who is now a clergyman in Alberta.

"Farmers in the West will be lucky to get 25 bushels to the acre," he told luncheon Kiwanians at noon on Friday. He denied newspaper accounts that the West will have a crop to make up for other years. "The West will need your help again this year, probably worse than ever before," he asserted. He recalled a statement by Government officials that the West will need no aid from the East in harvesting their crop. "That statement is an indication of just what the crop is going to be like," he said. "It will not be more than an average crop at best," he claimed.

Describing conditions prevalent all through the West, he said that the blame cannot be laid at the feet of any Government. "Nature, not Governments, is alone to blame," he told Kiwanians. "No Government can do anything for a province that is almost entirely agricultural, in the face of crop failures, dust storms, and grasshoppers."

Necessary Steps.

He told of the migrations of farmers from the drought-stricken south to the north, inaugurated in 1930 by the Anderson Government, and carried on by the present regime. "They didn't do it very tactfully, it is true, but they did it as best they could." Such steps were necessary because of the hopeless condition of the south, he said. Dust storms were so thick "you ate dust, you slept dust, you lived dust."

The people in the south, once prosperous, had descended to a level of dire poverty, where "slowly, bit by bit, they had parted with everything they owned in order to have the bare necessities of life." He told of the help that had come from the East to these suffering people and gave deep-felt thanks to Kiwanians and members of other organizations for the aid they sent. "It gave our people a new life, a new hope, and it brought the West closer to the East than ever before."

The district in the north to which settlers were moved resembled to some degree the Apsley and Burleigh Falls district here. It was never meant to be an agricultural land and the West's only hope is in the return of the south to a condition that will permit their return. Farm animals died off in hundreds when they were moved, because in their new quarters they were fed sleugh hay, he said. He told of erstwhile prosperous families living in one-roomed, floorless shacks, along with their live stock. In corners were relics of pianos, radios, good furniture, all evidences of a prosperity that had passed. Food was so scarce many were starving, because virtually none of the food and clothing sent from the East reached the north. In schools teachers are teaching classes of as many as 60 pupils for $163 a year, he claimed.

The facts that he revealed were gathered at first hand, for his charge is in the north, thirty-five miles north-east of Prince Albert, at Paddockwood, at the end of the railway. Twenty thousand settlers have been moved to the north since the rehabilitation scheme started, and they are not yet self-supporting, he revealed. The north is the best part of the province, but not for agriculture, he said.

The speaker was introduced by John I. Allen and Carl Brown moved a vote of thanks.

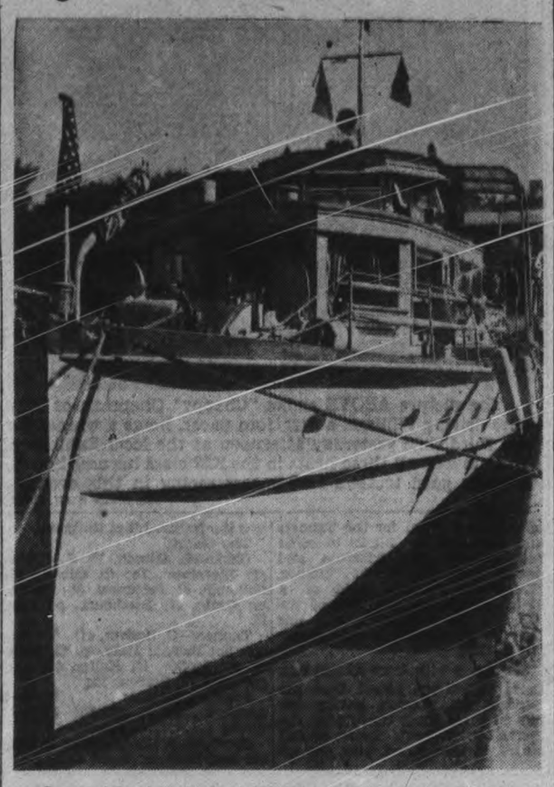
Largest Boat Of Season



Largest boat to dock at the George Street wharf this year is the "Stranger," which was tied up all day Friday while its owner and passengers took in the Peterborough Exhibition. It is owned by J. M. Breitenbach of Alexandria Bay, in the Thousand Islands, a wealthy American business man now retired. He has a party of eight aboard. The boat is 52 feet in length, is luxuriantly fitted. It will travel over the Lift Lock, then return to Alexandria Bay. Mr. Breitenbach makes the trip nearly every year. A camera enthusiast, he has more than a thousand dollars worth of miniature cameras aboard, snapped many a picture at the Exhibition. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Rev. R. B. Grobb Returns To City

The Rev. R. B. Grobb of Riverside, Chicago, who was formerly rector of All Saints Church, is visiting his sister, Mrs. H. Rush, Maitland avenue. He will preach in his old Church on Sunday morning.

OBITUARY

ERNEST JAMES BELLIN

The death occurred on Friday, August 19th of Ernest James Bellin, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. J. Bellin of Warsaw, at St. Joseph's Hospital. Surviving are his parents and one sister, Vera.

Funeral will be held on Sunday at two o'clock standard time from the home of the child's grandmother, Mrs. Frank Lonsberry, Warsaw, with interment in St. Mark's Cemetery.

WILLIAM A. EVANS

A funeral service for the late William Evans who was drowned in the Otonabee River near Lock 23 on Thursday evening will be held at eight o'clock tonight at A. Comstock and Sons Funeral Home, Water street, and interment will be on Sunday in Wilberforce Cemetery.

Mr. Evans was born in Cheddar, Ontario, and was 36 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Evans. He has lived in this city for the past eight years. Surviving are four brothers, Robert of Cheddar, Thomas of Paudash, John Henry, Timmins, and Andrew, Bancroft. One sister, Mrs. F. Succee of Otonabee township.

WILLIAM R. REYNOLDS

MARMORA, Aug. 20.—After an extended illness, William R. Reynolds, passed away in Nicholl's Hospital, Peterborough on Thursday. For quite a number of years the deceased was head electrician at the plant of Deloro Smelting and Refining Company and he was popular with all classes.

A few months ago he became seriously ill and underwent an operation but failed to recover.

Besides his widow he leaves to mourn his loss five sons and three daughters, Arthur and Roger of New York, John, Charles and William at home; Mrs. J. Gowling and Jean of Ottawa and Eleanor at home. The funeral service was held on Saturday afternoon at his late residence, Deloro. Interment was made in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

MRS. CARL HARLING

NORTH BAY, Ont., Aug. 20 (CP)—Mrs. Carl Harling, 51, of Capreol, Ont., died early to-day at the home there of her daughter, Mrs. J. Veillette. Mrs. Harling, ill for the past two months, had arrived in North Bay from nearby Capreol only three days ago.

The former Ethel Close, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Close of Peterborough, Ont., she married Carl F. Harling in Peterborough in 1907. Later she moved to North Bay, and four years ago took up residence at Capreol.

Survivors beside her husband and daughter include a son, Russell of Shelbourne; a sister, Mrs. H. Peters of Belleville, Ont.; and a brother, George Close of Peterborough.

Funeral services will be held here Saturday afternoon.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

TO ADDRESS ROTARY.

James Cuthbertson, late of Kobe Japan will be the speaker at Monday's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club.

KEYS ARE FOUND.

THE FIRST ARREST.

The first arrest since the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition opened was registered shortly after midnight Friday night when Constable Bruce Menzies arrested a man on a drunk charge.

BICYCLES STOLEN.

Two bicycle, left by their owners inside the Exhibition grounds near the George Street gate were reported to the police last night as having been stolen.

REMOVING TONSILS

Tonsilectomy seems to be the order of the summer at the Jackson Park camp operated by the Kiwanis Club. Already 14 children have had their tonsils removed, 11 more are slated for the operation before summer's end, according to Kiwanian John I. Allen.

INTERSECTION CRASH.

Cars own by Edith Frost, of the Newport Hospital, Newport, Rhode Island and Herman Sickler, Princess street, Peterborough were damaged in an intersection crash at the corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer streets Friday night. Miss Frost was driving west on Sherbrooke street and Sickler south on Aylmer when the cars collided. The Rhode Island machine was damaged at the rear while the front bumper of Sickler's car was torn off.

THREE IN A ROW

When the third automobile was claimed at the Exhibition Grounds Friday evening it was the first time since the Board commenced giving cars away that winners on three consecutive nights were holders of the first tickets to be drawn from the churn. Sometimes as many as five tickets have been drawn before a winner appeared, but this year, all lucky ticket holders have been present.

THANKS OFFERED

The thanks of one Westerner for assistance he received was brought in person to the east by Rev. Horace Ashmore Friday. When he addressed Kiwanians Friday noon he told of a chain of coincidences all concerning Peterborough people. Opening a parcel of goods sent to aid the west he, an old Peterborough boy now stationed in the west, found an overcoat labelled with the name of A. P. McNab, Weller street, Peterborough. He turned it over to a man in need of it. That man came from Peterborough too. "He really needed the coat but I won't tell you his name because he wouldn't want me to," Rev. Mr. Ashmore said.

OVERSEAS MAIL.

Mail for Great Britain and countries via Great Britain, letters addressed via New York to connect with the Steamer Queen Mary, sailing from New York, August 24th, closes at the local Post Office, August 22nd, midnight. Cowgirl Outfit But Not A Cowgirl

Serious Blight Hits Potatoes

Serious blight on the later crop of potatoes is bound to reduce the yield to a substantial extent, a Smith farmer informed the Examiner this morning.

"I may get 10 bushels to the acre off three acres that are hit the worst, instead of 250 bushels," he said, "but I think you might as well say it will be a complete loss. A neighbor has a smaller planting affected and elsewhere throughout the county I hear of a general blight. It was caused by continued wet weather followed by excessive heat. The heavy foliage was also a factor because the air could not get through it.

"I don't think it is more than two weeks ago since the inspector and Frank Paterson looked over our potatoes, and they agreed then they had seldom seen better looking stock. The blight is on the late crop, and it is just too bad. It is serious to the farmer who put in a heavy planting."

Oshawa Motorist Faces Charge

"Is it a serious charge?" asked Frank Leyjoe of Oshawa when he was charged in police court today with being drunk in charge of an automobile by Magistrate Langley replied that the penalty if convicted was imprisonment from seven to 30 days, without suspended sentence, and if he were the owner of the car it would be impounded for three months.

Leyjoe then asked for an adjournment in order to consult a lawyer.

He was remanded until Monday bail being fixed at $500. A companion who pleaded guilty to being drunk was fined $10 and cost.

Several other drunk charges resulted in adjournments, although Magistrate Langley stated that in future adjournments in liquor cases would be very sparingly given.

Admits Stealing 8 Pairs Socks

James Flynn of Ottawa pleaded guilty before Magistrate Langley in police court this morning to stealing eight pairs of men's socks from the Canadian Department Stores.

He told the court that he was just recovering from a tonsil operation and had been drinking wine when the offence occurred. He was remanded until the 26th to allow the police a chance to checkup on his record.

Police Officer Plays Good Samaritan Help Two Young Urchins Get Into "Ex"

THERE IS ONE SMALL boy who has a soft spot in his heart today for Traffic Officer Bud Clarke. The constable was on fence duty at the Exhibition Grounds and was thoroughly policing the corner of the grounds near the Ovaltine Plant, chasing every boy and man who attempted to jump the fence and save the price of an admission ticket.

Extra hours and the hot sun hadn't helped the constable's disposition any and his stern looks boded ill for any offenders. One youngster undaunted by his fierce scowl climbed to the top of the fence and called the officer to him. "Could you turn your back for a little while until me and my buddy get in" was the startling statement of the urchin. "I don't mind about myself I can make it but my friend is not a good climber." Looking down on the ground the officer observed another small boy with one arm off at the elbow, a defect which made it impossible for the youngster to climb the high board fence. The stern look immediately disappeared and reaching down the officer took a firm hold of the cripple and hoisted him into the air to the top of the fence then helped him down inside. Feeling no doubt that such a gallant buddy should not be left behind he repeated the performance bringing the spokesman also, then walked with the two to the nearest gate where he paid for tickets. He managed to squeeze the youngsters pass the grandstand ticket taker finding them seats right in front of the vaudeville stand and today there is one two fisted youngster and his one armed pal who will fight quick if any one casts a slur at the police force. The incident is vouched for by a member of the vaudeville troupe who watched the proceedings from his trailer near the grandstand.

George Selkirk's Injuries Are Not Serious

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20—(CP)—Fears New York Yankees would be without the services of George Selkirk for another indefinite period were dispelled today when Trainer Earle Painter announced Twinkletoe's latest injury had responded rapidly to treatment.

Selkirk, born in Huntsville, Ont., and the world champions' most unfortunate performer, was carried off the field in the seventh inning of the first game in Washington Thursday, following a collision in short left field.

Twinkletoes and Frankie Crosetti started after the ball which had been hoisted by Buddy Lewis. Crosetti made the catch, but crashed into Selkirk's right thigh so hard that George dropped to the ground dazed. An examination showed a numbed muscle in the outfielder's thigh.

It was the second time this year that the Canadian slugger was put out of commission. In the opening series of the American League campaign in Boston he hurt his right wrist. He was out of action almost a month and the ailment didn't mend entirely until about 10 days ago.

Then George started to bang the ball lustily and in the recent series against Philadelphia Athletics in New York hoe featured his team's attack by clouting five home runs in four consecutive games. In his last eight games he gathered 11 hits to boost his batting average to .271.

Selkirk seems doomed to meet with an accident whenever he is going strong at the plate. A year ago last July he suffered a severe injury to his right shoulder and was laid up for six weeks. At the time he was one of the Yankees' heaviest hitters and was leading them in homers, with 17.

The prancing outfielder did not play as the Yankees thumped the A's 5-2 here yesterday but may see action when the two teams clash again today.

Maple Leafs Win In Southend Loop

Maple Leafs took a 13-8 Southend Softball League win over Cogs last night at the Brinton Field, it being the first game of the second half semi-finals. Akers started for the losers but was relieved by Todd, who allowed eight hits the last eight frames. Heffernan hurled effective ball for the winners, though he weakened toward the end. Connelly and Heffernan led the Leaf attack with nine hits between them, the former getting a homer. Leggitt led the losers with three hits. O. Heal, Akers and the Corbett brothers fielded well. The teams:

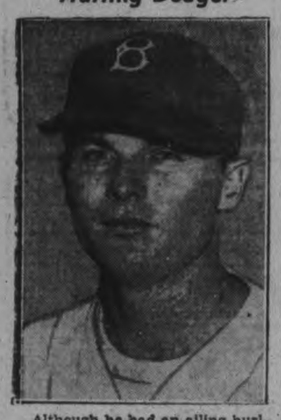
Cogs ..... 010 010 024— 8 13 5
Leafs ..... 600 230 20x—13 13 5

Umpires—Smith and Coursey.

Monday night Cogs and Leafs have their second game at the Brinton Field ,third if necessary being there Tuesday with winner to meet Quakers in second half finals. Keene and Little Harlem have the first of their first half finals Tuesday in Keene. Managers are asked to note that all remaining games at the Brinton grounds will be at 6.30 sharp, with games in Keene at 6.45.

Hurling Dodger



Although he had an ailing hurling arm, Burleigh Grimes figured Wayne Lamaster, above, worth securing for his Brooklyn Dodgers from Philadelphia's Phillies, and gave up Pitcher Max Butcher and cash for him. Earlier in the season Lamaster had been on the losing end of a unique verdict in which he was debited with the loss of a game after hurling to only one batter.

Dodge Requests Change In Rules

DETROIT, Aug. 20 (AP).—Horace E. Dodge, Detroit, designer, builder and pilot of powerboat racing craft, has asked the Gold Cup committee that changes be made, in the interest of both safety and civic advantage, in the courses on the Detroit river over which the contests are run. Dodge also asked changes in the rules governing the race.

A meeting of the Gold Cup committee will be held here Monday at which Dodge is expected to state his recommendations, explain reasons prompting them, and ask assurance that steps he and the committee agree upon will be taken next year, or, if possible, this year. The Gold Cup race will be held Labor Day.

Otto F. Barthel, chairman of the committee, under whose direction the annual regattas featuring Gold Cup and Harmsworth Trophy races are held, said today that safety of pilots and spectators had always been the foremost thought of the committee. He said the commitee was "heartily in accord" with Dodge's aims.

"Dodge has predicted speeds as high as two miles a minute for boats in the Gold Cup race in a year or so," Barthel said. "With the increase in speed, the committee has constantly realized, have come greater demands on the pilots for skill and care in handling their fast craft."

Wreckers Take First Game

HAVELOCK, Aug. 20—The Havelock "Wreckers" took the first game in the Junior "B" Eastern Ontario O.A.S.A. playdowns, here yesterday afternoon, defeating the Bath Continuation School softball squad 9-2. A fair crowd was on hand to witness the snappiest game this season, both teams playing heads-up ball. It was anybody's game until the seventh inning when Havelock cinched it with a four run rally.

"Beatty" Brunton came through with another fine performance on the Havelock mound, tossing them over with speed to burn. The local pitching star with great control held the Bath boys to three safeties. He fanned 17 of his opponents and passed only two.

Weese pitching for Bath also turned in a good game holding the local batters to two runs for the first six stanzas. The "Wreckers" however got to him in the seventh and eighth chalking up seven tallys. The Bath hurler had 11 strikeouts to his credit, walking four.

Havelock started the scoring in the third inning, when Ketchen, local catcher hit a circuit clout with two out and one on base. Bath got their first counter in the fifth when Walker their left fielder knocked out a single, scored later on an overthrow at home.

Leading by a single run going into the last half of the seventh, Ketchen started the Wreckers rally with a neat bunt down the 1st base line. McCutcheon walked and "Mickey" Puffer next up drove out a nice double scoring Ketchen. Kennedy then hit a triple, driving Puffer and McCutcheon home, and himself scored later on a wild pitch.

Continuing their hitting streak in the last of the eighth, McMullen, first up hit a single, and Brunton reached first on an error by Baker, the visitor's short-stop. Bedford next up drove out a nice triple, scoring hi two team-mates, and reached home plate a minute later on a wild pitch. Ketchen and McCutcheon flied out in succession, Puffer walked, and Kennedy struck out to retire the side.

Bath entering the last stanza eight runs down, succeeded in notching only one more run, this when Baker reached home on a wild throw by Ketchen, after being walked by Brunton.

Ketchen took the batting honors with his homer and two singles with Brunton running a close second with three safeties in four trips to the plate. J. MacDonald was the visitors strongest hitter, getting two of their three safeties.

The second game of this two-out-of-three series is scheduled to be played in Bath on Tuesday, August 23.

The teams:

Bath—D. Rickey, 3b; R. Young, c; S. Baker, ss; M. Weese, p; C. Walker, lf; J. MacDonald, cf; W. Reid, 2b; E. Gilligan, rf; G. Miller, 1b.

Havelock—B. Bedford, rf; J. Ketchen, c; S. McCutcheon, 2b; B. Puffer, 1b; C. Kennedy, lf; W. Moore, 3b; K. Pollock, ss; L. McMullen, cf; W. Brunton, p.

Score by innings:	R	H	E
Havelock .....002 000 430—9	12	2
Bath .....000 010 001—2	3	2

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

A BLAST OF BOOS greeted Announcer Jock Climie down at the Ex. yesterday afternoon when he announced the winner in the second heat of the 2.14 harness horse class. And a big crowd of fans—which stayed after the granstand acts were over to see the last hoss race—booed him hard at every further announcement. We were in the stand with the judges, checking down numbers as the bronks crossed the line, so we know what happened. It was a dead heat as far as we were concerned, while most of the fans thought Peter Bidwell had won and the judges announced, through Climie, that Midnight Grattan was first. They seemed to us to finish nose and nose. There was quite a conference in the judges' stand, a few claiming it was a dead heat, one gee saying the Bidwell hoss had won, and the majority—pointing out that the horse outside, nearest the spectators, always looked to be ahead—claiming that Midnight Gratton had nosed him out. So they ruled it this way.

* * * * * *

ANYWAY, SO THEY SAY, THE two hosses are owned by the same guy, so it doesn't matter much. Caused a lot of excitement, and that's meat to any sport. Two good races. There were more in the first than claimants to a rich man's will and it took a lot of scoring to get them off anyway even. It was William all the way, a good Stratford horse driven by one of the best of the Ontario jocks, Chappy Chapman of Toronto. He won all three races in the 2.27 class. Midnight Grattan of North Bay took two firsts and a third in the 2.14 pace while Peter Bidwell was first, second and fourth in it. A bit of a spill once when Early Dreams pretty nearly put its driver to sleep, but no real damage resulted. Fastest half was 1.04¼ and fastest mile was 2.10¾. The three-day meet winds up today. Starter Climie remarked: "I guess they see better over there in the stand than under the wire here; this is the hardest riding I've ever taken."

The Stars Of Yesteryear

COMES A SUGGESTION FROM an oldtime softball hurler. Benny McLean than which there never has been any whicher in softball slab artistry around these parts. He was a peerless pitcher. Well, Benny is back here now and suggests a challenge game between local oldtimers and an all-star modern outfit. Ken Cullen claims he will line one up betwixt Westclox and Motorists of the City League. Benny's lineup might include such former softball stalwarts as Babe Anthony, Mucker Legros, Jack Russell, Benny McLean, Joe Ratteray (a stranger to us), George Dormer, Hap Bradshaw, Hip Hardill, Cy Hopkins, Hap Wilgar, Shrimp McDougall, Fred Scates, Al Heckman, Tommy Holyman, Shag Shaughnessy, Bill Simmons and several more. Anyone wishing to take up this challenge for sometime next week might notify us.

SHORTLY BEFORE NOON the Petes pulled out for Oshawa, this being the third game of the four-in-seven C. O. B. L. final playoffs. With each squad having a win apiece, today's tilt is as important as the annual visit of wealthy Uncle Wilberforce—and nothing must go wrong! They tangle back here next weekend and, if the Petes can pull out the nod today, it'll look pretty swelegant, not to say scrumptious, by then. A local loss will be bad but not fatal since the series runs on and awn and ohn. After awhile, if the locals are losing, we'll start to get worried. A cloud of secrecy still surrounds the pitching selection for the Petes—though they advertise it for a home game!—but we imagine big Russ Kitchen will get the call 'gainst Jake Biddle. Quite a few fans from here will make the trip, if the weather is oke.

Those Bold Bad Brooklins

BROOKLIN BOYS ARE BOTHERED about their brawl with the Petes here in lacrosse next Friday. They have petitioned the O. L. A. for two referees, fearing rough stuff. And they may get 'em, too—though the locals are laughing rather heartily. They have promised not to crucify "our boys" in spite of the rough passage the Petes took in Brooklin recently with no police protection and the crowd mixing in with a free-for-all. But the Brooklin boys insist they don't want to be mussed up here and they ask for plenty of protection. But boyoboyoboy how they'll be tough back on their own home lot again! The Petes go to Long Branch Monday, have the nifty East York squad here Tuesday and the "bothered" Brooklin boys here Friday.

* * * * * *

WE CLIPPED THIS FROM the Ottawa Journal: "Peterborough won the intermediate rugby title last year and now go up to senior company. The O. R. F. U. would hardly include the Petes if they weren't assured that they would be an asset to the league. If they could come up with a dozen like Dick Sheehy they would do. Fans around this town who remember Ottawa College in its last year in the Intercollegiate have vivid recollections of that dynamic back from Peterborough. Sheehy didn't weigh more than 150 pounds but there wasn't a better piece of backfield material in the student's group. He was a shifty runner and as fast and sure downfield as any outside wing in the game. After he left Ottawa College, Sheehy entered dental school at Toronto. He was a candidate for the Varsity team, but in those days the squad was pretty well controlled by one or two of the fraternities and the black-haired Irishman wasn't exactly welcomed with open arms. But he made a place for himself. He was just so tough in practises that they had to put him on the team or he'd have wrecked the squad!" Nice going, Richard.

Leather Trading Business

NORM BOWLER AND HARRY LOW will box on a Bobcaygeon card next Friday. While Joe Taman may accept an invite to fight in a Syracuse show in September. That's about all the boxing dope locally at the moment, though the Riverview A. C. crowd hope to get a program lined up either in Lindsay or in Peterborough within the next three weeks. Some of the boys are still training hard, running two and three miles daily, regardless of the weather. We wouldn't even break into a shuffle to catch the last bus in this sticky weather, but guys who expect to climb into a ring and trade hard punches to body and head know how important it is to be in the pink. There are a couple of bouts between Peterborough pugilists that we'd certainly like to see, a return Bowler-Wright scrap and a joust between Reg. Lesurf and Nick Orlando. Wouldn't they be nifties?

A GUY NAMED CHARLES LAW, sec. Huntsville Lacrosse Club, writes: "Dear Sir—We have noticed in the papers of your very good success in boxla this year, for which we are glad. In Huntsville, we are not fortunate enough to get a grouping as we are too far north. We have however still got a very good team of young fellows. Now, we would like if a game could be arranged between our two clubs. Please let us know if you could give us a game in the near future, when you could come and how much you would expect for expenses. If it were satisfactory, I am sure it could be arranged to give you a return game at anytime. Hoping to hear from you within the coming week, sincerely Chas. Law. P.S. We have a splendid arena to play in."

On Wednesday next, August 24, the second open doubles tournament for the Empress Hotel shield, will take place. Play will commence at 2 p.m. It is the last open event for men for this season. As we understand it there are no restrictions, so get a partner and enter this tournament. The shield, last year, was won by the Cannington Club.

Too much opposition was the reason for the small crowd out at our greens last night. A lot of the boys took the night off. The winning skips were: W. Oke, R. Downey and J. McDonald.

Of the sixteen rinks entered in the Warkworth ladies' Irish trples tournament eight were from Peterborough. Other clubs represented were Belleville, Cobourg, Warkworth and Stirling. Mrs. C. Smith's rink of Warkworth came first, Mrs. J. Arnold, Peterborough, second and Mrs. H. Hamilton, Peterborough, third.

Second—Mrs. H. Russell, Mrs. H. McIlmoyle, Mrs. J. Arnold, each pillow cases.

Third—Mrs. L. Yeotes, Mrs. H. Beatty, Mrs. H. Staunton, each linen table cloths.

Tanners Atop Hastings Loop

HASTINGS, Aug. 20.— The Tanner's moved into first place in the town softball league when they trounced the Clerks 13 to 1 last night. With one game left to play the best the Clerks can do is tie the Tanners for first place. The Tanners scored five in the first and fourth innings, two in the second and one in the sixth. The Clerks lone run came in the second when Downs clouted a long homer to deep left. Hahn pitched for the Tanners and restricted the Clerks to seven hits. He had four strikeouts and passed four. The Clerks pitcher, Blackbourn was the victim of a 15-hit assault on the part of the Tanners. He fogged his fast one past one Tanner and issued one free trip to first.

Thompson with three hits in four times up led the hitters from the Tanners with Downs, having two hits in three times up topping the Clerks. G. Scriver's homer to left centre in the second with one on was the featur. hit of the game.

The teams:

Clerks—L. Gibson, lf; J. Gibson, rf; Stevenson, 1b; G. Gibson, 2b; Gillespie, c; Petticrew, 3b; Downs, ss; Crate, cf; Blackburn, p; Tape, rf.

Aussies Beat Germany In Davis Cup

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 20 (AP)—Having wrecked Germany's Davis Cup hopes, Australia's four-man tennis squad pointed today for two new objectives.

One, of course, is the celebrated trophy which Donald Budge brought to the United States last year. The other, to see as many big league ball games as possible between now and Labor Day week-end, when they will try to wrest the cup from the American team at Philadelphia.

If it weren't for the two remaining exhibition singles with Germany today—Australia clinched the series yesterday by sweeping the doubles—all the Aussies would be out at Fenway Park seeing their first big league ball game.

"We're all frightfully keen about your game of baseball, you know," explained Harry Hopman, their non-playing captain.

As for the Davis Cup, there's no lack of confidence among the visitors.

"We feel we have a very good chance," said Hopman, and Jack Bromwich, Adrian Quist and L. A. Schwartz, the other team members, nodded in assent.

George M. Lott, who coached the Aussies, and Vincent Richards, another former American Davis Cupper, also think an Australian victory is probable.

All that was left for the Aussies today was to try to make good Lott's prediction that they'd beat Germany, 5-0.

Bromwich takes on George Von Metaza in one singles and Quist meets Henner Henkel in the other.

JUDGES' DECISION BOOED IN SECOND HEAT OF THE 2.14 AT "EX"

Close Finishes Mark Races In Both Classes

Several hundred spectators in the grandstand at the Exhibition yesterday roundly booed the decision of the judges in the second heat of the 2.14 class harness horse race. Apparently finishing in a dead heat, Midnight Grattan and Peter Bidwell staged a great race, with the judges giving first place to Midnight Grattan. A flood of boos greeted the announcement and Starter Jack Climie of Tillsonburg had trouble making himself heard, because of crowd disapproval, in the following events. Many in the crowd thought Peter Bidwell should have been called the winner.

Some fine finishes were noted in the two races of the afternoon, a field of 12 in the 2.27 class making much difficulty before they could be got away on fairly even terms. William, a Stratford horse, won three firsts in the 2.27 class, "Chappy" Chapman of Toronto piloting this racer home in front of the field on each occasion. In the 2.14 event Peter Bidwell won the first heat, while Midnight Grattan drew first money in the next two. Fastest half was 1.04¼ and fastest miles 2.10¾. Following are the results:

William, Queen's Stables, Stratford 1 1 1

Snead, Runyan Are Tied Golf Leadership

By Elmer Dulmage
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

MISSISSAUGA COUNTRY CLUB Toronto, Aug. 20 (C.P.). — At the pace he is shooting in the Canadian open golf championship, globe-trotting Walter Hagen will be lucky if he finishes in the first 10. And the Haig is scoring better than at any time since he got back recently from a world tour.

It won't be his fault if he isn't near the top—blame it on fellows like Sam Snead, Paul Runyan, and Harry Cooper. Old Walter can recall winning this championship on the same Mississauga layout in 1931 with a 72-hole score of 292.

To-day, with 36 holes to go, his record shows 71-74—145. That is a little under his 1931 average and Hagen is merely nine strokes off the blazing pace set by Slammin' Sam and Little Paul, with Lighthorse Harry in hot pursuit. The Haig is no serious contender at all.

Shown Some of Tricks.

The boys on the tournament circuit are popularly supposed to have improved scoring matters in recent years—even while Hagen was exploring deepest Africa with his niblic. They showed the old master some of the tricks yesterday.

Snead and Runyan, tied for the second place with 69s after Tuesday's opening assault, came back with identical 67s to share the lead at the 36-hole mark with scores of 136. Cooper, defending champion, then set a new course record of 66, and bounced into third place with a total of 137.

The result was nearly everybody else was left on the outside looking in. Ed. Oliver of Wilmington, Del., who had a 67 on Thursday, was back at 141 after taking 74. He was tied with Horton Smith of Chicago who had 70 and 71.

Slender Bobby Alston of Ottawa fired himself a brilliant 67 and gained no ground at all on the leaders. He was bracketed at 142 with Gene Kunes of Chicago and Bob Gray, Jr., of Toronto. Kunes opened with 67 but faded to 75. He had a nightmare on the par-three 14th, using seven strokes.

Joins Peterborough's New Squad

The new Peterborough entry in the Ontario Rugby Football Union will not lack for strength in the middle of the line, at least. Snapping the ball out will be Herbie Hendrie, ABOVE, for the past four years with Toronto Balmy Beach, who should be a tower of strength on what, in its first season, will probably be an inexperienced team. More Toronto players are expected to make the move to the Liftlock City.

Toronto Rink Wins Title

TORONTO, Aug. 20 (CP).—Toronto was back in the picture today as a major holder of lawn bowling titles after years of out-of-town competitors sweeping the boards of the Ontario Lawn Bowling championships.

Young's rink went into the finals by defeating N. Steep's Guelph rink 24-9 and Swain's rink went into the finals by defeating a Richmond Hill club four skipped by A. A. Eden.

D. S. L. MacDougall of Toronto Withrow club scored a 21-10 victory over A. M. Crawford of Wingham, to win the singles championships.

Dr. H. Gear and his son, H. A. Gear, of Erin, a well-matched pair, were the only out-of-town team to score a provincial victory when they captured the doubles title by defeating the Toronto St. Matthew's stars D. M. Eaton and W. J. Hutchinson by 19-18.

Greenberg Hits 5 Home Runs In Two Days

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—(CP)—They've plugged up the hole in Hank Greenberg's bat, and the big fellow is firing at Babe Ruth's record again.

For a couple of weeks there, big Hank might just as well have been batting with a toothpick for all the ground he was picking up in chasing the Babe's all-time mark of 60 homers in one year.

But in the last two days, St. Louis Browns' pitchers rolled into Detroit and showed Hank the hole in his stick, through which enemy elbowers were throwing their special tosses. Hank promptly plugged it up and busted five choice offerings of the Brownie flingers out of the park in two days, to bring his season fourbase total to 41.

Three of these round-trip tickets came yesterday as the Tigers clicked for a doubleheader victory, 8-7 and 7-4, and accounted for eight of the 15 Detroit runs.

The double win yesterday also boosted the Tigers to within a game of fourth place in the American League standings, since Washington's Senators, current holders of that spot, dropped a 4-3 10-inning decision to Boston Red Sox. Jimmy Foxx, that other home-run specialist, whacked his 38th.

Ten Game Lead.

The league-leading Yankees, however, weren't bothering much about such lowly spots as third and fourth places, for they whipped the Athletics 5-2, on Spud Chandler's six-hit pitching, to climb 10 games in front in the junior circuit race. The second place Cleveland Indians (remember them?) were soundly thumped, 7-2, by Chicago White Sox.

With the National league-leading Pittsburg Pirates idle, the Giants took advantage of the opportunity to pick up half-agame by belting the Phillies, 4-2, on Jimmy Ripple's homer. This left Bill Terry's outfit 4½ games off the pace. Brooklyn Dodgers nipped Boston Bees, 1-0, in an 11-inning night tilt in the only other scheduled National League game, to climb into a tie for fifth place.

Cricket Results

LONDON, Aug. 20 (C.P. Cable).—Leader of the English county cricket competition with two more weeks left to play, Yorkshire is almost a certainty to win its 20th championship. The white rose county placed first in 1937 after a tight battle with Middlesex.

Yesterday Yorkshire was victorious by an innings and 80 runs over Gloucestershire, while Middlesex defeated Essex by a clear 10-wickets margin. The third-place Lancashire eleven posted first-innings points against Glamorgan.

Ahead on the first innings, Somerset collapsed in their second turn at the wicket and lost by 45 runs to Worcestershire. In other matches concluded yesterday Kent defeated Leicestershire by nine wickets and Surrey gained first-innings points over Warwickshire.

The scores:

Essex 108 and 309 (Nichols 62, Smith four for 73); Middlesex 392 and 26 runs for no wickets; at Lord's.

Lancashire 383 and 8 for four; Glamorgan 272 (E. Davies 92, C. Davies 55, Wilkinson eight for 86); at Swansea.

Kent 519 and 46 runs for one wicket; Leicestershire 223 and 340 (Woolley six for 57); at Oakham.

Surrey 410 and 121 for five declared; Warwickshire 335 and 106 for three; at Birmingham.

Newark Drops Doubleheader To The Royals

TORONTO, Aug. 20 (C.P.) — The International League season comes to an end, except for the playoffs, three weeks from to-morrow and apparently nothing short of a train wreck or an epidemic can keep the Newark Bears from winning the pennant.

Newark's winning record for the past few weeks hasn't been as impressive as it was early in the season, what with losing a doubleheader to the seventh-place Montreal Royals last night, but they've been playing better than .500 ball and that's all they need to do.

If the second-place Rochester Red Wings or third-place Syracuse Chiefs should manage to win all their remaining games, they'd finish with 98 or 97 victories, respectively. The Bears have 82 wins in hand, and thus would need to take only 16 or 1 more out of 31 they have left.

The Montreal veteran, Harry Smythe, had too much on the ball for the Bears in last night's opener, setting them down with seven hits to win, 1-0, as the Royals fashioned a run from three hits off Marius Russo. Then the Montreal hitters came to life in two five-run innings, and took the nightcap 10-6.

Rochester's Red Wings picked up a game on the leaders by splitting a twin bill with Syracuse, and incidentally remained 2½ games ahead of the Chiefs. Scoring all the runs in the first inning, the Wings took the opening pitching duel between Nubs Kleinke and Ted Kleinhans, 3-2. Syracuse won the nightcap 7-1.

Jersey City Giants had one of their good evenings in an in-and-out season and belted over Buffalo Bisons 11-7.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, outside of the fall fair being held in these parts this week, the biggest topick of conversation has been how Mister Murphy's lads stopped the Oshawa Gm-men last Sat. in their tracks and sewed up the Central loop playoff serious tighter than a drum. Our Mister McNally tossing in left-handed fire balls and a curve that looped in there with plenty of zip on allowed the enemy only 4 hits and one was as scratchy as a pet dog and the Oshawa hitters didn't enjoy theirselfs very much up there at the plate with the way our eminent portsider was performing. Behind him the Petes was plying a real money serious brand of defensive ball in the field and the result was the Oshawans had to be lucky to escape a shutout. If their Mister Miller hadn't got plugged in the ribs with a ball he couldn't get out of the way of the plate wouldn't have been dinted by a pair of enemy spikes. The Petes win with 1 big inning when the Oshawa timing went screwey.

Chuck Fooled Them.

Twice the visitors thought they could throw a ball faster than our Mister Kearns could run but both times Mister Kearns chugged into port ahead in front of the Spalding and the result was there we was with the bases all full of Petes and not a hand down. From then on it wasn't hard chasing in 3 markers with a error a long outfield fly and a double steal that made Oshawa look as if they was in a huddle trying to figger out when the plant would be running full blast again. Their Mister Turner, although he showed no ambition out there on the hill top managed to hold the Petes' attack pretty well in check from then on but the damage had been did, especially in the face of the way our Mister McNally was chucking.

This Sat. at Oshawa it will be likely Mister Kitchen against Mister Biddle and the brand of ball the Petes big right hander has been firing should oughta give the Gm-Men plenty of trouble.

Yanks Coasting.

They aint been much in the big top this week to get excited over, Mac. The Yanks of course look to be walking away from the American loop. As is being wrote the New Yorkers is 7 full games in front and they aint no reason why they shouldn't be 15 before the curtain falls. The Cleveland Indians has folded up and nobody else is offering much opposition so it is just a case of playing out the string from now in. The National League race sees the Pirates still 5 games in front but they aint playing no wonderful ball and if the Giants get going like they usually do this time of the year, it wouldn't be no trick for the Terrymen to come from behind and cop the tinware. Of course, the Giants aint going fast enough theirselfs to make anybody dizzy and they aint going to be helped none with Mister Carl Hubbell coming down with a lame flipper. Still I call the Giants let the chips fall where they may.

Rugby aint more than a handspring away Mac and we will be in before we know it. The next 2 weeks is holidays for your scribe and by the time we get back football oughta to be providing a lotto talk.

That's all for a fortnight. Take it away, Mac.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISECRACKER.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 20

LITTLE MAXINE Yarrington, eyes wide open but unseeing slept on today as she has for more than 1,00 days and nights, her condition neither better nor worse, but her case hopeless.

Physicians at last have said they believe the five-year-old victim of encephalitis Lethargica (sleeping sickness) cannot recover. Maxine's mother visits her each week, although she never finds the signs of improvement that might indicate the doctors are wrong.

The child came to the hospital (St. Vincent's) nearly three years ago—Sept. 24, 1935. She continues to take food mechanically from a bottle and has grown slightly. Her cheeks are red; her complexion natural.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

PREVENTING A GUESS

ANY METHOD of playing or leading which compels your partner to make guesses which you could prevent is very bad defense. If you can see the best way to defeat the contract, and it is doubtful whether your partner can, take the old bull by the horns. Overtake his winning card, if necessary, in order to show him the way.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South's original bid on this deal was 1-Spade. North responded with 2-spades, which South took to 3-Spades. North refused to bid any more.

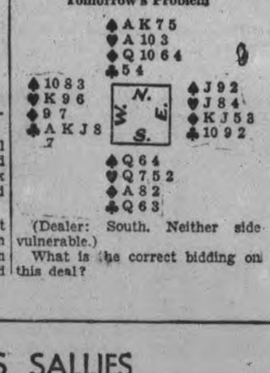
West led the club K and when it held followed with the Q. South ruffed the third round. He then drew two rounds of trumps and four rounds of diamonds. Next he played the Q and 6 of spades and gave up two heart tricks.

East had a chance to set the contract by overtaking the club K with the A and laying down the heart K. The return of a club then would have given West the information that East wished a heart return through the Q. That play would have given East-West three heart tricks and two clubs.

South had little hope of making the contract when the dummy was exposed, but took advantage of the chance offered him and his method of play brought him success.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

SALLY'S SALLIES

There's virtually nothing left for an explorer to hunt for now—unless it's a good five-cent cigar.

PANTHERS—NOT TIGERS

Police of Kuala Lampur, South Africa, are complaining that frequent reports that tigers are seen in the city streets are a great exaggeration, the animals being "only panthers."

GOING HARD FOR NAZIS

Germany is finding it necessary to engage in constant promotion activities to retain its share of sales of steel and iron hardware in foreign countries.

Proverbs 31:28—"Her children rise up and call her blessed."

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James
Toronto

WHAT DO I KNOW OF THE BIBLE?
JEREMIAH—THE PROPHET OF PERSONAL RELIGION

THE WORD of the Lord came unto me, saying, I have ordained thee a prophet unto the nations. Then said I, oh, Lord God, behold, I cannot speak; for I am a child.—Jer. 1:16.

Have you read more moving words than this? As Bishop Westcott points out:—"To be a prophet to men who will not listen. What a call to a man who is sensitive?" "I am a child" means that he has never had responsibility; he is not a person whose words will carry weight.

Dr. John Skinner, Head of Westminster College, Cambridge, reminds us that to Jeremiah "religion was a reality; real fellowship with a real, moral deity." This is an everyday truth to us but a new truth to Jeremiah's generation. It is his special contribution to a wider knowledge of God's character. It is a progressive revelation.

It was Jeremiah's bitter, awful task to tell his people that Jehovah would destroy the Temple. A generation earlier Isaiah had taught the opposite truth and the destruction of Sennacherib's army by a plague was a practical proof that Jerusalem was under the care of Jehovah and that His Temple could not be destroyed by man. To teach that Jehovah would destroy the Temple meant that the people would not believe in such a God. Jehovah was not their God and they could not worship Him. He was a God they could not understand nor worship. You can easily understand how such teaching produced hatred against him on the part of his hearers. Jeremiah was bitterly hated as an unpatriotic man and a teacher of false doctrine.

Jeremiah, through bitter suffering and agony of mind, had to learn and teach that Jehovah was not a tribal God. He realized that Israel could only learn the wider truth that Jehovah was the only true and living God through the awful destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple and the carrying away of the people into Babylon.

Jeremiah spent his life, nearly forty years, facing horrible persecution and hatred. He was looked upon as a traitor to his country. "He weakeneth the hands of the men of war that remain in the City. For this man seeketh not the welfare of this people but the hurt."—38:4.

Jeremiah is a real man, sensitive to public opinion. It is pain and grief to him to be in the opposition. He decides he will not speak. He will hold his peace. Then he tells us how he is under "Divine compulsion" and cannot help himself. "O Lord, Thou art stronger than I and hast prevailed; I am in derision daily, every one mocketh me. Then I said, I will not make mention of Him nor speak any more in His Name. But His word was in mine heart as a burning fire shut up in my bones, I could not stay" 20:7. The divine compulsion. What an ideal for the true preacher of the Word of God. Thinking, pondering upon the deep things of God will have a similar effect upon the mind of the true man of God. "Is not my word like fire, saith the Lord, and like a hammer that breaketh in pieces?"—23:29.

It was given to Jeremiah to reveal the wonderful truth that God desires to speak to the individual soul. Jeremiah is the first teacher in the Old Testament to teach the need of personal religion. It is the main truth of his ministry. It is the key to the whole story of the Divine education of Israel. "In Jeremiah religion became individual, spiritual, intimate, warm with the life blood of a warm, sympathetic heart" says Dr. Peake, the famous Methodist Commentator. It is the intercourse of the souls of men with the One, real, living God.

"AFTER those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people."—31:33.

Hannah—Godly Motherhood

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for August 21 is I Samuel 1:1-22:10, especially I Samuel 1:9-18; 2:1-5, the Golden Text being Proverbs 31:28, "Her children rise up and call her blessed.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

WHETHER Hannah shared Elkanah's sin by becoming the second wife in his unhappy family we are not told. This may have been part of the sorrow with which her soul was troubled.

A Prayer for Motherhood.

However that may be, Hannah went up with her husband to the house of the Lord in Shiloh in great bitterness of soul because she was childless while the other wife in the family had children: "And she was in bitterness of soul, and prayed unto the Lord and wept sore. And she vowed a vow, and said, O Lord or hosts if thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thine handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but wilt give unto thine handmaid a man child, then will I give him unto the Lord all the days of his life." Here is a fervent prayer for motherhood as God's crowning glory for womanhood. Here, too, is a fine example of prenatal influence of a mother in shaping the character of her unborn child. And if we want to know how God prepared Samuel to become next to Moses in greatness among all Old Testament characters, let us give the credit under God, to Samuel's godly mother, as in the caseof Jochebed, mother of Moses. Both mingled a mother's prayers with a mother's milk in the making of the manhood God used so wondrously in their sons. Both are the inspiration and encouragement of innumerable hosts of obscure mothers who serve God and country vicariously through their more illustrious sons and daughters.

"What's In A Name?"

The naming of a baby always is an interesting event in family life. To this godly mother it was particularly significant. Her son of prayer must have a name which would forever remind him that he was a child of prayer and consecrated to Jehovah who had given him in answer to prayer. So she named the child "Asked-of-God", for this is the meaning of "Samuel". Thus she insured the perpetual remembranceof her prayer and her solemn vow, so that even Eli, who made such a bad job of raising his own sons, could not spoil the son of Hannah's prayers.

A Mother's Sacrifice.

Hannah's unselfish dedication to the ministry of motherhood was evidenced when her child was weaned and she brought him up to Shiloh and turned him over to the aged Eli to be trained from infancy for God's service. "And when she had weaned him she took him up with her . . . and brought him unto the house of the Lord in Shiloh; and the child was young . . . and she said . . . for this child I prayed; and the Lord hath given me my petition which I asked of him: therefore also I have lent him to the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord. And he worshipped the Lord there." "Like mother, like child." Thus godly mothers through the ages have shaped their children's destinies for time and eternity in the laboratory of their own devotion and ideals. Hannah saw her son but once a year when they came up to the house of the Lord for the yearly sacrifice. "Samuel ministered before the Lord, being a child, girded with a linen ephod. Moreover, his mother made him a little coat and brought it to him from year to year, when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice."

CHATHAM, Ont., Aug 19—(CP)—P. G. Piggott, Chatham industrialist, has received a letter from a supreme optimist—with a long memory. The writer says he was in Mr. Piggott's employ in 1906, and "owing to important business" left Chatham Aug. 3 of that year, without collecting his pay. He wants Mr. Piggott to forward him any money due him in unpaid wages.

A National Message

The heathen for thine inheritance. —Psalm II. First promise.

"Ask of me, and I will give to thee the heathen for thine inheritance."

This is an additional gift. It is an extension of the inheritance. It embraces all the families, and all the nations of the earth. It is impossible to overstate the importance of this great undertaking, for God the Lord is now moving toward the complete fulfilment of this promise.

The strength and beauty of this promise has been missed because we have made that purely ecclesiastical which God has made national. It is ot the King; to the occupant of the throne that the gift of "the heathen" is made.

If the church has succeeded, or were to succeed, in Christianizing all nations, still this promise would not be fulfilled until all nations became united under the single rule of the King which God has set upon His holy hill of ion.

Let us think for a moment what this means for the whole of the human family.

It means the extension of the "sure mercies of David" i.e. of the Davidic Covenant—to all nations according to the terms of Isaiah LV. As St. Peter was permitted to open the Kingdom of faith to all believers when he baptized Cornelius and his household, so now the national kingdom is thrown open to every nation.

It means that there will be extended, so as to embrace all nations, such a piece as is to be found among the Celto-Saxon people of the Empire, and the U.S.A. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end.—Isaiah IX.

Seven great nations, holding a quarter of the worlds surface, are competing with each other in part, and in part co-operating with each other within that great family of nations. Six of these nations are held in unity to the throne, which God has set upon the hill of Zion (official, not geographical Zion). The U.S.A. is not so held; but is of the same great family, and is living in the same place.

Between these there is not a single miltiary barrier. Against any of these there is not a single warship built or manned.

Added to these there is the great Empire of India, and the other parts of the Empire, and the overseas possessions of the U.S.A. They dwell together in peace.

There is not an elected legislative body, representative for these, up to the present time. Probably there never will be. For legislation by elective bodies has no part in the Divine plan of government.

There is a body appointed in the membership and activities of which the British nations are all united namely, the Privy Council; and to this body appeals are made from all parts of the Empire. This is the Supreme Court of Appeal for all the realm. Developments along this line will be found to be in accordance with the Divine constitution.

Now think of this state of things, lifted up on a greatly higher plane, extended to embrace all the continents and seas, applying to all the nations of the world. War banished forever, even from the thinking of the people. This is coming, and it is coming soon.

Great Preacher Coming To City

The Rev E.. L. Langston, who is at present giving a five week's course of addresses at the Keswick Conference and preaching at St. Paul's church, Toronto will be the guest of the Peterborough Ministerial Association for their August meeting on August 29th. A public meeting is being arranged which will probably be held in All Saints Church. This visit is only made possible through a meeting last year when Canon Paterson was introduced to Mr. Langston in England by Bishop Taylor Smith and the three spent eight days together.

The Rev. E. L. Langston has until recently been rector of Sevenoaks, Kent, in the diocese of Canterbury but he has a most intimate acquaintance with the European situation and more especially in connection with the Jewish situation in Middle Europe, speaking the language and dialects.

He has for 25 years been constantly visiting among the Jewish people of Russia, Poland, Roumania, Germany, Hungary, as well as in Palestine, Transjordania and North Africa, first as secretary of the Church of England missions to the Jews and more recently continuing the friendships move in these earlier years. When on December 13, 1917, after the Balfour Declaration and the captureof Jerusalem by Lord Allenby the Queen's Hall—the scene of so many great gatherings—was filled capacity three times in one day, the Rev. E. L. Langston was naturally chosen as one of the speakers.

During the Great War he was entertained in the Royal Court of Russia for the Easter festivities when he represented both the British government and the Church of England.

He has come to Canada direct from a visit to the Jewish communties of Buda-Pesth, Vienna and Roumania and while Leha made no announcement of his subject as yet it is expected that he will speak on the European situation in relation to the Jews. His subject of fuller details will be announced in The Examiner within a few days. Mr. Langford is a Rotarian and will lunch with the Peterborough club and afternoon with members of the Ministerial Association.

Hannah: Godly Motherhood — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Samuel 1:1-2:10.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Hannah was the wife of Elkanah and went up with him each year to worship in God's house. Here she prayed earnestly for a son. Eli, the priest, saw her lips moving and thought she was drunk.

God gave her a son whom she named Samuel, meaning "Asked of God." Upon weaning Samuel Hannah brought him to Eli to be his minister to serve in God's house.

Once each year Hannah came to see Samuel, bringing a little coat which she had made in great love wondering each time if it would fit her growing son.

Samuel became a great good man and became Eli's successor. He was always a credit to his mother whose prayers were answered in his birth.

Italy Plans Census Of All Jews

Use Nazi Methods For Proscription Of Jewish Residents

By Melvin K. Whiteleather
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

Aided by Nazi Germany's tried methods, the Fascist Government intends soon to find out how many Jews there are in Italy so that their participation can be limited in the armed forces, civil service and professions by the ration of one Jew to every 1,000 non-Jewish Italians.

Fascists say foreign Jews will be forced to give up their work in Italy and, perhaps, expelled. Those who emigrated from Germany and Australia in the past few years again face an uncertain future.

On Basis Of Blood

The census is to be carried out by the ministry of interior's newly-created bureau of "population and race." It is to be based on blood, not religion, and fascists say severe penalties will be imposed on Jews who attempt to hide their ancestry.

Jewish figures estimate Italy's Jewish population at 44,000.

Experts from the German race office have been in Rome as advisers, to explain how Germany keeps tabs on her Jews through careful filing systems.

Italian espousal of anti-semitism, disavowed until recently by fascism, is attributed to several causes. Official spokesmen name three:

1. A desire to defend the newly acquired empire through prohibition of intermarriage of Italians, to prevent creating a mixed race.

2. A wish to strike a blow at "international Hebrewism," which Fascists accuse of leading attacks on fascism.

To Curb Influence

3. The fascist belief that Jews have attained a position in Europe disproportionate to their numbers.

Nazidom's desire to see fascism follow its anti-semitic policy is known to have had some influence.

Nazis who have come to Rome are said to have complained that they met Jews wherever they went. There are many Jews in the fascist party and in high positions. There are several Jewish generals and admirals and about 400 officers and suboffers in the air corps.

Farmer Is Slain With Pocket-Knife

MONT LAURIER, Que., Aug. 22.—(CP).— Elmer Wagner, 57-year-old farmer from nearby Lac Blanc, was in jail here to-day awaiting arraignment on a charge of manslaughter for the pocket-knife slaying of Aristide Bourdrais, his 34-year-old neighbor.

Arrested yesterday shortly after Bourdrias' body, stabbed under the heart, was found near a cornfield, Wagner was found criminally responsible by a coroner's jury under Dr. T. Lacvhapelle and taken to this Labelle county-town.

Wagner told the jury he stabbed Bourdrias and the latter's father, Edmond, after reneway of a dispute over ownership of the corn field. He said the two men, whose property adjoined his, advanced upon him with an axe and stick and he drew the knife to protect himself.

Sought As Gun-Girl

Blonde and pretty, Mrs. Ruth M. Freedman, ABOVE, of Allston, Mass., is the object of a hunt by police of several states at the request of Boston authorities. Mrs. Freedman is wanted for questioning in connection with a series of armed hold-up robberies in and about the Hub city. Latest victim, a gas station manager, identified a photo of Mrs. Freedman as that of a woman bandit who slapped his face when his cash register yielded but $11 to the woman and two male assistants. "Small potatoes," was how the lady Raffles described the loot.

Castleton Man Killed By Gravel Truck

WARKWORTH, Aug. 22. — Run over by a gravel truck which he tried to catch while it was in motion, Gerald Wilce, 27, son of John K. Wilce and the late Mrs. Wilce, was instantly killed at 11 o'clock this morning about a mile south and east of Castleton.

Frank Haynes of Colborne was driving the truck which was being used in gravelling operations along the road in front of the Wilce house. It was moving at a slow rate, estimated at six miles an hour, when Wilce ran out to the road in an attempt to hop on to the running board.

According to a report from Castleton, Wilce had lost the use of one arm several years ago as an effect of spinal meningitis, and it was said he apparently caught hold of the truck with only one arm to support himself and it was believed he slipped off the side of the truck and under its wheels. Dr. Peacock of Grafton was called and declared Wilce's death was instantaneous.

Girl Drowned When Canoe Is Capsized

Backwash Overturned Small Boat As It Neared Shore

Six year old Gloria Gorman was drowned early Saturday evening in Sturgeon Lake when the canoe in which she was riding with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Gorman, 257 Jane street, Toronto, was capsized by the backwash from a large cruiser. Her body was recovered at noon Sunday.

The family had been holidaying with Mr. Gorman's brother, William Gorman at Kelly's Bay on Lake Sturgeon and the three were returning from a fishing trip and were near home when a large cruiser passed close to them and large waves upset the canoe. Their host saw the accident and came to their aid in a small power boat. He rescued the parents, but the child had disappeared and the mother seeing this jumped overboard to search for the girl. Both men had difficulty getting her back into the motor boat. Immediate efforts were made to find the child but all failed.

Firemen Asked To Help.

A call for assistance up and down the summer colony brought more than fifty men and girls who dragged the lake all Saturday night, aided by improvised searchlights. Sunday morning a call was sent to Fire Chief George Gimblett in this city asking for an experienced man to supervise the dragging operations and Joe Astles, electrician, went to Sturgeon Lake with two sets of grappling hooks. Twenty minutes after receiving the call he was on his way and arrived one hour later.

He organized the men into parties and sectioned off the lake where the girl was said to have sank, but weeds handicapped the searchers. Thomas Watt, a Toronto stock broker, towed a large number of small boats from Bobcaygeon to the scene with his large cruiser and on arriving was asked by Astles to circle a certain area at high speed several times to churn the water. Several smaller power boats followed in the wake of large craft and after 35 turns the body came to surface. Three men from Bobcaygeon, Ralph Gordon, Howland Kelly and Wallace Kelly spotted the body and brought the girl ashore at 12.20 Sunday.

William Gorman directed the searching parties all Saturday night and assisted again Sunday morning when Fireman Astles arrived. The latter notified Provincial Constable Adair of Lindsay and the coroner when the body was recovered. An investigation is being conducted by the police.

The body was removed to Bobcaygeon and interment will be in Toronto.

Lindsay Man Is Drowned In North

NORTH BAY, Ont., Aug. 22—(CP)—Cameron Newman, Lindsay, Ont., drowned in Lake Nipissing near the La Vass river late Saturday. Newman was swimming when he went down.

The body was recovered within five minutes and resuscitation efforts continue for 1½ hours before the man was pronounced dead by doctors.

Two Couples Fined For Hotel Fiction

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 22.—(CP)—Hotel registration as "Dorothy Leibert and party" for a group of two couples doesn't count as far as Hamilton court are concerned.

Miss Leibert, of Pittsburg, Pa., was fined $25 or 30 days for false registration today. In addition she was fined a similar amount and $2.50 costs for obtaining lodging by fraud in a second hotel, Virgina Leibert, Pittsburg, was also fined $25 and $2.50 costs and Jennifer Vishnik, Pittsburg, $50 on the lodging fraud charges.

The party had been asked to leave the first hotel after some disturbance. They had left, without paying bills of $9, $6 and $9 respectively.

Never Sacrifice Canadians For Chamberlain's Policies

OSHAWA, Aug. 22.—"This building of tanks and mobile forces in Canada is not, in my opinion, a defence force, but an expeditionary force," M. J. Coldwell, M.P. (Rosetown-Biggar), Chairman of the C.C.F. National Council, declared in addressing a mass meeting at the Federation's Youth Movement summer school north of here Sunday afternoon. "I welcome the statement of President Roosevelt that the United States would not stand idly by if Canada were threatened, but that statement conveyed the warning that if we are going to receive the friendly protection of the United States, then we must not jeopardize the peace of North America by participating in a war to protect the policies of Neville Chamberlain.

"The war into which we are drifting will be camouflaged, as a war to save democracy, but in reality it will be a war to retain policies that have betrayed vested interests.

"Not one Canadian boy should be sacrificed for the policies of Neville Chamberlain, which are betraying democracy."

"In the House of Commons the C.C.F. group was the only party to dare question the Government on its foreign policy. Even now the people and Parliament know very little because I know of no one like Mr. King who can say so much but mean so illtte." The speaker elaborated on the propaganda emanating over the air waves, war material contracts, the effects of Great Britain's policy in Spain and Ethiopia, and the dark future ahead unless Canada refused to follow.

14-Year-Old Lad Shouts Encouragement To Fishermen Whose Boat Upset In Lake

SUDBURY, Ont., Aug. 22 (CP).—Two fishermen who tangled in their trolling lines when a sudden squall upset their punt in Moore Lake yesterday had 14-year-old Joe Fajcz to thank today that they escaped drowning.

In a 45-minute bout with the waves, the lad swam around shouting encouragement and instructions to the men and steadied the revolving punt enough to enable them all to push it into shallow water.

The three, Fajcz, George Gasdich and Joseph Joakim, all of Sudbury, had been fishing on the lake, near Chelmsford, only a short time when a heavy wind sprang up. As they turned to head for shore their punt slipped into the trough of a huge wave and overturned. The two men became more and more wound up in their line as the boat kept turning over and over.

"I took the stern end of the punt and held it ste[illegible]," Fajcz said today. "Then Mr. Gasdich got away from the boat as far as the line would let him. The line was around neck and feet and he was tired. I pushed the boat to him and Mr. Joakim. Then we started pushing the boat towards shore. It took us about 45 minutes."

Honor Showman

Despite the fact they worked till long after midnight Friday and would have to work long on Saturday, members of Conklin Brother's Midway turned out Saturday morning in almost full force to attend a memorial service at Little Lake Cemetery for Donald McCaffery, once a member of their company, who was drowned here three years ago. Every year since, the employees and heads of the various midway shows have attended the memorial service, conducted by Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson. On Saturday the grave was profusely decorated with flowers, its surface covered with an intricate pattern of red, white and blue gladiolii. (Examiner Staff Photos.)

Car Without Gears Or Clutch To Revolutionize Motor Industry

Cambridge, England, Aug. 22.

PLANS FOR A revolutionary automobile without gears or clutch were presented today to the British Association for the advancement of science.

Professor Frederick C. Lea, formerly of Sheffield University, who presented the paper, said the new method of power transmission also could be applied to airplanes, ships and railroad trains.

It was understood an English company was being formed to promote the invention, credited by Professor Lea to commendatore Piero Salerni, an Italian engineer living in England.

Claims for the gearless car—in which a centrifugal pump replaces gear box and cluth—are that it would use less gasoline, increasing tire mileage and quicken acceleration.

Professor Lea said he based his conclusions on tests of more than 65,000 miles with such an automobile.

Canadians Urged To Plant Trees To Control Flooding

ST. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que., Aug. 22.—(CP)—Canadians were urged today by the Dominion Forestry expert to plant trees and improve farming methods as the best means of controlling floods and soil erosion.

Speaking before the Fifth International Conference of Agricultural Economists, Roland D. Craig of the forest service in Ottawa declared that "afforestation and better farming methods are the cheapest and most effective means of controlling both floods and soil erosion."

The government expert was talking on the relation of foresty to agriculture during a discussion on papers dealing with the "social implications of economic progress in present day agriculture." He found much in common between agriculture and forestry, and declared later in the relationship should be even more intimate.

"Foresters," he declared, "look forward to the time when farming settlements will be established on the better soils throughout the forests and these settlements will supply the greater part of the woods labor." Mr. Craig held, too, that most farmers now could grow crops on their land, devoting up to 10 per cent. of the farm to them on an economic basis.

Veterans Operate Cannery In Essex

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 22.—(CP)—A canning factory established in Sandwich West township by the federal government and operated by the families of 20 local war veterans was in full operation today. Profits of the factory, which is capable of preserving 1,000 cases of tomatoes a day, will be shared by workers engaged in the plant.

Tomatoes are grown on 90 acres of 138 acres provided by the government. Canning equipment has been provided by the Canadian Canning Company.

C.N.E. Opens Friday

TORONTO, Aug. 22—(CP)—Gates of the 60th annual Canadian National Exhibition — the nation's greatest pageant—will be thrown open here Friday in what officials hope will be the greatest fair of them all. Lord Stanley, secretary of state for the Dominions, will perform a double duty on Founders Day, declaring the new United Kingdom pavilion open and officially starting the Diamond Jubilee Exhibition.

Calgary, Aug. 22.

TWENTY thousand young men and women in the Prairie Provinces have never been employed at steady work, Albert S. Duncah, a member of the Social Research Department of McGill University, Montreal, found during a two-year survey of the West's unemployment situation.

The West's greatest problem, he found, was the need of permanent Jobs for 100,000 employable, but unemployed wage-earners.

No Further Trouble

TORONTO, Aug. 22—(CP)—Hon. Harry Nixon, Ontario Provincial Secretary, said today there had been no further trouble among Ontario Reformatory prisoners at Guelph after the recent one-meal hunger strike protesting inequality of remissions for good behavior between penitentiary and reformatory prisoners.

New 'Ex' Record Of 47,325 Paid At Gates

Peterborough's Exhibition of 1938 soared to a new attendance record of 47,325 paid admissions, but missed the 50,000 mark by 2,675.

The total was 4,137 more than the 43,188 for the four days of 1937. Saturday's attendance was one of the largest in the history of the Exhibition, 14,998, as compared with 14,303 on the corresponding day a year ago.

The total number of grandstand tickets sold was 15,062 as against 14,768 last year, and Fred Holmes, who was in charge of the ticket staff informed the Examiner today that when the final count is made the grandstand record will likely be between 17,000 and 18,000. There is no actual discrepancy in the figures, but the uncertainty this morning was an outcome of the advance sale of tickets.

Public support of the Exhibition was uniformly sustained throughout the four days, and was drawn for the most part from the city and county, with the city people especially exceeding their usual attendance.

Rampaging Steer In Head Lines

TORONTO, Aug. 22 — (CP). — A large steer caused a mild furore along the Lake Ontario waterfront on Saturday night when it broke away from a railway siding where stock for a Wild West show at the Candian National Exhibition was being unloaded. A cowboy on a horse finally lassooed the animal.

Harry Horton and a friend were about to enter the clubhouse of the Toronto Canoe Club when they heard a thunder of hooves behind them. They just managed to duck into a doorway as the steer charged by. The steer next crashed through the only door at the nearby tennis courts. Some players dropped their racquets and ran, others started to scale the wire fence enclosing the courts.

While the steer held sway on the courts, a cowboy riding a horse galloped up. The cowboy roped the steer, but almost was pulled from the saddle when the animal held its ground. The steer finally was coaxed toward the exhibition grounds, but it still hadn't pulled its last trick. As the horse went around one side of a tree, the steer went around the other. Again the cowboy nearly took a tumble.

The cowboy decided then to call help. He tied the steer's legs and went for aid. Then the steer was taken to its stall, but not before it had tossed one of the men into a somersault when the man grabbed it by the horns.

Medal From Napoleon

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 22 (C.P.)—Descendant of one of the heroes of the French Army decorated by Napoleon, Jules Robinet, Windsor, and his bride of 58 years ago, Marie Seguin, celebrated the anniversary of their wedding on Sunday, and held a family re-union at their home, attended by more than 250 members of the Seguin and Robinet families. Mr. Robinet, 80, proudly shows a medal given to his ancestor by the Emperor Napoleon on the battlefield.

Canada Will Provide Adequate Defense King Pledges To U.S.

Prime Minister Indicates Government Intends To Go Right Ahead With Program Of National Defence At Woodbridge Picnic

WOODBRIDGE, Ont., Aug. 22 (CP)—While the Canadian government appreciates President Roosevelt's assurance of United States aid to repel any invasion of Canada it will not shirk its duty to provide adequate defences on its own account.

This was the assurance left by Prime Minister Mackenzie King with his former constituency of North York on a week-end visit. He was back in Ottawa today after speaking here Saturday and spending Sunday with his old friend, Sir William Mulock, former Chief Justice of Ontario.

The government intends to go right ahead with its program of national defence, Mr. King indicated. Canada has responsibilities as a good neighbor as well as the United States and one of them was to take steps to prevent any hostile power attacked the United States from a base on Canadian territory whether by land, sea or air.

This involved no military alliance and was fully in accord with the British commonwealth defence policy assented to by Canada at the last Imperial Conference in London. This policy asserted each dominion was responsible for its own defence but that Canadian defence could best be obtained by co-operation and consultation with other members of the commonwealth.

Historic Event.

President Roosevelt's visit to Canada with his two speeches last week at Queen's University, Kingston, and the new international bridge at Ivy Lea, was described as a historic event by the Prime Minister. He expressed approval of both and replied briefly to Premier Hepburn's renewed opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway, following the President's speech on that subject.

With the President, he believed a day would come when the water of the St. Lawrence River would be dedicated to the lasting and productive use of the peoples on either side of it.

"The new United States draft (St. Lawrence Waterway treaty) affords a practical basis for the discussion of the whole situation," he said. "It opens a new chapter in the consideration of our great waterway problem.

"There are phases of the combined project (power and navigation development) which will require full consideration by the Dominion, and this examination is being given. The cooperation of Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario and of the Ontario Government would be necessary for the utilization of the power produced both at Niagara and one the St. Lawrence."

It was axiomatic that Canada and the United States respect the right of each other to manage its own affairs, and no solution of the waterway problem would be acceptable which did not leave each government master in its own house.

Reply In Due Course.

Mr. King said he had seen a letter stated to have been written to himself on the waterway subject by Premier Hepburn in the papers. He

Arabs And Jews Slain In Scattered Area

JERUSALEM, Aug. 22 — (CP-Havas)—Fire, believed of incendiary origin, today broke out in a saw mill close to the Talavera Barracks and a gasoline depot. The blaze spread rapidly but firemen aided by soldiers succeeded in getting it under control.

The battle ship Malaya dropped anchor at Haifa today, replacing the battle cruiser Repulse, returning to England.

Four persons, three of them Arabs, were killed and eight injured in a new series of attacks at scattered points during the last 24 hours, reports reaching her said.

The bodies of three Arabs were discovered on the Acre-Safed road. A Jewish worker was killed and five other Jews were wounded when Terrorist snipers fired on a bus south of Tel Aviv. Three workmen were wounded in the explosion of a mine placed on railway tracks near here.

Terrorists also cashed in on kidnappings carried out during recent days, obtaining a £700 (about $3,500) ransom for the release of a Jewish foreman captured on the Hedera highway. A number of other kidnapped persons were set at liberty after ransoms had been paid.

Roll Of Bills Found In Old Mattress

DUNDAS, Ont., Aug. 22 (CP) — Mrs. James Strome of Dundas claimed today to have found "a small fortune" in bills and coin in a used mattress bought from a second-hand dealer recently. Neither she nor her husband disclosed the amount.

Mrs. Strome said the mattress was bought after a fire destroyed household goods in the Strome home. Mrs. Strome concluded it was too far gone to be remodelled and decided to give it to some children for a playhouse. She said that on removing the mattress the end of the material gave way, disclosing two $10 bills.

She said a further search showed more bills and a package of coins. Mrs. Strome said her husband also discovered more money in the mattress. The lot was taken to a bank where the manager gave assurance that the money was all right.

Jennie Morris Is Welcomed To Canada "By Her Boys"

MONTREAL, Aug. 22—(CP). — They held a reunion to-day, Jenny Morris and a handful of the Canadian veterans she "mothered" and darned socks for in her London "Open House" during the war.

"Jenny," as she is known to the "boys," talked over old times with a group of Montreal and Ottawa veterans who welcomed her on her arrival from London last night—the first step of a "gratitude" trip financed by the men she befriended overseas.

But the real reunion, a spontaneous affair of kissing, hugging and perhaps the odd tear, came a few minutes after the liner Antonia pulled into harbor. There were anxious moments as the boys—followed by reporters—looked for "Jenny" in the pressing crowds.

Then they found her, in a secluded spot along the rail where she had hoped to avoid newspapermen. Practically pushed into a lounge for interviews, news photographs and greetings, she turned aside reporters jokingly.

Everybody talked at once. Old friends brought up "remember whens," newsmen sandwiched in questions and flashlight bulbs flared. But Jenny, nervously tugging at her brown felt hat, was reluctant to talk about herself.

Hair Not Combed.

Between posing for pictures, she managed to confide to a woman reporter that she was worried because "My hair isn't combed," and than add that "words couldn't express my thanks for this gift from the boys."

About all she would tell about her "open house"—a modest boarding

$50,000 Worth Of Antique Furniture From Old Mansion Goes On Block

Halifax, Aug. 22.

CRIES OF auctioneers broke the Victorian quiet of the old Odell mansion, its rooms reminiscent of the days of imperial soldiers, as more than $50,000 worth of antique furniture went on the block today.

Collectors from all parts of Canada and the United States moved through the halls of Fort Massey, home of the Odell family whose members left an imprint on the pages of Nova Scitia and New Brunswick history. They made bids on chippendale, sheraton and hepplewhite pieces in rooms where royalty once was entertained.

It took months of work to prepare for the auction after the death of Miss Mary Odell, daughter of the late Hon. William Hunter Odell and Elizabeth Bliss of Halifax. Miss Odell, last of the family, died several months ago,

Ohio Fisherman Drowns Near Cloyne

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Aug. 22. — H. C. Steenmans, 38, painting and decorating contractor of Lee Road, Cleveland, Ohio, was drowned when he is presumed to have suffered a heart attack or weak spell while fishing at Mississagagon Lake, near Cloyne, on Thursday. Steenman's body was not recovered until some hours after he tumbled out of the boat.

The victim was accompanied by his two young sons, Russell Cunningham, a member of the Cleveland Stock Exchange, and guide. Occupying a large boat propelled by a motor, the party had been fishing out two miles from George Salmond's resort, where they were guests. As the boat headed back to the hotel, Steenmans suddenly toppled into the water, and although the guide quickly turned the craft around, his body did not reappear on the surface. He was considered a good swimmer.

William Salmond, son of the proprietor of the resort, was successful in recovering the body in fifty feet of water two hours after he disappeared. Chief Constable Clair Hayes and Ontario Provincial Police visited the place and conducted an investigation. Coroner Dr. Whytock of Sharbot Lake decided after learning the circumstances ,that an inquest was unnecessary.

While fishing alone in Stoco Lake, Ray Fetterly of Toronto, who assists Tom Breen as guide during the summer months, captured a 26-pound muskie. Fetterly was trolling when the big fellow took hold, and in fifteen minutes the fish was hauled over the gunwale of the boat. On the same trip around the lake, the lucky angler brought home an 8-pounder.

The Ontario Forestry Branch of the Department of Lands and Forests has commenced the erection of a new lookout tower on the Eagle's Nest, overlooking the village of Bancroft. The new steel structure, 100 feet in height, will replace one now used in Dungannon township, which will be moved to another location in Tudor Township, as soon as the new one is erected. The new site is considered one of the best observation points in the Trent district, the observer being able to detect fires over a greater radius.

John E. Kellar, Arden, was sentenced to serve seven days in the common jail after being convicted of driving an automobile while intoxicated. Kellar was arrested last Saturday on Highway No. 7 by Motorcycle Patrolman J. Hatch, Marmora, at which time he was found in possession of eight bottles of spirits and a quantity of beer. A charge of illegal possession will subsequently be laid. Besides being sentenced to serve seven days on the drunk charge count, Kellar's automobile was impounded for a period of three months. The charges were heard in County Police Court at Sharbot Lake on Wednesday.

Decoration Day At Marmora

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Aug. 22.—The annual grave decoration day was observed by Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion on Sunday afternoon. Led by the Legion band, Legionnaires and members of the ladies' auxiliary, marched from the Memorial Hall to the Town Hall, where a service was conducted by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell and Canon W. G. Swayne of St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, gave a striking address on thoughts concerning the Empire.

The band accompanied for the singing of hymns and also played hymns at the two cemeteries visited. Following the service, the Sacred Heart Cemetery was visited where prior to the deposit of flowers on the graves of war veterans, Rev. Fr. H. J. Farrell welcomed the Legion and in choice words touched upon the significance of the grave decoration and the memorial aspect of such. Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Comrade G. Brooks before the ex-servicemen paraded out of the cemetery.

At the Protestant cemetery, the same order was observed. Returning to the Memorial Hall, past presidents, W. Mumby and L. K. Rundle, deposited wreaths beneath the two tablets on which the Honor Roll is engraved.

Drake-Eyed Cucumber Streamlined And Slinky, Frightens Customers

Janetville, Aug. 22.

CUCUMBERS IN this region have succumbed to the modern urge to go streamlined and henceforth, it is predicted this variety of garden product will be purchased by the yard rather than by the basket.

Mr. Harry Heaslip, a local farmer and garden enthusiast, has an interesting exhibit in Burn's general store in the form of a cucumber 30" long and curled up in the manner of a large snake with head projecting upward. In the supposed head are placed two tacks for eyes and unsuspecting customers jump skyward with accompanying screams and screeches when the "reptile" is first noticed perched on the counter.

16 Are Drowned Five Killed In Car Crashes

TORONTO, Aug. 22 (C.P.). — "Death by drowning" was written to-day on official records beside the names of 16 of 24 persons who died violently in Eastern Canada during the week-end, two days of warm weather that attracted thousands to riverside and beach. Five persons died in automobile accidents and three others met death in various forms.

Thirteen persons died accidentally in Ontario, seven by drowning. The death toll in Quebec stood at six, all but one of the fatalities occurring through drownings. In Nova Scotia, three persons died, two by drowning, and one in a motor car mishap. New Brunswick's one fatality was a drowning.

It was probable the death toll would increase by one, though authorities awaited the result of further investigation before deciding officially that 29-year-old William Less had been drowned in the Niagara River in Ontario. The Buffalo, N.Y., man's motorboat was swept over the 167-foot Niagara Falls on Saturday night. He was believed to have been in it when it made the plunge though his body was not found.

Died From Burns.

The week-end's most tragic accident was in Brantford, Ont., where three-year-old Florence Young, victim of a child's desire to play with matches, died of burns. While her parents were absent, Florence gained entrance to her home through a cellar window, obtained matches from a pantry, and lit a fire in the living-room. Her dress caught fire.

A fight for possession of a cornfield near L'Annonciation, Que., resulted in the death of Aristide Bourdrias, 34. He was stabbed. Bourdrias' father also was stabbed three times in the affray, but is not in serious condition. A coroner's jury held Elmer Wagner, 57, a neighbor of Bourdrias, criminally responsible.

Other fatalities:

Melmerby Beach, N.S. — Mrs. Graydon Seamen, 45, drowned while wading with her husband. An unidentified man rescued the couple when both sank, but Mrs. Seamen was beyond aid.

LITTLE RIVER, N.S.—(CP).—Garth Elderkin, aged five, was taken violently ill and died suddenly at his home after having eaten a number of green apples. A physician was summoned, but all efforts to save the child were unsuccessful.

Otonabee Man Wins Car On Final Night

Rural residents broke even on the four cars given away at the Peterborough Industrial exhibition when Richard Stewart, Otonabee township farmer won the fourth and last car on Saturday night, giving two cars to farmers and two to city people.

A crowd not quite so large as Friday's watched the vaudeville and stayed for the draw. The first number drawn by Mayor James Hamilton was 816, but five minutes slipped away and nobody arrived with the lucky ticket. The second ticket was 53443 and in less than a minute Mr. Stewart, who had been sitting on the west end of the grandstand produced the slip and claimed the car. Answering questions from the announcer Dick Lush, the winner said he owned a car "but it is an old 1930 crock" and he added he had about 75 tickets. His address is R. R. 11 Peterborough.

As the winner's name was announced the throng tossed sheafs of tickets skywards and in a few seconds the ground was blanketed with white slips.

President Voice Appreciation.

"I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks for the wonderful support the people of this county has given the 1938 Exhibition. Its success is assured and the confidence placed in the Board is most gratifying." He added the splendid co-operation proves without a doubt that every citizen is solidly behind the Exhibition Board.

"These grounds can be made more beautiful and the Exhibition itself can be improved upon. Because of this the Board will be glad to receive suggestions from any person," he said.

He told the audience that for the

Janetville Tot Eats Poison But Recovers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Aug. 22.—A tragedy was narrowly averted on Wednesday morning when little Ross Hyland, one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Hyland, while left alone for a moment in the summer kitchen managed in some way to reach a dish of flypad poison and ate some of it.

First aid was given as much as possible and the baby, who was changing color and getting drowsy, was rushed to the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, for further treatment.

In the evening the little fellow was pronounced out of danger by Dr. Logan and was able to return home.

Cecil Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Armstrong, suffered a nasty burn early Wednesday morning when he discovered clouds of smoke rising from the truck which had been parked overnight beside the house.

Without waiting to find a knife or anything to cut the wires Cecil broke them with his bare hands and as a result saved the truck, but the skin was badly burned off his fingers in places.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wright, a few miles south of Janetville, heard with regret of the loss of their barn by fire on Wednesday at noon.

The Wright family were visiting with Mrs. Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Leslie of Fleetwood, and were making a business trip to Lindsay.

The cause of the fire is unknown but it is thought to have been from combustion. All the season's hay and grain crop with the exception of six loads not in yet, all the farm implements except a binder and mower, three calves, one sow, a cream separator, buggy and set of harness, which belongs to his father, Lawrence Wright, Janetville mailman, fell prey to the flames.

Kinloss Wolves Are Becoming Bolder Killing Many Sheep

Lucknow, Ont., Aug. 22. THE KINLOSS wolves, judged responsible for many sheep killings in the township this summer, are becoming bolder. Peter Johnston mail courier, came upon a pack of three strolling down a concession sideroad only five miles from Kinloss. Johnston and M. Kenny, a nearby farmer, chased the wolves with guns, but were unable to run them down.

Postal Officials Smash Big Movie Racket Scheme

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 22 — (AP)—United States postal authorities dipped into the widespread investigation of the National Talent Pictures Corporation Saturday as police claimed they had smashed one of the biggest movie racket schemes ever to operate in the film capital.

Federal officers took charge of various records and documents taken in a police raid on the company's studio-like plant.

Particular attention was paid to circulars and letters allegedly mailed out over the nation carrying alluring promises to movie-struck prospects.

Officers of the company, headed by Ira C. Overdorff, 55, were released from custody on bonds of $500 each. Arraignment on charges of grand theft and bunco was set for August 26.

Police said a second examination of the concern's books indicated that "close to $200,000" had been taken in since the corporation began operations about a year ago.

Agents of the company, according to police, were in touch with Dance schools throughout the United States and sold "Franchises" at $120 apiece. The studios, in turn, were then permitting to send one star pupil to Hollywood dance directors. The clients also were supposed to enjoy the benefit of an inside track to film contracts.

Lieutenant Merle Swan, head of the bunco detail, said about 200 "franchises" were sold and scores of hopeful youngsters, most of them below the 'teens and accompanied by parents, journeyed to Hollywood. Once here, Swan continued, the pupils or parents were assessed fees, costume costs, special instruction amounts and other charges.

clouds concluded a lengthy address during which the activities of the C.C.F. party during the past session of Parliament were reviewed and policies of the C.C.F. outlined.

"I regard Hepburn, Duplessis and Aberhart as menaces to democratic institutions," the speaker said in touching on the freedom of speech and organization. Claiming Premier Hepburn had "challenged the very basis of democracy," when, during the strike here sixteen months ago he endeavored to stop organizing in a union of the workers' choice, and banned foreign organizers. "Ask Mitch, can an organizer be more foreign than a corporation which settles in Canada to take advantage of preferential tariffs. If the workers want to organize, it is the workers alone who should decide which union—not Parliament—and certainly not Mitchell Hepburn."

Jews To Be Given More Jewish Names In Germany

Berlin, August 22.

New York — William W. McSorley, 78, retired tavern owner, whose alehouse was a rendezvous for politicians, actors and writers.

North Bay, Ont. — John W. Richardson, 74, three times Mayor of the city and one of the leading merchants here after starting business 53 years ago.

Would-Be Suicide Rescued

Sitting on the tenth-floor ledge of a San Diego, California, hotel, Noreen Leonard is pictured as she threatened to leap to the street below, in a suicide attempt. While watchers pleaded with her to come from her precarious perch, the woman shouted to these below to "get out of the way. I'm coming down." A man named Dione Crocker finally pulled her to safety while her attention was diverted.

TORONT LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, August 22—(CP). — With the exception of butcher cows and fed calves cattle trading showed little activity on the Toronto Livestock Market to-day, and prices generally were unchanged. Calves were strong while the lamb market was unsettled. Sheep were steady while no hog price was set by midsession though packers were bidding 50 cents below last week's close. Cattle holdover from last week was 300 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 3,870; calves, 1,070; hogs, 1,520; sheep and lambs, 1,130.

Fresh cattle receipts included 800 from the West. A few lots of weighty steers sold from $5 to $7 with several loads still unsold. Good butcher steers and heifers brought from $6 to $6.25, with common downward to $4. Butcher cows were 15 cents higher at $3 to $4.50. Canners and cutters sold from $2 to $2.75.

Good butcher bulls traded between $4 and $4.35, with bolognas from $3 to $3.50. Fed calves were strong from $7 to $9.50. Stockers were fairly active at $4.25 to $5.

Choice veal calves moved from $8 to $10, with common downward to $5. Grassers were priced from $4 to $4.75.

Previous close on off-truck bacon hogs was $9.50.

A few early sales of good lambs were $8 to $8.50, but the general market was expected to settle at $8.25. Some sheep ranged from $2 to $4 cwt.

OBITUARY

MRS. ANNIE PEARL WOOD.

The funeral of Mrs. Leslie Vernon Wood, who died suddenly on Saturday morning after being stricken fatally while working in a church tent at the Exhibition Grounds on Friday evening, took place this afternoon (Monday) from St. James' Church, Rev. F. W. Craik officiating. Interment was made at Little Lake Cemetery.

Mrs. Wood was working in the St. James' Church tent on Friday evening when she suddenly became ill, and had to be rushed to her home at 458 George Street South, where she died early on Saturday morning. She had been active for a number of years in the activities of the church, was a hard worker who never spared herself. She was also a member of the Perth Rebekah Lodge.

She was born at Havelock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnston Brown, now of Trenton, 44 years ago. She came to this city six years ago from Verona, Ontario. Surviving, besides her husband and parents, are two sons, Earl and Donald, both at home, and two brothers, Dr. M. H. Brown of Toronto and William of Toronto.

EUGENE MALONEY.

Eugene Maloney of Ennismore died died at the House of Providence on Sunday after a lingering illness. He was in his 81st year.

A life-long resident of Ennismore, he was born in that community the son of the late Frank Maloney and Hannah McCarthy. Surviving are five sons, Frank of Peterborough, Peter of Detroit, Herbert and Eugene of Ennismore, and Harry of Peterborough, and two daughters, Mrs. Edward O'Malley of Chicago and Mrs. D. Sullivan of Peterborough; also one brother, Dr. P. J. Maloney of Ottawa, and one sister, Mrs. J. Brick of Ennismore.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning at 8.15 o'clock (standard time) from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. D. Sullivan, 540 Downie Street, to St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m., Rev. C. Maloney officiating. Interment will be at St. Martin's Church, Ennismore.

DAVID CHAMBERS.

A former railroad man, once a blacksmith, he had resided in this city for the past 28 years, coming to Peterborough from Bensfort. He was born in Bailleboro, son of the late Edward Chambers and Mary Jane Wood. His wife, formerly Rachel Junkins, predeceased him a number of years ago. He was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Arnold Everitt and Mrs. David Forbes, and one son, Mervin Chambers, all of Peterborough, and four brothers, Joseph, Frederick, Edward, and Thomas, all of Fenelon Falls.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Arnold Everitt, 571 Bethune street, Rev. G. S. Easton of Trinity United Church officiating. Interment will be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

Everybody Listens When Mrs. Jones Speaks

Can You Get Up and Talk?

Do you watch others take the lead in club and social affairs? Keep grand ideas bottled up because you're afraid of your own voice?

You can win admiration, gain poise and confidence if you know how to speak in public.

How to learn? Practice at home by thinking out loud. Try to put color and vitality into your simplest sentences.

Know your subject, whether it's a new game you're explaining at a party or a club paper on civic improvements.

Concentrate on your audience. You might begin: "How happy I am that you have honored me with this expression of your confidence."

You might end: "I am sure you will help, for you know, too, that 'United we stand—divided we fall'." Saying "fail" instead of "fail" fixes your conclusion in your hearers' minds.

Develop your natural magnetism. Follow the pointers in our new 32-page booklet on club, forum, dinner and party talks.

Mrs. Agnes Condon Entertains For Daughter

Mrs. Agnes Condon, Reid street, entertained at a charmingly arranged trousseau tea Thursday evening in honor of her daughter, Agnes, whose marriage to Mr. Allan Leahy of Douro will take place on Wednesday, August 24.

About seventy guests were received by the bride-elect and her mother in the living room, which was lovely with pastel-shaded flowers.

Mrs. F. D. Leahy, mother of the groom-elect, and Mrs. W. J. McFarlane, sister of the bride, presided at the tea table, which was covered with a lace cloth, and centred by a bowl of yellow roses. Tea assistants were Miss Philomene Garvey, Miss Marcelle Healey, Mrs. Gerald Condon and Mrs. Stanley Condon.

The trousseau and gifts were displayed by Mrs. Len Dorie, Miss Carolyn Condon, Mrs. John F. Condon and Mrs. Fred Doris.

Bride-Elect Tendered Kitchen Shower

Miss Irma Beatty, whose marriage to Mr. C. Robson takes place this month, was entertained at a very pretty kitchen shower at the home of Mrs. M. C. Beatty, 309 Maitland avenue, recently.

Pink and white streamers decorated the romo and the bride-elect's chair, over which was hung a huge white bell. Two decorated wagons, laden with many attractive and useful gifts, were drawn into the room by two small nephews of the bride-elect, Douglas and Ralph Beatty.

The guests included: Mrs. Wm. Beatty, Mrs. Jack Thackeray, Mrs. C. Robson, Mrs. J. M. Beatty, Mrs. Clarke Thackeray, Mrs. J. M. Goverin, Mrs. Wm. Thackeray, Mrs. Thos. Beatty, Mrs. M. C. Beatty, Misses Irma Beatty, Ruth Pogue, Margaret Thompson, Marian Freeman, Ethel Robson, Olive Beatty, Olive Howland, Evelyn Thornton, and Messrs. Lloyd Thackeray, Douglas Beatty and Ralph Beatty.

Miss Beatty has also been presented with a lovely tri-light floor lamp, the gift of the girls from the C.G.E. office, business associates of the bride elect.

Pamment—Rowland

A pretty wedding which took place quietly on Saturday afternoon was solemnized at the parsonage of Mark Street United Church, when Dorothy Edna Rosemund, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Rowland, of "Maplelawn," became the bride of William Lawrence Lemuel, only son of Mrs. Pamment and the late William Pamment of South Monaghan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. W. Rowland.

The bride was becomingly attired in navy taffeta trimmed with white and little bolero jacket, small navy turban and navy accessories, with a corsage of briarcliffe roses.

Mr. Jack Sheward was the best man.

The young couple, who were the recipients of many useful and handsome gifts, left on a honeymoon to Oshawa and points west. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Rutherford—Tully

A lovely midsummer wedding of unusual interest was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Mary Ruth Tully, Reg. N., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Tully of Mount Pleasant, was given in marriage to Ross Wilmott, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rutherford of Omemee.

The ceremony was performed on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. J. R. Trumpour of Mount Pleasant United Church. Miss June Shield played Mendelssohn's wedding march while the bridal party took their places beneath a pink and white arch from which hung a large white bell and banked with flowers and evergreens.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long gown of ivory satin with a large Peter Pan collar, lace yoke and lace inserts in the sleeves which were tight-fitting from the elbow to the wrist. Her short, silk net veil was caught in place with a wreath of lily of the valley. White kid sandals and lace mittens completed the outfit and the bride carried a bouquet of Talisman roses tied with white tulle.

Miss Mildred Jones was bridesmaid wearing a toe-length gown of robin's egg blue sheer with bolero jacket, white felt hat, shoes and lace mittens and carried a bouquet of Premier roses.

Mr. Harry Tully, brother of the bride, was best man.

Mrs. Tully and Mrs. Rutherford received with the bridal party, the former wearing brown figured sheer with corsage of yellow roses and the latter, marina blue sheer with corsage of pink roses and sweet peas.

A wedding supper was served to immediate relatives, the head table being centered with the four-storey wedding cake. Waitresses were two girl friends of the bride, Miss Aileen Tummons, Reg. N., of Lindsay and Miss Annie Graham.

The groom's gift to the bride was a silver tea service; to the bridesmaid, a compact; to the best man, a leather billfold, and to the soloist and organist, an evening bag.

Following a honeymoon to Quebec City and points east, the young couple will take up residence in Lindsay, where the groom is a popular member of the Public school teaching staff.

The guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Elliott, Charles and David of Dunsford; Miss C. Balfour of Toronto; Mrs. Scott Rutherford, Rev. J. R. and Mrs. Trumpour of Cavan; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Tully, Mr. and Mrs. George Tully, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tully of Orange Corners Miss June Shield of Mount Pleasant, also Miss Aileen Tummons, Reg. N. and Miss Annie Graham.

Uncongeniality Is the Greatest Alibi of Couples Who Think They Are Mismated—Consideration of Each Other's Likes and Dislikes Necessary Before Marriage

LACK of congeniality is chiefly what is wrong with marriage. At least, that is the alibi that most disgruntled husbands and wives offer for their discontent with the holy estate. They do not accuse their mates of being brutes and villains or of having committed any deadly offense against them. Their complaint is that they have "nothing in common."

Nine out of ten of the men and women who weep upon our shoulders and tell us the stories of their domestic woes sob out the same tale: "Mary is a fine woman. She is a splendid mother and a wonderful manager and housekeeper, but we just simply 'haven't a thing in common.'" "John is a good man. He is moral and sober, industrious and generous and kind. He gives me a beautiful home, a fine car, pretty clothes, jewels and everything I wish for, but we 'haven't a single idea or taste in common.'" Uncongeniality is the blanket excuse under which men hide their philandering and by which women justify their divorces.

Now, of course, no one will deny the importance of congeniality in marriage. It is the one and only thing that can be guaranteed to make any marriage a success, for it doesn't make much difference what sort of a husband and wife a man and woman make provided they suit each other. A man and woman can be happy together pinching pennies or throwing money to the birds, working or loafing, stepping out at night or staying at home, provided both of them want to do the same thing. The trouble comes in when one wants to spend and the other to save, one wants to play golf on Sunday and the other wants to spend the day at Mother's, and when one loves good cooking and the other thinks it is foolish to spend time and money on food.

Granting all of this, however, and admitting that there are no people whose society we enjoy so much as those who see eye to eye with us and who like to do the things that we like to do, still and all there are certain phases of this complaint that they have nothing in common with their mates that so many married people make that would be ironically humorous if it were not so tragic and did not produce so much unhappiness.

One might ask, to begin with, how it happens that so many intelligent men and women make the fatal mistake of marrying without finding out something about each other's tastes, habits and interests? Don't they ever talk about books and plays? If John writhes in agony through a symphony concert and Mary has to grit her teeth and pray for strength to stand jazz, doesn't it suggest to them that one or the other of them is due for a lot of boredom if they marry? Can't they see that if one likes highly sophisticated food and the other likes plain boiled that they will never eat a meal in peace? Really it is hard to understand why people wait until after they are married to find out that they have nothing in common.

Then isn't it queer for husbands and wives to say that they have nothing in common when they have all the most vital and important things in life in common? They have the same name, the same responsibilities the same interests. They rise or fall together. They have the home they are building together. They have their fortune that they have to work together to make. They have their position in society and the world that they have to fight shoulder to shoulder. And, most important of all, they have their children, who will be what they two, working together, will make them.

Suppose a husband and wife have not an equal interest in Greek poetry or comic strips, what do these amount to when compared to the interests they share in common? How can any husband and wife ever feel they have nothing to say to each other when they have their children's future to plan for and the thousand interlocking details of their own lives to discuss?

And, finally one wonders why these husbands and wives who wail that they have nothing in common never try to do anything about it. Why don't they try to adapt themselves to each other and take an interest in each other's interest and cultivate similar tastes? Most of us had to learn to eat caviar and olives. And by this token we can cultivate a taste for the fads and foibles, habits and diversions of our mates if we will. There is no need for husbands and wives to say they have nothing in common.

Delightful Shower Given in Honor of Autumn Bride-elect

Mrs. A. E. Cauley of 509 Homewood avenue was hostess on Sunday afternoon at a delightfully arranged pantry-shelf shower in honor of Miss Florence Overs of Barrie, whose marriage to Mr. Eugene Butler of the Bank of Toronto staff here, is arranged for the fifth of September.

The hostess received in a gown of pink sheer, and guests attended from Buffalo, Rochester, Barrie and Peterborough.

The tea table was laid with a lace cloth, and decorated with rose-shaded gladioli and lighted tapers in pastel shades. Tea and coffee were poured by Mrs. Kenneth Butler of Rochester, N.Y., who was wearing a wine gown with matching hat, and by Miss Ruby Rothwell of Hartford, Conn., wearing an ensemble of all-white. They were assisted by Miss Betty Cauley, Miss Vivian Sullivan and Miss Marnie Sheehy.

Helena M. Holland Is Bride of Henry Ken. Kyle

St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Tuesday, August 16, when Helena Marie, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Holland, Ennismore, was united in marriage to Henry Kenneth Kyle, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Kyle, Medicine Hat, Alberta.

The nuptial ceremony and Mass were celebrated by Rev. J. F. McGuire, Bracebridge, cousin of the bride. For the occasion the altar was decorated with gladioli, asters and zinnias. Rev. V. J. Gillogly, P.P. was present in the sanctuary. The altar boy was James Hoar, and Mr. Thomas Harrington acted as usher, both being cousins of the bride.

During Mass hymns were sung by the girls' choir, and the wedding march was played by Mrs. D. K. Cruogh.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, and was charmingly attired in a long, flowing gown of white mantilla lace and net over white satin, made on princess lines, with large picture hat, lace gloves and white slippers to match. She carried a large sheaf of shell pink Briarcliffe roses and lily of the valley.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Julia Marie Hickson, Ennismore, who was gowned in blush pink lace over taffeta, princess style, with white hat and accessories. Her bouquet was of American Beauty roses. The groom was attended by Mr. P. Joe Sullivan, Ennismore.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was an ebony-faced compact with gold rose inset, and to the best man a white gold initialed tie-clip.

The church was filled with relatives and friends of the bridal party. The bride has been one of Ennismore's popular young teachers, and the groom, who has lived in the community for five years, is vice-president of the Young People's Club of Ennismore.

After the ceremony the bridal party motored to Peterborough, where a delicious breakfast was served to fifteen wedding guests, who included: Rev. V. J. Gillogly, P.P.; Rev. J. F. McGuire; Rev. J. V. McAuley, Campbellford, former pastor of the bride; Miss L. Holland, sister; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Malony, brother-in-law and sister of the bride Mrs. A. H. Kyle, Medicine Hat, mother of the groom; Mr. P. G. Sullivan and Mr. Thomas Harrington, Ennismore.

In the evening a reception was held at the future home of the bride and groom for about one hundred and fifty guests.

The young couple will live on the groom's farm at Lake Chemong, Ennismore.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"It is with certain good qualities as with the senses; those who are entirely deprived of them can neither appreciate nor comprehend them. —Rochefoucald.

Dear Friends,—Not long ago, I wrote you about the folly of trying to take a quart out of a pint measure, it can't do done. If you have certain qualities, if you are SURE you have, and your friend lacks them, are they to blame because you expect certain things from them which it is not in them to give? Surely not.

Yet we go along expecting constancy from the inconstant, virtue from those who really prefer vice, continence from those who are incontinent, and blame them instead of ourselves when they don't live up to our expectations.

Truly we often blind ourselves. We invest others with certain virtues because we have them ourselves, then feel so grieved when the truth hits us with all its force. There are those who will follow a certain way of life no matter who tries to turn them from it, and the sooner we learn that the better.

Our Lord found that out. He said, "I would have saved ye but ye would not." It wounded Him, it caused Him sorrow of heart, yet He realized the truth of it, and had to let them go their own way.

One woman asked me if I thought that some people really chose the wrong road which took them to prison or to the gallows, and I had to admit that I really thought they did. They seem to get more "kick" out of doing things the wrong way, and the farther along that road they go, the worse things they must do before that "kick" comes.

Every girl who starts on the downward path thinks she will not end in the gutter, she is too clever, too sophisticated, she knows too much. The fact is she knows too much for her own good, and where does it land her? The very place she thought she was too clever to go to.

Some learn by their mistakes, and some never learn. You can talk until you are black in the face, they know better than you do, everyone else is wrong and they are right, until finally people give them up in disgust and let them go their own way. What else can one do?

What use to talk to a blind man about the colors of the sunset when he has no knowledge of what colors mean, and has never saw the sum? He cannot perceive in any form what you are telling him.

What use to talk about consequences to one who lives but for the pleasures of the moment, and will not think of a reckoning day? Why try to teach someone to play the game and reap the benefit when their whole mind is taken up with themselves and no others.

They are travelling the hard way because they don't WANT to learn the easy way, and none can stop them. And so, we should save ourselves a mint of worry if we learned that fact early, you can NOT take a quart out of a pint measure.

They could enlarge it if they wanted to, but they will not make the effort. And we are butting our head against a stone wall when we try to alter them, for the alteration must come from within.

And what to do about it? The only thing is to suit yourself to your company. Not to look for what is not there and never will be there, in consideration, nor kindness, nor in looking at things from another's view-point.

When you learn to read character, you take another's measure whenever you meet them, and know what to look for, and what never to expect. If you have a sense of beauty and the fitness of things, and this does not belong in their make-up, how foolish indeed to feel resentful when they do not show it. But, to make up for the lack in them, you can cultivate it more in yourself.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

He Wrote A Letter

Following the appearance in this country of President Roosevelt, Premier Hepburn sent a letter to Prime Minister Mackenzie King because some reference had been made to the development of the St. Lawrence river by Canada and United States as a power project and also as an aid to navigation.

Mr. Hepburn makes certain that he never disguises the poor opinion he has of the Federal Prime Minister. In his letter he says in part:

"Our interests are confined to power, but nevertheless as the keystone province of the Dominion we are also interested in the railway situation which has not been improved since you have been head of the administration at Ottawa. Until such times as you solve what is considered to be one of the major problems of Canada—that of the national railway deficits—I cannot conceive how you could seriously consider spending public funds for the purpose of creating another public, competitive avenue of transportation which would undoubtedly have the effect of further increasing the deficits of the Canadian National Railways; furnishing a further threat to the security of the employment of the railway men of Canada; even to the extent of placing more people on our already over-burdened relief lists, and endangering the very credit of the Dominion, the provinces and municipalities."

We do not believe it would require a great deal of thinking or preparatory work to write such a letter. Any common scold could have done it and some of them might also have made it a little more logical.

To tell Mr. King that the railway situation has not been improved since he was head of the administration at Ottawa is one thing; to tell him or suggest to him how it could be improved is another. Mr. Hepburn's letter was plainly written and handed to the press for publication in order that he might once more assert his hostility to Mr. King and to make it appear the Federal Prime Minister was going to embark on an undertaking which would add to the confusion of the nation. Now that Mr. Hepburn has so plainly raised the railway issue it might not be out of order for him to come forward with his list of helpful suggestions telling just what should be done.

By Way Of Suggestion

We are certain there are many people from the city who visit the Peterborough Exhibition who do not get the full benefit of it. That is, there are many things there they do not understand. The amount and quality of live stock which is brought here is remarkable and outstanding. The best herds in the province are represented right here.

We do not know whether the young farmer movement could do anything about it, but we wish the members would at least think it over. Could there be some arrangement whereby at certain hours of the day some of these young farmers could be available to take small parties to the stables and explain things to them?

Like this: What does it cost to raise a calf and provide for it up to the time when there is some return for the farmer?

How are the cows tested for tubercular trouble? What provisions have to be made to keep milk clean and the premises in order?

Probably the same sort of interesting information could be provided telling of the raising of bacon hogs, relating the danger of losing them when they are young and the steps which are taken to prevent that. Explain the selection of feed the amounts which are given and the general practice of finishing a bacon hog at six months so it will weigh just a little over 200 pounds.

Just how many people would like to have such things explained to them we do not know, but we think there should be quite a number. If these conducted tours at certain times of the day were made a trial feature of the Exhibition then a good many people should learn much about what is going on on the farm. We believe the young farmers, when they had time at their disposal, would be glad enough to lend their assistance.

Not Going To Toronto

Controller Dr. F. J. Conboy of Toronto has a complaint; not a personal matter but one which concerns a good many people. He has been making investigations and listening to reports and now he is as sure as man can be there are many tourists entering Ontario and making their way to the North country and they never visit Toronto. They never go there and spend their money in Toronto stores, so Dr. Conboy thinks something should be done about it.

The Toronto controller suspects that the building of new and better roads is making it easy for people to miss Toronto entirely. They can readily come in the general direction of our provincial capital and then just as readily pass by without entering. And away they go with their dollars intact in their pocket. It's enough to make any Toronto controller annoyed.

The suggestion of Controller Conboy is that Toronto should do something about it; it should be advertised that tourists are making a mistake by not entering Toronto.

People who enter Ontario for a summer vacation as a rule know well enough where they are going and they also know why. A great many of them come from cities and they are looking for open country, for lakes and rivers. They do find time to go on shopping expeditions for articles they prefer to buy in this country and which they can take across the border free of duty, but they are very likely to do their shopping in places situated in or near the summer resort districts.

The Toronto controller might try to explain just why a tourist coming to spend a vacation in Ontario should head for Toronto. It would be going to just another rather large city.

As far as roads are concerned Toronto has always been well used. It was very much that way when railway transportation was the means of moving people. Today the tendency is to build highways so traffic does not need to move through the streets of a large city. Those who desire to go in can always do so and those who want to move on toward their destination need not be held up by having to work their way through heavy traffic. Now that the Toronto controller has raised the question he might state what Toronto has to offer to the tourist who is seeking a rest.

Interpreting The Speech

It was predicted in these columns that the address made by President Roosevelt at Kingston would be known and discussed in the world—and at once. That is what has taken place. It is not often that the controlled and carefully regulated press of Germany prints much from an address such as the U.S. president gave in Kingston, but German opinion sees in the address fair warning that United States is ready to participate in war between democracies on one side and the authoritarian states on the other, thereby creating another threat to Germany.

In other nations it is stated that President Roosevelt has extended the Monroe Doctrine to include Canada on the north as well as the nations of South America.

The Monroe Doctrine is a principle of international policy held by United States, the root idea of which is America for the Americans. President Monroe in 1823 forwarded it to Congress, the essential points being (1) The Amercian continents are henceforth, not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European power; (2) "We should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

An address such as that of President Roosevelt is apt to be turned and twisted to suit the minds of the people controlling the destines of various nations. We regarded his address as a plain intimation that there were customs and traditions and ideals, the common possession of the English-speaking nations which his people would not hesitate to guard.

We doubt whether President Roosevelt had any intention of extending the Monroe Doctrine to Canada although he did say plainly that the American people would not tolerate the domination of Canada by any foreign power.

It was an address on which it was expected Germany would place its own interpretation for the purpose of serving its own purposes. It will undoubtedly be used to make the German people believe that the danger of hostility toward that country is greater than ever before, and therefore there is need for the German people to tighten the belt a little more, make its war machine a little stronger and become thoroughly convinced that the way of safety is in strict adherence to all that centralized authority dictates. Germany will use the address to convince its people that the only course open to them is in keeping on doing the very things they have been doing.

Statue Of A Tomcat

There is a man-size controversy going on in St. Louis and it has to do with a bronze statue of a tomcat. Directors of the art museum bought it for $14,400, and the value comes from the fact or tradition that it was made in Egypt 2,400 years ago. They say the statue is all right and looks pretty much like a tomcat does today.

The reason for the rumpus and protest is that there are many people in St. Louis who are on the municipal relief list and it is difficult enough to keep on securing sufficient money to sustain them.

So they cannot grow enthusiastic about having a $14,400 statue of an Egyptian tomcat in their midst while there are people who need something to eat, something to wear and some place in which to live.

And we cannot suppress the feeling that most folk would find themselves lined up with the faction which opposed buying the $14,400 tomcat.

Italy's New Colony

Under present laws Italians cannot emigrate to foreign lands except under special permits. But 20,000 Italians are going to migrate to Libya, Italian territory in North Africa, a land which was at one time the wheat belt for the Roman empire when it was at the height of its power.

The world has been told little enough of the plans made to populate this Italian possession, and it does look as though the method employed was thorough. We learn that soil experts went in there a long time ago, and made their tests extensively, and in that way selected the land which gave the greatest promise of successful operation. After that plans were made for irrigation wells and dams; then the necessary homes and farm buildings were erected, and it is to this prepared territory that the settlers will go. With the proceeds gained from their products they are expected over a period of years to repay to the government the cost of their holdings.

Italy came into possession of this territory, which is four or five times larger than Italy itself, during the war with the Turks in 1911. It was necessary to take it again from the Arabs in later years. There is a wealth of history behind the natives of that land. They were the Lehabim mentioned in Genesis 10:13, and their modern descendents are the Berbers one of the desert tribes which along with the Arabs the Italians had to subdue before finally coming into possession of the land. Under the drifting sands of sections of the country are ruins of Roman cities. Attempting the restoration of that land which for centuries has been for the most part unproductive is a formidable undertaking, but on the face of it it appears that Italy is using method and foresight in her colonization efforts which should go far to discount failure.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mr. Hepburn accuses Premier King of trying to pull a squeeze play. The lemon in the outfit however is not the Dominion premier.

Toronto is trying to solve its traffic problems. One way of course would be to bar from the streets all cars not fully paid for.

A minister at Mandan N.D., who killed the maid who worked in his home and then set fire to the place to cover up the crime, signed a statement in which he said: "The devil overcame me. I did wrong." The devil may have had something to do with it but the minister's powers of resistance must have been running low.

There has been a crime prevention exhibit staged by police at Columbus, Ohio, and a thief entered and stole three magnifying glasses, apparatus for identifying cloth and several other articles that appealed to him. We do not like stealing but theft in such surroundings carries its own sense of humor.

A Clinton woman has a tomato plant 6 feet tall with 70 tomatoes on it. One canning company has already made plans to establish a branch factory in the same yard.

Two young men driving in a car near Milton found their machine skidding badly on a turn. After that it left the road crashed into a tree and finally took fire. Apart from that we suppose it could be said a good time was had by all.

THE WOE MAN

(By A R K.)

¶ John Thomas turns in from the walk, I know he's come to have a talk, I see his face is long; I know before he gets a start, that he will take all things apart, for everything is wrong.

¶ The taxes people have to pay, will start John Thomas on his way, and he'll talk long and hot; John Thomas talks like one distressed, I know of all that he's possessed—has neither house or lot.

¶ The place he says is awful dead, he'd like to see it going ahead, he fears we'll soon be sunk; he says no new folk ever come, the council don't get nothin' done, they're just a lot of bunk.

¶ He gets the paper every day, would like to fling the thing away, it's stupid and it's tame; the sermons that he hears are trash, the butcher sells tough meat for hash, our parliament is lame.

¶ The way we handle law is wrong, the thing's all loaded for the strong, the rich man has his way; there's too much graft John Thomas knows, they'll judge a man most by his clothes, he sees it every day.

¶ And thus John Thomas fills his slate, and chants his weary hymn of hate, he groans and also grieves; I always know before he'll start, he'll knock and take all things apart—I'm glad to see him leave.

Our Experience Selling Wheat

(By DR. R. W. FRANK)

GENEVA PARK, Camp Couchiching, Aug. 22.—Today's story is on wheat pool operations with a view to correcting many misconceptions commonly held by Eastern Canadians.

"Wheat Pools have cost the Dominion Government nothing". That statement seems to have been amply proved here and its proof will be contained in the following story.

In 1923 in Alberta and in 1924 in Saskatchewan and Manitoba then came into being the Wheat Pools which were designed to sell the wheat of its members for their mutual advantage. Its members contracted to deliver their wheat to the pool and accept wnat the pool got.

In the course of operation in the early years it was found almost impossible to ascertain the amount of their wheat or in what elevator it was stored, and to correct this situation the co-operative grain elevators came into being as subsidiaries of the Wheat Pool.

In the operation of the pool it was the practise of the pool after consultation with the banks as to the amount, to pay to the farmers on delivering an initial payment to carry them over until the wheat was sold. This amount was always well within the margin of safety. However the best laid plans "go aft aglee" as it was found following the crash of '29 when wheat prices fell in some cases to a fifth of the initial price paid, and in spite of the fact that these initial payments were reduced from a dollar gradually to 20 cents, at the end of the debacle the pools found they had paid out 23 millions more than the price value of the wheat at the then market price.

How About the Loss?

Did the Wheat Pool operators and banks display any worse foresight than anyone else at the time? who would have predicted that wheat prices would fall in that short period to the lowest price in 300 years?

Well the banks had advanced that 23 million and in the ordinary course of business bankruptcy proceedings would have followed and the banks would have sustained a loss of 23 millions and the elevators co-operatives would have lost their equity in all their elevators.

As it was, a much better arrangement was effected whereby the three Prairie Provinces came to the assistance of the co-operatives and guaranteed the banks against loss, but to whom they did not have to give any actual cash. The wheat co-operatives on the other hand agreed to repay the banks on an annual basis over a period of 20 years. In the last seven years they have faithfully fulfilled their obligations and are likely to continue to do so.

To make the story complete up to this point one must explain a slight deviation in Manitoba. In that province due to a colossal loss in oats it was found that the assets of the Manitoba co-operatives were a million dollars less than their liabilities. Remember that in the other two provinces while the loss mentioned was sustained on wheat, the co-operatives still had their elevators. But in Manitoba the loss was sufficient to wipe out both, so the Manitoba Government assumed one million of the loss and that is the only cost to any public body.

The Next Move

In 1930 it will be remembered the wheat market was in a deplorable state and in Canada we had millions of bushels of a carryover, so the Dominion Government created a stabilizing Board under the direction of Mr. McFarlane to attempt to stabilize the price of wheat. This board went into the market in a big way with Dominion money, buying when the price started to decline too rapidly and selling when it went up. It was a price manipulator for the public good, and the fortunate part was it made 9 millions for the Dominion Government in so doing.

In 1935 the Wheat Board was formed to buy the old hangover of co-operative days so that the co-operators could pay to their members a sort of equalizing payment. That is to say, some of the pool members had received as high as a dollar in initial payments and some as low as 20 cents. Well the amount paid to the pools enabled them to pay all those who received less than 60c an amount to bring their receipts up to that figure. It was obvious they could not get back from the man who received an excess of 60 cents the surplus amount so they just forgot it.

From there on the story is not so bright, and certainly much more complicated.

The Wheat Board adopted a policy of a minimum price agreed to accept delivery if and when wheat fell below that price and found itself in possession of some 300 million bushels with the necessity of liquidating as rapidly as was consistent with returning prices which was carefully done while Mr. McFarlane with his long experience was at the head.

However with change of Government came change of heads and Mr. Murry replaced Mr. McFarlane. Things move rapidly now to a climax and to a controversy. Mr. Murray announced the policy of accepting sales at anytime whether the Wheat Exchange was closed or not, and to make a long story short for my space is exhausted, the big operators receiving news of an advance in wheat prices reflecting crop conditions in the Argentine bought from the Wheat Board 60 millions of wheat before the board knew of the rise, the European markets already being open, and cashed in to the tune of 2½ million dollars on the 60 million bushels.

That is the story as "told here, I know not what the truth may be—I say the tale as 'twas told to me."

AND WHO DOES?

(Nations Business)

A STORY FROM Louisiana says the graduating class of the Louisiana State University mildly razzed Secretary Wallace when he addressed them. Mr. Wallace was permitted.

"Remember that the government pays for your education," he is reported as having said.

"Who pays the government?" he asked.

• When Farming Land Plays Out

(From National Farmers' News Sheet)

"ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL subjects discussed by a conference of Colonial Directors of Agriculture begun the other day was soil erosion. The Chairman, Lord Dufferin, said that the maintenance of cultivable soils and of their fertility must inevitably be the foundations upon which all agricultural policies were built, and unless those foundations were sound the superstructure was bound to fall sooner or later.

Those were sound words. The untold ravages of the soil in many countries after only a few generations of farming give point to that statement. The trouble is that those oversea farmers have had to sell their produce to Britain sometimes at prices far below the cost of production. Worse still, the damage has not been confined to countries oversea. Lack of orderly marketing in world trade, and constant undercutting of prices have taken toll of the soil of Britain. Our soil has not been blown away nor has it suffered from water erosion. But years of depressed prices have meant that more land every year has become "rough grazings" more and producing less food than it could and should produce. The people need that food. But farmers cannot produce it if they are expected to support increasing costs with a declining price level."

We farmers in Canada, as part of the British Empire must face this question fairly. We must study our land needs, and with the assistance of Government make soil surveys. We must study our problems of marketing, and with the assistance of Government, evolve a policy that will get for us sufficient returns to enable us to keep our land in a good productive condition. We will have to rely more and more on supplements in the way of correct commercial fertilizers.

Perhaps our present suppliers of these products have evolved or are now evolving a program that will give us our requirements at reasonable costs. If not the farmers in Canada in an effort to protect the national asset which is in our agricultural lands, may be forced to evolve a co-operative buying policy for our commercial fertilizers. This is a national and empire problem. We must do some constructive thinking.

• When Horses Were Scared

(From the Kincardine News)

PERHAPS IT IS FUTILE to write of changed conditions over the past few decades. So we will let the editor of the Walkerton Telescope of thirty years ago tell what situation was found on Bruce highways, just to show how changed conditions really are.

Thirty years ago this week the editor of the Walkerton Telescope sharpened his quill and gave his readers this hot-shot: "In Kincardine one day last week an automobile frightened a horse, the horse ran away, the driver was thrown out of the rig and his leg was broken. It is becoming apparent from incidents like this that something will have to be done about these automobiles. For several years past the farmers in the vicinity of Toronto have been agitating for a law to restrain automobiles from using the public highways, but so far have not been able to accomplish anything."

And then the editor gets real mad. "Gradually," according to this 1908 issue of The Telescope: "The nuisance is becoming more general. Every town in the province has its automobile now and some of them have more than one. The machines go scooting through the country and no road is sacred to them. Horses that are easily enough controlled in the presence of a railway go crazy at the sight of an automobile and incidents such as the above are happening all over the country."

And then the Walkerton pundit made a prediction. "It will not be long" he wrote, "before the automobile will drive the farmers off the roads altogether, unless something is done to restrain them. The farmers built these highways in the first place and are straining themselves to keep them in repair, and it must be more than a little annoying to them to be thus disposed of by this new machine. What they ought to do is pledge every candidate for Parliament to use his vote and influence in favor of a law prohibiting automobiles from using the public highways altogether, or at least under conditions that will not interfere with traffic."

• The Professor Talks Nonsense

(Ottawa Journal)

THAT ANNUAL CONFERENCE of the Canadian Institute of Economics and Politics at Lake Couchiching almost would seem to qualify as Canada's Hyde Park, as a forum for people with queer views and an irresistible urge for public expression.

Here we have, for example, Frank H. Underhill, professor of history at the University of Toronto, on the good old subject of the Press. "Almost anybody," he said, "could be a newspaperman"— by which apparently he means a newspaper publisher, "if he had the money," to which the obvious retort is that almost anybody can be a university professor and talk shallow generalities to the Institute of Economics and Politics if he has the money for a college education. One proposition is as true as the other. Anybody with enough money can buy a newspaper, but not a few men who have become "publishers" under such circumstances have been astonished at the facility and rapidity with which their money has vanished.

Professor Underhill has discovered also that Canadian newspapers do not express public opinion but merely the opinions of their owners; that it is "dangerous" to put so much power "in the hands of a few irresponsible men". This is just high-sounding nonsense. Public opinion is an intangible thing and the wisest person can do no more than guess at what the mass of the people are thinking at any given time. Politicians, and newspaper editors sometimes become good guessers. But it is clear, we think, that the newspaper which sought always to speak as the majority of the people were thinking would be a poor, wishy-washy article. The newspaper worth its salt is not content slavishly to march with the majority. It tries, as it should, to guide and direct public opinion—which is what the good professor calls putting too much power in the hands of "irresponsible men." It is an odd adjective for men responsible for the well-being of properties perhaps worth millions of dollars. Few men are careless of enterprises so costly.

Finally Professor Underhill thinks the salvation of the press is in its operation "by practical newspapermen who have been through the mill." That is precisely the sort of management found in the great majority of Canadian newspapers and perhaps their state is not so bad after all. As for the few others, there is nothing like running a newspaper to give a man experience in the operation of a newspaper. We have known of bumptious young fellows who bought papers, promptly became journalists with a mission to reform society and the press, set out their opinions in large type as the word of ultimate knowledge—and presently disappeared behind the traditional anonymity of their editorial pages. They had passed safely by the danger stage, they had discovered there was more to publishing a newspaper than to running a mine, and they had been caught up by the traditions of the craft.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN

(Manchester Guardian)

NEVERTHELESS IT cannot be denied that Mr. Chamberlain's position in the House is almost as strong as it was at the beginning of the session, which is explained in three ways. First, the bulk of the Tories approve his foreign policy, even his Spanish policy; secondly, those who are dubious about the Italian Agreement are willing to see the agreement fully tried; thirdly, none of them knows in the least where to turn for his successor—that is, a Tory successor, for the Tory party is not likely to accept a Simonite or National Labor successor.

IN INDIA, TOO

(Times of India, Bombay)

IT IS PAINFULLY clear that no amount of advice and propaganda will influence traffic hogs in Bombay. The only way to bring them to their senses is to impress on them the knowledge that every time they err they are liable to be severely punished; at present they have no such fear. The matter in view of the number of accidents in the city, is one which intimately affects the safety and lives of the citizens, and deserves the attention of the Bombay Government.

NO MENDICANT

(Regina Leader Post)

AT THE PRESENT run of prices the minimum fixed price of wheat of 80 cents a bushel, Fort William, means that the Government will be paying a bonus to the wheat farmers. It will not be a large bonus unless the world price drops substantially, but it may cost the Government eight or ten million dollars a year. But the western farmer, who is caught heavily under the tariff imposed by the Dominion Government, need not feel that he is a mendicant if he takes something from the public treasury in view of what he has to contribute under the national policy of Canada.

OLD-STYLE FUN

(St. Marys Journal-Argus)

IT WAS AN OLD-FASHIONED custom for wedding parties to rush up and down streets in cabs with tin cans and old shoes flying. But present-day traffic conditions have made that sort of thing ridiculous as well as highly dangerous. The spectacle of four or five cars racing through at 40 to 50 miles an hour, as we have seen it a few times lately, is one that calls for police intervention.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

BLESSED BE THE God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. . . .

Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently:

Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever.

For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away; but the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you.— I Pet. 1, 3-5, 22-25.

TAXES FOR RELIEF

(Windsor Star)

INASMUCH AS unemployment relief is a national problem, it is perfectly reasonably to suggest, as Dr. Manion and others have done, that it be assumed as a national responsibility.

While, in the long run, all taxation comes out of the pockets of the people, itis much easier, much simpler for the Federal Government to raise funds than for either the provinces or the municipalities to do so. The avenues of federal taxation are wider and more numerous.

Accordingly, there will be very general support for Dr. Manion's attitude on relief expenditures, and if Mr. King declines to fall into line this matter may constitute an important issue in the next Federal election, to be hold probably in 1939.

A NATIONAL CRIME.

(Canadian Press)

ROAD SLAUGHTER is a great national sin and an abomination, says Rev. R. Park, assistant curate at All Hallows Church Barkingside. Speaking at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, he said: "Compared with this useless slow bleeding of our people the old national sins I heard of which I was younger are of no great importance now."

In 1937, he pointed out, between 6,000 and 7,000 people were killed on the roads of Britain and for every one killed 40 were injured. He cited one case in which a woman who was the family bread-winner was killed. She left an invalid husband and seven children who had been dependent upon her. And the driver of the bus which killed her went insane.

COUNTRY STORES

(Brandon Sun)

COUNTRY general store sales in Canada were 2 per cent. higher in June this year than last, according to returns received from more than 700 of these general merchandise stores located in the smaller towns and rural areas. Improved agricultural conditions in the west led to market gains in consumer purchasing by rural dwellers in the Prairie Provinces, sales in Manitoba increasing ten per cent., Saskatchewan five per cent., and Alberta four per cent. Quebec sales were up three per cent., British Columbia remained unchanged. Declines of one per cent. in Ontario and five per cent. in the Maritimes were reported.

HAVELOCK

Over 700 Attend Havelock C.P.R. Picnic

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Aug. 19—Over seven hundred C.P.R. employees, relatives and friends attended the eleventh annual picnic of the Havelock C.P.R. Recreation Club held on Wednesday to Riverdale Park, in Toronto. The large crowd was transported to the city by a special train of 13 coaches, which left the village at 7.00 a.m. and arrived at the park at 10.05 a.m. standard time.

A variety of entertainment was provided during the afternoon including scrambles for the children, races, and softball. The Havelock Kiltie Band was also in attendance.

A reunion of C.P.R. veterans proved the feature event of the outing, with thirty of the company's pensioners, well-known in the Havelock division, assembling totalk over old times. A photograph of the gathering was taken during the afternoon. Guest of honor of the reunion was 91-year-old Benjamin Fallis, retired engineer, now residing in Toronto.

Among other pensioners present were J. W. Anderson, J. W. Buyers and V. Carroll of Peterborough; O. H. Dunn, A. A. Brinkman, H. B. Stevens, Robert Barlow, T. Hirrons, W. J. Gilchirst, W. P. Gray, M. R. Grieve, George Young, Jos. Dorricott, W. B. Ritchie, W. Lillow, John Garrett, and Thomas Bennett, all of Toronto; C. Topper, Locust Hill; R. J. Green, Bobcaygeon; George Weymark, John Barlow, Thomas Wright, D. A. Forde, John Adair, Robt. Buchanan, John B. Harvey, Alex Smith and John Burnett, all of Havelock; and J. H. Wilson, Kingston.

Race Results.

Winners of the various races were as follows:

Boys 9 years and under.—1. G. Southword, Havelock; 2, J. Martin, Peterborough.

Girls, 9 and under.—1, Marie Stevenson, Norwood; 2, Marjorie Davis, Norwood.

Boys 11 and under—1, J. Thompson, Peterborough; 2, Marvin Curry, Havelock.

Boys 13 and under—1, Don Hunter, Havelock; 2, J. Thompson, Peterborough.

Boys 15 and under—1, Gordon Stevenson, Havelock; 2, J. Thompson, Peterborough.

Boys, 16 and under—1, Doug. Hill, Havelock; 2, J. Stevenson, Havelock.

Wheelbarrow race — 1, Grace Barnes and J. Thompson, Peterborough; 2, Vivian Gordon and M. Curry, Havelock.

Married ladies race—1, Mrs. Fred Wrightly, Havelock; 2, Mrs. Martin, Norwood.

Married men's race—1, W. J. Hamilton, Havelock; 2, Trevor Watson, Havelock.

L. G. Hagerman and Harvey Gordon were starters for the races with J. Bedford and W. W. Hill acting as judges.

With The Boy Scouts

The 1st St. John's Rover Crew were chased from Nicholls Oval by the heavyweight mosquitoes around that neighborhood and adjourned to Jack Collis' residence, where many plans were drawn up for the coming season's activities. Every member is asked to be on hand for every meeting from now on. Excuses will not be entertained.

On Friday night a special meeting was held by the St. John's crew at the den, and it was decided to hold a round table conference on the 1st Tuesday of September, when every rover will be asked to give a constructive report on his activities during the summer months that have assisted in or toward his scouting life.

On Sunday morning, with the heavy dew glistening on the grass, Kenneth Brown renewed his scout promise as he took his third step along the scout trail.

The new rover scout started as a wolf cub in the 58th Toronto cub pack eight years ago. After two years as a sub, Ken. went from the pack to troop, and stayed with the 58th Toronto troop for two years, when he came to Peterborough with his parents. Since that time Ken. has been an active member of the 1st Peterborough, St. John's troop, advancing steadily from scout, second, patrol leader, to instructor, and also from tenderfoot to first-class scout, holding his 1st found cord. Congratulations, Ken., Happy hunting and good scouting.

"A poor man served by thee. shall

Of service which thou renderest."

It has been reported that the scouters' weiner roast is being held on Thursday of this week. Time and place will be given by notice through the mail.

All officers please hold this date open if possible—Thursday, September 25, 1938.

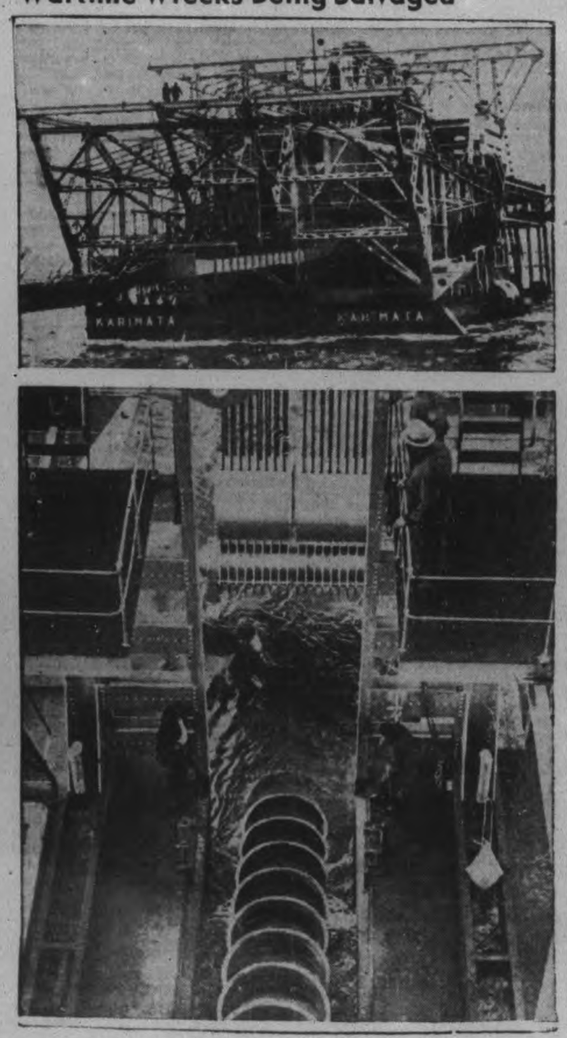
Manslaughter Charge

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 22. — (CP)—Robert Findlay of Algonquin, Ont., appeared in court here Saturday on a charge of manslaughter, laid after provincial police investigated the death of Kenneth Coville, 24, also of Algonquin. He was remanded a week on $5,000 bail. Coville, brother-in-law of the accused, dropped dead after Findlay allegedly struck him last Thursday during an altercation between Coville and his wife.

Wartime Wrecks Being Salvaged



Two of the innumerable wrecks locked in King Neptune's grip that are expected to give up gold and jewels to salvagers in the near future are the British frigate, Lutine, wrecked during a storm near the Zuider Zee in 1799, and the S.S. Merida, sunk in a collision while carrying the jewels of Mexico's ill-fated Emperor Maximilian to New York. On the waters covering the Lutine is working the Karimata, shown at the TOP, while at the BOTTOM is seen the type of dredge being used to clear away the silt that covers the Merida.

When England Staged Greatest Mock Air Raids To Test Defences

Taken in the south of England during the latest air-raid preparedness drills, these pictures illustrate the measures Britain is taking to see that her civilian population is protected as much as possible from the explosive and incendiary bombs that are expected to be rained on the country by enemy planes in the event of war in Europe. At the LEFT is seen a rapidly constructed anti-aircraft defence post, a circle of sand bags thrown up to protect the operator of one of the newest anti-aircraft machine-guns. The heavy clothing worn is made of special material for protection against gas. At the RIGHT, two gunners of a squadron of fighting planes are prepared to step into their machines and attempt to repel the imaginary foe. More than 1,000 fighting planes took part in the manoeuvres which formed part of one of the greatest tests of her air defences Britain has staged.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

MR. EARTHWORM switched the lights on in the tunnel under the garden. Now Hanid, the shadow girl, couldn't imagine what kind of lights they could be.

"I didn't know you had electricity down here," she remarked to the earthworm. "They're very nice lights, too. They glow a little like candles. But they're not candles, are they?"

"Oh, no," said Earthworm. "They are not candles. They're friends of mine.'

"Friends of yours! The lights are friends of yours!"

Yes indeed. Here sparkle! Come down here a minute!" he called to the nearest light. To Hanid's surprise the light came down off the wall. It proved to be a little glowworm with a bright light in its head.

He's Sparkle.

"Are you Sparkle?" Hanid asked in astonishment.

"Oh yes," the glow-worm answered. "I've been Sparkle for quite a long time. In fact—

It was a snail-taxi

—"—in fact, the earthworm broke in with a smile, "he's always been Sparkle. All right, you can go back to your place. I just wanted Hanid to get a good look at you. We're on our way to the Mole family. They have a house down here. You see," he added, turning to Hanid, "we won't have a bit of trouble finding it. But I don't think we ought to walk there. You look pretty tired."

"No, I'm not tired," she said.

"You look quite tired. We'll ride there in a taxi."

Aren't Any Taxis?

"But there aren't any taxis here, Mr. Earthworm! This is under the garden!"

"Dear me — haven't you ever heard of underground taxis? I'll call one at once." With that he whistled. A few seconds later the taxi came along. Do you know what it was? It was a snail-taxi, with two horns.

Hanid stepped on the snail's shell and sat there, as comfortably as she could. The earthworm sat beside her.

"All right. You can start now," the earthworm said to the snail. "But mind you don't go too fast."

To Fly Atlantic In 12 Hours

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 22 (A.P.). —Dick Merrill, veteran flier, has announced he is planning a 12-hour flight across the Atlantic Ocean in September in a stock plane manufactured by an unnamed company for a demonstration to the French Government.

"I'll have to make it in 12 hours or I won't get there," Merrill said last night, "because I am going to take just enough gasoline to make the trip." He said the plane, capable of making 350 miles per hour, would be an open cockpit, single-motored ship.

Tobacco Smoke Cloud

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

READ THIS FIRST:

Determined to show Dr. Julian Paige, the man she is in love with, that she can make her own way in the world, Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, burns her bridges behind her, moves to a rooming house and, for lack of anything better, obtains a job as a taxi dancer at the Peacock, run by Nick Luigi. She is living with a girl named Laurie Evans, whom she met in the park and who is a cashier at the restaurant which Julian patronizes. Noel feels she has a dangerous rival in Ruth Chester. Julian's pretty nurse. At the Peacock Noel meets a young man named Chris Landers, who is far more refined than the other men she dances with. Then one night she is amazed to find both Chris and Julian waiting for her as she leaves the Peacock. Julian takes her home but he is angry because Noel had failed to tell him where she was working and he doubts her sincerity. After a bitter quarrel, Julian leaves in a huff. Noel finally obtains a position as governess at the home of a Mrs. Garwood, a queer woman, but defers taking it when she finds that Laurie has been brought home from work seriously ill.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 22

THE NEXT few days were the hardest and the busiest Noel had ever known. Laurie's nurse, a pleasant-faced red-haired girl, was capable and strong. She was also kind, and Noel found it easy to work with her and follow her instructions when she had to take her periods of rest. Her name was Katherine Perry, but most people called her Kitty.

Noel liked her from the first, and she learned with a real regret that Kitty only could stay with Laurie temporarily, as she and the doctor would soon be called to New Orleans on a case for which they had been engaged several weeks ahead. Kitty's charge also was reasonable, as Noel knew, $6 a night and part of the day. Noel didn't know that doctors and nurses often made concessions to people in Laurie's circumstances. But $6 even under present conditions seemed a rather staggering amount.

Noel called the Garwood home to explain what had happened. Hichens answered. When she told him she wouldn't be able to come out there for some time, he seemed agitated. He told her that it would be a severe shock to Mrs. Garwood, whose health wasn't good, and he insisted that she come on regardless of her roommate's illness. But Noel was adamant. Then Hichens wanted to know when she could come, and said that he was sure Mrs. Garwood would hold the place for her indefinitely. He even went on to say that the poor dear woman had taken a fancy to Noel, and she simply wouldn't be satisfied with anybody else.

This was almost laughable in view of the fact that Mrs. Garwood hadn't even bothered to be courteous, but Noel closed the conversation by saying that she would come just as soon as she could.

It had been hard going back to Luigi's. But there hadn't been any help for it. Dancing at Luigi's at night, so she would have the day free, was the only way she could work out the routine with the nurse. And now Noel had to do something even more difficult than going back to Luigi's. She had to have money for Laurie. She would have to tell Nick—at the thought her cheeks burned horribly. But she would have to do it. There wasn't anything else she could do She made up her mind she would ask Nick that night.

While sitting at Laurie's bedside, listening to her pitiful struggle to breath, Noel heard a car stopping outside. It had a luxuriant hum. A car like this didn't stop often in the neighborhood of Mrs. Blarsom's. In another minute the rooming house keeper told Noel she was wanted.

She found Hichens outside. "I have a message from Mrs. Garwood," he said pompously. "She says for me to tell you that it will be all right for you to remain with your friend until she is better. But that she hopes you will come the first minute she improves. And your salary will be $20 a week."

"Noel promised that she would do so. She went back in the house thinking again how strange it was that Mrs. Garwood had refused to have her on two occasions and no she was offering every inducement to her to take the place. It was strange, but flattering too, after all the trouble Noel had in finding a job.

About 5 the nurse came on regular duty. She had only had a few hours' sleep, but she looked fresh and rested. She made Noel go across the hall to a room which Mrs. Blarsom had grudgingly provided and rest for an hour or so before going to work.

When Noel awakened, she saw that it was 8 o'clock. With a sense of guilt, she dressed quickly. She would be late of course, which would make it a very unpropitious time to ask a favor of Luigi. She had it to do, however.

By the time she reached the Peacock she had steeled her nerves for the ordeal. Nick was standing in the entrance. He had been standing there for quite some time, in fact, looking up and down the street for Noel, fearing that she didn't intend coming. Noel of course, didn't know that, for when Nick saw her stepping hurriedly down the street, he drew back inside the entrance.

Noel stopped when she saw him standing there. "Im sorry I'm late," she began, and started to explain the reason, but Nick said gruffly. "Well, don't let it happen again," and walked down the dance floor.

Noel followed him. "Nick, I—I want to talk to you a minute, please."

Nick stopped, a pale light coming into his eyes. "Oh, you want to talk to me," he said with elaborate sarcasm. "I'm flattered. You have seemed to avoid me on every possible occasion. And now—"

Noel couldn't say anything to that, for it was only too true. But Nick led the way into a small room just off the dressing room which he used as an office.

Seating himself behind the elaborately carved desk, he said in his tight-lipped way. "All right Miss Doran, what can I do for you?"

"Nick, you can help me," Noel began earnestly. "I—that is, some time ago you offered me a lot—that is, considerably more money for my work—do you remember?"

"I remember," Nick said, his eyelids narrowed into slits across his pale eyes.

"I want to accept it now," Noel went on hurriedly, anxious to get the words out. She explained about Laurie then. "Of course illness costs a lot with the nurse and doctor and all."

Nick still regarded her narrowly. "Your—roommate, what? Usually it's a grandmother, or a little crippled brother. This is the first time the roommate gag has been pulled on me."

"It's the truth," Noel said desperately. "I've got to have the money for her. I'll do my best to—to earn it."

Nick's expression did not change. "You'll do your best to earn it, will you?" he repeated.

"Yes, Nick. I promise you that I—will do anything I can to bring people here. I'll even sit at the tables with them, if—if you want me to."

"That won't be necessary," he said, his voice hissing slightly between his teeth. "Now go and get dressed."

"You will let me have the — the extra money?" she asked.

"Yes."

Noel looked at him, hesitated a moment, then said, "Nick, I'm not sure that I—I can really earn so much. I mean, if—if I don't, I'll probably return it to you. I'd like to have that understood.

"Go on and get dressed," Nick said grimly.

Noel was only too glad to have the interview over, but it left her with a feeling of vast uneasiness. There was something sinister about Nick.

The night seemed endless, but it was over at last. As Noel started to leave, Maida caught up with her. "Listen, Noel," she began in her timid voice, "it's too bad you had to be late tonight. Curlylocks was here looking for you."

They were out of the building now. Maida was speaking of Chris as Noel knew. "Say, kid," she went on in a lower voice, "you won't get me in trouble with Nick if—I tell you what happened?"

"No, of course I won't," Noel promised.

"Well, you see, Curlylocks came here looking for you, and the fact that you were late gave Nick a chance to—to queer things for you. He told him that you didn't work here any more, and when Curlylocks wanted your address, Nick told him that he didn't know."

Noel slowed up, thinking rapidly. "Why would Nick tell him that?" she asked, although she felt deep in her heart she knew the answer.

"Because, honey, Nick's jealous."

A hot flame of anger rushed over Noel. If she could ever, ever get away from the Peacock! But instead of getting away, she was getting in deeper all the time. And it couldn't be helped.

She wanted to see Chris. She'd been hoping to see him again. He had made the long hours at the Peacock pass much more quickly. And then, too, Chris had said that he might have something to offer her. She'd probably never know what it was now.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, August 23

A FAIRLY active and progressive day is forecast from the predominant planetary configurations. While there may be much stirring on the surface, the important factor may be an undercurrent of influence or secret plans that may come to the open with gratifying results. This may be in connection with cherished plans, probably affecting the employment or standing with superiors, or it may have to do with writings, contracts or promotional enterprises.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are justified in expecting a rather lively and successful year, with things happening to promote new enterprises, advance employment or make contracts, or agreements of a very gratifying nature.

A child born on this day may be clever, versatile and enterprising, with certain shrewd or subtle qualities that may advance its interests and win it an established place with its superiors. It may write in practical lines.

Free Methodist Delegates To Oppose Church Music

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Aug. 22. — Delegates from the East Ontario Conference of the Free Methodist church, held here this week, will go to the church's next general conference opposed to introducing instrumental music of any kind into services.

One of the last remaining churches to refuse to permit organ music to be played during religious meetings, the church will decide the issue at its next general conference in June next year. The East Ontario group, after a lengthy discussion on the subject, instructed its delegates to that conference to oppose introduction of instrumental music.

Thirty-nine ordained ministers were present at the forty-third session of the East Ontario conference of the Free Methodist church when it opened here on Wednesday afternoon.

At this session the election of lay delegates for the stationing committee took place. They are H. M. Wilkins, Verona, Kingston district; W. N. Ireland, Warkworth, Peterborough district; George Fuller, Sr., Toronto and Muskoka district. These with the district elders, Rev. A. F. Ball, Kingston, Rev. S. B. Griffith, Peterborough and Rev. M. S. Benn of Toronto, comprise the stationing committee. Several superanuated men and elders gave reports.

Rev. F. A. Dawe, Kingston, who has been conference secretary for at least fourteen years, was re-elected secretary and R. L. Casement, Newmarket, assistant secretary.

In the evening a service was held in the town hall which was crowded. The speaker was the Senior Bishop of the church, William Pearce.

Thursday morning the session opened at 8.30 a.m., with Rev. R. Burnham in charge of the devotional period. Mr. Burnham is the oldest living Free Methodist minister in the Canadian Conferences.

The nominating committee was appointed as follows: Rev. W. H. Gregory, Frankford; Rev. A. F. Ball, Kingston; Rev. S. B. Griffith, Peterborough; George Fuller, Toronto; H. M. Wilkins, Verona.

Rev. W. H. Gregory, Frankford and W. N. Ireland, Warkworth, were re-elected trustees of Lorne Park College, West Toronto.

Following the report of the year's work in Warkworth by Rev. C. W. Kay and W. N. Ireland, the elders were elected as follows: Rev. A. F. Ball, Kingston; Rev. F. A. Dawe, Kingston; J. F. Gregory, Toronto.

Reports of the year's work continued as follow: Rev. W. W. Mallory, evangelist, Trenton; Rev. R. G. Babcock, Tichborne; Rev. W. H. Gregory and Walter Twiddie. Frankford; Rev. J. F. Gregory and George Fuller, First Church, Toronto; Rev. B. E. Stevenson and H. M. Wilkins, Verona.

Three young men, W. W. Mallory, Trenton; R. G. Babcock. Tichborne, and H. D. Booth Wannachar who have been probationers were received into full connection of the conference and were elected deacons orders and will be ordained on Sunday.

The last fifteen minutes of the session was in charge of the Bishop, who gave an interesting address on Prayer. He stated that trouble in any church is caused by the lack of prayer.

Rev. R. G. Babcock, evangelist, conducted the service in the town hall Thursday afternoon and Rev. E. R. Orser, Harrowsmith, Thursday night.

Two Ministers Resign Office French Cabinet

Their resignation followed a speech by Premier Daladier last night announcing his intention of scrapping the 40-hour week. Daladier accepted the resignations, but no official reasons for the ministers' action were given.

The Premier's friends said the position of Frossard already had been filled by the appointment of Deputy Anatole de Monzie as Minister of Public Works.

Frossard and De Monzie are Socialists. The latter is known as a warm personal friend of the Premier.

The action of Ramadier and Frossard was the first concrete political action by the left wing of the Cabinent after Daladier's declaration on the 40-hour week.

Failed to Settle Strike.

The two ministers attempted to arbitrate the current "week-end" dock workers' strike at Marseille, but failed. Daladier took direct action in the strike Sunday by sending troops to unload ships.

Both ministers are members of the Socialist Union Party, which is linked with the Socialist Party. The sympathies of their party with the workers' demands apparently made it difficult for them to force longer hours on the strikers.

Ramadier's friends said he had reproached the Premier for failing to inform him about his speech before it was delivered last night.

The Premier gave the general European situation, national, financial and production difficulties, as reasons for his conviction the hours of labor, particularly in defence industries, must be increased.

In a broadcast to the nation last night, he said:

Work Is Road To Safety.

"The road to safety is work. The 40-hour week must be changed as much because of national necessity as because of the general European situation."

Without naming Germany, he added, nevertheless, that "in the centre of Europe great States review or try out their forces. For their soldiers and their reservists there is no longer any real limit to the duration of military service.

"For their workers there is no real limit to the duration of labor. Most nations of the world give the same example of intense activities. There are so many facts which should be a warning to France."

The Premier did not state how or when he would act to lift the 40-hour provisions.

But though he cited the need for stability and calm by increased French production to support his contentions, the first reaction was in the opposite direction.

Socialists and Communists got together to plan a campaign against any specific steps to curtail the 40-hour law, enacted to check nation-wide strikes that got under was as Socialist Leon Blum became Premier June 4, 1936.

RHEUMATIC VICTIMS

Was there ever a more distressing ailment than Rheumatic aches and pains?

Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, Sciatica—what does it matter what you call them? The root cause is generally the same—Uric Acid in your joints—and the usual cause of Uric Acid is a liver that's out of order. Strike a blow at the cause and begin to enjoy real relief.

Take a glassful of water. Stir a ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt into it and drink before breakfast every day. Soon Rheumatic aches and pains will begin to "let up". They'll become less frequent.

Remedy lies in the combination of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium in Fynnon Salt. These elements are similar to those from Mineral Springs which have brought fame to Spas the world over. But spas cost time and money to visit—Fynnon Salt comes to rheumatic sufferers in their own homes. Start today, get relief from rheumatic pains the Fynnon way. At all druggists', 75c a large bottle.

At a time when the world was torn with strife and misunderstanding one of the greatest services a public man could render was to help to keep his own country united.

And, the Prime Minister went on in what was construed as another reference to the Ontario Premier, there could be no greater dis-service or disloyalty than to seek to divide where it was possible to unite or fail to co-operate when by co-operation it would be possible to make a stronger Dominion.

past 26 years he has been associated with the Exhibition Board in an active capacity and in closing he thanked the performers, his associates and everyone who assisted in putting the fair over the top in such a magnificent manner.

Mayor James Hamilton also addressed the crowd before the draw for the car took place and added words of thanks to the people and to the directors for their efforts and fine work.

Mayor Hamilton Lauds Directors.

"It is difficult for me to find words which will adequately express my feelings on this the closing night of the most successful Exhibition in the history of Peterborough, it is an achievement to be proud of and my sincere thanks goes tonight to the people who so ardently supported the Exhibition Board and the directors themselves who have seen a year of hard work crowned with great success," said the Mayor in his first remarks.

"My few words tonight are not a message from the Exhibition board, I am not a director, they are merely an expression of opinion as a citizen of the county and in my official capacity as Mayor of Peterborough, I want everyone of you to feel that ou have a personal interest in this Exhibition, it is part of your job to make it a success and you have responded nobly in this work."

Continuing he said, "All of this entertainment you have seen tonight, the midway and the vaudeville with the many minor entertainments are merely sidelights to the main purpose of the fair. Its object is to encourage and endeavor to improve the breed and quality of the livestock and products raised by the people This by far is the most important work of the Exhibition."

"That the directors' efforts have been successful has been demonstrated in many ways, by the increases in attendance, and the number of entries and also by the records made by animals shown here when they go to the larger fairs in Toronto, London and Ottawa. Every year there is a shortage of room for the entries, even though added accommodation is provided and this proves beyond a doubt that the fair is steadily growing."

"By far the greatest acknowledgement of the earnestness and success of the directors in their undertaking has been the action of Harold Morrow in giving absolutely free to the City of Peterborough, this magnificent park for Exhibition purposes."

"Here again I am at a loss for words to express my feelings of this generous act, but we extend to him our great appreciation for this generosity and promise him to prove worthy of the trust he has placed in us."

Twelve Months' Job

"Few people realize the volume of work that is necessary to put a fair of this size across. The board of directors composed of an equal number of men from the city and county work the year round on the exhibition. They hold numerous meetings to which the men from the county drive many miles to attend, and they give freely and generously of their energy and ability, of their thought and action, to make this exhibition a success. We owe them a deep debt of gratitude not only for the entertainment the fair provides, but for the good that it does to the entire district, which in money value reaches many hundreds of thousand dollars.

"I must congratulate the directors also on the splendid work being done in the different departments for junior farmers. This particular section warrants the attention of every person and the young men and women of the rural sections are responding in an excellent manner to the facilities afforded them in gaining knowledge of farming and in exhibiting their work."

In closing Mayor Hamilton laid stress on the fact that the people must realize the exhibition is theirs and continue their assistance in making every exhibition a real success.

Successful Meet Millbrook Circle

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 22. — The Golden Links Mission Circle and the Women's Missionary Auxiliary met in joint session on Wednesday in St. Andrew's Church for their August gathering, with the vice-president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. J. McKnight, in the chair for the opening business period. The president, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, is on holidays.

The secretary, Mrs. Ross Edmunds reported over $20 in fees, donations, and offering taken in at the June and July meetings. The program was in charge of the Circle, the president, Miss Phyllis Kidd, occupying the chair.

A reading by Jean Fisher covering some phases of Sunday School work in Japan, was followed by a solo, "Leave it to Him," by Miss Rogers, with Miss Kidd accompanying. The lesson was read by Leitha Edworthy and the talk on "The Roominess of the Narrow Way," based on Matthew 7, 13 and 14, was given by Miss Pearl Burnham, points emphasized being the amount of room in the way of life perpendicularly, straight up to the throne of God; horizontally, an unobstructed view ahead; and laterally, or sidewise, with the Master as the Great Companion.

42-YEAR-OLD AUTO STILL RUNS

England's oldest automobile still in use, a 1896 one-cylinder machine with solid tires, took part in a run in Ramsgate.

Oldest Visitor

Oldest spectator at the Peterborough Exhibition on Saturday evening was Henry Green, 202 Perry street, who is in his 88th year. He has been a regular visitor to the Fair for the past 10 years although he has been confined to a wheel-chair for the past 16 years. With him is his nurse, Mrs. R. Higgins. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

British Schoolboys See Mounties And Go Home Happy

Winnipeg, Aug. 22.

BECAUSE they had "seen Canada's Mounties," thirteen British schoolboys today announced themselves satisfied with a tour of the country. They will remain here during the week-end before leaving for Montreal en route home.

Turner Is Given Two Months Selling Liquor

Earl Turner, Ennismore, was found guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to-day of keeping liquor for sale and sentenced to two months in the county jail. He was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair, who told the court an appeal would be made at once.

Provincial Constable David Silvester testified he visited the Turner home on Sunday, Aug. 7 with County Constable Harry McLaughlin. He found 4 autos in the yard and as he walked up to the house 3 men came out of the house and drove away. In the house he found the accused and two other men and glasses on the table. The glasses contained "dregs of beer" and others were partially filled with beer. He explained that he produced his search warrant and made a search of the premises.

Silvester said he found 35 quarts of vendors' beer in a refrigerator, 8 quarts in a tub of water in the cellar and some unopened cases. He seized 65 quarts all told and arrested Turner.

Plenty of Cars.

While he loaded the beer in his car, seven or eight cars drove up but were waved on by a man standing on the road. An American drove in and asked Turner for a half dozen or a dozen quarts, but Turner did not answer him, said the officer.

F. D. Kerr, Acting Crown Attorney, asked :"Was there any signs of a wedding or christening?"

"No," replied Silvester.

Constable Harry McLaughlin gave substantially the same evidence as Constable Silvester. No evidence was submitted by the defence.

Buckhorn Man Is Fined $10 And Costs

Robert Mace, 21, of Buckhorn, was fined ten dollars and three dolalrs costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in city court this morning on a charge of supplying liquor to a minor, namely a 15 year old Indian girl. On a previous appearance he had pleaded not guilty, but after a discussion with his counsel, W. J. Arthur Fair, changed his plea to one of guilty.

On another charge of being found in a disorderly house at Burleigh he pleaded guilty and was assessed ten dollars even. Melville Taylor of Burleigh, charged with keeping a disorderly house was fined a total of twenty dollars on a plea of guilty.

The fifteen year old Indian girl who figured in the cases was allowed to go on one year's suspended sentence. Her case was dealt with in camera.

TOO CLOSE FOR COMFORT.

Phonse Brioux came close to tearing his hair when the number 816 was drawn from the revolving churn at the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday night. Phonse held tickets number 817 and 818 and to add to his distress he felt certain the winning number was also in his collection. Cyril James, who was sitting in the grandstand looked at the winning number then down at the one in his hand ad his ticket was 8167. His heart was skipping beats when the 816 went up, but dropped back to normal when no seven appeared. No person had the right number on the first draw, but it is said the ticket holder was on the grounds, but was several minutes late in showing up.

The Rambling REPORTERS

MONEY BITES REPORTER—AND LIVES.

A monkey used in the dog and horse act at the Exhibition vaudeville attacked a reporter following the last act on Saturday evening. The monkey sprang at the reporter who was standing behind the platform and fastened its teeth in the trouser leg, biting through to the flesh. Its trainer pulled the animal away. Several times during the act the monkey showed signs of viciousness and bad temper.

Discussing the unusual incident later with a fellow scribe the reporter remarked that he had fallen in Jackson Park Creek in mid-winter, been tear gassed during the strike riots, hit over the shoulders with a gun held by a prison guard, bitten three times by dogs, kicked by a horse, and battered until he was bruised in the cockpit of an aeroplane during an electrical storm while he searched for a child lost in the woods. It was the first time he was bitten by a monkey.—McG.

ORDERS 4 PAIRS OF TROUSERS

When a brilliant clothing manufacturer reasoned many years ago that he should be able to sell men's suits with two pairs of trousers, he was laughed at. His reason, that trousers became dustry and wrinkled in early automobiles, was thought ridiculous, but he made an immense fortune from his idea, revolutionized the clothing industry. Last week Al Sharpe, local tailor, went the American one better. He ordered a suit for a Chinese customer, with four pair of trousers. When the order reached the makers, they could not believe their eyes, sent him a query asking for confirmation. Perhaps the Chinese, through Mr. Sharpe, will again revolutionize the industry.—P.

Two Cars Damaged In Lakefield Village

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 22.—Two cars collided on Highway 28 on the northern limits of the village shortly after seven o'clock Sunday evening. Both cars were badly damaged and the occupants suffered minor cuts and scratches.

E. P. Higgins of Toronto was travelling south when he met in collision with a car bearing a New York license and driven by Don. McNaughton of Young's Point. Mrs. Higgins suffered face and leg cuts while McNaughton received facial cuts and the six children in the McNaughton car received slight injuries. McNaughton had just rounded the corner near Rayden Manor when the crash occurred.

Motorist Passes Three Policemen While Going 60 Miles An Hour In Car

Detroit, Aug 22

HILDRON FELIX, 25, Detroit, who was cited for reckless driving and fined $50 and costs, should be cited for something else, said arresting officers, suggesting moral courage or frankness as possible charges.

Felix passed three policemen in his automobile going at 60 miles an hour Saturday. But he stopped when police opened fire, one bullet smashing his windshield.

"What's the hurry?" police asked.

"I was trying to get away from you," Felix replied. "I was leaving the scene of an accident. I was in the wrong, so I took a powder."

A clutter of broken glass at an intersection several blocks back confirmed Felix statement. The other car involved, however, was gone.

Car Winner

Richard Stewart, Otonabee township farmer (LEFT) had a lucky day on Saturday when the holder of a lucky ticket failed to claim a free car with it. Second number to be drawn was held by Mr. Stewart, who lost no time in coming forward. He is seen here with Exhibition Announcer Dick Lush, telling the crowd just how it feels to trade a scrap of paper for a brand new car. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

CAR BURNS

A late model car owned by F. Thompson, a summer resident of Bridgenorth, was burned near Hiawatha Sunday night. The driver escaped without injury and the cause of the fire in unknown.

BUYS CROWE LAKE PROPERTY.

Vernon Caverley of Oshawa, has bought 141 acres of land along the north and east side of Crowe Lake. The property has a mile of water front with a sandy beach, and Mr. Caverley intends to sell a number of sites for summer cottages.

NOTED LECTURER.

Dr. Nans Simons, noted German lecturer, who has been lecturing at Geneva Park, Lake Couchiching, will be heard over radio station CBL at eight o'clock this evening. Dr. Simons is one of the world's outstanding lecturers.

CANVAS MISSING.

A section of canvas covering used to shelter some of the cattle along one of the barns at the Exhibition Park was missing when employees of J. J. Turner and Sons began folding up the tents Saturday evening. Presumably somebody had appropriated it after the cattle were removed late in the afternoon.

MAJOR DALLIN PROMOTED.

Major J. Victor Dallin of Yeadon, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dallin, Water street, Peterborough, has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in the Pennsylvania National Guard and assigned as chief of the aeronautical section, 28th division. Lieut.-Colonel Dallin served in the Royal Air Force during the World War, attended the school of military aeronautics at Oxford, England, and later at the air school in Toronto.

MRS. IRWIN INJURED.

An accident involving three cars on George street near Hill's store, late Saturday evening, sent Mrs. Frank Irwin, R.R. 2 Peterborough, to St. Joseph's Hospital with a serious head laceration. Mrs. Irwin was a passenger in a car driven by Frank Irwin, and the other two vehicles involved were driven by William Drummond, Water street, and Sidney Constable, Harvey street. Constable Clair McGillen investigated.

A CORRIGAN RECEPTION.

Exhibition visitors in the front seats of the grandstand at the Exhibition Grounds late Saturday night after the final car draw must have thought they were on Broadway, New York during the Corrigan reception. Everyone holding car tickets tossed them high in the air as the winner was announced and thousands of the paper slips floated to the ground. In a few seconds the grandstand and ground were actually blanketed by the paper. Today the ground is thickly dotted with paper from the Manufacturers' Building down to the vaudeville stand.

TORONTO WOMAN INJURED

Mrs. Sarah Ambler, Dunvagan road, Toronto, received a fractured wrist and body bruises on Saturday when the car she was driving went out of control on Highway 28 near Centreville. The car went into the left ditch, and catapulted the driver against the windshield. Her niece, Miss Sheila Rowe, also of Toronto, received minor injuries. Mrs. Ambler was taken to the Clinic in this city for treatment. She had been en route to Peterborough to visit her son who is employed by the Central Finance Company.

A BOUQUET FOR BAND.

Miss Pearl Haines, leader of the Polly Ann Revue, paid tribute to the work of Lieutenant Peryer and the Rangers Band in providing music for the various dance numbers required in the acts put on by her talented dancers, in the grandstand vaudeville at the Exhibition. She remarked on the difficulties presented by this type of music and said the bandsmen had handled the different numbers remarkably well. In a few words she voiced her appreciation of the fine reception accorded her dancers and lauded the Exhibition as the finest in its class, at the close of Saturday's program.

"MIND"

"MIND" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "Behold, God is mighty, and despiseth not any; he is mighty in strength and wisdom." (Job. 36:5. Selections from the Bible included the following from Romans 11: 34, 36, "For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things; to whom be glory for ever. Amen." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook included the following, "What is Mind? Mind is God . . . There can be but one Mind, because there is but one God; and if mortals claimed no other Mind and accepted no other sin would be unknown. We can have but one Mind, if that one is infinite."

England Scored 553 Runs For Loss Of Four

LONDON, Aug. 22 (CP-Cable).—Paced by youthful Leonard Hutton, England had scored 553 runs for the loss of four wickets at the tea interval today in the concluding cricket test against Australia. At the adjournment the 22-year-old Yorkshireman was not out with 263 runs. Twenty-five thousand spectators saw play on the second day of the match which will be played to a finish. The Aussies lead in the five-game series by virtue of their five-wickets victory at Leeds in the only contest completed to date. Two matches were drawn and the third abandoned when rain prevented play.

Leonard Hutton and Maurice Leyland, noted Yorkshire players who defied the Australian bowlers for practically the whole of Saturday's play stayed together until the total had reached 411 runs when the latter was run out for 187 runs.

Hutton contunued to bat confidently and at the interval had made 191 runs by brilliant play. At this stage he was associated with England's captain, Wally Hammond, 20 not out.

The Yorkshire pair put on 352 runs in a shade less than six hours, the partnership total being the highest reached against Australia by England for any wicket. The previous best mark was 323 made by Jack Hobbs and Wilfrid Rhodes for the first wicket at Melbourne in the 1911-12 series.

Veterans Honor Memory Of Fallen Heroes

That was the thought in the minds and hearts of more than 80 veterans who marched in Sunday's heat to Little Lake Cemetery, where they paid impressive tribute to their fallen comrades in yearly remembrance. Their own ranks thinning year by year, they nevertheless formed a group who commanded respect as, with faces now lined by years, they recalled their comradeship, their great sacrifice, years ago when their faces held only the flush of youth.

At the head of the veterans marched the Prince of Wales Rangers Band and at their head was the veterans' sergeant at arms, William Gracie, carrying the Union Jack. The soldiers fell in at King Edward Park, marched through the intense heat to Little Lake Cemetery, where they formed a circle about the graves of their fallen comrades. Fire Chief George Gimblett, president of the Canadian Legion branch here, acted as chairman, congratulated the men upon their appearance. On a raised platform with him were Mrs. E. Houghton, president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Legion, Mrs. R. Bugg, past president, and Mrs. E. Porter.

Mayor James Hamilton spoke briefly, telling the veterans "by gathering here today you show that you do revere the memory of your comrades." He congratulated them upon their number and upon their loyalty to old friends. Such a showing reminds one of the great esprit de corps of the army, he said.

Closed Only One Chapter

The end of the war closed only one chapter of the struggle, said A. L. Elliott, M.L.A. He recalled the thousands upon thousands who returned to this country wounded and shocked, large numbers of whom were incapacitated for the rest of their lives. Privation has often been their lot and they have died as a result of war service years after returning, sometimes almost forgotten, certainly not revered as the heroes they were. He hoped their memory would ever remain green.

The ideals for which the fallen fought must never be lost, said Rev. G. S. Easton, padre to the Legion. He said that in some European countries leaders are telling the people that the democracies of the west are such only in name. That must never be true for the soldiers of two decades and more ago fought for deep-rooted beliefs and must not be betrayed.

He believed that in this land we have evidences of that true democracy for which they fought, citing the erection of a new international bridge as evidence..

The graves of the fallen were decorated by the marchers after the Last Post had been sounded, and the men formed lines again to march from the cemetery.

Drunken Driver Given 7 Days

Two cases of drunk driving came before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in city court this morning with one being adjourned and in the other Frank Leyhoe of Oshawa, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 7 days in jail. His car will be impounded for a period of three months.

In the other case C. Anderson of this city asked for and was allowed an adjournment until August 29. He was arrested late Saturday evening following an accident at Hunter and Water streets. The front left wheel of Anderson's car was smashed when it collided with another driven by an Otonabee township farmer named Manley. The latter car was damaged on the running board and fenders.

Two brothers, from north of Buckhorn were fined $10 and $3 costs when found guilty of being intoxicated in a public place. The option is ten days in jail.

Former Manvers Couple Are Married Sixty-Four Years

Mrs. David Galloway of R.R.6, Otonabee who will celebrate her 91st birthday next October had the privilege recently of extending her congratulations to her brother-in-law and his wife, of Oxbow Saskatchewan who celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary. On the same occasion the Western couple received felicitations from their majesties, King George and Queen Elizabeth and from Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King and Right Hon R. B. Bennett.

The telegrams are prized by the elderly couple and made the anniversary which was spent quietly at their home a particularly happy one. Townspeople called during the day to pay their respects and to renew acquaintances with other members of the family who were attending the little family get together.

Married at Lindsay, Ontario, 1874, Mr. and Mrs. Galloway are numbered among the distinguished few in Canada to celebrate the 64th anniversary of their wedding day—surely a coveted climax to a happy married life few hope to attain.

Coming from Bethany, Ontario, the Galloways were among the first pioneers to settle the Boscurvis district of southern Saskatchewan, where Mr. Galloway served as the first postmaster in the community, and both he and Mrs. Galloway took an active and creditable part in the community life. Grand old pioneers whose lives are a living memorial of kind deeds and faith in the family of their adoption.

Mr. Galloway was 97 years of age on August 11th, 1938, and his wife will be 83 on October 27th next, each having retained their faculties and are enjoying comparatively good health.

They have known much joy during their life and great sorrow through the death of their son, Dr. H. H. Galloway of Alameda who died May 4th, 1938. They have two daughters and one son living: Mrs. N. Wylie, Rathwell, Manitoba; Miss Etta Galloway at home, and Robert Galloway of Victoria, B.C.

HEATS ARE KEENLY CONTESTED ON FINAL DAYS OF 'EX' RACING

Sam Snead Is In a Tie With Cooper

TORONTO, Aug. 22 (C.P.). — Young Sam Snead got another chance to wrest the Candian open golf crown from the bald head of Light-horse Harry Cooper of Chicago to-day, for the reason that the Light-horse couldn't hold on when his monarchy seemed secure.

The slammin' man from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., all but took the title from the Chicago veteran on Saturday, when Cooper floundered in with seven strokes on Mississauga Club's home hole, to finish the championship tournament proper with a 72-hole score of 277. Out on the course, Sam heard the news at the 15th tee when he needed two birdies and two pars for 276.

He got his birdie three at the 15th, lofting his approach to within four feet of the pin. He was par four on the 16th, but at the second-last hole his pitch was only nine feet from the flag. Sam studied his putt, then rimmed the cup and had to sink the ball from two inches away for an even four.

On the 18th, where Cooper's game had gone to the winds, Sam drove into a little gully behind the 17th tee. But he came out nicely and needed to sink a 60-foot chip to win, or take two strokes to tie. His shot was two feet away and he tinned his fourth to draw level.

So an 18-hole play-off was ordered between the youngster who became the sensation of the tournament circuit less than two years ago and the champion who left the pack on his heels in the Canadian open at St. Andrew's Club here in 1937. At stake besides the championship was the difference between the $1,000 first prize and $600 second prize—and Snead and Cooper are running one-two among golf's money-winners this year.

Hottest man all day was Tony Manero, with rounds of 70 and 66, but early difficulties left him off the pace, and he finished in a three-way tie for seventh place with the veteran Walter Hagen of Detroit and Horton Smith of Chicago at 286. Big Ed Oliver of Wilmington, Del., put together two 71s for a 72-hole total of 283 and fourth position. Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, N.Y., scored 69-71 the final day to finish fifth with 286, and Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N.J., tied him with two 70s.

Paul Runyan, White Plains, N.Y., tied with Cooper and Snead entering the final round, fired 75 on the last 18 holes, and wound up in third place with 280.

Lex Robson of Lakeview, Toronto, was top Canadian professional, equalling par 72 on his third round and going one under on his fourth for 289. For the second successive year Phil Farley of Montreal was leading amateur, his 295 putting him nine strokes ahead of C. Ross Somerville of London, Ont., six times Canadian amateur champion.

Knox Ends On Top In Church Tennis

Knox finished on top in the Church Tennis League by taking a 4-1 win against All Saints "B" team. This week's semi-final sees Knox play Trinity at Knox, while All Saints "B" play George St. at the Oval. The Knox squad is a new club in the league with only three former loop players.

All Saints won ladies' singles when Connie Coughill won, 6-4, 6-4, from Hazel Bradley. Bud Charlton of Knox took men's singles from Capt. Don Menzies, 6-2, 6-3. The men's doubles was hard-played with R. Bassett and R. Charlton winning from Sid Townsend and C. Palmer of All Saints, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5. Ladies' doubles proved an upset when G. Stewart and M. Lewis, first year Knox players, won from M. White and Jean Ball, 6-2, 6-4. Mary Cavalier and J. Cooper of All Saints lost mixed doubles to Helen Beatty and Fred Watson, 6-2, 6-4.

You Know What This Means

Once pictures like this begin to appear on the sport pages you can start chasing the moths out of your 'coon coats and take off the screen doors. The boys have started rugby practices and that means the fall winds will be seeping through that window frame you forgot to fix any day now. Or maybe you better get in a few more turns on the beach. But don't say we didn't warn you?

Cricket Club Beats Oshawa

On Saturday at Nicholls Oval the Peterborough Club played the first of their two annual cricket matches against Oshawa and scored a clean-cut win by 36 runs, the final score being P.C.C. 74, Oshawa 38. For their win the local club are mainly indebted to four players. The old bowling combination of Dyer and Lawrence soon put Oshawa out, N. Price alone making any show. Lawrence had five wickets for 11 and the captain for for 22. In batting L. Gould 18, and V. Coleman took the honors. The local team had lost seven wickets for 35, but the two local juniors put on 22 runs and the innings closed for 74, Gould being last out for the day's high score of 18 including three fours. Next Saturday the local club are scheduled to play Eglinton C.C. in Toronto. Following is full score and analysis:

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

AS A NEWSPAPER GEE from Belleville remarked to us in Oshawa on Saturday night: "It was a game in which there was everything but police protection." And that's right. A wide-open ball playoff before rabid rooters of both towns, a high but close score of 11-10 for the GM-men over the Petes, a protest for the loop to worry about, a general fight, a flock of arguments, a see-saw score with the clubs getting their runs in batches, hard hitting, a parade of pitchers —everything in the struggle that took close to three hectic hours! This series is a hot one between two good squads and the fans are catching the fighting spirit of the players and adding to the excitement. As it stands now. Oshawa has won two and the Petes one in the four-in-seven serial, next one slated for here on Saturday. But the last one has been protested by Prexy Vern Dawson of the Petes.

* * * * * * *

HE SHOULD STAND AN excellent chance of winning his protest, since the umpires erred on a rule. Yep, on Sec. 8 of Rule 49 which says, in part: "Base-runner is out if he fail to avoid a fielder attempting to field a batted ball . . . the umpire shall determine which fielder is entitled to the benefit of this rule, etc." Speaking further of a ball that two or more fielders make an attempt to field, the rule says: ". . . the umpire must be convinced that the ball passed through the infield and that no other infielder had the chance to make a play on the ball." Well, Umpires Kinkley and Colling missed on this one, all right, even Tracy Shaw of Toronto (former Oshawa manager) saying after the game: "It was interference, unquestionably."

* * * * * * *

How The Words Flew!

IT HAPPENED IN THE eighth inning with the score tied, the bases full and two out. Instead of making the third out, it let in the winning run. Matthews grounded to the left side of the pitcher. Whitehill touched it with his glove, deflecting the ball toward Al Clark near second. Al dashed in a few feet and was about to field the ball when Bennett ran into him and knocked him out of the play. The Petes tore in to the umps and argued hotly over the interference but ye arbiters refused to call Bennett out. The game was finished under protest. Umpire Colling had a bad day for both sides and was frequently in the middle of a milling throng of squawking players, players, either Oshawa or Peterborough. We doubt if either club will have him again in this series—the way they spoke after the the fixture.

* * * * * * *

WELL, THE STORY OF the struggle is in elsewhere. An exciting battle all the way, with Kitchen knocked out in the fourth—though he gave but few hits—McNally getting it in the eighth, and Whitehill finishing up strong. Whilst Biddle weathered a bad first frame but was sent to the showers (his first time in Oshawa in three years) in the seventh, as Turner finished up okay. Strictly a hitters' day. Chuck Kearns continued to hit a sizzling pace for the Petes with two singles and a potent homer in five, as Bob Doll also got three hits, Murphy two for two, and Burton two important doubles. And Calladine two singles. Jubenville hit a homer for them, Miller a triple and Hurst a double, Foley, Wallace and Jubenville having two apiece. We had a nice lead at first, then they overhauled us and and had an 8-3 lead at one stage. Then we got six to take the lead again, but they got two more to grab it back. We tied it in the eighth but they won in their half.

* * * * * * *

How The Fists Flew!

LEFTY McNALLY WAS nearly mobbed and a free-for-all threatened in the eighth—a wild inning, eh? Lefty had got the gate and had about reached the bench when he tangled with a fan. Seems the fan insulted him, but we dunno what was said. It ended up with McNally knocking him for a loop. Others hopped the fence around to wade in but the Petes fought 'em back and soon subdued the battlers. Game was halted as fans swarmed out of the stand onto the field and around the Pete's bench but no great damage was done. Took a time to restore order, there being no police on the grounds as demanded in Sec. 2, Rule 68—and if the field had not been cleared in 15 minutes, the Petes could have claimed that game by a 9-0 score! It must have been about 15 minutes. Unfortunately for us, we had to park up in the stand, no chairs being provided for the press box. So we missed some of the details in the heat of the scrap.

* * * * * * *

YEAH, THE OSHAWA club weren't guiltless of the trouble. They should have supplied police to protect the players and maintain order. While Lefty might have been hot-headed in hitting a fan, still no player has to take nasty cracks from anyone. Some fans fell, when they pay their way in, it permits them, in the safety of the crowd, to call an athlete names they'd never attempt to his face outside the park. Look how Ruth and Cobb used to go up in the stands and slap down guys who called 'em names. Tip Miller was the only Oshawa player to try to aid the locals. And the Petes' bat bag and half a dozen balls were pinched in the excitement—what a game!

* * * * * * *

How Sticks Will Fly!

IN A HEAVY LACROSSE slate for the week, the Petes have three O. L. A. senior "B" games against good teams. The local guttedstick swingers ramble tonight to Long Branch. The strong East Yorks are here tomorrow in the gloaming, and that'll be a tasty dish for the fans and their femmes at nine o'clock in the George St. assault arena. Whilst those bold, bad Brooklins—insisting that two referees be appointed to control the contest—play the Petes here this Friday night. The trio of tilts this week will about settle the final group position of the locals as playoffs will be commencing after Labor Day. Haven't heard any more on the midget playoffs yet.

* * * * * * *

GRID PRACTISES FOR the Orfuns commence tonight at six o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds, local and district huskies who want a a crack at the senior O. R. F. U. squad being invited to try for places. These drills will be run nightly from now on, come hail or high water, and no engraved invites are being mailed out. A fair line on the Peterborough prospects in senior football should be had this week, and no doubt definite word on the coach will be available within a few days. Less than two weeks remain for imports and the Orfuns will have to get busy at once in building up the team and in conditioning the candidates for a tough campaign.

* * * * * * *

OBSERVATION PLATFORM: Sunderland intermediate ballsters would transfer the team to Lindsay next year, if grounds are available. . . . Coach Lefty Wills of Oshawa was ejected from the park by Umps Colling on Sat'day for arguing too strenuously. . . . Al Clark, S. Clark and Don Crowe will be leaving about Sept. 12 for Clarkson Tech. . . . Motorists and Omemee men softballers meet at the Bowl this eve in a round-robin playoff; it's Westclox and Motorists tomorrow. . . . Ottawa and Westclox gals clash at six p.m. Wednesday in Riverside (at 15c a fan) in P. W. S. U. playdowns. . . . Cobourg colleens won't be in Provincial playdowns this season. . . . Lot of folks from here went to the Motor City over the weekend, and are they tickled over that thriller! . . . McNally blames lack of a mound for his inability to pitch good ball in Oshawa; every diamond should have a mound for the pitchers. . . . Some church tennis dope in tonight. . . . Manager Eddie Murphy played sparkling ball in a losing cause on Sat'day. . . . Deah Mitch: Please send some of your special cops to Oshawa again as they have a police shortage and a bad element. Thanx!

Millbrook Bowlers In Tournament Play

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 22. — The present standing of the local bowling rinks at the end of the first half of the schedule is as follows:

	Won	Lost	To play
R. A. Ford	6	2	1
Dr. J. W. Wright	4	1	4
C. B. Sutton	5	4	0
T. H. Collins	4	4	1
K. Chiles	3	3	3

H. A. Kerr	3	3	3
H. D. Bigelow	2	4	3
W. R. Howard	1	3	5
T. A. Campbell	1	3	5

Twenty-four members of the local club motored to Cobourg on Thursday evening where, with the Port Hope bowlers, they were guests of the Lakeshore club. 112 players all told taking part in the games.

A warm welcome was extended by Judge L. V. O'Connor, president of the hostess club, who referred to the fact that the Millbrook club is probably the youngest in this section of Ontario; and after wishing them success, he went on to refer to the fine record in the various branches of sport—curling, lacrosse, baseball, tennis, etc.—which this community has established in the years that are passed. A similar story of good sportsmanship and success he felt assured would be connected with the bowling club in its activities.

Prizes in the tournament were won by Jean Syer, Muriel Ball, Gladys Williamson, Mrs. H. D. Bigelow, Mrs. George Clarke, Mrs. Walter Barringer, Mrs. R. A. Ford, J. R. Eakins, G. Clarke, and A. H. Jeffrey.

A pleasant social hour, with lunch served on the verandah of the club house overlooking the lake, brought a very pleasant occasion to a close.

Athletes from all nations took part but Uncle Sam's representative came through with ripling biceps and tanned integument to cop the ward he is seen receiving. One at a time, girls, please!

Whitaker's Lose To St. Edmund's

Whitakers travelled to Toronto to play St. Edmunds but had to return home with the small end of the score, the final result being Whitakers 83, St. Edmunds 94, for 6 wickets. Whitakers batted first and G. Haig was again high scorer with 17 not out and the total was 83.

On St. Edmunds batting G. Lister and C. Williams took the score to 38 when the latter was out. Afterwards Lister found a useful partner in Clark, and Alexander and Farr, and retired with the days high score of 27. The score reached 81 for 5 and during the next partnership the game was won by 4 wickets.

Next week Whitakers play Kentish C.C. in Toronto.

Hastings Girls In Tie With Men

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 22 — Hastings girls battled to a 16-all tie with a team composed of local old timers in a softball fixture here Saturday evening. The game was featured by several bad errors on the part of the men providing many laughs for the spectators. The men outhit the girls but they seemed at a decided disadvantage at base running.

Vic Scott, Lew Scriver Jr. and Fred Dodd led the batting honors for their team with three hits each. Tripp McWilliams, 69 year old right fielder, led his team for blunders. In four times at bat he failed to knock one into the field.

Bernice Dainard, Gwen Sargent and Pauline Scriver with three hits in four times up led batting honors for the girls. Madaliene Thompson on the mound was hammered for 21 hits.

A second game will be played on Saturday evening next to determine a winner. The teams:

Girls—M. Thompson, p; B. Dainard, c; G. Sargent, 1b; P. Scriver, 2b; L. Dodd, 3b; M. Wilkins, ss; J. Scriver, rf; B. Walsh, cf; M. McKee, lf.

Umpires—Dr. Hess, plate; Alton Thompson and Kay Radford, bases.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Today is Monday, August 22nd, and in a month from today our lawn bowling for the 1938 season will be about over. True we will have bowling after that date but our 1937 daily journal shows us that after Sept. 21 we play on "borrowed weather." So our advice to all bowlers is this, "Bowl all you can and as often as you can from now on—a month is not long going by."

This week's schedule is as follows:

Monday—Men's club doubles.

Tuesday—Ladies' club doubles.

Tuesday—Men's club doubles.

Wednesday—Men's open tournament, doubles, for Empress Hotel Shield, commencing 2 p.m.

Thursday—Ladies' club doubles.

Thursday—Men's club doubles.

Friday—Ladies' club annual excursion to Cobourg.

Friday—Men's weekend tournament, draw from board 7.30 p.m.

Saturday—Mixed weekend tournament.

2.24 Horse Does Half-Mile In 1.031-2 Flat

Keen competition marked several of the heats Saturday afternoon at the Exhibition Grounds as the three-day harness horse race meet came to a close before a big crowd of spectators in the stands, A. P. Grattan, a Woodbridge horse, took three firsts in the 2.24 class; while Bert Patch, an entry from Mono Mills, won all three heats in the 2.18 event. The fastest half mile was 1.03½ in the last of the 2.24, while the fastest mile clocked was 2.11¼ in the second heat of the first race. Following are the results:

PETES PROTEST OSHAWA 11-10 PLAYOFF WIN IN WILD CONTEST

Free-For-All Scrap A Highlight Between Petes and Fans In Weird Loop Playoff Tussle

In one of the most weird playoff games in C.O.B.L. history, the GM-men copped an 11-10 decision over the Petes in Oshawa on Saturday, a game that was finished under protest by Peterboro officials. It was the third of the four-in-seven playoff series and gives Oshawa two wins, unless the Petes' protest is upheld. A thousand fans, some two hundred of them Peterborough followers, thoroughly enjoyed the hectic fray—one marked by just about anything that could happen, including a fight.

The Petes' protest is based on Sec. 8 of Rule 49, which says: "The baserunner is out if he fails to avoid a fielder attempting to field a batted ball, etc." In the eighth inning with two out and the bases full, Matthews hit a grounder. It was deflected off Whitehill's glove toward Clark at second. Clark was reaching for the ball when Bennett bumped into him. The Petes put up a big argument, claiming Bennett was out but Umpires Kinkley and Colling refused to call the play. President Vern Dawson of the Peterborough Baseball Club notified the umpires the game was being played under protest.

Much excitement was caused also in the eighth inning when Lefty McNally and a fan had a fist fight near the Petes' dugout and a free-for-all threatened as other rabid fans tried to mix in it, but the visiting players kept them off—order being restored with difficulty owing to the absence of police at the park. During the mixup, the Petes' bat bag and half a dozen balls were stolen.

Wild and Woolly

It was a wild and woolly contest with runs coming in bunches and the lead see-sawing back and forth, as five pitchers tried vainly to cope with the clubbing batsmen on both sides. The Petes took a 3-0 lead in the first frame but saw Oshawa con a 5-3 edge in the fourth. It was 7-3 in the fifth and 8-3 in the sixth. The Petes broke loose again in the seventh to earn a 9-8 lead. Oshawa made it 10-9 in the seventh but the Petes came back in the eighth to tie it up. However, Oshawa pushed over the winner next heat.

Russ Kitchen started for the Petes and pitched fine ball for three innings. But he allowed three walks, a single and triple in the fourth and was relieved by Lefty McNally. The latter had trouble pitching from the moundless slab and finally gave way in the eighth—after being bingled freely—to Gunner Whitehill. The latter struck out two and gave one scratchy hit in the part of an inning he worked. Jake Biddle had a bad first inning for Oshawa but settled down to hurl good ball till he weakened in the seventh, Jack Turner taking over and finishing it up in a fair performance. The fielding was mostly good on both sides.

Kearns Homers

Kearns and Doll had three hits each for the Petes, the former knocking a long homer over Hurst's head with two aboard in the big seventh. Murphy had a perfect day with two for two, and Burton hit two doubles to drive in four runs. Jubenville of the GM-men hit a homer with one on and had a single, driving in four runs. Wallace and Foley each had two safe blows, and Hurst hit a double and Miller a triple. Fielding features were nice catches by Burton and Hurst, and a fine pickup by Calladine.

Kearns opened the first with a walk. Deadey singled and Calladine walked to load the sacks. Murphy's single scored one and Burton's double sent in two. There was no further tallying till Oshawa's fourth. Foley walked and stole second, taking third on an out. Wallace walked and stole. Both scored on Jubenville's single. The latter scored on a triple to right by Miller, Tip coming in later after Bennett walked, on a double by Biddle. Bennett took third and scored on a single by Dalton to make it 5-3.

Petes Get Six

They added two in the fifth on a single by Wallace and homer to deep centre by Jubenville. One more counted in the sixth when Dalton walked, was sacrificed, took third on a wild pitch and home on a hit by Foley. The Petes took the lead in the seventh with six runs. Calladine singled, Doll hit safely and Murphy walked to load the sacks. A double by Burton sent two home. Cadd walked to finish Biddle. Turner fanned one and Kitchen rolled out to score Murphy, and then Kearns homered to score three runs. Oshawa got two in the seventh on a walk, a badly-played bunt which went for a fielder's choice and a double by Hurst.

The Petes tied it up in the eighth when Doll singled, moved up when Murphy was hit by the pitcher and scored on an error by Jubenville. But the homesters won the game in the eighth, though it was protested. Wallace singled and took second, with one out, on McGarry's hit. He advanced to 3rd when Bennett walked to fill the sacks. With Whitehill pitching, Turner struck out. Matthews grounded off the pitcher's glove toward Clark but Bennett ran into him and Wallace scored. Hurst fanned. The Petes went out in order in the ninth.

Six Teams Play In Tournament

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Aug. 22.—Next Wednesday afternoon a softball tournament will be held in Marmora Fair Grounds.

While it will be under the auspices of Marmora Agricultural Society it will be under the direction of Marmora Softball Club. Six teams are expected to compete, including Havelock, Marmora, Delero, Eldorado, Springbrook and Tweed. The J. R. Cooke Challenge Cup will be competed for and some interesting games are looked for.

A dance will be held in the Fair building at night, with music for round and square. Eugene Reynolds and Bert Kouri will also play a number of their popular selections during the evening. Games, refreshments and booths will be held in the red building.

Cricket Results

Lancashire 273 (Oldfield 71, Parkin 60, Barnett five for 63, Sinfield four for 68) v. Gloucestershire 133 for three (Barnett 76 not out); at Manchester.

Buffalo Bisons Score 50 Runs In Five Games

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—(CP)— At their present rate of progress, Buffalo Bisons aren't likely to do much more than slide into the International League playoffs, but when they have their collective eyes on the ball, they're undoubtedly the hitting-est team in the circuit.

Paced by the veteran Ollie Carnegie, current home run king, they're the Yankees of the league when they get started .and they may make plenty of trouble in the post season round of games.

Against the Jersey City Giants, who were threatening their hold on fourth place, the Bisons hammered out 50 runs in five games. But they had to sweep a doubleheader yesterday, 8-7 and 12-2 to gain a 3-2 edge in the series.

Four Behind Chiefs.

The twin victory again gave the Bisons a 7½ game hold on their first division spot and left them only four games behind the third-place Syracuse Chiefs, who took a 3-2 decision from Toronto in a night game.

Two home runs by Babe Herman helped keep the Jerseys in the first game running and finally old George Uhle, Buffalo coach who hadn't pitched since 1936, had to step in and rescue Footsie Marcum after the little Giants had scored four runs in the eighth. The second game was easy as the Herd collected 17 hits, including homers by Boland and Phillips.

Si Johnson, pitching seven-hit ball and staving off one rally after another in the late innings, gave Rochester the first game, 4-3 over Newark. But Joe Begg's four-hit elbowing for the Bears halted the Wings in the nightcap and Newark won 2-1 by bunching four blows off Al Sherer in the fourth inning.

Montreal conquered the cellar-dwelling Baltimore Orioles twice, 8-3 and 4-3.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Harold Clift, Browns — His two homers drove in four runs in 9-4 win over Tigers.

Zeke Bonura, Senators and Johnny Heving, Red Sox—Bonura's triple sent two runs across in 5-4 opener win; he also hit homer in nightcap in which Heving pitched eight-hitter for 7-2 decision.

Mike Kreevich, White Sox, and Hal Trosky, Indians—Kreevich batted two runs across in 4-3 opener triumph; Trosky's single drove winning run in for 3-2 second game victory.

Jake Powell and Red Ruffing, Yankees—Powell hit homer in opener decision over Athletics; Ruffing pitched five-hitter and hit two-run homer in nightcap.

Armstrong Wins Third Title By Beating Ambers

Winning a decision over Lou Ambers in 15 rounds of desperate fighting, Henry Armstrong becomes the first man in ring history to hold three world titles at the same time. The St. Louis Negro adds the lightweight crown to the featherweight and welterweight championships which he recently won. Ambers is pictured on the floor of the ring in Madison Square Garden in the fifth round for a count of one after taking a hard punch to the jaw. The referee is Billy Cavanaugh, who voted Armstrong winner when the two judges differed in their decisions.

Yankees Take 11-Game Lead, Pirates Five Up

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(CP). — New York Yankees have an 11-game lead to-day as they face this week's trying program of five straight double-headers. Pittsburgh Pirates aren't looking as brash as they did a few weeks ago but still are five games ahead of their National League field. The Cincinnati Reds, instead of being up in second place as they had hoped, are back in a third-place tie with Chicago's Cubs.

But all these are secondary matters—the Browns are out of the cellar.

It looked like an impossible feat for Gabby Street's St. Louis club to escape last place not long ago when the Athletics still were going strong. But thanks to Buck Newsom, who probably deserves a few votes for the most valuable player prize, they're in seventh to-day, a game ahead of Philadelphia.

Newsom, winning his 15th game of the season and his sixth in a row, was the main reason for the Browns' rise. He ended Detroit's six-game winning streak yesterday with a six-hit performance. St. Louis won, 9-4, even though Hank Greenberg socked his 42nd home run and Al Benton hurled hitless ball for the first five innings. Harlond Clift broke the ice with a homer in the sixth and added another in the ninth after the Brownies had put over five runs in the eighth.

The Yankees took care of the Athletics, meanwhile, battering them into submission, 8-4 and 8-1. Lefty Gomez pitched a steady game in the opener and Red Ruffing did twice as well in the nightcap.

The double victory added to the Yanks' lead as Cleveland's second-place Indians split a double-header with Chicago, losing the opener 4-3, when Johnny Allen cracked in the eighth, then winning the nightcap, 3-2.

Pittsburgh suffered its first double-header defeat of the season at Chicago, losing 6-4 and 6-1 to the Cubs. The Bucs' lead wasn't badly damaged, however, as the Phillies, behind the former Brooklyn pitcher, Max Butcher, defeated the second-place New York Giants, 8-3. The Cubs gained their third-place tie when the now-dangerous St. Louis Cardinals whipped Cincinnati twice, 7-6 and 3-0.

Brooklyn and the Boston Bees each drew one good mound performance as the Dodgers won the first clash, 6-0, behind Fred Fitzsimmons, and the Bees turned in a 9-4 triumph for Dick Errickson. Paced by Zeke Bonura, Washington downed Boston's Red Sox, 5-4, in the opener, then went down, 7-2, before Joe Heving's flinging.

East York Team Here Tomorrow

Lacrosse resumes tomorrow (Tuesday) night here at nine o'clock in the George St. arena with an O.L.A. senior "B" scrap between Toronto East Yorks and the Petes. After more than a weeks' absence on home terrain, the Petes expect a good battle and a big crowd. They yanked out a 10-8 win over East York last week in the latter's arena, it being one of the toughest tussles the Petes have had this season. They figure on another tough fight from this same team here tomorrow and, as the schedule is drawing toward a close, both clubs will be in there playing their heads off for the victory.

Fans here have been treated to some fine lacrosse games in recent weeks, while the Petes have been meeting tougher and tougher opposition as the season progresses, both at home and away. The East York squad is a good one, with the addition of McWhinney, former senior star, and the locals will have to hustle plenty to emerge on top in this tilt. With Worthy a doubtful starter, owing to a sore knee, the Petes otherwise should be at full strength for tomorrow's engagement. A midget fray may be staged before the senior setto.

Yen For Popcorn Leads To Hospital

"I'm okay," insisted Leo Diegel, as he lay in bed and puffed a cigarette in a Cleveland hospital where he is being held for observation after being knocked down by a motor car. The accident, caused when the famous golfer was running across the street after buying himself a bag of popcorn, forced him out of the last round of the Cleveland open, and will prevent him from participating in the Canadian open, an event he has won four times in his lengthy golf career.

More Than Eighty At Institute Meet

HAVELOCK, Aug. 22.—The Belmont Branch Women's Institute entertained the Trent River Institute at their August meeting held on Thursday afternoon in the Belmont Town Hall. More than eighty members were in attendance, with Miss Iva Smith, the Belmont president, in the chair.

The meeting opened with the usual Institute ode and prayer, the roll call "An Economy Hint" being well responded to.

The Institute expressed appreciation of the new cement step to the town hall, the material and workmen for which were kindly provided by Mr. H. L. Scott of the Ontario Rock Co.

Mrs. T. Lean, of Apsley, the district president, was present during the afternoon and spoke to the gathering.

A very interesting program was presented, including the following: Community song, "O Canada"; memory time, poem, "The World is Against Me," by Miss Dorothy Davidson, of Havelock; musical selection, "Gold Mine in the Sky," by Misses Aileen and Ruby Cassan; recitation, "The Old Man," by Mrs. Joseph Seabrook; piano solo, "Robin's Return," by Mrs. D. Anderson; vocal trio, "Old Apple Tree," by the McMullen sisters; vocal solo, "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," by Miss Betty McMullen; tap dance, Shirley Wratten, Toronto; vocal trio, "I Passed By Your Window," by Trent River ladies; reading, "Our Own Little Town," by Mrs. Jas. McMullen; dance, "Irish Jig," Wallace and Wayne Young, Havelock; paper, "Home Economics," by Miss Mary Anderson; song, Miss Jacqueline Sanders, Havelock; Trent River quartet; poem, "Rose and Sunshine," by Miss Dorothy Davidson; solo, "Sylvia," by Mrs. H. Harryett, Montreal.

Refreshments were served with Mrs. L. Keene and Mrs. Dunlop as convenors and the younger members assisting.

Wed At The Brink Of The Grave

Critically injured in an automobile accident and with her life hanging in the balance, Mrs. Margaret Hilgert was married in the Painesville, Ohio, hospital to John Hilgert, her sweetheart for two years and companion in the accident that caused her injuries. Hilgert came out of the mishap with only bruises and lacerations, but his bride has since had three blood transfusions and it was necessary to amputate her right leg. Her condition was still critical when Rev. D. Hagalskamp performed the marriage ceremony in the flower-decked hospital room.

Sight Is Restored

DETROIT, Aug. 22—(CP). — An operation on the right eye of Edgar D. Martin, Meeker, Okla., was declared a success to-day, and Martin, blind for 25 years, can see normally again. Dr. Marvin Blaess, Detroit eye specialist, who performed the operation, said Martin's right eye will be even better than his left, to which sight was restored by Dr. Blaess in an operation last May.

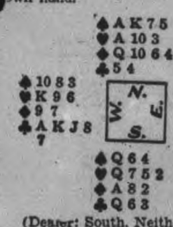
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

BORDERLINE DOUBLES

IF YOUR PARTNER, who had previously passed, makes a minimum response to your informative double, it is well to take stock. You know he lacked an opening bid. Even if he jumped in response to your double, he still could not have a very good hand. In such a case, you know the side could not make game unless your hand was well above the minimum needed for your double. There is then slight reason for additional action on your part except when your partner's suit lacks any kind of support in your own hand.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

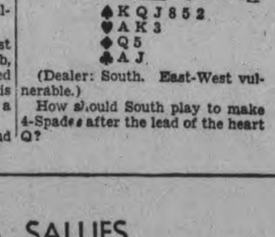
South passed as dealer and West started the auction with 1-Club, which North doubled. East passed and South bid 1-Heart. When this passed around to North he put in a bid of 1-Spade.

The club 10 was led by East and was covered by the Q and K. The club A was next won and followed by a club which North ruffed. The hand looked hopeless, so North decided to tackle the diamond suit. He led the 4 to the A, on which West played the 9. The second diamond lead was won by East, who cashed the J and led a fourth diamond for a ruff by West. West returned a spade, which was taken with the Q. The heart 10 was finessed to East's J and a spade returned. At the end declarer lost a heart to West's K, so that he was set one trick.

South would have been able to make 2-Hearts had North let the 1-Heart bid stand.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

How should South play to make 4-Spades after the lead of the heart Q?

Boys' Hobo Tour End On Police Station Floor

Real hoboes who thought the lads too young to venture upon the trails of "hobo land" brought these two Toronto boys, missing from their homes for two days, to a railway stationmaster at Washago, Ont., when they came across the adventurers in a nearby "jungle," peeling potatoes. Police of Orillia permitted them to sleep in a corner of the police station, as shown ABOVE, until their parents were reached. "We wanted to be hoboes and caught a freight train from Toronto," they told Police Chief W. G. Carson, of Orillia.

Millbrook Cadet Team Wins $24

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 22.—The rifle team from the Millbrook Cadet Corps, which competed at the recent D.C.R.A. matches at the Connaught Ranges, Ottawa, made a good showing, bringing home in all $24.00 in prize money, and reporting that competition was very keen, with shooting above the average, and with crack teams entered from Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Brockville, Sarnia, and a number of other places.

The local team included: Orville Wainman, who wan first with a score of 99 out of a possible 100, in the open event and received the special gold medal and prize money of $5.00; Max Challice, who came fifth in the open class, winning $3, and who also won $1 in the 25-yard event and a like amount in the 50-yard; Wainman also took third place in the 25-yard event, with $5 as prize, $1 in the 100-yard, and 50 cents in the 50-yard events; William Kerr who won $2 in the 50-yard extra series and Lloyd McMahon. Their instructor, Lieutenant B. B. Dawson, accompanied the boys to Ottawa, and William Skitch provided transportation with his car.

Robert Dale Purchases Prize Pens Of Lambs and Hogs At Exhibition

Robert Dale, proprietor of the meat shop on Rubidge street north of Sherbrooke street, bought the first prize pens of bacon hogs and market lambs at the sale by auction held at the exhibition Saturday morning. The auctioneers were Harry Redmand and J. H. Miles.

Canada Packers Limited, represented by Graham Eastwood, and Mr. Dale were the only buyers, but several other bidders appeared briefly. The hogs were all Yorkshires, five to a pen, and the premium prices at which they were sold were as follows: First prize Yorkshires owned by Mrs. W. M. Armstrong of Fraserville, sold to Robert Dale at $10 per cwt.

The Wallace Thurston pen, also from Bobcaygeon, was bought by Canada Packers for $9.60.

Walter Moncrief's five Yorkshires went to Mr. Dale at $9.50.

Mr. Dale paid $9.30 per cwt. for a barrow hog owned by Newton Taylor of Burketon; and Canada Packers bought one from C. L. McNeill of Fraserville at $9.50.

Mr. Dale's bids were highest for the three pens of lambs, five to a pen, as follows: $10.40 a hundred for five Suffolks sold by Alf Ayre; $9 for Walter Bowles' pen of five Suffolks; and the price to the third prize pen, exhibited by C. L. McNeill of Fraserville, was $8.10 per cwt.

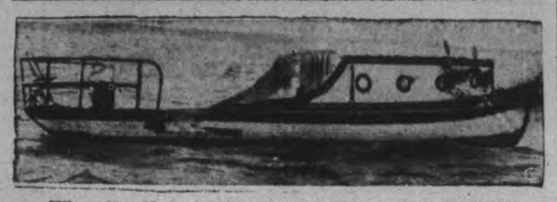
Six Rescued From Burning Yacht



When the 42-foot cabin cruiser, Susy Q. from which they were fishing, caught fire, six members of a fishing party were forced into the waters of Chesapeake Bay, near Baltimore, to be rescued by another party of sportsmen. At the TOP is seen one of the men rescued, Michael Cavalere, being hauled into the rescuers' boat, his grateful expression plainly seen. The hulk of the burnt craft is seen BELOW. These pictures were taken by one of the rescue party.

Crickets Spread In Oshawa City Dump Cause Of Trouble

OSHAWA, Oug. 22. — Oshawa's cricket infestation in the city dump on Thomas street has now spread to such a degree that neighbors on the East Side, who have formerly been silent, are now complaining indignantly to city authorities.

The roadway from the dump tonight swarmed with the pests and a visit to several homes showed them by the hundreds on the outer walls.

J. Jeffreys, when queried, was emphatic in his belief that the dump should be completely cleaned up. "Last year we were driven almost frantic with flies and this year it's crickets," he stated. "I've been up to see the Marshalls and thank goodness my trouble is not nearly as bad, but although I've complained to the city, nothing much appears to have been done.

"Unless they clean up the dump every one around here will lose their hens this winter through the rats there. While some of us have gone down and killed dozens, the place is still swarming with them, while the crickets also appear to have their breeding ground there."

A visit to the dump at night showed thousands of crickets and a few scampering rats. The stench was sickening, while vapors coming from holes in the dump added to the unpleasantness. A visit to the Marshall home where the family is still dispossessed, showed large numbers of the pests in evidence, with the outer walls swarming with them.

"The trouble is," Mr. Marshall said, despondently, "no one ever comes around at night when they are really bad and in clear view. They wait until daylight, when the crickets are well hidden."

Mr. Marshall added that tomorrow the whole area around his home would be gone over with a new preparation recommended by the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. He added that he had little faith in its possible effect, owing to the fact that while the other remedies have also killed thousands the trouble is still as bad as it ever was."

"Apparently Alderman John Stacey had the right idea when he said at Council to let the frost kill them," Mr. Marshall declared.

"Because from the way things look now that appears to be the only remedy, unless the dump is destroyed."

Birdsall Girl Captures White Squirrel

THE NORTH country may have its albino huckleberries but Peterborough stays right up near the top of the parade with the finding of an albino squirrel.

The little pink-eyed fellow was captured by Miss Ruth Thomas age 12, of Birdsall. The animal evidently is not full grown but very active and about the size of a chipmonk, and although only in captivity for three days has become quite tame. Instead of the red glossy fur, this squirrel is pure white and has pink eyes.

Lindsay Prexy Praises Fair

LINDSAY, August 22.—Mr. B. L. McLean, president of Lindsay Central Fair, was a visitor to Peterborough Central Exhibition on Thursday, and has nothing but words of praise for this year's event in the Electric City. He paid tribute to the management of the Fair, to the manner in which every detail was attended to, the general excellence of the exhibits, as well as the precision in which the general program was carried out. Special mention was made to the co-operation received by the executive from the business and professional men of the city in putting the annual event across.

Lindsay is face to face with an acute relief situation. The town's share in relief cost is $600.00 more this year than at the end of the same period in 1937. The number on relief at the end of July totalled 232 as against 80 last year. The lack of road construction work has forced a great many to go on relief.

Tire Blows Out.

Mrs. (Dr.) Millyard of Coboconk, was the victim of a rather serious accident this week. She was motoring into the village when a tire blew on her car. She swerved the car in order to avoid oncoming traffic and the machine struck a building, and was badly wrecked. Mrs. Millyard sustained severe cuts and bruises.

Four persons were injured in an auto accident at the Allsaw bridge, near Minden, on Thursday. Mrs. E. Voicey and baby, Eileen, of Eagle Lake. Mrs. Delbert Rogers, and Mr. Roy Rogers, of Minden, were severely bruised and cut when their car, driven by Mr. Rogers, was sideswiped by a car driven by Earl McNeil. Provincial Officer Taylor investigated the accident.

Little Ross Hyland, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Hyland of Janetville, had a narrow escape from death by poisoning. The little fellow came across a dish of fly poison, and ate some of it. After first aid was administered the child was rushed to Ross Hospital, Lindsay. The child was pronounced out of danger in the evening.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Four Convicts Died From Scalds

On Hunger Strike Doctor Finds Men Scalded To Death

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23 (AP).—Coroner Charles H. Hersch today blamed officials of the Philadelphia county prison for the deaths of four "hunger-striking" prisoners.

As autopsies began, the Coroner said: "No matter what they show, the responsibility lies with officers of the prison."

He did not name the officials to whom he referred.

Hersch assumed charge of the investigation after declaring the men were scalded to death. He said he was "not satisfied with any of the stories I have heard."

Deputy Coroner Vincent Moranz said he and Hersch would interview prisoners privately and "if necessary we will interview the entire prison population."

A 110-year-old law and a 129-year-old supreme court decision were cited by Hersch as authorities for him to direct the investigation.

The State Secretary of Welfare, Charles Engard, sent two special investigators to the institution at Holmesburg, Pa., with orders to "get to the bottom" of the hunger strike which resulted in the four being placed in punishment cells where their bodies were found yesterday.

600 Refused to Eat.

They were among more than 600 prisoners who refused to eat in protest against a "monotonous" diet of hamburger and spaghetti. Discovery of the bodies came after a night during which, Warden William Mills said, some 20 convicts in the punishment cells fought among themselves.

Dr. Morton Crane, the coroner's physician, said the men had died violently.

"I am of the opinion that scalding water somehow got into their cells," he said. "All four exhibited the symptoms of nasal congeston that is typical of death by gas, steam or hot water.

Beaten Before Scalded.

"There were also bruises and abrasions—and by abrasions I mean bruises where the skin is ripped off, and they still showed clots of blood. That would indicate clearly to me that they were beaten before being scalded to death."

Warden Mills scoffed at the theory that hot water or steam might have caused their deaths. He added that although the prisoners had been fighting, "no officer and no employee of the institution laid a hand in violence on any of the men."

Judge Harry McDevitt of the Common Pleas Court, who had sought to aid in settling the hunger strike, said he was told the prisoners broke steam pipes in their cells to use as weapons, thus permitting steam to drive into the cells.

Detective Sergeant Martin Curran of the city police, expressed belief the men died of "over-exertion, exhaustion and under-nourishment" after hours of fighting among themselves.

Jewish Children Are Acquitted

JERUSALEM, Aug. 23.—Two Jewish children—Rachel Koka, 13, and Israel Mishali, 17—were acquitted by a military court of terrorist charges.

The girl was accused of carrying a bomb which killed four Arabs and wounded 36 in a bus explosion here Aug. 7. The boy was charged with hurling it.

The court discharged them without calling on the defence. The death penalty would not have been applicable to them since they are under 18 years of age.

Lord Baden-Powell In Poor Health

LONDON, Aug. 23—(CP-Havas).—Friends of Lord Baden-Powell, 78-year-old founder and head of the Boy Scout movement, to-day expressed uneasiness over his health, poor for some time.

Lord Baden-Powell, who sailed from Antwerp yesterday for Liverpool after a trip to Norway, was unable to attend a reception organized by Belgian Boy Scouts because he was unwell.

People With Sore and Hurting Feet Too Heavy On Gas, Too Light On Brakes

Pittsburgh, Aug. 23.

THE NATIONAL Association of Chiropodists opens its 27th annual convention today to take up, among other things, the question "how high should a heel be?"

The men and women who doctor the feet of the United States think they can find the answer, but admit their findings probably won't take a fraction of an inch from the support of a fashionable woman's foot.

The delegates will take up, too, foot exercises, the effect of sore feet on the automobile driver.

Dr. Charles E. Karuss of Philadelphia, elected president of the association last night, will discuss auto drivers, he said:

"Feet play a more important part in driving than do the hands. People with sore and hurting feet are too heavy on the gas and too light on the brakes."

Free Access Of American Wheat To The British Market Is Predicted In New Trade Pact

Grasshoppers Eat Newspaper Left On Lawn Of Home

Waterdown, Ont., Aug. 23.

A NUMBER of grasshoppers in East Flamboro Township are possibly more enlightened than their fellows since they enjoyed a meal on George Atkinson's front lawn here. Atkinson left a newspaper on the front lawn for a few minutes. When he returned, the few tattered remnants of the paper were covered with hundreds of grasshoppers.

"They had eaten world news, funnies, financial and all," complained Atkinson.

Canadian Said Willing To Surrender Empire Wheat Preference

MANCHESTER, England, Aug. 23.—(CP Cable). — The Manachester Guardian (Liberal) in a dispatch from London to-day predicted the Anglo-American trade agreement now being negotiated would give the United States free acces to the British wheat market.

Board of Trade officials in London would not comment.

The Guardian said that in preliminary discussions last year between United Kingdom and Canadians indicated their willingness to dians indicated their willingness to surrender empire preference in wheat in the cause of better Anglo-American trade.

It was considered unlikely in London a treaty would be signed before mid-September, though only minor details were declared to remain to be adjousted.

Under the Ottawa agreements of 1932 wheat from the Dominions receives a preference of six cents a bushel over foreign-grown wheat on the United Kingdom market. Canadian wheat receives this preference when shipped through Canadian ports.

No Official Comment.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—(CP)—Press reports from London that under a provision of the projected Anglo-American trade pact United States wheat would enter the United Kingdom market on the same basis as Canadian and Australian grain brought no comment from state department official here today.

The department officials who have been negotiating in Washington with British trade experts for many weeks declined to discuss any provision the agreement might contain.

United States shipping and port officials long have sought a way around the preference of six cents a bushel Canadian grain receives in the United Kingdom when shipped through a Canadian port. Grain elevator interests of Buffalo have blamed the preference for a falling off in use of storage facilities at that Great Lake port. Boston and New York port and shipping interests also have campaigned against the preference.

Handwriting on Wall.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23—(CP).—While Dominion Government officials label as "guesswork" the reports from Britain that United States wheat may be allowed free access into United Kingdom markets under the new trade agreement the two countries are negotiating in Washington, there is a feeling here these reports wil lturn out to be handwriting on the wall, and Canada will lose the preference it now enjoys over all other wheat from North America.

French Labor To Fight Longer Week

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—French labor leaders rallied their forces today to fight the Daladier Government for retention of the 40-hour week, and labor circles foresaw the possibility of a general strike.

The general Confederation of Labor which lists 5,000,000 members and most other unions ordered their members to be ready for action. Foremost in the offensive were waterfront unions, fighting government efforts to force Marseille stevedores to unload perishables during the weekend and thereby exceed their 40-hour week period.

The Federation of Port Workers' union said "grave decisions" would be made soon unles sextra pay for overtime was granted the Marseille members and labor circles said this was a threat of a strike in all French ports.

The situation evolved from Premier Daladier's proposal Sunday night to increase working periods to speed national defence and industrial output because of the uncertain international situation.

The minister of public works and the minister of labor resigned but quickly were replacd by Anatole de Monzie and Charles Pomaret, also members of the Socialist Union party, an ally of the powerful socialist party.

This did not ease opposition to Dalladier's plan, however, socialist and communist sources said. They asserted there was dissatisfaction even among the premier's own radical-socialist party, centrally placed between the Liberal left and the Conservative right.

The premier was said to be considering a special session of parliament in the belief he could win his point with the support of the rightist parties which hailed his stand as that of a "courageous patriot."

British Scientist Predicts Crop Failure Eventually Will Be Almost Unknown

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., Aug. 23—(CP Cable)—A prediction crop failures eventually may be almost unknown was made by Sir John Russelhl of the Rothamsted experimental station, speaking today to the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Sir John said meteorologists some day would be able to estimate the probable rainfall during the crop growing season, from which a table of expectancy of yields could be worked out.

"We can expect to looked forward to a time when crop failures will be almost unknown and when crop production will involve even less labor than it does at present," he said.

London is threatened with loss of its water supply within 35 years, Dr. Samuel Buchan, geological authority, told the association.

"A general progressive lowering of the level of water in the underground reservoir of London has been taking place over a long period, but during the past few years the fall has become more marked," he reported.

"Unless the fall is checked, the reservoir will be exhausted in 35 years or so."

Quebec's Modest Shoemaker, Died in 1814 At Age Of 113, Oldest Man In the World

LONDON, Aug. 23 (CP).—Oldest man in the world, says Dr. Maurice Ernest, was Quebec's modest shoemaker, Pierre Joubert, who died in 1814.

Joubert, 113 years and 100 days old when he died, has gained considerable publicity here through publication of a claim from Ramonolwana Senan, an African Negro in Bechuanaland, who is believed to be 140.

Senan claims to remember a lot of things, including a ferocious battle in which he took part against Basutos in 1815. The old African says he was military tutor to Lobengula, the chief who opposed the northward expansion of British Africa by Cecil Rhodes.

Sir John Harris of the anti-slavery and aborigines protection society suggests that a scientific examination be made of the man's reputed age.

Dr. Ernst, founder of a centenarian's club and authority on old age, claims from examining a picture of Senan that the African is in "late middle age." He has offered £20 ($100) to anyone who can establish that the old fellow is as much as 120 and does not believe he is within 10 years of that great age.

Dr. Ernest pins his faith in old Pierre as the proven champion of the human races longevity, even though Pierre attracted attention by claiming he was only 105.

Conservative Party Convention On October 15 Is Blocked

TORONTO, Aug. 23.—Delayed by action of the executive of the Ontario Conservative Association yesterday, there will be no Ontario-wide convention of the party until late in the fall. Meeting in the Royal York Hotel, the executive decided that the suggested date of Oct. 15 was too early and that no further action would be taken until after a full executive meeting scheduled for Toronto on Sept. 12.

Apparently the executive as well as the rank and file is split on the question of a date, but the groups favoring a November or December meeting have so far emerged victorious.

The following official statement was issued after yesterday's meeting:

"In accordance with a resolution of the annual meeting of the Conservative Association held July 21, 1938, the executive at its first meeting today appointed the following to positions on the executive:

"Honorary President, James Sanderson, Oxford Station; Vice-Presidents, J. C. A. Sequin, K.C., Ottawa; Alfred Pitt, Dryden, Ont.; Mrs. Dr. J. A. Johnston, Carleton Place; Frank Forrestal, London; A. G. S. Griffin, Hamilton; Dr. J. P. Wells, Chapleau.

Would Avoid Conflict

"Consideration was then given to the recommendation submitted to the annual meeting that a Provincial convention be called on Oct. 15, 1938. It was the unanimous opinion of the members of the executive present that it would be impossible to organize and conduct a successful convention in the intervening time. As it is important that the convention should not conflict with anticipated Provincial and Dominion by-elections, which have not yet been called, the executive unanimously decided to defer the decision as to the date of the Provincial convention until Sept. 12, when a full meeting, both of these and of the executive elected July 12 and those appointed today will be called."

Member of Executive.

Attending yesterday afternoon's meeting were: Cecil Frost, President; Fred G. Gardner, Vice-President; Mrs. George Gooch, Vice-President; A. D. MacKenzie, Edra Sanders, Mrs. J. C. MacKay, Miss Marion Dixon, Hon. Earl Rowe, Hon. Leopold Macaulay, F. Beverly Matthews, Hon. G. S. Henry, John R. MacNicol, M.P., W. H. Ireland, S. H. S. Hughes, T. H. Stinson, K.C., Joseph E. Thompson, A. C. Casselman, K.C., Colonel Thomas Kidd, M.L.A., Mrs. George Cockshutt, J. W. Yorke and A. R. Douglas.

Purse-Snatcher Is Put To Flight

TORONTO, Aug. 23 — (CP) — A purse-snatcher clad in cream flannels and blue blazer was put to flight by the struggles and screams of a young woman early today as he made an unsuccessful attempt to grab her purse.

Miss Dorothy Falcon was walking home on Quebec Avenue when the youth approached. When he snatched at her purse, Miss Falcon held on firmly. When he hit her in the face, the girl screamed. Then the youth tried to smother the screams by putting his hand over her mouth. She bit him. The attention of neighbors, one of whom gave chase in his bare feet, scared the snatcher off.

Twelve New Bombers Bought By Canada For The Pacific Coast

Vancouver, Aug. 23.

HON. IAN MACKENZIE, National Defense Minister, announced Monday, twelve new Blackburn bombing planes would arrive here in about two weeks from England to augment the present number of planes at Jericho Station of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The Blackburn machines are fast seaplanes now in use in the Royal Air Force in Britain. Others are being built by Boeing Aircraft here for the R. C. A. F., Mr. Mackenzie said.

France Builds New Battleship

PARIS, Aug. 23—(AP)—The navy ministry announced today that Cesar Campinchi, minister of the navy, had ordered construction of a new 35,000-ton battleship. She will be named the Clemenceau, in honor of France's war-time premier, Georges Clemenceau.

She will be the third under construction in French shipyards. The battleships Richelieu and Jean Bart, both of 35,00 0tons, are nearing completion.

These ships are intended to match 35,000-ton battleships now under constructionin Italy and Germany. Italy launched two battleships in 1937 and announced two more would be built. Germany is believed to have three 35,000-ton fighting ships under construction.

Husband's "Extreme Kindness" To Wife Found the Cause of Marital Discord

Chicago, Aug. 23.

A HUSBAND'S "extreme kindness" toward his wife was cited today by a prominent alienist as one cause of the marital discord that led to the slaying of his love rival.

Rudolph Sikora, 34, the husband, was held by police after the death of Edward Solomon, 35, shot on a street corner yesterday.

At police headquarters Sikora said his wife, Margaret, 22, was "the perfect girl, the best wife a man could have." In turn Mrs. Sikora called him "a perfect husband" and "a model man" but one unable to make her happy.

"Because he was a person so easy to get along with," she explained, "I felt he was more like a brother than a husband. He used to clean the house, wash the dishes and do the shopping—woman's work. I rebelled against the extreme kindness."

Mrs. Sikora and Solomon worked at adjoining desks in a firm of accountants. The romance that came to them, said Dr. Hoffman, "is a risk that all husbands with office wives must take."

$750,000 In Forgotten Payroll For Tunnelling Company Is Claimed From Government

Canadian Tunnellers Who Quit Infantry Never Got Higher Rate

OTTAWA, Aug. 23—(CP).—Prospect of having to foot a long-forgotten war-time payroll that may exceed $750,000 in the aggregate confronts the government. Former members of the 3rd Canadian Tunnelling Company, residing for the most part in Cape Breton, insist that promises made to them with regard to tunneller's pay have never been fulfilled.

From November, 1915, until the armistice the men say they were working side by side with Imperial tunnellers who were paid 6 shillings a day. Not until after the war, when pay adjustments were made, did they realize the Canadian government had required them to do tunnelling work for ordinary infantry rate of pay—$1.10 a day, or four shillings and five pence. When they transferred to the tunnellers, they say, they did so on promises held out to them from their officers that they pay would be the same as that of the Imperial troops.

Executive officers of the Canadian Legion here haye been working on this problem for several years, assembling evidence, obtaining affidavits and searching the official records. The matter has now reached the stage when a comprehensive submission setting forth the men's side of the affair will be presented.

First Innings Is Declared With 903 Runs

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(CP Cable)—First stage of the record-smashing final test cricket match between England and Australia ended at the tea interval today when England declared its first innings with 903 runs for seven wickets, the highest total ever made in international competition.

The Englishmen required 15 hours to create the new innings record, 174 runs beter than the previous mark set by Australians at Lord's in 1930. Hero of the ingings, 22-year-old Leonard Hutton became the world's leading test match scorer with 364 runs.

Injuries robbed the invaders of Don Bradman, famous captain, and J. H. Fingleton and it is probable the former will be unable to participate

Chinese Is Licensed As Commercial Pilot To Study At Toronto 'U'

Moose Jaw, Aug. 23.

TOM WONG, cafe proprietor, today was believed to be the first Chinese to obtain his commercial pilot's license in Canada. He will leave in a few days to attend University of Toronto.

Farm Feudalism Threatens Rural Progress

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que., Aug. 23.—(CP).— A 20th century brand of feudalism appears to be looming on the agricultural horizon in the United States, Henry C. Taylor of the Farm Foundation in Chicago declared to-day in a paper prepared for submission to the fifth International Conference of Agricultural Economists.

Striving for security, Taylor said, the farmers are under a strong tendency to trade for it their long-possessed freedom. The urge may have in the making of a trend back to feudalism, he said, thought it would not be a return to any form of slavery.

"The whole farming program of the United States is more and more in the hands of special agents and less and less left to the will of farmers," the Chicagoan declared. "Thus there seems to be a passing of freedom to farm, with the hope of improvement in security of tenure and possibly an improvement in the incomes of working farmers."

Landlords Are Active.

Landlords were taking more interest in the management of the land. Insurance companies and other money lenders were beginning to exercise control over land on which they loaned money. Management companies supervised farms of absentee landlords. And on top of this there was the government's excursion into the field of economic planning and control.

Once, Taylor said, it was the American ideal that every farmer

Drillers Seeking Submarine Coal Strike Oil In Inverness Colliery

INVERNESS, N. S., Aug. 23—(CP)—Drillers seeking new submarine coal seams near here have struck oil and excitement ran high as colliers waited for more information from experts.

Mines Minister Michael Dwyer and Deputy Minister Mr. Alan Cameron confirmed reports oil had been found in a coarse sandstone formation when a drill penetrated 233 feet horizontally on the west diagonal level of No. 9 colliery, but cautioned against too much optimism. The oil was discovered 2,200 feet under sea level and nearly two miles from the mainland.

The drillers encountered the "drippies of oil last Saturday and a sufficient amount was recovered for samples before the hole was plugged up.

Mine manager Simpson expressed the belief the "dripple" was definitely petroleum and the Deputy Minister of Mines said the structure of the colliery was "all right" for oil.

While oil shale was know to exist in Nova Scotia, flowing oil had never been reported befcre. Water had been found with the oil and there was no evidence of gas. Latest reports said the flow of oil had stopped.

15-Year-Old Boy Unconscious Condition Rescued From Rocky Mountain Ledge

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 23.—(CP)—Four police officers early today rescued a 15-year-old boy from a rocky mountain ledge, where he had been lying unconscious for more than an hour. The boy was one of three who had fallen 30 feet over a cliff when they took a wrong path during the night.

Bruce Fortune, 15, Edwin O'Connor, 17, and Fred Kelsey, 15, were returning from a mountain Sanatorium shortly before last midnight when they toppled over a cliff at Chedoke Falls on the western outskirts of Hamilton. The Fortune boy was knocked unconscious in the fall and suffered possible skull injuries.

The two other boys crept dazedly to the side of their chum. Realizing it would be too risky to carry him from the spot in the darknes sthey groped their way down the steep bank and flagged a motorist for a drive to Hamilton. When police reached the cliff they found the unconscious boy had not even moved.

The officers took turns in carrying him on their back along the uncertain trail to safety, finally reaching the creek bed. The boy, suffering also from severe scalp lacerations, was rushed to a waiting ambulance and taken to hospital here. O'Connor and Kelsey suffered multiple bruises and abrasions.

Unable at once to find the path they had taken in the belief it was a short cut, O'Connor, Kelsey and the police officers searched for an hour before they found the ledge where Fortune was lying.

Hungary Is Given Right To Arm

Military Clauses In Trianon Treaty Are Swept Aside

BLED Yugoslavia Aug. 23 (AP).—The Little Entente swept away the military clauses of a Great War treaty today and gave Hungary the right to rearm "in the interest of peace."

The three nations—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia—agreed to abrogate arms restrictions in the Trianon treaty and grant military equality to Hungary.

The action followed a similar move by the Balkan entente, which includes Rumania and Yugoslavia, on July 30 wiping out military clauses of the treaty of Neuilly which limited Bulgaria's rearmament.

Three Day Conference

Dr. Milan Stoyadinovitch, premier and foreign minister of Yugoslavia, made the announcement at the close of a three-day conference of little Entente foreign ministers.

He said the principle of an understanding had been reached with Hungary also on bilateral non-aggression pacts and minority problem details which would be negotiated between Hungary and the three nations individually.

Conversations on Danubian navigation, he said, would be discussed in Belgrade "in the fall."

A formal communique expressed satisfaction over improvement of the international situation in Europe, particularly between the little entente countries and their neighbors.

The communique contained references to the League of Nations which observers considered slightly critical, but there was no indication the states contemplated a break with the League.

Yugoslav sources said Germany, now trying to extend her influence into southeastern Europe, was annoyed at Italy's alleged efforts to gain supremacy in the Danube basin.

Petrescu Comnen, Rumania's foreign minister, was reported due in Rome in the near future to conclude a friendship accord with Italy similar to the five-year treaty signed by Italy and Yugoslavia last October.

Regent On German Visit.

The action of the little entente came while the Hungarian regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, and other high Hungarian officials were on a visit of state to Germany.

Official Nazi utterances and the German press have given every indication that Chancellor Hitler is seeking to convince Hungary it would be to her advantage to have Germany as one of her best friends.

The Trianon Treaty, to be revised as a result of today's agreement, was signed by the Allied and Associated powers and Hungary on June 4, 1920. Although it recognized Hungary's independence from Austria, the pact long has been a sore spot because it limited Hungary's army to 35,000.

The Balkan entent states—Greece, Turkey, Rumania and Yugoslavia — on July 30 cancelled similar limitations placed upon Bulgaria by the post-war treaty of Neuilly.

The Trianon Treaty reduced Hungary's population from 10,500,000 to 7,500,000 by ceding territory to Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia. This created minority problems which still have to be settled.

Italy Commences Census Of Jews

Questionnaires more than a yard long were distributed to all Jews and "suspected Jews" with the admonition that there would be severe penalties for those evading the census or giving false information.

Since the Count included all Jews in Italy as of midnight last night, foreign Jewish tourists were among those given questionnaires.

In Rome, police distributed to hotel porters and apartment house janitors with list of "suspected Jews" in each place.

"Suspected Jews" were compelled to state whether the suspicion they were Jews was erroneous. Some of them proved to be Germans with names resembling Jewish names.

Information asked included names, ages, addresses of all members of the family, parentage, profession, citizenship, religion, date of arrival in Italy and war service.

Czech Fate Discussed By Hitler

Heavily Fortified Heligoland Is Inspected By Leaders

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

KIEL, Germany, Aug. 23—(AP).—Czechoslovakia's fate was listed as one of the chief conversational topics between Chancellor Hitler and Admiral Nicholas Horthy to-day, as the German and Hungarian leaders went to inspect heavily fortified Heligoland.

Informed Nazi quarters said the two statesmen saw eye to eye on the problem, the "satisfactory" solution of which might enable Hungary to grant Hitler and Premier Mussolini of Italy their wish for an Hungarian-Yugoslav reconciliation.

These sources said Hungary would like the autonomy of Hungarians in Czechoslovakia, if not their return to Hungary, just as Hitler wants the autonomy or return of 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

It was said that should this come to pass for Hungary, that country might forget revisionist demands—growing out of the post-war Trianon peace treaty which took away a third of her 10,500,000 population—on sections now belonging to Yugoslavia.

Increase Exports.

Another subject for discussion among Hitler, Horthy and other officials, including Premier Bela Imredi and Foreign Minister Kolomon Von Kanya of Hungary, was the question of how to increase German exports to Hungary so as to enable Hungary to send more wheat and other agricultural products to Germany.

Hungarian sources said Germany owes Hungary 24,000,000 marks ($9,600,000) and can pay only with deliveries of manufactured goods which Hungary, as a predominatly farming country, cannot absorb in sufficiently large quantities.

Germany, in her apparent desire to dominate the Balkan countries economically, is hard put to it to find enough industrial products to make her Hungary's most desirable trade partner.

Although the martial note was dominant to-day—as it was yesterday when Germany's naval strength was paraded before the visitors—informed Nazi circles said there was little likelihood any new German-Hungarian military agreement would result.

Clarence Lakner To Direct Dairying

OTTAWA, Aug. 23—(CP).—Appointment of Clarence Lakner as Director of Dairying for the Ontario Agriculture Department will be announced officially from Toronto following the next meeting of the Provincial Cabinet, The Ottawa Journal said yesterday, in a news-page story.

Mr. Lakner will replace George H. Barr, veteran director of the branch, whose retirement has been expected for some time as he has reached the age limit and now is eligible for superannuation, The Journal added.

Connected with the Provincial Dairy Branch for the past 20 years, Mr. Lakner served as a creamery instructor in Western Ontario during the past year.

Apple Tree Bears Fruit And Blossom In Same Season

Hastings, Aug. 23.

DUE TO THE heavy showers unusual growth have been reported in this district, also some freaks of nature.

Mr. Wm. Whitred of Percy township has an apple tree bearing fruit of good quality and at the same time the tree is in blossom.

Mr. Gordon Fox who resides just out of the village noticed on Thursday twelve well developed green raspberries growing on this year's new sprout.

Cucumbers and pumpkins are showing extraordinary growth and are bearing in abundance, the vines climbing over fences and up corn stalks and trees.

One farmer has a large pumpkin almost yellow in color hanging from a tree a distance of eight feet from the ground.

Thieves Enter Bethany Store

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Aug. 23. — Thieves broke through a screened window at the store of R. W. Price here recently and carried off a cash register and a quantity of food and cigarettes.

The owner notified Lindsay police and an investigation located the cash register and billing system in a ditch some distance from the scene of the break-in, and near Lindsay. Good progess is being made on the case and an early arrest is expected.

Regular members of the horseshoe pitching fraternity noticed a man stealing a set of shoes from near the pitch at the Bank of Toronto and immediately stopped him, but the man explained he had only wished to borrow the shoes for a Sunday game.

Chinese Plan Big Defensive

SHANGHAI, Aug. 23. —(AP).—One million soldiers and 200,000 civilians were reported mobilized today to protect the Hankow area should the Japanese break the deadlock that has kept them 110 miles from the provisional Chinese capital for nearly a month.

The Chinese civilians were being trained in behind-the-lines duties. Included were 60,000 ricksha pullers who would become a troop transport corps.

Chinese newspapers which reported these details said women were being given important roles as nurses and military aids. A women's corps was being trained as medical workers in the front lines. Many college graduates, members of leading Chinese families, were said to be among the corps members.

The Chinese maintained the invaders landed on the west shores of Poyang but were clinging to a mere foothold on the water's edge under withering Chinese fire.

The Japanese thrust toward Nanchang, Chinese air base about 225 miles south of Hankow, was described as "far from a reality" in Chinese dispatches, which added Japanese progress on the east shore of Poyang was "small and unimportant."

OBITUARY

INJURED TWICE IN TWO DAYS

Norman Hays, Otonabee township farmer had two unusual mishaps in as many days. First he was bitten on the leg by a farmer's dog at Fraserville when his wagon became mired in a lane and his shouts at the horses as he pushed on the wagon excited the dog which promptly charged and bit him on the calf. The folowing day a wasp flew into the truck cab in which he was riding and stung him on the left leg. Neither injury was sufficient to lay him up but caused him considerable discomfort.

MARY ANN ADAMS

The death of Mary Ann Adams, lifelong resident of the Lakefield district, died at her home on Clementi street, Lakefield, on Monday after a long illness.

She was a resident of Lakefield village for the past 35 years and was prominently associated with its social life. She was a member of the Agricultural Society and of the Agricultural Institute, and of the Presbyterian Church. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William A. Adams.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock standard time, Rev. W. B. Walker officiating. Interment will be at Lakefield Cemetery.

Making Cloth Frim Skim Milk Keeps Them Busy

Earl O. Whittier, of the United States department of agriculture pours casin, a by-product of skim milk, into the machine which he and Stephen P. Gould invented to change the by-product into synthetic wool. Miss Lucille Profe stands by, holding in one hand the finished article, looking very much like a tailor's sample of cloth, and in the other some wool fibre in a container. European countries have produced this wool-like material from skim milk, also, and it is used principally in the manufacture of men's suits and women's coats. The Americans, however, claim they use a different process from that developed in Europe.

Communists' Social Theory Termed Complete Illusion

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP).—The United States House of Representatives committee investigating un-American activities decided today to split into three groups and shift its inquiry from Communism to Fascist and Nazi organizations.

Chairman Dies (Dem.-Texas) announced public hearings would be recessed after today's session. He said a sub-committee of four headed by Representative Starnes (Dem-Alabama) would go to New York for a preliminary examination of material gathered for the new phase of the inquiry. Other sub-committees will work on the west coast and in the midwest.

Dies said the committee intended to "give as much time and attention to the Fascists and Nazis as we gave to the Communists." He added that hearings probably would not be resumed in Washington until December.

The full committee heard testimony yesterday from Dr. J. B. Matthews, a former leader in communistic activities. He said United States Communists were seeking to grasp power by bringing about an economic collapse and then would "slaughter reactionary property holders and idealistic believers in democracy and civil liberties."

Matthews said he slowly became disillusioned after years of work for Communists. He termed their social theory "the most complete illusion ever born in the human brain."

He mentioned one probable phase to be studied by the committee's west coast group when he declared:

German Claims Are Denied

LONDON, Aug. 23 (CP Cable).—The foreign office today denied German claims that Captain Thomas Kendrick confessed to espionage while held by the Gestapo (secret police) for three days at the Hotel Metropole in Vienna.

The former British passport officer in Vienna landed at Croydon airport last night and made contacts with the foreign office but has not made any report yet on his detention.

Meanwhile it was learned the German foreign ministry has sent no details to back up its charge against Captain Kendrick and it is unlikely that Great Britain will press the matter.

When Captain Kendrick was first arrested and taken to the hotel, the Gestapo headquarters for the former Austria, the British government demanded a "full and speedy explanation." But now he has been released and is outside of Germany an explanation is not so vital.

Plane Slashes Pole Pilot Is Uninjured

BALA, Ont., Aug. 23 — (CP). — Pilot Sam Coffler of Rouyn, Que., escaped without injury on Sunday when a monoplane he was piloting crashed into Hydro wires streching across the Moon River here. Coffler managed to bring his plane down on the water right side up, and boats towed the plane to shore.

The accident happened just after the take-off. Coffler, noticing he was heading for Hydro wires, attempted to dive under, but struck other wires. The propellor was torn off, one strut torn loose, and the gasoline tank punctured. Bala, about 110 miles north of Toronto, was left without power for several house because of broken Hydro wires.

The plane did not catch fire although covered with gasoline. Coffler, flying the ship for Philip Dunkleman of Rouyn, also was drenched with gasoline. The accident occurred about two miles from Bala, and near a Hydro power plant now under construction.

Conference in Ottawa, the United Kingdom wheat markets were free to the world. At that conference the United Kingdom delegation agreed to ask the British parliament to put a tariff on all wheat from foreign countries of two shillings a quarter (eight bushels), roughly six cents a bushel, and allow Empire wheat to continue to enter free. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett at that time was said to have been largely responsible for the British delegation agreeing to this proposal.

The British Parliament later made good the delegation's undertaking and an impost of two shillings a quarter was imposed on all wheat from foreign countries with the provision the duties might be removed at any time the Empire countries were unable or unwilling to supply wheat to the United Kingdom at world prices.

Shipment Switched.

In order to be sure what was empire and what was foreign wheat, the customs authorities in Britain prepared regulations whch provided that only wheat with through bills of lading from an empire country to a British port would be admitted free. This was done it was explained, to insure that only Canadian wheat from North America came in free.

This had the tendency of switching Canadian wheat which usually went by New York and New England States ports for Liverpool, to Montreal, Quebec, Saint John and Halifax because of the difficulty of proving to the satisfaction of British customs officials that Canadian wheat arriving from a U. S. port was from Canada.

Should United States' wheat be allowed to enter United Kingdom markets free, on the same basis as Canadian wheat, there will be no necessity to earmark Canadian wheat, it is expected, and it will flow to the U. K. markets by the most economical and most convenient route. Buffalo shipping interests have frequently protested aganst the damage it was claimed was done that trans-shipping port by the preference routing wheat away from New York.

On Aug. 3 rumours that Britain might put United States' wheat on the free lists had evidently reached Winnipeg, for the grain exchange in that city went on record as urging the government to oppose the loss of preference for Canadian wheat particularly this year when Canada's surplus would be large and the world demand uncertain.

Miner Suffers Fractured Skull

GERALDTON, Ont., Aug. 23—(CP)—Osborne Berg, 35, a miner, employed with the Hard Rock Gold Mines, died in hospital here today as a result of injuries received when struck by a car driven by Arnold Reid. Berg suffered a fractured skull.

He was crossing the road to get his bicycle to go to his bunkhouse after work at 3 a.m., and apparently did not hear the car till it was near him. He was thrown approximately 40 feet, landing on a pile of rock.

should own the land he tilled. Now, from this thought of freedom "the people of the United States have apparently turned aside."

He spoke to about 400 delegates from 19 countries, here for a week's consideration of farm problems.

C. Von Dietzf, German delegate, criticized Russia's system of collective farming, declaring agriculture in the Soviet was lagging "noticeably" behind that of other countries. There, to, he said, the peasant had become a "dependent conscript worker."

Throughout the world, he said, far-reaching measures for improving farm produce prices were moving toward the combination of producers into compulsory syndicates. This implied "an important restriction" of their power to dispose of the product, whether the boards regulating the market were created by the vote of those interested or by the disposition of authority.

Single Stook Of Oats Is Burned By Lightning On Garbutt Farm

Lakefield, Aug. 23.

HARRY GARBUTT reports a phenomenon of lightning on his farm along the Douro-Dummer boundary during Sunday afternoon's storm. A single stook of oats was struck and broke into flames, but the others clustered around it were untouched. A neighbor seeing the smoke rising from the burning stook called Mr. Garbutt who arrived in time to remove the other stooks from the fringe of flame. They were about 200 yards from the barn.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 23 (C.P.). — Winnipeg Grain Exchange pit to-day was empty most of the time, and the small amount of business transacted failed to steer prices on a definite course. Final values were ⅛ to ¼ lower, October 67⅛, November 67½, December 66⅞, and May 70.

Fractional advances in United States wheat futures accounted for steadiness here in the last half of the session. At the start, values sagged ½ cent in sympathy with Liverpool setbacks.

A minor export demand was reported and the scattered orders generally offset light offerings. Offerings in the cash wheat market, however, were liberal and Nos. 1 and 2 Northern spreads eased about a cent. Durum cash prices were unchanged, with only an odd-lot business reported.

French Studying Building Of Planes In Canada

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(CP-Havas)—Authoritative quarters today denied the French government had already purchased land in the Montreal district for establishment of a military aircraft factory in Canada.

It was tacitly admitted representatives of the French aviation industry were studying the possibility of cooperating with British aircraft manufacturers for the establishment of factories in Canada which might be converted into military aircraft plants in case of necessity.

Negotiations still are in a preliminary stage and actual drawing up of contracts for a factory site is not expected for several months at the earliest, it was said.

There's No Excuse for Writing Dull Letters

"Trash," says Polly, crumpling her third attempt at a gay, charming letter. It's too dull!

Worry spoils Polly's letters. She stews about what to say. After racking her brain furiously she writes, "I can't think of anything special to tell you."

It isn't world-shaking news that makes a letter charming, Polly. It's what you're thinking, what you're reading, what you have done—no matter how trivial—what you plan to do!

Fear of misspelling, of using wrong salutations, closings, address forms crushes your natural gaiety. Airy self-confidence comes of knowing the simple formalities of good letter-writing.

Our 32-page booklet gives tips on writing letters that show you at your best. Helpful samples of invitations and answers, thank-you's, bread-and-butter notes, congratulations, letters of sympathy, applications for positions. Letters for all occasions.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of GOOD LETTER-WRITING MADE EASY to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Turner—Abernethy

A wedding of interest to Hastings residents took place at Trinity United Church parsonage recently, when Patricia Violet Ruth, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Abernethy, Campbellford, became the bride of Arthur Albert Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turner, Hastings.

The young couple were attended by Miss Lola Denning of Toronto, and Mr. Jack Hennessey of Hastings.

Following a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Turner will live at Penetanguishene.

We Noticed

. . . on George street . . . someone wearing a buttoned-down-the-front shirtwaist dress of pure white, which showed off a fine suntan, and the brilliantly colored woven straw belt. Her hat was poke-shaped, of smooth straw, and white.

◇ ◇ ◇

. . . another shirt-waist dress was made of dotted pink cotton. With it was worn white accessories, and the smart young wearer carried a large handbag of pink linen with ivory handles.

◇ ◇ ◇

. . . very chic also was a dirndl-style dress of grey hop-sacking cleverly cross-stitched in red. . . . red fabric shoes added a gay touch of color, and the hand bag of grey was cross stitched in matching pattern.

Mothers Who Are Compelled By Circumstances To Live With Their Married Children Have A Doubly Hard Time And Need To Exercise Utmost Diplomacy

DEAR MISS DIX—In this day and time, when so many young and old people are having to live in the homes of others, will you not say something kind about the old mothers and fathers? No doubt some of them are trouble-makers, but so are some young people. I happen to be a mother-in-law who has to live in the home of an only son. I have lost everything but him, and he cannot help me other than to have me share his home. I would be happy in my own home if I had one. No doubt they would prefer to be just alone. But what can we do? I try to be kind and considerate and helpful to his wife. It is a situation whereby we can all cultivate being unselfish. A READER.

Answer:

When I write of the danger of a mother going to live with her married children, I am thinking far more of her than I am of them, because hers is the greater tragedy if things go wrong. The young have their lives before them and their multitudes of interests, while the mother has nothing left but her child, and if she is alienated from it she is poor indeed.

There is no more pathetic figure than that of the woman who lives with her married children. For forty years she has been at the head of her own house, the supreme authority, the she-who-must-be-obeyed. Now she finds herself in another woman's house with her mildest suggestion regarded as interference. For years and years she has been busy, the days not long enough in which to finish her work. Now she finds herself with idle hands, with nothing to do but kill time. In her own community she was a personage of importance. In her son's or daughter's house she is merely John's or Mary's mother.

Strangely enough her own child is changed. She still thinks of John and Mary as little children who must obey her and now she finds that she must obey them. Their ways are not the ways she taught them. They don't cook the way she cooked, or rear their children the way she reared them, and they laugh at her advice instead of taking it.

And Mother finds that if she is not to be a firebrand in her children's home she has to be a rubber stamp. She has to efface herself as much as possible. She has to bite her tongue off before making a suggestion. She has to sit on her hands to keep her fingers out of their pies. She has to see bungling amateurs mess up the jobs that her experience has qualified her to handle as an expert.

This is maddening, and it is no wonder that few women have sufficient self-control to keep silence when they are just boiling over with things that they are dying to say about son-in-law's personal habits, or the way daughter-in-law cooks, or that they fail to realize that their children do not belong to them as much after marriage as they did before.

It is because two generations always look at everything from a different point of view and there are bound to be clashes between them that it is unfortunate for mothers to have to live with their married children, but frequently this cannot be helped, and then it is up to both parties to make mutual concessions and meet the situation with good will and unselfishness and kindness. For not all mother-in-laws are a curse upon a house. Often they are a benediction. Often their gentleness is the oil poured upon the troubled waters of family life. Often their wisdom is a star to steer by.

All of us have been in homes in which there was an old woman who was looked up to with reverence and affection not only by her own child but by a son-in-law or daughter-in-law. To her quiet room they came for counsel in their perplexities. To her the adolescent girls and boys came with their confidences. Little children wept out their sorrows on her breast and babes were cradled in her arms. And when Mother's chair at last was empty every one mourned the passing of the household angel.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been going steadily with a young man for more than two years. It is mutually understood that as soon as he is making enough money we are to be married. Some time ago he was out of work and had a chance to make a living if he had a certain sum of money with which to get started. I advanced him the necessary sum. He is gradually getting on his feet, but he will not be able to repay me for some time yet. Do you think it is quite fair for this man to take other girls out to places of amusement and spend money on them before he has repaid me? I do no want to be small about a thing like this. A B. C.

Answer:

It is the hardest thing in the world for a woman to help a man with money without incurring his dislike. The old proverb that says "when you lend money to a friend you lose both your friend and your money" goes double when a woman is the lender.

I do not know why there should be something deadly in money when it passes from a woman's hands to a man's, but there is. A man will let a woman nurse him when he is sick; he will let her cook for him and wash for him and wait on him hand and foot; he will go to her for sympathy when he is in trouble; he will take her time and her labor and love her for it, but the minute he takes money from her he hates her.

Perhaps it is because it humiliates him to have to acknowledge that he is less successful than she is, less competent. Perhaps it is because he can't puff out his chest and take a lordly pose before the woman to whom he owes money. However it is, it is there, no matter how generous the woman is about it.

I think that explains why your boy friend is taking out other girls on what is virtually your money. He has to have some woman to look up to him and think he is Napoleon of finance. When he blows these girls to a good time he inflates his self-esteem, and he couldn't do that with you.

No doubt you will get your money back, but I greatly fear you have lost your sweetheart.

Carmelita Crowley Is Bride of To-day

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a lovely summer wedding this morning (Tuesday) at eight o'clock, when Carmelita Cecilia Crowley, daughter of Mrs. Catharine Crowley and the late Thomas F. Crowley, was united in marriage to Roy H. Young of Brantford, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Young. Rev. E. Welsh performed the wedding ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

The bride's niece, Miss Alma Duffy, A.T.C.M., was organist, and Mrs. D. Campanaro sang Millard's "Ave Maria" and other hymns during the Mass and signing of the register.

To the strain of Lohengrin's wedding march the bride, who was given in marirage by her brother, Mr. Aubrey Crowley, entered the church, charming in a lovely gown of ivory satin made on princess lines. An embroidered net shoulder length veil fell gracefully from a small white turban, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white lilies.

The bride was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Vincent Crowley, whose gown was of cerise taffeta with matching turban and accessories. She carried a bouquet of talisman roses.

Mr. Vincent Crowley, brother of the bride, was best man, and Mr. Harold Crowley, brother of the bride, acted as usher.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, 493 Gilmour street.

Later the young couple left on a motor trip to Cleveland, Ohio, the bride wearing a smart costume of sand canton crepe with brown accessories. On their return they will live in Brantford.

Presentation Made To Carmel Girl

About forty of the Carmel young people and their friends met recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Puffer, Clarina, to honor Miss Lavinia Whetung, who is leaving for Toronto to take up a course of study in the Bible College there. Miss Whetung has been president of the Carmel Young People's League for the past two years.

The presentation of an electric study lamp was presented to Miss Whetung by Miss Norma Crowe, and an address from the members of the Carmel Young People's Society, expressing their appreciation of Miss Whetung's work, and wishing her the best of success in her new line of endeavor, was read by Miss Mildred Puffer.

During the evening music and games were enjoyed, and refreshments served.

Showers Compliment September Bride-Elect

Complimenting Miss Grady, whose marriage to Mr. Roy Bacon is arranged for September, a kitchen and breakfast room shower was given recently at the home of Mrs. Jack Steinkrauss, 231 King Street. Miss Joan McIlmoyle of Detroit presented the gifts, to the bride-elect, which were piled in a basket decorated in pink and white.

The evening passed pleasantly in bingo and other games, and refreshments were served by the hostess.

Monday evening of this week Miss Grady was again honored, when the girls of her bridge club met at the home of Miss Grace Shaughnessy, Haggart Street, and presented her with a handsome table lamp. Bridge was played during the evening, and a buffet luncheon served.

Fashions

Schoolgirls will be as happy as a lark to wear this smart cotton print dress for first school days. It copies the grown-up mode in its trim fitted line. Note the brevity of the bolero jacket. The white pique Peter Pan collar and sleeve cuffs, add neat trim. A clan plaid cotton woollen is another popular idea. With the same pattern, daughter can have quite a different dress with square neckline. If she wants it for Sunday school, how about a washable rayon crepe silk? Finish the neck and sleeves with a crisp white organdy frill. It would be nice, too, in velveteen. It's so simple, daughter could easily sew it herself. Complete step-by-step instructions accompany the pattern.

Style No. 2932 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 39-inch material with ½ yard of 39-inch contrasting material.

Summer Showers

New summer mackintoshes are deceptive. From a few yards they look like flimsy coats of chiffon. They are actually made of thin, transparent oil-silk in almost any color from the plum and cyclamen shades of the moment to white. A little "brownie" cap of the same oil-silk looks like a careless kerchief tied over the hair to keep the curls in place. Small oil-silk umbrellas match the macs. and caps.

The Place For Him

When one watches news day after day it becomes a habit to make a sort of mental and unspoken and often unwritten comment about what is taking place. It often happens that way when people run foul of the law and receive sentences. Sometimes there appear to have been circumstances which in themselves were so formidable that the offender could hardly have escaped the doing of the wrong charged against him. Perhaps one's feeling can be pressed into words "tough luck" or something like that. The desire is to apologize for the offender.

There was a case in Wakerton a few days ago where no feeling of sympathy could exist for the accused. Laurence Dupuis of Windsor was charged with having secured $10 from a number of persons he had met in Bruce county. He made it appear he was the person who could place men in automobile plants at Detroit and those with whom he dealt were jobless folk, most of whom had trouble enough in scraping up the $10 which he collected. He had no jobs to give out, and evidence produced in court showed he had been in the same sort of business before.

Dupuis was sent to jail and the feeling produced by such a sentence is that jail is the proper place for him. Hard labor would have been acceptable. There is something so entirely and altogether miserable about his offence that one feels the country would be well rid of him if he were to leave.

It may be the people with whom he dealt should have known they could not as Canadians cross the border and secure work in Detroit, but in that event the Windsor man was playing on the ignorance of his victims as well as their desire to work. The normal red-blooded individual would gladly assist any individual in finding a place of employment; he would consider it an opportunity to do a good turn. There is something deeply wrong with the individual who is ready to turn a man's desire and need for work into a channel of fraud and to take from him that which he so meagrely possesses—money. When one reads of such a person being sent to jail there is something in him which makes him involuntarily say "fine—just the place for him."

Honoring The Pioneers

A service which was as unusual as it was excellent in its idea was held at Arva, a corner settlement a short distance north of London, Ont. The purpose was to honor the memory of the pioneers who had lived in that district, many of whom are buried in the little cemetery, the burying ground being over a century old.

Prior to the service in which the entire community joined, the graves of the pioneers were decorated, and the whole trend of events prior to and during the service was evidently for the purpose of showing that the folk of the community were recalling the worthy memory of those who had first settled there.

It seems right enough that something like that should be done now and then; it knits the present with the past and also puts honorable emphasis where it can be rightly placed. A place where such a tradition is established is going to be richer for having it. We have little enough of what we call age in this young country and the building of tradition and fond association comes only with the passing of years and of generations. We think the people of Arva did well to hold such a service, and there is a seed of kindly remembrance there which might well be planted and nourished in soil elsewhere.

No Heed To Warning

When a coroner's jury was reporting on the fifth death by drowning in Rouge Creek, a short distance east of Toronto, the recommendation was made that the beaches there be closed until such time as life-saving equipment was installed.

It is a popular summer resort but the creek is a treacherous place. Good swimmers who know it well say there are deep holes at many places and they occur at the most unexpected spots, and for that reason it is a dangerous place even for a fairly good swimmer who might be surprised were he to expect he had come into fairly shallow water.

There have been signs put up at several points telling people that it is dangerous.

There are no life guards and there is no life-saving equipment.

There have been five people drowned there this season.

And yet people are using the place for bathing pretty much the same as ever. All of which causes one to wonder if it is much use warning people of danger when they will pay no attention to the warning.

Want $1 For Wheat

Frank Eliason of Saskatoon, secretary of the Saskatoon branch of the United Farmers of Canada, makes the suggestion that there should be what he terms "a farmers' holiday" until such time as the Wheat Board makes the price of wheat $1 per bushel. Mr. Eliason says the price of 80 cents for No. 1 Northern at Fort William is about the same as paying 50 cents at local elevators. In a letter which he has forwarded to all the local U.F.C. secretaries he also mentions that the report made by experts at the University of Saskatchewan named $1.05 as the price which was needed to make grain growing profitable.

There can be no question about the $1.05 figure having been named by the Western University; that was referred to several times in debates in the House of Commons. The figure was arrived at after a careful study of all the costs entering the production of wheat and was also generally accepted as being scientifically correct.

If it were possible for Mr. Eliason to bring all the wheat farmers of the world to the point of doing what he suggests then the price could undoubtedly be raised. But wheat is a world product and if the farmers of Western Canada declined to make sales then there would be farmers by the thousands elsewhere who would be releasing their wheat to the world markets at prices set in Liverpool.

If the wheat growers of the West declined to sell their wheat at the guaranteed price offered by the Wheat Board then the farmers themselves would merely have to assume the risk involved of holding their produce in anticipation of a higher price later on.

Apart from the selling end of the business the situation reveals something like futility in the business of cost-finding of wheat production. There has been a good deal of it done right here in Ontario at one time or another, and we have no doubt that the method used to produce the $1.05 per bushel figure at the University of Saskatchewan was arrived at after careful study and much checking as it would be known in advance that the figure would be much quoted and would have to bear examination. The value of such a figure would be in its power to suggest that wheat would not be a profitable crop unless such a price could be secured, but as a factor in selling the known cost-price is far removed from being a determining force. The world wheat markets know accurately exactly what is taking place the world over; they know how much wheat is in sight every day and what deliveries will be. If there is much in sight the price weakens; if there is an apparent shortage then prices increase. It is just possible that the Liverpool market has never heard of the $1.05 cost price for Saskatchewan wheat and if it did possess that information it would not be incorporated or reflected in the market price for wheat.

Not At All Fair

There is apparently no limit to the number of interpretations which can be placed on the address made by President Roosevelt at Kingston. M. J. Coldwell, M.P. of Rosetown-Biggar, Sask., was addressing a mass meeting on Sunday afternoon near Oshawa where the C.C.F. Youth Movement summer school has been in session. Mr. Coldwell was ready to welcome the statement of President Roosevelt that United States would not stand idly by if Canada were threatened, and then he added:

"But that statement conveyed the warning that if we are going to receive the friendly protection of the United States then we must not jeopardize the peace of North America by participating in a war to protect the policies of Neville Chamberlain."

By what process of reasoning Mr. Coldwell produced that result we do not know. We admit that we read Mr. Roosevelt's address rather carefully but found nothing in any place by which there were any stipulations attached to what Canada should or should not do to retain the protective friendship of the republic to the South. Before making his all-important statement Mr. Roosevelt very carefully grouped Canada with the sister nations of the British Empire.

Nor is there any justification in referring to wars which will be inaugurated to protect the policies of Neville Chamberlain. If there is one man in public life today who has exhibited tolerance and patience and charity toward war-like nations it is the same Premier Chamberlain. His own people in Britain have jeered him because he refused to take action or countenance action which might have led on toward war. He has taken his political life in his hands in order that he might make yet another effort to preserve what measure of peace remains in the world. If we seek for an interpreter of the Roosevelt address we shall have to look elsewhere than toward Mr. M. J. Coldwell, M.P.

He Is Looking For Work

There was a caller at the Examiner office, and he said he was looking for a job. He had been trying along the road between Lindsay and this city but could find no farmer who was in need of one, so he had come on to this city. He had been to several places to see if there was a chance to balance books or do some work of that kind, but he had not yet found any opening. He went on with his story, telling that he was born in England and as a boy worked in a broker's office where it was found he had a peculiar aptitude for the retention of figures and he was able to add and multiply large figures without the use of pencil or paper.

One becomes accustomed to hearing strange tales from some of the people who drop into newspaper offices now and then, so a pencil and a pad of paper was handed to the visitor and he asked that we call out four figures to be multiplied by any other four figures. The ones given were 9768 to be multiplied by 6834 and the visitor took the pencil and wrote down the answer 66,754,512 with the same speed that one would write down figures at any time. The next problem was 95,783 to be multiplied by 47,634, and again the answer was written down 4,562,527,422.

By this time we admit a certain brain fag was making itself apparent, so a call was put through asking the accountant from downstairs to come up and find where the trick was or how we were being deceived, and in a short time multiplication was proceeding at an even greater speed and each answer was being proved by having the multiplication done in the ordthodox manner, but the answer of the man who had a short time before been looking for a chance to work a few days on a farm was always right. He said there were certain combinations in numbers and they came to him when he was a young lad. He had never made a study of them.

It was then that Charles Lacheur, the postmaster, came in and he had with him two young men, students of the University at Ann Arbor, Mich. They are having a good time riding bicycles through what they describe as about the finest district they have yet seen. The postmaster and the students were brought into the conference on figures and the visitor invited them to test his knowledge of addition. One young man who is studying law began calling off and then he asked his friend who is taking the arts course to go ahead and name some more. Between them they produced this array of figures:

79,453	47,861
21,434	85,965
97,653	79,642
47,568	71,285
94,573	96,274
21,496	34,628
35,893	81,795
27,864
	1,046,818

The answer to that was written down at the bottom with almost the same rapidity as the other figures in the various row after which it was checked and found to be correct. The visitor who was looking for a chance to find a job had served in the war; he had done a number of various kinds of work but apparently had never been able to make much use of his strange faculty. With a manner which apeared to be modest enough he made the suggestion that there were certain calculations he could make which were superior to anything which the calculating machines could do. And he had been along the road that day seeing if he could pick up a bit of work on a farm or elsewhere!

NOTE AND COMMENT

At Marion, Ill. a contest for the highest corn stalk brought forth an entry by Charles Guy which was 16 feet, 7 inches. Bill Angus of the Chatham News might mention this to his corn growers in Kent.

Man from Windsor was arrested after his car struck two parked machines, a concrete barrier and then a Hydro pole. The driver told police he had lost control of the machine, and it should be recorded in his favor that he was evidently telling the truth.

When the Exhibition was on in Peterborough a monkey attached to one of the shows bit a newspaper reporter on the leg. The monkey was watched closely for a while after that but at last reports it was stated he was likely to live.

Man in Kentucky has returned a ring ring which he stole 30 years ago, with a note saying his conscience bothered him. A conscience like that is good but it ought to have a self starter attached to it as it apparently takes too long in cranking to get it started.

LAMENT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The tickets that I hold on draws, seem filled with trouble and with flaws, on them my name I scrawl; but when they pull the numbers out, and folk begin to cheer and shout, I never win at all.

¶ If I'd won all the cars I've tried, I'd take the township for a ride, I'd make a lot of dates; I'd park them all around the jail, until I went to earn the kale, to buy the license plates.

¶ I'd tickets on a fancy quilt, upon a cabin they had built, likewise a suit of clothes; but when the winning number's called, I know my luck has quit and stalled, I stand with men with woes.

¶ I'd tickets on some dishes too, and they were fancy gold and blue, and they looked pretty fair; I'd tickets on a radio, a year's admission to the show, and on an easy chair.

¶ Bought tickets on a turkey big, more tickets on a weanling pig, got tickets on a race; the deacons called on me to say, the way I carried on each day, was just a plain disgrace.

¶ There is some trick that I don't know, I'm likely stupid now and slow, perhaps a little queer; but when they call the winners out, and all the people cheer and shout—my number's never near.

The Only Hope Of World Peace

(By Douglas Duggan, in the Argonaut, San Francisco.)

FEW MEN IN POST-WAR history have had to face the gruelling tasks of constructive statesmanship as has been the lot of Premier Neville Chamberlain. On the one hand, cruel criticism seeks to crucify his every effort toward peace: on the other hand is the wholly-unjustified charge that he "sacrificed" Anthony Eden "for a worn-out, fallacious foreign policy". Currently, the superficial and uninformed profess to a belief that Neville Chamberlain's career is about to be cut short because he has not proved himself a superman in solving the fundamental policy of "good neighborship" with Italy and Germany—at a moment when neither of these beserk dictators are in a mood to listen to reason.

It might be worthwhile in this trying situation to realize that history has ample precedent for doubting the recent prophecy of a well-known international journalist who asserted "His (Chamberlain's) resignation is widely regarded as inexitable if he fails to get sufficient concessions or if the negotiations (with Italy) break down."

Even if the foregoing prophecy is correct, even if the all-important negotiations between Great Britain and Italy fail, there should in all conscience be no victimization of the prime minister. Mr. Chamberlain, whether right or wrong in his policy, has with honesty, integrity and a wholehearted desire for peace, done what he firmly believed to be best in the interest of world peace. And, Roman history of two thousand years ago furnishes an intelligent precedent for the House of Commons to follow in the Chamberlain case—if he fails.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN THE YEAR 216 B.C. the Roman Consul, Caius Terentius Varro, was responsible for the loss of the entire Roman army in the battle of Cannae. He met an inglorious defeat at the hands of the Carthaginian Hannibal. The indictment of Varro was on the ground that he fought this battle contrary to the tactics of the great military strategist, Fabius Maximus Cunctator (the Anthony Eden of that day).

Nevertheless, although losing a major battle, the Roman Senate was not unmindful of a fundamental fact, namely, that Varro had done his best along the line of action which seemed to him at the time to serve the best interests of his country.

Therefore, on his return to Rome the vanquished soldier was accorded a special vote of thanks by the Roman Senate for "not despairing of the commonwealth." It is noteworthy, too, that Fabius was also restored to official favor.

Herein may lie a useful lesson for unthinking zealots who now clamor for the head of Chamberlain merely because his first steps on the pathway toward a genuine and righteous world peace have not resulted in immediate agreement with the aggressor. At no time in the history of the world more than now has it been true that the mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly fine.

The patience and tolerance of leaders like Neville Chamberlain hold the only hope for the final establishment of world peace. And no greater contribution to this cause can be made than the development of a tolerant, trusting attitude by would-be critics toward the self-sacrificing efforts of outstanding statesmen of the Chamberlain type.

BARN FIRES.

(Windsor Star)

TWO BARNS WERE burned in the Tillsonburg area late last week during threshing operations. They serve as a reminder to all farmers that care must be exercised during this season of the year.

Even though such losses may be covered or partially so by insurance, there is a loss which cannot be met by money. Any farmers would rather have his bins filled with grain, and ample feed for his livestock in a good barn than the money with which to replace the building and its contents. It is heartbreaking to see a summers work in grain go up in smoke, to say nothing of the barn itself, and it is no fun to have to start building again, even if the money is available to do so.

There cannot be too much caution around barns during the threshing season. The straw is as dry as tinder, and can be ignited by the smallest spark. Once a fire starts, it is next to impossible to subdue it, and it only becomes a matter of saving what machinery or other movables can be rushed out.

HOW TO BEAT THE RACES.

(New York World-Telegram)

MISS JUNE MARKS 28-year-old manager of a hosiery store at Kenosha, Wis., went to Chicago to see the horse races. In eight races she picked eight horses that had "pretty names." All eight horses won. Miss Marks, having bet on seven of them, collected $3,144 for the afternoon.

Word of that being spread around. Miss Marks was besieged by friends and others who thought she had discovered an unbeatable "system". So, obligingly, she picked eight more horses with pretty names in the next day's races. She didn't bet on them, but several thousand other people did. And not one of those eight horses ran first.

Now, many superstitious gamblers, still convinced that Miss Marks has a "system" to beat the race, believe that it's good only when she plays it herself. Well, she does have a "system" and it absolutely can't fail if she sticks to it. Here it is, in her own words:

"I'll never bet on another horse as long as I live."

A DRAW

Near midnight Mactavish telephoned his wife. "Dina wait up for me, Maggie; it looks like a deadlock."

• When the President Travels

(Detroit Free Press)

ASHORE OR AFLOAT the President travels in luxury and at considerable expense.

A 10,000-ton cruiser convoyed by a destroyer makes his deep-sea fishing excursions comfortable and spectacular.

The safety and comfort of the President and his party on their recent "swing around the circle" required weeks of preparation by the railway, telegraph and telephone companies.

The track and roadbed had to be inspected every foot of the way.

A duplicate train crew was put aboard for service in case of sickness or accidents among the regular crew.

All other train schedules had to be modified so as not to interfere with his itinerary.

When the President's train stops at a station for any length of time, adjacent tracks are cleared, and floodlights play upon its rear cars while guards keep an anxious lookout.

A pilot train runs ahead of the political express to make sure that the road is clear of traffic.

Wrecking crews line the entire route to be within easy summoning distance in case of mishap to the President's train and the $3,000 worth of radio broadcasting and public speaking apparatus in its baggage car.

• A Bear Meets With A Citizen

(Ottawa Journal)

IT WAS A BEAUTIFUL August night, the air bathed in warmth, when Mr. John Graham, an authority on gilt-edged bonds, set out for a stroll along one of the leafy avenues of Rockcliffe, Ottawa's swank suburb. At peace with the world, and the world at peace, Mr. Graham had no thought of adventure, expected to meet nothing more exciting than one of Rockcliffe's gregarious mosquitoes. In which he was wrong.

Mr. Graham met up with a bear. Or with what he thought was a bear. Upon just what a gentleman's behavior should be in such somewhat unusual circumstances, we are not prepared to speak definitely. Mr. Graham tells that he compromised with what we must assume was his first instinct (It most certainly would have been ours) by offering the bear his tobacco; an act of courtesy which (according to Mr. Graham) was singularly unsuccessful. Whether the bear didn't like Mr. Graham's particular smoking mixture, or was seized with some impulse less worthy, must be a matter of doubt; the actual occurrence, as it will go down in Rockcliffe archives, is that the bear made what Mr. Graham considered hastily, and in our opinion quite properly, unfriendly gestures; whereupon Mr. Graham turned homewards as speedily as possible.

Thereafter, as the story-tellers put it, the adventure thickens. The bear, having lost the race to Mr. Graham's home (though, as Mr. Graham tells it, only by a few lengths) proceeded to be a poor sport about it; acted as though he wished, for compensation, to have a night's lodgings, a wish which Mr. Graham, quite contrary to the mood of a good Samaritan, had no intention of gratifying. Instead, summoning to his aid all of Rockcliffe's police resources, Mr. Graham made what to him must have been the disconcerting discovery that one of his Rockcliffe neighbors kept a bear as a pet. The neighbor was none less than Mr. Alex Skelton, Secretary of the Rowell Royal Commission, a fact which, we haven't the least doubt, has already been noted by Mr. Kitchell Hepburn.

Well, to make a long story short, Mr. Alex Skelton was away from home looking after Confederation, whereupon Mr. Graham called upon Mr. Alex Skelton's father, none other than Doctor O. D. Skelton, our Under-Secretary of External Affairs and, to boot, the distinguished author of the "Life and Letters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier". Our Under-Secretary of State, just as we would expect, rose manfully to the occasion, and shortly thereafter, in the watches of Rockcliffe's night, the bear was being borne triumphantly back to captivity in Dr. Skelton's car and custody; the eminent author-diplomatist holding him in the rear seat as a measure of most thoughful but wholly valorous precaution. Our foreign policy, we may rest assured, is in good hands.

And then?

On Monday night Rockcliffe's municipal fathers, stirred deeply by the event which had come upon them, yet protected by nothing more (tell it not within Ottawa) than their customary mosquito nets, met and solemnly decreed a purge of Rockcliffe's bears. With steady hands they wrote a bylaw setting out that for the present and all time bears in Rockcliffe must go the way of gas stations and other things inconsistent with Rockcliffe's aspirations for tranquility.

Whether the bear has been served with a copy of the bylaw has not been stated.

LET ALL SEE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: If your paper rightly quotes Fire Chief Geo. Glmblett in planning a demonstration for buisness men with a new type of nozzle of radical design and used particularly in fighting oil fires. From the fact that all citizens are tax-payers some way or other contributing to a fund in which the Chief, his staff and equipment derive their support, I might further add there is no need to make class distinction in carrying out his proposed demonstration as he will find in the ranks of the working class people who, is equally intelligent and interested in his demonstration.

A BIGGER CHURN

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I would first like to ask for a space in your valuable paper for the following letter to the directors of the Peterborough Exhibition.

I have attended your fair for a number of years now, more so these last few when your board decided to give away cars that they might catch the public eye and they in return attend your fair not only for one night but as high as the whole four nights.

I for one bought enough tickets to attend the four nights. Having seen the size of the churn in which the tickets are kept, I cannot for the life of me see where it will hold 400,000 tickets, and when churned mix to any advantage. It would do well to hold the tickets that were distributed in Peterborough alone without the surrounding district and towns.

"Why is it that the churn is not kept in the public eye day for day until after the fair is over and turned at intervals." I would suggest that another year should your Fair Board decide to repeat the same as they have done in the past, it would be wise to find a churn three times the size of the present one, and place it in a convenient place so all may see it, and keep it churning all day long.

I might call your attention to two things I noticed in particular, one happened on Wednesday night, when the truck bearing the churn drove up in front of the grandstand the ticket was drawn before the churn turned once, then on Saturday night I noticed the churn was turned before the first ticket were drawn, and after, but the one remark that interested me the most was that of an official when nobody was there to claim the car, he said that he was sure that, that ticket lay in Peterborough.

Thank your paper for its valuable space, and looking forward to other people's opinions on this matter.

FAIR PLAY.

NEWSPAPER COSTS.

(London Star)

THE ECONOMIC side of the newspaper publishing business contains difficulties that are not appreciated by the general public. A newspaper in this day and age has expenses that were undreamed of a decade or so ago. The result has been an appalling newspaper mortality from coast to coast, in both Canada and the United States. More people are reading newspapers today then ever before. It is the cost of producing them, of providing the expensive services the public has come to expect, that puts gray hairs into the heads of publishers and causes so many mergers or wind-ups.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND IT CAME TO pass, that, as the people pressed upon him to hear the word of God, he stood by the lake of Gennesaret, and saw two ships standing by the lake but the fishermen were gone out of them, and were washing their nets. And he entered into one of the ships, which was Simon's, and prayed him that he would thrust out a little from the land. And he sat down, and taught the people of the ship.

Now when he had left off speaking, he said unto Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught. And Simon answering said unto him, Master, we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing; nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net. And when they had this done, they inclosed a great multitude of fishes: and their nets brake. And they beckoned unto their partners, which were in the other ship, that should come and help them. And they came, and filled both the ships, so that they began to sink. When Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord. . . .

And when they had brought their ships to land, they forsook all, and followed him. And it came to pass, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leprosy: who seeing Jesus fell on his face, and besought him saying, Lord, if thou wilt thou canst make me clean. And he put forth his hand, and touched him saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him.— Luke v, 1-8, 11-13.

FREE RADIO SETS.

(Niagara Falls Review)

GERMANY HAS nine million radio sets, and to make this means of reaching the public complete 175,000 sets were given to the poor of Austria when Germany stepped into the country in March.

This was the work of the Minister of Propaganda, and one might suppose that giving sets was purely to advance the work of his department. When one realizes, however that the radio license fee in Germany is higher than in Canada it is evident that from a national revenue standpoint, giving away cheap radios may be a good financial investment.

IF IT WERE A CRIME.

(New York World-Telegram)

SENATOR SHERMAN Minton, of Indiana. In a speech on freedom of the press before the American Press Society, gave newspaper publishers and press associations hell.

The Senator was the author of a bill which failed to pass the last Congress making it a crime "to publish as a fact anything known to be false."

It is interesting to note in passing that had the Senator's ill-starred bill become a law no newspaper would have been able to publish all of Senator Minton's speech.

Free Methodist Ministers Are Appointed

WARKWORTH, Aug. 23. — The East Ontario Conference of the Free Methodist Church closed Sunday night. It was clearly pointed out that every circuit was represented at the opening meeting, which was held Wednesday afternoon, August 17, and also that the conference was a very successful one. Over 300 people attended the meetings.

Friday morning, Rev. F. A. Dawe, who had been appointed one of the district elders, tendered his resignation.

Rev. H. W. Lovelace, new principal of Lorne Park College, Toronto, gave a full account of the financial, academic and religious standing of the school.

The final and perhaps the most important item of business took place on Saturday, when the stationing committee gave appointments to the ministers as follows:

Kingston District, A. F. Ball, elder; Kingston, F. A. Dawe; Odessa, G. H. Bache; Verona, B. E. Stevenson; Parham, R. G. Babcock; Echo Lake, B. E. Dawson, supply; Harrowsmith, R. Sedore; Perth Road, P. O. Millar; Mississippi, N. P. Hoover; Westport, C. W. Reynolds; Mountain Grove, W. W. Simpkins Napanee, W. J. T. Hicks; Peterborough District, S. B. Griffith, elder; Peterborough, Wesley Armstrong, supply; Warkworth, C. W. Kay; Frankford, W. H. Gregory; Campbellford, A. B. Moffat; Cordova Mines, J. S. Martin; Gunter, Claude Stephenson, supply; Picton, R. Babcock; Marmora, N. A. Bosko; Vannachar, Delia Potter and Neva Kemp, supplies; Fernleigh, G. W. Sedore, supply; Toronto District, J. F. Gregory, elder; Toronto First Church, R. L. Casement; Toronto Second Church, F. J. Jones; Newmarket, B. Babcook; Uxbridge; C. R. Chatson, Belhaven, D. W. Skelding; Holt, N. F. Perry; Armadale and Oshawa, J. T. King; Lorne Park College, H. W. Lovelace, supply; Muskoka District, J. F. Gregory, elder; Huntsville, Earl Bull, supply; Bracebridge, S. S. Bailey; Gravenhurst, B. A. Sutton; Orillia, E. J. Lee; Housey's Rapids, Frank Loft; Hillsdale, L. C. Ball; Goldlands, Elmer and Grace Goheen, supplies; Midland, to be supplied.

These appointments were made to the general satisfaction of all concerned.

African Missions.

Saturday evening, in the Town Hall, J. W. Haley, missionary, gave an illustrated lecture taken himself on movie reels. This portrayed many of the existing conditions and highlights of the work in the new mission field in Central Africa.

Sunday morning, William Pearce, Senior Bishop of the Free Methodist Church, gave a strong and inspiring address to a very large audience. The offering taken at this service for evangelistic work in the conference was very gratifying.

Sunday afternoon a large audience listened to a fine missionary address given by J. W. Haley assisted by Mrs. Haley, Dorothy and Peace. They gave a very vivid description of their work in the new missionary field in Central Africa. The offering at this service amounted to over seven hundred dollars. It is interesting to note that the W.M.S have raised nearly five thousand dollars during the past year.

The evening service which concluded a very successful conference was in charge of Wesley Armstrong, evangelist, Peterborough. The next conference is to be held in Pickering College, Newmarket.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, August 24.

This should be an eventful day, in which rather devastating conditions are bound up in the coils of a breaking-up of long-stagnant circumstances. While this upheaval may be rather surprising and revolutionary, it should culminate in benefits of a sound and substantial nature. Despite all, the fortunes should be stabilized, and there should be an increase of possessions.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of sudden upheaval, with much drastic action and far-reaching effect in relation to the undermining of congestions or long-frustrating circumstances.

A child born on this day may have a practical and responsible character, with sound judgment and integrity, although it may be restless, nervous and probably erratic. It may be determined, critical, positive, tenacious, and hard to dislodge from its set plans and ways.

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

READ THIS FIRST:

Determined to show Dr. Julian Paige, the man she is in love with, that she can make her own way in the world, Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, burns her bridges behind her, moves to a rooming house and, for lack of anything better, obtains a job as a taxi dancer at the Peacock run by Nick Luigi. She is living with a girl named Laurie Evans, whom she met in the park and who is a cashier at the restaurant which Julian Patronizes. Noel feels she has a dangerous rival in Ruth Chester, Julian's pretty nurse. At the Peacock Noel meets a young man named Chris Landers, who is far more refined than the other men she dances with. Then one night she is amazed to find both Chris and Julian waiting for her and she leaves the Peacock. Julian takes her home, but he is angry because Noel had failed to tell him where she was working and he doubts her sincerity. After a bitter quarrel, Julian leaves in a huff. Noel finally obtains a position as governess at the home of a Mrs. Garwood, a queer woman, but defers taking it when she finds that Laurie has been brought home from work seriously ill. When Noel reports late to the Peacock one evening, one of the other girls tells her that Luigi, being jealous, had told Chris that Noel no longer worked there.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 23

WHEN NOEL reached h'r ~e, the nurse told her there was a change in Laurie's condition. Today had been one of her bad days, and the night had seen her grow steadily worse.

Then she asked, "Who is this Jimmy she keeps calling for in her delirium?"

Noel looked thoughtful. She didn't know. She had never heard Laurie speak of anybody by that name. The truth was Laurie had never told Noel much about herself. Noel did know, of course, that she had been in love with a man she could not marry. She thought it might have been that the man Laurie loved did not love her. That sort of thing happened, as Noel had reason to know.

There was also the possibility that the man Laurie loved might have been married. Noel explained this to the nurse, and told her what little she knew of Laurie's unhappy love affair.

"Lots of girls are foolish enough to fall in love with a married man," Kitty said, "but somehow this girl doesn't strike me that way. I'd say that she's a very sensible type."

"She is," Noel agreed. "But I can't figure out what was wrong."

"We've got to find this Jimmy," Kitty Perry said. "It might have a lot to do with Laurie's recovery."

Noel didn't have the slightest idea how to go about finding him. If Laurie had only told her more about herself, it might not have seemed so impossible. But it was too late to think of that now.

The next morning, while Noel sat by Laurie's bedside, as the nurse was having breakfast, the sick girl suddenly opened her eyes and looked at Noel with recognition. For so many long hours she had been babbling unconsciously, making queer, heart-breaking sounds with her throat and throwing her hands about wildly, even under the influence of the hypodermics, which Kitty gave her every two or three hours.

But Laurie was conscious now, there wasn't any doubt of it. Noel was overjoyed. Did that mean that she was better?

"Noel," Laurie breathed weakly.

Noel leaned her head nearer. "Yes, darling," she said brokenly.

"Get Jimmy—for me," Laurie said weakly. "Tell him I'll—" she didn't finish.

Noel said quickly, "Where will I find him, Laurie? Tell me and I'll go after him at once."

But Laurie's eyes were closed, and once again she was babbling in a delirium.

Noel rose, feeling sick at heart. If only Laurie could have told her.

Kitty came in and beckoned Noel to come outside. "I suppose you understand that after tomorrow Doctor Merridew and I will have to leave?"

Noel had of course known, but she had dreaded for a this moment to come.

"We will, of course, get a nurse and another doctor before leaving," Kitty said. She then went on to say that Doctor Merridew knew a young doctor who was beginning to make a name for himself both in general practice and surgery as well. "We both believe he can do a lot for little Laurie," she finished.

Noel thanked her, but she was worried. Laurie was so critically ill, Noel wasn't sure but that it might have a bad effect to change the doctor and the nurse. Still, she could only hope for the best.

As soon as Noel had a chance, she went through Laurie's things. She didn't like to do it, but there was the possible chance that she would find some clue to Jimmy's identity and where she could find him.

Laurie's things were in meticulous order. The few dresses hanging in the makeshift closet behind the cretonne curtain were beautifully fresh. In the suitcase, she found Laurie's four pair of hose, neatly darned and washed, a little pile of very white starched handkerchiefs, all of which came from the five and ten, and some fresh rayon underwear, but no clue whatever to Jimmy.

Noel wondered if there would be any chance of reaching him by a personal ad in some of the papers. She didn't believe that men ever read the "personals" in the newspapers. Still, she thought there might be a chance that Jimmy would see it. So she wrote out the following personal, and had it inserted in two afternoon papers.

"If the Jimmy who used to know Laurie Ebans will call at 1148 Court street, he will find that he is very much needed."

Because she hadn't been able to leave Laurie and go to the newspaper offices, Noel had the personals charged to Mrs. Blarsom's phone. Mrs. Blarsom came out and expressed her opinion that it was both silly and foolish. She demanded that Noel find out what the two "personals" had cost, and pay her immediately. This Noel did.

She couldn't help thinking that Mrs. Blarsom must be about the most self-centred person in the world. Still, Noel concluded with a new tolerance born of her recent experiences, the poor woman had a hard life.

Noel hoped she would have an answer to the personals before she left for the Peacock. But she was disappointed.

Just before she left, Kitty and the doctor held a sort of consultation about Laurie's condition. Noel needed but one look at their grave faces to know that Laurie was growing steadily worse.

For the first time Noel almost gave way to her grief. She looked at Laurie who was now lying motionless and so white she appeared as if she already might be dead.

For a moment Noel almost lost control of herself. The nurse came over and hurriedly gave her a dose of aromatic spirits of ammonia. "Couldn't you take the night off?" she asked. "You're not in condition to dance and you shouldn't attempt it."

Noel shook her head, said she would have to go. So she made her way to the Peacock, finding that a person could summon all her strength and do the urgent thing when there was no chance to dodge it.

At last the endless hours at the Peacock were over and Noel and Maida were on their way back. Noel walking fast because of her anxiety.

To her intense surprise when she entered the sick room, Noel found Ruth Chester there in charge Kitty had gone.

Ruth and Noel stared at each other in surprise. Then Ruth asked curtly: "Are you the girl who is supposed to help out during the day?"

Noel nodded.

"What do you know about nursing?" Ruth demanded.

"I know enough to follow directions." Noel said with spirit.

"Well don't forget that you take orders from me from now on," Ruth said, turning away.

Then she turned back to Noel again and demanded, "Who's going to guarantee my money? I don't intend to work for what Kitty Perry was paid. I know this is a kind of cahrity case, but my price is $8 and that's below schedule."

"You'll get it," Noel promised firmly.

"All right," Ruth replied. Then once more she turned to Noel. "You don't look well at all, and you needn't think I'm going to have two sick girls on my hands. I want you to go to a doctor tomorrow and have him give you a tonic to build you up." She stopped then, and after a pause went on a little self-consciously. "I don't mean for you to go to Doctor Paige. He's too busy to be bothered with a tonic prescription. There are lots of good doctors in the Medical Arts. I recommend Doctor Archer on the fifth floor."

Noel looked at her with a little half-smile. She knew if she had to follow Ruth Chester's directions and go to a doctor, she would at least choose her own. And it would be Julian Paige.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"Ah! Here we are at last!" Mr. Earthworm exclaimed. "Stop right here please!" he called down to the snail.

The snail-taxi stopped, and Hanid, who was riding on top of the shell with Mr. Earthworm, looked ahead of her. She saw a small door with a sign hanging from it reading: Mole Family Tunnel House.

"Yes, that's it all right," she said cheerfully. She climbed down from the shell and rapped on the door. "I'm glad we found it so quickly," she said to the earthworm. "If it weren't for you, I don't think I should ever have been able to find it. It isn't easy finding a tunnel under the garden. Do you think they're at home?"

"Oh, yes. The Mole family hardly ever goes out. They're all pretty near-sighted. I mean, they don't see very well. So they stay down in their tunnel where it's so dark that it doesn't matter if they can see or not. Ah! I hear footsteps. Here comes someone now."

Knarf Pops Out.

Hanid got ready to say, "Good evening, Mrs. Mole—," when the door suddenly opened, and who should put out his head but her brother, Knarf.

"Why! What are you doing down here?" she exclaimed in surprise.

Mr. Earthworm was surprised, too. "You don't look much like a mole," he said.

"Oh, no. He's just my brother, Knarf."

"I found the back door down to the Mole family's tunnel." Knarf said, "It was on the other side of the garden wall. But I don't think any of them are home. I've looked all over. I've even found their dining-room with the table all set for dinner."

"What are you doing here?"

Hears a Noise.

"But they must be in their house somewhere," Hanid said. "Mr. Earthworm says they hardly ever go out."

"Listen!" Knarf said suddenly. "I hear a noise."

"They're at work!" the Earthworm said. "They're digging a new tunnel somewhere."

"We've got to find them at once," said Hanid.

Knarf and Hanid were about to run down the tunnel, but the Earthworm stopped them. "There's no use trying to find them in this tunnel without a light. We'll all get lost. Just wait here a moment. I'll get a light."

Employment Of Youth Is Urged By Women

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Ray Syer was hostess on Thursday afternoon for a well-attended meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute.

The vice-president, Mrs. A. B. Kennedy, conducted the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. Donald Tinney. The roll call was answered by naming a farm product and boosting it. Many new and old ways were given of using the vegetables and other farm produce so abundant at this season.

The treasurer's report was given, showing a balance of $3.40. It was decided to have a sale table at the September meeting. Mrs. R. A. Sutton was announced as the Cavan member to take the "Buymanship Course," to be given at Millbrook for three days.

An invitation from Mrs. Fred Smith, Millbrook, to entertain the Institute in September, was accepted. A letter was read from Mrs. Judd, Orley, Sask., gratefully acknowledging the receipt of garden seeds sent by Cavan Women's Institute, and requesting clothing and flannelette sheets for use by herself and husband.

A communication was read from Mrs. Boyd of Newmarket, concerning the deplorable condition of many of the youth of Ontario, because of the lack of work; also urging the Institute to strive to alleviate this state of affairs.

On motion, Mrs. R. S. Staples and the secretary, Mrs. Melville Carr, were authorized to draft a resolution to be forwarded to Mrs. Boyd, stating that in the opinion of the Institute, protests should be forwarded to the Minister of Agriculture to have the government strive to help in this urgent need, particularly in rural Ontario.

There was discussion concerning a speaker for an open meeting at which a collection should be taken. It was decided to leave the matter over until the busy harvest season was past, meanwhile the president was to be asked to get information concerning expenses involved. The Secretary was also requested to again write Mrs. Aikin to include Cavan in her fall program of food demonstrations.

A corn roast for Tuesday evening, August 23rd, at Mrs. Lloyd Sutton's, under auspices of Mrs. Sutton's and Mrs. Matchett's groups, was announced. Should it rain on Tuesday evening, it will be held on Wednesday evening, about seven-thirty.

Mrs. Syer then took charge of the program given by Group II, Mrs. D. J. Hunter gave a demonstration of "a cold plate for supper," attractively using tomato, cabbage, carrot, peas, beet, cucumber, eggs and lettuce, with salad dressing. Mrs. Keegan contributed interesting current events.

The Misses Jean Gillis, Elaine Argue, Bea and Nan Fallis, gave a skit "Milk, the Child's Delight."

Mrs. R. Syer gave a fine paper on vegetables, cooked, canned and raw.

At the conclusion of the program an appetizing lunch was served by the group in charge and visiting was enjoyed.

Schools Bid For Students From Hastings

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 23.—An adjourned meeting from Friday evening last was held here last night in the interests of Hastings taxpayers and high school pupils. At the previous meeting Reeve R. Mallory, Warkworth, chairman of schools in the counties council outlined the new schools act before council and the two local school boards.

Representatives from Campbellford and Norwood high schools were present before the same group last evening to outline the various courses available at each school. No satisfactory explanation seemed available why Norwood's rate per day per pupil was 26 cents against 70 cents at Campbellford.

A. J. McKenty, a ratepayer present, suggested that if the matter of economy was to be considered, Peterborough Collegiate would be the logical place to send them and run a local bus from here each day.

W. McEachnie, councillor, brought up the matter of bus fares for under privileged children. He pointed out that each pupil was required to pay about $3.50 per month. This in some cases would be enough to prohibit children from attending school. He said he could not understand why bus fares were not charged indirectly through the government.

Reeve Lewis E. Kelly pointed out that this was the only municipality in the United Counties without a high school.

112 Child Brides

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP).—One hundred and twelve child brides—all under 16 years of age—were dismissed from New York city schools during the last year, a report disclosed today. Harold Campbell, superintendent of schools, said one girl was 12 years old, four were 13, twenty seven were 14 and 80 were 15.

Japan Pictured As Nation Of Courteous People Ruled By Grasping Trusts

Minority Military Clique Rules the Japanese Missionary Tells Rotarians

A Japan that is ruled by a minority military clique, that is rapidly approaching bankruptcy, whose farmers are living on the verge of starvation, was portrayed to Rotarians on Friday by James Cuthbertson, missionary to Japan.

His Japan was not the cruel nation that people in the west imagine, but a nation of likeable, courteous people whose chief faults are that they are imbued with grotesque nationalism and ruled by four grasping economic trusts into whose coffers pour all their wealth.

Since landing in Canada the question that has been most "machine-gunned" at him is, "What is the matter with Japan?" the speaker said. He said that in Japan newspapers have been telling tales of intense hatred for their people in Canada, so much so that he was relieved when he was allowed to enter this country after crossing from Japan.

In the east it is difficult to learn just what is going on, so strict is the censorship of news, he said. "All we read was of Japanese victory after Japanese victory. No word of reverses was permitted to reach the public."

Stories Hardly Credible.

Tales of Japanese atrocities are hardly credible when one knows the people themselves, he declared. He had lived in Japan for 33 years and had met only kindness, even during these war days. Apart from the sight of troop trains leaving the country, the rising prices of necessities of life, and shortage of some materials, and periodic air raid precautionary drills, one would scarcely know a war was being waged, he said. The same courtesy is extended to the foreigner, even to the Chinese resident in Japan, who are not restricted in any way. "That is one thing that should, in this day of hatred, be chalked up for Japan," he said.

Japan's claim is that she has started out on a war of self defence, and she does not find that claim ridiculous despite the fact that she is waging war on foreign soil, he said. She says she is fighting for her very existence, that she must have minerals and other wealth that lie buried in China's soil. Also she has a real dread of the spread of communism, a theory of government that is most foreign to Japanese culture. Japan claims that China is rapidly changing from yellow to red and believes she must halt that change if she is to save herself.

Culture Unique Thing.

Japanese people believe their culture is a unique thing, a gift of the gods that is to be spread to the rest of the world. "She does nothing inconsistent in going around clubbing people over the head until they love her," he claimed. He found much of Japan's trouble to be in the hero worship on which the youth of the land is raised. One 16th century hero who dreamed of the subjugation of all Asia, is still alive in the hearts of the youth of the land and their greatest object of adulation, he claimed.

Loyalty to the Emperor comes first in the minds of the people. In illustration he cited the case of a Japanese native missionary who preached that the Holy Trinity now contained four heads and was imprisoned for it on the grounds that he had insulted the supreme Emperor.

Much of Japan's troubles can be laid at the feet of the western nations, he said. They were forced to open their harbours to western merchants by Commodore Perry. "Now they are being forced to adopt a western diet and they are finding difficulty," he said

Diet Has Little Power.

Even their constitution, altered by western ideas, is giving them difficulty. Their diet, or parliament, is entirely divorced from the cabinet and has little power. It can refuse to pass a budget but in that case the budget of the year before automatically goes into effect. Several abortive attempts have been made recently to establish a benevolent military regime but with no success to date. Japan has always been fascist at heart, although she did not know the name, he said.

Much of her industrial trouble is due to four tremendously wealthy families who sap the life blood of the nation. "They are a cancer in the Japanese system that the Japanese themselves are gradually coming to recognize and take steps to check." Meanwhile the country is overburdened with a huge national debt that it can never hope to pay, its exports are rapidly dropping, its gold reserves are becoming depleted, and the war is reducing the farmers to the verge of starvation.

He believed that the greatest force acting to defeat Japan is the Christianity of Chiang Kai-Shek. China is a nation now thoroughly united through the leadership of that great Christian and will prove difficult to overcome, he said.

Greatest hope for the peace of the east is the spread of the true love of Christianity to a point where the Japanese will forget their conquering passion and will live at peace with their neighbors, he said.

Matthews said thousands of prominent persons had aided the Communist cause by permitted use of their names for propaganda purposes by various associations. Many persons did not recognize the intent behind the United Front organizations, he explained.

As an example, he said, Shirley Temple, Clark Gable, Robert Taylor and James Cagney had sent "hearty greetings" to "Ce Soir," a French newspaper which Matthews asserted was Communist-owned.

Served Purpose of Reds.

"No one, I hope, is going to claim that any one of these persons in particular is a Communist," he added. "The unfortunate fact, however, remains that most of them unwittingly serve the purposes of the Communist party."

Matthews told the committee that the Communists' program included:

1. Plans to split and disintegrate the Democratic party as a way to gain the balance of power.
2. Sabotage in industry and mutiny in the army in case of war against the Soviet Union.

Matthews brought the name of Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist, into the inquiry when he said he and Broun were threatened with disciplinary action by the Socialist party for participating in United Front activities.

Broun told him, Matthews said, that he was resigning from the Socialist party "in order to have greater freedom to form with the Communists."

Later Broun appeared to assert he was not a Communist and never had been. He left the Socialists because he was "irked by party discipline which included opposition to a column hew rote praising Alfred Smith, once Democratic candidate for the United States presidency.

No Hay-Fever At 10,000 Feet Flying Doctor Says

Seeking data to aid scientists in their fight against hay-fever, annual summer plague in most sections of United States and Canada, Dr. Oten C. Durham, of Chicago, one of the continent's leading experts on pollens, has just completed a 3,000-mile air tour, during which he chased pollens through the clouds at an altitude of 7,000 feet in an effort to determine just how high these little tormentors go. ABOVE are 3 phases of Dr. Durham's operations. At LEFT, the special pollen-catching slide used to trap the pollen above the clouds. CENTRE, the slide is shown fitted outside the window of a transport plane to pick up the pollen during transit. RIGHT, Dr. Durham is shown busy with his microscope and other pollen counting apparatus while flying. He found the air is pure at 10,000 feet...an Eden for hay-fever suffers, but hardly practical for living all year round.

Young Man Drowned In Lake Temagami When Anchor Rope Snapped

Temagami, Ont., Aug. 23

ARNOLD DOCKSEY, 21, of Oakville, Ont., was drowned in Lake Temagami last night when he was thrown from a canoe from which he was fishing. A companion, Thelma Jackson of Temagami, was rescued by the crew of a passing boat.

Docksey's body was recovered in 15 feet of water about 30 feet from shore.

The snapping of an anchor rope was held responsible for throwing the couple into the Lake from the canoe from which they were fishing a mile out from Temagami station. The crew of a Lake Temagami Navigation Company boat witnessed the accident and headed for the struggle couple. While Miss Jackson was being rescued, Docksey sank.

Trent River Women Hold Garden Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Aug. 23.—Favorable weather brought a large attendance to the garden party held on the lawn at the residence of Mr. John Scott, Friday evening, under the auspices of the Women's Institute. The grounds were attractively illuminated with electric bulbs across the lawn for the occasion. Early in the evening Havelock ball team lined up with Trent River for a game in a field on Mr. Scott's property. Two innings were played with the score 2-2. Owing to darkness the game was not finished, but is to be played off at an early date. Tables were set on the lawn, where supper was served by members of the Institute. The fish pond, in charge of Miss Doris Scott, attracted the little folk and many of the older ones. The 'pond' was stocked with lunge, pickerel, rock bass and minnows. The fee for fishing ranged from 10c, 5c, 2c and 1c respectively.

The program was given on the verandah with the president, Mrs. Walter Lewis as chairman, as follows: Community singing with Miss B. G. French at the piano; song and dance, "Whistle While You Work" by Miss Shirley Wrattan, of Toronto, who was dressed in suitable costume, Miss Helen Spencer played piano accompaniment; vocal trio, "I Passed By Your Window," Mrs. Glover, Misses Helen Glover, Miss Margaret Johnson (of Claremont) with Miss B. G. French at the piano; song and dance, Jacqueline Spencer, with Miss Helen Spencer at the piano. This called for an encore, which was responded to by a song, "I Don't Want to Go to School Today"; guitar instrumental duet, Misses Doris and Josephine Locke, of Burnbrae, who returned for an encore. The chairman requested the oldest person to come forward, Mr. James Mann, who was given the prize; vocal solo, "Come Come Away," Mrs. Glover; dance, Irish jig, in costume, Wallace and Wayne Young of Havelock, with Miss Helen Spencer at the piano; guitar instrumental duet, Misses Doris and Josephine Locke. The prize for lucky spot was given to Ralph Shearer; song with guitar accompaniment, Mr. Alf Taylor, who returned for an encore, with Miss Doris Locke accompanying on the piano; vocal solo, "Keep On Hopin'," Mrs. Glover. The prize for the youngest in attendance was given to Douglas Ruttan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ruttan, aged 7 months. Rev. J. E. Glover, of Claremont, who is holidaying at his summer home was called upon to speak, which he did by relating a number of amusing stories in his usual jovial manner.

The chairman, Mrs. Lewis, president of the Women's Institute, announced the total receipts for the night were upwards of $35. The National Anthem brought a delightful event to a close.

Radio Gift To Douro Couple

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOURO, Aug. 23. — A pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Leahy on Friday when upwards of one hundred neighbors, friends and relatives gathered to make a presentation to their eldest son Olan and his bride-to-be, Miss Agnes Condon. Olan is the eldest of the quartette known as Leahy Brothers' Orchestra. For several years their orchestra has helped supply music for many social events in the township, in most cases receiving no remuneration for their services.

The beautiful lawn, lighted by gasoline lamps, was a perfect setting for a warm evening, with chairs and card tables set here and there.

An address was read by Mrs. Joseph Maloney wishing the young people happiness in their future life and expressing appreciation of the generosity of Olan and his brothers in supplying music on many occasions. A fine radio was exposed to view when three other ladies (who with Mrs. Maloney had been active in organizing the event) stepped from in front of it as the address was read. The three were Mrs. Allan Hayes, Mrs. Joseph Allen, and Mrs. David Garvey.

Mr. Leahy thanked the gathering in simple and sincere manner on behalf of himself and his fiancee.

Rev. J. J. McCarthy, pastor of St. Joseph's, Douro, spoke briefly, congratulating the young couple on the esteem in which they are held as evidenced by the gathering in their honor. F. D. Leahy also spoke briefly. The three young children of Mr. and Mrs. James Moher delighted the crowd with their singing. Mr. and Mrs. Leahy treated their numerous guests to ice-cream. Later a delicious lunch was served by the visiting ladies and dancing and music was enjoyed till past midnight.

Timothy Garvey, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Garvey, Mrs. Gerald Garvey, Mrs. Agnes Condon, Mrs. James McFarlane, Miss Carrie Condon, and Clare Condon, all of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Doris and children of Keene, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Heffernan of Asphodel were guests at the presentation to Olan Leahy and Miss Agnes Condon.

James Lajoie of Tweed is visiting his friend, Richard Sheehan, Jr.

Miss Evelyn O'Brien, who resigned after completing three years of successful teaching in S.S. No. 4, Douro, has been engaged in S.S. No. 7.

Miss Vina Farley and Miss Mary Margaret Hayes of Lansing left on Friday for their homes after an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hayes and Mrs. Nora Farley.

The hostess served refreshments at the close of the meeting, and the customary social period followed.

Hitler Woos Hungary At Sea Show

By Louis P. Lochner
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

KIEL, Germany, Aug. 23 (AP).—The latest addition to Germany's rebuilt navy—the 10,000-ton heavy cruiser Prince Eugene—was launched Monday at ceremonies in connection with the state visit of the Hungarian Regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy.

Practically everybody with rank and title had been mobilized to witness the ceremonies, enhanced by bright sunshine and the colorful picture of uniforms and women's dresses.

The new cruiser glided into the water at 10.15 a.m. after a dedicatory speech by Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Governor of Austria, and christening by Mme. Horthy.

"May the cruiser slide into its element—symbol of strength and at the same time a guardian of honor and peace for all who are of goodwill," Seyss-Inquart said.

Paynig tribute to Chancellor Hitler as the man who completed what Prince Eugene and other great Germans have striven for, he observed with a clear bid for Hungarian friendship:

"It was well intended that the states of Middle Europe which, correctly realizing how indissolubly they are bound up with the German Reich, make common cause with her for their own good and for the liberation of the Danubian people.

"We all desire that the nations within this Middle European space shall determine their own fate and in common endeavor be architects of their own future, at the same time respecting each other's nationalisms."

With a clear voice Mme. Horthy thereupon said in German: "I christen you Prince Eugene," and smashed a bottle of German champagne on the vessel's bow.

To show Italy's approval, Ambassador Bernardo D. Attolico and his wife were on the honor tribute as the only members of the Diplomatic Corps besides Germans and Hungarians.

Horthy and Hitler were cheered when, upon their arrival, they took the salute of a marine honor company.

After the official party entered their names in the golden book of the Germania shipyards, they left for the big naval display Hitler had arranged.

Some 130 vessels — battleships, cruisers, destroyers, torpedo boats, submarines and smaller craft—were under steam for the biggest naval show in Germany since the Great War.

The Hungarian Regent and his party arrived here early this morning and were welcomed by Chancellor Hitler, who travelled all night to give his distinguished guests his personal greetings.

Gets Her Divorce

"Mrs. Tarzan," Lupe Velez, wife of screen star Johnny Weismuller, steps down from the witness stand in the Lost Angeles court where she outlined the numerous rocks and shoals that had beset her matrimonial ship. Among other things, she accused her athletic spouse of threatening to break her neck and kill her dog. The tempestuous actress was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

Group Says Adieu To Fellow Worker

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Aug. 23. — About twenty-five members of Marmora Women's Institute met in St. Andrew's Church hall last Tuesday evening to bid farewell to a valued member, in the person of Mrs. E. Schofield, who is leaving with her family at the end of the month to reside in Toronto.

The gathering was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. Gordanier and Mrs. Haacke acted as leader in the community songs. Miss Margaret Brown contributed a humorous reading after which the guest of honor was called forward and Mrs. C. Spry read an appropriate address.

Mrs. Schofield was presented with a blanket and a beautiful bouquet of garden flowers. Briefly she expressed her thanks for the gifts and her regret at parting from the Marmora Women's Institute. A contest and spelling match ended the program. A delicious lunch was served to finish the evening's entertainment.

Baseball, Farming, Then Politics

GERMANTOWN, Md. — Walter Johnson, king of speedball pitchers until he retired from baseball to become a farmer, surprised his friends today by filing as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Montgomery County Commissioner. Previously he had said he would stick to farming.

Well Pleased With Sales At Exhibition

Positive proof that the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition gives great stimulus to sales of various products exhibited is given in statements made to the directors during the past two days.

Business men and merchants using the exhibition as a showplace for their goods, not only advertised their products but enjoyed unusual sales during the four days of the fair.

Grimms of Montreal, manufacturers of maple syrup and maple sugar manufacturing equipment paid their first visit to the Exhibition and had a show stall in the Manufacturing Building. The manager was impressed by the interest shown and the crowds and his enthusiasm was climaxed on Saturday when he made two outright sales of complete modern evaporators to local farmers who engage in the maple syrup business as a sideline. This man not only stated that he would be back next year but promised to give three cash prizes of $10, $8 and $5 for the best maple sugar on exhibition.

$1,300 of Equipment

Tom Cavanagh who recently opened a new store under the trade name of Frigidaire sales, occupied another booth in the manufacturers building and told directors that during the four days he sold more than $1300 worth of Frigidaire equipment, mostly refrigerators.

Near the horse barn, a display of building products was housed under an improvised canvas top when the exhibitor was unable to find accommodation elsewhere. This man, John Barnard of Toronto, has so many prospects that he and his men are travelling at top speed to take care of them, since the products were shown at the Fair. He gathered in more than $4,000 worth of business in the four days and has been influenced to the point where he has decided to move to Peterborough and leave his son in Toronto to handle that end of the business.

These three unsolicited business recommendations are just a few from the many that have come to the Exhibition officials since the closing day of the record breaking Fair.

DISPLAY OF RAGWEED

Dr. G. Murray Fraser has obtained the use of a vacant store window opposite Graftons on George street to exhibit a generous armful of ragweed, in order that the citizens of the city may know what the weed looks like and pull all such weeds which are growing on their properties. Similar campaigns are being waged in other municipalities and experts believe if the citizens cooperate the weed may be completely eradicated within three years. The weeds should be pulled at once as they are starting to flower and the pollen from the yellow flowers cause 60 per cent of the hay fever.

Signet Ring Given To Miss Vera Clarke

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 23 — A course in "Bymanship, will be a part of the project work which will be taken up by the Seymour West Women's Institute it was decided at their monthly meeting held at the home of Mrs. Richard McKelvie. This project is to be adopted by each of the groups in East Northumberland and Mrs. Howard Clark was appointed to act as local leader with Mrs. Robert McCulloch as alternate, to attend the leader's training school which is being held in Warkworth on September 15 and 16 and October 10..

The meeting which was held at Mrs. Richard McKelvie's summer home took the form of an apron tea and was presided over by Mrs. Fred McCulloch who called the meeting to order with the singing of the Institute Ode.

The president congratulated the Institute girls for their high standing in the judging competition at Peterborough Fair and also commented on the demonstration team which took third place with both the junior and senior standing well up in the list of 170 girls who were entered. Of the twelve prizes given four came to Seymour West girls.

As the secretary Miss Vera Clark announced she intended to enter training at Nicholls Hospital in Peterborough on September 1st Mrs. Neill Hooper was elected to continue her work for the year. The program, arranged by Mrs. Frank McKelvie was opened with a period of community singing followed by a recitation "Mother" given by Helen Beatty. Miss Betty Green offered as a solo "Yellow Rose of Texas" and Mrs. C. Buchner gave a humorous reading entitled "Canada," by Nellie McClung. A recitation, "I Smile Without" was the concluding number by Miss Fae Kelly.

"It is with sincere regret that we have learned of your intention to severe your connection with our Institute" announced the president to whom the honor of presenting a signet ring to the retiring secretary Miss Clark, fell. "While we will miss you a great deal, we realize the importance of the profession you have chosen to enter and know that in that great field the service you will render will be very great. It is a noble calling and we are proud to have you go. We do wish you to remember us as you go about your duties and so ask you to accept this small token which we hope will be a constant reminder of the pleasant time we have spent together."

Miss Clark replied suitably thanking the ladies for their remembrance. Following the close of the meeting a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Life In India Related To Rotarians

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 22—"The problem of Indian self government is one of great perplexity and England deserves much more sympathy than has been given her," stated Doctor George Archer eminent surgeon who has returned to his native town on furlough after 31 years as medical missionary in India.

Decorated for distinguished public service by the late King George V in 1929 the speaker began his remarks before Rotarians at their noonday luncheon by describing something of the political situation of these 350 million people who comprise nearly one-fifth of the world's total population. The Himilyas, which for years formed a barrier which practically made the country thought of as a separate continent, were in early history traversed by invading armies whose descendants are today a people of a much different type from those of the southern part of the country.

30,000,000 Gods.

Hinduism and its caste system and its over thirty million gods and goddesses is a religion confined primarily to India itself while the Mohammaden who believes that God is one and Mohamed is the prophet of God. It is between these that a good deal of ill feeling has existed ever since the war and the resultant riots between the two factions have been a great headache to the British who have been endeavouring to keep peace between the two..

Although Ghandi has not been so active in his national movement of late, it is because he has been endeavouring to raise the status of the outcasts—these people who have been kept for centuries in a condition of serfdom and who now have stated they will no longer be called Hindus.

"These are just some of the problems which Britain has to face" said the speaker who claimed that the spread of Western Education and its influence has given to the Indian people a desire to be free and manage their own affairs.

Clive's victory at the Battle of Plassy gave England her first foothold in India and one need only compare her with China to see the effects of British rule and the development of the country by British capital. Today India is fifth country in the world in the extent of her railways and the development which has followed the building of irrigation canals has been remarkable.

Goverument In Bengal.

There has been a steady advance in giving India a greater share of self government, said this surgeon whose 31 years residence in Bengal Province has made him a thorough student of Indian affairs. "Only are the matters of defense and foreign relations left in the hands of the British. It was only of late when the British granted still wider powers to the provinces that the National Congress party swept the country but refused to form a government on the advice of Ghandi, who claimed that the provinces had the right of vetoe. This was subsequently explained (by the British officials) that this right was to be exercised under exceptional circumstances and they went ahead to form a government. Ninety per cent. of the people of Bengal live in villages and engage in agriculture. Their houses are built of mud hardened in the sun and covered with a thatched roof while the homes of the well-to-do are sometimes of brick. Another difficulty in this land where only one man in 10 can read and write and only one woman out of a hundred is literate, is the way in which the land they work is split up. Rarely do they own a large tract of land, but instead they work a half acre in one section and another small tract in an entirely different section.

Pigs Are Banned.

Neither the Hindu nor the Mohammaden will keep pigs and the former will not even keep poultry. Since it is against their religion to destroy a sick cow the country is burdened with many poor cattle. Their chief crops are rice and jute and whether or not the crop is good all depends on the rainy season. Cow dung is burned for fuel and hence the fertilization of the fields is sacrificed, nor do they have any form of sanitation whatever said Dr. Archer. Most villages depend for their water supply on ponds which come as the result of digging the foundation of a house. They wash, bath and drink the same water. Although T.B. is common, by far the worst scourge of that country is leprosy for which a great deal has been done in the past few years. "Now when we discover cases in the early stages we are able to establish a fair number of cures.' In one asylum alone are 800 lepers said the speaker.

Among the other diseases treated malaria fever is among the most prevalant and in the fall and autumn as many as one thousand a day are treated in this one hospital alone.

In closing the doctor forecast a new approach to the disease problems in India where they will adopt preventive medicine and by a series of lectures will help the people to take care of themselves.

"A most enlightening and instructive address" was the way in which Rotarian Harold Carr described the remarks of the speaker to whom he moved a hearty vote of thanks on behalf of the club members.

MELBOURNE, Australia — (CP) —An elderly woman, complaining of severe head pains, told a doctor they were caused by a worm. He made a great pretence of taking a worm from her ear. She made a starting recovery.

400-Mile Ride

Two long distance cyclists are these two Michigan University freshmen, Lorne Wicks (LEFT), and John Huston. They passed through Peterborough on Monday after a 400-mile jaunt from Ann Arbor, Michigan, enroute to Lakefield where they are visiting Dr. J. C. Smith. It took them six days to make the trip, carrying all their luggage on their bicycles. (Examiner Staff Photos.)

Holder Of First Ticket Drawn Failed To Reach Official In Time

Lady Luck played a mean trick on Walter Lightowlers, houseman at the Empress Hotel, who held the first ticket drawn on the Exhibition car on Saturday night, but failed to reach the official booth in time to claim the prize.

Lightowlers sat patiently through the grand stand performances on Wednesday, again on Thursday, and also Friday grasping in his hand about 30 tickets, and among them was ticket number 816. On Saturday night he decided to make the rounds of the midway, and as the time for the draw approached, went into the tent to see the sword-swallower perform, thinking he would be out in plenty of time to keep a check on the number of the ticket drawn.

In the midst of the performance, the bally-hoo girl at the midway tent where Lightowlers was a customer, shouted the number 816 through the microphone to the audience. "I didn't even look at my tickets, but jumped from the seat and raced for the door," said the hotel employee. "When I got outside, I shouted that I had the ticket, and a man said 'Follow me.'"

Lightowlers described the midway tent as being half-way between the Lock Street gate and the main gate and the avenue was packed with people. Progress was slow as the two raced for the ticket booth at the grand stand gate, but at this point the crowd was so dense they made scarcely any progress. The leader circled the crowd coming out between tents, but the ticketholder tripped on a tent rope, fell flat on his stomach and injured his leg. Valuable time was wasted before he got under way again, and when he reached the telephone equipped ticket booth, the officials said he was just too late as the second ticket was being pulled from the churn at that moment.

The unfortunate man believes at least two minutes must have elapsed before the ballyhoo girl called the number which tipped him off, otherwise he would have reached the officials in time to claim the car. The second ticket held by Richard Stewart, Otonabee Township farmer, took the prize.

Lightowlers says he never won a prize in his life, although he is a regular patron of sweepstake ticket sellers and charitable organization draws. He owns a car of 1936 vintage.

ANOTHER FINE MUSKIE

Don McColl landed a nine pound muskie in Thompson's Bay, a short distance south of Nassau early last evening, and the fish put up a brisk battle after being hooked on a buffalo bait. McColl was casting from a canoe, with Ken Anderson, Jr., of Munroe Avenue, when the fish struck.

QUEER SHAPED CUCUMBER

C. E. Ruttan, 245 Perry street, found a small cucumber growing in his garden yesterday which had assumed a very unusual shape. The vegetable was a perfect replica of a hen sitting with her head turned back and snuggled under her shoulder feathers.

GIRLS BOUGHT BLANKETS.

The Polly Ann girls of the musical revue at the Exhibition were so attracted to woollens and linens displayed in Peterborough stores they invested substantially in blankets and other goods that appeal to feminine tastes, J. H. Jamison, manager of C.D.S., told The Examiner to-day. One of them bought a woollen coat, with a long view of the colder weather at the end of the year.

A PET IS MISSING.

Have you noticed a small friendly brown and tan dog wandering around your neighborhood recently. He is part Pomeranian and part Pekinese and has been missing for ten days. The pet is owned and valued by Mrs. A. White, 240 Murray street who would appreciate a phone call from any person who has seen the dog. Any information may be phoned to 64 or to number 3625 ,or if any boy brings the dog to the above address he will receive a reward.

ALL IN THE GARDEN.

Some rather strange produce is being taken from the garden of Mrs. Loretta McIntosh of Ford Ave., N. Monaghan. For several years mock oranges have been grown as vines for shade on a verandah. This year some of the results have been outstanding as the mock oranges have reached over 18 inches in circumference. Another oddity is a cucumber which is white, and it was not grown in the shade, but out in the open. The same whiteness shows itself in a summer squash of a variety which has produced yelow ones. Just why the one should have turned out plain white is something which has not yet been explained.

NEW PEACHES ARRIVE

New arrivals of peaches were quoted at 49 cents a basket along the main street this morning.

AT OTTAWA "EX."

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, left last night for Ottawa to look over the exhibition in the capital city this week.

A CAREFUL MAN

Hugh Campbell, genial manager of the Outboard Marine Company is not a man to run away from trouble, but he does believe in taking reasonable precautions. On Saturday during the senior ball game at Oshawa, Campbell was sitting in the dugout when a free-for-all battle started. He calmly stood up, removed his glasses and set them carefully on top of the dugout and sailed into the melee. After the smoke of battle had cleared, the glasses were sitting safely just where he had left them, even though a regular riot had taken place in the immediate vicinity.

NINE FIRST CLASS HONORS

Highest honours in departmental examinations for upper school students in this city were won by Ronald, Dick and Pauline Rigg-Story. Both tied with nine first class honours out of nine subjects tried.

NOT ONLY SUFFERER

When Chairman James Dutton reported with regret that Rotary's attendance had fallen off sadly during summer months, he learned that the club was not the only organization in the city affected by summer heat and found a sympathiser in Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr. "I have the deepest sympathy for you," Dr. Barr said, a slight tone of martyrdom in his voice.

JOINT MEETING

Rotary and Kiwanis clubs will hold a joint meeting next Monday on the occasion of the visit of Rev. E. L. Langston of Seven Oaks, England. The prominent English clergyman will speak on present-day affairs in Europe. He was in Austria at the time of the recent annexation by Germany, has long been connected with semi-official expeditions. He was England's representative at the last Easter Service to be held during the Kerensky regime, on what is now the Red Square in Moscow.

PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION
Peterborough, Ont

Card Of Thanks

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH AND ADJOINING MUNICIPALITIES

On behalf of the members and directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, I desire to thank all the citizens of the city and county of Peterborough, and the adjacent counties and municipalities that so wonderfully supported by their attendance the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition of 1938, enabling it to make a record in attendance, in exhibits of stock, flowers, grains, vegetables and other departments. To the exhibitors in our buildings and open exhibits, I wish also to thank for their interest in the exhibition. It is the hope of the Directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition to continue to make it the outstanding exhibition of Central Ontario and already ideas and plans are under way for our Exhibition for 1939, that should make it possible to draw crowds of visitors and exhibitors from even a larger area than was done this year.

Again I wish to thank all for the whole-hearted support that was given to us this year, and included in this are Councils of the City and County of Peterborough. We hope that for 1939 we can present an exhibition in every department that will exceed in interest, education and entertainment the Exhibition of 1938.

Yours Sincerely,
THOS. BROWN,
President.

Loans Assist Building Of Six Houses

Frank Nugent's advertisement in the Examiner a few days ago regarding the terms and conditions of the new Dominion Housing Act brought a flood of responses, he told a reporter this morning, but most of the applicants lacked the essential equity required by the government.

"Most of the people who called to enquire about this assisted housing plan apparently thought the government was going to build a house for tem," Mr. Nugent said. "The fact is that on houses estimated to cost $2500 we can make a loan of 90 per cent., and that means the prospective owner has to provide only 10 per cent of the cost of the house and lot. It is also necessary that the applicant give reasonable assurance of a steady income from which the loan will be repaid in monthly instalments according to the new regulations. The reputation of the borrower has also to be taken into account especially as to meeting obligations."

One of the purposes of the preliminary enquiry that has to made is to protect the government against the possibility of houses reverting to the government by the inability of the applicant to continue prompt repayment of the loan. The money is provided by a lending company, but is largely guaranteed against loss by the government.

"The trouble is that we are blamed by applicants," Mr. Nugent said, as representative of the London Life Insurance Company, one of the authorized lending companies, "but the conditions are clearly set out, and we have to follow them. I am willing to do my best to get a loan for every person I think wil be accepted by the company."

Mr. Nugent said there are at least six houses at present being built under the Dominion Housing Act and they are all in excess of the $2,500 value.

Family Escapes From Home In Night Attire

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BUCKHORN, Aug. 23.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ireland and their three children narrowly escaped with their lives shortly before midnight Monday when fire destroyed their log hom near Hall's Bridge.

Crackling of flames and smoke are believed to have awakened the family and they escaped with their night clothes and a few other articles of clothing which they picked up as they fled. Neighbors attracted to the scene prevented the fire from spreading to a large barn and sheds nearby but the household furniture and building is a complete loss. Only a small amount of insurance was carried. Cause of the fire is undetermined.

Three Persons Hurt On Lindsay Highway

LINDSAY, Aug. 23.—A serious automobile accident on the Lindsay-Newcastle Highway, a short distance from Lindsay, on Sunday morning in which three persons were injured. A car driven by Mr. Thos. Suddaby, merchant, of Burnt River, and containing Mrs. Suddaby and Mrs. C. G. Godkin, aged 70, of Toronto, was proceeding south on the highway at a moderate pace when it crashed into the ditch, proceeding 65 feet and striking a tree. Mrs. Godkin is suffering from shock of a serious nature, while Mrs. Suddaby sustained face and head lacerations of a serious nature, as well as a fractured wrist. Mr. Suddaby received head injuries. The injured were taken to the Ross Hospital.

The drowning of a popular Lindsay man, Cameron Newman, aged 30, at Lavesse Creek, near North Bay, on Saturday, evoked expressions of regret from all classes of the community. The deceased was a son of Mr. Timothy Newman, of Lorneville, and nephew of William Newman, ex-M.L.A. He is survived by his wife and one child. Interment will take place at Lorneville.

Fifty Visitors Spend Day In the Kawarthas

George T. Cripps, of Toronto, a regular motor coach visitor to this district has dreams of a 100-room hotel in the heart of the Kawartha lakelands and a 50-passenger motor cruiser to transport his guests through the myriad island channels and across the beautiful stretches of water in the northern part of Peterborough County.

For several years past and including this year, Cripps has been bringing bus loads of people to this district. His motor coach accommodates 30 people and the driver and so far this year he has made seven visits to the city. Last Sunday the bus arrived shortly before noon, the 30 people enjoying dinner at a local restaurant. The bus then proceeded to Young's Point where the party embarked on the steamer Islinda and spent five hours cruising through Clear and Stoney Lake, touching at Juniper, Mount Julian, and other points of interest.

The visitors took pictures, relaxed on the deck of the steamer, some went swimming when the boat docked and all thoroughly enjoyed the restful cruise through the lakes. When the party reached the city shortly after 6 o'clock they had another meal before continuing the trip homeward to Toronto.

Cripps remarked to a reporter that he had brought this party of people to the Kawartha four times during the past two years and they still regarded the lakeland area as the choicest within 200 miles of Toronto. Moreover he added the distance is such that a one day holiday is possible without the hustle that tires people.

"Some day I hope to own a hotel in the Ka arthas that will accommodate 100 people and I also hope some day to own a 50 passenger boat to use for cruises on the Kawarthas" said Cripps. The visitor added that people in this district are so familiar with the Kawarthas, they fail to realize it is a gold mine to the man or woman who will spend money there and build up a summer tourist trade to the proper type of people.

'Better Business Training'

"When I graduated from High School I had completed a Commercial Course, but I did not feel that I was well enough prepared to compete in the business world. Many other graduates had received a similar training. I realized that if I was to make a place for myself in business I would have to be better than 'average'".

In this age of keen competition the 'average' workman has small chance of success. Fear of economic insecurity lead me to seek a solution of this problem—a form of insurance against insecurity. The best solution, I learned, was to attain superiority in a chosen line of work. I then investigated the courses offered by different colleges, and from the information obtained I decided to attend a private commercial school.

Several factors entered into my decision, such as the success of graduates of these schools and the fact that the curriculum was confined to necessary business subjects. But probably the chief reason was the friendly attitude of the instructors—the personal contact between teacher and student. Individual personalities require different methods of presentation. A personal relationship between teacher and student creates a feeling of confidence and understanding which plays an important part in the attainment of the success for which the student is striving.

"ROSEMARY MAHONEY"

FEDERAL TRAINING MEETS ALL DEMANDS

If you make your plans wisely after graduation from High School you will pave the way for many years of pleasant and profitable living. The field of business offers inspiring opportunities for ambitious young people to earn good wages at the start and to advance to positions of responsibility.

The training required for starting-positions is provided in a minimum of time by "FEDERAL" Modern Methods. By limiting the subjects to those really necessary, you can be fitted for a position in less time and therefore less cost.

You are assured a position after you graduate from "The Houston School of Commerce."

"THE FEDERAL"
124 HUNTER STREET, WEST

This School is open the year round. Individual tuition permits your starting at any time. Register NOW if possible as only a limited number of ambitious and earnest students will be accepted for training for 1939 positions. This may be your chance to obtain one of these jobs.

PETES DEFEAT LONG BRANCH TEAM 15 TO 7 IN LACROSSE GAME

Dog Days Hit Ball Players Hard This Year

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. (AP).—One explanation of why these hot August days are called the "dog days" might be that they are when baseball players' dogs—feet to the uninitiated—begin to give out.

It is a long grind from the start of spring training in February or March to the world series in October, and the boys begin to feel the strain about this time. Pitchers who have been winning regularly begin to blow up. Batters experience sudden slumps. Injuries strike more frequently. More than one pennant contender has suffered from these ill effects already.

New York Giants, with Carl Hubbell in the hospital, Lou Chiozza retired, and Bob Seeds unable to play, and Chicago Cubs, who lost manager Gabby Harnett and have had various other stars on the shelf have been the hardest hit Boston Red Sox lost Lefty Grove with a sore arm; Cleveland's mound staff seems to have been worn out and even the Yanks haven't escaped entirely.

With the score tied at 1-1 in the seventh, the Pirates jumped on Clay Bryan for four hits and broke up the mound duel.

The defeat dropped Chicago back into fourth place as Cincinnati Reds hit hard, as usual, behind Paul Derringer and walloped St. Louis Cardinals 11-4.

Cleveland's Bobby Feller, trying a new pitching style, seemed to have recovered his old effectiveness for seven innings, giving only six hits and fanning eight. But the eighth gave Chicago White Sox three runs and a 4-2 victory.

Leonard Hutton Highest Scorer In Test Cricket

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(CP Cable.)—Leonard Hutton's 13-hour stand, during which he became the world's highest test cricket scorer, ended to-day after he had compiled 362 runs. The 22-year-old Yorkshireman was dismissed shortly after lunch in the third day's play of the fifth and final England-Australia contest.

In a faultless innings, apart from a stumping chance when he had scored 40, Hutton hit 35 hours. With England's total at 770, the young first-wicket batsman sent an easy catch to A. L. Hassett off W. J. O'Reilly's bowling. The previous high in any test was 336 by Wally Hammond against New Zealand at Auckland in the 1932-33 series.

Hutton, one of the openng batsmen when the fifth and final test match opened Saturday at the Oval, also eclipsed Don Bradman's 334, the highest individual score in Anglo-Australian tests, made at Leeds n 1930.

England's total established another record, surpassing Australia's total of 729 for six wickets made at Lord's in 1930. This mark stood at highest innings total ever recorded in Anglo-Australian tests which started back in 1876. So far England's innings in the "play-to-a-finish" match has lasted 13 hours, 20 minutes, the longest in first-class cricket.

As a crowd of 25,000 spectators cheered and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," English and Australian players crowded round the young Yorkshire star, patting him on the back and shaking hands.

One of the first to congratulate him was Don Bradman, while Joseph Hardstaff, his partner at the wickets, whose lunch total was 96 not out, also ran down the pitch to shake his hand.

Twenty thousand tons of currents were produced in Australia this year.

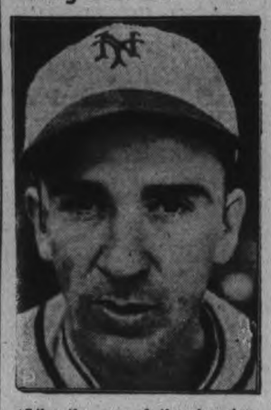
King Carl Out



Like the ace of the American League, Lefty Grove, the kingpin of National League hurlers, Carl Hubbell, ABOVE, has come down with a sore arm and will be out of the line-up of the slipping and sliding New York Giants for a week or two. The loss of Hubbell, whose injury may prove more serious than suspected, may well sound the death knell to the Giants' already waning pennant hopes.

East York Team To Play Petes

An Ontario Lacrosse Association senior "B" scheduled struggle is billed for tonight (Tuesday) at nine o'clock under the lights in the George St. arena. It is between East Yorks of Toronto and the Petes. Provided the weather is suitable, another huge crowd of followers of the gutted-stick sport will be on deck for this fixture. With the schedule rapidly nearing an end, and the clubs jockeying for playoff berths near the top, every game now is highly important. Last week, the Petes had one of their toughest battles of the year before pulling out a 10-8 decision over the bolstered East Yorks in Toronto. The latter squad, now in good shape and at full strength, has added McWhinney, a star senior—recently given an O.L.A. okay to play with this team. They will be hard to beat here.

The Petes are playing bangup lacrosse in recent weeks and giving local fans some fine fixtures on home grounds. Norm Worthy may be an absentee because of an injured knee, but otherwise the Petes will be at full strength and ready for a real fight. Followers of Frank Randle's smart squad this season are sold on the Petes, who play good lacrosse and never back up from tough going. Tonight's tussle ought to be a neat one to see. It may be preceded by a midget melee.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two
By CEC. PERDUE

AND THE MERRY lacrossers resume their home stand entertainment tonight, if the weather's oke, when East York and the Petes clash at nine in the George St. arena. An O. L. A. scrap and it should be a good one, as the East Yorks are bolstered by McWhinney, former senior star. They gave the locals a tough 10-8 tussle last week at East York, and promise to pull a win out here this eve. Lot of lively lacrosse matches seen in Peterborough in recent weeks and, as the schedule moves toward an end, the jousts are getting hotter and the play better. Another big flock of followers of the gutted-stick gees should be on deck this p.m. to see the action.

ASIDE FROM THE pulchritude to be displayed, an exciting gals' softball playdown number is listed for tomorrow p.m. at six in Riverside when Ottawa lasses and the Westclox femmes clash in the first of the P. W. S. U. playdowns. Return game or games will be in Ottawa next Saturday. These squads dished up a dandy serial last year and we believe Ab Delahaye's damsels have a better chance of copping the duke this season ,and advance in Provincial playdowns. At 15 cents a head, the fray ought to pull in a huge crowd, and we imagine the game will be the berries all the way through.

Two Dozen Do Daily Dozen

ABOUT 24 GEES AT THE Exhibition Grounds last night saw their summer's fat go the way of all flesh, and they melted down to about two tons in total under the eye of Curly Krug. It was the first grid drill of the season and they had a good workout. Ran around the half-mile dirt track, doubled up in a dozen exercises and ended by tossing the ball around and dashing hither and thither. Lot of moaning muscles today, we'll betcha. Till a coach is appointed within a few days, Krug is putting 'em through their paces and he ought to know his onion soup after playing under Teddy Reeve and Lew Hayman. Several new players will arrive here within a week, work on the new gridiron at the Exhibition Grounds will commence any day now, and practises will be run nightly.

* * * * * *

SEVERAL NEWCOMERS on deck last p.m., including Krug. There was big Johnny Shields, who played for Hamilton Panthers in senior company last semester and had a bid to go with Tigers in the Big Four this season. Herbie Hendry, of Balmy Beaches, won't be here till later in the week or Flack. But Bob Doll was on hand, the Petes' husky third-sacker looking right good. Has played U. S. football and might be here for the rugby season. Ditto with Don Crowe, who was present yester e'en and hasn't definitely decided to go to collitch this autumn. Leo Deadey, a first-rate senior outside wing, was flipping the leather lemon around like he meant it. Eddie Murphy was back again and flashing that speed of his up and down the field. Other locals who will be out this week are Harry Marsh, Ford Loucks, Chuck Kearns and Mick Magee. And there are a raft of other good intermediates trying for spots. A kicker will be obtained in the near future, too.

Don't Fret For Ye Orfuns

YEAH, DON'T SELL THE Orfuns too short this season. They may not burn up the senior O. R. F. U. in their first start, but they'll field a strong squad and will surprise some of the cynics—if not their rivals. With the material we have here and the addition of half a dozen senior aces, the local entry will be in the same class as Sarnia, Beaches and Montreal. These teams aren't all-star aggregations, you know; they build around half a dozen stars, too. The Imperials right now are worrying plenty and hoping some of the high school candidates trying out with 'em will show a lot. Mike Rodden wants to coach here, but no coach has been selected yet by the hustling ossifers of the Orfuns.

* * * * * *

OSHAWA WRITER HAS lots to say about the ball game there Saturday. But he is wrong on a couple of points ,one being that a player has to take anything and everything from a fan at a sport. As for McNally's "holiday" over here, what about Jack Turner's "holiday" in Toronto all summer, while he is still playing ball for Oshawa? Is he a "continuous resident" of Oshawa? Just to name one of several Saturday GM-men. So why get personal? There was no police protection for the Petes there, so they had to defend themselves—and a right good job they made of it, too! We agree with him the umps had a bad day all around. As for his explanation of the interference of Bennett in the eighth, which the Petes protested so bitterly on the field at the time—well, read it and weep, folks:

* * * * * *

Aw, Study The Rule Book

WHETHER THE PETERBOROUGH official or scorer think so or not, the fact remains a Peterborough player, Whitehill, did make a play on the ball before the alleged interference was committed. Not only did Whitehill make a play, but he touched the ball and that eliminates any subsequent interference on the batted ball." Excuse us while we have a quiet chuckle. May we refer our Motor City friend to Sec. 8 of Rule 49 which deals decidedly with two or more fielders going after a ball. The onus is always on the runner to avoid a fielder fielding a batted ball, regardless of how many gees touched it first. The umps' argument is that Clark first started for second and then changed direction to make a play on the ball. Sure, but he was (at the time of the collision) attempting to field the ball, running toward it, and thus the base-runner has to avoid him, even by going out of his path.

* * * * * *

LOCAL OFFICIALS DECIDED yesterday not to enter a formal protest feeling the umpires—whom they won't have again—would take refuge in the old alibi "in our judgement" and would ball up the facts. We think the Petes' officials are quite wrong in not trying to get a replay, and we told 'em so. If you can't lodge a protest when a written rule is broken, then what are protest meetings and committees for? If we had the doings of it, we would have fought this protest out to the bitter end and felt quite justified in doing so, but local officers said they wouldn't bother. We hope the series doesn't hinge on one game, with the Petes, losing—or they'll wish they had settled that disputed point in the third tilt.

Leafs Beat Cogs In Southend Loop

The Leafs advanced into the Southend softball semi-finals by nosing out the Cogs by a 12 to 11 count last night at the Brinton Field to take the second half semi-finals two straight. The Cogs went down battling making it close for the first six innings and staging a six-run rally in the last of the ninth the tieing run being on third base when the last putout was made. Butcher for the winners, although a trifle wild and walking eight, allowed but three hits till the ninth when the Cogs garnered six more. He struck out seven while Todd for the losers struckout five, walked four and allowed 13 hits. J. Corbert led the Leaf attack with four hits including a double, triple and a homer. Murduff had three hits for the Cogs and Watkins a triple in the ninth with the bases loaded. Leggett looked good defensively for the Cogs with Hatton, Holden and J. Corbet making some neet grabs for the winners.

Line-ups:

Leafs—C. Corbert, 3b; Connelly, 2b; J. Corbert, 1b; Hefferman, rf; Lazure, lb; Ashmore, c; Butcher, p; Holden, cf; Hatton, rf; Cartier, rf.

Cogs—C. Heal, 3b; Todd, p; Leggett, rf; Mowry, c; Ackers, cf; Fields, 1b; Ridley, 2b; Watkins, ss; Murduff, lf.

Score by innings:			R.	H.	E.
Leafs	102	303	300—12	13	4
Cogs	100	400	006—11	9	5

Umpires—Coursey at plate Smith on bases.

The four remaining teams swing into the semi-finals tonight (Tuesday) with Little Harlem in Keene and Quakers playing the Leafs at the Brinton Grounds. Wednesday night Keene and Little Harlem play their second game at the Brinton grounds with a third if necessary Friday. Leafs and Quakers play their second game Thursday, third if necessary Saturday night.

Forced To Retire

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (A.P.). — Second Baseman Lou Chiozza, victim of a dislocated shoulder, will be placed on the voluntary retired list by New York Giants. Chiozza is in Memphis getting treatments.

The Giants have recalled Pitcher Hy Vandenberg, who has been out with a broken foot.

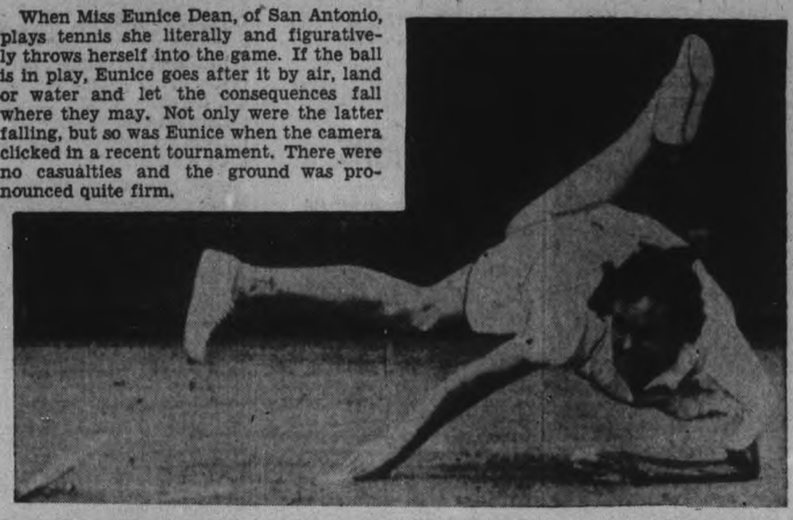
Eunice Demonstrates Court Calisthenics

When Miss Eunice Dean, of San Antonio, plays tennis she literally and figuratively throws herself into the game. If the ball is in play, Eunice goes after it by air, land or water and let the consequences fall where they may. Not only were the latter falling, but so was Eunice when the camera clicked in a recent tournament. There were no casualties and the ground was pronounced quite firm.



Forty-six Players Turn Out For First Practise At Sarnia

SARNIA, Aug. 23—Forty-six candidates, one of the largest first day turnouts in Imperial football history, reported to Art Massucci at the Athletic Park Monday afternoon. Several more, expected out this week, is expected to swell the ranks above the 50 mark for the workouts preceding the first cut.

Alex Hayes and Gordon Paterson, who have retired from football this year; Mike Sedgewick, playing softball in Chatham, and Neil Vanhorne were among the regulars missing. Hugh Stirling tipped the scale at 225 pounds, Orm Beach with 240 pounds, Fat Parsons, Mike Clawson, Henry Living, former Michigan State and St. Michael's College player, Ellsworth Pearce and a new lineman named Mapletoft, all reported weighing more than 200 pounds.

Last year's players out this afternoon included Stirling, Beach, Parsons, Clawson, Joe Woodcock, Ken Stevenson, Arnie McWatters, reported to have the inside track at quarterback; Gord Mattingly, Jack Wickware, Ike Norris, Reg Ewener, Ralph Burr, Red France, Len Rutter, Jim Geary, Lyle Withers, Pat Butler, Jim Butler, Trip Trepanier and Gord Eveland.

Newcomers from out-of-town besides Hi Living were a six-foot three-inch husky from Wallaceburg, Ockie Beattie, who tips the scales at 198 pounds, plays lacrosse and has had some high school experience, and another Windsor candidate named Venoit.

Clerks Beaten By Outlaws 5-3

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 23.—The Outlaws defeated the Clerks 5 to 3 Monday night in a town softball league game. The winners scored twice in the third and fifth innings and once in the fourth. The Clerks scored one in the first and 2 in the sixth.

McKee pitched for the Outlaws and let the Clerks down with five hits. He had six strike-outs and walked two men. Blackbourn went the distance for the Clerks and allowed eight hits as he struck out four and walked one.

I Bonds and Stickles each with two hits led the Outlaws at bat. The Clerks five were evenly divided between L. Gibson, G. Gibson, Gillespie, Petticrew and Crate. Stickles got the only home run when he clouted a long one to deep right field.

G. Gibson made the outstanding fielding feature of the game when he raced to short left field to take Myles' line drive.

The teams:

Clerks—L. Gibson, lf; Tape, rf; Stevenson, 1b; G. Gibson, 2b; Gillespie, c; Petticrew, 1b; Downs, ss; Crate, cf; Blackbourn, p.

Lawn Bowling
By HERB MARTIN

Fourteen mixed rinks from our club motored down to Cobourg last evening and engaged in a friendly game with fourteen rinks of the Cobourg club. The twenty-eight rinks were all mixed up and two tenend games were played. At the conclusion of the games a light lunch was served by the ladies of the Cobourg club. A return match will be played in the near future.

H. Rosevear, Port Hope, is bringing out a quartette to-night to battle H. Freeman's hired help. It is the second game of a challenge series. The lakeshore boys having won the first one by two points.

The elimination games that are now being staged in the ladies' section to determine who will represent our club in the Mail and Globe's Scotch doubles are creating a lot of interest and also producing some mighty fine bowling. In the first round Mrs. R. Hendry and Mrs. R. Dyer met and defeated Mrs. A. Heckman and Mrs. J. Coursey by one point only, and then yesterday afternoon Mrs. A. Hope and Miss E. Murphy defeated Mrs. L. Yeotes and Mrs. H. Staunton by three shots. It is most unfortunate that more ladies did not avail themselves of the opportunity by entering in this contest.

Omemee Rubs Out Motorists, 14-8

Round-robin standing:

Team:	P.	W.	L.
Westclox	2	2	0
Motorists	3	0	3

Omemee men's softballers eliminated Motorists from the round-robin playoffs last night with a 14-8 decision before a good crowd at the Bowl. An odd league ruling requires playoff games to go nine innings, and both teams last night stalled toward the end, the last two innings being played in darkness. Stephenson hurled eight-hit ball as he walked seven and fanned four. Fleming allowed 17 bingles and four walks, while fanning six.

Williamson and Parsons led the winners at bat with three hits each, as Stephenson and Pogue each got a homer and single, Weir two doubles and Jones a double and single. For the losers, Conroy, Montgomery and Fleming had two hits apiece. Nice fielding was shown by Playford, Weir and Smith of Motorists; and William n, Brockley and Pogue of Omemee, the latter team also pulling a neat double play. The teams:

Took Command Of The Game Right At Start

The Petes grabbed off a 15-7 victory over Long Branch last night in an O.L.A. senior "B" fixture in Long Branch. Getting a 4-2 lead in the first frame, making it 9-4 in the second and 13-6 in the third, the Petes always were in command of the situation. They earned the nod in a neat scrap. Play was fast most of the route and clean, the visitors turning in a sparkling display of passing and shooting, while also checking effectively.

In the first period, Caldwell counted twice for Long Branch but the Petes got four. Magee and King scored once each and E. Creighton countered a couple. Magee got three in the second, with Creighton tallying two, as Haney and Bairstow scored for the homesters. Haney tallied for them in the third, followed by Cox, but the Petes kept well in the lead on two goals by Magee, one by Loucks and a penalty-shot score by Hendy. Dallin and Whitton wound it up in the fourth and Haney got the last one for the losers. Teams:

Petes — Goal, Rogers; defence, Miller and Loucks; centre, Magee; wings, King and E. Creighton; rover, Dallin; alternates, Chute, Sloane, Whitton, Dundas, Hendy and Bowen.

Long Branch—Goal, Clarke; defence, Hughes and Donavan; centre, Legge; wings, Caldwell and Gioletti; rover, Grey; alternates, Bairstow, Grainger, Cox, Kline and Haney.

Referee, Bruce Leighton.

Ottawa Lasses Here Tomorrow

Ottawa girls and Westclox clash at six o'clock tomorrow (Wednesday) evening in Riverside Park in the first game of their Provincial Women's Softball Union playdowns. It is a 2-out-of-3 series, second game being played in Ottawa Saturday afternoon—and third, if necessary, being there in the evening. The winner advances into the second round of the P.W.S.U. playdowns, while the loser is eliminated from further competition this year. A big crowd of city and district followers of girls' softball is expected to attend the twilight playdown contest here tomorrow night, the adult admission being 15 cents.

The locals lost out in a tough series last year to the smart Ottawa squad, but it went three games. The Delahaye squad is strengthened this season and should make it a fine fight before the finish. The Westclox lasses lost but few games in the local league all season and defeated Keene handily in loop playoffs to cop the title. Three pitchers are ready for Wednesday's important tilt, Barbara Blade, Marg Snowden and H. Bradley. The regular lineup, which had a big following all summer at the Bowl, will see action, and it promises to be a nifty softball scrap all through.

TWO DOZEN GRIDDERS ATTEND ORFUNS' INITIAL SENIOR DRILL

Squad Trains Under Eye Of Curly Krug

Two dozen huskies sweated in the sun last evening at the initial workout of the season of the Peterborough Orfuns. Several newcomers here were noted going through their paces with prospective members of the local entry into senior O.R.F.U. competition. A number of spectators were on hand to witness the first practise of the gridders.

Curly Krug, former Queen's and Argos' star, directed the players in setting-up exercises, running around the track at the Exhibition Grounds and running and catching the pigskin in an hour's steady drill. With no coach appointed, Krug took over the chore temporarily with Manager Walter Jackson and President H. A. Cranfield watching the workout from the sidelines. Practises will be run nightly, starting at six in the Exhibition Grounds.

Several stalwarts were unable to attend last evening but will turn out with the squad this week. These include Herbie Hendry, ace centre with Balmy Beach last year; Harry Marsh, lanky local star; Ford Loucks, big speedster of the Orfuns who was playing lacrosse; Mick Magee, hard-hitting backfielder, who also had a lacrosse engagement; and Chuck Kearns, one-time junior Argo player, later on the local backfield.

Among Newcomers

Among the newcomers noted last night were Krug, Leo Deadey, Bob Doll, Eddie Murphy and John Shields. The latter was with the Hamilton Panthers in '37 in senior O.R.F.U. and turned down a chance to play for Tigers in the Big Four this season to play in Peterborough. He is a 195-pound lineman and showed class in his first drill here last night. Murphy is not a stranger locally, having come here after playing for St. Michael's College and proving a first-rate intermediate gridder with the Orfuns, before going to the States to play baseball. Doll looked quite promising and has had several years high school football experience in the States. Deadey is rated one of the best outside wings in the business and has Big Four experience with Toronto Argos.

A dozen others of the intermediate Orfuns, who went to the O.R.F.U. "A" finals last fall, were present last evening, and others will be out again. Don Crowe, expected to go to college in New York State this September, has not made up his mind. He was on hand last night and looked as effective as ever in the brief drill. Crowe, a Tech graduate from Toronto, was one of the main players with Orfuns last season. Hendren, Mitchell, Spencely and half a dozen more of the regulars should come along fine in senior company.

H. A. Cranfield, club president, stated last night that about four more senior stars would arrive in Peterborough within the next week. "We will need that many more, along with the candidate we now have, to make a good showing against teams like the Beaches, Imperials and Nationals. And we intend to field a real team, don't worry. The coach will be named in a few days and work will commence on fixing up the gridiron and grounds here." He mentioned that among applicants for the coaching job was that of Mike Rodden, former Big Four pilot and N.H.L. referee. Mr. Cranfield said he expected to be able to announce shortly the name of the Orfuns' new kicker.

Chiefs Defeat Bisons 8 to 6

(By The Associated Press)

Charity is a worthy sentiment, but it shouldn't be extended to baseball games. That's the attitude of Syracuse Chiefs, especially now that they have a chance to take second place from Rochester Red Wings in the International Baseball League.

The Chiefs gladly did their part toward making Woodley Abernathy Night a success at Buffalo last night, contributing their share of the receipts to the fund for the benefit of the Bison outfielder, whose skull was fractured in a game at Syracuse three weeks ago. But they wouldn't extend their sentiment onto the field where they defeated the Bisons 8-6.

Johnny Gee, whose pitch felled Abernathy, started against Bob Kline, the stricken outfielder's roommate, and gained credit for the victory after a tough battle. He was removed for a pinch hitter in the sixth, with the Chiefs trailing 5-4, but Syracuse scored two runs before George Miner stepped in to hold the Bisons safe the rest of the way.

The victory left Syracuse only a half-game behind the Red Wings who, paired with Newark, took the day off.

Young Johnny Hubbell made fifth place temporarily safe for Jersey City Giants when he pitched them to a 6-2 victory over the sixth-place Toronto Maple Leafs. Montreal's Royals, in seventh, walloped Baltimore for the third straight time, 13-2, and wound up a half-game behind Toronto.

Sam Snead Wins Golf Title By Four Strokes

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Aug. 23. — (CP).— Slammin' Sam Snead, who gets better every time he slams one, took his Canadian open golf championship, his $1,000 first prize money, his Royal Canadian Golf Association medal and his Seagram gold cup right in stride.

He left a gallery of 6,000 at Mississauga club cheering his march to the Canadian title in a 27-hole playoff with Light Horse Harry Cooper of Chicago, yesterday. And he left them laughing when he ducked off the presentation stand, dashed off a couple of autographs and rode away to the United States tournament circuit.

"I thought a 67 was good enough to beat anyone until I met Sam," Cooper said.

"Gee,' Snead said. "My left foot is sure awful sore from banging' it with my putter every time I missed a short one."

Cooper's 67 for 18 holes wasn't quite good enough to beat the 26-year-old southerner over Mississauga's par-72 layout. They finished the 18 holes all even, with never more than a stroke separating them. Then Cooper's game fell apart before the smashing onslaught of the Slammer in nine extra holes. Snead finished the nine in 34, two strokes under par, for a total of 101, and Cooper came in with 105.

Sam didn't miss many "short-ones" along the way. Superior putting and a sensational eagle three on the rough, tough 12th turned the tide his way in the face of the veteran Light Horse's dazzling iron play.

Cooper got $600 for his bid. Paul Runyan of White Plaine, N.Y., who finished Saturday with 280, took third place and $400.

Lacrosse Ace's Condition Bad

FERGUS, Aug. 23. — Continuing the same courageous fight that placed him among the stars of all times in the game of lacrosse, Rusty White, ace Fergus scorer, is putting up a game battle for his life in the Groves Memorial Hospital here.

White allegedly was struck over the face with a lacrosse stick by Jerry Connell, Orillia pivot man, as he raced toward the Terrier net in last Tuesday night's scheduled O. L.A. game in Fergus.

White dropped to the floor, but got up and scored a goal a few seconds later. His injury was not considered serious until a day or two after, when his face began to swell. On Saturday he was taken to hospital with his face swollen twice its normal size.

Dr. N. M. Craig of Fergus, who is attending White, stated last night the player's condition is critical. He has practically all of the blood vessels in his face ruptured and the upper lip has become infected. White has been playing lacrosse for many years, and was captain of the Fergus team.

He's Hot In More Ways Than One.

If you're a trapshooter here's the man to look up to. It's Hale Jones, of Wood River, Illinois, and he's been the best there is at the game for the past two years... and hopes to make it three. Hale won the North America titles in 1936 and '37, and was hailed as "champion of champions" after last year's event.

Falconbridge Hockey Team Will Be Disbanded

SUDBURY, Aug. 23. — The first big hockey news to break over local fronts came with startling suddenness to-day when the management of the Falconbridge Hockey Club announced they would not sponsor an entry in the Nickel Belt Hockey League this coming season. The reason advanced by mine officials for this decision was the necessity to lay off sixty men, due to the cessation of recent construction work, and when the question came up of placing these men elsewhere or laying them off as the case might be, it was felt that seniority should govern each case with special consideration to hockey players, and as approximately 50 per cent. of the Falconbridge hockey roster is made up of players who came here within the last two years a number of them will be laid off.

Decision Is Shock.

The decision of the Falconbridge executive to drop out of hockey for this year at least came like a bolt from the blue to local fans with whom the light, fast Falcons were very popular, and expressions of regret are being heard on all sides.

The Falcons, under the capable coaching of Sammy Rothschild, former Maroon hockey star, for eight years have set up a remarkable record on local, Provincial, and Dominion ice lanes. Winning the Nickel Belt championship they went through to the Allan Cup finals with Kimberley Dynamiters, losing the Canadian championship crown after a hard-fought series. Last year after bowling over Kirkland Lake, Toronto Goodyears, and Chatham in that order they were defeated by Cornwall for the Eastern Canada championship.

Players Free Agents.

Sam Rothschild, after conferring with Lorne Miller, N.O.H.A. president, over long distance, announced that the Falconbridge players will receive extraordinary consideration due to this development and instead of being required to locate not later than August 1, their deadline would be extended to October 15, and until such time they are free agents. At the time of the announcement to disband, Falcobridge had the following players signed: Bus Pertland, Johnny Godfrey, Trevor Higginbottom, Blink Bellinger, Don Grosso, Art Stuart, Hal Cooper, Bill Deacon, Len Loree, Dillon Brady, Lex Cook, Dick Dixon, George Hastie, and Stu Smith.

New Soccer Cup Presented By J. J. Duffus, M.P.

A handsome new soccer trophy was presented to the Peterborough and District Football Association, Monday evening, in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms by J. J. Duffus, M.P., to be played for annually by the clubs of the city and district.

On behalf of the association, President Stroyan Leith thanked the donor for the splendid piece of silverware which would produce the spirit of true sportsmanship on the field of play and the beneficial results to be obtained in taking part in amateur sport in the city.

Another gift handed over by Mr. Duffus was a donation from a number of associates who are interested in the welfare of the soccer code which would enable the executive to buy necessary equipment that is essential throughout the duration of the game. The new equipment will replace the nets that have been in use for over twenty years.

The old equipment will be handed over to the Deloro Football Club, so that it will facilitate arrangements in their field of play and the visiting clubs will be playing under proper regulations.

To-night, the Canadian General play an important league game with the Deloro aggregation on King Edward Park. Kick off at 6.30 prompt. On the visitors' last visit, they trounced the league leaders so the Electrics will have to battle to the limit to keep in the league running.

On Thursday night, C.C.F. plays the Brinton in the G. N. Gordon Cup. Kick-off at 6.30. Referee, J. Parry. The winner meets the Canadian General on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. Referee, J. Hanlon.

Next Tuesday, C.C.F. plays Deloro. Held in Abeyance.

A letter was received from the Ontario Football Association requesting that the local body become associated with the parent body immediately but after a lengthy discussion it was agreed that the question of associated member and the subject of full affiliation be left over until the annual meeting because of the late reply received from the O.F.A. secretary, which was caused through President Flemming being away in the Old Country, and has just arrived back in Canada.

Jack Shaw of Sudbury was an interested spectator at a recent game. He used to play for Caledonians along with two other brothers, Matt and Jimmie.

Montanez To Meet Windsor Fighter

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (C.P.). — The campaign of Pedro Montanez toward a titular meeting with Henry Armstrong reaches a critical stage to-morrow night when the Puerto Rican lightweight opposes Orville Drouillard, seasoned Windsor, Ont., battler, in a ten-round headline bout at Madison Square Garden.

Few, if any of the experts, figure the Canadian has much chance of going the limit with Montanez, but if Orville plays true to his habit of turning in the unexpected he may blast Pedro's hopes for keeps.

Al Buck, writing in the New York Post, thinks so little of Orville's chances that he says: "There is nothing crucial about Wednesday's bout, for all that can be said of Drouillard is that he comes from Windsor, Ont., and will afford Montanez a chance to test his equipment...."

But Drouillard's record is replete with upset victories. When he faced Tommy Spiegel in Miami last year, Spiegel was one of the most feared lightweights in the business. Lou Ambers, former champion, spurned a meeting with him. But Drouillard outpointed the classy Southerner with the odds 10 to 1 against him. In Milwaukee against Larry Greb, Drouillard won despite the fact he was 1-4 underdog. Shortly after Phil Baker had battled the sensational Baby Arizmendi to a draw, Drouillard met Baker and trounced him handily.

Baseball Players Are Like Mules They Both Like Currying, Grimes Says

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP).—Burleigh Grimes, unshaven boss of Brooklyn Dodgers, traces the increasing success of his team more or less directly to the fact that his father used to be noted as a mule-tamer down in Missouri.

His father, Burleigh revealed the other day, could take a long-eared, mean mule that had kicked the wadding out of three previous owners and within 18 months have the brute pulling the family carriage.

"What he did was curry 'em and curry 'em," the Dodger pilot reflected as he admired his circular first-base coach, George H. Ruth. "As I remember, it always took about 18 mouths. That's roughly the length of time I've had this club.

"A mule likes currying, and so do ball players. Now, these boys of mine are getting a little better all the time. They're getting a winning spirit, and they're going to be hard to beat by the time the season ends."

The Brooklyns are looking better. They've just finished their winning home stand of the year. They grabbed eight out of nine at Ebbets Field. They trimmed their arch-foemen, the Giants, two out of three at the Polo Grounds. They are sixth now in the National League, but they think they will wind up no lower than fourth.

It's more apparent every day that Babe Ruth has found a happy home with the Flatbushers. The big fellow is enjoying himself, and he says he is going to stay with the Dodgers as long as they want him. He hasn't lifted a golf club since Larry MacPhail signed him to a coaching contract.

Honor Valentino

HOLLYWOOD, Aug 23.—(AP)—The memory of Rudolph Valentino drew scores of women to his tomb today on the 12th anniversary of his death.

Adding one more fantastic touch to the story of the Italian-born gardener who became a world-famous movie lover was the expected annual appearance of "the lady in black."

Deeply veiled, she comes each Aug. 23 with a spray of red roses, Valentino's favorite flower, places it in a wall holder and slips away. Her identity is not publicly known.

Eden United Picnic Held in Reid's Grove

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT JULIAN, Aug. 23.—The annual Eden United church picnic was held on Thursday afternoon in Bruce Reid's grove. The usual program of races was in order, with the grab bag and sale table, followed by a regular picnic feast.

The very generous donations of Mr. G. K. Fraser of Burleigh Falls, Mrs. A. M. Smith from Montreal, and Mr. J. Porter of Lakefield, were greatly appreciated.

Anglican Social.

The Holy Trinity Anglican church lawn social which was scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, had to have a complete change of plans at the last minute on account of the continued downpour of rain, which lasted through the entire afternoon. About half the usual crowd arrived and although forced inside by the weather conditions, a very enjoyable social afternoon was spent around the fireplace in Mrs. William Thompson's cosy living room. A small fire added just the right touch of bright cheerfulness.

The attractive display on the bazaar table was a centre of interest and the fish pond was especially entertaining to the children. The picnic food was spread on the tables in the dining room and everyone dined in solid comfort. So much food was left untouched that it was decided to have an outdoor social next afternoon. The weather permitted and on Thursday the tables were sat on the lawn.

Those holding lucky tickets in the raffles were: Cushion, Mrs. Wellie Dunford; lace blouse, Mrs. William Thompson; fancy box, Mrs. Keith Lech; fruit cake, Robert Seibel, guest at the Bland's summer cottage, Young's Point; doll, Mary Scollard, Young's Point; fur slippers, Mrs. Donald Fowler.

Very liberal donations were gratefully received from Mr. G. K. Fraser, Burleigh Falls, and Mrs. Stubbs, from Toronto.

Strikers Failed

GODERICH, Ont., Aug. 23 (CP).—Salt-loading operations on the package freighter Superior were delayed three hours last night when two longshoremen stopped work and demanded a 10-cent increase in wages to 50 cents an hour for night and Sunday work.

Captain Dalton Hudson refused the demand and other leaders were recruited from the ship's crew. The strikers were said to have agreed among themselves to halt work.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

COMBINATION FINESSES

A GUARDED queen has just as much chance to take a trick if it is opposite the ace of its suit as if it were in the same hand. When you lead a small card toward it, the chances are 50-50 that it will win. If the first opponent to play on the trick has the king, the queen is sure to be set up. Of course, if the last opponent has the king, she is doomed.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

After a 1-Spade bid by South, North called 1-No Trump, South 3-Spades and North 4-Spades.

The heart Q was led by West and won in the South hand. East won the spade K with the A and returned a heart to South's A. A spade was led to the 9 and an effort made to finesse the club J, which was no finesse at all. When this lost to West's Q, the heart 10 was taken, and followed by a diamond to East's K.

With a loser in each suit, South's only hope for game was to find the diamond K with East. It was there but he did not take advantage of that fact. He had enough entries in dummy and should have used one of them to lead a low diamond toward his Q. Had he done that only three tricks would have been lost, one spade, one diamond and one heart; the diamond A providing a spot for the club J.

Extension Of Programmes For Rural Improvements Forecast To Agriculturalists

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que., Aug. 23. (CP).—Extension of government programs for rural and agricultural improvement was forecast Monday by M. L. Wilson, assistant secretary of agriculture in the United States, in an address prepared for delivery at the opening of the fifth international conference of agricultural economists.

The political-economic trend today was for governments to assume "increasing responsibility for the promotion of economic and social welfare of their citizens," Mr. Wilson said. Every government had some positive program for rural and agricultural betterment, and indications were "these programs will be extended in the future rather than curtailed."

The United States official spoke before delegates from 19 countries gathered in this college town 20 miles from Montreal to discuss the farm problems of the world. His address on "the social implications of economic progress on present-day agriculture" followed a paper on the same topic delivered by J. F. Booth of the Dominion Department of Agriculture's marketing branch.

Mr. Booth's paper reviewed the changing character of agricultural development, from the individualized farming of the 19th century to the industry's commercialization and the rise of international farm trade. Today in Canada, he said, the nation as a whole must bulk largely in consideratio nof government agricultural policy because of the industry's effect on the general life of the country.

Farming is "Sick"

Both groups of farming in the world, the commercial type and the so-called "peasant" farming, are sick, Mr. Wilson said in his paper. The former type, he said, is part of a "sick commercial civilization."

"As the years have gone by," he asserted, "the commercial civilization has grown more and more complicated. Due to nationalism and the prospects of war, and other causes, it is ceasing to be a self-adjusting economy, and men are turning to the political state to keep its part in adjustment."

Peasant farming's illness was overpopulation, the assistant secretary said. "When outlets for surplus population either through migration to undeveloped countries or to city industry are cut off, then peasant agriculture begins to suffer from overpopulation. It therefore turns out that both commercial and peasant farming are in trouble and the prospects ahead are none too good."

Concentration No Help

Expansion of unified community projects and rural industrial communities were advocated by Mr. Wilson. In many industries no positive economic advantage was to be gained by concentration, and the general social welfare would be "greatly advanced" by dispersing industry so that workers could live on the land, farming in a small way.

"The proper development of rural industrial communities could be made to absorb all the unemployed urban workers and all the submarginal farm population, Mrs. Wilson said. They also would "tend to narrow the gulf between the farmer and the industrial worker," helping develop a feeling of mutual understanding and common interests.

Of the co-operative movement among consumers and producers, growing rapidly in eastern Canada, particularly Nova Scotia, the Washington official commented that while it had "some technological disadvantages," it "accords very well with the self-containment that the trend of modern nationalism involves." overpopulation was probably the greatest single difficulty to be met by this system.

But it released agriculture from the "complete dependence upon the troubled outside world to which commercial agriculture is helplessly tied. And, most important of all, it absolves agriculture from abrupt social dislocations and preserves agrarian social values that fully-commercialized agriculture destroys."

Franco Refuses To Withdraw Foreign Legions

LONDON, Aug. 23 (CP Cable)—The Earl of Plymouth, chairman of the non-intervention committee, today arrived in London to study Insurgent General Francos reply to the British plan for proportional withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain.

The reply, made public Sunday, was tantamount to a refusal and required a complete revision of the plan.

Prime Minister Chamberlain was due in London late today. Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, will arrive tomorrow from Yorkshire. It was expected they would confer with Lord Plymouth on plans to convene the non-intervention committee and on what steps will be taken, particularly in regard to General Francos demand of full belligerent rights before any troops are withdrawn.

Informal Conversations.

Lord Plymouth has not yet seen representatives of the other nations making up the committee, but informal conversations are expected. So far it was undecided whether the committee would be convened, but it was held probable.

Spanish government circles in London were emphatic in saying that Barcelona would not agree to many conditions and reservations imposed by General Franco. They are committed to a proportional withdrawal of volunteers and oppose Franco's alternative of withdrawal of 10,000 men from each side.

Franco's rejection of the plan places the Chamberlain government in an embarrassing position and may have the effect of reopening by France of the Pyrenees border to war supplies for the Spanish government.

Official circles here admit a good deal of resource will be needed to bridge the gap between the insurgent leader's claims and the limits to which certain members of the committee are prepared to go.

Tied up with Franco's attitude is the Anglo-Italian agreement to which Mr. Chamberlain is committed, but which is ratifiable only on settlement of the Spanish question.

No Hope of Settlement.

Until volunteers are withdrawn from Spain, there was no hope of ratifying the agreement which was signed at Easter. Despite this, it has been necessary twice in the past two weeks for Sir Noel Charles, British Charge D'Affaires in Rome, to draw to the attention of Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister, allegations of increased Italian supplies of men and arms to General Franco.

It was understood here over the weekend that Count Ciano told Sir Noel he could offer no denial of the allegations but that no proof could be offered they were correct.

There were some in diplomatic quarters here who felt the war would be ended before any new proposal could be agreed upon for withdrawal of foreign fighters, whose presence in Spain the non-intervention committee regards as a danger to world peace.

There were some also who thought Premier Mussolini of Italy was fully aware of Francos stand, and that the two had joined hands to block the non-intervention committee.

Franco Has Killed Pact.

These sources argued that, in effect, Franco had killed the chances of the Anglo-Italian pact. Paris reports of last week were recalled in this connection, that Franco had decided to cast his lot with Italy and Germany even at the risk of losing connections with Britain.

Earthquake Leaves Many Homeless In Ecuadorian Village

Causing extensive damage and some loss of life, a severe earthquake recently shook parts of Ecuador, South America, the small town of Tinga, near Quito, the capital, bearing the brunt of the shock. Four tots who had a narrow escape from death are seen at the LEFT, bewildered and unhappy, as they sit in the ruins of their home. They had previously crawled from the house after three walls and the roof had crashed, and were unscathed although their parents were injured. Like all nature's upheavals, the temblor produced some strange results and at the RIGHT is seen one of the town's bath buildings the heavy front wall thrown down, but the door and tiles on the roof undisturbed.

Grizzly Bear Cub Turns On Lion King Of Animals Retreats With Roar

Calgary, Aug. 23

TO THE ANIMALS of Africa, the roar of a lion is a signal to scram—in a hurry. But it failed to impress a four-month-old grizzly bear that arrived in Calgary's St. George's Island Zoo Saturday.

The 75-pound cub, captured on a canyon creek farm in the Peace River country several weeks ago, was obtained for the Zoo through the efforts of W. H. Wallace, Alberta Game Commissioner. Transported in a cage in baggage car the cub was in his pen at the Zoo only two minutes before making known his enmity to the jungle king.

The cub ambled about for a moment, sniffed amiably through bars at the brown, black and cinnamon bears in the adjoining cage, turned and came face to face with the king of beasts.

Through the bars shot a set of razor-like claws. Leo recoiled but not before his nose was stung, up went a howl. The other animals in the Zoo joined in and the menagerie was turned into a bedlam.

But the grizzly cub was not impressed. It just ambled on and then curled up for a nap.

Tourists Remanded On Liquor Charges

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 23 (CP).—Two doctors from Struthers, Ohio., Dr. Charles Schofield 52, and Dr. E. C. Reinhart, 51, were remanded to Friday in Magistrate's court here to-day on a variety of charges arising from a highway accident last night.

According to police, the doctors' car collided with one owned by Albert Willis, Hamilton, east of the city. They were placed in custody after a citizen, James Stewart of Grimsby, chased them on his motorcycle and brought them to a stop, it was reported.

Dr. Schofield was charged with drunken driving, reckless driving illegal possession of liquor and firearms. Dr. Reinhart was charged with illegal possession of liquor and firearms. The doctors were on their way to a fishing camp in Northern Ontario. A firearm charges involved a .22 rifle and a pistol found in the car.

MILLBROOK

Miss Edyth Hunter, M.A., language specialist of the Battleford, Sask., colleges, and her niece, Miss E. Beatty, of Peterborough, have been visiting their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Hunter.

Misses Gladys Williamson, Jean L. Burnham, Muriel and Thelma Ball left on Monday for a two weeks' vacation by motor, going to Haliburton county, and other points north, for their annual summer holiday.

Miss Shirley Buckingham, B.A., of Maxwell, Ontario, who has been engaged by the school board to fill the vacancy on the Continuation school staff caused by the resignation of Miss Doris Bannister (Mrs. W. R. Howard), was a visitor in the village on Tuesday.

Miss Margaret Armstrong, who has been in Hamilton attending a course for librarians at McMaster University, and has also visited relatives in Ripley and Kincardine during her vacation arrived home on Tuesday.

Mrs. Trevor Braithwaite of Kirkland Lake, with Mrs. S. Donnelly and her son, Mr. R. Shaw, also of the northern city, were guests last week of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George McCorry.

Woman Not Hurt As Blast Shatters Wood-Burning Stove

Toronto, Aug. 23

MRS. DAVID MILLAR, 5 Dundee Avenue, had a narrow escape from injury and perhaps death yesterday when her new kitchen stove exploded as she reached out to open the oven door.

The stove, a wood-burning affair, burst in a dozen pieces. Sparks shot past the terrified housewife as she ducked to avoid the flying metal. She was approaching the stove to look at the Sunday roast.

Damage to the contents of the house was placed at $30 and $15 to the building. Most of the building damage was confined to the kitchen ceiling. No explanation for the explosion was offered.

Dawson Celebrators Outshine Days Of Old Gold Rushes

Dawson, Y.T., Aug. 23

DAWSON packed away its bunting and flags for another year Sunday as visitors from all parts of the Northland left for their homes by river boat and airplane after taking part in the forty-second annual celebration of the discovery of gold in the Yukon.

Friday night the celebrations were marked by a display unheard of in the boisterous days of '98 when gold-rich prospectors "whooped it up" in Dawson bars and saloons—a baby contest.

Judged best of eighteen infants on display was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Champan. The father is resident manager of the Northern Commercial Company.

First White Hanged

BROKEN HILL, Northern Rhodesia, Aug. 23—(CP-Reuters). — George Blackmore was executed at dawn today for murder—the first white man ever to suffer the death penalty in Northern Rhodesia. Blackmore was convicted after a 30-minute trial July 18, of the murder of Hercules Vanviljon, an Afrikander, who disappeared in April. The body was later found on the Veldt.

Hold Field Day Despite Downpour

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Aug. 22.—A heavy downpour of rain in early afternoon failed to halt the annual Red Cross Field Day here on Wednesday afternoon, although all sports and parades were cancelled.

Races, parades, horse-shoe pitching, all slated to bring a crowd, had to be cancelled but the crowd turned up just the same to support the organization in its drive for funds.

Dr. Caldwell of Toronto spoke in words of appreciation to the board and supporters of the Coe Hill branch for their co-operation in the present and past. He also gave an outline of the great work carried on in Ontario by the Canadian Red Cross Society.

Other prominent speakers were: Mr. Rork Ferguson, M.P., Norwood; Mr. R. D. Arnott, M.P.P., Belleville, and Mr. Reid of Belleville.

A closely-contested baseball game was played by New Carlow and Coe Hill, in which the home team was victorious, 6-4.

The two refreshment booths did a rushing business between innings and at the end of the game. The field day was concluded by a dance in the agricultural hall in the evening, which was attended by a large crowd.

JUDGE DEROCHE REPORTS TO COUNCIL

Famed Flier Killed In Crash

Frank Hawks Dies While Trying Out New Ship At Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 24.—(CP).—Death removed from the rolls of aviation's great the name of Commander Frank Monroe Hawks, internationally-famed speed - plane and glider pilot who wrote one of the early pages of Canada's aerial history.

The 41-year-old flier, who only a year ago turned from speed flying to "take it easy," died after being taken from the flaming plane in which he and a companion crashed at the end of a brief trial flight last night.

The companion, J. Hazard Campbell, New York sportsman, also was killed when the small plane ran infield a few miles from Buffalo and burst into flames.

Carried Four-leaf Clover

Hawks, whose 214 point-to-point speed records included the first transcontinental non-stop flight in Canada, set in 1933 from Vancouver to Kingston, Ont., carried to his death a four-leaf clover a friend had given him for "good luck" a few minutes before his takeoff.

The flier's death brought sadness to Canadian airmen as well as to American aviators who recalled today his prediction a few years ago: "I expect to die in an airplane."

Friends, who had watched the take-off from the small field, heard the plane crash behind a clump of trees. They saw a flash as flame shot high in the air.

They pulled Hawks from the controls of the blazing ship and dragged Campbell from beneath a crumpled wing.

Hawks was flying a small (G . . . Aircar plane designed for private flying.

Description of Crash

Edmund P. Rogers, from whose estate Hawks and Campbell took off, described the crash:

Cmmander Hawks landed on our field about 5 p.m. and offered to take myself or any of our guests for a ride. Campbell climbed in first.

"The plane lifted in the air and Hawks tilted it 50 feet above the ground to enable it to pass between two tall trees. As he passed out of

Gunboat Searches For Chinese Plane

HONG KONG, Aug. 24—(AP). —The pilot of Chinese passenger plane, which left here for Chungking, messaged to-day he was chased by Japanese planes and forced to set down on a small river 25 miles southwest of Canton.

The 14 passengers were Chinese, and presumably took refuge in the countryside. A British gunboat and troops from Canton began a search for them.

Officials of the Chinese National Aviation Corporation thought the Japanese were seeking Sun Fo, son of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who was to have been a passenger but cancelled reservation. The pilot was H. L. Wood of Hays, Kansas.

Tennis Player Dead

STE. ROSE, Que., Aug. 24 (CP).—Marcel Hebert, 23, noted Montreal pianist and 1938 winner of the Prix d'Europe, was drowned today at nearby Ile De Mai. Hebert had played a strenuous game of tennis before entering the water. Awarded the prix d'Europe early this summer, the young pianist was scheduled to start his year's scholarship at Paris this fall.

$3,000 Schultz Money Paid To J. J. Hines

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—(AP). —George Weinberg, 36, an ex-convict, and the State's star witness thus far in the conspiracy trial of James J. Hines, Tammany district leader, testified to-day that in Octotber, 1933, Dutch Schultz ordered him to help Hines elect William Copeland Dodge as district attorney of Manhattan.

Dodge, a Tammany man, was elected. He has been accused by District Attorney Thomas Dewey of having been "intimidated, influenced or bribed" by Hines.

"Dutch Schultz told me to help Jimmy Hines with money and to get the policy-game crowd behind him," Weinberg said.

Added Campaign.

Weinberg testified that he met Dodge in the office of Hines' lawyer, Joseph Shalleck, and that after Hines had introduced him to Dodge as one of "Dutch Schultz's boys," he passed $3,000 to Hines as the Schultz mob's contribution to Dodge's campaign fund.

He said Dodge "grinned" as the money was passed to Hines.

"We gave him other money for the election of Dodge," the witness continued.

"How much?" snapped Dewey.

"All told, about $30,000," the former Schultz henchman replied. "And after the election, we gave about $2,000 or $3,000 more we had promised."

Eyston Roars Mile In Record Time

Timing 'Eye's' Failure Deprives Englishman Of New Speed Record

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Aug. 24 (AP).—Captain George E. T. Eyston pounded his big automobile through the measured mile at 347.155 miles per hour today, the fastest ever attained by man on land, but failure of an electric eye timing device on the return journey robbed the Englishman of a new record.

Eyston drove his seven-ton "Thunderbolt" at lightning clip down the 13-mile salt track and back again for the two runs necessary to establish an official mark.

Apparatus Failed

The timing apparatus, which functioned perfectly on the first run, failed to register on the second just as Eyston roared into the measured mile in an effort to better the mark of 311.42 miles per hour he established here last year.

Eyston's time for the outward mile was 10.37 seconds. His fastest previous single run, 11.33 seconds or 317.74 miles per hour.

Officials said Eyston travelled faster on the return trip than on the previous outward spring, possibly approaching 355 miles per hour or nearly six miles a minute, but failuse of the timing devise frustrated him.

"I don't feel the run was at all in vain," Eyston said. "The new Thunderbolt ran perfectly. I'll run again just as soon as the timing eye is fixed."

Eyston explained that the bright morning sun caused the electric eye beam to fail. It clicks when the car's shadow passes through the beam.

Because of light refraction from the blazing white salt, "Thunderbolt" failed to cut the beam, Eyston said. Eyston said he felt his speed on the return run was "approximately" the same as on the first run. Officials disagreed, however, saying the retired British army captain was too conservative.

Cobb to Start Next

Another Briton, John Cobb, of London, is waiting for a chance to better his compatriot's mark.

Cobb, with a shark-like car weighing 7,000 pounds—half the weight of Eyston's—has next call on this glistening course astride the Utah-Nevada border.

Officials said the electric eye failure could be overcome by shading it.

Eyston narrowly avoided an accident as he drove the second time over the 13 mile route. A spectator car which moved onto the track apparently caused the speed driver to swerve his big machine suddenly after he had covered the measured mile.

Instead of following the slight curve in the track, Eyston drove straight toward the mechanics pit. Apparently he did not lose control even momentarily, however.

Arabs Invade British Headquarters Firing Five Shots At Official

JERUSALEM, Aug. 24 (AP).—J. S. Moffat, British assistant district commissioner at Jenin, was seriously wounded today when two gunmen, later identified as Arabs, invaded British district administrative headquarters there.

The attackers fired five shots point blank at Moffat who was rushed to hospital at Haifa where he was given a blood transfusion. Hospital authorities stated his condition was critical.

He was the second British official of the same rank to be shot during the past year as a result of the strife between Jews and Arabs in Palestine.

The other was Lewis Yelland Andrews, killed at Nazareth in September, 1937.

Before the incident at Jenin, eight gunmen raided the police station at Lydda and stole rifles and ammunition after overpowering policemen on duty.

Airplanes and troops with bloodhounds hunted the raiders.

It was stated officially 14 Arabs were killed in an engagement with British troops last night near Kefr Kenna, identified by tradition with the Biblical place of Cana where Christ turned water into wine.

Because of the troubled situation, authorities banned visits to the white-domed tomb of Rachel, revered alike by Jews, Moslems and Christians.

Penalty Clause In League's Constitution Is Likely To Undergo Some Redrafting

LONDON, Aug. 24—(CP Cable). —Redrafting of the famous Clause XVI of the Covenant of the League of Nations, dealing with sanctions against aggressor nations, will be discussed at the League Assembly starting September 12. The agenda was released to-day by the British Foreign Office.

Discussion on Clause 16.—The basic principle of collective security—was shelved at the February meeting. The clause has been under fire in many parts of the world since attempt were made under it to impose sanctions (penalties) against Italy for her conquest of Ethiopia.

Article XVI of the League Covenant states that should any member of the League resort to war in disregard of its covenant "it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the League which hereby undertake immediately to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the covenant-breaking state, the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between the nationals of the covenant-breaking state and the nationals of any other state, whether a member of the League or not. . ."

The article goes on to outline duties of League members to contribute to the armed forces to be used to protect the covenant, as well as mutual support in financial and economic measures.

Arising from the Italian experiment, some countries want the clause made optional rather than compulsory.

By general agreement, the clause has been interpreted lately as optional, and it was not imposed against Japan which the League declared an aggressor in its invasion of China.

This led some countries to press for redrafting to make the article conform to the tacit understanding. It is understood the attitude of the British Government has been to leave the clause alone.

Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, will represent Great Britain at the meeting, and Vincent Massey, High Commissioner, will attend for Canada.

Flea Epidemic Is Raging In Windsor Stay On Humans Long Enough To Bite

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 24. WINDSOR seems to be in the grip of a flea epidemic, judging by the number of complaints received by the Windsor Humane Society during the past few weeks. Inspector Reginals Reid of the Society said yesterday. Twice as many complaints have been received about fleas in the past two months as in a whole year previously.

"Fleas get into persian rugs and other hair rugs from house pets and stay there the whole summer unless taken care of with insectides," Reid said. "While they don't stay on a human being for any length of time, they do stay long enough to bite."

One Windsorite said he had blamed the family cat for an influx of fleas into the house, and decided to "give both ourselves and the cat a break at the same time."

"We killed the cat, but the fleas stayed with us," he said. "What do we do now?"

Ontario Agrees To Business Tax On Liquor Control Board Stores

TORONTO, Aug. 24 (C.P.). —Premier Mitchell Hepburn anhounced to-day that the Ontario Government would agree to the imposition of a business tax on all Liquor Control Board stores throughout the Province. He refused, however, to permit taxation of property owned by the Liquor Board.

His announcement was the result of a reminder from Mayor Ralph Day that some time ago the Premier had promised the municipalities the right to tax liquor stores. After consideration of the problem along with Chester Walters, Deputy Provincial Treasurer, to-day, the Premier said that municipalities would be allowed to impose a business tax only on the Liquor Board.

In the case of Toronto the Liquor Board headquarters and the Central Warehouse may also be assessed for business tax.

Mr. Hepburn explained that he could no more allow taxation of property owned by the Liquor Board than he could the Provincial Savings Offices or the Parliament Buildings themselves.

Frank Hawks Given Four-Leaf Clover Seconds Before Crash

East Aurora, N.Y., Aug. 24. A FEW SECONDS before Commander Frank Hawks crashed to his death in an airplane accident last night, a friend presented him with a four-leaf clover and a wish for "good luck."

I. T. Knitterauer, Treasurer of the Gwinn Aircar Corporation, of which Hawks was Vice-President, said he picked a four-leaf clover from under the plane and gave it to the flier with "good-luck" wishes as he took off.

England Wins 5th Test Match

LONDON, Aug. 24 (C.P. Cable).—England tied the count in the 1938 cricket test series with Australia, winning the concluding game match by an innings and 579 runs. Discouraged by the absence of Don Bradman, their captain, and J. H. Fingleton, through injury, the Aussies were dismissed quickly today for totals of 201 and 123 in replying to England's record score of 903 for seven, declared.

Though defeated in the final game, Australia retains The Ashes, mythical symbol of cricket supremacy, by virtue of the tied series. The Antipodeans won The Ashes in their 1934 invasion of England and defended their world title in the 1936 matches "down under."

The first two games of the current series at Nottingham and Lord's were drawn, the third at Manchester was abandoned through rain without a ball being bowled, the Aussies triumphing by five wickets in the fourth at Leeds.

Since Anglo-Australian tests started back in 1876, Australia has won 57 games, two more than England.

Party Purge Of Disloyal Urged By Rowe

TORONTO, Aug. 24 (CP)—A purge of "disloyal elements in the party" was urged by Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative leader, yesterday as he discussed reasons for his own retirement from that post.

Considerable pressure was being brought to bear on him to stand again for the leadership when a convention is held, he said, but he insisted his decision to retire would not be altered. As soon as a new leader was named by the convention, he would be out.

"Disloyalty to our party" was the chief reason for his decision to retire, Mr. Rowe said.

"The disloyalty to our party that was evident and the selfish interest of some of those closely associated with our party's organization in the last election, but particularly the disloyalty to our party itself," were his reasons for retirement, he said.

Must Have Full Support

Mr. Rowe said he decided to retire when it became obvious to him that if the party hoped to be successful at the polls it had to have a leader who could have the whole-hearted support of both the rank and file and leaders of the party.

The essential thing was that the Conservative party in Ontario unite its forces, he said.

He endorsed the attitude of the provincial association executive yes-

Turkey Is Sick No Longer But Is Factor In Europe's Negotiations For Peace

ISTANBUL, Aug. 24 (AP)—Turkey has become a vital factor in Europe's negotiations for possible war.

"The sick man of Europe"—as the old Ottoman empire was known—is the centre of an imposing ring of alliances and, spending 60 per cent of income on rearmament, is sick no more.

Turkey has defensive alliances and non-aggression pacts extending from mid-Asia to mid-Europe.

With Turkey as leader, the little but well-armed states of the Balkan entente — Yugoslavia, Greece, Rumania and Turkey—and Bulgaria, which again is on friendly terms with it, can put 10,000,000 soldiers in the field.

For many years Turkey has had a friendship alliance with Soviet Russia and she is a signatory of the Saadabat (Asiatic) pact with Iraq, Iran and Afghanistan.

Of increasing importance are her increasingly cordial relations with Great Britain and France, the powerful democracies of western Europe.

Directs Extensive Comment To Three Charges Which Dealt With Liquor

Four Of Joseph Wheeler's Seven Charges Are Dismissed By Judge Deroche Disciplinary Action Up To Commission

Members of Peterborough's police force probably left themselves open to prosecution for an illegal act in dispensing beer in a house rented for that purpose the night of policemen's ball in October, 1936, but whether any disciplinary action should be taken at this late date was a matter in the discretion of the Police Commission, Judge G. E. Deroche of Belleville, affirms in his report to the city council of the enquiry into the local police administration at which he recently presided.

Judge Deroche dismisses four of Joseph Wheeler's seven charges, those relating to the two breakins, the Welch dog license, and P. C. Clark's wiring job for Max Vincent, but he directs extensive comment to the three charges against Vincent, and lastly Mr. Wheeler's broadside interrogation as to the disposal of beer and liquor confiscated by the police.

His Honor's most sharply pointed stricture expressed his feeling of certainty that the Peterborough Police Commission will at least make it known to the Chief and the members of the force that a repetition of the beer refreshments in a house adjoining the Legion Hall where the dance was held would entail some punishment, possibly dismissal.

As to the three Vincent cases, Judge Deroche concludes that Chief Newhall committed an error in judgment by not drafting more rigorous charges against Max Vincent, "and I think they should be dealt with by the Commission in that light."

Lack of system in disposing of confiscated liquor as required by the Liquor Control Act is roundly condemned by His Honor, who mentions the mitigating factor of the lack of adequate accommodation at the police station for the ordinary duties of the force.

Criticism and Praise

Judge Deorche does not focus his report solely on the charges brought by the former constable, Joseph Wheeler, but interpolates occasional little compliments, some of them relating to the policemen, and, one of them referring to Chief Newhall as follows: "While he may have erred in several particulars regarding matters under consideration, he is evidently a

Loan To China Is Denied By The French

PARIS, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Japanese embassy said today the Tokyo foreign office was "investigating reports" that France had made a loan to China in exchange for a lease on the strategic island of Hainan, near French Indo-China.

Embassy officials also said work had been under way for several months on a narrow-gauge railway between Nanning, Kwangsi province, and the Indo-China frontier at Nancham with Chinese labor and French equipment, engineers and money.

French foreign office spokesmen, however, flatly denied the Hainan report and said "we know nothing" of the railway construction.

(In Tokyo, a Japanese foreign office spokesman said if the Hainan report were true it would cause a "great sensation in Japan" and make it necessary for Japan to "take steps." He did not say what the "steps" would be.

(The spokesman also declared Japan would object if France made a loan of 150,000,000 francs—about $4,050,000—to former finance minister T. V. Soong's bank for railroad construction in China.

(The newspaper Asahi said French financial interests already had made such a loan.)

Hail Storm Hits Lakefield Area

Ominous black clouds which circled north of this city shortly after two yesterday afternoon brought rain, lightning and a violent hail storm to Lakefield and eastward to Norwood where several line fuses were blown and hydro service disrupted.

At Lakefield the hail storm lasted about fifteen minutes and the pieces of ice as large as silver quarters beat a tattoo on roofs and windows but did no damage. Several villagers were struck on the face by ice particles which caused pain, and many expected their faces had been cut by the force of the icy pellets. Stan Darling, local insurance agent arrived in the village about a quarter hour after the storm had struck and found pieces of ice on a lawn larger than a candy lifesaver and about the same shape. He reports the hail was the largest in the history of the village.

At Norwood the hail stones were equally as large and the rain fell in torrents. The 4th Field Battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery en route, Perth to Peterborough, ran into the storm between Norwood and this city and the soldiers took shelter beneath tarpaulins. Many of them remarked on the size of the hail stones on their arrival here.

Obsessed With the Idea She Had Sinned Woman Cuts Off Hand, Tears Out Eye

MERCED, Calif., Aug. 24—(AP) —Story of how a woman, obsessed with the idea she had sinned, chopped off her left hand and gouged out her right eye was told from a jail cell here today by Woodrow Harwell, 20-year-old Texas cotton picker.

District Attorney F. A. Silveira quoted Harwell as saying he and his two young step-sons knelt in prayer yesterday afternoon in their one room cabin while his 26-year-old wife read from the bible.

She read Matthew 18:8, 9:

"And if thy hand or thy foot causeth thee to stumble, cut it off; and cast it from thee; it is good for thee to enter into life maimed or halt, rather than giving two hands or two feet to be cast into the eternal fire.

"And if thine eye causeth thee to stumble, pluck it out, and cast it from thee; it is good for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into the hell of fire."

Mrs. Harwell rose from prayer, her husband related, saying her left hand offended her and she wished forgiveness for her sins.

She went outside the cabin, Harwell said, and gouged out her eye with a pair of scissors. Then she placed her hand against a cement pipe and hacked it off with an axe. Harwell said she struck her wrist three times before she severed the offending hand.

The cotton picker said his wife came back into the cabin "apparently without pain." He bound her wrist and two hours later summoned an ambulance. At Mercy hospital doctors said the woman was in good condition and would survive.

Silveria said the husband was held for questioning because authorities did not believe it was possible for the woman to chop off her own hand.

Tornado Hits Huge Area In The North

Two Families Are Left Homeless Whitefish Area

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Aug. 24.—(CP).—Residents of the Thunder Bay district south and west of Fort William pushed clean-up work today, after the first tornado in the history of the area swept three houses and several barns to the ground, levelled telegraph and telephone poles and disrupted communications Monday night.

Two families—those of Urho Piilo and Matt Allanen—were homeless, but considered themselves lucky to have escaped without serious injury. The brief but fierce storm levelled their homes, barns, rolled an automobile over five times, killed cattle and carried an iron stove over a hill to deposit it 190 yards from the Piio home.

The tornado struck most heavily in the Whitefish River district, where the houses of Piilo and Allanen had stood. Altogether, it raged over 10 townships along a 100-mile strip before blowing itself out across the International boundary.

Clothing Six Miles Away.

Clothing of Mrs. Piilo and her daughter was picked up six miles east of the farm yesterday. The corner of the frame house in which the family and several neighbors took refuge was the only part that was not blown away.

Another two-storey building was levelled a short distance off. It was unoccupied at the time. Oher buildings in the district were damaged and shaken, some being moved from their foundations.

C. P. Millroy, foreman of a telephone line crew, said the tornado "did not steer a straight course, but came from the northwest, veered suddenly and sharply from one farm house to the other and then swung across the Whitefish river and ripped away telegraph poles.

William Harrin, station master at the Silver Mountain station of the Canadian National Railways said there was no rain, lightning or thunder. The tornado came as "a big, dark cloud that came down close to the earth. It came with such great speed that it was not until later we could realize what had happened."

Jenny Morris Is Shown Ottawa

OTTAWA, Aug. 24. (CP).—Veterans of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry today proudly showed Jenny Morris, their war-time friend and counsellor, the sights of this capital. Tonight she will be guest at a dinner given by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and attended by Lord Stanley, British secretary for the Dominions.

Miss Morris, who presided with her mother over 34 Bedford Street, London, England, where hundreds of Canadian soldiers made their home while on leave, arrived in Ottawa last night and was royally received in the town of the Princess Pats regiment.

On Thursday she will leave Ottawa for Toronto and later cross Canada to Vancouver as the guest of the Patricia veterans who cherish the memory of her kindliness during the war years.

She was presented with a key to the city last night by Mayor Stanley Lewis at an enthusiastic reception and also given the gold badge of honorary life membership in the Canadian Legion.

Major-General L. R. LaFleche, Dominion honorary president of the Legion and deputy minister of National Defence, in presenting the badge said that veterans of the Great War remembered only the things that were good and that was the reason they spanned the 20 years since the war and found Miss Morris' kindliness and hospitality as something outstanding in their lives.

Bright Sunshine Needed In West

EDMONTON, Aug. 24 (CP) — A few days of bright sunshine is needed to dry out fields of ripe crops kept damp by intermittent rains, and set harvesting in full swing through most of Alberta, Hon. D. B. Mullen, Minister of Agriculture, said in a crop report issued here.

Most of the crops are ripe and ready to cut, the minister said, but daily showers have prevented harvesting. Farmers, fearing frost, have been unable to operate binders in the field.

In the northwestern corner of the province's grain growing district, the moisture has been welcome, filling out grain that generally suffered from poor moisture conditions during the growing season.

Binders will be used in cutting the crop through the southernmost district, because excessive moisture has made combine operation impractical.

Harvesting is about 50 per cent completed in eastern sections of the province, the report said.

Coroner Finds Four Convicts Were Tortured

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24 (AP).—A picture of death among convicts driven "stark mad" by steam heat in an "air-tight cell block" was drawn today by two officials investigating the deaths of four hunger-striking prisoners of the Philadelphia county prison.

Coroner Charles Hersch said autopsies disclosed that the four—described by Warden B. Mills as "agitators" in a strike of 600 prisoners—died of suffocation in punishment cells where their nude, battered bodies were found early Monday.

The Coroner was quoted by the Philadelphia Record in a copyright story as saying the four, along with some 20 other prisoners, were placed in cells Sunday night, that the windows were closed, and steam turned into the radiators — under orders from a prison official.

"We have ascertained that one of the guards said, "let's give — the heat," Hersch was quoted. "A short time later orders were given to "turn on the heat."

"We know the guard who turned on the heat. What we want to establish now is who gave him the order."

"Black Hole of Calcutta."

Similar versions of how they said the deaths occurred were given by Hersch and Assistant District Attorney John Boyle, who said that "interrogation of witnesses" revealed conditions much more like the Black Hole of Calcutta in Holmesburg, rather than a modern prison."

Boyle declared that "nobody went near the place (punishment cells) all night."

"All night long," he said, "the prisoners were screaming and yelling to have the steam shut off.

"They needed water desperately. There was only one way to get water, and that was from the toilet hoppers. So those who had shirts on tore them off and soaked them in the hopper water, and rubbed the wet shirts on their faces and bodies to keep alive."

Coroner Hersch said the men in contrast with her pre-war ties with imperial Germany.

Given Big Loan

Britain recently granted Turkey £16,000,000 ($80,000,000) in a loan and credits, £6,000,000 ($30,000,000) of which probably will be used for munitions and warships. A Turkish naval commission now is negotiating in England for acquisition of light cruisers and gunboats as part of a plan to create a strong navy.

Concessions from France in the solution of the Sanjak (state) of Alexandreta question helped bring Turkey into line with the democracies to oppose the activity of the Rome-Berlin axis in the Balkans.

In the 15 years that Dictator-President Kamal Ataturk has been rebuilding Turkey into a modern state and mending his political fences abroad, he has not neglected rearmament at home.

Has Been Re-arming.

Turkey is increasing her stores of arms and munitions, adding to her already sizeable air force, improving her navy and strengthening her coast defences.

Part of the British loan will be used for national defence industries, including synthetic gasoline, phosphates, airplane engines, and radio equipment.

A harbor at Tchatalagzi, on the Black Sea, has been planned at a cost british engineers estimate at -2,000,000 ($10,000,000). It would be used to ship coal from Turkish collieries but is planned also so that it could be converted into a naval base.

Turkey's biggest naval base is now being completed at Guellkotjuk, in the Gulf of Ismidt on the Marmora Sea, under the direction of Netherlands engineers.

Some of the British credits, Turkey expects to use to buy heavy battery guns for both banks of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus, which she is refortifying rapidly in order to make those vital passages between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean invulnerable.

Trust Prayers To Heal Sick Son

Faith alone is curing his seven-year-old son, Carl, said Rev. James Winstead, as health authorities at Woodward, Okla., ordered court action to force the father to allow medical treatment of the boy. According to state and local doctors the boy is suffering from a serious bone infection that will prove fatal unless arrested by medical aid. Rev. Winstead, pastor of the Pentecostal church, refuses medical aid and insists that "God has touched his body," wherefore the child is improving and will recover as the result of prayer. Reverend and Mrs. Winstead are shown here praying over their afflicted son.

Honor Teacher Who Leaves Town To Become Nurse

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 23.—"We have gathered here on this occasion partly in a social way and partly to take advantage of an opportunity of honouring you," said Miss Gladly Field in an address delivered before members of a St. Johns Sunday school class who had met at the home of Mrs. A. D. Bennett, Frank street, where a presentation was made Miss Vera Clark, a former teacher at St. Johns Sunday school.

"Every once in a while there goes out from our midst someone whom we have delighted to call friend. On such occasions as these we feel that we, as a class, are suffering a loss as we are all aware of these great human qualities which you so richly possess, devotion to duty, a fine sense of humour and a kindly disposition which has made you popular with both young and old.

"On this occasion we wish you to know that we have appreciated our association with you in our Sunday school, the members of which join in wishing you health and prosperity and happiness in your profession.

"As a token of our appreciation we ask you to accept this small clock that will serve to remind you of your friends in Mrs. Bennett's class, contcluded the speaker.

Miss Clark, who will enter training at Nicholls Hospital on Sept. 1 replied thanking the members sincerely for their kindness. The remainder of the eveping was spent in music, singing and contests. The highest points in the contests were won by Miss Beatrice Clark and Miss Helen Palliser. It was Miss Palliser who made the presentation of the gift to Miss Clark.

Canadian Voices Are Being Ruined By Faulty Teaching Adjudicator Says

TORONTO, Aug. 24.—"It is pitiful to see so many fine voices in Canada ruined by improper teaching," said R. Festyn Davies last night, commenting on musical festicals in this country.

Mr. Davies, is the conductor of the well known Welsh Imperial Singers and has brought his group to Toronto for an engagement at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The gray-haired conductor said many teachers in Canada were fine pianists and organists, but knew little or nothing of tone production.

"Without toe production, the teaching of singing is nothing," he said. "I have heard many fine voices in Canada, indeed some that might be great, but they will never achieve that without proper training."

If a singer has been properly taught, he should be able to sing as well at eighty as at forty, believes Conductor Davies.

"The great Ben Davies, of Wales, is still singing concerts alhough he is past eighty, but he had proper teaching," he said.

Singers, in order to achieve greatness, must train like athletes, believes Mr. Davies.

"There can be no over-indulgence, no dissipation, if one would sing," he said.

Asked why Wales had achieved a particular distinction in choral music, Conductor Davies said Welsh men, like negroes, sang from the heart.

"When a race has been downrodden, like the Celtic race, men turn to song, but most important they do not imitate—they sing from the heart," he declared.

The organization has a repertoire of 100 songs, and will open their Exhibition program at the Coliseum with the "March of the Men of Harlech," sung in Welsh. Most of the other selections will be given in English.

This is the seventh summer the group has toured Canada, but the first time the singers have appeared at the Exhibition.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 24 (C.P.). — Southern selling and hedging pressure pushed Winnipeg wheat futures sharply lower to-day toward lows untouched in about five years. At the close values were 2¾ to 2¾ lower, 64⅞, November 64⅞, December 64¼, and May 67½ to ⅝.

After listless sessions earlier in the week when prices failed to move more than ¾ cent during entire sessions, sellers became active on a report from Chicago that the United States Government has agreed to subsidize 50,000,000 bushels of U.S. wheat.

Chicago's trend became the dominating influence in the last half of trading here. Wheat displayed marked weakness in late stages despite reports about 200,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been worked for export account.

False Teeth Wearers Are Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities . . . Recommend Polident

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath" —probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, the powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. Long-lasting can costs only 40¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic

Put plate or bridge in ¼ glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes—rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use!

Prevents "Denture Breath"

Nancy Ackerman Is In Belleville Hospital

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 24 (CP).—Nancy Ackerman, 11-year-old daughter of Colonel Charles and Mrs. Ackerman of Peterborough, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital suffering from streptococcus infection of the throat, contracted while vacationing at her father's summer home at West Point, 10 miles from Picton in Prince Edward County. Her physician, Dr. L. J. Austin of Kingston said today her condition was improved but she still was in a critical stage.

The girl was suffering from a sore throat the latter part of the week and on Sunday became worse, her throat starting to tighen up. Dr Walmsley and Dr. Hudson Leavens of Picton attended and decided on sending swabs to Kingston laboratory. When they came back positive the girl was rushed to hospital Monday. She was placed under an oxygen tent and continued improvement has been noted since.

Colors Play Tricks On Us

Whether we are aware of it or not, colors play all sorts of tricks on us. They can relax or stimulate, depress or exhilarate; they can flatter us and bring out our good points, or detract from what looks we have. They can even definitely affect our personality and deflate our ego or puncture and deflate it.

If you don't believe this try the simple effect of magenta light at the next party you give in your home. The experiment won't cost you much money, for all you will need are four or five 1,000-watt lamps and some plain holders. Then take some magenta covered slides and slip them over the lamps and conceal them behind or under your furniture. Then switch off all your other illumination and watch results.

This soft magenta glow acts like a grand little pick-me-up and it's guaranteed to stimulate conversation.

No Matter How Good a Provider the Husband May Be, He Should Show More Human Interest In His Wife Than He Does the Refrigerator or Automatic Heating

THE greatest problem with which women have to wrestle in marriage is not the philandering husband, nor the drunkard, nor the lazy loafer, but the dumb husband.

They can do something drastic about the others. Sometimes they can reform the drunkard, and when they can't they can throw the mantle of their pity over his weakness. If they think that their "I won't work" is a luxury that is worth paying for, they can go to work and support him. But what in Heaven's name is a wife to do with a husband who turns a marriage that should be a happy one into dust and ashes in her teeth by refusing to see her as a human being, much less as a woman?

There are millions of husbands like this. Fine, upright, honorable men. Sober as the town pump. Domestic as the house cat. Good providers. Give their wives fine homes, expensive cars clothes and jewels — everything except the one thing that the wives want most, and that is some sign that they are still regarded as Lady Loves and not merely as part of the household equipment.

So far as these women can tell they rate right along in their husbands' esteem with the electric refrigerator and the vacuum cleaner and automatic heating. Useful conveniences that add to their comfort. Not to be noticed as long as they function without friction and to be growled over when they go wrong, but calling for no emotional outbursts or paeans of praise.

This isn't what any woman marries for. She didn't marry for a meal ticket and neither did she marry to be a gas range to her husband. She wants to make her husband comfortable and she is willing to work her fingers to the bone to do it, but she doesn't want him to take her services as impersonally as he would that of a chair in which he had rested his tired bones or the table on which he had eaten.

So we have myriads of unhappy women who have technically "good" husbands; women married to men who are faithful, generous and indifferently kind, but who take all of their labor and their sacrifices without a word of appreciation; who never notice what they have on, or whether they are sick or well; who never take the slightest interest in any of their plans; who never show them any evidence of affection and who have not in years given them a kiss that wasn't so cold and meaningless it was an insult instead of a caress.

No one knows how many wives drag through long, lonely, bitter years of marriage, striving, hoping, praying in vain to win some tenderness from their husbands. No one knows how many wives have starved to death for some affection from their husbands and never knew that they were "beloved" until their ghosts saw it carved on their tombstones.

Now, if husbands did not love their wives or if they were so ignorant of women's natures that they did not know how their wives craved affection and what value they put upon little attentions, or if they thought that their wives were mind-readers and would know that they were devoted to them, even if they never gave an indication of it, or if they were indifferent to their wives' happiness, one could understand their atttitude in this matter.

But most men love their wives and want them to be happy. They further know that so peculiar are women that they set more value on words than deeds, yet they will not say the few words that would transform the whole of marriage to them and make it a joyride instead of the weary pilgrimage it so often is.

No marriage is a failure to a woman as long as her husband is a lover. No work is hard, no sacrifice bitter if he says "thank you" for it. She will gladly wear her old hat if her husband tells her how beautiful she looks in it, and she would rather have his arms around her than a string of matched pearls about her neck.

Men know all of this and that with a few soft words they can make their wives happy and save themselves money, arguments and friction, and yet they will not slay them. And if that isn't the limit in dumbness, what is?

* * * * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a young married woman thoroughly discouraged with life. My husband and I can never agree about anything. I have tried to make peace, but it is no use. He openly flaunts his affairs in my face. We have one child and I have decided to stand by the cradle, no matter what, but, oh, what a heartache! I have considered stepping out myself. Would it be wrong? It is lonesome looking out the window for a husband who grudgingly comes home at as late an hour as he can make.

A CHILD'S MOTHER.

Answer:

If you and your husband cannot agree and are always fighting, why do you not separate temporarily, at least? Sometimes absence makes the heart grow fonder and husbands and wives who thought they had ceased to love each other find out when they are parted that the old tie holds and they are necessary to each other's happiness.

But if you have the courage to go on living with your husband you must have the strength to add to it by refusing to quarrel with him. If you do not think alike you can keep silent about the things about which you disagree and so keep peace in the home. All psychologists agree that nothing on earth wrecks a child's life so much as being brought up in a discordant household. Better any kind of a home where there is peace. Better even an orphan asylum than a home in which there is a perpetual fight between the husband and wife.

Don't think that you have a right to have affairs with men because your husband has affairs with women. Your child should have at least one decent parent.

Mount Pleasant Wedding Party

Fashions

A new looking slubbed woollen dress for school or college, that's smart as it is practical. It's also a favorite for office and for casual town wear for early fall. It has two important kick plaits. Another detail of interest....two patch pockets....with monograming.

With the same pattern, you can make a slim line vee neck princess dress....without the front kick plaits. It's lovely of black rayon novelty crepe. An effective bi-color scheme may be had with embroidery in fuchsia or green. It's perfect for afternoons, cocktails and theatre, and yet conservative enough for town. To make it. You've practically one-piece shaped gores to join.

Style No. 3253 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40-inches bust. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.

Veils Everywhere!

Veils triumph over almost every type of ensemble at the moment. Large cavalier hats are swathed in crisp veiling, carried backward and upwards to an insolent bow at the back of the crown. Shallow boaters are held in position by a length of tulle tied over the crown and under the chin—a fashion reminiscent of an Edwardian lady taking a drive in an early motor car.

Tiny toques boast large clusters of flowers over the centre, and the whole head and face of the wearer is covered by a limp, clinging, spotted veil that is caught up to the back of the hat. Evening veils (quite the smartest and most useful method of keeping the hair in place when going to and from a party) are now mantilla-like.

HOW YOU CAN ATTRACT MEN

So start taking time-proven Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and note the difference. Pinkham's Compound, made especially for women from wholesome herbs and roots, helps Nature tone up your system and thus calms irritable nerves and gives you more pep to really enjoy life.

For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" distress from female functional disorders with Pinkham's Compound. Let it help YOU!

Do You Know?

Fresh peaches discolor if allowed to stand after washing or peeling? Prepare them as near as possible to serving time.

❖ ❖ ❖

If circles of felt from a old hat are glued to the feet of wicker chairs they will slide more easily and silently, and will not scratch the floors?

❖ ❖ ❖

Good beef, pork, or calf's liver is very bright in color and has little odor? Remember these points when selecting such meats.

❖ ❖ ❖

A handful of Epsom salts added to the water in which new cotton goods are soaked will remove dressing?

❖ ❖ ❖

A paper soaked in vinegar and placed over newly made jam before putting on the cover prevents fermentation? Let jelly stand in the sun to cool.

❖ ❖ ❖

A pudding or any hot food will cool quickly if set in a pan of cold water that has been well salted?

❖ ❖ ❖

Hard-to-remove stains around the rims of oven pie plates, casseroles, etc., can be removed by mixing a tablespoon of washing soda or soap powder with a couple of pints of hot water, then boiling the oven glass in a dish pan for a few minutes, letting the solution just cover it?

❖ ❖ ❖

If you keep your knitting needles and crochet hooks in a box with plenty of powdered starch they will not rust?

❖ ❖ ❖

A slice or two of fresh bread in the box in which you keep your fruit cake will keep it moist?

A few cloves on top of jelly, and a bowl of lime kept in the jelly closet will help prevent mould?

Wife Preservers

For iodine stains soak the stained portion of the garment in two cups of warm water and soapsuds, in which one tablespoon of household ammonia has been dropped.

Holloway Wedding Of Local Interest

A recent wedding of local interest was that of Miss Vera Liola Sheffield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sheffield, Holloway, and Mr. Everett Steele Fairman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fairman, Hastings. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, and Rev. Roy Rickard of Colborne officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charmingly gowned in rose Shiffley lace made on long princess lines that formed into a slight train. A crush rose tulle veil fell in graceful folds from a halo of lace, and she carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Audrey Sheffield was her sister's bridesmaid, and wore a gown of periwinkle blue mousseline with shoulder-length Dubonnet veil and accessories. She carried Briarcliff roses and pink larkspur.

Miss Jean Anne Sheffield, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and wore a dainty frock of orchid net in Kate Greenaway style, and a bandeau of orchid flowers. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pink and blue cornflowers and butterfly roses.

Mr. Earl Fairman, Cochrane, twin brother of the groom, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Floyd Sheffield, brother of the bride, and Mr. Gordon Fairman, Whitby, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served on the lawn, where Mrs. Sheffield received in navy blue lace with matching accessories, and corsage of red roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Fairman left on a motor trip to New York and Boston, the bride travelling in Hunter's green sheer with accessories to match. On their return they will live at Belleville.

Out of town guests were present from Cochrane, Whitby, St. Catharines, Colborne, Trenton, Hastings, Campbellford and Belleville.

BABY'S HOT LITTLE HEAD IS A DANGER SIGNAL

WHEN your baby's head feels hot to your hand you must do something. And do it quickly. Read what Mrs. Bernard Breen, of Enterprise, does and what results she gets: "My baby's cheeks and hands were so hot I was frightened. I gave him a Baby's Own Tablet at noon and by after supper he was all better."

And Mrs. Francis Carroll, of Midland, has this to say: "My little girl was so feverish I was really alarmed. Then I thought of Baby's Own Tablets, so I gave her three every two hours and by night she was up and around."

They are sweet-tasting, easy to take, absolutely safe and harmless. Work quickly and can be given to the most delicate baby. Analyst's certificate in every box.

For upset stomach, constipation troubles and other minor ills of baby.

Your druggist is authorized to return your money if you are not satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets. Get a box today. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents.

Nancy Ackerman Is In Belleville Hospital

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 24 (CP)—Nancy Ackerman, 11-year-old daughter of Colonel Charles and Mrs. Ackerman of Peterborough, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital suffering from streptococcus infection of the throat, contracted while vacationing at her father's summer home at West Point, 10 miles from Picton in Prince Edward County. Her physician, Dr. L. J. Austin of Kingston said today her condition was improved but she still was in a critical stage.

The girl was suffering from a sore throat the latter part of the week and on Sunday became worse, her throat starting to tighen up. Dr Walmsley and Dr. Hudson Leavens of Picton attended and decided on sending swabs to Kingston laboratory. When they came back positive the girl was rushed to hospital Monday. She was placed under an oxygen tent and continued improvement has been noted since.

Colors Play Tricks On Us

Whether we are aware of it or not, colors play all sorts of tricks on us. They can relax or stimulate, depress or exhilarate; they can flatter us and bring out our good points, or detract from what looks we have. They can even definitely affect our personality and deflate our ego or puncture and deflate it.

If you don't believe this try the simple effect of magenta light at the next party you give in your home. The experiment won't cost you much money, for all you will need are four or five 1,000-watt lamps and some plain holders. Then take some magenta covered slides and slip them over the lamps and conceal them behind or under your furniture. Then switch off all your other illumination and watch results.

This soft magenta glow acts like a grand little pick-me-up and it's guaranteed to stimulate conversation.

No Matter How Good a Provider the Husband May Be, He Should Show More Human Interest In His Wife Than He Does the Refrigerator or Automatic Heating

THE greatest problem with which women have to wrestle in marriage is not the philandering husband, nor the drunkard, nor the lazy loafer, but the dumb husband.

They can do something drastic about the others. Sometimes they can reform the drunkard, and when they can't they can throw the mantle of their pity over his weakness. If they think that their "I won't work" is a luxury that is worth paying for, they can go to work and support him. But what in Heaven's name is a wife to do with a husband who turns a marriage that should be a happy one into dust and ashes in her teeth by refusing to see her as a human being, much less as a woman?

There are millions of husbands like this. Fine, upright, honorable men. Sober as the town pump. Domestic as the house cat. Good providers. Give their wives fine homes, expensive cars clothes and jewels — everything except the one thing that the wives want most, and that is some sign that they are still regarded as Lady Loves and not merely as part of the household equipment.

So far as these women can tell they rate right along in their husbands' esteem with the electric refrigerator and the vacuum cleaner and automatic heating. Useful conveniences that add to their comfort. Not to be noticed as long as they function without friction and to be growled over when they go wrong, but calling for no emotional outbursts or paeans of praise.

This isn't what any woman marries for. She didn't marry for a meal ticket and neither did she marry to be a gas range to her husband. She wants to make her husband comfortable and she is willing to work her fingers to the bone to do it, but she doesn't want him to take her services as impersonally as he would that of a chair in which he had rested his tired bones or the table on which he had eaten.

So we have myriads of unhappy women who have technically "good" husbands; women married to men who are faithful, generous and indifferently kind, but who take all of their labor and their sacrifices without a word of appreciation; who never notice what they have on, or whether they are sick or well; who never take the slightest interest in any of their plans; who never show them any evidence of affection and who have not in years given them a kiss that wasn't so cold and meaningless it was an insult instead of a caress.

No one knows how many wives drag through long, lonely, bitter years of marriage, striving, hoping, praying in vain to win some tenderness from their husbands. No one knows how many wives have starved to death for some affection from their husbands and never knew that they were "beloved" until their ghosts saw it carved on their tombstones.

Now, if husbands did not love their wives or if they were so ignorant of women's natures that they did not know how their wives craved affection and what value they put upon little attentions, or if they thought that their wives were mind-readers and would know that they were devoted to them, even if they never gave an indication of it, or if they were indifferent to their wives' happiness, one could understand their attitude in this matter.

But most men love their wives and want them to be happy. They further know that so peculiar are women that they set more value on words than deeds, yet they will not say the few words that would transform the whole of marriage to them and make it a joyride instead of the weary pilgrimage it so often is.

No marriage is a failure to a woman as long as her husband is a lover. No work is hard, no sacrifice bitter if he says "thank you" for it. She will gladly wear her old hat if her husband tells her how beautiful she looks in it, and she would rather have his arms around her than a string of matched pearls about her neck.

Men know all of this and that with a few soft words they can make their wives happy and save themselves money, arguments and friction, and yet they will not slay them. And if that isn't the limit in dumbness, what is?

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a young married woman thoroughly discouraged with life. My husband and I can never agree about anything. I have tried to make peace, but it is no use. He openly flaunts his affairs in my face. We have one child and I have decided to stand by the cradle, no matter what, but, oh, what a heartache! I have considered stepping out myself. Would it be wrong? It is lonesome looking out the window for a husband who grudgingly comes home at as late an hour as he can make.

A CHILD'S MOTHER.

Answer:

If you and your husband cannot agree and are always fighting, why do you not separate temporarily, at least? Sometimes absence makes the heart grow fonder and husbands and wives who thought they had ceased to love each other find out when they are parted that the old tie holds and they are necessary to each other's happiness.

But if you have the courage to go on living with your husband you must have the strength to add to it by refusing to quarrel with him. If you do not think alike you can keep silent about the things about which you disagree and so keep peace in the home. All psychologists agree that nothing on earth wrecks a child's life so much as being brought up in a discordant household. Better any kind of a home where there is peace. Better even an orphan asylum than a home in which there is a perpetual fight between the husband and wife.

Don't think that you have a right to have affairs with men because your husband has affairs with women. Your child should have at least one decent parent.

Mount Pleasant Wedding Party

Holloway Wedding Of Local Interest

A recent wedding of local interest was that of Miss Vera Liola Sheffield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sheffield, Holloway, and Mr. Everett Steele Fairman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fairman, Hastings. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, and Rev. Roy Rickard of Colborne officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charmingly gowned in rose Shiffley lace made on long princess lines that formed into a slight train. A crush rose tulle veil fell in graceful folds from a halo of lace, and she carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Audrey Sheffield was her sister's bridesmaid, and wore a gown of periwinkle blue mousseline with shoulder-length Dubonnet veil and accessories. She carried Briarcliff roses and pink larkspur.

Miss Jean Anne Sheffield, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and wore a dainty frock of orchid net in Kate Greenaway style, and a bandeau of orchid flowers. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pink and blue cornflowers and butterfly roses.

Mr. Earl Fairman, Cochrane, twin brother of the groom, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Floyd Sheffield, brother of the bride, and Mr. Gordon Fairman, Whitby, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served on the lawn, where Mrs. Sheffield received in navy blue lace with matching accessories, and corsage of red roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Fairman left on a motor trip to New York and Boston, the bride travelling in Hunter's green sheer with accessories to match. On their return they will live at Belleville.

Out of town guests were present from Cochrane, Whitby, St. Catharines, Colborne, Trenton, Hastings, Campbellford and Belleville.

Fashions

A new looking slubbed woollen dress for school or college, that's smart as it is practical. It's also a favorite for office and for casual town wear for early fall. It has two important kick plaits. Another detail of interest....two patch pockets....with monograming.

With the same pattern, you can make a slim line vee neck princess dress....without the front kick plaits. It's lovely of black rayon novelty crepe. An effective bi-color scheme may be had with embroidery in fuchsia or green. It's perfect for afternoons, cocktails and theatre, and yet conservative enough for town. To make it. You've practically one-piece shaped gores to join.

Style No. 3253 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40-inches bust. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.

Veils Everywhere!

Veils triumph over almost every type of ensemble at the moment. Large cavalier hats are swathed in crisp veiling, carried backward and upwards to an insolent bow at the back of the crown. Shallow boaters are held in position by a length of tulle tied over the crown and under the chin—a fashion reminiscent of an Edwardian lady taking a drive in an early motor car.

Tiny toques boast large clusters of flowers over the centre, and the whole head and face of the wearer is covered by a limp, clinging, spotted veil that is caught up to the back of the hat. Evening veils (quite the smartest and most useful method of keeping the hair in place when going to and from a party) are now mantilla-like.

HOW YOU CAN ATTRACT MEN

Don't let love and romance pass you by. Men like girls with lots of pep and energy.

So start taking time-proven 'Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and note the difference. Pinkham's Compound, made especially for women from wholesome herbs and roots, helps Nature tone up your system and thus calms irritable nerves and gives you more pep to really enjoy life.

For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" distress from female functional disorders with Plakham's Compound. Let it help YOU!

BABY'S HOT LITTLE HEAD IS A DANGER SIGNAL

WHEN your baby's head feels hot to your hand you must do something. And do it quickly. Read what Mrs. Bernard Breen, of Enterprise, does and what results she gets: "My baby's cheeks and hands were so hot I was frightened. I gave him a Baby's Own Tablet at noon and by after supper he was all better."

And Mrs. Francis Carroll, of Midland, has this to say: "My little girl was so feverish I was really alarmed. Then I thought of Baby's Own Tablets, so I gave her three every two hours and by night she was up and around."

They are sweet-tasting, easy to take, absolutely safe and harmless. Work quickly and can be given to the most delicate baby. Analyst's certificate in every box.

Did It The Clumsy Way

There are occasions when one is inclined to believe there are certain disadvantages attached to a position in the gift of a municipality. To illustrate: At the last meeting of the Board of Control in Toronto it was stated by Controller Fred Hamilton that need existed for a thorough house-cleaning in the city hall, and he was ready to suggest the retirement of Finance Commissioner George Wilson. It was stated in a blunter way than that; the Controller would ask for Mr. Wilson's resignation. After having done that he would hasten to secure the service of Chester Walters who is at the moment Premier Hepburn's financial man. Mr. Hepburn may carry the title of Provincial Treasurer, but the finances of the province are largely in the hands of Mr. Walters.

There was no complaint made about the work which Mr. Wilson had been doing as finance commissioner for Toronto, but he is 73 years of age and it was said a new man and a younger man was needed. It is likely a change will be made, but that is such a clumsy and unkind way to start it. In a private business concern we are quite certain a financier who has shown the ability of Mr. Wilson would have been told in a nice way and quietly that he had earned a rest, and that plans had been made to see that he got it in the way of retirement. No officials would ever have announced publicly and in advance that he was going to ask for and insist on getting his resignation and that he already had an eye on a better man for the post.

There are always several ways of doing anything, and the Toronto controller selected the one which was awkward, rather clumsy and also unkind.

A Valuable Concession

Predictions from England are that the preference which Canada now enjoys in selling wheat in the British market may be wiped out in the new trade agreement between United States and Britain. At the time of the Economic Conference at Ottawa the Canadian delegation suggested that Canada should have a preference on her wheat in the British market, and that was actually done. The method was to place a duty against wheat importations generally, but if the wheat came from Canada and was shipped from a Canadian port then the duty was not collected. It gave the Canadian grain business an advantage of six cents per bushel, and the only time when it might have been changed was in the event of Canada not being able to provide all the wheat required.

That agreement meant a good deal to this country, not only in having that price preference in the Old Land, but also in making it compulsory for the wheat from Canada to be shipped through Canadian ports. Previously much of it had gone out through Buffalo and other shipping points in United States which were easier and cheaper to reach than the Canadian outlets.

If our advantage in the British market is to be rubbed out through the new trade agreement with United States this country is going to feel it particularly in a year when we have a rather large surplus of wheat in sight. Also it will mean that the advantage which Canadian ports have had will be forfeited and shipping points in United States will have a trade returned to them which they lost when the agreement with Britain was made in 1932.

Of course there is nothing official yet to show that there may be any changes made, but reports from usually well-informed sources in England indicate that the matter is under consideration. It may be the British people found the concession they had made was too great for the advantage they received in the way of allowing freer access to our markets for some of their manufactured goods. The preference which we enjoy in the British market is a valuable thing for our country and it is not good news to be informed we stand a chance of losing it.

It's Much Too Great

We have read of a number of methods to try and make people understand how much there was in a billion dollars. R. N. Norrington was speaking to delegates attending the National Fraternal Congress in Toronto, telling of the amount of money which had been paid out to the American people last year by life insurance companies. The total was $2,400,000,000, and that works out at the rate of $4,166 every minute of the year, day and night.

Mr. Norrington said a pile of $1,000 bills ten inches high would be a million dollars. In a way that seemed simple enough although we cannot recall having seen a $1,000 bill, but a newspaper column is an even two inches of space so the million dollar pile would be just the width of five columns. So taking it for granted that there are such things as thousand dollar bills we could get some idea of what the million dollar bundle would look like.

The billion dollar illustration was more difficult because Mr. Norrington said would make a pile of $1,000 bills which would extend 830 feet in the air. But the $2,400,000,000 pile of $1,000 bills would extend to a height twice that of the Empire State building in New York city. And that left our powers of calculation cold and inactive.

* * *

Administrator Ickes was trying to show how much a billion dollars was. He said that in the first 25 working days after President Roosevelt signed the spending-lending bill at Washington funds were allotted to the various WPA projects at the rate of $5,531,510 each working hour. And at that rate the total amount allotted was still $159,531,370 short of a billion dollars.

Whether that makes it any clearer or more readily understood is doubtful.

* * *

And yet we are living in a time when money is constantly referred to in millions and billions. It has been established that the entire debt of this country is about seven billion dollars, that is, federal, municipal and provincial, and we doubt very much if mentioning such a figure means a thing to the people of this country.

And yet the serious part of the whole business comes just here—we sent men to legislature and to parliament and there they encountered problems in which these great amounts are involved. The average age man going into one of our governing bodies would never have had any experience in dealing with a million dollars. It would be so far over his head that he could not understand it. In his own business he may have been dealing in terms of hundreds or of thousands, and that financial depth would be where his footing would be secure. He would understand management and economy and thrift on that smaller basis but when he meets with figures of millions and then of billions we do not believe he can feel at home in such surroundings nor can he have a thorough working knowledge of amounts which are so far beyond his depth.

Another Hitch-Hiker

It was stated in these columns recently that good reasons were often provided in the news columns showing why drivers of motor cars can't be too careful about picking up hitch hikers.

Jennry Howard was driving toward Regina when she gave a lift to a man who turned out to be Dave Sangret. All went well for a time but one of the tires gave out and Miss Howard got out to fix it. The man who was riding with her said he knew nothing about tires and remained seated.

The rest of the story was related in magistrate's court at Regina. When Jenny Howard was changing the tire the man who remained seated went through the woman's hand bag and stole the jewelry and cash it contained.

Hitch hikers may wonder at times why business is bad, but such stories as the one from Regina offer part of the explanation.

The Duty of a Husband

Once more we are at the season of the year when the average man is liable to be met with a request when he goes home at noon or at night and it will probably be condensed to few words. Just—"Taste this." Putting down tomatoes and onions and such things against the cold days of winter.

It might be urged and with sufficient reason that if there were a certain number of ounces of this and that placed in a given quantity of tomatoes or onions or cucumbers or anything else that the desired effect would be certain of attainment. It should be as definite as the lady's habit of measuring cloth by finding that a yard is the distance she can reach with outstretched arm with the other end of the goods placed against the end of her nose. But the tasting business is an elusive thing. The mixture needs a little more of this or that and the man of the house is supposed to be the one who can do the tasting and say right off "Another touch of mustard or vinegar or cloves or celery seed or salt" or anything else which may be contained in the family bag of tricks.

Just why the ladies continue to place such confidence in the tasting and testing abilities of their husbands is hard to fathom. And if the truth were told we dare say the average married man would be ready to admit that he has not the faintest idea of what should be added to the chili sauce or anything else. Most times he will smack his lips and say "That's just right." We believe that is the best and the safest reply to make. If he gets a little more enthusiastic and says "By crickey, you'd hit it off just to the king's taste this year!" why that is still better. It causes a certain amount of joy as well as sweet smell to pervade the family kitchen.

The "taste this" season comes each and every year. There are more and better cook books than ever before; there are more people with deep knowledge ready to give advice and kindly suggestion; there are cooking schools and demonstrations. But the husband retains his exalted post as chief taster against all comers.

Edmonton Experiments

The Unemployed Relief Department in Edmonton has been experimenting during the last three years. The superintendent of the place admits it can be called "gambling," but gambling of a sort to which few will take exception.

There were people on the relief roll who had reason to believe that with a little assistance they could get started in something which would provide for them, but they needed some capital. The relief office knew them, and in a number of cases agreed they should have a chance. In three years there have been 90 such cases, and in only two of them has it been found the city has lost the money it advanced.

To be more specific in explaining the plan—one man had a knowledge of shoe-making and repairing, and he knew where he could get a shop. Today he is in the repair business and earning a living. A woman and her daughter knew of a town where they could take possession of a small restaurant, but they needed money to fix it up and get started. They have been in business for months and are doing well enough.

Some of these people stay in Edmonton; others do not. There appears to be no hard and fast rule. The relief officials would not grant a loan where it did not apear there was a fair chance for success, nor would they encourage greater competition with existing concerns, but they are trying to get people to make work and openings for themselves rather than merely seek jobs or stay on relief.

How wide an application could be given to the Edmonton idea we do not know. Each loan made would mean that the city was accepting a degree of risk. Against that could be placed the possibily that a name was being definitely removed from the relief list, and the experience of Edmonton in 90 cases is that only two have failed and returned as charges against the city. We regard the experiment as interesting and profitable because it has injected a ray of hope into the lives of a good many people. It has also shown that there are a number of folk who can get along and do something for themselves if they are given the backing necessary to make only a modest start.

NOTE AND COMMENT

One thing which seems hard on royalty is that each time a birthday arrives the papers publish the age.

An inventor says he has a new way for running autos without gear shift or clutch. We were towed in one day and that's exactly the way the car ran.

A farmer used his car to take a sick cow to London, Ont., to see a vet. And now the other barnyard animals around the place are starting to look a bit ailing.

Woman in Dundas found an old mattress she bought second hand contained a large number of ten dollar bills. That's one place where money would get a person down.

Miss Catharine O'Rourke tax colector of the city of Chatham for 11 years, has resigned. Even if a taxpayer were much riled up within he couldn't very well talk back to a lady.

A visitor says Toronto folk drive far more carefully than do people in the United States. At that rate our cousins across the line cannot drive carefully at all.

We read in the Kitchener Record that "M. H. Philips states there is no unemployment among local laborers." We looked the second time and found it was among the items headed "Ten Years Ago."

Man in Toronto charged in court the other day with having stolen $25 from a doctor in 1933 said he had never been out of Toronto. And those five years spent in the community would have given him plenty of time to have handed the $25 back.

HIS STORY

(By A. R. K.)

¶ John Thomas tells me now and then, he's counted with the humble men, not like he used to be; for he was born to greater things, and of the past he always sings, and spills it all to me.

¶ When he starts on his sorry fate, he speaks about his sire's estate, its house of many rooms; he tells me of the horses there, the hunters that were scoured with care, by half a dozen grooms.

¶ He tells of servants in the place, fair ladies lined with youth and grace, of tennants and their dues; before he ever reached his woes, he had a man to press his clothes, another shined his shoes.

¶ And near this excellent abode, there were broad acres where he rode, and hunted with the hounds; the guests who came were picked with care, the trumpets broke the woodland air, and made such merry sounds.

¶ John Thomas tells me of these days, and lives much in a bygone haze, of many years ago; and then he tells me of his rent, how he can't find another cent, his funds are very low.

¶ John Thomas comes in now and then, and talks of rich and titled men, of his ancestral home; I know quite well when he's begun, that ere his tale of woe is done—he'll touch me for a loan.

Farmers Think Relief Cut Due

(By RUSTICUS in Stratford Beacon-Herald)

THE MONTHLY CROP Report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has just been issued. In glancing through the report we were reminded of a question the Beacon-Herald recently put to a number of residents of the city concerning immigration. The majority of these people apparently favored selected immigration. They stressed the fact that care must be taken so that the new-comers would not become dependent upon the State, and they seemed to agree that any immigrants permitted to enter should settle upon the land.

The recent crop report compares farm produce prices of Aug. 10th, 1937, and Aug. 10th, 1938. We note that cheese at 15c per lb. is the only unchanged item in the list of staple produce. Butter, on the other hand, has declined in price 11.2 per cent. and since Aug. 10th the decline has been more severe. The decline in the price of grain this year, as compared with a year ago, is even more severe. Wheat, for instance, is down 41.5 per cent. from a year ago. The decline in oats is about 28 per cent. and barley is down 21 per cent.

The best steers were selling for 10½ cents a pound in Toronto a year ago. At a corresponding week this August they brought 7½ cents. Hogs were $12. per cwt. in the week ending Aug. 11, 1937; in 1938 they brought $10.50 on the same basis. It will be readily seen that the farmer's income is therefore considerably lower this year than it was a year ago. The unfortunate part is that there is every likelihood of further declines.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN THE FACE of these rather drastic declines in farm produce prices, do we want more farmers to settle on our undeveloped lands and add further to the surplus problem? Would organized labor welcome an influx of skilled mechanics, while the labor market is overcrowded? We are not taking up the argument, but it does bring a smile when city folk are so anxious to populate the country, particularly the rural portions of it.

Another thing that caught our eye was the phrase "providing they are the proper kind." Now, why does not Canada produce the proper kind of men? One would naturally imagine that a young country like Canada should be a paradise for the rearing of men and women who could put their shoulders to the wheel and make a go of things; and yet with tens of thousands of unemployed and many of them with farm experience we speak of opening our doors to families from other shores that are of the "proper kind." So we boast of our schools, our freedom, of that something they call democracy that thousands of Canadians laid down their life for something like twenty years ago, and from it all we get is a class of men and women that unconsciously we admit are not "the proper kind."

OH, NONE OF US has the nerve just yet to tell these folk just that. We try to be polite and call them the unfortunate product of a depression. But out through the rural sections the feeling is growing that the unemployment problem must be tackled. Tackled not with increased relief grants, but with reductions. Tackled with a drastic reduction in hourly wage rates, so that goods may be produced cheaper and buying thus stimulated, with a consequent increase in employment.

The Hon. R. J. Manion's suggestion that the Dominion assume full responsibility for relief costs may meet with approval in some urban sections. The farming population will protest. We are carrying too large a portion of it today—and if there is room in Canada for people of the proper kind from other countries, then the farmers of this country demand that those on relief today explain why they have not the courage and backbone to take the place of those we might allow to come in.

INSOMNIA.

(Wall Street Journal)

A COFFEE salesman was travelling through the South, and as he waited for a train in a little southern town he chatted with a lazy looking colored man idling on a bench at the station.

"Ever drink coffee?" he inquired, with an eye to stirring up interest in his line.

The colored man allowed as how he did. He drank a lot of coffee. Fifty cups a day, he answered.

"Fifty cups a day; Doesn't it keep you awake" inquired the astonished salesman.

"Well, it helps", answered the colored man.

PUT IT IN THE BIN.

(Lethbridge Herald)

WHY SELL BARLEY at 20 cents a bushel and oats at 15 cents—the going prices?

Why rush wheat to the market at 50 cents to 63 cents a bushel?

Farmers should ask themselves these questions now as harvest gets under way and decide whether it would not be the part of wisdom to accept the advice to fill up the bins on the farm and leave as much grain as possible where it will serve as the best reservoir of credit and stability.

DREAMS

A dream can be so sweet a thing,
What royal rapture dreams can bring,
'Tis life within a life it seems,
Heaven's perfect peace to dream of dreams.

Once in my dreams you came to me,
To sleep beneath a wishing tree,
I wished to dream a song for you
Your wish for me—my dream come true.

I wake to find my wishing tree,
I bring my song of love to thee.
Dreams do come true—or so it seems,
I dreamed a song—my song of dreams
I'd ever wish to dream and sing
A dream can be so sweet a thing.

• The Result of Being Sensible

(Chatham News)

AN INTERESTING STORY and accompanying comment is offered by Bruce Catton, a well known American writer, to illustrate the friendly feeling between Canada and the United States, and the absence of war talk between these two countries. He tells of a big commercial transport plane which was flying from Cleveland to Detroit the other day. Taking the shortest route, it swung northwest across Lake Erie, flew over a sizeable corner of Ontario, and then crossed the Detroit river and glided down to a landing at the Detroit airport.

One of the passengers was a young man who recently spent upwards of a year in Germany with the branch office of an American firm. When he got out of the plane he remarked:

"That was the most thrilling thing that has happened since I got back to America."

"What—this flight?" asked an acquaintance.

"No," said the young man. "The way we flew over the international boundary without anybody noticing it. We crossed from the United States flew over Canada, and then flew back—and nobody said a word. That's the sort of thing that couldn't happen in Europe. Planes don't cross international boundaries there not without a lot of negotiation and formality. They go far out of their way to avoid flying over a little strip of foreign territory. If they didn't, the pursuit planes would go after them."

Which, adds Mr. Catton, is just another way of saying that we who live in North America never realize how lucky we are—until we see what we would be up against if the European system prevailed over here.

But perhaps it isn't entirely luck, after all. When you stop to think about it, there is nothing to prevent the United States and Canada from distrusting each other and glaring sullenly across the border in the European manner — nothing except the fact that each nation uses good sense and neighborly forbearance.

The United States, for instance, could easily claim that it "needs" the raw materials which Canada has. It could argue that unless it "controlled" the supply of these things its whole economy would be endangered. And it could go ahead and lay plans for the conquest of the Dominion.

Canada, on the other hand, could point out that its liberty was endangered by the colossus to the south. It could complain about the disruptive influence of American visitors—those C. I. O. organizers who have disturbed Ontario's premier, for example—and it could close the border with patrols, forts and so on.

The situation that would result would be every bit as logical as the situation which is commonplace on almost every European border.

That peaceful boundary between the United States and Canada is, as the young traveller remarked, an immensely thrilling thing. But it doesn't exist by accident.

It is what it is because the people of the two countries have chosen to act sensibly.

• He Wanted An Education

(From Shining Lines)

WHEN ANY YOUNG fellow tells us he was unable to get an education because his parents were too poor to send him to school and college, we know that the real reason was his own lack of desire for education. Men get what they desire and in just the measure of that desire.

At this moment we happen to be thinking about Ralph E. Cannon, who entered the Grove High School, Pennsylvania, in 1917. He became a printer's devil on the old Mercer County Herald, working after school and Saturdays. After three years at the cases, and job and cylinder presses, he began to learn the Linotype, a Model 1 that had been in service for about thirteen years.

This youngster invested twenty-five dollars of hard earned money on an advertised course in Linotype operation. After he got one lesson the man who advertised the course died. That investment had to be charged up to experience. Then he proceeded to learn the machine with the aid of the shop foreman.

"Two hours before and two hours after school and Saturdays, during my senior year in high school, gave me sufficient experience to get a full time job after graduation," writes Mr. Cannon. "During the school year I edited a news column of high school items, and frequently set the type from pencil notes."

A year later a daily newspaper job in Ellwood City was offered him. After fourteen months work he had sufficient funds to start realizing his ambition to get a college education. "I gave up my job," he writes, "and entered Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio, in the fall of 1923. It was during the ensuing four years that I came to realize more than previously the splendid co-operation of printers with a youth seeking a college education who had to pay his own way."

He did very little outside work during the college year, but did some typesetting on the New Concord Weekly and in a Cambridge, Ohio, commercial printing plant. During his Christmas vacation he went to the Ellwood City newspaper. For the first two summers he returned to Grove City and obtained steady work on the Reporter, a semi-weekly. "The third summer," he writes, "I was obliged to hit the road, but landed thirteen weeks of vacation time on the Franklin News Herald, The Butler Eagle, and The Eagle Printery. During my last Christmas vacation I set telephone directory at nights for The Eagle Printery."

Having majored in business administration and English, he was graduated from college in the spring of 1927. His graduation thesis was titled, "The International Typographical Union and the Trade Union Movement." Previous to that he had written a paper on the subject "Printing as an Educational Art."

After graduation he had a combination shop and office position on the Grove City Reporter-Herald for nine months. Then he was with the Forest City News, Forest City, Pennsylvania, writing news and advertising. At the end of six months his college called him back as business manager and publicity director, which position he held for four years. Four years ago he returned to Grove City as business manager of the Osteopathic Hospital.

Of course we are wondering how any man, having had so much experience in newspaper offices and printing plants, could possibly go away from places where he might smell ink and listen to the click of Linotypes and the whir of presses.

Anyway, there's a condensed story of a young man who got an education because he desired an education, and was willing to work for what he wanted.

A HEN AND A HALF.

(Letter to Victoria Times)

SIR: I HAD MY attention drawn to a magazine which recently published the correct answer to the question which has been puzzling many of your readers: "If a hen and a half laid an egg and a half in a day and a half, how many eggs would six hens lay in seven days?"

The correct answer is worked out this way:

Most people assume that if a hen and a half laid an egg and a half in a day and a half, one hen lays one egg in one day. But if two men drink two bottles of beer in two hours, one man doesn't drink one bottle of beer in one hour. One man drinks one bottle of beer in two hours.

So one chicken will lay one egg in a day and a half.

Or one chicken will lay two-thirds of an egg in one day.

And six chickens will lay four eggs in one day.

In seven days therefore, six chickens will lay 28 eggs.

FERDINAND ALEXANDER.

The Navy (London)

THE KING AND QUEEN drove from Victoria to Buckingham Palace and through the length of Buckingham Palace Road crowds were waiting for them, sitting on the curb and standing behind ordering themselves with self-discipline and consideration. There was a stray policeman here and there, and at rare intervals a mounted police officer in the roadway. For the rest, here were some part of the citizens of London, and through the human lane which they made, the King and Queen drove just as any of us might have driven. There were no troops, no fixed bayonets, no warlike preparations. Here their Majesties were home among their own, safe and sure in the keeping of a grateful and a welcoming people.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

O FOOLISH GALATIANS, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth, before whose eyes Jesus Christ hath been evidently set forth, crucified among you? This only would I learn of you, Receive ye the Spirit by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith? Are ye so foolish? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the flesh? . . .

Howbeit then, when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them which by nature are no gods. But now, after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage?

For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another. . . . This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would. . . . If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

CANADA'S SENATE

(Niagara Falls Review)

It was expected at one time that eminent Canadians would be honored by appointment to the Senate but most of us know some appointees who have been chosen because they have been good contributors or safe party men. Senators have complained about having nothing to do, having to wait for action in the Commons, but there is no reason why some legislation cannot be inaugurated in the more leisurely air of the Senate.

Don't Keep on Having Constipation!

If constipation's got you down—so you feel heavy, tired and dopey—it's time you did something about it. And something more than taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat only the things most people do, the chances are that a very simple fact causes your constipation—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, eat crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

READ THIS FIRST:

Determined to show Dr. Julian Paige, the man she is in love with, that she can make her own way in the world, Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, burns her bridges behind her, mover to a rooming house and, for lack of anything better, obtains a job as a taxi dancer at the Peacock run by Nick Luigi. She is living with a girl named Laurie Evans, whom she met in the park and who is a cashier at the restaurant which Julian patronizes. Noel feels she has a dangerous rival in Ruth Chester, Julian's pretty nurse. At the Peacock Noel meets a young man named Chris Landers, who is far more refined than the other men she dances with. Then one night she is amazed to find both Chris and Julian waiting for her as she leaves the Peacock. Julian takes her home but he is angry because Noel had failed to tell him where she was working and he doubts her sincerity. After a bitter quarrel, Julian leaves in a huff. Noel finally obtains a position as governess at the home of a Mrs. Garwood, a queer woman, but defers taking it when she finds that Laurie has been brought home from work seriously ill. When Noel reports late to the Peacock one evening, one of the other girls tells her that Luigi, being jealous, had told Chris that Noel no longer worked there. In her delirium Laurie calls for Jimmy but Noel can find no clue to his identity. The nurse on the case is obliged to leave and her place is taken by Ruth Chester, much to Noel's amazement and dislike.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 24

The next morning a little past 8, Noel found herself on her way to Julian's office. She had never been inside his office before, though once or twice she had stood outside the door.

She found that he had two rooms, a waiting room furnished rather shabbily, and the room he used for consultations with patients, on the closed door of which was written "Private."

Noel took a seat in the outer waiting room, and looked around. The shabby rug was rumpled in places. There was a table containing some well-worn magazines. And a number of chairs.

Several people, evidently patients, were sitting around the room. In one corner there was a girl behind a small table on which there were two telephones. She wore a cheap looking red silk dress, and her sandy hair was done up in tight curls all over her head.

She looked at Noel indifferently when she came in, and continued her conversation with a red-haired young man with pimples who wore the uniform of a bus driver.

Noel picked up a magaine. At that moment the inside door opened and a man came out. The girl behind the table called out, "Next, please," in a rather shrill voice.

A woman who appeared to be about 40, girlishly dressed in expensive clothes and reeking with perfume, rose and started to the inner door.

"You're not next," the girl called out in her unpleasant voice.

"I'm tired of waiting," the woman said pettisly. "Besides, I know dear Doctor Paige doesn't know I'm here, or he wouldn't let me wait." There was a suggestion of a simper in her voice.

"You'll have to wait your turn," the girl said indifferently.

"I'm next," a young man spoke up from behind a newspaper. "She can go in my place, and I'll wait."

The girl at the desk shrugged and turned again to the young man in uniform, while the woman moved immediately toward the door, and opened it with her head held high.

"These society dames give me a pain," the girl said, sliding deeper into her chair. "They think the whole world must stop for them. And there's not a thing the matter with her, either. She's just got a crush on the doctor." Then she gave a giggle. "But he knows how to get rid of dames like her."

She was, of course, talking to the young man in the uniform, but Noel couldn't very well help overhearing. She soon found that the girl was right. Only about two seconds elapsed before the door was opened again, and the air was once more filled with perfume. The woman's voice came heavily, "Thank you so much, doctor. You're such a comfort. Now, are you real sure you can't have dinner with me tonight?"

Noel heard Julian's voice courteous but firm, declining the invitation. The woman left the office with a flourish. The girl behind the table, which did service as a desk, called out "Next", and a man got up and disappeared behind the closed door.

At last it was Noel's turn. She went in to find Julian bent over his desk with his face between his fingers. He said, not looking up, "Just a minute, please."

Noel took a chair near his big roll-top desk and waited. A minute or two passed, then Julian turned around in his swivel chair and faced her.

He drew a quick, sharp breath. "Noel!" he exclaimed in surprise. Then asked, "Have you been ill?"

She shook her head. "I'm never ill. Laurie is, however," she went on, "and your very efficient nurse insisted that I see a doctor. She didn't say for me to come to you. In fact, she rather insisted that I see another doctor, a Doctor Archer, I believe, but I—well, I had my own ideas," she finished with a little ghost of a smile. Then she went on, some of the old bitterness rising in her voice. "Of course I know you have no responsibility toward me now, but perhaps professionally—" her voice broke, and she could not finish.

"That was not very kind, Noel," Julian said. And added, "I'm glad you came to me. If you had not, I should have felt—" he stopped. Then went on, "You do look tired, Noel. Too much dancing and excitement, I'd say. I shall prescribe a rest and a complete change. Say the Riviera—Aix-less-Bains. Or if you should prefer Paris," he gave a little shrug. "It should be nice there in the Bois with the chestnut trees in bloom. Yes, I think after all, I shall insist on Paris."

"It wouldn't do any earthly good," Noel retorted.

"You mean you wouldn't follow my prescription?"

"I certainly would not."

"I seem to remember that you are a very stubborn young lady," Julian said, his voice tense.

Suddenly Noel said unhappily, "Are we going to quarrel again, Junian?"

And Julian's voice came, briskly rofessional, "Certainly not. We—haven't time." Then he said in a low voice, "We do seem to have a queer propensity for hurting each other, don't we?"

Thence once again he lapsed into his professional manner, drew a pad from a cubbyhole of his desk, and wrote upon it rapidly. "Have this filled. It will help you. It's a mild tonic, nothing more." He glanced toward the door.

Noel knew that she was being dismissed. But it was hard to go. Julian looked tired and worn, and his bronzed face was thinner. She couldn't even see the little inaipient dimple in his chin. But then, of course, that only came out, seemingly, when he smiled.

"You haven't been taking care of yourself, Julian," she said suddenly.

"I am tired," he admitted. "Got to manage for a day in the country before long. Of course we doctors don't take many days off."

Noel smiled with tender reminiscence, thinking of their day on the river, when Julian had thrown away his dignity and had behaved like a happy boy. All of a sudden, she said impulsively, "I've missed you, Julian.

His face seemed to harden, as if he were struggling to put a barrier between them. "That is flattering," he said, "when you consider the number of men paying you devoted homage."

"And that—is unkind," Noel said in a low voice.

Julian looked contrite. "I'm sorry," he said, and added in a voice that was not quite steady, "forgive me, my dear. I'm—a little overworked, I suppose."

Noel managed a smile. "Of course I forgive you." Then she added, "I would never have thought of coming here had it not been for Miss Chester. She made me promise to go to a doctor."

Julian's tired face relaxed in a smile now. "She's determined like that, one of the best nurses I ever saw. Somehow she nearly always manages to get her way about things."

Noel had reached the door now, so he said goodby. She went out with Julian's last words echoing ominously in her mind.

So Ruth Chester had a manner of getting her way about things, did she Did that mean that she would probably get Julian too, because she was determined to haye him?

When Noel reached home, there was no change in Laurie. Ruth Chester was consulting with Doctor Merridew, who was on the point of leaving.

Remembering Laurie's pitiful plea, Noel made another search for some clue as to who Jimmy might be. A sudden thought came. Laurie's purse. She hadn't looked in it. There might be a card or a picture or something.

In a few minutes Noel was eagerly searching through the few things the purse contained. A comb from a 10-cent store. A fresh handkerchief. Lipstick and a small cheap compact. Nothing else.

Then Noel heard something crackle against the lining in one of the small compartments. She drew out a letter. Even before she opened it, she knew it was from Jimmy.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, August 25.

With very powerful aspects between major planets, this day should be of prime importance in weaving life patterns toward goals of influence and significance. Contacts with those in place and power should be utilized to bring such objectives to a head. But the friendship of the mighty may be accompanied by friction or opposition of elders or conservative superiors. Drastic change, big opportunities and complete reorientation of plans may result.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is face a year of prime importance in shaping their future destinies and their plan of usefulness and happiness, as well as prestige and popularity. Powerful friends in high places may further such ambitions, but some opposition and friction may accrue. But new openings, lucrative agreements and changed environs are assured.

A child born on this day may be unusually endowed for the atttainment of place and power in life, probably far beyond its station at birth. Its fine faculties, sound objectives, and its splendid personal attributes may attract the support of influential persons. It also may have noteworthy social bearing and prestige.

Attempted Break-In Milbrook House

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 24. — H. A. Kerr's residence at the corner of Union and Centre Streets was the scene of an attempted burglary between eight and nine o'clock last evening. Miss Fee, who lives nearby, saw two men try to get in by the front entrance, run away, and then come back again, this time finding the key and entering the home. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr are absent on holidays.

Miss Fee ran across to her neighbor's, R. A. Wainman, whose son Harold disturbed the intruders by running across to the verandah, when they came out unexpectedly and made their getaway in a waiting car. No clear description of the would-be burglars is obtainable, the main facts noted being that they were young men and wore white shoes.

A reading lamp that was knocked over and broken is the extent of the damage done, this accident happening during the hasty exit.

Constable E. C. Richards is investigating. The house belongs to W. J. E. Gillott of Peterborough, who was in the village on Tuesday in connection with the matter.

Divorce Absolute

LONDON, Aug. 24.—(CP—The London Divorce Court today made absolute the divorce decree which separated the Empire's most famous flying couple, James and Amy Mollison.

The decree was granted to the former Amy Johnson last Feb. 7. Once partners in spectacular speed flights that included victory over the North Atlantic route, the Mollisons have been separated since 1936.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"Here comes Mr. Earthworm back with a lamp!" Hanid exclaimed to her brother Knarf, the next minute. Sure enough, Mr. Earthworm came hurrying down the dark underground tunnel, balancing a "lamp" on his head. He had to balance it on his head; he didn't have any hands to hold it. Moreover, it wasn't an ordinary lamp. It was a firefly, caught in a bit of cobweb so that it couldn't fly away. It kept flashing on and off.

"Now," said the earthworm in a cheerful voice, "we'll go and find that Mole family. They're at work in this tunnel somewhere, digging."

By and by the sound of "pick, pick, pick," which they had heard some time before, began to get louder and louder. "There they are!" Knarf suddenly shouted, pointing down to the end of one of the long criss-cross tunnels.

The Mole family looked up with surprise to see their visitors. You see, hardly anyone ever came to call on them down in their tunnel beneath the garden.

Just in Time.

"Good day," said the first of the moles. "You're just in time. We're digging this tunnel right under the front lawn. In a few minutes we expect to reach the hedge. There! you can begin to see the roots. Isn't that nice?"

"It is a nice tunnel," Hanid said. "Only Father and Mother and the children—they're the ones who live up above in the big house and own this garden—they don't like to have you build tunnels in their lawn."

The sound began to get louder.

"Oh!"

"And Father says," Knarf put in, "that if you don't move away by to-morrow, he's going to—to—"

"To what?"

"—set a trap."

At that word an astonishing thing happened. The whole Mole family suddenly dashed away. "A trap—dear, dear, a trap!" the two shadow children heard them saying as they scampered off. And I guess they did move away. Because no one ever saw them again. So they weren't caught in a trap after all. Aren't you glad?

Three New Strikes

EDMONTON, Aug. 24 (C.P.). — Another gold rush in the Yellowknife, N.W.T., field has resulted from the reporting of three new strikes, all north-east of the town, northerners arriving here reported to-day.

Newest of the strikes, they said, was at Pensive Lake, where George Caywood of Edmonton has already staked claims for a syndicate. The other discoveries were at Russell Lake and Hidden Lake, it was reported. Last week a strike was made by Fred W. Thompson near Sparrow Lake.

Wedding Day Party For Bethany Couple

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Aug. 24 — On Friday evening a surprise party assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Reynolds to do them honor on having reach another milestone of their marriage of 39 years. The date fell on Tuesday, August 16, but owing to the inclement weather had been deferred. The event was a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds on their return from a drive, to find their home, almost completely filled with friends and neighbors. By prearrangement singing "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here", led by Miss Lorna McGill of Janetville. Miss Doris Driver had been appointed chairlady and announced the following program ably assisted by Miss Lorna McGill, leading community singing unaccompanied:

"When You and I Were Young Maggie", followed by "Carry Me Back To Old Virginia"; reading by Miss Elsie Richardson, "The Voice from Afar"; song "Smiles", "Polly Wolly Doodle"; intermission; lucky draw, No. 38, held by Mrs. Clara Armstrong; prize, beautiful book ends; reading, Mrs. Elsie Richardson "Country Family" by "Bridget O'Flynn"; song, "Loves Old Sweet Song" and many others requested; Mrs. Cascadden reading the enclosed address:

We have met here tonight to honor our friends and neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Reynolds and to congratulate them on reaching the thirty-ninth milestone in married life. Thirty-nine years is a long time, but as we look at Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds we must conclude that the years have been kind to them.

There have been many changes in that time for instance, I imagine that thirty-nine years ago on an occasion of this kind a woman—a mere woman would not be called on to speak, which reminds me of the school boy who came proudly Rowan, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Carr, tained second place in his class, the first place being taken by a little girl. His father said "But Johnny are you not ashamed to be beaten by a mere girl?" "But father" said Johnny, "Girls now-a-days are not nearly so mere as they used to be".

Perhaps women today are not so mere; at any rate I have been asked on this happy occasion to extend to you, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds the congratulations and hearty good wishes of your friends and neighbors. And as a tangible token of our regard we beg you to accept this tea waggon. May you be spared many years to enjoy it. May you pour many cups of tea from it and we all hope to come back and wish you good luck on your Golden wedding day.

Miss Mildred Sisson presented the gift and followed by the bride's little granddaughter, Peggy Reynolds, presenting her with a boquet of flowers tied with cream satin ribbon. Peggy also made the draw for the lucky number. Miss Lorna McGill, delighted the audience with a delightful solo, unaccompanied. Social converse continued until the serving of a delightful lunch by Mrs. Chas. Reynolds Jr., Mrs. Ernest Fallis, Misses D. Driver, Lorna McGill, Mildred Sisson and Mrs. G. Foster. Later the adieus were said and the guests departed for their various homes.

Guests included Rev. and Mrs. A. Holden, Mr. and Mrs. E. Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. T. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Jarvis, Mr. and Mrs. R. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hannah, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rowan, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Rowall, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Carr, Mr. and Mrs. H. Padgham, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Byers, Mr. and Mrs. H. Shots Are Fired At Windsor Cab

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 24.—(CP).—A tall, "wild looking" gunman of approximately 40 years was sought by city and provincial police today as the thug who fired three shots at a taxicab driven by Geoffrey Reade, 29, Windsor, following an unsuccessful hold-up attempt last night. Reade escaped injury, although two of the bullets lodged in the cab.

Reade told police he picked up the "fare" on a Windsor street and was told to drive to a secluded wood in Sandwich West Township where he was forced to stop the car because the road came to an end. The passenger, he said, then ordered him from the cab, saying "this is a stickup."

As he left the car, Reade picked up a crank lying on the floor, but, seeing the pistol in the thug's hands, he fled to the woods, the gunman in pursuit. He outdistanced his pursuer, and circled back to the cab. He scrambled into the car and started it.

As he drove away, the gunman appeared 10 feet to the side of the machine and fired three shots. One bullet entered the hood and lodged in the motor, and other buried itself in the partition behind Reade. The third apparently went wild. The "wild-looking" assailant ran back into the woods, Reade said.

Directs Extensive Comment To Three Charges Which Dealt With Liquor

very clever and very kindly Chief of Police."

It will be remembered that the enquiry was authorized by the city council and Judge Deroche was invited and engaged to act as referee with the assistance of Cecil G. Frost, K.C. of Lindsay who conducted the examination of witnesses. T. J. Carley, K.C., was present at the enquiry in the interests of Chief Newhall.

Summary of Two Charges

Judge Deroche dismissed the first two charges by Mr. Wheeler, the break-in at Payne's butcher shop, October 1, 1937, at George and Perry streets, and another at the "F. & G." store at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets.

Wheeler was mistaken in much of the detail related by him in evidence in support of the charge regarding the Payne store and was contradicted on several points by men on the city police force."

Judge Deroche briefly reviewed the evidence in this case in which a man named Miles escaped but was arrested later the same night, found guilty and sentenced.

"Miles was known to the Chief and Piercy as an old offender in different parts of the province, and they were watching for him for some time. When the opportunity offered to catch him in the act, they acted upon this opportunity and rightly so, I think. There was nothing in the frame-up idea of Wheeler's. This charge therefore fails. I might add that McIlmoyle (who said Miles requested him to break into the shop) was not prosecuted, because, while he pretended to be acting with Miles, he was really assisting the police. Perhaps I should also add that the reason why all the members of the force except Menzies and Piercy were ordered to keep away from the vicinity of the expected break-in was to avoid confusion, and the possibility of Miles being scared away, if he saw a man in uniform thereabouts."

The break-in at the Fitzpatrick and Geraghty store took place on November 6, 1937, and Wheeler alleged it "could have been avoided as it was framed."

"In this charge, again, Wheeler was mistaken in much of his detail," Judge Deroche observed and sketched the facts of the case. "Red" Moore was arrested, found guilty and sentenced. A second man escaped. "On this charge Wheeler claims there were bad methods and conspiracy. I can see no evidence of either suggestion, and the charge therefore fails."

The Vincent Charges

Wheeler's third charge reads: The Chief Constable allowed Maxwell Vincent to be charged with the first offence, when he should have been charged with the second and third offences. This man was arrested by me and Sergeant Thompson for the selling of beer, and is still doing so."

This charge presents somewhat more serious aspects. It divides itself into three parts: Vincent's first offence September, 1936, second offence March, 1937, third offence November, 1937. It is a question largely of whether the charge laid against Vincent in each case was a proper charge to lay, or whether a lesser charge was laid in order to favor Vincent.

The Liquor Control Act provides for having liquor in his possession illegally, and a man may be fined $100 and up to $1,000, and for a second offence be imprisoned for three months.

Under another section, if a man sells or keeps for sale liquor illegally he is liable to a penalty of two months up to six months, and, for a second offence, to imprisonment for six months.

Judge Deroche quoted the officer's report of Sept. 26, 1936, that he saw a man go to Vincent's door and give him money, and Vincent gave him three bottles of beer. The man was arrested and "made a statement as to what he paid for the beer."

"Soon after Vincent came in and I told him he was arrested for selling beer," Wheeler's report said. Fifty-two bottles were seized at Vincent's house.

"On this report," Judge Deroche continued, "the Chief laid a charge of merely having liquor in his possession. Should he not have laid the charge for selling, or at least keeping for sale. The oftener a man can be convicted on the greater offence, incurring a greater punishment, the sooner he is likely to quit committing the offence.

Strong Circumstances

I felt, as the evidence was being given, and still feel, that it is not often as strong a set of circumstances can be obtained in order to lay a charge of selling or keeping for sale as is found in this report.

The Chief's answer is 'I did not think I could succeed in the greater charge, and so I took a plea of guilty on the lesser charge.'

I am afraid the Chief overlooked the fact that under the Liquor Control Act, a magistrate has a right, as the evidence is developed, to reduce the charge from a greater to a lesser, if he thinks the evidence does not warrant the greater charge, but would establish the lesser charge.

I know that in many cases a plea of guilty is taken on a lesser charge, rather than take chances on the greater charge, but I do not think that applies to circumstances such as we have in this case.

Max Vincent under oath now admits that he did sell beer that night. Of course the Chief had no such admission at that time, and Vincent might have denied it if he had been asked."

Quoting section 149 of the Liquor Control Act, Judge Deroche observed: "Under this section the accused would not merely be allowed to deny that he sold beer that night, but he would be compelled to deny it under oath, which he might hesitate to do in the face of facts that could be shown on Wheeler's report.

I would call this an error in judgment on the part of the Chief. Was the error committed with the idea of favoring the Vincents?"

In the second offence on March 26, 1937, Wheeler and Sergt. Thompson arrested two men for having three bottles of beer which they got from Mrs. Max Vincent at her home on Park Hill Road. Beer was seized by the police and Mrs. Vincent was arrested.

"After his wife's arrest, Max Vincent came to the police station and offered to plead guilty to having liquor in his possession, if the wife was liberated," Judge Deroche wrote. "Then I find in the occurrence book of the police force under date of March 27, 1937: "11.50 a.m. Mrs. Vincent liberated on orders from the Chief Constable," and signed Inspector Reid.

This is surely very irregular. Under any circumstances this should not be done, and particularly in these circumstances where the evidence seemed abundant to charge Mrs. Vincent with selling, and also to charge Max Vincent with having for sale. If, however, a deal was to be made at all, then, the charge to which Max Vincent should have been asked to plead guilty might well have been for a second offence following his conviction in September, 1936.

"Was Favor Shown"

The liberating of Mrs. Vincent and failure to secure a plea of guilty to a second offence or prosecute for both was, I think and error in judgment again.

Was it done to favor the Vincents?

In regard to the third charge against Vincent, November, 1937, Wheeler's report was as follows: "Friday, 12th November, 1937. In the matter of Maxwell Vincent for breach of the L.C.A.

Sir: I beg to report at 11.50 p.m. on above date I, in company with P.C. Rogers and Sergeant Thompson, went to Max Vincent's, 622 Park street, and searched it for liquors. We found in the house thirty-eight quarts of ale, Max Vincent was brought to the police station and searched and placed in the cells. The beer was put in the court rooms. Mrs. and Mr. Max Vincent was put on the black list by the Liquor Control Board on August 31, 1937."

The charge laid by the Chief was laid under the interdiction clause of the Act, which brings a penalty of $10 minimum up to $500 maximum.

Wheeler thinks the charge should have been laid as a third offence, since Vincent had been convicted twice before, but that could not be done because more than a year had elapsed since the first offence.

He also thinks Vincent should at least have been charged under the usual section of having for sale, or at the very least, with having in his possession, under the section fixing the minimum punishment of $100 fine, instead of laying it under the section where the fine might be as low as $10.

The Chief's answer to this is that Wheeler's own report mentioned that Vincent was on the black list; that is, he had been interdicted by the Liquor Control Board, and so he followed that suggestion and laid the charge accordingly.

This, I think, should be taken as a plausible excuse, although, with Vincent's two previous convictions against him, to the knowledge of the Chief, it might well lead to the thought that he should have laid the stronger charge, notwithstanding Wheeler's mentioning the black list.

Again the question arises, did he do so to favor Vincent?

Perhaps this should be said, also. The Magistrate imposed a fine of only $15, the reason being, apparently, that Max Vincent made a statement that the thirty-eight quarts of ale were merly a balance of a lot he had had on hand at the time of the interdiction order in August. This statement, under all the circumstances known to the Magistrate and Chief, might easily be open to question. Evidently this as in the Magistrate's mind, because he, at that time, turned to the Chief and asked "Is this the case?" And the Chief replied, "Well, on every case he has been up, he has always told the truth."

Does this action show favoritism to the Vincents?

In addition to all this, I should state that the offence was committed November 12. No charge was laid until December 2, and after several adjournments at Vincent's request, the trial was not had until January 12, when Vincent pleaded guilty. No other plea seems possible.

Why the delay? Especially so when the Vincents were giving evidence against Wheeler before the Police Commission in behalf of the Chief about that time.

In trying to reach a conclusion as to whether the Chief in all or any of these various matters was favoring the Vincents, I was not helped much by the attitude of the Chief when in the witness box, because he used many expressions which seemed to show himself sympathetic to the Vincents.

Notwithstanding all this, I am influenced by the Chief's apparently vigorous, hostile attitude towards all bootleggers, so that I cannot believe he really was trying to help the Vincents. If he erred in regard to these charges he laid against them, and in regard to his statement to the Magistrates, I think they were merely errors in judgment, and should be dealt with by the Police Commission in that light."

The Long House Beer

Proceeding to the incident of the beer in the Long's house beside the Canadian Legion Hall on the evening of the police ball in 1936, Judge Deroche reviews the evidence as follows

"Knowing the ball was to be held in October, 1936, Alex Lyons, a brewer's agent and recognized bootlegger, says he went to the Chief and offered to donate beer for the ball. The Chief denies this and says Lyons wouldn't dare come to him about anything.

In this I accept the word of the Chief. The strange thing is that Lyons did furnish ten cases of beer and Raymond Lee, another bootlegger, furnished five cases. They took the beer to the house occupied by a man named Long and delivered it to Long.

This house was rented by a member of the force whose name Long cannot remember, for the purpose of serving beer. A member of the force who doesn't drink was assigned by the committee to dispense the beer in bottles, not by the glass, free to members of the force and their guests.

He and the members of the force were in uniform. Long was paid $2 for the use of the house by the chairman of the committee, who is a member of the force.

I have purposely omitted the names of the men who served the beer and paid for the hall because I don't count them as any more guilty than the other members of the force. They all (with the exception of the Chief) apparently knew beer was to be furnished and dispensed freely, and had their approval."

"Who Rented the House?"

The strange thing is that no one can be found who negotiated for the beer with Lyons, (since the Chief didn't) Long cannot remember who rented the house, except that it was a policeman in uniform. And the dispenser of the beer cannot remember who assigned him to that post.

I am satisfied the Chief did not negotiate with Lyons or anyone else to donate the beer. He did not know beer was there, although he was at the main hall for fifteen minutes at the opening. He did hear about the beer a couple of months later, but he made no investigation in regard to it, and meted out no reprimand or punishment to anyone. This, I think, he should have done.

His excuse is that he thought so much time had elapsed it was not worth while. He does say, however, that had he known about it at the time, he would have prevented it. And this is no doubt true. Because at the ball in 1937, they tried a similar thing, but he stopped it.

"Was Very Inadvisable"

Dealing with the men on the force. The act of accepting a donation of beer from a bootlegger to dispense it to themselves and their friends in a house rented for that purpose, and for that purpose only, being to all intents and purposes a part of the ball, does show probably an illegal act for which they might be prosecuted. But, whether an illegal act or not, it was very inadvisable, as recognized by the Chief who prevented it the next year.

Whether any action should be taken by the Police Commission at this late date is for it to say. I have presented the facts. I am sure the Commission will at least make it known to the Chief and the force that if there is a repetition of the offence, it will not go without some form of punishment, possibly dismissal from the force.

Puffer and Dainard did not remove any beer remaining over after the ball to Puffer's house or anywhere else."

Confiscated Liquor

Wheeler's fifth charge was "where does the liquor and beer go that was confiscated?"

"The Statute does provide that all liquor when seized shall at once be reported to the Liquor Control Board and within thirty days from seizure, if no one establishes a rightful claim thereto, or after conviction of the person from whom seized, a further report shall be sent to the Liquor Control Board, accompanied by the Liquor itself.

Clearly, this procedure has not been followed by the Chief or his staff, except very occasionally.

Numbers and numbers of bottles of beer and other liquors were seized and confiscated in 1937, and only one small quantity sent to the Liquor Control Board. What became of it?

Constable Puffer says some broken bottles of hard liquor and a few bottles of beer were puored down the sink. But that is infinitesimal compared with the amount seized. (I should say here that disposal of liquor is contrary to the Act. It can be destroyed only by the Liquor Control Board. It is the duty of the police officer to send the beer and other liquor seized to the Liquor Control Board within the time limited.)

What became of the beer and other liquor?

There are some twelve or fifteen cases lying around the police station, in the court room, in the Chief's office, and in Puffer's office, under tables and in corners, a disgrace to everybody, and some there for months, and possibly years. It is open to theft, either by stealing a drink, a bottle or a case. It is not locked up. There is no place to lock it. But this small amount poured in the sink, and the twelve or fifteen cases lying around the police station does not account for all, or nearly all the beer and other liquor seized.

Wheeler asks, "Where did the liquor go?", and I think he asks it quite rightly.

The Chief is now seeing to it that all this liquor lying around is sent down to the Liquor Control Board.

There has, in this matter, been clearly, great laxity.

The Chief says he left it to Puffer to attend to. Puffer says he is tremendously overworked, and this is self-evident. The Chief says he saw the cases of liquor lying around and knew they were not being sent. And if he knew Puffer was greatly overworked, he should have seen to it that someone else attended to it, or did it himself.

Many Cases Missing

I can see no excuse for allowing these cases to lie around for endless time in this way, furnishing temptation to someone, and some one, or many, fell for the temptation, for many cases are gone that should be there.

I am glad to say that there is no evidence that any member of the police force profited by these cases of liquor.

I feel certain after this experience that no beer or other liquor will be allowed to accumulate again.

In a general way, the Chief and his staff complained that they are very much cramped in accommodation, which causes a constant commotion, and therefore, the best and most accurate work cannot be done, and some laxity is likely to result.

I have viewed the offices and feel like giving some effect to this contention.

Improvement Needed

It is not in my province, I think, to deal with this exhaustively, but I feel that if the Police Commission as a body would visit the offices, particularly when a Court is in session, then some definite recommendation for improvement could be made to the Mayor and Aldermen, which I have no doubt, would be received sympathetically.

Several prominent citizens of Ontario gave brief evidence as to what type of Chief you have in Samuel Newhall.

I have had the evidence typed for your satisfaction, and that of the Chief, for, while he may have erred in several particulars regarding matters under consideration, he is evidently a very clever and a very kindly Chief of Police. I attach this evidence to my report."

"Nothing To Them"

Wheeler's sixth charge that William Welch, 140 Douro street, was allowed to take out a dog license at $2 instead of a kennel license at $10 was dismissed with the comment: "There is not a thing in this charge. Welch only had one dog at this time, had no kennel, and paid the ordinary dog tag."

The final charge by the former constable is brushed aside in the same manner. It accused Constable Clark of wiring Max Vincent's house, when he was employed as a constable and knew it to be a bootlegger's house.

"Neither is there anything to this charge. Clarke was engaged to do this small piece of work before he was appointed to the force, and completed it after his appointment, but never when in uniform. He only received $9 for the small job, including material."

The latter part of the charge to the effect that P.C. Clark was taken on the force at "the age of 43 and as a motor mechanic which he admits he is not," was mentioned by Judge Deroche as being the act of the Police Commission and not of the Chief or the police force.

"I am sorry this investigation ran so long a time. But, it seemed best to let everything be said—that the whole atmosphere might be cleared for years to come, and no one could complain that there was any unfairness or lack of inquiry."

Shows How Burglar Can Pick Lock In 10 Seconds

Famed Musician's Wife Shot Down

Mrs. Anita Krueger, scion of the McCormick family and a former Chicago society leader, is shown, top RIGHT, in hospital at Hollywood, Calif., after Charles E. MacDonald, lower RIGHT, an electrical engineer, had shot her down on the street. MacDonald declared he had shot Mrs. Krueger, the wife of Karl Krueger, world-renowned orchestra leader, top LEFT, because she was allenating the affections of his wife, a former maid in the Krueger home, from him. Hundreds of shoppers sought cover as MacDonald opened fire with a revolver, when Mrs. Krueger ran from her car. She is battling death as result of her wounds. Mrs. MacDonald, the alleged gunman's estranged wife, is shown lower LEFT.

"The men went stark mad during the night," the Assistant District Attorney asserted. "They saw the weaker convicts go first. Raving mad for some time and then dropping to the floor unconscious. And then dying."

The coroner said Morris Spatz and Joseph Forte, two prisoners found in the same cells with the bodies, were seriously ill.

Warden Mills previously had said: "We certainly used no steam or hot water on them and there are no steam or hot water pipes in the building in which they are confined."

sight it looked as though he had not been able to gain sufficient altitude and was trying to bring the plane down.

"Just as the plane disappeared we heard a loud crash and a flash of flame shot up behind the trees. We knew he had struck the electric wires and telephone poles.

"We ran to the plane and found Hawks inside the burning machine on the seat. His clothes were on fire, so we stripped him and pulled him away."

Pinned Under Wing.

Rogers said Campbell was thrown from the plane and pinned under a crumpled and blazing wing.

The crash had ripped down all telephone and light wires serving the community and Rogers and his friends had to go several miles to summon aid.

M. R. Carlin, a transport pilot of New York City, had flown to Buffalo with Hawks in the small plane.

"He said he'd rather fly one of these than any other plane," Carlin said. "He had given up all other pilot ratings but the one he used on the aircar."

Hawks was vice-president in charge of sales for the Gwinn Aircar Corporation.

Joseph M. Gwinn, president, said Hawks had been making demonstration flights for the company during the past year.

Hawks established himself as a great speed pilot about ten years ago, when he set a record for non-stop flight from Los Angles to New York.

"I would be glad to be relieved of the leadership and its responsibilities now that I have decided to retire, but, having reached this decision, which I believe is in the interests of the unity of our party, I do not want to see a mushroom or premature convention," he said.

"I hope that the rank and file of the Conservative party will have sufficient time to prepare and organize a convention which will truly reflect the considered judgment of the party in the province."

The Conservative party could not look with any confidence to success at the polls unless there was complete unity within the party ranks, for no leader could win without a united party, he said.

J. Grady Hogan Local Barber Dies Suddenly

Downtown business men were shocked when they learned of the death on Tuesday afternoon of James Grady Hogan, well known barber who passed away suddenly after an illness that lasted only a few days.

Grady Hogan had been employed at Fowler's Barber shop for the past six years. He was 32 years old, and had lived in Peterborough for the past ten years after he left his father's farm in Otonabee to learn the barbering trade under George Robertson. His parents, who still survive, are Mr. and Mrs. James J. Hogan, who farm in Otonabee. Mrs. Hogan was formerly Mary Grady.

Grady had complained of a sore back for some time before his death and had not been in particularly good health, but no concern was felt over his condition. He worked until late Saturday night, but was ill on Monday. On Tuesday afternoon he was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital at one o'clock and three hours later he was dead.

Besides his parents he leaves two sisters, Mrs. Mary McGee, 339 Downie street, with whom he boarded, and Miss Laura Hogan of this city; and two brothers, John and Joseph Hogan of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning at 8.20 o'clock from the family residence, Lot 27, Concession 6, Otonabee, to the Church of the Immaculate Conception for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment will be at St. Peter's Cemetery.

13 Traffic Cases Are Before Cadi

The large volume of cases passing through the local police court was increased today when Magistrate O .A. Langley, K.C. was faced with disposal of thirteen traffic infractions along with the usual number of liquor charges.

Eight of the traffic cases, all of which were laid by Provincial Constable Gordon Broughton were disposed of, but five had to be laid over and will be finished at the next date set forth. His Worship stressed the fact that he would tolerate no further delays on the informations now in his hands which have been called for disposal once.

James Powely, Toronto, failing to produce operator's permit, total of $7.50; J. W. Moffatt, Peterborough, speeding, $13; George Craft, Otonabee, no operator's license, $13.60; C. Glover, Peterborough, speeding, $8; Roy Drimmie, Otonabee, no operator's license, $12.50; A. Littlejohn, Toronto, speeding, $7.85; M. Moncrief, Smith Township, failing to produce operator's license, $2.75.

Collect Tax Arrears In Law Court

Proceeding with an idea suggested by Alderman Gordon, the Legal Committee of which he is chairman surveyed last night a rather lengthy list of names of taxpayers in arrears for 1934 and thereabouts. Only half the typewritten volume presented by A. S. Couper, tax collector, for scrutiny was disposed of last night. The rest will be considered within the next two or three months.

In many instances Mr. Couper informed the committee that payment of arrears was being made slowly but regularly, and at times when resort to court proceedings was being suggested he added a note of emphasis to his urging that his instalment arrangement be not interrupted. Alderman Gordon said the committee wished to avoid anything drastic that would seriously embarrass owners of property living here or elsewhere, but there were cases, he said, in which prompt payment could be made and apparently the only way to get the money in was by advising City Solicitor Huycke to take action.

There were a few examples of people who were paying on their bills of or last year, hoping to get around to the amounts owed for three or four years ago. The general policy in the tax office is to discourage that idea as much as possible, and only one or two instances of it were mentioned last night.

The meeting provided Mr. Huycke with considerable extra work of preparing notices to delinquents advising them that unless payment is made to the treasury they will be haled into division court.

Neatly Wrapped Shoe Box Stolen From Bicycle, Contained Dog Meat

YESTERDAY some person stole a neatly wrapped shoe box from a parked bicycle expecting of course, a new pair of shoes, but the parcel contained several pounds of old meat that had become tainted by the heat and was being taken home to be fed to dogs.

Bert Millard, stock broker's clerk owns three fine dogs, two of them thoroughbred huskies and several days a week he visits a George Street butcher shop and gets any meat that is old or tainted. This he carries home on his bicycle for the pets. During the past month on three occasions he secured shoe boxes from a store and after placing the meat in the box, wrapped brown paper around the box and tied it neatly. Twice the box was stolen, and if it was not taken by the same man, there are two thieves in the city who received shoe boxes filled with dog meat.

Motorized Army Seen In City On Way to Camp

It is a far throw from the army of the Great War days to present day troops in point of speed in travel, Peterborough citizens realized on Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning when huge guns sped noiselessy into the city and halted on Murray street for inspection.

Gone were the plodding horses the marching men in heavy khaki and in their place were huge trucks, swift and efficient, with troops riding at ease. Speedy small cars, all equipped with radio receiving sets, were tuned in to a small broadcasting unit in another car, and received instructions all along the route.

First unit to reach Peterborough contained anti-aircraft guns, the latest to be found almost anywhere in the world. Equipped with radio-controlled sights, they astonished local officers by their efficiency. No sighting is done by soldiers at the controls and a indicator tells them when to fire. The unit, part of the Royal Canadian Artillery, was equipped with full travelling necessities even to an ambulance. It arrived in the city a full half hour ahead of schedule, was welcomed by civic and local garrison officials.

Welcomed by Mayor

Mayor James Hamilton and Alderman James Dutton welcomed the contingent to the city on behalf of citizens, Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne for the Prince of Wales Rangers and Captain J. Harstone, M. C., for the 4th Field Battery. The unit proceded through the heart of the city, looking not a great deal different from any group of commercial vehicles.

On Murray street, beside the Armouries, traffic was blocked off to permit the guns to come to a halt, and officers and men were most courteous to inquiring citizens who flocked to the scene in hundreds to catch their first glimpse, for the most part, of big time guns.

Three quarters of an hour later arrived another contingent from the Royal Canadian Artillery, including two huge 60-pounders whose gleaming barrels brought a look of awe into many faces. Again the unit was complete with staff cars, trucks, ambulance, and other necessities for war.

Third Arrival

Shortly after nine o'clock Wednesday morning the third and largest group arrived in the city and were officially welcomed. Included was Brigade Headquarters staff, including the commanding officer of the three units, Col. W. G. Hagarty, D. S. O. Other units were A and B Batteries of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

A full army band, travelling with the units, played martial and popular music for a large crowd that gathered about the Armouries. Their leader was Capt. A. Coleman distinguished English bandsmaster who was recently brought to this country.

The largest group to arrive, the batteries carried eight 18-pound guns and full equipment.

MARMORA, Aug. 24.—The village of Marmora took on the appearance of a garrison town on Tuesday with the arrival at the Agricultural Society's grounds in the afternoon and evening of A and B Batteries of R.C.H.A. headquarters, en route from Petawawa Camp to Camp Borden. The unit was represented by 12 officers, 2 ordnance officers and about 200 other ranks, and its band under Captain Coleman delighted interested villagers who visited the grounds with well-rendered popular marches. The Examiner was graciously received by the Commanding Officer, Col. W. G. Hagarty, who speaking of the 200 miles march undertaken that day, added that the same mileage would have taken one or ten days with horses as in past days. "We are all ready for a good hot meal," he continued. "We started out this morning all bright and shiny, but the roads have taken it out of us." About 125 other regulars representing 4th Anti Air-Craft and 3rd Medium R.C.H.A., who bivouaced at Perth on Monday night, passed through Marmora shortly before the arrival of the two batteries.

With the batteries were eight 18-pounders, one of which suffered a slight mishap on Tuesdays march. Departure for Camp Borden was announced for 7 a.m. on Wednesday. The officers and men expressed pleasure with their temporary quarters and in addition to camping outfit which they carried, were allowed to avail themselves of the accommodation of the buildings on the grounds.

The gun was placed in this position when artillery units halted for a few minutes in Peterborough enroute to Camp Borden.

Campbellford, Aug. 24.

THE LARGEST yield in the past ten years is reported by Paul Gorman, Wilson Settlement farmer six miles west of Campbellford. Mr. Gorman who threshed his wheat and oat crops last week claimed four hundred and seventy-five bushels of wheat from a nine-acre field. Over 1200 bushels of wheat and oats were put through the mills during the day by threshers who agreed it was one of the finest crops seen in the district in many years.

Flames Destroy Old Landmark; Suspect Hoboes

TWEED, Aug. 24.—Flames wrote a dramatic exit to one of Hastings County's land marks, when sparks from a blazing driveshed ignited the old stone residence known as the Goodfellow homestead near Roslin, leaving it a mass of smouldering ruins.

The house, the property of Alexander Goodfellow was unoccupied at the time, the driveshed that housed a few implements including a binder the property of Goodfellow, and a mower belonging to Mrs. Ida Colden, a neighbor and the old stone structure that was built in pioneer days were completely destroyed.

Believed to have been caused by the carelessness of passing transients, the shed was rapidly enveloped by flames. A driving wind drove the burning embers and sparks in the direction of the house that quickly fell a prey to the flames.

Damage was estimated at one thousand dollars. Insurance covered the loss.

Church Social Huge Success Despite Rain Threat

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 24.—St. Mary's church held their annual Lawn Social here on Tuesday evening when despite threatening skies during most of the day the attendance was thought to have been equal to that of last year.

Between six and seven hundred guests were served supper and in the evening a variety of games and booths of every description attracted large crowds of people both from Campbellford and Seymour township. At the conclusion of the evening Rev. Father McAuley addressed the gathering, thanking all of those who had so generously donated prizes follows:

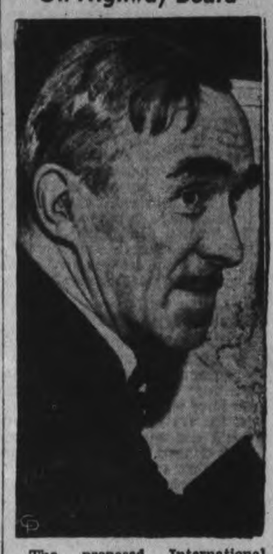
On Highway Board



The proposed International Highway from Hazelton, B.C. to Fairbanks, Alaska, was brought a step nearer with the appointment by President Roosevelt of a commission authorized by the last session of the U.S. congress. Donald MacDonald, Fairbanks engineer, was named on the committee, and is one of the original proponents of the highway. The estimate cost of the road is $15,000,000.

Truck Crash Nets Driver Broken Skull

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Aug. 24.—Cyril Longland, of Ruthven, Ontario, is in the Ross Hospital suffering from serious injuries as a result of an accident on Monday near the village of Sunderland. A truck driven by Mervyn Clifford was proceeding towards Sunderland and failed to make the turn at the bottom of the hill it plunged into the ditch on the left side of the road, where it travelled a distance of 146 feet before turning over. Longland was riding on top the load of bags of rye and was thrown off with considerable force. He sustained concussion of the brain as well as serious head and face injuries.

Boycaygeons new post office was formally opened today. Mr. B. McNevin, M.P., county and village officials took part in the opening.

The voters of Dysart township will, it is expected, vote on the question of the establishment of a beverage room in Haliburton next spring. Representatives of the Moderation League were in the hamlet last week looking over the situation.

All classes of the community united in paying the last tribute of respect to Miss Fern Lambert of Bobcaygeon, who was drowned at Peterborough last week, and whose funeral took place at that village during the weekend. Services were conducted at the home and grave by Rev. P. McRoberts, of the Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Miller, of Trinity United Church. Interment took place at Verulam cemetery. Deceased is survived by her parents and two sisters.

Oshawa Athlete Dies Suddenly

OSHAWA, Aug. 24 (CP)—Donald McKay, Oshawa young man and former athlete, died in the Oshawa General Hospital yesterday. He was 36.

Born in Oshawa, he attended Public Schools and the Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

During his years at Collegiate he took a prominent part in athletics and at the time of his death was a member of the Oshawa Golf Club and the Oshawa Curling Club.

Cupid With Help Of Hon. Harry Nixon Wins Victory Over Regulations

Callander, Ont., Aug. 24.

CUPID, with the help of Provincial Secretary H. C. Nixon, won a victory over Ontario's marriage regulations last night, when June Papton, 35-year-old beauty parlor operator from New York's Greenwich Village, and her sweetheart, 37-year-old Louis Massoni of New York City, were married here by Rev. Peter Webster, United Church clergyman of North Bay.

The couple, who had been engaged for a year, drove from New York City just so they could be married in the Dionne Quintuplets home town. When they applied for a marriage licence from City Clerk H. C. Pilley of North Bay, however, they discovered that Ontario's 15-day residence requirement prevented their immediate marriage.

It began to look as if the trip to the altar was all off, at least on this side of the border, as they had to be back in New York by Aug. 27.

City Clerk Pilley immediately wired Mr. Nixon at Toronto, who, on learning of their problem, decided to facilitate matters. Waiving the residence requirement, he telephoned his permission to North Bay.

The couple were married early last evening in a Callander tourist home by Rev. Mr. Webster, who ministers at Trinity United Church, North Bay.

Suggests Taillights

WINDSOR—Alderman E. W. Lancaster, president of the Ontario Motor League, has suggested an amendment to the Highway Traffic Act. The alderman would have pedestrians walking the highway at night carry taillights.

Farmer Shot In Head

UTICA, Mich. — Police throughout Michigan today sought the slayer of Fred Firth, 51-year-old bachelor farmer shot through the head while working in his hog-pen last night. Firth's body was found by a neighbor. Firth's pocketbook was missing from the body.

J. Grady Hogan Local Barber Dies Suddenly

Downtown business men were shocked when they learned of the death on Tuesday afternoon of James Grady Hogan, well known barber who passed away suddenly after an illness that lasted only a few days.

Grady Hogan had been employed at Fowler's Barber shop for the past six years. He was 32 years old, and had lived in Peterborough for the past ten years after he left his father's farm in Otonabee to learn the barbering trade under George Robertson. His parents, who still survive, are Mr. and Mrs. James J. Hogan, who farm in Otonabee. Mrs. Hogan was formerly Mary Grady.

Grady had complained of a sore back for some time before his death and had not been in particularly good health, but no concern was felt over his condition. He worked until late Saturday night, but was ill on Monday. On Tuesday afternoon he was admitted to St. Joseph's hospital at one o'clock and three hours later he was dead.

Besides his parents he leaves two sisters, Mrs. Mary McGee, 339 Downie street, with whom he boarded, and Miss Laura Hogan of this city; and two brothers, John and Joseph Hogan of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning at 8.30 o'clock from the family residence, Lot 27, Concession 6, Otonabee, to the Church of the Immaculate Conception for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment will be at St. Peter's Cemetery.

13 Traffic Cases Are Before Cadi

The large volume of cases passing through the local police court was increased today when Magistrate O .A. Langley, K.C. was faced with disposal of thirteen traffic infractions along with the usual number of liquor charges.

Eight of the traffic cases, all of which were laid by Provincial Constable Gordon Broughton were disposed of, but five had to be laid over and will be finished at the next date set forth. His Worship stressed the fact that he would tolerate no further delays on the informations now in his hands which have been called for disposal once.

James Powely, Toronto, failing to produce operator's permit, total of $7.50; J. W. Moffatt, Peterborough, speeding, $13; George Craft, Otonabee, no operator's license, $13.60; C. Glover, Peterborough, speeding, $8; Roy Drimmie, Otonabee, no operator's license, $12.50; A. Littlejohn, Toronto, speeding, $7.85; M. Moncrief, Smith Township, failing to produce operator's license, $2.75.

Arriving at New York to attend sessions of the World Youth Congress at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., is Miss Yang Hui-Min, Chinese girl who won international fame last November, when she carried a Chinese flag to the "doomed battalion which covered the retreat of the Chinese army from Chapel.

Collect Tax Arrears In Law Court

Proceeding with an idea suggested by Alderman Gordon, the Legal Committee of which he is chairman surveyed last night a rather lengthy list of names of taxpayers in arrears for 1934 and thereabouts. Only half the typewritten volume presented by A. S. Couper, tax collector, for scrutiny was disposed of last night. The rest will be considered within the next two or three months.

In many instances Mr. Couper informed the committee that payment of arrears was being made slowly but regularly, and at times when resort to court proceedings was being suggested, he added a note of emphasis to his urging that his instalment arrangement be not interrupted. Alderman Gordon said the committee wished to avoid anything drastic that would seriously embarrass owners of property living here or elsewhere, but there were cases, he said, in which prompt payment could be made and apparently the only way to get the money in was by advising City Solicitor Huycke to take action.

There were a few examples of people who were paying on their bills of or last year, hoping to get around to the amounts owed for three or four years ago. The general policy in the tax office is to discourage that idea as much as possible, and only one or two instances of it were mentioned last night.

The meeting provided Mr. Huycke with considerable extra work of preparing notices to delinquents advising them that unless payment is made to the treasury they will be haled into division court.

Motorized Army Seen In City On Way to Camp

It is a far throw from the army of the Great War days to present day troops in point of speed in travel, Peterborough citizens realized on Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning when huge guns sped noiselessy into the city and halted on Murray street for inspection.

Gone were the plodding horses the marching men in heavy khaki and in their place were huge trucks swift and efficient, with troops riding at ease. Speedy small cars, all equipped with radio receiving sets were tuned in to a small broadcasting unit in another car, and received instructions all along the route.

First unit to reach Peterborough contained anti-aircraft guns, the latest to be found almost anywhere in the world. Equipped with radio-controlled sights, they astonished local officers by their efficiency. No sighting is done by soldiers at the controls and a indicator tells them when to fire. The unit, part of the Royal Canadian Artillery, was equipped with full travelling necessities even to an ambulance. It arrived in the city a full half hour ahead of schedule, was welcomed by civic and local garrison officials.

Welcomed by Mayor

Mayor James Hamilton and Alderman James Dutton welcomed the contingent to the city on behalf of citizens, Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne for the Prince of Wales Rangers and Captain J. Harstone, M. C., for the 4th Field Battery. The unit proceded through the heart of the city, looking not a great deal different from any group of commercial vehicles.

On Murray street, beside the Armouries, traffic was blocked off to permit the guns to come to a halt, and officers and men were most courteous to inquiring citizens who flocked to the scene in hundreds to catch their first glimpse, for the most part, of big time guns.

Three quarters of an hour later arrived another contingent from the Royal Canadian Artillery, including two huge 60-pounders whose gleaming barrels brought a look of awe into many faces. Again the unit was complete with staff cars, trucks, ambulance, and other necessities for war.

Third Arrival

Shortly after nine o'clock Wednesday morning the third and largest group arrived in the city and were officially welcomed. Included was Brigade Headquarters staff, including the commanding officer of the three units, Col. W. G. Hagarty, D. S. O. Other units were A and B Batteries of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

A full army band, travelling with the units, played martial and popular music for a large crowd that gathered about the Armouries. Their leader was Capt. A. Coleman distinguished English bandsmaster who was recently brought to this country.

The largest group to arrive, the batteries carried eight 18-pound guns and full equipment.

MARMORA, Aug. 24.—The village of Marmora took on the appearance of a garrison town on Tuesday with the arrival at the Agricultural Society's grounds in the afternoon and evening of A and B Batteries of R.C.H.A. headquarters, en route from Petawawa Camp to Camp Borden. The unit was represented by 12 officers, 2 ordnance officers and about 200 other ranks, and its band under Captain Coleman delighted interested villagers who visited the grounds with well-rendered popular marches. The Examiner was graciously received by the Commanding Officer, Col. W. G. Hagarty, who speaking of the 200 miles march undertaken that day, added that the same mileage would have taken ine or ten days with horses as in past days. "We are all ready for a good hot meal," he continued. "We started out this morning all bright and shiny, but the roads have taken it out of us." About 125 other regulars representing 4th Anti Air-Craft and 3rd Medium R.C.H.A., who bivouaced at Perth on Monday night, passed through Marmora shortly before the arrival of the two batteries.

With the batteries were eight 18-pounders, one of which suffered a slight mishap on Tuesdays march. Departure for Camp Borden was announced for 7 a.m. on Wednesday. The officers and men expressed pleasure with their temporary quarters and in addition to camping outfit which they carried, were allowed to avail themselves of the accommodation of the buildings on the grounds.

Anti-Aircraft The owner of the house in the background of this picture must have felt something like the man at whom another points an empty gun: he knows it's empty but he's a little uneasy nevertheless. A blast from this newest type anti-aircraft gun, capable of firing 24,000 feet in the air, would rip the house to pieces. The gun was placed in this position when artillery units halted for a few minutes in Peterborough enroute to Camp Borden.

PLOWING "WORKOUTS."

J. J. Duffus is conducting plowing demonstrations in Simcoe county this week in preparation for the International match that is to be held October 11th to 14th at Minesing, near Barrie.

WON BY WARREN GAMBLE

Prizes reported as having been won by Clayton Fryfogle in the art classes at the Exhibition should have been credited to Warren Gamble of Peterborough. The mistake was caused by wrong entry number in the judge's book, the Examiner following the number as recorded.

FANCY BRICK JOB

Many passersby have commented on the beauty and originality of the brick job now being done on the new home of Joe Asta on Rogers street. The bricks are yellow with a staggered design of black and red bricks throughout. They are a rug type made by the Milton Brick Company and are what is commonly described as a shale brick.

PEACE RESTORED

A charge of assault laid by the wife of a Hiawatha Indian following a fracas in their home last July 31st was withdrawn by the woman today. W. J. Arthur Fair, counsel for the husband explained to Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., the incident was not a serious one and both were agreeable to withdrawal.

GARAGE IS ROBBED

Thieves smashed a rear window in Corner's Garage on Aylmer Street a few night's ago and carried away more than sixty dollars worth of garage tools, stock and equipment. No money had been left in the till which is always left open by the owner and no damage was done to the premises except to the window.

BIG CUCUMBER

A huge cucumber was brought into this office today by little Ray O'Connor, 168 Hazlitt street, who plucked it out of his own garden. It was of a "semi-Siamese twins" type, weighing three pounds, two ounces, and appearing undecided whether to branch out into two medium 'cumbers or to stick together and seek a record as one big one.

ACQUITTED AND FINED

Mrs. Pearl Tolton of Peterborough was acquitted of the charge of driving an automobile without a permit but was fined $15 on another charge of negligent driving by Magistrate Campbell at Cobourg Tuesday afternoon. The two cases were an aftermath of a traffic accident May 13 a mile south of Fraserville in which Mrs. Pearl McManus of Bridgenorth was injured. G. N. Gordon, K.C., represented Mrs. Tolton.

A PRIZE FOR GUESSING.

If you can guess the weight of the magnified water tap in front of Fred Goodfellow's plumbing shop on Water street you will be certain of getting a prize of one Wallaceburg combination chrome plated sink faucet: The competition is continuing to the end of the month, requiring only that your estimate of the weight be written on a coupon found in the Examiner. The gift goes to the person making the nearest estimate.

POLIO VICTIMS RECOVERING

Two Lakefield children, one aged ten and the other two years old who have been afflicted with infantile paralysis are reported by doctors to be well on the way to recovery. Paralysis failed to develop in either case, due no doubt to the prompt action of the attending doctors who administered serum and special treatment. One child is being removed from quarantine today. No other cases have been reported in Lakefield and none in this city.

WORK NEVER DONE.

"We've got to start all over again now," Tom Brown, "Ex" prexy remarked this morning. "We need a couple more buildings for next year, and just as we come through one year's effort with satisfactory results, then we have to look ahead another twelve months. We've been trying to get out of debt and when we have about accomplished that we are faced with the need of spending more money." The net financial results will not be known for some time. An early meeting of the Board will likely be held to tabulate impressions and ideas received last week.

MRS. KELLY WINS.

Sunray, owned by Mrs. T. N. D. Kelly of Peterborough, won the carriage mare or gelding, 15.2 hands and over, class yesterday at the Central Canada Exhibition. Sunray and Glen Avon Screen Star, owned by Mrs. Kelly, placed third in the carriage and pair event.

AUTO VICTIM IMPROVING

Mrs. Robert Irwin, R.R. 2, Peterborough, who was injured in a car accident last weekend is reported to be improving in St. Joseph's Hospital. Mrs. Irwin was a passenger in a car driven by Frank Irwin and received a deep laceration on the head, when three cars tangled near Hill's store on George street.

WADING POOL POPULAR SPOT

The Kiwanis wading pool built last year in King Edward Park and donated to the city is getting plenty of use this summer. Every day for the past two and a half months the small children in the south end of the town have flocked to the pool to cool off, romp under the spray thrown from an upright pipe.

GETS MEAT CONTRACT

Fred Jopling, George Street Butcher was notified this week that his tender on the meat contract for Johnston Brothers Contractors who are road building in the northern part of this county had been accepted. Delivery of the first meat will be made today and the order will be substantial as there is a large number of highway workers employed on the job.

A SECOND CHARGE

W. J. Arthur Fair, counsel for Michael Murray, charged with reckless driving agreed to an adjournment until Sept. 7 in city court today when Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C. will be back in the city. He described the action of police in laying a second charge against Murray as unsual in so much as accused was first charged with drunk driving and committed for trial being now on bail.

✓ OBITUARY ✓

MRS. L. V. WOOD.

On Monday afternoon a large concourse of friends gathered in St. James' United church to pay their last tribute of love to Annie Pearl Brown, beloved wife of L. V. Wood, George street, who was claimed by death with startling suddenness on Saturday morning, August 20th.

Rev. F. W. Craik, her pastor, gave the funeral address and was assisted in the service by Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth of Marmora, and Rev. J. T. Conn, now of Peterborough, her former pastors, both of whom paid tribute to her life of service in Frontenac county, where both she and Mr. Wood were active in Young People's work. Expressions of heartfelt sympathy were extended to the sorrowing husband, L. V. Wood, to the two sons, Earl and Donald; to her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston Brown, of Trenton; and to her two brothers, Dr. M. H. Brown, and W. H. Brown, B. Com., of Toronto.

As his scripture lesson, Mr. Craik chose the comforting 14th chapter of St. John's Gospel, and the hymns, led by Cecil Lapp, organist, were in sympathy with the service. Also very fitting was the beautiful vocal solo, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," by Mrs James Goldie.

The masses of floral emblems in which she rested testified to the love and confidence in which she was held by both old and young. Mrs. Wood was born in Havelock, where she attended both Public and High school and was later a graduate of Peterborough Business College. She was married in July, 1915 to Mr. Wood, by Rev. C. W. DeMille, at her home in Havelock, and after living some time in Lanark county and in Verona, Frontenac county, came to reside in Peterborough in 1932.

She was reared in a Christian home and this influence was strengthened by her membership in the Methodist and United churches, in which she gave her youthful services. Uniting with St. James' United church here she became identified with the Sunday school, as an active member, the members of her class, "The King's Own" attending her funeral in a body. An official member of St. James' W. M.S., and strongly sympathetic with the Woman's Association and Young People's work, Mrs. Wood has left a void in the activities of the whole church, which she loved so well.

The graveside services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Craik, and Messrs. Frank Greatrix, E. R. Frost, R. J. Beatty, A. Sands, Russell Henry and U. V. White, as pallbearers, bore her gently to her last resting place in Little Lake cemetery.

Campbellford, Aug. 24.

THE LARGEST yield in the past ten years is reported by Paul Gorman, Wilson Settlement farmer six miles west of Campbellford. Mr. Gorman who threshed his wheat and oat crops last week claimed four hundred and seventy-five bushels of wheat from a nine-acre field. Over 1200 bushels of wheat and oats were put through the mills during the day by threshers who agreed it was one of the finest crops seen in the district in many years.

Flames Destroy Old Landmark; Suspect Hoboes

TWEED, Aug. 24.—Flames wrote a dramatic exit to one of Hastings County's land marks, when sparks from a blazing driveshed ignited the old stone residence known as the Goodfellow homestead near Roslin, leaving it a mass of smouldering ruins.

The house, the property of Alexander Goodfellow was unoccupied at the time, the driveshed that housed a few implements including a binder the property of Goodfellow, and a mower belonging to Mrs. Ida Colden, a neighbor and the old stone structure that was built in pioneer days were completely destroyed.

Believed to have been caused by the carelessness of passing transients, the shed was rapidly enveloped by flames. A driving wind drove the burning embers and sparks in the direction of the house that quickly fell a prey to the flames.

Damage was estimated at one thousand dollars. Insurance covered the loss.

Church Social Huge Success Despite Rain Threat

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 24.—St. Mary's church held their annual Lawn Social here on Tuesday evening when despite threatening skies during most of the day the attendance was thought to have been equal to that of last year.

Between six and seven hundred guests were served supper and in the evening a variety of games and booths of every description attracted large crowds of people both from Campbellford and Seymour township. At the conclusion of the evening Rev. Father McAuley addressed the gathering, thanking all of those who had so generously donated prizes follows:

their help towards making the event a success.

The results of the draw which were announced at eleven o'clock were as folows:

1, Ten dollars—Mr. Ralph Nutthal, town.

2, Five dollars—Mrs. Ella Wilson, town.

3, Five dollars—Mrs. Ed. Phillips, 40 Harmony street, Detroit, Mich.

4, Five dollars—Mr. Ed. Roberts, town.

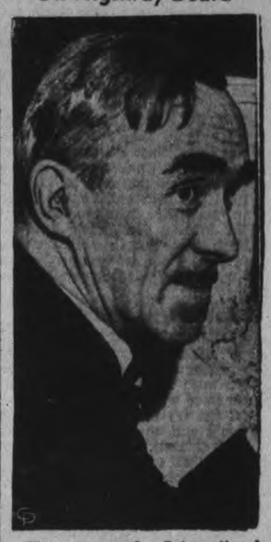
On Highway Board



The proposed International Highway from Hazelton, B.C. to Fairbanks, Alaska, was brought a step nearer with the appointment by President Roosevelt of a commission authorized by the last session of the U.S. congress. Donald MacDonald, Fairbanks engineer, was named on the committee, and is one of the original proponents of the highway. The estimate cost of the road is $15,000,000.

Truck Crash Nets Driver Broken Skull

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Aug. 24.—Cyril Longland, of Ruthven, Ontario, is in the Ross Hospital suffering from serious injuries as a result of an accident on Monday near the village of Sunderland. A truck driven by Mervyn Clifford was proceeding towards Sunderland and failed to make the turn at the bottom of the hill it plunged into the ditch on the left side of the road, where it travelled a distance of 146 feet before turning over. Longland was riding on top the load of bags of rye and was thrown off with considerable force. He sustained concussion of the brain as well as serious head and face injuries.

Boycaygeons new post office was formally opened today. Mr. B. McNevin, M.P., county and village officials took part in the opening.

Cupid With Help Of Hon. Harry Nixon Wins Victory Over Regulations

Callander, Ont., Aug. 24.

CUPID, with the help of Provincial Secretary H. C. Nixon, won a victory over Ontario's marriage regulations last night, when June Papton, 35-year-old beauty parlor operator from New York's Greenwich Village, and her sweetheart, 37-year-old Louis Massoni of New York City, were married here by Rev. Peter Webster, United Church clergyman of North Bay.

The couple, who had been engaged for a year, drove from New York City just so they could be married in the Dionne Quintuplets home town. When they applied for a marriage licence from City Clerk H. C. Pilley of North Bay, however, they discovered that Ontario's 15-day residence requirement prevented their immediate marriage.

It began to look as if the trip to the altar was all off, at least on this side of the border, as they had to be back in New York by Aug. 27.

City Clerk Pilley immediately wired Mr. Nixon at Toronto, who, on learning of their problem, decided to facilitate matters. Waiving the residence requirement, he telephoned his permission to North Bay.

The couple were married early last evening in a Callander tourist home by Rev. Mr. Webster, who ministers at Trinity United Church, North Bay.

Neatly Wrapped Shoe Box Stolen From Bicycle, Contained Dog Meat

YESTERDAY some person stole a neatly wrapped shoe box from a parked bicycle expecting of course, a new pair of shoes, but the parcel contained several pounds of old meat that had become tainted by the heat and was being taken home to be fed to dogs.

Bert Millard, stock broker's clerk owns three fine dogs, two of them thoroughbred huskies and several days a week he visits a George Street butcher shop and gets any meat that is old or tainted. This he carries home on his bicycle for the pets. During the past month on three occasions he secured shoe boxes from a store and after placing the meat in the box, wrapped brown paper around the box and tied it neatly. Twice the box was stolen, and if it was not taken by the same man, there are two thieves in the city who received shoe boxes filled with dog meat.

Swims Home Discovering that no first-class cabin accommodation had been reserved for himself and his wife during a voyage from New York to Rhode Island, Joe Charlton demanded that the captain of the ship put back to port; when the captain refused, Charlton jumped overboard and started to swim back. His wife was prevented from following his example and Charlton was picked up, after swimming three miles by a passing launch.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IF THE RAIN GODS BE kind tonight, and no snow falls, a gals' softball struggle will be rattled off in Riverside Park. At six bells between Ottawa Mounties and Westclox lasses, the first game of the P. W. S. U. playdowns. Return tilt or tilts will be in the Capitol City come Saturdy. The Alarming Damsels will be striving muchly to win this opener, and they should stand a good chance—being stronger than a year ago when they gave Ottawa girls a tough series ere bowing out. Haven't heard which pitcher will get the Delahaye nod, Barb Blade, Marg Snowden or Helene Bradley. At anyrate, folks, it should be a nifty display of girls' softball, and just possibly the last chance fans here will have this year of seeing the feminine players in action. Ought to draw a big crowd.

LOTS OF ACTION THESE DAYS down in the Southend Softball League. They are in the throes of playoffs, but doggoned if we can follow their system. Seems that several squads are battling away now in semi-finals, and the main mixup will be along soon. Last night Leafs took Quakers by an 11-10 score (hi,there, Oshawa!) in a semi-final fray here whilst Little Harlem did a 9-2 job on the Keene crew in the village in a semi-final setto. These teams tangle tonight at the Brinton Field while Thursday sees Leafs and Quakers collide. Both Keene and Quakers must win to stay in the running, we are informed. They draw a goodly share of fans at these fixtures, and they're neat games generally on a good diamond.

It's Nearly Over Now

WESTCIOX MEN softballers had no trouble knocking off the Motorists last e'en at the Bowl by a 15-7 score. The game didn't mean much as Motorists were out the day before, though it meant the third win in the round-robin serial for the Clockmen, who meet Omemee tonight in the Bowl—and this is an important scrap. A win for the O's will sew it up between these teams, but a Westclox win would end the Omemee outfit for this year. Winner is slated to meet Oshawa in O. S. A. playdowns—we refuse to call it O. A. S. A. since that extra "A" stands for "amateur" and pros are now allowed to play softball—this Friday night. If Preem Whitely is on the Oshawa squad, and we think he is, the locals will have a tough task. He is a nifty hurler, all right.

SAW BIFFER RANGER last night at the lacrosse match. The Biff is back for a few days' visit and returns to Wichita next Tuesday. He expects to be playing hockey again this coming winter, remarking "there is no age limit on hockey there!" However, the former member of the Petes' senior O. H. A. champions is still turning in a neat effort in the American Assoc. as his record last winter showed. A tireless worker, a biff-bing-bang puckist and a good guy, Biffer has outlasted all the 1926 Petes in the puck wars. Yeah, Dwyer, McLeod, Parker, Rose, Collins, Bailey and the rest have all hung up their sticks some time ago—but Ranger is still playing pro hockey.

Old Man With The Scythe

SPEAKING OF OLDTIMERS, Duke Dainty approached Tommy Holyman in Oshawa after that affair last Saturday and suggested that an oldtime all-star C. O. B. L. squad play the modern winners. Using Jack Williams and Sonny Green as a starting battery. However a brief survey of respectable paunches accumulated down the years by the ex-players of the old Central Loop leads us to advise these ambitious oldsters to stay retired on their laurels. These suggestions come up once in awhile, but nothing seems to come of them. And fans like to remember their old favorites when in their prime, and not as middle-aged gents with a corporation where the ball whizzes by.

* * * * * * *

AS THE QUINTE columnist points out in timely style, the Locos of Kingston have been knocked out of intermediate competition easily this year. There was much fear in the Bay of Quinte loop early in the season when such names as Williams, Arnell, Joyce, Compeau, Jamieson, etc., were mentioned. Looked like the ex-senior stars might make ita runaway in the intermediate setup. But the oldtimers slipped regularly before their youthful rivals and are now out of the picture. It'll be Belleville and Napanee in playoffs. By the way, a former C. O. B. L. umpire, Art Twigg of Kingston, handled an O. S. A. game betwixt Kingston and Belleville the other night—and it was a wild affair. The scribe says he missed some terrible ones and finally got himself belted hard on the jaw twice, once by an irate fan and again by a more irate player. This must be open season on umps.

War Clouds Gathering

IT'LL BE OSHAWA GM-men versus the Petes at three in Riverside this Saturday in the fourth game of the four-in-seven C. O. B. L. serial. And what a hectic series it is turning out! Intense animosity of the players is being picked up by fans and no one is pulling any punches. Can't say now who will pitch for either team but that doesn't seem to matter with these clubs as the hitters are combing all slabsmen. Likely the biggest ball crowd of the year will see the scrap. No more talk of the last fray nothing but some nonsense in the Oshawa sheet as that scrivener tries to cover up lack of knowledge of the rules by quoting some more—and getting them wrong, too! But the best joke of 'em all is the tale that six cops in plain clothes were at that game; where were they during the riot, under the stands?

* * * * * * *

EAST YORKS KNOCKED off the Petes by a 17-11 score in the O. L. A. senior "B" struggle here last gloaming, and earned the win on their play. Maybe the locals now wished they had taken the advice of many to claim the game by default when the Toronto team was ane hour and a half late. Yep, the tilt didn't start till 10.30, instead of nine o'clock—and that's the stuff that will kill the sport here. The East Yorks have no dough and they don't give a hoot, but when they get a guarantee to come here for a game, we see no excuse why they can't work till six in the evening and still be here before nine. It was a fair fracas before maybe 500 fans, clean all the way—we mean the game was clean, though no doubt the fans were, too.

* * * * * * *

HITHER AND YAWN: Brooklin lacrossers play the Petes here this Friday night at nine. . . . Rotary midgets copped a 6-5 win over Lions in their lacrosse mixup last e'en. . . . Grid drills will continue nightly at six o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds and those wanting a trial are invited. . . . Won't be long now till the P. C. I. players are back to school and starting rugby practises. . . . Nothing being done about hockey here yet, the autumn classic being the main worry at the moment. . . . NOTE: Just heard that the Petes have reconsidered and, at the urging of the players, sent in a protest to the C. O. B. L. regarding that umpires' decision in Oshawa on Sat'day. . . . Babe Sheppard and Case Curzon of Toronto will be the umpires here this weekend. . . . Dan Howley and Clyde Engle of Toronto Leafs are due here Aug. 29-30 to give ball instructions. . . . Fred Collins, now in Trenton, follows the fortunes of the Fliers' good softball squad—but wishes it were a baseball team. . . . After their late arrival, someone shouted over at the East Yorks' lacrosse bench last p.m., "Have ya gotta full team there?" and a local wit nearby yelled back: "No, some of them are sober!"

Harlemites Win Over Keene 9-2

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Aug. 24.—Little Harlem defeated a makeshift Keene team 9-2 in the frist game of the semi-finals here Tuesday.

Craig for the Harlemites pitched good ball and received good support from his teammates. He allowed but 5 hits, walking eight batters and fanning two.

Whalen for Keene pitched steady ball allowing 11 hits and issuing 3 free passes, with his support being shaky.

Calladine and McNabb played brilliant ball in the field for Little Harlem, Brown and Wood looked best defensively for Keene with Wood having a nice double play.

Tompkins hit a homer with 3 aboard. Price also hitting a homer, Calladine and Maloney collecting triples. Renwick was the big batter for Keene with 3 singles. Wood and Whalen getting 1 apiece. Umpires—A.Pilling, bases; B. Calladine, plate.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Hank Rosevear's Port Hope quartette won the rubber game from H. Freeman's boys last night by scoring the last four ends of the game. It was a good game and fairly even until the last quarter, when the lakeshore boys stepped out in front to finish "seven up." The bowling of the veteran "Hank" was the feature of the game.

Another Port Hope rink came up and were entertained by H. Renaud. A. Fulford was the opposing skip and finished on the short end by a few shots.

In the Globe and Mail ladies' Scotch doubles Mrs. L. Beome and Mrs. J. Arnold will be one pair to represent our club, having defeated Miss E. Murphy and Mrs. A. Hope in the finals of the upper half of the draw. In the lower half of the semi-finals Mrs. J. Ford and Mrs. J. Cameron defeated Mrs. H. Martin and Mrs. J. Kingsbury and will not have to play Mrs. R. Hendry and Mrs. R. Dyer. The two winners of the contest will go to Toronto on Sept. 1st to compete with pairs from all over Ontario.

Here's one for the boys and girls to work on:

"What is the difference between "a burnt 'kitty' and a 'dead' 'kitty'?" We will answer this in a day or two.

Big League Clubs Considering Night Baseball

NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (A.P.). — The major leagues are ready to run up the white flag. Night baseball has the harried nabobs cornered. Complete surrender by a majority vote of both circuits will occur at the annual winter meeting next December.

At least nine big league clubs are privately or publicly planning to have their heroes play ball under the arc lights next summer. In addition to Cincinnati and Brooklyn, pioneers of major league nocturnal contests under the direction of Leland Stanford MacPhail, these clubs are all but certain to string the lights for 1939 home games: St. Louis, Boston, and Philadelphia in the National; Cleveland, Philadelphia, Washington, and St. Louis in the American.

Minors Forcing Move.

The minors are forcing the hand. Better than 90 per cent. of the minor league outfits play a large majority of their games under lights. The good-looking rookies coming up are nighthawks. When the sun is shining, all too many of them are Class C players. Under the lights they are as much at home as a squad of moths.

Tentative plan of the big league recruits of night ball follows that used at Cincinnati and Brooklyn. Each will be limited to seven home games under the glimmers. MacPhail, himself, believes in moderation.

"Seven home night games is just right so far," said the P. T. Barnum of the Flatbushers. "More night games under the present setup would work a hardship on the players."

A Few Statistics.

Financially, night games have been a great success in Brooklyn and Cincinnati. The Dodgers, for six games, have drawn average crowds of 30,000. Cincinnati has averaged around 20,000 per nocturnal contest.

"On the same dates we played those night games," said MacPhail, "I checked on the attendance of one of the pennant contenders. Their average was only around 6,500. You can't laugh that off."

Woman Aged 97 Dead

TORONTO, Aug. 24 (C.P.). — Mrs. Henrietta Frederick Ambery, 97, widow of Rev. John Ambery, one time Dean of Trinity College, Toronto, died here yesterday at the home of her son, E. F. Ambery.

Mrs. Ambery was born in Kingston, Ont., in 1844, daughter of Col. Colley Foster, once commander of British forces in Upper Canada. Mrs. Ambery married in 1858 and her husband died in 1878, after which she lived for a time in Europe. She was an accomplished musician and linguist. Another son, J. W. Ambery, Victoria, B.C., survives.

Surface Shock

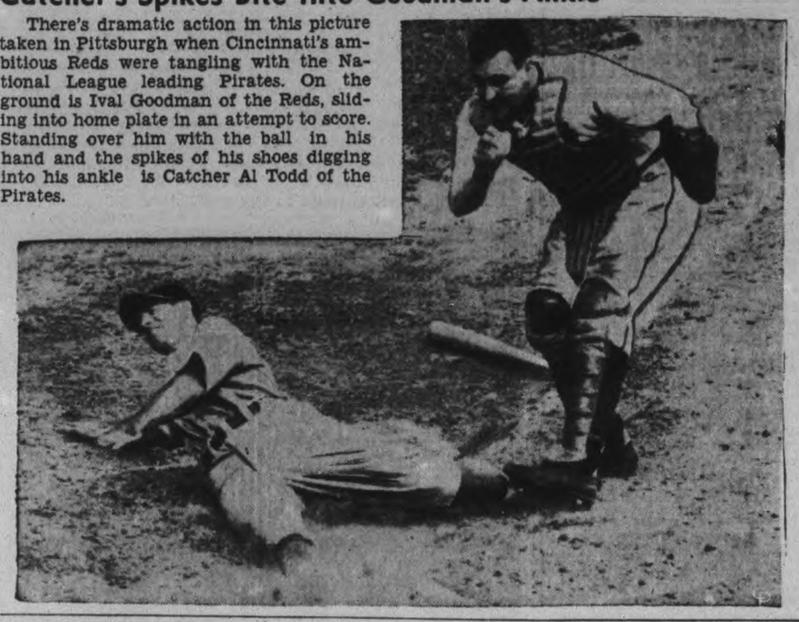
NEW YORK.—A slight earthquake rattled doors, windows and dishes in New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania last night. No serious damage was reported. Rev. Joseph Lynch, Fordham University 'quake expert classified it as a "slight surface shock" and said it lasted about a second.

Smashes Record

In a 13-hour stand at the wicket, during which time he gave only one chance, when his score stood at 40, Leonard Hutton, star 22-year-old Yorkshire cricketer, smashed all international run-getting records in the final England-Australia test match by hitting up 364 runs before he was caught out. Hutton garnered 35 fours during his innings which opened England's stand at the Oval.

Catcher's Spikes Bite Into Goodman's Ankle

There's dramatic action in this picture taken in Pittsburgh when Cincinnati's ambitious Reds were tangling with the National League leading Pirates. On the ground is Ival Goodman of the Reds, sliding into home plate in an attempt to score. Standing over him with the ball in his hand and the spikes of his shoes digging into his ankle is Catcher Al Todd of the Pirates.



Girls' Playoff Here Tonight

Weather permitting, a girls' softball contest will be staged here tonight (Wednesday) at six o'clock in Riverside Park. It is the first of the three-game P.W.S.U. playdown series between Ottawa Mounties and Peterborough Westclox. Return game or games will be run off in Ottawa next Saturday. Winner will advance into the second round of the Provincial playdowns, but the loser is eliminated for the season. The tilt this evening in Riverside should draw a big crowd of city and district followers of the girl softballers. Admission is 15 cents.

Westclox won the local league in handy fashion and appear to have a stronger squad than the Clockmakers of last year, who lost a close series to Ottawa in playdowns. Manager Ab Delahaye is uncertain yet as to his starting twirler. Helene Bradley, Barbara Blade, and Marg. Snowden all being ready for the slab assignment. The Ottawa team is said to be pretty much the same crew that eliminated Peterborough in 1937, and they will make it a real battle again. It shapes up as an exciting contest.

Westclox Squad Beats Motorists

Westclox men softballers took a 15-7 win over Motorists at the Bowl last night in the final appearance of the eliminated Motorists this season. The game had no bearing on the standing, Omemee and Westclox clash tonight here in a game that counts in playoffs. Fleming gave way to Wilson in the fourth last night, both fanning two and Wilson walking three, and giving up eight hits. Parsons gave nine bingles and four walks as he fanned six. Parsons, O'Leary and Foster were the main Westclox hitters, with Gainey getting a homer. Conroy led the losers at bat. Nice fielding was shown by Conroy, Walsh, Weir, Dormer, Gainey and O'Leary. The teams:

Westclox: Dormer, 3b; O'Leary, cf; Curry, lf; Ellis, 1b; Gainey, ss; Parsons, p; Foster rf; Mowry, c; Watson, 2b.

Motorists: Conroy, ss; Walsh, lf; Weir, 2b; Montgomery, rf; Playford, cf; Smith, 1b; Dorrington, 3b; Calladine, c; Fleming, p; Wilson, p.

Wooler Loses In First Fray

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Aug. 24.—Keene defeated Wooler in the first game of the intermediate "C" playdowns in a close, exciting fixture in which good pitching and smart fielding featured.

Keene won out in the ninth when Gall singled, was sacrificed to second by Hahn and stole third. With two down O. McCarthy slapped a single to centre to drive in the tying run.

Don McCarthy laid down a perfect bunt and with runners on first and second "Toe" Ibey hammered a long double to left to drive O. McCarthy home to win the game.

Down, for Wooler, pitched good ball until the ninth, holding Keene well in check while Don McCarthy on the Keene mound gave up just five hits. Brown for Keene and Bryant for Wooler were outstanding in the field, while Ibey, Gall and Hahn were the big hitters for Keene. Gall and Ibey with three apiece, McCall with two hits led the Wooler crew.

The teams:

Wooler: L. Redcliffe, c; Austin, 1b; Richards, ss; G. Redcliffe, 3b; McCall, lf; Bryant, cf; Down, p; Steenburg, rf; May, 2b.

Keene: T. Gall, rf; Wood, ss; Renwick, 1b; Whalen, cf; J. Gall, 3b; Brown, 2b; Fletcher, lf; O. McCarthy, c; D. McCarthy, p; Ibey, rf; Hahn, lf.

SPORT SPICE

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—(AP). — The word is out that some of the Tigers who haven't been going so hot will have cause for some real roaring when they see their 1939 contracts. . . . Those Gents with the far-away look in their eyes are the tennis barons. . . . Reason: La Moody's withdrawal—and there goes the Forest Hill gate, boys. . . Grapevine from Memphis says Carl Hubbell will chuck no more screwballs this season—and for the first time since he became manager of the Giants, Bill Terry finds himself without a pitching staff. . . . Two big league clubs are making passes at Mickey Cochrane for 1939.

The other day a New York columnist broadly hinted Bert Stand, secretary of the Boxing Commission, owns a slice of Lou Ambers. . . This excited Chairman John J. Phelan. . . . Yesterday he put Stand and Weill (Ambers' manager) under oath and gave them what is known as the old eye. . .Both denied everything. . . . Case dismissed. . . Kid gloves are off in the Dick Bartell-Bill Jurges feud and you can look for fireworks when the Cubs come here next month, if indeed, they don't pop at Wrigley Field to-day. . . .

Aussies Challenge Sculling Champion

TORONTO, Aug. 24. (CP).—Four husky oarsmen from the other side of the world will meet on the Canadian Exhibition waterfront Friday in the first of three races for the sculling championship of the world. Defending champion Bobby Pearce, native Australian now of Hamilton, Ont., will match his speed with Evans Paddon, Percy See and George Cook, all of Australia.

The first race will be over a quarter-mile course and the succeeding races on Friday, Sept. 2, and Friday, Sept. 9 will be at one mile and three miles respectively.

Paddon, the Australian professional champion, is expected to provide Pearce with the closest competition. See is the northern rivers district champion of Australia and Cook is champion of New South Wales.

Pearce, winner of the 1928 and 1932 Olympic sculling titles at Amsterdam and Los Angeles, has been residing in Canada since 1930 when he swept through all opposition at the British Empire Games in Hamilton. Fears Pearce might be unable to compete due to the death of his wife last week were unfounded. The big sculler announced he would keep his engagement.

After losing the rather obscure Canadian middleweight title to Ray McIntyre, of New Brunswick, Len Wadsworth, ABOVE, came back to score a decisive 10-round decision over the Maritime boxer and regain the crown. The fight took place in Timmins, Ont.

Keene Softballers Eliminate Wooler

KEENE, Aug. 24.—Keene eliminated Wooler from the intermediate playdowns in an exciting game in Trenton, marked by arguments and erratic hurling.

Stacey started on the mound for Wooler and was very wild, Keene registering four times in the first, mainly on walks. Wooler got one back on two hits and an out in their half. Wooler took the lead in the fifth when they pushed over four runs on some erratic pitching and two clean hits. Their advantage was short lived, however when O. McCarthy homered with 2 on, and Wood tripled to deep left with one on to pave the way for 8 runs to win the game and drive Stacey from the box in favor of Down, who faired little better.

Don McCarthy on the Keene mound pitched good ball after the fifth, holding Wooler to two runs from then on. He struck out eight. Ivan Fletcher and Renwick shone defensively for Keene, while Richards and Austin played smart ball for Wooler. Ibey and O. McCarthy led the Keene hitters with three hits apiece. McCarthy hitting a homer and Wood a triple for Keene, while Redcliffe, McCall and Stacey, with two hits each, led the Wooler batters.. Line-ups:

Maple Leafs Win Over Quakers

In a thrilling South-end Softball semi-final playoff game played at the Brinton diamond last night, the Leafs staged a six-run rally in the eighth inning to grab the victory from the Quakers by an 11-10 count. The losers built up an early lead when the Leafs fell apart in the second frame, three errors, three walks and one hit being good for five runs. The Leafs, however, came back in the seventh with 2, and won the ball game in the eighth, scoring 6 runs on four hits and three walks to force Shine from the mound. Butcher on the mound for the winners allowed 12 hits while walking 7 and striking out 7, but really bore down in the last two frames to blank the losers. Shine allowed 11 hits in the eight innings he twirled, walked six, but registered 11 strikeouts. Stanley, who relieved him in the eighth, pitched effective relief ball to stop the Leafs rally. Connelly and Ashmore had three hits apiece for the winners, the former's triple with the bases loaded in the eighth being the deciding factor in the game. McCullough had three hits for the Quakers and Courneyea a triple and a double. Connelly, Lazure, and Hefferman made some neat grasps for the winners with Starr and Shine looking best for the Quakers. The lineups:

Maple Leafs. — C. Corbert, 3b; Connelly, lf; J. Corbett, ss; Hefferman, rf; Lazure, 1b; Crary, 2b; Ashmore, c; Butcher, p; Holden, cf.

Quakers. — Courneyea, 3b; Starr, c; McCullough, 1b; Dixon, cf; Coughlin, lf; Shine, p; Stanley, 2b, p; Caccavella, ss; Depillaro, 3b, rf; Clark, rf.

$30,000 Fire

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 24—(CP)—In one of the most spectacular fires ever seen on Wolfe Island, across the river from Kingston, the barns and contents owned by George Pyke were destroyed by fire on Sunday. Damages was estimated at $30,000.

Two hundred and fifty hogs, farm implements and feed were destroyed. Cause of the fire was unknown.

More Changes In Pilots Seen For Big League Ball Teams

By IRVING VAUGHAN
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

When P. K. Wrigley, who owns and presides over Chicago Cubs, fired Charley Grimm and gave Gabby Hartnett a chance at the management, he figured he was doing a good turn for his baseball enterprise. What P. K. Wrigley didn't know was two things. One was that regardless of who manages his team it still lacks pennant possibilities without exteremely good luck. The other was that he would start something.

What Wrigley started, unconsciously of course, was the firing of Mike Cochrane, as manager of the Detroit Tigers, and it is only a short time back that the Detroit owners were encouraging the public prints to picture Mike as the wonder of the age. But just where the summary dismissal of Grimm for no logical reason and the equally inexplainable bouncing of Cochrane may end, nobody can guess. The two moves may precipitate other acts, although the owners who have been trained in baseball are not inclined to become panicky.

Explanation Necessary.

Regardless of what becomes of Grimm and Cochrane as baseball men the owner involved in the two cases still must attempt to offer a satisfactory explanation for their manoeuvres. Grimm, who took charge of the Cubs in August of 1932, won two pennants and never finished outside the first division. Cochrane after being sold to Detroit by the Athletics for a neat piece of change took over the leadership of the Tigers in 1934 and captured two flags, one world series and finished second the two other years. If they'd won a pennant every year they might have continued in their jobs.

The first echo after the Grimm firing was that he didn't have to worry about getting back into baseball. The same echo bounced back on the announcement that Cochrane had been turned loose. Grimm, if reports are correct, might have a coupe of jobs for consideration next fall. Cochrane, according to similar reports, may have at least one offer.

Cochrane Friend of Yawkey

Cochrane is a close friend of Tom Yawkey, the multi-millionaire who furnished the money to buy a lot of broken down athletes for the Red Sox. Performing as business manager for the same club is Eddie Collins who, as a coach, was associated with Cochrane on the Athletics. Cochrane was born in Bridgewater, Mass, near Boston. What could be more logical than to appoint him the Red Sox manager next winter?

Joe Cronin is managing the Red Sox at the present time but the possibilities of being removed from his job probably can't cause him any alarm. Jumping Joe once played with the Washington club. He is related by marriage to the president of the same club. Joe is a popular young man in Washington. So it would be perfectly natural to take him back there, especially after Bucky Harris, who was retrieved because he was considered a local failure has flopped just as he flopped elsewhere.

Grimm a Pittsburgh Favorite.

The future of Grimm in baseball may be influenced by what happens in the current National league race from which he was bounced because he couldn't build a temple with mud and a can of paint. Grimm is a big favorite in Pittsburgh, where he played for years before coming to the Cubs. He is a big figure in St. Louis because he was born there and is of German blood as are most of the other citizens of the Mound City.

Grimm will not go to Pittsburgh if the Pirates win the pennant. If the Pirates flop after the lead they have gained it will create that much more sentiment for the banishment of Pie Traynor. In that event, Grimm would be the first man to be considered. But if the Pirates win the flag, Grimm may have to decide whether he wants to manage the St. Louis Browns of the American league or the Gas House Cardinals of the National.

EAST YORKS DEFEAT PETES BY 17-11 COUNT IN LACROSSE TILT

Toronto Team Comes Late But Wins Out

East York defeated the Petes here, 17 to 11, last night before a fair-sized crowd in an O.L.A. senior "B" fixture. The contest was an hour and a half late starting, the visitors not arriving till 10.30 o'clock. The score was 2-1 for them in the first and 5-4 for East York at halftime. The visitors looked stronger in the second half of a rather ragged but clean tilt, leading by a 6-4 score in the third and with a 6-3 edge in the fourth. Play was fast but combination only fair and the visitors earned the nod.

After their late start, the Petes being on hand and practising all the time, the homesters appeared stale and failed to start off with their usual dash. As the game progressed, they made it close but looked below form and were well beaten at the finish. Whitton and Loucks turned in a good game throughout for the home squad, and some of the others shone in spots. The Graham brothers, Hedley, McWhinney and Hayward looked best for the winners.

The teams:

East York: Goal, Hayward; defence, McLean and Rhinehart; centre, Sinclair; wings, Carr and Davis; rover, Lindo alternates, Hedley, A. Graham; J. Graham, McWhinney, Wallace, Cole and Daniels.

Petes: Goal, R. Creighton defence, Miller and Loucks; centre, Magee; wings, Crowe and Dallin; rover, King; alternates, Whitton, Reid, Vitarelli, Sloan, Hendy and Dundas.

Referee, Len Smith of Toronto.

Summary:

First Quarter

East York—J. Graham (McWhinney)	10.00
East York—Hedley	13.30
Petes—Loucks	14.00
No penalties.

Second Quarter

East York—Sinclair	3.30
East York—Davis	5.00
Petes—Loucks (Whitton)	5.30
Petes—Reid (Sloane)	9.00

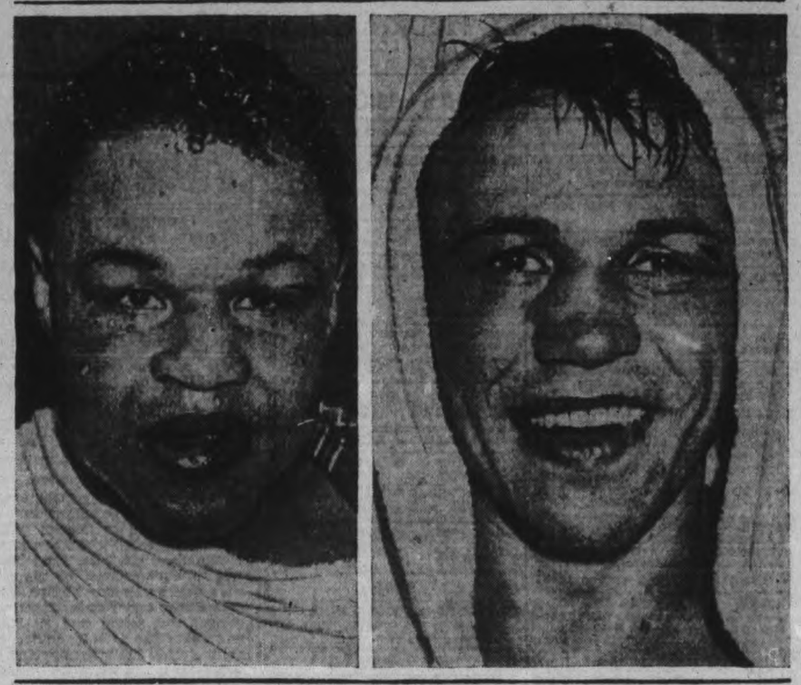
Deloro Failed To Show Up

A large crowd was disappointed through the non-appearance of the Deloro aggregation last night to play the return league fixture with the Canadian General on King Edward Park. The visitors are generally on time and are anxious to play the Electric boys, on their splendid win over the league leaders—Brinton Athletic—two weeks ago. The local referee waited until 7.20 before he called the kick-off, and the locals scored a goal thereby claiming the game. The visitors may have had a mishap through transportation; if so, their non-appearance will be dealt with by the P. and D. F. A.

On Thursday night the Brinton Athletic meet the C.C.F. in the G. N. Gordon Cup. Kick-off at 6.30. Referee J. Parry. The winners meet the Canadian General on Saturday afternoon. Kick-off at 3 o'clock. Referee, J. Hanlon.

The Camera Doesn't Lie. But It's Deceiving



Everybody knows who won the Armstrong-Ambers fight for the world's lightweight championship, but these pictures, taken in the dressing rooms after the 15-round battle in New York, would certainly give one the wrong impression. At the LEFT is the winner and the holder of the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight championships at one and the same time, Hammering Henry Armstrong. At the RIGHT is the game and willing Herkimer Hurricane, Lou Ambers, who lost the fight but won the plaudits of the crowd. Note the cut and battered apearance of the dynamic Armstrong, a strong contrast to the smiling and much less marked loser.

Rotary Midgets Win 6-5 Game

Rotary took a 6-5 win over Lions in a three-period midget lacrosse game last night. Vitarelli got two goals for Lions in the first frame with Cox scoring for Rotary. The latter team tallied three in the second, Cox getting one and Hallihan two, as Maloney and Ascott dented the hemp for the losers. Vitarelli got the lone Lions' goal in the third, while Hallihan notched the tying and winning counter for Rotary. Teams:

Lions: Goal, Anderson; defence, Ascott, Roberts; centre, Vitarelli; wings, Maloney, Detlor; rover, Kinmond; subs, Caravaggie, Scriver, Eason.

Oaklie Grattan Wins Race At Ottawa Fair

OTTAWA, Aug. 24. (CP).—Oaklie Grattan won first prize money for its owner, Miss Ella Parker of Winchester, Ont., in the 2:30 pace, open to horses owned within 100 miles of Ottawa, when it took two first places and one second in harness racing at the Central Canada Exhibition here Tuesday.

Over a muddy track, Oaklie Grattan, a bay gelding, driven by Jim Connors was nosed out of the first place by Belle of Lakeland in the third heat after taking the first two.

Simcoe Harvester, in charge of Cecil Champion, had little trouble taking first place money in the 2:14 pace, scoring three successive wins in the three heats. The bay stallion, property of T. J. Payette of Penetang, beat Midnight Grattan, owned by Charles Sandrelli of Peterborough, in the home stretch in the first and third heats, and nosed out Betty Bars in the second.

Cricket Results

LONDON, Aug. 24 (C.P. Cable).—The English County cricket championship race tightened on Tuesday when the weakened Yorkshire team lost on the first innings to Nottinghamshire. Five players from the Yorkists are playing for England against Australia in the fifth and final test match of the season.

The second-place Middlesex eleven although idle, cut the Yorkshiremen's lead and a great last-of-the-season duel for honors is expected.

Rain upset the three-day schedule, two contests ending in draws. No play was possible to-day at Cardiff between Glamorgan and Leicestershire, and at Taunton play was called shortly after the teams took the field. These contests are not included in the championship table.

In other matches concluded yesterday, Hampshire defeated Northamptonshire—still without an entry in the win column—by seven wickets, and first-innings points were taken by Worcestershire and Derbyshire over Warwickshire and Sussex respectively. Gloucestershire defeated Lancashire by 10 wickets yesterday.

The scores:

Yorkshire 320 and 267 runs for five wickets (Mitchell 78); Nottinghamshire 403 (Robinson seven for 122); at Nottingham.

Glamorgan 281 for three, vs. Leicestershire; at Cardiff.

Somerset 337, Surrey 181 for three (Gregory 74 not out, Fishlock 52); at Taunton.

Northamptonshire 195 and 119 (Boyes six for 40); Hampshire 250 (Boyes 104, Pothecary 59, Partridge five for 64) and 69 runs for three wickets; at Newport.

Worcestershire 480 for five declared (Cooper 216 not out, Martin 136). Warwickshire 296 and 345 for eight (Cranmer 104, Santall 75, Shortlands 51); at Dudley.

Leafs Drop Two To Jersey City

TORONTO, August 24—(CP).—In the next 10 days or so the champion Newark Bears probably will clinch their second straight International League pennant, but that battle for the all important runner-up position looks like it will continue right down to the wire.

Right now Rochester Red Wings are leading the third place Syracuse Chiefs by a game with the Buffalo Bisons 3½ games further astern. These three teams along with the Bears are almost certain to make the playoffs.

But it's second place spot these three teams are shooting for and for more reasons than one. The second place club split a $2,000 pot at the end of the season and even more important, meets the fourth-place club in the first round of the playoffs. The team that finishes third will face the Bears in the playoff series.

The Chiefs lost a chance to move into second place last night when they took a 2-0 whitewashing from Buffalo Bisons and Ken Ash. As Rochester Red Wings were rained out of their game with the Bears, a victory would have moved the Syracusans behind Newark. Baltimore Orioles also were rained out in Montreal, but Jersey City Giants swept a doubleheader from Toronto 5-1, and 2-1.

Foxx Homers Bases Full To Beat Indians

NEW YORK, Aug. 24 (AP).—It's hard to imagine any real danger for a club that has an 11½ game lead and doesn't know what a slump means, but even though the Boston Red Sox haven't much chance to overhaul New York's Yankees, they're in a good spot to make things tough for the rest of the American baseball league.

The Sox took over second place from Cleveland Indians yesterday when Jimmy Foxx pulled off the perfect play—a homer with the bases full and two out in the ninth. Actually Boston walloped Cleveland twice, 13-3 and 14-12, but the first game was little more than batting practice.

They hammered out 21 hits, mostly in the first three innings. The second game, however, saw Cleveland gain a 6-1 lead. Then Foxx hit his 34th homer of the season and Manager Joe Cronin clouted two to produce a 10-10 tie going into the ninth.

Hit First Ball

Ken Keltner almost saved the day for the Tribe when he hit for the circuit with one aboard in the ninth, but that couldn't stop Foxx. Coming up after Willis had crammed the corners, he drove the first pitching out of the park.

Meanwhile the Yanks, who can just breeze home by winning half their remaining games, maintained the necessary .500 pace by splitting with Chicago White Sox. The pale hose hopped on Wes Ferrell to take the opener 11-3, with the aid of four homers and Thornton Lee's seven-hit flinging. John Rigney gave only four more blows in the nightcap, but Bill Dickey's 21st homer and Lou Gehrig's 25th produced enough runs for the Yanks to win 3-1.

Giants Cut Lead

New York Giants sliced a half-game off Pittsburgh's National league lead as they hammered Larry French and Jack Russell for seven hits and six runs in the first and a 6-2 victory over Chicago Cubs. The Pirates barely managed to break even with Boston Bees, absorbing a 6-0 shutout from Johnny Lanning in the opener, then going 14 innings to pull out a 4-3 decision on an error after having 22 runners left on base.

Cincinnati Reds gained a two-game margin over the Cubs by trimming the Phillies 3-0 on Whitey Moore's five hit flinging. Terry Moore's homer with the bases full started St. Louis Cardinals off to a 9-7 victory over Brooklyn.

Detroit Tigers captured fourth in the American league by the smallest possible margin—with a .5044 average to Washington's .5043—as they walloped Athletics twice, 13-5 and 8-3, while the Senators took a single 6-5, 14-inning decision from St. Louis Browns. Hank Greenberg's 43rd homer, keeping him 8 days ahead of Babe Ruth's 1927 record, and Rudy York's 28th marked the second Tiger triumph.

Canadiens Defeat Cornwall 13 to 6

MONTREAL, Aug. 24—(CP). — Fielding a team which displayed a new system of attack, Montreal Canadiens pinned a 13-6 defeat on Cornwall Seniors in a Quebec Senior lacrosse fixture last night.

"Cocoa" Blanchard, making his first appearance for Canadiens in the Forum here this season, took top scoring honors with his teammate, Eddie Greene. Each posted three goals. Jacques Dolbec led Seniors' squad with two.

Dollfuss' Children Are Safe

Children of the murdered Austrian chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss, Eva, 10, and her younger brother, Rudi, 7, are pictured at Estaad, Switzerland, where they now reside with their mother. Their father was killed by Nazis in the unsuccessful Vienna "putsch" of 1934.

FISHERMAN INJURED

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S.—(CP).—Harry Cann of North Sydney was severely injured when he went out in a small dory from the vessel Savannah after a 200-pound swordfish that offered resistance after being harpooned. Cann stabbed it with a second harpoon, but the fish drove its sword through the bottom of the dory, cutting an eight-inch hole through the boat and badly lacerating the fisherman's thigh.

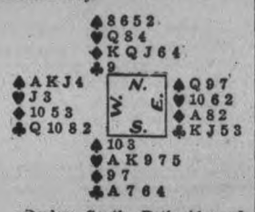
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

ONE WAY TO JUDGE

IF YOU WATCH two grades of suit declarers and try to note what distinguishes the better ones from the weaker ones, there is a feature which will surely become clear to you. The lesser ones will show too great a desire to take tricks by ruffing. The stalwarts will seem by comparison to prefer setting up long cards of some side suit, in either closed hand or dummy. In fact, that is about the first problem a star surveys, after sizing up the safety of his trump suit—the question of whether or not there is a side suit which may be established in some way.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

Against South's 4-Heart contract West started the defense by cashing the spades K and A and continuing with the suit in response to East signal. South ruffed and laid down the club A. He next ruffed a club, then a spade, on which East discarded a diamond. The next club ruff in dummy made it necessary for him to lay down the diamond K. East held off till the second round to kill the suit and then led the club K. Declarer trumped this in dummy and then had to ruff his diamond, losing one trump at the end.

He should have observed at the start that with this type of hand ruffing was not in order. The moment he gained control his correct procedure was to go after the diamond suit and that method of play would have earned him his contract.

Floored By Lightning

EAST EMILY, Aug. 24.—In the recent severe electric storm which passed over this district Miss Mildred Magee had a severe shock from the lightning. A hired man, her father and herself were standing in the stable door about 4.30 in the afternoon, and the lightning came in, knocking both the hired man and Miss Magee to the floor and Miss Magee had one arm burned, as she had one hand on some part of the litter carrier, and it is thought the lightning must have followed the track in.

Eight Million Acres Set Aside By Federal Government In Quebec As Beaver Sanctuary

Five Thousand Indians Will Benefit By Plan To Control Trapping

OTTAWA, Aug. 24.—(CP).— Details of a beaver sanctuary in Northern Quebec on a scale never before attempted were announced to-day by Resources Minister Crerar. It will be a beaver farm of 13,000 square miles, and the scheme has been made possible through the co-operation of Quebec and Dominion Governments.

Adjoining it will be the sanctuary of the Hudson's Bay Company, where, for many years, beaver have been protected, and which has an area of 7,000 square miles. R. H. G. Bonnycastle, Assistant Fur Commissioner of the company, has estimated it would be possible eventually to increase the beaver population in the company's sanctuary to 25,000. It has already been increased from 162 to 1,545 in four years.

Exclusively for Indians.

The Dominion's sanctuary will be exclusively for the Indians. J. S. C. Watt, who has had long experience in the district and has successfully managed the company's project, will manage the Dominion's farm. It will be administered by the Mines and Resources Department.

In 1933 the Hudson's Bay Company began developing its sanctuary on 7,000 square miles made available by the Quebec Government. It extends along the east shore of James Bay from Eastman River on the north and Rupert River on the south and stretches far inland.

The sanctuary which the Department of Mines and Resources will administer will extend from Rupert River south, and will be almost twice as large as that administered by the company. It is expected the Dominion's sanctuary will directly benefit more than 5,000 Indians.

The department will employ at least eight chiefs of Indian families in the district to assist Mr. Watt the year round.

These Indians will ensure the protection of the sanctuary against poaching either by Indians or white trappers, will assist in counting the beaver and in general supervision. It is proposed to prevent any trapping in the Dominion area until the beaver population has reached 4,000 and then only Indians will be allowed to trap a limited number.

Departmental experts say the two sanctuaries are located in a part of Canada where prime beaver skins of the finest type are to be expected. It constitutes an effort to make the Indians of the district self-supporting where recently they have had to be given much assistance. It is also an effort to bring back an industry which first made Canada famous, when beaver skins from New France captured the fancy of Europe.

Great things are expected of the sanctuary, for beaver, while furnishing desirable furs, also provide food which is regarded as a great delicacy.

The scheme should also aid general conservation and add to the natural wealth of the Province as the overflow from the sanctuary spreads to surrounding areas.

For years the beaver trapping industry has been in difficulty for Indians as well as white trappers. At one time trapping was forbidden in most Provinces and the price of pelts went as high as $50. Then trapping was thrown open and the rush again almost ended the beavers and once again a closed season extending for several years had to be declared. Prices dropped but with the closed season they have again begun to mount, and at the June sales in Winnipeg reached a top of $17.50 for very large prime pelts.

The object will be to so regulate the trapping not only in the sanctuary but throughout Canada that there will be a steady flow of furs to meet the requirements of the market without denuding the rivers and lakes of these animals.

Overconfidence Blamed

OTTAWA, Aug. 24—(CP). — Inquiry into grounding of the liner Ascania in the St. Lawrence River, July 2, disclosed "an error of judgment" on the part of pilot Henri Pouliot, and "over-confidence in the ability of the pilot" by chief officer Cowcap, senior navigating officer, according to the report of Mr. Justice Philippe Demers.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Provincials Told To Clamp Down On "Sucker" Games

Ottawa, Aug. 24.

PROVINCIAL Police will use their own judgment in closing down games at Ontario fall faris, Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Agriculture Minister, said in an interview here Monday.

Betting, crooked wheels or any booth that tried "to clean out a sucker" would be promptly closed.

"Provincial Police have co-operated in the past, but they have hesitated to close down a booth without consulting the fair management," said Mr. Dewan. "Now they are being told to close down immediately without reference to the management any place they think is not operating properly."

Mr. Dewan said bingo games would not be affected.

Crop Control Upset By U.S. Harvest

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24—(AP)—Federal farm leaders described the farm problem confronting the United States today as perhaps the most difficult since the 1934-36 drough period.

Good crop-growing weather during the last two seasons, the business recession and unsetled world conditions have combined, they said, to complicate the agricultural situation despite governmental efforts to boost prices and income.

The difficulty arises from the fact, they explained, that supplies of farm products are far in excess of the demand at current prices.

Here is the situation respecting the major crops: Cotton, despite a 22 per cent. acreage reduction this year, there is a record surplus of 13,400,000 bales of cotton, or about the same as an average crop. The government holds more than 7,100,000 bales put up as collateral for loans to growers. With the price only slightly above 50 per cent. of the parity goal of 15.9 cents a pound, the government is required by the farm law to provide loans on this year's crop for growers desiring to hold cotton for possible future better prices.

To prevent accumulation of greater cotton stocks, the government will ask growers to restrict next year's planting to about 27,000,000 acres, compared with a normal acreage of 40,000,000.

Record Wheat Surplus

This year's second largest wheat crop on record, officials said, has placed the bread grain in almost as serious a situation as cotton. Present prospects indicate a record surplus of possibly 400,000,000 bushels a year from now.

The excessive supplies, both at home and abroad, have forced prices to a farm average of about 53 cents a bushel, compared with the "party" goal of 83 cents and an average farm price of $1.18 a year ago.

To bolster prices and enable growers to hold surplus grain off the market for better prices, the government is providing loans at an average rate of about 60 cents a bushel.

In order to avert great surpluses, the government is asking growers to plant only 55,000,000 acres for next year's crop compared to 80,000,000 this year. Unless farmers cooperate almost 100 per cent., officials said, marketing quotas may have to be invoked on the 1939 crop. Cooperating growers will receive benefit payments of between 26 and 30 cents a bushel.

Prospective corn supplies are only 30,000,000 bushels short of the amount which the new farm law describes as excessive. Consequently, another acreage reduction program is in prospect next year. Growers were asked to plant 20 per cent. less this year. Next year's reduction may be greater.

Costs Driver $5.00 To Leave Car On Parking Lot

Detroit, Aug. 24

HERMAN GRIFFIN, Mason, Mich., drove into Detroit Sunday and parked his car on a parking lot. Not knowing that few lots are operated on Suday, he expected to pay for the privilege. A man appeared, describing himself as the official in charge, and asked a fee. Griffin gave him a $5 bill, and the man left, ostensibly to get change.

Griffin waited some time and then told his story to police sergeant Roy Luno.

"Young man," said Luno, "you've been robbed."

"Thats what I thought," Griffin replied, "but I had my girl with me and I didn't want to look cheap."

Eyston Feels 360 m.p.h. Is Top Speed

John Cobb Holds There's No Limit For Ground Motion

WENDOVER, Utah, Aug. 25. — (AP).—The world's high speed king, Captain George E. T. Eyston, of England, feels that at almost 360 miles an hour he virtually has reached the ceiling of speed on land.

His chief rival, John Cobb, also of London, holds, however, that there is no limit to the rate of motion man can attain on the ground.

Eyston, yesterday was officially timed at 347.16 miles an hour as he rocketed his Thunderbolt automobile through the measured mile on the Bonneville salt flats just east of here.

He said to-day dash-board instruments showed he hit "devlish close to 360" in the return run through the mile when failure of an electric eye timing device nullified his certain new record.

"I've figured it out scientifically," said Eyston, "and I don't think a land speed of much more than 360 miles an hour is possible.

Speed Of Sound.

"Racing tires to hold up at greater speed can't be built. At 360 the outside of the tire is travelling at the speed of about 700 miles an hour. If they weren't completely shielded, the wind alone would rip them wide open.

"After you pass 300, the graph of danger rises almost vertically, and the graph of car and engine performance drops rapidly. Man won't go much faster than 360 on land and live to tell about it."

Countered Cobb:

"If you can get tires that will hold up, if mechanical engineering continues its remarkable development, and if you can get long enough straightway courses, I don't think there's any limit to the speed man could travel."

Cobb, who is awaiting use of the salt flats for a record attempt in his turtle-shaped Railton car, and Sir Malcolm Campbell of England, are the only other men who have driven a car faster than 300 miles an hour.

Three Drowned As Boat Upset

FLIN FLON, Man., Aug. 25 (CP).—Three youthful residents of Flin Flon last night drowned and a fourth was rescued in an unconscious condition from the waters of Schist lake when a speed boat capsized on the way to a Lakeshore weiner roast.

The dead:

Bert Hyman, 22, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hyman, formerly of The Pas; Miss Helen Beda, 18, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Beda, formerly of The Pas, and Miss Josephine Persian, 27, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Persian, Bowsman, Man. The speed-boat owned by Oscar Hyman was carrying them to a point south of the Channing air harbor when it capsized.

William McBratney 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McBratney, Flin Flon, was the survivor. He was dragged from the water by occupants of a boat driven by Robert Fledman, Flin Flon.

Fledman heard faint cries above the roar of the boat's motor and sped to the scene. Only McBratney, instinctively fighting to keep afloat, although unconscious, could be seen. A windbreaker, worn by one of the girls, floated on the waves.

Beautiful Drive

Like an etching in black and white done by an artist is this play of light and shadow on the road near Birdsall's Landing. A really beautiful drive, the road is overhung with trees is dark and gloomy as a cavern in sections, leads to a magnificent view of rolling hill country across Rice Lake from the property of Col. R. E. Birdsall. "I'm always happy when people like the view from my home," said Col. Birdsall yesterday. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Man Drops Dead While Watching Bewdley Regatta

Fred Stein, Port Hope, slumped behind the wheel of his car while watching the regatta events at Bewdley shortly before eight o'clock last night and died in a few minutes from a heart attack.

The man had been subject to heart attacks and for the past year had been taking things easy. Yesterday he drove up from Port Hope with his wife and thirteen year old daughter to see Bewdley Regatta and sat in his car, while the other two members of the family stood some distance away.

Wm. Challis and George Heath of Bowmanville noticed the man was acting queerly, and notified Provincial Constable McClure who went over to the car with Mrs. Stein but the man was breathing his last. Dr. A. L. Russell of Bailieboro was called and said death was due to heart failure.

Pilot Is Injured In Mimico Crash

WESTON, Ont., Aug. 25 (C.P.). — Ernest Robertson, 22, of Milton, Ont., was injured slightly to-day when a Royal Canadian Air Force airplane he was piloting crashed a short distance from here. Robertson was the only one in th plane.

Onlookers pulled Robertson from the machine and took him to the office of a nearby physician. It was said there the pilot had suffered cuts and slight body bruises.

100 Pound Of Comb Honey Removed From the Wall Of Ridgeway Store

Fort Erie, Ont., Aug. 25. MORE THAN 100 pounds of comb honey was the reward of Carl Pooler, Orval Sherk and Bert Shisler, three Bertie Township men, for their temerity in removing from the wall of the McMoran clothing store in Ridgeway, a bees nest located in that spot several years. The bees had became a nuisance to the occupants of the structure, particularly to Dr. J. B. White, a dentist in the building.

A portion of the wall was removed and the nest thoroughly scattered. The busy insects had used about three feet of the inside of the outer wall for their hive. They opposed the invasion but the three volunteers were specially clothed for the occasion.

Oshawa's Road Protest Fails Highway Goes Outside City

OSHAWA, Aug. 25.—Hon. Gordon D. Conant, Attorney-General and member for South Ontario, has advised Mayor Alex. McLeese in a letter that the proposed route of the new four-lane highway from Toronto is in his opinion the most practical from the standpoint of all parties.

Pointing out that any effort to construct the highway through Oshawa on either King, Bond or Athol streets would entail the loss of thousands of dollars in assessment besides ruining many business establishments, the Attorney-General was of the opinion the proposed route on the base line would serve the best interests of all parties.

The letter was received following a meeting of interested parties in Oshawa several days ago, when Mayor McLeese was requested to get in touch with Queen's Park.

The Attorney-General went on to point out that in the United States and England, and so far as the authorities here have proceeded in Ontario, such highways have been built not to run through, but invariably follow a route outside, built-up areas.

"The route of the highway as now proposed is almost exactly in the centre of the city, measuring from the northerly limit to the harbor.

"It follows a course which will disturb few if any business premises; it will disturb fewer dwellings and involve less expense and loss in assessment than any other route that can be found. It will add to property values and assessments along and in the immediate vicinity of the route," Mr. Conant declared.

Far from being satisfied the definite route of the road through the city is a closed issue, business men and other interested parties are holding a mass meeting tomorrow night.

In Whtiby, Town Council members refused to have anything to do with the opposition being raised by Oshawa business men, it was learned.

"We don't want any part in Oshawa's quarrel with the Government regarding the highway," was the way Reeve Albert Jackson summed it up.

Two Small Children Pulled From Truck Few Seconds Before Distillate Exploded

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Aug. 25 (C. P.). — Keith Ewan, Moose Jaw truck driver, saved two small children from death or serious burns last night, when he pulled them from his blazing distillate-loaded truck before it exploded after an accident six miles east of here.

The truck exploded after a second truck driven by Henry Rodenbust crashed into it from the rear as Ewan stopped suddenly to avoid an oncoming automobile. It was believed sparks from the motor of the second truck set the distillate-filled tank of Ewan's machine ablaze.

When Ewan saw his truck was ablaze, he pushed one of the children through one door of the cab, and jumped through the other door with the second child. Names of the children were not immediately available.

Rodenbust and Ewan suffered burns about the hands and arms as they put out flames which had caught the cab of the second truck. Distillate in the second machine did not catch fire.

300-Pound Barrel Of Pitch Tumbles Nine Storeys, Injuring Two Persons

Montreal, Aug. 25.

A 300-pound barrel of pitch plummeted 9 storeys through stairway landings in the Wilder building on Bleury street today, leaving two persons injured and throwing occupants of the office building into a panic.

Workmen tarring the roof lugged the barrel from the elevator at the ninth floor up the stairs towards the roof. The heavy barrel escaped from them and tumbled down the stairs. It bounced in the air and crashed through the marbled stair landing.

Like an aerial bomb, the pitch barrel plunked through landing after landing on its noisy career to the basement. As it burst through each floor it set off sprinkler systems, drenching stairway and corridors.

Fireman Jack Cloran, repairing a sprinkler valve on the sixth floor, was missed by the barrel. It broke away the landing he was standing on and he fell five storeys in the wake of the barrel.

The other victim was Harry Waldman. He was out of the building when the accident happened, but rushed in to see if his premises had been damaged. Running up the stairs, he dropped through the yawning hole in the first floor landing.

Spanish Police Fire On Diplomat's Car

LONDON, Aug. 25 (C.P.).— Reuters News Agency said to-day the wife of the Italian Ambassador to Insurgent Spain was wounded on Monday night when a police patrol at San Sebastian, Spain, fired on the automobile in which the envoy and his wife were riding.

Roberto Cantalupo presented his credentials as Italy's first envoy to the insurgent regime on March 4, 1937.

Reuters said police commanded the automobile to halt and opened fire, not recognizing it was a diplomatic car, when the chauffeur ignored the order. The Ambassador was said to have been unhurt.

Believe Nazi-Czech Issue Has Reached A Crisis Result Remains Unknown

Complete Agreement Either Been Reached Or Open Break Between Governments, British Official Rushes To London

LONDON, Aug. 25 (CP)—A decisive development in the issue between the Czechoslovak government and its Nazi-supported, autonomy-seeking Sudeten German minority appeared imminent today after a hurried conference of British government officials here.

Diplomatic observers expressed belief a crisis probably had been reached, pointing either to a complete agreement on a friendly basis or an open break between Praha government and the Sudeten Germans.

Speculation was aroused by the hurried return of F. T. A. Ashton-Gwatkin, right hand man of Viscount Runciman, British unofficial mediator in the issue, for conferences with Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, and Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

British officials said Mr. Ashton-Gwatkin flew to London on private business and merely happened to see the cabinet members.

But none would specify the nature of his private business or why he came from Praha by airplane. Also unexplained was why Mr. Ashton-Gwatkin wanted to see Lord Halifax late last night and was persuaded to postpone his conference with the foreign secretary until today.

No official would acknowledge that the three men even discussed the Czechoslovak problem but, it was said privately, that was their only concern.

Diplomatic quarters heard that Britain may have evolved plans for a new step toward solving Czechoslovakia's minority problem.

Three possible developments were reported:

1. Lord Runciman may be working out his own peace plan.

2. The British Government, possibly acting with other states, may make a new effort to lessen the general European tension resulting from the dispute between the Sudeten Germans and the Czechoslovak Government.

3. It was felt in British Ministerial circles that the intensive German Press Campaign against Czechoslovakia adds an unnecessary complication and that some steps may be taken to modify it.

May Make Appeal

It has been suggested in London that Lord Runciman may make a personal appeal to Chancellor Hitler with the object of stopping the Press Campaign which he feels is undermining his efforts.

It was officially denied that any specific event brought Mr. Ashton-Gwatkin back to London. He returned for personal reasons and Lord Halifax seized the occasion of his visit for the conference.

No attempt was made in official circles to hide the disquiet resulting from the central European situation. This was due to no particular development, but resulted from prolongation of the Czech-Sudeten German problem which is becoming more intense if anything.

Officially, it was denied Mr. Ashton-Gwatkin's sudden dash back to London heralded new policies by the British Government.

Continues Conferences.

PRAHA, Aug. 25.—(CP-Havas).—Viscount Runciman conferred with leaders of the Anti-Nazi German minority to-day as he pressed his efforts to solve the deep-seated conflict between the Czechoslovak government and numerous national groups.

The unofficial British mediator received Herr Reichenberger, former president and founder of the Catholic Popular Union.

Reichenberger in 1920 established the organization known for its democratic ideals and its good relations with the Vatican. After the union of Germany and Austria in March, followers of Konrad Henlein in the Pro-Nazi German Sudeten party brought pressure to obtain a change of policy in the Catholic Popular Union and Reichenberger resigned as president.

Lord Runciman also received a delegation from the "Dietat Club" —a group of German youths opposed to the Henlein party.

Czechoslovak police, raiding a building in a village near Karlovy Vary (Karlsbad) seized circulars appealing to German residents to boycott a Czech dairy.

Strong Labor Movement Urged As Necessity In Canada

TORONTO, Aug. 25 (C.P.). — Leopold Macaulay, Conservative Legislature Leader, and Alderman Stewart Smith, Communist, believe in the necessity for a strong Labor movement in Canada.

Mr. Macaulay supported by J. A. Smith, business agent of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, criticized the Ontario Labor and Industry Board for "procrastination in bringing down schedules for industry in this province." Mr. Smith said that the present Board "doesn't know anything about Labor and has a lot to learn." They were addressing a meeting of painters and decorators last night.

Mr. Macauley charged that E. J. Young, chairman of the Labor and Industry Board, "knows little about Labor in Ontario."

"There should be at least one man on the board who knows Labor," said Mr. Macaulay. "E. J. Young is an old-time Western free trader, but in my humble opinion he is a man who knows little about Labor in Ontario."

"All other types of business are highly organized to-day," Mr. Macaulay said, "and I believe most decidedly that Labor should be organized and organized well."

Motorist Is Beaten By Four Men On Road Near Sutton

Sutton, Ont., Aug. 25.

FOUR MEN took George Matt from his car between Ravenshoe and Sutton and gave him a severe beating yesterday, he told police. No money was taken.

The four men were standing on the road with two cars when Matt, a driver for a Sutton Dairy, approached on his way to work. As he stopped, he said, the men forced him from the car, struck several blows and searched him. They fled, overlooking about $4.50.

Farm Laborer Is Killed By Truck

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 25 (C. P.). — James Murphy, 18, farm laborer employed by Reuben Kriter, Rodney, was killed early to-day when he was struck by a car driven by Colin Morrison, 22, Dunwich, on Furnival Road. Both men were returning from a dance at New Glasgow. Murphy was walking on the side of the road and Morrison claims a heavy dust over the roadway obscured his view. Murphy was unmarried. A sister, Mrs. H. C. Mallory, lives at R.R. Number 5, Cobourg.

Store Wheat In Lakes

GENEVA, Aug. 25.— (AP).— A member of the Swiss Federal Parliament has proposed to the National Defence Committee a plan to store reserves of wheat and gasoline at the bottom of Swiss lakes to remove them from the danger of destruction of enemy attacks.

He urged the committee to build huge tanks which would be filled with the needed supplies, then sunk in the lakes.

The plan was objected to by another speaker who suggested it would be possible to establish stores not too far from frontiers where they would be most needed.

Graduated Poll Tax Urged On Tenants and Boarders

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—(CP)— A graduated poll tax on tenants and boarders who make no contribution to the cost of city government or social services would be a fruitful source of additional civic revenue, Finance Commissioner George Wilson said today in his annual report.

The city's surplus as a result of its 1937 financial operations amounted to $216,211, compared with $375,107 in 1936.

"It cannot be denied that the burden of taxation imposed upon real estate nowadays has become unjustly oppressive upon the majority of property-holders and actually unbearable for a great many," Mr. Wilson admits. "There are, however, several uncontrollable factors affecting taxation which are generally disregarded by the complainants when voicing their insistent demand for an immediate reduction in the tax upon real estate."

Under this heading the report said the decrease in taxable assessment resulting in a decrease in tax revenue of $6,480,000 from 1933 to 1937; the $9,359,027 paid by Toronto taxpayers for relief between 1930 and 1937, the $2,230,294 paid for exchange in 1931 to 1937 and the $1,332,087 lost by the city in 1936, 1937 and 1938 because the Ontario government took the income tax from the city.

The commissioner noted that the gross expenditure on direct relief for the eight-year period, 1930 to 1937, totalled $46,500,000 which was abated by government and private contributions of $29,786,777, leaving the net cost to be borne by the taxpayers $16,711,255.

Mrs. Sikora termed her husband "the ideal man and husband."

140 Children Been Given Holiday At Camp

One hundred and forty children have regained normal health and weight through the medium of the Kiwanis Fresh Air Camp at Jackson Park which closes for the year tomorrow night. Every child has spent some time at the camp during the eight weeks which it was operated and the average gain in weight to each is four pounds, which means that the total gain for the entire group is close to six hundred pounds.

Added to the general program of health building were 25 minor operations performed without charge in which the tonsils of that many children were removed.

Food consumption at the camp was heavy, as a checkup of the amounts used reveals that 1701 quarts of milk were drank, 687 loaves of bread disappeared along with more than a quarter of a ton of meat, weiners with rolls, and hundreds of pounds of fresh vegetables. In all 8514 meals were served, enough to keep a husky man going for eight years.

Recreation played a prominent part in the camp program. There was swimming in the newly built pool on Jackson Park creek, supervised games under the direction of Mary Harris and Ken Gillespie, both of whom have the necessary qualifications to supervise such work. Teet-

Police Searching For Missing Man

LINDSAY, Ont., Aug. 25.—(CP).—Provincial and county police started search for Mark Sears, Bexley township farmer, after the farmer's brother was shot in the hip while standing in the doorway of his home early to-day. Police said Sears and his brother had argued recently over a piece of land. Further details were not available.

State Troopers To Be Asked To Take Over Prison Where Convicts Baked To Death

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25—(AP)—Coroner Charles Hersch said today he would ask Governor George Earle for state troopers to take over the Philadelphia county prison where he charged four hunger-striking convicts were "literally baked to death" in steam-heated punishment cells.

With two guards already held on homicide charge in connection with the deaths, Hersch said he had warrants for the arrest of four other persons—two of them prison officials—and said additional arrests might result in a breakdown of the prison administration unless the staff was replaced.

Air-Tight Cells.

The coroner said the convicts suffocated in almost air-tight cells, where they were confined during an organized revolt against a "monotonous" diet. Steam radiators were turned on full, he said, and "in two days steaming, they (the convicts) literally baked to death. The like has not been seen in history."

Judge Gerald Flood placed the coroner and the district attorney in charge of the investigation after Hersch charged that the arrest of the two guards yesterday by city police was "premature."

The guards, Alfred W. Brough, 39, and Francis Smith, 43, were held in $2,500 bail each for further hearings next Tuesday.

Hersch said the arrests, ordered by Mayor Davis Wilson, were made without his knowledge.

Mayor Wilson said he had "a statement by a witness that these two men (the guards) turned the steam on," and added: "I did my duty under the law."

Girl Guilty Of $80,000 Convent Fire

Sentenced To Toronto School As Incendiary

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—(CP)—A 15-year-old Sudbury girl today was convicted of arson in connection with the fire that did $80,000 damage to the convent of the Good Shepherd July 22. Judge J. F. McKinley in juvenile court sentenced her to St. Mary's Industrial School for Girls, Toronto, for an indeterminate period. The case was tried last week.

"Protection of the public against a girl who would do what you have done is most essential," said the judge. The judge said he believed the girl set fire to the convent as part of her plan to escape from the institution to which she had been sent by her parents because of incorrigibility.

The judge said the girl appeared physically as mature as many women do at 30 years. Mentally she was normal.

"Prior to your coming to the Good Shepherd Convent your conduct in Sudbury did not recommend itself to those who loved you," he said. "You had chosen as companions possibly the toughest gang in Sudbury. You have been associating with ex-criminals, whom you knew to be ex-criminals, and the climax came when two of them quarrelling apparently over possession of you got into a stabbing affray."

Planned Escape

From the time she entered the convent July 18, the girl planned escape "to return to the life from which your parents had rescued you," said Judge McKinley.

Judge McKinley said he disbelieved the girl's story of finding a match and a cigarette on the floor of the cupboard where the fire started.

"I believed you carefully planned just what happened," he said.

"I believe you went to that cupboard wilfully and started that fire, and intended to return and get dressed hoping in the confusion to escape, that the fire frightened you and you realized what you had done and you ran downstairs to warn the Sisters. It was at this point realization of what you had done, and remorse, struck you.

"I further believe that your acknowledgment of your part in the fire came only when it was explained to you if the fire was accidental you would not be held responsible. It was at that point, you changed your story as to having any knowledge of the fire."

200 Endangered

The judge concluded with advice to the girl: "I think reflection on the fact that you nearly caused the death of some 200 people should be a memory which will steer you from the path you have been treading this past year and the example of that little 12-year-old girl who when the building was burning gathered the other girls about her, and turned to her Creator and led the others in prayer will be a beacon light which, if you follow it, will bring you back to the girl God meant you to be."

Pensions For All Persons At Age of 60 Are Promised In New Zealand Act

Wellington, New Zealand, Aug. 25.

PENSIONS FOR ALL persons at the age of 60 are provided under the New Zealand Government's Social Security Bill, now before Parliament.

It provides that ultimately all persons at 60 shall receive a pension of 30 shillings ($7.50) weekly. Other advantages proposed include disablement, sickness and unemployment benefit. The scheme also embraces free hospital and medical treatment for all.

A special section provides for maternity attention and maintenance in hospital for 14 days.

A married couple, both aged 60 or more, will receive £3 ($15). They may also receive £1 each from other sources. If their income other than pension exceeds £1, their joint pension will be reduced so that their total income does not exceed £4 weekly.

A married person whose spouse is less than 60 years of age may receive a pension of 30 shillings weekly, provided the pensioner's other income does not exceed 50 shillings.

The scheme applies to all persons more than 16 years old. It will be financed by an annual registration fee of £1 and a charge of a shilling in the pound on all salaries and wages.

Hitler Hails New Boundaries Between Nations Permanent Move For Peace

Old Prussian Spirit Still Lives In Germany Is More Than Revealed In Parade Which Horthy And Hitler View

BERLIN, Aug. 25 (AP)—Germany followed up a guaranty of the integrity of Hungarian frontiers today with its greatest post-war military display before Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary.

In an exchange of toasts at a state dinner last night, Chancellor Hitler as a "friend and neighbor" promised the Hungarian ruler "We as neighbors have found our definite, historic boundaries through historic events (German annexation of Austria on March 13)."

Admiral Horthy replied:

"The wish for continuation of peaceful reconstruction which animates us and our friends is safe insurance that our people can pursue successfully the high aim of peace based on mutual good will and justice through further close collaboration, thereby serving best their own interests and those of the rest of the world."

Hitler and Horthy discussed the friendship of Germany, Hungary and Italy and the common ideals for which Hungary and Germany fought in the World War.

Pledge for Peace.

Chancellor Hitler said he was convinced German-Hungarian cooperation "not only serves the interests of our countries alone but also, in close collaboration with our befriended Italy, is pledge of a dignified and just general peace."

Hitler showed Horthy in the two-hour parade that the old Prussian spirit which the Hungarian admiral learned to know during the Great War still lived. He also showed the guest that Germany has one of the most modern armies in the world from the viewpoint of technical equipment.

With traditional Prussian precision the infantry, cavalry, air force and motorized units paraded by, goose-stepping snappily and forming lines straight as dies.

For the first time the officers gave the Nazi salute with outstretched hand, instead of the military salute, as they passed the two chief executives. This was by recent order and applies only to parades before the chancellor.

Companions Of "Big Berthas"

In the display were 15-inch howitzers, the biggest ever seen in Germany. Modern companion pieces to the "Big Berthas" of war fame, appearing to be 30 feet long and of 10-inch calibre, also were shown.

Horsese were used in the parade for drawing even heavy cannon, although guns were motor-drawn. Detachments of bicycle and motorcycle troops passed the reviewers.

Long before dawn 16,000 drab-uniformed, steel-helmeted troops of the Third Army corps—2,000 more than marched before Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy on his visit last September—began concentrating in Berlin for the goose-step parade in honor of Horthy and the Hungarian officials accompanying them.

Among the parading units were 787 officers, 15,226 soldiers, 694 motorized units, 72 horse-drawn vehicles, 412 armored cars, 752 horses, 318 motorcycles, 308 cannon and 140 airplanes.

Newspapers said the display was intended to give "our Hungarian friends an indelible impression of our army and our air force, thus, after the days at Kiel, on the sea, and at Heligoland, rounding out the picture of our armed forces."

14 Missing After Japs Bomb Plane

Five Jap Planes Machine Gun Airliner Passengers

HONG KONG, Aug. 25 (A.P.). — Rescue parties spread through the South China countryside to-day to ascertain the fate of 14 persons missing from an air liner forced down by Japanese airmen.

The pilot, H. L. Woods of Winfield, Kansas, a United States National who radioed that the Japanese machine-gunned the plane, was reported safe with the Chinese radio operator and three passengers.

The others. Woods thought, must either have been killed or wounded when the plane landed in a small river between Canton and Macao on the South China coast yesterday.

There were 19 in all, passengers and crew. All but Woods were Chinese.

The searching units included a British gunboat, the United States gunboat Mindanao and detachments of Chinese troops which set out from Canton.

Woods, who escaped serious injury, was taken aboard the Mindanao at Macao, after he managed a difficult journey by sampan along narrow creeks. With him were the radio operator, Joe Loh, and a passenger, C. N. Lou.

Swept Down River.

Woods reached Hong Kong to-day, to verify previous reports Japanese planes attacked the transport in the air with machine guns. No one was injured in that attack, he thought, but the planes attacked with machine-gun fire after the plane landed in the river.

"We were about 50 yards from shore. I tried to swim to shore to get a sampan to take off passengers and crew, but underestimated the current and was swept down river. When I did get to shore I was so exhausted I couldn't move for an hour."

Lou and the two other passengers were taken to Macao and Shekki hospitals.

Officials of the China National Aviation Corporation, which owned the ship, thought others aboard might have escaped and were hiding in the countryside.

Concern was expressed, however, for two prominent Chinese bankers, known to have been on the plane.

They were Hsu Sing-Loh, member of the Shanghai Municipal Council and president of the National Commercial Savings Bank, and Hu Pei-Kong, general manager of the Bank of Communications.

Passenger Lou, in a Macao hospital with a bullet wound in the neck, said:

"I fear I am one of the few survivors among the passengers, because the Japanese planes (five in all, survivors related) after machine-gunning us while in the air, continued to do so while were were attempting to go ashore.

"The Japanese pilots seemed determined to kill everybody. Our pilot had the choice of landing on a rice paddy or the river, and chose the latter."

Trade Unions Progressing In Agriculture

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que., Aug. 25.—(CP)—While progress is laborious, the trade union movement is making advances in the field of agriculture, F. W. Von Bulow of the International Labor Office at Geneva said today in a paper prepared for delivery before the International Conference of Agricultural Economists.

"The system of collective bargaining in agriculture is spreading further," Von Bulow said, "meeting now less resistance and more comprehension on the part of the employers than was the case when this form of raising the standard of working conditions was first introduced into the industry."

Speaking before more than 400 delegates representing 19 nations at the seven-day convention, the European expert said it might be taken as "significant" that widespread agreement existed on the principle that there should be collective bargaining, or legislation, on farm working conditions. Previously, it had been up to the individual farms to settle this problem.

"During recent years," he added, "legislation on hours of work, minimum wage regulation and holidays with pay is to be noted in a considerable number of countries. Systems of social insurance and family allowances are also gaining ground."

Legislation now, he observed, was being prepared "more carefully" than in former years. The expectation was that it would be "much more workable" than laws passed 20 or so years ago.

But even with these developments, Von Bulow found conditions of work for farm labor "far from satisfactory." As a "striking example," he declared even in those countries outstripping others in the way of social legislation for the farm, the average agricultural worker's wage was still "only three-fifth of what is considered by experts to be a reasonable minimum wage for labor in general."

Lightning Bolt Strikes Home Cordova Mines

Cordova Mines, Aug. 25.

A FREAK lightning bolt came near to wreaking havoc at Cordova Mines on Monday evening when it struck an aerial wire on George Youman's repair shop.

The bolt broke the post to which the wire was fastened, followed the wires into the house, and made a hole in the floor. Batteries in the radio, all new, burst, and leading wires were burnt completely off. One string in a violin lying on a table beside the radio was burned but fortunately the instrument was not otherwise injured.

Mr. Youman, who was sitting about four feet from the radio at the time, said the bolt was like a big ball of fire flashing in the room for a few seconds. He felt no shock, was not injured in any way.

Germany To Train Colonial Officials

BERLIN, Aug. 25—(AP).—Confident that in time she will regain her war-lost colonies, Germany will open a school October 15 to drill Nazi officials in colonial administration.

The Reich leaves no doubt it expects to get the colonies back eventually. The colonial question, Germany's right to and need of colonies, provides steady material for the press and for orators even at a time when the conflict with Czechoslovakia over the Sudeten is engrossing German attention.

The school, under the patronage of Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, is partly the result of an argument used against restoring the colonies—the contention that Germans in the pre-war days proved themselves unfit and incapable of colonization.

TAKING DOWN TREES.

City employees are removing a large maple tree at the west end of Hunter Street Bridge which is in a dangerous condition through dry rot and age. Many other trees are scheduled to be removed and others will be planted in the spring.

A HARDY WEED

An Ashburnham resident pulled a red weed from a chink in the concrete in the centre of Hunter street bridge yesterday. The weed, a common variety that grows close to the ground took root and was thriving, despite the intense heat which radiates from the concrete on a hot summer day.

SEWERS NEARING COMPLETION

Board of Works employees have completed a short stretch of sewer on Parkhill Road and have transferred their base of operations to Knox street ,a short crescent which joins the eastern ends of Munroe and Carlisle avenues in Ashburnham. Motor traffic will not be interfered with during construction of this latter pipe line.

TRAFFIC CHANGED SIDES.

It was only a week ago that downtown shoppers were seeking the shady side of the street. Today merchants on the shady side who had the edgeover their competitors during the hot season, were bemoaning the change in temperature as the sunny side of George street carried nearly all foot traffic.

GET LARGE ORDERS

Orders for one hundred million wooden ice cream spoons have just been placed by the Lyons Tea Company with two Canadian wood working firms. This will result in the continuous employment of a great many workers all next winter; 25 per cent. of the quantity will be made by John Lewis Industries of Ship Harbour, Nova Scotia, who have previously received five large orders, and 75 per cent. of the quantity will be manufactured in Ontario by the Oakville Basket Company.

SAVED THE DAY.

HUMAN FLIES AT WORK

Pedestrians on Hunter street bridge this week craned their necks to watch four men busily engaged at chipping, repairing and repainting the cement work on the Quaker Oats Building. The men are working from scaffolds high up on the sides of the west building, doing the annual maintenance work which is part of the company's program, to keep employees busy when work in some departments slacken off.

FLOWER SHOW FRIDAY.

The Horticultural Society's last flower show of the year opens Friday in the Canadian Legion hall. Several committees will be ready to place entries in the morning and otherwise get the show under way. Attractive door prizes are being offered and as the admission is only 10 cents it is expected that many of the people from the city and district will attend.

A TRAVELLING SHOWROOM

A large truck which has been converted into a travelling showroom to display modern plumbing equipment and heating units is visiting the city and will be open to the public until 9.30 Friday night. The truck will be open this evening and will be parked on George street in front of the old Royal Theatre Building. "Sanitary Age," a trade journal dealing with the plumbing and heating industry sponsors the tour, and seven well-known manufacturers of such products are represented. James Reith and Jim Henry who have charge of the truck will explain to the public the features of the merchandise.

MORE CHECKERBOARDS.

Two checkerboards have been placed at the top of high bank on Stewart street where Murray is interrupted by the Jackson Park Creek to warn motorists not familiar with the hazard that exists. One board may be seen by drivers approaching from the south on Stewart and the other board is placed at the east end of Murray, so that traffic going east toward Stewart is protected. Signs are being made now and will be placed at the Elcome Crescent turn where it meets Antrim street at the River. This point is a particularly dangerous one and the protection of checkerboards will reduce the possibility of a car going into the river.

Roseneath Offering Holstein Specials

The group of directors associated with Fred J. Slade, president, in promoting the Roseneath Fair to one of the most successful of its kind in the province are announcing a special prize list for Holstein cattle.

The Northumberland county Holstein Club in co-operation with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the directors of the Fair is providing 110 prizes of $2 each, all cattle exhibited to be accredited and blood tested. There are seventeen classes exclusive of championships, with from three to ten prizes per class. If some of the prizes are unclaimed additional money will be added to the prizes in the herd classes.

It is understood that the only other Fair where this type of Holstein competition is being held is at Port Perry on September 28. The committee in charge of this feature for "black and white" cattle is as follows:—Lorne Evans of Norham, E. L. Anderson of Campbellford, president of the Holstein Club for Northumberland, Archie Campbell of Roseneath and A. H. Martin of Brighton, representative of the Department of Agriculture.

The Roseneath Fair Board is a compact organization apparently affording Fred Slade unfailing support. They have developed an outstanding property, and their Fair ranks with the best of the two-day circuit in the country.

And Fred Slade has been so long president he may have quit counting the years. Somebody down there, probably Clarence Varcoe, the secretary takes time off from his work to send out publicity six weeks or more ahead of the show fter the manner of the C.N.E., even if it is on a small and district scale.

Typist's Error Costs State $20,000, Tax Never Started

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 25.

A TYPIST'S error apparently will cost the State of Mississippi $20,000. The Legislature appropriated that sum to put out a gas-well fire in Rankin County and fixed a 10 per cent. tax on other wells of the area from Aug. 31 through March 31 to reimburse the State. In the bill, it was discovered yesterday, the dates were typed Aug. 31, 1939, to March 31, 1939, ending the tax before it starts.

No Chicken For Ball Players As Hastings Schedule Ends In Tie

Hastings, Aug. 25.

PLAYERS IN THE local softball loop saw the Chicken supper, for the team finishing the schedule first, fade out last night at a meeting of the executive.

After the Tanners and Outlaws who were tied for first place could not agree on some form of settlement a motion was passed at the meeting throwing the supper motion out and relinquishing first place to the Tanners.

The meeting did not end, after the executive broke up session but it continued until late last night when a large group congregated on the main street.

Plans were made for the playoffs for the cup. Tanners and Elgin will play the first and third games beginning Friday night and Outlaws and Clerks the second and fourth games, alternately. If the game is rained out it will be played the following evening. The first series will be two out of three games and the final series, three out of five games All games will be seven innings and will begin at 6 p.m.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures established new seasonal lows and bottom prices since 1933 to-day before selling petered out and rallying developed in the nervous trade. Final quotation were ⅝ to ⅞ higher, October 65¼, November 65½, December 64⅝ and May 67⅞.

Good export buying, increasing sales over the 500,000 bushel mark, counterbalanced splurges of mid-session selling which carried prices down almost two cents.

It was the fourth successive day prices closed lower with continued talk of the United States subsidy plan breaking confidence in the market. Reports were that the U.S. Government is working out a plan to subsidize 50,000,000 bushels of U.S. wheat through co-operation of the Canadian Government. Possibility the import duty of six-cents-a-bushel on U.S. wheat entering the United Kingdom may be lifted by the Anglo-American trade treaty was another unsettling influence.

Johnnie Sutherland To See Box-la Game

Johnnie Sutherland of Campbellford is coming up for Friday evening's lacrosse game, Brooklin clashing again with the Petes, and is bringing along a few of the most ardent fans from the Trent town. In the years before the abbreviated, boxed-in game was introduced "Wee Johnnie" spent many a dollar as manager of the old team when recruits were few, crowds were mere corporal's guards, gate receipts were lean, and the whole outlook and atmosphere discouragingly blue. Sutherland could buy himself a new car with his contributions to the financing of lacrosse here and generally in the district. Ira Dundas, Doug Miller, Pete King and some of the other veterans of the present game can recall the time when the Sutherland shoe repair shop on Simcoe street was lacrosse's last resort in those lean days when the game was played in daylight and on broad green fields.

Johnnie turned out his team on a shoe string, with occasional aid from Jim Skinner, Charlie Cummer, Rollie Glover, Harry Tudhope, Fred Goodfellow, Lou LeBarr and others who sympathized with him, but felt that was was struggling for a lost cause. But that is all part of the almost forgotten past. He is interested in the box game, but you can't tell him and Albert Armstrong and Havelock and many another in the district that it is real lacrosse. It packs plenty of thrills and hard knocks, but it just isn't the old game on a hot afternoon with lots of leg work.

Water-Going Model Of Queen Mary

After two years of work, Oscar Fletcher, Swiss watchmaker of Toronto, has completed a 22-foot model of the Queen Mary. The model is built almost to exact scale of the famous liner and is designed to hold a skipper and two passengers. It weighs 3,000 pounds and is driven by a gasoline motor.

70,000 Of Canada's Youth Between Ages 16 and 29 Have Never Had Employment

Extra Year At School Is Not Sufficient To Tide Over Period

OTTAWA, Aug. 25. — An army of young men, 240,000 strong, is marching the streets of every city and town and village in Canada, searching for something they have seldom or never had and are not likely to get—work. Of these, 70,000 between the ages of 16 and 29 never have had work. They are victims of an economic condition that started while they were still receiving an education to fit them for jobs that don't exist. Another 175,000 have managed to get a little work now and then, but again are jobless.

One-third of the 70,000 have had to accept relief. The remainder live with their families. Cold figures tell the tale of empty hours and gloomy futures. The total number of employable persons on relief last March was 174,580, one-third being youths.

Stayed on at School.

These young Canadians stayed on at school for an extra year or two, hoping that the pendulum would swing toward them by the time they emerged to face the world. The record shows they might have been better off had they stayed in school instead of chasing an elusive will-o'-the-wisp that mocks all their efforts.

While their plight is a tragic one, records show an improvement in the general employment figure. There were 259,480 on relief in Canada in March, 1937, a drop of 85,000 from a year ago. Recent figures show still further improvement.

For every employed youth forced to go on relief there are two or three whose families are keeping them. They are in all walks of life, for the depdession shit al lemploying industries.

Not Rural Peoples.

These figures do not include the rural peoples whose youngsters have been unable to strike out for themselves and have been compelled to stay on the home farm.

Most of them are worse off than the city youths; they get their board, but they have to work on the farm without pay.

One factor which has militated against young men getting employment has been the taking over by women over 25 of jobs formerly done by youngsters. They get in before the youths leave school. The records show that girls are more successful in obtaining employment after school than boys.

The unemployment among young men has been reflected in the heavy fall in the marriage rate since the census of 1921.

Striking In The Back

Most of the deviltry which is going on in the land takes place in the cities and towns and people who live out in the country can generally feel more secure than those in the urban centres.

But there are exceptions and when they come they are real ones and bad ones and at times vicious ones.

Ed. Malcho who farms in Ellice township in Perth county was having a threshing a few days ago and the threshing was taking place just as the sheaves were being hauled in from the field. When one sheaf was going through there was a jarring and grinding sound and there were also sparks. Several teeth were torn out of the separator drum, and it was found that a horseshoe had gone through.

The farm owner had reason to believe if there was one horseshoe in a sheaf others had been fixed the same way, so work was stopped while a search was made, and in all seven horseshoes were found and they were so tied that they could not possibly drop out of the sheaves.

That kind of work cuts deep. It is in the dark, and much like a hidden hand which is ready to strike in the back. It was aimed at the man who owned the threshing machine because it would injure his outfit, and it was aimed at the farmer because it might have fired his premises. It is altogether foreign to the feeling and tradition of rural districts in this country where threshing is one of those jobs where farmers in turn go to the assistance of other farmers. The man who goes out to rob a house at night is somewhat of a gentleman compared with the one who hides horseshoes in a farmer's sheaves.

The Parents Suffer

There was a picture in one of Toronto papers of a girl of 16 years, and the information was furnished that she and another girl of 14 years had run away from home. Their absence had been reported to the police and it was said they had gone with the intention of hitchhiking to New York city. At least that is the best guess the parents can make but they are not certain.

It is not at all likely that the parents of the girl of 16 or of the girl who is but 14 have been having a very good time since Monday morning. They will be worried, and other people who know the girls will also join and do their share of worrying, and all the worrying will be centred around what may be happening to the two girls.

We believe the truth is that the girls have inflicted greater punishment on their parents, the extent of which is more than any injury which is likely to befall the girls themselves. According to such mental light as may be measured out to them they are probably having what they would call a good time; perhaps they have come across that thing for which youh searches and labelled a "thrill." Meantime all the parents know is that the girls ran away from home on Monday and they are left to live with the varied fear and speculation of what may be happening to them. Interest may centre in the girls but it is the parents who are being punished.

Frankness Was Lacking

The report of Judge D. E. Deroche of Belleville who heard evidence in Peterborough dealing with the conduct of the police department seems to be a reasonable and fair summing up of the whole affair. The points on which the report speaks with emphasis are two in number, (1) the placing of beer in a room for the policeman's ball in October of 1936 and (2) the lack of method for the quick and proper disposal of beer and liquor which is seized in raids.

There was no suggestion or claim that improper use was being made of the seized material, but Judge Deroche believed the method which had been followed left the way open to irregularity and warned that it should be discontinued.

If there is one quality in human nature which will help to adjust a wrong or explain an irregularity it is frankness. There was a lack of that when Judge Deroche was searching for evidence regarding the gift by bootleggers of beer for the annual ball. No one remembered who rented the room or paid for it and no one remembered who made arrangements to have the beer delivered. The thing was wrong, it was not in accordance with the law and the lack of frankness in open admission was not by any means the best way to meet with the situation.

More Disloyalty Talk

Hon. Earl Rowe who recently resigned as leader of the Conservative party in Ontario, has returned to one of his favorite themes, that of making certain that the Conservative party shall purge itself of disloyal elements. Mr. Rowe explains one of the reasons why he found it advisable to sever his connections as leader was on account of disloyalty—to the party and in the party.

Mr. Rowe has mentioned this often. Previously he stated he was certain attempts were being made to wreck the party not only in Ontario but in the entire Dominion.

But he never goes beyond that point. He does not make plain that about which he is speaking. Disloyalty is something which has to be created by people; it is a human quality, and Mr. Rowe must mean there are disloyal Conservatives and many of them.
much use to talk in a general way because by that means the disloyalty charge can be attached to thorough-going Conservatives and to those who are not in that class. Some of the Conservatives themselves are growing a trifle weary of Mr. Rowe's disloyalty talk. They would prefer that he name the culprits and be done with it.

Our Great Attraction

People who live in Ontario probably have inadequate idea of the drawing power of the Dionne quints as a tourist attraction. There have been times when some of our folk have come to the conclusion that the quint business has been overdone, and they should be allowed to shift for themselves with only a reasonable amount of official supervision.

We are likely to forget that the Dionnes are the only quintuplets in the world. There have been multiple births to that degree but the children have not all lived, and the fact that the Dionne children did live in spite of the lack of modern equipment for dealing with such events probably adds a good deal to the world-wide interest in their case.

If one needs any proof of the manner in which these girls have continued to hold public interest it was furnished recently. The children have been kept indoors and in bed because they were suffering from a slight throat infection, so tourists who had come to see them were not given the opportunity. Did they turn and go away? Some of them probably did but a report from Callander says many had been waiting for a week or ten days until the children were once more placed on exhibition. We know of few countries which have an attraction with sufficient drawing power to cause tourists to wait that length of time. The number of people who have been brought to this province by the Dionne children can be counted only in thousands and tens of thousands.

Those Games of Chance

In a letter published on this page a correspondent refers to an opinion offered in these columns about the games of chance at the recent Exhibition in this city. It is stated in the letter that this paper was "condoning" the games. To condone means to pardon or to overlook. If our correspondent found any such material in the opinion of this paper then he was able to discover something which was never in the mind of this paper.

The Examiner stated plainly it was not possible for any person to beat the operator of these games if he played many times. He might possibly win now and then but the chances are all against him. The same rule governs the buying of tickets when one is asked to take a chance on winning some article, prize or award. If there are 1,000 tickets sold then the individual is engaging in something where the odds are 999 to 1 against him. The world is rather filled with the idea of taking a chance and it is encountered many places in many forms.

What this paper did try to show was that the man who learns he should leave such things alone is the one who can walk safely no matter where he goes. We know there are many who believe the cure is to remove all such games and all places and events where a chance is taken, but as custom is at present if a person does not encounter such a thing at a fall fair he is going to meet it elsewhere. Our belief is that the proper course is to shake the head wherever such games are seen. The individual's conviction will then work for him at all times.

A rather homely illustration is this: A child raised in a city has no knowledge of poison ivy and as long as he remains in that locality he is safe, but his safety comes because he has never encountered poison ivy, and not because he knows it is dangerous and should be left alone. He goes out into the country or into the bush one day and he sees poison ivy but has no knowledge that it is dangerous. He handles it and suffers as a result. That fact that he was injured is regrettable, but that injury makes the child cautious in future; it has placed knowledge in his possession which he did not have before and as a result it is much safer for him to go into the country or into the bush than it was before he encountered poison ivy.

This paper did not condone games of chance, but it did seek to show that they were not run or operated for the good of the public but for the profit of those controlling them and that the well-advised person was the one who walked past knowing well enough it was no place for him.

At Six Miles Per Minute

Captain George Eyston drove his Thunderbolt along the Salt Flat stretch in Utah at a rate which is said to have been six miles per minute, but the delicate timing apparatus which has to record the speed officially failed to operate. The Englishman says he will try it again.

There are eight wheels on this giant machine, and it is related that each time an attempt is made at the record it is necessary to place a new tire on each wheel and the tires are of special design which cost several hundred dollars each.

Parts of the machine immediately adjacent to the tires are so cut by the salt thrown at them by the wheels that they have to be renewed. Evidently it is a sport for those with considerable financial backing.

The practical side of the case is difficult to see. It has of course demonstrated that engineering and designing have been brought to a remarkably high point, but there will be no demand for such engines in land machines. It is perhaps a good illustration of the determination of an intelligent Englishman to show that he can drive a car faster than any other human ever did. Also that his designers and engineers are the greatest in the business.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The man who walks around with a chip on his shoulder generally has a head made of the same sort of material.

The 1939 models are better than ever. All might be well if the designers and engineers had a chance to work on the 1939 drivers.

Reports say that 60 persons are being kept in the hole in the prison at Stony Mountain, Man. and a count of those on the outside would show probably more in the same condition.

Brantford Expositor says when nations of the world are spending 14 billion a year for arms it is time to suggest that something be set aside to build a cage for the dove of peace.

The Chatham News is inclined to doubt the truth of the claim that a young man out with his girl and driving with one arm is not attending to business.

The Sault Ste. Marie Star tells of a hollyhock 13 feet high. The Star insists that the village constable shall verify all such reports before accepting them for publication.

Hardly a day goes by without its report of a car crashing into a tree and that of course causes us to worry a little about what may happen if we go deeply into the business of reforestation.

London denies the report that the King and Queen are going to pay a visit to Canada. To that we might add that the welcome sign is out whenever they care to come.

Each week Japanese soldiers in China are supplied with printed postcards which say: "I am fine. The war is splendid. I will soon be home." The soldier merely signs his name and addresses it.

A man arrested for wild driving turned out to be honest. When police asked him why he was in such a hurry he replied: "I was trying to get away from you because I was leaving the scene of an accident."

The wife of Premier Mussolini has gone away for a visit, the first time she has ever been outside of Italy. By the time Benito gets a week's dishes stacked in the kitchen sink the world better beware of more war talk.

People suffer at times from ailments with such long names that we cannot well understand it, but when it is announced that Premier King is troubled with a touch of sciatics a good many people will know just how he feels. Even a sciatic Tory might be inclined to offer a bit off sympathy.

THE CURE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Good Farmer Jim can't understand, the way things run in foreign land, and he was seeking light; he reads of million men in arms, they can't be working on their farms, for all they do is fight.

¶ These million men in uniform, can't hill their spuds or hoe their corn, can't pitchfork in the mow; they're in the army all the time, they couldn't help to tend the swine, nor milk the brindle cow.

¶ How do they live asks Farmer Jim, to keep some fat beneath the skin, how does the money come; they don't get out and plow in spring, and they don't grow or make a thing, just shoulder up a gun.

¶ If they were working on the land, good Farmer Jim could understand, for they'd have lots to do; not often could they get away, they'd have to grub around each day, at bed-time be half through.

¶ If all those folks had lots of chores, they wouldn't have much time for wars, East wouldn't bother West; for when it wore on toward the night, they wouldn't want to pick a fight, but get a chance to rest.

¶ Good Farmer Jim is certain sure, he has for warring folks a cure, 'twould fix all ancient sores; he'd spread them out upon the farms, and make them tidy up the barns—then give them lots of chores.

U.S. Editors On F.D.R.'s Speech

Interesting comment is made by U. S. papers following President Roosevelt's address at Kingston in Which he said his country would not stand idly by and see a foreign nation dominate Canada.

BUFFALO NEWS

This declaration may be described as an enlargement of the Monroe doctrine; and the American people heartily endorse it. Any act of aggression against Canada would be regarded as little less than an attack on the United States itself, so closely joined are the interests of the two countries, so warm is their friendship. In the event of an aggressive move against the Dominion there would be instant evidence on this side of the border of a determination "that this hemisphere shall remain a strong citadel wherein civilization can flourish unimpaired." With respect to this matter President Roosevelt knows the temper of the American people and correctly expresses their sentiment.

PHILADELPHIA BULLETTIN

It is hardly necessary to read into the President's speech at Kingston any express new extension of the Monroe Doctrine to include Canada. There has been tacit assumption all along that any hostile force invading the Dominion would also be a threat to the security of the United States which would necessitate action on its part in defence of its neighbour. When the President told the Dominion that the people of the United States would not stand idly by if Dominion of Canadian soil is threatened by "any other empire," he said what most people in both countries had assumed. The undefended border between the two countries is due to a sense of security in this which would be lacking if a foreign invader were on Dominion soil.

NEW YORK POST

When President Roosevelt says "the people of the United States will not stand idly by" if Canada is threatened by a foreign Power, both advocates of isolation can applaud. Doubtless the more optimistic champions of American intervention in Europe and Asia will conclude that a pledge to defend Canada means a pledge to defend the whole British Empire. But it doesn't. The United States must defend Canada against attack not because Canada is a part of the British Commonwealth of Nations, but because it is part of the Western Hemisphere. Any conceivable threat to Canada would come from Europe or Asia—and would be an indirect threat to us. Our intervention would be based upon the Monroe Doctrine and not on the notion that we are keeping the whole world safe from aggression.

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

The United States could not but view with the gravest anxiety any attack on Canada by a foreign Power, whether or not the Monroe Doctrine is expressly involved. This does not mean that the United States Navy is prepared to defend Canada while the British fleet is engaged elsewhere. Those Europeans who see in the President's speech a definite alliance—or even an "association"—with the British Empire are going too far. But they cannot be blamed for seeing in the President's words a distinct partiality toward the democratic nations in Europe—something which incidentally, has been made abundantly clear to them during the last year or more. To this extent the President's statement contained nothing new.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

What is notable is the statement-in-advance of deliberate intention to act positively in Canada's behalf. Between being drawn into a war because a belligerent's arms have come close enough to threaten American territory and announcing that Americans would take steps out of neighbourliness and kindred ideals there is a difference. It is as important a difference as that between ordinary "war games" to test defence forces and today's vast manoeuvres which in the eyes of Germany's neighbours amount almost to mobilization. That neighbourliness and kinship should be stressed with such an utterance at a time when the rift between democracy and totalitarianism is accentuated by vast displays of force is even more notable. If there are any doubts in European chancelleries as to where American sympathy would lie in the event of a conflict between governments that extol individual freedom and those that scoff at it, the sequence of Secretary Hull's radio speech and President Roosevelt's address at Queen's University should help to dispel them.

BENNETT EMERITUS.

(Vancouver Province)

MR. BENNETT is here and Mr. Bennett now as ever, is very welcome here. Vancouver remembers Mr. Bennett warmly, as leader of the Government, as leader of the Opposition And now Vancouver salutes Bennett Emeritus, private member of Parliament, after the dust and the palms, enjoying himself making holiday.

He says he is "off the record". He says he is no longer news. He tries to persuade us (and perhaps himself) that he is just another member of Parliament.

Well, it is all very pleasant— but Mr. Bennett cannot pull our legs in Vancouver. He really is not built that way. Do we not remember him in Vancouver, how he stood up to his hecklers in the old Arena, opposing them with the force of his courage and character, silencing them at last?

THE NEXT PROBLEM.

Regina Leader-Post

THERE IS A pretty general feeling that the menace of rust has been conquered on the prairies and that next year so much rust-resistant wheat will be grown that even a severe infestation will not destroy the crop.

But what of the grasshoppers? How are they to be conquered? One might make a guess that they have caused a loss of at least $20,000,000 in Saskatchewan this year. In addition to the damage done to cereal crops they have caused heavy damage to gardens and to the fodder supply.

GAMBLING GAMES

Editor Examiner:

Sir: A reader of your paper for a number of years I always enjoy your editorial page for it's usually instructive, amusing and entertaining but I am certainly shocked at your attitude shown in your recent editorial condoning the daylight robbery games of the midway shows these are not gambling games at all and the way they are run the player in nearly all cases if not all does not have a ghost of a chance of winning anything.

These games and wheels are controlled by the operator in every case, confederates stand near every wheel and so called game and act as "COME ON BAIT FOR THE SUCKERS," many of them roughly dressed as farm hands. To get things going they step up and win anywhere from ten to fifty dollars in a few turns of the wheel. There are always enough unsopristicated youths standing around to make a harrest for the operators.. Everyone looses as fast as the machine can be operated and whenever a lull comes a sign from the operator, and one of the inside men step up and make a killing.

If these men are closely watched it will be noticed that when the public are playing they usually stand on exactly the same spot and operate the control, usually a hidden electric push button and as the wheel slows down by a slight pressure of an elbow, kiee or foot the switch is closed and an electro magnet under or behind the wheel stops it at a losing number. At one of these wheels an observer saw in the course of a few minutes one young farmer loose $50. An older man who should have known better $75, numerous others smaller amounts some of them actually on city relief, who had in some way got hold of a little loose change.

This midway gang must have taken out anywhere from fifty thousand to one hundred thousand dollars this year. It is rumored that in order to attract the crowds they paid for three out of four of the cars offered as ticket prizes by the exhibition board and by the way they were raking in the coin this would seem to be quite feasible. Those who crowd the show every night on the slight chance of winning a car are gullible enugh to believe that these games are really gambling devises as they appear to be instead of the controlled machines for fleecing the public that they actually are.

During fall fair time business is absolutely dead in all the stores and credit accts. are unpaid. Kitchener and several other Ontario towns who have a city council that look after the public interest have long age discontinued fall fairs that are so enthusiastically boosted by the Peterborough Examiner.

AN OBSERVER.

Ed. Note. Regarding the suggestion that the midway attractions pay for some of the motor cars given away at the fair, our cortespondent is misinformed. Fair board officials state definitely that no such contribution has ever been made or considered.—

• Railway Jobs Are Vanishing

(Montreal Star)

THE RAILWAY AGE has an editorial on conditions in the United States that is simply staggering in its implications. It is hung on the case of the Rutland Railway, which is a road familiar to Montrealers. The Rutland, it says, "is in serious financial straits." In fact, it is not only in a receivership but the receiver himself is before the courts. It is paying absolutely nothing whatever to the investors who put their money in it. But a railway can run a long time and forget its stockholders. What it cannot do is to run very long when it is not making its bare operating expenses and taxes.

The Rutland, according to the Railway Age and Federal Judge Harland B. Howe, who is hearing the case, is being operated at a loss of $2,400 a day. Judge Howe, in his order addressed to Receiver L. G. Morphy, points out to begin with that he has no power to reduce salaries or wages. He says: "Whether an official shall be paid $15,000 a year or, say, $6,000, or let the position vanish, is for him to decide instead of the court; whether an engine man shall be paid $20 for nine hours work instead of, say, $10, or let the employment vanish, is for him to decide instead of the court." But he winds up with this menacing sentence: "The court will not allow the receiver to operate the railroad for many days at a loss of $2,400 a day."

✧ ✧ ✧

So much for the Rutland. Still, the casual observer would be inclined to say: "That is too bad, but it is only one railway and probably a sad exception." The Railway Age, however, says that it is no exception. This is where the startling feature of its exposure enters. The United States and its railway expert workmen could stand one Rutland, but not an avalanche of them. Let us quote the authoritative Railway Age:

"In its failure to earn enough money to pay operating expenses and taxes, the Rutland is in illustrious company. In the first five months of the current year, approximately half of the class 1 railroads, operating 124,538 miles, or more than one-half of the country's total mileage, failed to earn enough to cover their operating expenses and taxes." The Railway Age gives a list of these roads. It reads like the railway directory of the United States. Let us give you a few of the names best known in Canada: Atchison, Topeka and Sante Fe (the big trunk line to Southern California), Burlington-Rock Island, New York Central, New York, New Haven and Hartford, Northern Pacific, Long Island, Pennsylvania-Reading Sea Shore Lines, Great Northern, Southern Pacific, and, of course, most of the Canadian lines in American territory.

How long could any business stand up against this sort of thing? The fact is that the American railways are not standing up. They are losing business, closing lines and dropping employees. These railways had 801,000 less employees in June, 1938, than they had in June, 1929. The dismissed men have not taken a reduction in pay—they have seen their pay vanish altogether. The casualties are still coming in. There was a loss of 263,000 between June of this year and June of last. Railway mileage, which had grown steadily from early days, actually dropped by 14,147 miles between 1916 and 1938, with a further drop of 992 miles in 1937.

LINDBERG AT MOSCOW.

(Hamilton Spectator)

THE VISIT OF Charles Lindbergh to Russia like all the celebrated aviator's movements, is not without practical importance. Prejudice against Russia has prevented several nations taking advantage of the technical superiority of the Russian aviation developments. It is suggested, for example, that westward flights from Russia have been barred by the reluctance of Germany to cooperate in fuelling Russian planes. The result is that Russia has turned to the United States and seeks to perfect a service across Siberia to Alaska. Lindbergh has already flown to Juneau, and his present visit is regarded as a preliminary to arrangements for a direct service eastward from Russia to this continent. The aviation display to Moscow is described as the greatest manisfestation of air power yet seen, so that it is highly appropriate that the leading aviator from the United States should be present.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND GOD SAID, Let there be light: and there was light.—Gen. 1, 3.

✧ ✧ ✧

The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined. . . . For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.—Isa. ix, 2, 6.

✧ ✧ ✧

There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe. He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light. That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. . . .

He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name: which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.—John 1, 6-9, 11-13.

QUEEN CHOSE NAME.

(Canadian Press)

BRITISH COLUMBIA recently celebrated the 80th anniversary of its christening. In 1858 the name was chosen by Queen Victoria, who in a letter to Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, Colonial Secretary, suggested the west coast province of Canada be named British Columbia. New Caledonia was the name first suggested but objections were raised in France. England's Queen forwarded a note to Sir Edward which read in part:

"As there exists a Columbia in South America, and the citizens of the United States call their country also Columbia, at least in poetry, 'British Columbia' might be, in the Queen's opinion, the best name."

Coast Wedding Demands All Night Hop

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Aug. 25—(CP) A Labrador "coast wedding" is a big event for the natives, says Miss Margaret Craig, teacher at the Anglican Mission School at Mutton Bay, who is spending the summer with her parents here.

The groom leaves the house first, alone, to the accompaniment of gunshots. He is followed by the bride, bridesmaid and best man. The shots continue until they reach the church, the noise informing waiting people of the party's approach.

The groom enters the church and stands in front of the altar to await his bride. Then the best man and bridesmaid enter, and lastly the bride with the person who is to give her away.

An all-night dance, to the music of a single "fiddle," is customary after the wedding feast. The most popular dance is known as the "Eight," similar to a square dance. Other aspects of northern life were described by Miss Craig. From Dec. 25 to Jan. 6 the natives enjoy "Mummering". They dress in comic costumes, wear masks and go from house to house, entertaining while the residents try to guess the performers' identities.

Mail is very infrequent in winter as it must be brought by dog sled, and there are two months when even this is impossible. Then the settlement depends on wireless for news and sending messages. In the spring, when ice breaks and snow melts, travel is impossible for another two months. Great rejoicing attends the first boat arrival. It makes a fortnightly trip during summer.

When the ice has melted the men start seal fishing. The heavy fat is cut out, put into a large pot known as the "foundry" and reduced to oil. The meat is eaten at the settlement and the oil, seal skins and furs are sold to traders.

Isolated During Winter

With little soil and no domestic animals except dogs in that part of Labrador, the inhabitants must live on canned goods and other supplies stored for the winter. Mutton Bay has about 40 families, with 29 students enrolled at the school. There are only three large buildings, occupied by the Grenfell Mission, the Hudson Bay Company and the home of the Anglican minister, Rev. F. W. Mitchell.

Miss Craig previously taught for a year at La Tabatiere in Canadian Labrador, where she had opportunity for close study of native customs. There were only 11 families with a school attendance of 19 children. The children attend school up to 14 years of age. Then the girls help their mothers while boys work with the fathers.

In winter the men and older boys cut wood and carry it on sleds called "komaticks," pulled by eight or 10 dogs. Each family in turn pays for school tuition by supplying the school with a week's supply of wood. The women and girls tan hides and do handicraft work, including beautifully-hooked rugs depicting Eskimo scenes.

Soil must be carried a considerable distance to make a burial ground. This is known as Grave Yard Island, about eight miles from Mutton Bay. Frequently bodies must be buried in tiers. A new section so prepared was consecrated last summer by Bishop Carrington of Quebec.

Indians at St. Augustine, a settlement 30 miles above Mutton Bay, have many odd customs. One, said Miss Craig, is the headdress worn by women. This is a tall hat made on a foundation of English cloth, heavily embroidered with beads in special designs. The hat is sold according to its height, each inch costing a dollar.

The district is healthy, said the school teacher. Mutton Bay has not had a death in the last two years. The only doctor in Canadian Labrador is Dr. D. Hodd, in charge of a hospita lat Harrington, 60 miles from Muton Bay, she remarked. Two nurses, two industrial workers and clergy are stationed there.

HORSESHOE NAILS SHIPPED.

Rural Residents Dig Fuel In Marsh Land

McADAM, N.B., Aug. 25—(CP).—Residents of the barren areas around Bonavista Bay, near Baie de Verde and Carbonear are discovering a valuable commodity which heretofore they have trodden underfoot, little realizing its value.

The Commission of Government's Department of Rural Reconstruction has engaged investigators to advise as to the commercial development of the peat deposits which cover large areas. Already the people are learning to dry the peat, which is a staple fuel in parts of Ireland and Scotland, and to burn it instead of wood.

Associations are being formed in a number of settlements to ensure that the deposits may be properly conserved and protected. Fires in the past have destroyed large areas of peat bogs. One of the advisers is R. F. Arnett, managing director of a peat product industry at Pitt Meadows, B.C.

Not only is peat useful for fuel but it supplies many commercial products. It may be used for insulating dwellings and is used by California vegetable shippers for packing asparagus.

A number of the Baie de Verde district have learned the art of drying the fuel. It was a revelation to many to find at their doorsteps a fuel supply; when they had travelled many miles previously to get wood.

NOTED TRIO OF PADDLERS COP HONORS AT BEWDLEY REGATTA

Cool Weather No Setback At Rice Lake

Yesterday was another Cardwell, Taylor and Perrin day when Bewdley ran off its annual regatta on Rice Lake. The trio of outstanding aquatic stars captured first honours in nearly every event they entered, showing superior form to a large field of rivals.

Outstanding events of the chilly day were the men's and women's swimming races. Four hardy youths plunged into the water for the men's half mile swim and Ronald Cooke and Bill Campbell of Toronto, finished first and second. All winners in the women's quarter mile event were entered from Caesarea. May McKinney, 14-year-old sensational swimmer who won at Wallace's Point two weeks ago, repeated a stellar performance to finish ahead of her team-mates Alice Carver and Jean McKinney.

Heavy clouds and a damp breeze settled down over Bewdley for the regatta, but failed to keep away a large crowd of spectators who lined the shore for all the events. Entries in the lengthy card were numerous. Tony Johnston's loud speaker system, provided by the Peterborough Examiner, kept spectators informed about the races.

The Power Boats.

Fastest race of the day was a power boat event won by J. T. Hodgson of Toronto, who defeated Dr. George Glionna of Toronto, to win the Mary Perrin trophy. The programme included all usual competitions, together with dinghy racing, tug-of-war. Following presentation of prizes in the evening were two draws for a painting and a woollen blanket.

Prize winners were as follows:

Men's Single Canoe—1 Herb Cardwell, Wallace's Point; 2 Bill Taylor, Wallace's Point; 3, Albert Chase, Gannon's Narrows.

Ladies' Single Canoe— 1 Patty Perrin, Bewdley; 2 Doreen Deyell, Wallace's Point.

Boys' Skiff Race—1 Ray Harris, Bewdley; 2 Al Brownridge, Caesarea; 3 Craig Eason, Caesarea.

Mixed Tandem Canoe—1 Doreen Deyell and Herb Cardwell; 2 Patty Perrin and Bill Taylor; 3 Marion and Albert Chase.

Single Canoe Race for Indians—1 Ralph Loucks, Hiawatha; 2 Fred Smoke, Alderville; 3 Zack Smoke, Alderville.

50-50-50 Race—1 Allan Morrison, Caesarea; 2 Al Brownridge, Caesarea; 3 Bob Gooch, Caesarea.

Boys' Skiff Race for Bewdley Residents—1 Dennis Edmondson; 2 Ray Harris.

Outboard Motor Race—1 Pete Sidey, Bewdley; 2 Don Sidey, Bewdley; 3, Ralph Loucks.

Single Gunwale—1 Herb Cardwell, 2 Bill Taylor, 3 Dave Wilson.

Boys' Swim 14 Years and Under—1 Al Brownridge, 2 Ray Harris, 3 Lorne O'Brien.

Men's Tandem Canoe—1 Bill Taylor and Herb Cardwell, 2 George Thompson and Albert Chase, 3 Al Brownridge and A. Varnell.

Ladies' Tandem Canoe—1, Patty and Mary Perrin; 2 Hazel Bradley and Doreen Deyell; 3 Marion Chase and Melba Johnston.

Men's Swim—1 Ronald Cooke, 2 Bill Campbell.

Doublé Decking Race— 1 Herb Cardwell and Doreen Deyell; 2 Patty Perrin and Bill Taylor; 3 Hazel Bradley and Dave Wilson.

Ladies' Swim — May McKinney, 2 Alice Carver, 3 Jean McKinney.

Dinghy Race—1 Phillip Clegg and Bob Harris, Black Island; 2 Jack Moore and Perry Thompson, Tate's Beach.

Paper Bag Race—1 Herb Cardwell; 2 Fred Smoke, 3 Albert Chase.

Tilting Contest—1 Doug Brownridge and Grey Grinnell, Caesarea; 2, Bill Taylor and Herb Cardwell; 3, Doug Mortimer and Dave Wilson.

Girls' Swim, 14 years and under—1 Connie Durham, Toronto; 2 Audrah Sefton, Toronto; 3, Ruth Radford, Toronto.

Displacement Boat Race—1 J. T. Hodgson, Toronto; 2 Dr. George Glionna, Toronto.

Outboard Motor Race, 16 Horse Power and Under—1 Ken Jackson, Peterborough; 2 M. B. Perrin, Bailieboro.

Boys' Single Canoe—1 Gregg Eason, 2 Stuart Smoke, Alderville; 3 Jim Forbes.

Consolation Race for Boys— 1 Bobby Bullock, Bewdley.

Judges of the events were: J. Clarke of Toronto, Jack McKerrihen of Toronto, and Rev. C. Whatmough, Bewdley. Henry Perrin, Sr., was official announcer and Elmer Sidey of Bewdley started the races. Secretary was Mrs. O. L. Herring of Montreal. Robert S. Hancock, of Bewdley headed the committee in charge of regatta arrangements, which was responsible in large part for the success of the meet.

Condition Critical

One of Canada's finest lacrosse players, Rusty White, ABOVE, mainstay and high scorer of the Fergus team in the Ontario Lacrosse Association, lies in the Fergus hospital in a critical condition as a result of a blow he received across the face in a league game with Orillia. Immediately after the blow White got up and scored a goal, but a few days later his face began to swell and it was found that nearly all the blood vessels in his face were ruptured. White has been playing for Fergus for the past five years.

Belleville Evens Junior Series With Kingston 8-6

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 25. (CP). —Belmont Juniors evened the series with Kiwania Grads of Kingston in the Junior O.A.S.A. playdowns here last night when they defeated the visitors 8-6 coming from behind to snatch the victory. The third and final game of the series will be played in Napanee on Monday.

Sharpe and Carson hooked up in another hurler's duel with Carson outpitching his rival by a slight margin. Sharpe struck out four and walked four while Carson whiffed but two and walked one. Sharpe allowed 14 hits and Carson ten but the winning hurler was much stronger in the latter frames, he getting the last 11 men in rotation. O'Neill and Ronsky hit homers, with Ronsky and Carson hitting doubles while Free and Cuthbertson smacked triples, with Conners hitting a double for the only extra bases of the contest. Belleville bunched their blows better than Kingston but in fielding the Kingston crew had a little edge, they completing a smart double play to pull themselves out of a bad hole.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

A THOSE BROOKLIN boys again. They will be with us Friday eve at nine in the George St. lacrosse arena to resume their feud with the Petes. After a free-for-all by fans and players here a few weeks ago when these teams clashed, and a free-for-all recently in Brooklin when the same squads met, we gather this will be the free-for-all rubber match tomorrow! The visitors want two referees to see that all is nice and clean, but they didn't have two referees, or even police protection, when they mauled the Petes up in Brooklin. However, it should be a scrumptious scrap and quite possibly not even one tiny little riot will occur. But one never knows when bitter rivals clash in a provocative game like lacrosse. It will be a tight tilt and rates the biggest crowd of spectators of the year.

JUNIOR CITY BALL LOOP begins playoffs tomorrow in the gloamin' at the Exhibition Grounds. Cubs and Pirates clash at six in in the first of the semi-finals, while Tigers take on Greyhounds there at six Monday e'en. Both are sudden-death scraps, winners to tangle in two out of three games. For the loop title, we suppose, provided P. C. I. does not seek a bye to meet the winnah. P. C. I. has entered O. B. A. juvenile playdowns and will be meeting a Toronto team probably next week.

Clockmen Were Wound Up

WESTCLOX MEN softballers won the city champion ship last night with a 4-2 squeak over Omemee at the Bowl. They'll now tackle Oshawa Friday in the Motor City, it being the first of the O. S. A. playdowns, return tilt being in Peterborough on Tuesday. Congrats to Westclox, they earned the title this year in the three-team loop. Motorists were rubbed out a few days ago. And our congrats, too, to Skipper Art Williamson and his Omemee men for making a doggone good showing this year. They put in a powerful squad and were right up in the class of the city teams all the way. They made it a hard battle last p.m. before bowing. A couple of umpirical decisions went against 'em, though we don't believe they would have turned the tide as the Clockmen had a good margin in hitting. But we hope the O's are back in this circuit another season.

A BIG CROWD SAW Ottawa Mounties take a 10-7 P. W. S. U. win over Westclox girls in Riverside Park last evening. A good game, with the locals pulling a few boners that probably cost 'em the verdict. However, they made it close and stand an even chance yet of grabbing the series. Next game will be Saturday aft in Ottawa and third tussle, if necessary, there that eve. Marg Hawthorne and Dot Merrett led the Delahaye damsels at bat with three apiece and Marie Ferguson hit a triple. J. Grenon and R. LaBelle led the visitors with three each. The Mounties are pretty much the same crew that nosed out Westclox here a year ago in playdowns. Barb Blade went the route for the homesters last p.m. 'gainst D. Ward, both being nicked for a bunch of bingles. Feature catches last night were pulled off by V. Villeneuve, S. Ayotte, M. Hawthorne, M. Ferguson and G. Mortimer.

For You Southend Fans

FOR YOUSE FOLLOWERS of the Southend Softball Loop who, like ourself, were worrying about all these tricky playoffs and had to take the dope with an aspirin, here is the setup as from the secretary himself. It seems that Keene, Little Harlem and DeLaval finished in that order; while the second half saw Quakers, Leafs and Cogs win one-two-three. Well, Little Harlem and DeLaval played off in the first half, and now Little Harlem—the winer—is meeting the first team, Keene. In the other section, Leafs beat Cogs, so they're now playing Quakers. The eventual winners tangle in a three-in-five final serial. Get it? Well, try another aspirin.

* * * * * *

NO NEED TO REMIND folks of the C. O. B. L. playoff here day after tomorrow betwixt Oshawa GM-men and the Petes. It'll be another sizzler with more arguments than a lawyers' convention. Dunno who will pitch for either side but feel sorry for 'em as the batters in this serial are now conking the apple at a .400 clip. The Petes have protested last week's game but it will not be dealt with by the loop for a time yet. And things threaten to become peaceabler —we invented it—with the Oshawa scorer wondering about buying his first rule book, and Umpire Ken Colling taking a vacation. Some say it started last Saturday at three o'clock! Ah, weel, a most readable gee is carving out the Quinte column, and maybe we can wage a war with him over something, or anything. Meantime, a record flock of fans will be waiting for a break in the weather Saturday for the big tilt.

Booting The Bladder About

AND A GRID GRAB-BAG for three cents, a lot of world news, ads, funnies and everything else being tossed in free for the 1½ pence. Sarnia and Nationals will play exhibitions with Rough Riders, and Orfuns may play Queen's in Kingston. Seven of the Imperials bang the beam at weights ranging from 210 to 240 pounds! They practised yesterday on a tackling dummy "with elbows high and hitting" as the writer there succintly puts it. A Montreal item says Krug, Reg. Barker and Byers will line up with Peterborough and "the Liftlock City is likely to have quite a squad." Local workouts continue nightly with scrimmages starting in another week. Coach of the Orfuns will be named any day now, we're told. Most of the Beach line wanted to come here till ossifers of the Balmy bunch raised heck with our officials—hinting that it was oke to raid Big Four squads but ixnay on group pilfering.

* * * * * *

SOME MIDGET lacrosse dope from Rowan Chute, who daddies the potential senior stars. The schedule is over and Y's Men's Club finished on top, with Lions second, Kinsmen third, Rotary fourth and then Kiwanis. The playoffs are for the first three clubs, and Lions and Kinsmen meet in a two-game, goals counting, semi-final. First fray will be Friday. Winner then tackles Y's Men's in the titular sawoff, two out of three games. The local all-star crew to enter O. L. A. playdowns will be picked next week. So there ya be, boys; hop to it, you winners—and tough luck to the eliminated teams.

UP 'AND DOWN SPORTS' RIALTO: Westclox men play at the stadium in Oshawa at 6.15 tomorrow eve and in Riverside here next Tuesday at six p.m., admish 20 cents. . . . Guess Art Twigg, who once ejected Peeney Mills from a game, got an awful riding when umping in Belleville the other day—as well as two belts on the jaw. . . . Kingston scribe says one irate fan, mistaking a fellow townsman for Twigg, in the excitement, parked a honey on his mush! . . . George: By your reasoning then it wasn't a hit but an error to the pitcher, eh? Ask Burns about that. . . . Lindsay hopes to have a senior collegiate rugby team this fall, operating only juniors last season. . . . Reserved seats in the stand at the 50-yard line will be arranged at the Exhibition Grounds for the pigskin jousts this fall, and cars allowed on the south side of the gridiron. . . . The Petes are determined to slap the ears off the GM-men here this Sat'day and woe betide the player who tries any more bumping tactics on the paths. . . . POME: They have no mound in Oshawa, nor cops nor any manners—they treat one bad in Oshawa, those battling baseball fanners!

Maroons' Franchise Is Before Governors

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 — (CP) — Question of whether Montreal Maroons' franchise in National Hockey League shall be transferred to another city or suspended for one year, will be discussed here today at a meeting of the league governors.

Lack of patronage is back of the trouble surrounding the Maroons. Last year the big red team finished last in the Leagues Canadian division. It had lost it's fan appeal and the feeling among officials was that Montreal interest was not sufficiently high to support Maroons and Canadiens. In contrast to the financial distress of the Maroons, the Canadiens experienced a satisfactory year.

Japanese, Pacific and Eastern oysters have three hearts.

Windsor Youth Badly Beaten By Montanez

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (CP).—Orville Drouillard saw his big chance to crash boxing's inner circle fade into oblivion today but the freckle-faced French-Canadian maintained his brilliant record of never having heard the count of "10" over him.

Battered and helpless in his fight with Pedro Montanez in Madison Square Garden last night, Drouillard was saved from the first knockout of his career when referee Arthur Donovan stopped the bout in the fifth round while the Windsor, Ont., veteran struggled to regain his feet.

Montanez, seeking his second shot at the world lightweight title, weighed 138¾ and Drouillard, trying gamely to fool the experts who rated him no chance, scaled 137. But Orville wasn't in the same class as the dusky destroyer who dominated the fight in each of the five rounds.

Stealing the show from the headliners was another Canadian, 24-year-old Walter Franklin who was born in Hamilton and learned boxing in Windsor, Ont. A Yemenite Jew who came here from Detroit six months ago, Franklin scored an impressive technical knockout victory over Brooklyn's Frankie Castiglia.

Terrific Attack.

Weighing 156, four pounds lighter than his stocky opponent, Franklin, son of an east-side rabbi, drew loudest ovation of the night from the crowd of more than 10,000 fans as he systematically hammered Castiglia into a state of helplessness.

The Apollo-like Hebrew used a terrific two-handed attack to the head to score his 12th straight triumph and 10th kayo victory since turning professional. Unable to score a knockdown, he was always on the aggressive, and finished with a tightly-closed right eye.

"I wouldn't have this if I had followed my trainer's instruction, but gosh I'd never even been insde the garden before and I wanted to finish that fight fast at any cost," said Franklin.

Covering up from the start and rallying when least expected, Drouillard took the worst drubbing since Henry Armstrong, present holder of the feather, light and welterweight crowns, scored a five-round technical knockout over him about a year ago.

Outlaws Advance First Place Tie

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 25.—The Outlaws defeated the Clerks 10 to 8 last night to wind up the schedule in the town softball league. The win tied the Outlaws for first place with the Tanners.

The Clerks led 8 to 7 going into the sixth innings but the Outlaws put on a three-run rally while holding the Clerks scoreless to take the decision.

McKee was back on the mound for the winners and sent the Clerks down with three hits. He fogged his fast one past seven batters and issued one free ticket. Blackbourn went the route for the Clerks and was hit safely 11 times, three of them being doubles in the last innings.

McKee with two doubles and a single in three times up topped the Outlaws' batters while Gillespie and Crate each with two hits in three times up collected most hits for the Clerks.

The first game of the play-offs will take place on Friday evening between Elgin and the Tanners.

The teams:

Clerks—L. Gibson, lf; Tape, rf; Stevenson, b; Jones, c; Gillespie, 2b; Crate, cf; Petticrew, 3b; G. Gibson, ss; Blackbourn, p.

Outlaws—G. Bonds, 2b; Radford, cf; I. Bonds, c; McKee, p; Stickles, 3b; Myles, 1b; Scriver, lf; Walsh, ss; P. Petticrew, rf.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Outlaws ..... 313 003—10	11	3
Clerks ..... 300 230— 8	9	5

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Notwithstanding so many other tournaments staged yesterday afternoon around this district, forty pairs entered the annual competition for the "Empress Hotel" shield. Twenty two pairs entered from our own club and eighteen from visiting clubs. The distribution of the prizes went 50-50.

It was an ideal day for lawn bowling and the games were all over by 11 o'clock. Each rink played three 15-end games. Winners:

1st, R. Burns and E. Wall, Peterborough—Empress Hotel Shield, and each a 4-way electric lamp.

2nd, J. Thompson and M. Booth, Cobourg—each a Hudson Bay blanket.

4th, J. Harris and P. Ingram, Port Perry—each a sweater.

5th, J. Burns and M. Reesor, Marklaw—each a sweater.

6th, E. Smith and H. Renaud, Peterborough,—each a bowl bag.

Down in Norwood twenty rinks were entered in their annual mixed tournament. Four rinks from Peterborough helping make up the draw.

The Peterborough contingent did not do too badly when you consider three of the four rinks reached the money circle. Winners:

2nd, Mrs. A. Heckman, W. Kay, Mrs. J. Coursey and J. McDonald.

3rd, Mrs. L. Riley, G. Soulby, Mrs. J. Kingsbury and J. Kingsbury.

5th, Mrs. J. Cullen, W. Hepburn, Mrs. W. Hepburn and J. Cullen.

There were 19 entries in a twilight ladies' Irish trebles tourney in Lindsay last night, four from Peteborough. A local rink won out, members being Mrs. L. Bearne, Mrs. H. Beatty and Mrs. E. Crowe; and another finished third, Mrs. H. Russell, Mrs. H. McIlmoyle and Mrs. J. Arnold.

Teams Battle To 17-all Tie For Cooke Cup

MARMORA, Aug. 25.—The holder of the J. R. Cooke Challenge Cup for the ensuing year was undecided at the five-team softball tournament held on Marmora Fair grounds on Wednesday afternoon under joint auspices of Marmora Agricultural Society and Marmora Softball Club.

Next Wednesday afternoon Tweed and Havelock as a result of their 17-17 tie in the final, will battle again on the same grounds, for the honors and the interest stimulated through Wednesday's keen struggle will ensure a good attendance. Tweed survived two rounds to get into the final while Havelock in the initial game of the contest eliminated Marmora easily. Score by innings:

Havelock	620 201 0—11
Marmora	100 112 1— 6
Eldorado	020 001 2— 6
Tweed	337 900 x—22
Tweed	440 10—9
Deloro	000 21—3
Havelock	037 331—17
Tweed	219 014—17

At the Exhibition building in the evening round and square dancing was enjoyed to music furnished by Doug Jones, Kay Doyle, Bert Kouri and Eugene Reynolds with Charles Jones as floor manager. A refreshment booth and games were also well patronized.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press.)

Curt Davis, Cardinals—Handcuffed Dodgers with one hit for 5-0 win.

Bruce Campbell, Indians—His two homers drove in three runs in 5-3 victory over Red Sox.

Pep Young, Pirates—Tripled with bases loaded to spark winning rally in 6-2 defeat of Bees.

Jimmy Dykes, White Sox, and Tommy Henrich and Monte Pearson, Yankees—Dykes hit homer and two singles, driving in four runs, in 8-5 opener win. Henrich hit two homers and Pearson pitched five-hitter in 1-1 nightcap.

National League Leaders Fail To Click

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(CP)—The fearsome prospect of having to tangle with those awful Yankees in another world series appears to have the National League's leading citizens scared to death of winning their own pennant.

At least, that's the way the current senior circuit race (if you can call it that) looks, what with the Pirates having a tough time scratching an even .500 average in their last 20 games, the Giants winning just 13 in the last 27, and those Chicago Cubs playing seventh-place ball for the last month.

As matters have been progressing, however, the Pirates won't have much chance to sidestep during the closing drive. They trounced Boston Bees, 6-2 yesterday, largely through Pep Young's triple with the bases loaded. The win boosted their first-place margin to six full games.

Of course, the Cardinals can pretty well be counted out now, 18 full games behind the pace-setters. But with Lonnie Warneke's lanky arm mowing the other fellows down, and Curt (Bargain Counter) Davis starting to click—as witness that one-hit 5-0 decision he posted against Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday—Onkel Fankie may still get his boys into the money.

Reds Are Too Young

The Reds are generally regarded as too young to stand the gaff of the stretch drive, but the fact that no other first division club has as good a record in the past month makes it barely possible they may come through. They chalked up their 17th win in 30 starts yesterday with a 3-1 victory over the futile Phillies.

Since Vance Page, the "old man" rookie, tossed a four-hitter to give the Cubs a 6-1 win over the Giants, this left the Reds just half-a-game out of second place.

It's just about certain the National League winner will meet up with the Yanks in the extra-curricular clouting. Gehrig and company split with Chicago White Sox yesterday to climb 12 full games in front of the American League Frolics. Jimmy Dykes' three-run homer paced the Sox to an 8-5 opener win, and Tommy Henrich's two homers gave the Yanks the afterpiece 11-1.

Three changes in the brackets featured the junior cricuit program. Clevelands' Indians climbed into a second-place tie by toppling the Boston Red Sox, 5-3, Washington regained sole possession of fourth place with a close 8-6 edge over St. Louis Browns, and the Athletics pulled themselves out of the cellar with a lop-sided double win over Detroit, 10-5 and 11-1.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 —(AP)— Tommy Farr isn't booked to fight anybody; he isn't even in training, but the fan mail averages 400 letters per week, most of them asking for photos . . . The Cardinal front office (Breadon and Rickey) is said to have a mild feud on as to whether Frankie Frisch will get a new contract . . . Breadon is pro and Rickey anti . . . Henry Armstrong is the world's welter weight champion, but can't fight over-the-weight bouts in that division because he can't build up to 148 pounds to save his life . . . Note to Mel Harder: Joe DiMaggio says you give him more trouble than any other chucker in the American League.

Lou Ambers' fine stand against Armstrong won him a flood of offers from all over the country and Lou will go barnstorming next month . . . Any day now Mrs. Helen Wills Moody may announce she had turned pro.

WESTCLOX GIRLS LOSE OPENER TO OTTAWA BY A 10-7 COUNT

Mounties Win First Fray Of Playdowns

Ottawa Mounties took a 10-7 decision over Westclox girls in Riverside Park last night in the first game of their Provincial Women's Softball Union playdown series. Return game or games, will be in Ottawa on Saturday. A big crowd of fans witnessed an interesting struggle here last evening, with the issue in doubt till the finish.

It was a free-hitting affair with both sides hitting the pitchers hard over most of the route. The fielding was fairly good; though a few dumb plays on the part of the locals probably cost them runs in the close contest. Westclox had 11 left on bases, threatening seriously in practically every inning, though lacking timely blows in spots to score.

Fielding practically the same team as the Morrisburgs of Ottawa last year, who pulled out a win over Westclox, the Mounties cashed in on their opportunities to cop the nod. D. Ward hurled for the visitors, allowing 13 safe hits and three walks while fanning five. Barbara Blade pitched for the homesters and was reached for 15 hits and no walks while she struck out one. Westclox had five errors against four.

Get Three Hits.

Marg Hawthorne and Dot Merrett led the locals at bat with three hits each, as M. Allison and M. Ferguson came through with two apiece, one of the latter's being a triple. D. Botting hit a two-bagger. For Ottawa, R. LaBelle and J. Gernon got three hits apiece, the former's including a three-base blow. M. Parks, D. Harrison, L. Denfrio and D. Ward hit safely twice each. Good fielding was shown by S. Ayotte, V. Villeneuve and D. Harrison of Ottawa; and M. Hawthorne and A. Sturgeon of the Westclox gang.

Brooklin Team Here Tomorrow

Brooklin lacrossers will be here tomorrow (Friday) night at nine o'clock to play the Petes an O.L.A. senior "B" fixture in the George St. arena. It will be the final scheduled appearance of the battling Brooklin boys and a record crowd of fans is expected out for this game. In every game between these squads so far this season, feeling has been high between the rival players and has been communicated to the fans. The last time Brooklin was here, a near-riot was staged between players and fans, and the last game of these teams in Brooklin saw a free-for-all, players and fans fighting for 10 minutes. The visitors here tomorrow have asked for two neutral referees, fearing further outbreaks, and the tilt may be tame. However, it will probably be another lively tussle.

The Petes have been going good recently, except for that loss to East York here two nights ago. They hope to return to their winning ways against their arch-opponents and grab off a win tomorrow night. But the Brooklins, bolstered by several of those former Oshawa stars, are tough and it promises to be a grand game of lacrosse with plenty of action in every quarter. Over a thousand fans should see this struggle, provided the weather is suitable.

Oshawa Juniors Defeat Belleville 8-2

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 25.—(CP)—Ability to hit in the pinches gave the Oshawa juniors an 8 to 2 win over the Kiwanis Club here Wednesday in the first game of the Junior O.B.A.A. playdowns. Cowle, hurling for the Oshawa club, allowed but two hits until the ninth frame. After four scoreless innings, McCabe, ace twirler of the Oshawa squad, was injected into the fray as a pinch hitter and he drove home two counters with a single.

Cowie, who has been out of the game for some time with an injured side, pitched stellar ball, striking out nine and walking none, while Kelleher was nicked for nine hits, whiffed five and walked two. Eight miscues behind his hurling was sufficient for the Oshawa crew to capitalize. Vince Guay, for the Belleville Club, was heavy hitter of the afternoon, having three singles for four times at bat. Yourth, McCabe and Hraynyk each secured two bingles in the nine made by their team. The second game of the series will be played in Oshawa on Saturday.

Westclox Men Gain Title

Westclox won the championship of the men's City Softball League last night at the Bowl with a 4-2 nod over Omemee in the final game of the round-robin playoff series. A good-sized crowd witnessed the smart struggle. Westclox now meet Oshawa in O.S.A. playdowns, first game being in the Motor City this Friday and return tilt on Tuesday.

Last night's fray was close all the way with the winners getting their narrow margin by scoring a run at a time. Both sides turned in nifty fielding, but Westclox outhit the Villagers 13 to 8. Lorne Bateman held the O's to eight scattered hits while fanning three and walking none in a good display. Lefty Stephenson was reached for 13 safe hits and three walks as he struck out five.

Tops Hitters

Calladine led the winners at bat with a double and two singles, with Currie hitting a double and single, Bateman two singles, and O'Leary and Gainey doubles each. Ellis came through with two base hits. For Omemee, Pogue got two singles, Stephenson hitting a homer and Williamson and Rehill a double each. Fielding features were supplied by Williamson and Calladine, and each crew pulled off a fast double play. The teams:

Westclox: Dormer, 3b; O'Leary, cf; Calladine, 2b; Ellis, 1b; Bateman, p; Gainey, ss; Foster, rf; Currie, lf; Mowry, c.

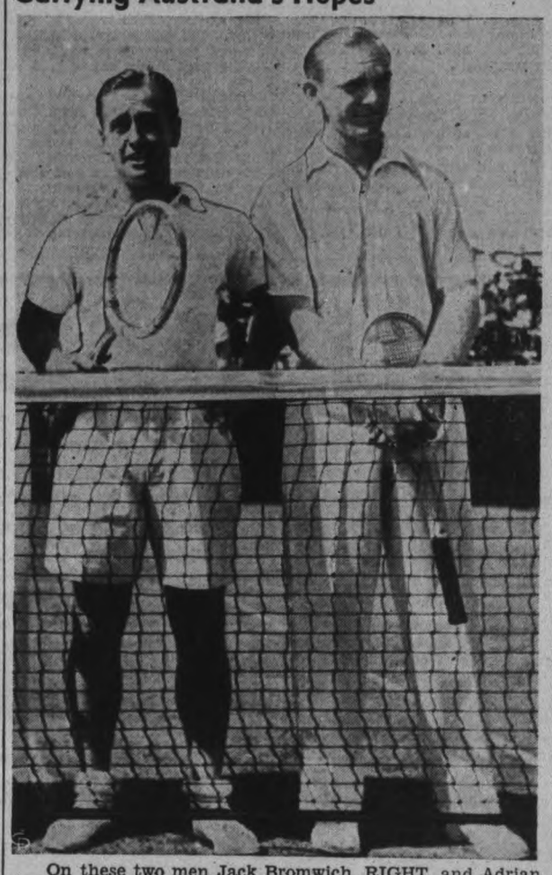
Carrying Australia's Hopes



On these two men Jack Bromwich, RIGHT, and Adrian Quist, lie Australia's hopes of taking the Davis Cup Down Under for the first time since 1919. A durable pair they have been taking care of both the singles and doubles assignments for their country in the international competition and will clash with the American team in the challenge round. As a doubles team they have not met defeat for two years and are out to take the U.S. doubles crown for which they are now playing and in which they are expected to meet the ace American team of Don Budge and Gene Mako in the finals.

Sir Lee Winner Of 3-Year-Old Pace At Ottawa

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—(CP)—Sir Lee, big bay stallion owned by J. E. Abbott of Weston, Ont. Wednesday won first-prize money of $500 in the feature of a harness racing program at the Central Canada Exhibition by taking the third and deciding heat from Bud Gano in the three-year-old pace.

Bud Gano, a bay gelding owned by Louis Mack of Hamilton, Ont., and driven by Gidd Litt, won the second heat by a head from Sir Lee in 2.10½ after Tony Gigueri drove the ultimate victor ahead of the field in 2.13¼. The result of the first two heats automatically eliminated the other starters, Lucy Grattan and Barbara C. Sir Lee won the rubber heat when Bud Gano suddenly broke while enjoying a short lead in the last lap. The heat was done in 2.17.

Keene Wins 20-12 Over Harlemites

Little Harlem lost out to Keene here last night in a Southend Softball League semi-final game by a 20-12 score. The locals had an 8-run lead early but Keene pounded three hurlers hard to earn the win, and even up the series. It was a weird and wide-open game with the home pitchers going good at first but soon falling before the visiting batsmen. Price hit a triple and double, and Gray two doubles for the losers. Woods, Brown and O. McCarthy led the winners with the willow. Nice fielding was shown by Fletcher, Brown and Kenwick for Keene, and Connelly of the losers. The teams:

Oshawa Team Here Saturday

Oshawa GM-men are here this Saturday afternoon to play the Petes at three o'clock in Riverside Park. It is the fourth game of the four-in-seven C.O.B.L. final playoffs. Oshawa having two wins and one loss to date. However, the third game of the series—which Oshawa took by an 11-10 score last Saturday in the Motor City—has been protested by the Petes, and it is possible a replay will be ordered when the league executive sits in judgment upon the protest. Neither team has announced its starting twirler yet, though it is thought by many followers of the squads that Turner and McNally may face each other on the firing line to open the tilt. An exciting ball game is assured the fans.

A huge crowd is expected to be on deck for this fixture, not only because of its importance—and the off-chance that it will be the last ball game seen here this year—but because of the intense rivalry that has sprung up recently between these clubs and their followings. A general first fight by players and fans at the last game indicates the extent of the animosity which has arisen during the playoffs. The players battle for every point and are well-matched on the field. Outside umpires will handle this game.

Breaking Records

Holder of the world's outdoor record for the mile, England's amazing middle distance runner, Sydney Wooderson, ABOVE, recently went out and smashed two more world marks in the same race, as he was clocked in 1:49.2 for the half mile and 1:48.4 for the 800 metres. Conditions for record breaking were not very favorable and the 26-year-old clerk was paraded around the track on the shoulders of the crowd after his performance.

Campbell Seen In Toronto; Price On Head

TORONTO, Aug. 25. — Melville Campbell, wanted by the police in connection with the Bank of Nova Scotia armed hold-up at Richmond, Ont., on July 19, when $12,000 was stolen, was reported to have been seen in Toronto a week ago.

Campbell, the police informant reported, said he had seen him walking downtown. The informant made no mention of noticing any injuries to Campbell's face, thus differing from other police stories that Campbell had been wounded by police shot when escaping the police at the time his brother Oscar was captured near Richmond.

From the time a warrant was issued for Melville's arrest, Toronto police made inquiries at local hospitals inquiring if any wounded man had sought medical attention. Several visits have been made by the police to Melville's Toronto home but no trace has been found of him.

A published report that he planned to surrender, merely amused the police, they said.

A reward by the Canadian Bankers' Association is offered for information leading to the arrest of Melville and Don Edwards, who escaped with Oscar Campbell, from the Buffalo jail, a year ago.

Former King-Hater In Canada.

No longer a hater of the British monarchy with a yen to punch the king's nose, William Hale Thompson—Big Bill in his Chicago mayoralty days—finds peace and contentment summering in Canada under the British flag. Thompson has a summer home at Baie Fine on Manitoulin Island, Georgian Bay, a home so remote and inaccessible that a caterpillar tractor is necessary to reach it after crossing to the island. A lengthy boat trip from Little Current is also required and here is Big Bill himself starting up his outboard motor for a run to his home.

Work On Nepheline Quarry Commenced

WARSAW, Aug. 25.—James Hawthorne is in charge of the work begun Wednesday for the improvement of the road to the nepheline mine in the Blue Mountains.

There was a very happy family gathering at White Lake on Sunday, when Mrs. David Drain celebrated her birthday with all her family around her.

The day was spent quietly. Several had not met for some time, so happy family concourse was all that was needed to make the gathering joyous.

Besides Mrs. Drain and her daughter, Miss Emily, now living in South Dummer, there were Mr. and Mrs. Milton Drain and Marie, Mr. and Mrs. W. Purdy of Selwyn, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ivey and family, Mr. and Mrs. Goldie Drain, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Drain, Mr. and Mrs. David Tucker and Vaughn, Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Marshall. Mrs. Marshall is a grand-daughter. Dinner and early supper were served at the lake.

Miss Cherry, sister-in-law to Mrs. Cherry, nee Helen Bowen, Warsaw, is guest of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Drain. Miss Cherry spends most of her time when the weather is fit, sketching some of the lovely or interesting spots around the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Bedford, Toronto, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Darling.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hannon and family were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Payne.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell, their children, Jean and Keith, Mr. Chesley Pelley and little Josephine Cox, motored from Toronto on Monday and are guests for a week of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Payne.

Dr. and Mrs. Munro returned on Monday after a week among old friends in Western Ontario.

There was a small hail storm Tuesday afternoon with a heavy down pour of rain, which lasted only a short time.

The Adderleys and their friends reached home on Sunday evening safely, but at one time the car door flew open and Mrs. Adderley lost her purse. Though the car was stopped and Mr. Adderley walked back, it was not found. He passed two boys who denied having seen it.

OBITUARY

REV. A. L. PHELPS
(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 25.—Local residents, who recall the successful pastorate of Rev. A. L. Phelps when the minister in charge of the Millbrook circuit from 1895 to 1898, will regret to learn of his death, which occurred suddenly at Letchworth, Hertfordshire, England, on Wednesday, August 17 in his 77th year.

Mr. Phelps had retired from the active ministry of the United church of Canada, and was visiting at his old home in England, when the end came. His wife, also born and brought up in England, predeceased him by some years, and the immediate surviving relatives include one son, Arthur S., of Wesley College, Winnipeg, Man.; and two daughters, Mrs. A. P. McKenzie (Winnifred) of Japan, and Gladys E., at present residing in Brantford.

Interment took place at Letchworth in England.

Loaded Cigar No Joke

COLUMBIA CITY, Ind.—A loaded cigar proved anything but a joke to farmer Heber McNabb. In a suit he charged Lawrence Schultheis, grocery clerk, gave him such a cigar in the store May 8, 1937. It blew up, McNabb said, and impaired the sight of one eye. He asked $5,000 damages from Schultheis.

Yearned For The Range

INDIANAPOLIS—A big Texas steer, yearning for the open range, dived from a seventh story window of a packing house into the White River. The steer swam the river, trotted through town and put on several impromptu bull fights with bystanders who played cowboy and gave chase. Finally two policemen shot and killed the animal.

Many Dairies Planning To Pasteurize

In Peterborough and elsewhere throughout the province producing distributors of milk are considering the problem of equipping pasteurizing plants to conform with the new regulations which come into effect generally on October 31, and in some places at the later date of December 31.

Three or four men who have been retailing milk in this city have plans prepared for buildings which may be erected as the only means of retaining the businesses they have developed in the course of many years. Two of them have virtually decided to go ahead with construction, one on property recently purchased, and the other on his own premises bordering on the city. If financial arrangements can be satisfactorily completed, it is understood that one or two others will also switch to pasteurization.

All over Ontario a quiet revolution in the dairy industry as it affects the supplying of milk to urban communities, cities, towns and villages, is going on. It was learned recently that the De Laval Company has been consulted regarding plans for at least one hundred prospective plants, particularly in the matter of machine equipment and other constructional details. Approval has to be obtained from the Milk Control Board, from the Department of Health, and probably also from the Department of Labor to whom plans have to be submitted.

For many milk vendors in the province, the pasteurization law doubtless means extinction of their whole milk business, unless they have the funds that will enable them to undertake the expense of building, and also the volume of trade that would warrant the investment.

In some places, notably in the Ottawa area, producers are going ahead with pasteurizing plants to provide their own customers with milk, and at the same time are arranging to pasteurize the milk of other producers who would otherwise be forced out of the distributing business.

Opposition to the pasteurization law has been gradually retreating in the face of comprehensive consumer support of the government's edict that will cut off the flow of raw milk to cities and towns after October 31, unless some temporary extension of time is granted to producers who may not have their plants complete and ready for operation by that date.

Enquiry at the De Laval Company obtained confirmation that the business in the factory has been sharply increased by the many plans that are under way for pasteurization, and it is also stated that the demand comes from all sections of Ontario, as dairy farmers prepare to meet the new conditions that have marched a long way since the days when milk vendors used to ladle milk from big cans with dippers when that simple method of distribution was accepted as satisfactory by consumers and health officials alike.

Campbellford Child Is Injured By Car

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 25— The first motor accident to involve a child in Campbellford this year occurred at about 10 o'clock this morning when Josephine Sarginson, 4-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. O. Sarginson, Front street, was knocked down by a car.

The car was driven by Lester Blake of Marmora. The little girl was said to have been playing on the sidewalk and to have darted across the road in front of the oncoming car. She was taken to hospital for examination which revealed she was suffering only from bruises and shock.

Service Station Forced Open Tobacco Stolen

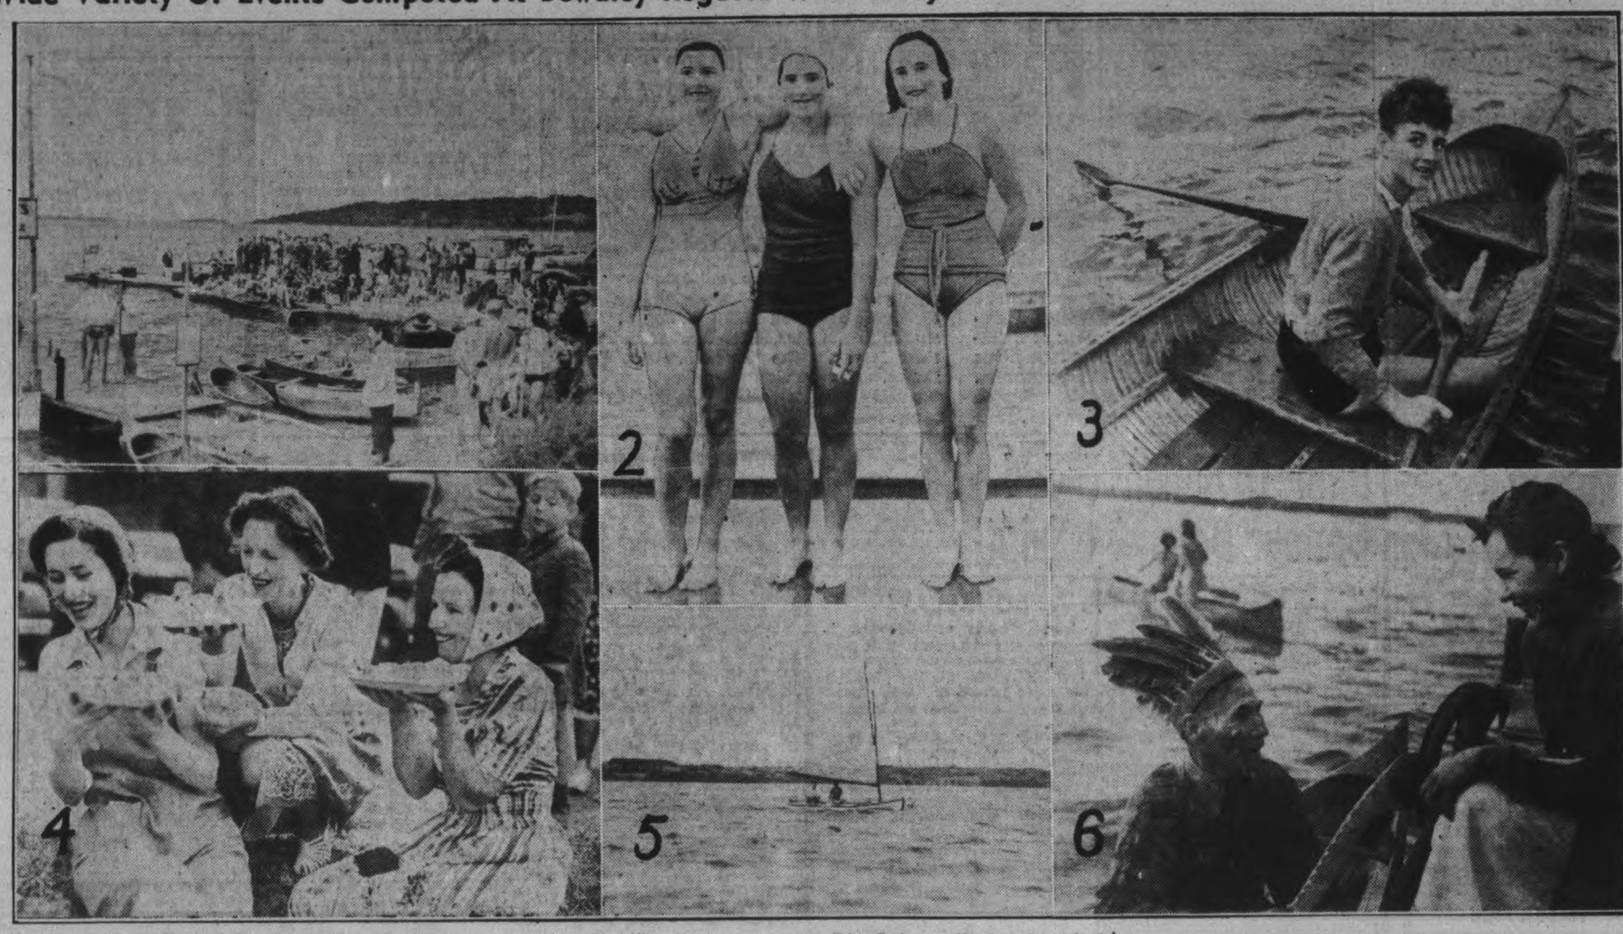
Tweed, Aug. 25.

FORCING their way through the front door, thieves on Tuesday night broke into a service station belonging to Ernest Marsh on No. 7 highway near Actinolite, escaping with four hundred packages of cigarettes, four boxes of cigars and other articles.

The break-in was discovered by the proprietor early Wednesday morning, who immediately notified Chief of Police Clare Hayes of Tweed, who investigated the matter.

Peterboro' Horticultural Society annual Flower Show will be held in the Canadian Legion Hall, Friday, August 26. Doors open at 2 p.m. Valuable door prizes. Admission 10c.

Wide Variety Of Events Competed At Bewdley Regatta Wednesday



A chill breeze swept across Rice Lake on Wednesday afternoon when Bewdley held its annual regatta. A large crowd of hardy spectators watched a wide variety of competitions, saw the familiar figures of Patty Perrin, Bill Taylor, and Herb Cardwell walk off with major honours.

A section of the crowd lining the wharf is seen in (1). The three girls in (2) braved the icy water to swim in an event for girls 14 years of age and under. Winner was Connie Durham of Toronto (LEFT); second was Audrah Sefton, Toronto (CENTRE); and Ruth Radford of Toronto finished third. Ray Harris of Bewdley (3) captured first honours in the boys' skiff race.

Germans Invoke Name Of Hitler As Propaganda For Naziism In All Little Details Of Life

"Heil Hitler" Passport And National Greeting Don Kennedy Reports

"It would not be wise to try to say too much about what is going on in Germany today. One would have to remain there a long time and make many observations before being in a position to speak either intelligently or accurately. I spent only three weeks there and most of it in the western part but going nearly the entire distance north and south. I would not undertake to try to interpret all I saw and heard." In that way Donald Kennedy began when telling the Examiner of his travels in Germany. He spent about three months in England, was also in Scotland, Belgium and Holland.

"The reason why the German situation is hard for a person from this country to understand is that so much of it is invisible. One almost feels that there is some hidden power behind the whole thing. As I understand it the idea is to attempt a form of regimentation so there will be social equality. In such a scheme all the people must conform to the central pattern; it would not do for a group here or there to be off on their own doing as they wished. Everything must be brought into conformity with what Hitler wants."

"Is there as much of Hitler and his propaganda in evidence as we are led to believe by reports?" asked the Examiner.

"One has very little idea of the extent to which Hitler is mentioned. If I were to say his name is used millions of times a day in Germany it would not be exaggeration. When you get on a train a man comes to look at your luggage. He raises his hand and says 'Heil Hitler,' or two men pass on the street and instead of the greetings with which we are familiar in this country they will raise their hands and say 'Heil Hitler.' All the legal or official notices which are often enough seen in public buildings have on their 'Heil Hitler.' I stopped people several times to ask directions and they were always courteous and kindly in giving them, but always before they replied they would begin 'Heil Hitler.' I went into a post office to see if I could raise a little money on a traveller's cheque, and one man there called the bank, and he began his telephone conversation by 'Heil Hitler.' When you go into a store or a restaurant the attendant or clerk will greet you with first of all 'Heil Hitler.' A passenger entering a compartment on a train says the same before taking his seat. So you see when I say the name of Hitler is used millions of times each day it is not exaggeration."

Many Pictures Of Him

"Does that frequency include pictures of Hitler and the swastika emblem?"

"Indeed it does. Pictures of Hitler are everywhere; they are in the store windows, in offices, in hostels, and they are good ones and nearly all framed. The swastika likewise is displayed as though each place were preparing for a holiday.

"They also have a system for checking money. When I entered at Acken what money I had was in Belgian francs and English pounds. I could spent that money in Germany, but I could not take more than that out. On the way out they take in all your Reichmarks. The way in which they guard their money and wealth is strict. I met four Americans and they were visiting in Germany. This relative possesses considerable property in Germany but would prefer going to live in United States but she cannot sell her property and take the money out of the country with her, and if she were to rent it she could not have the proceeds forwarded to her if she took up residence in United States.

"These people informed me that the lady with whom they were visiting considered she was fortunate in that she had been able to secure 2½ pounds of butter because she was going to have four visitors from United States and application for that much butter had been made three weeks in advance.

"The manner in which attempts have been made to take some of the wealth out of the country is illustrated by a story they were telling at Heidelberg. Some of the Jewish folk had secured a permit to cross the border on a motor trip, and they had tools for their car cast in silver, then they placed them in the regular tool kit and several parties passed inspection at the border before the trick was finally discovered.

Hostels Are Numerous

"The price of travelling in Germany is actually cheap, particularly when one has a membership in the Youth Hostel Association which I secured while in London. When I went to Cologne I asked the first man I met where to find the Hostel and although it was raining hard he walked the whole length of the long bridge over which the Canadian army of occupation entered Germany at the close of the war. The Hostel there is actually the old English barracks and it will house 800. You can get a place to sleep for from 8 to 10 cents a night. At six in the morning I woke to the sound of the bugles of the Hitler Youth Movement, and that takes in boys from 6 to 18. They are something like Boy Scouts but I believe membership is compulsory. They drill and wear a uniform. In the belt is a knife which looks more like a dagger than anything else because it is eight inches long. On it is the swastika emblem and the words in red: 'Blood and Honor.' They tell me the knife is useful for eating and making tent pegs. At Bonn I saw another group and they were doing the goose step."

"Do these hostels provide food as well?"

"Yes, they do, but to a person coming from Canada it is not what we would call wholesome. For breakfast you get rolls, and they are made of potato flour; the butter is 60 per cent margarine; the coffee is made out of oats and wheat and there is no actual coffee in it at all; and the marmalade, although having a sweet taste, has nothing which would identify it as being anything in particular. You would put it down in a general way as being made of something else.

In Historic House.

"From Cologne to Bonn is about 18 miles, and the trip can be made by street car at little cost. The tickets are interesting because they have a small map of the district printed on them. The home of Beethoven at Bonn was purchased some years ago by several anonymous Americans and fully restored. He was dead, of course, for a number of years when he was doing his greatest work, and there is on exhibition the ear trumpet which he used for a time and the end of it actually looks as big as a watering can. The piano which he used is there, and it was made especially to try and overcome his lack of hearing. Instead of the usual two strings for each note, that one is built with three to produce a greater sound. They make no secret of telling that Beethoven's father was nothing but a drunken sot."

Feeling Against Jews.

"Did you see any evidence in Germany of the feeling against the Jews?" asked The Examiner.

"I do not think it was as violently in evidence in the part of Germany I visited as it is elsewhere," replied Mr. Kennedy. "But one has to be in the country only a short time to hear about it. I travelled on a number of boats along the Rhine. There is one place called Lorely Rock; the current is swift and the water shallow in spots, and boats were often enough wrecked there. The boatmen of other days used to sing a song when they passed that place addressed to the water nymphs, asking that they be given

J. H. Barber, 81, Rail Builder, Cobourg Native Dies Suddenly

TORONTO, Aug. 25. — Death came suddenly yesterday to James Henry Barber, 81, pioneer railroad construction engineer, and resident of Toronto for the past twenty-one years, who succumbed to a heart seizure at his summer residence in Caesarea, near Port Perry.

Linked with the construction of many important Ontario railway lines from the time of his graduation from the University of Toronto in 1877, his first important assignment came about 1880 when he was made engineer in charge of construction of the old Credit Valley Railroad from Toronto to St. Thomas.

The road, built independently with the assistance of bonuses from various municipalities, including the City of Toronto, was later taken over by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Joined C.P.R. Staff.

When the C.P.R. absorbed the Credit Valley Line, Mr. Barber joined the engineering staff of the new company, beginning an association with the C.P.R., which lasted for more than thirty-five years. He had charge of many of the most vital construction projects on the system, taking part in the laying of steel through the difficult Selkirk Mountains in British Columbia and later transferring to bridge construction.

He supervised foundation work on most of the line's important bridges, including the Lachine Bridge and a St. Lawrence River span.

During his career with the C.P.R. Mr. Barger held the position of Divisional Engineer at St. John, N.B., and Montreal, but in his latter years his work was devoted exclusively to bridge engineering. Following his retirement from the railway engineering staff in 1922, he took up residence in Toronto and had lived here since that ime.

Born in 1856.

Born at Cobourg, December 20, 1856, Mr. Barber was educated at Upper Canada College and University of Toronto. He entered the railroad branch of engineering naturally, his father, the late James Rixon Barber, having been associated with the construction of the Cobourg and Rice Lake Railway, which he financed.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Barber is survived by three daughters, Mrs. A. H. Parks, Mrs. Robert Montgomerie, and Miss Rhila Barber, all of Toronto. The funeral will be held at Lindsay on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment in the family plot, Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough.

Record Potatoes

MILLBROOK, Aug 25.—An unusual record in potato growing is reported by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hilton, well known for their fine vegetable and flower gardens, when they enjoyed second-growth new potatoes for their dinner last Sunday, the tubers having been planted in the early part of July, and having attained a growth equal to that of good-sized hen's eggs.

First Debentures Issued In Peterborough Raised Funds For Court House

Original Engraving Plate For Bonds Found In 1889; Corner Stone Laid In 1838

The corner stone of the Court House was laid one hundred years ago today by His Excellency Sir George Arthur, then Lieut.-Governor of Upper Canada, with all appropriate ceremony.

The tiny settlement formed in 1820 by Adam Scott largely extended by the immigrants brought from Ireland by Peter Robinson in 1825—and named Peterborough after him in 1937—had become, for those times, a populous place and a thriving settlement. Churches had been built and other amenities of civilization came into being; it was felt that there should be a suitable building erected for the administration of justice and for the safe custody of those who broke the law.

Early in 1838 it was decided to build a court house and jail. John Read, provincial land surveyor, reported to a committee as to a government subsidy and providing an appropriation for a site of seven acres, part of which was required for the building and the rest converted into Victoria Park.

Cost $36,000.

The committee was restricted, at first, to an expenditure of $20,000 but on receiving tenders for the work this was increased to $30,000. Plans were submitted by Joseph Scobell and Walter Sheridan (after whom Sheridan street is named) and the plans of the former were accepted. As stated the cornerstone of building was laid on Aug. 25, 1838. As the work progressed alterations made to provide additional accommodation raised the cost to $36,000. The jail was not completed until 1842 owing to serious disagreement with the contractor, Edward Lee.

In that year Capt. Rubidge, one of the earliest local pioneers, gives the following pen-picture of the Peterborough of a hundred years ago: "There are now nearly 400 houses, many of them large and handsome, inhabited by about 1,500 persons. A Presbyterian church of stone and a very substantial church of stone in progress of erection for the Roman Catholic body. There are two flour mills, seven saw-mills, five distilleries, two breweries, two tanneries, twenty shops called stores, carriage, sleigh, wagon, harness and cabinet makers, and most of the useful trades. Stages bring mail in five times a week and steam boats run when navigation is possible. There is one good tavern (White's) and two poor ones. The export of wheat from the neighborhood has reached 150,000 bushels."

Historic Building.

Of course there have been many interesting incidents in the history of this century-old building; it could tell the tale of the county's municipal history, but there is no space here to tell them. The edifice, practically the same as when first built, has suffered from tempest and storm; in Jan. 1889, a tremendous wind storm swept the district and caused the "loss of half of the north and south sides of the new roof of the Court House." More recently it was definitely threatened and damaged by the great Quaker Oats fire.

A very curious momento of the original building was discovered in January, 1889. An engraved plate was found in Toronto of a coupon for five shillings. The plate states that the coupon was issued by the district of Colborne (of which Peterborough was then a part) for the purpose of raising funds for the erection of a new court house and jail in Peterborough. This was the original plate from which debentures, issued at the time, were printed. They may safely be considered as Peterborough's first debenture. The figures given as cost of construction etc. are given only approximately in dollars. At that time sterling coinage was current in Canada; it was not until July, 1857 that the sterling coinage of pounds, shillings and pence was superseded by the present decimal system of dollars and cents.

The splendid building standing on its high ground commanding the city is a great testimonial to the skill and competence of the century old builders.

Receiving Master's Degree In Chicago

Among those who have recently fulfilled the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy and who will be graduated this week at the one hundred and ninety third convocation of the University of Chicago is Professor Mars M. Westington, son of Mr. T. P. Westington of Camborne. Professor Westington is a graduate of Port Hope High School and of the Honour Classics course in the University of Toronto. After graduating from the latter institution he was awarded a Tutorial Fellowship on which he proceeded to his Master's degree. Following a period of study and extensive travel in Europe he returned to his alma mater where he lectured for a number of years before leaving in nineteen hundred and thirty to join the staff of the University of Chicago. Last year he accepted an invitation to become Professor and Head of the Department of Classical Languages and Literature in Hanover College. Professor Westington's book, which represents a detailed study of Roman military history, will be published this autumn.

Gentiles Only Is Sign Out Bewdley Cabins

American tourists are anti-Jewish, according to Baptiste Ducette of Bewdley who has hung a sign "Gentiles Only" in front of his cabins on the shore of Rice Lake.

Ducette, owner of a barber shop, refreshment booth, boats for hire, and cabins for rent, claims that tourists from the United States have complimented him on his move. Ducette claims his business has improved since he stopped Jews from entering his grounds.

Erected Prominently

He erected the sign—prominently, on a tree only a few feet from the highway—a short time ago after a truck load of Toronto Jewish people arrived at his door and stayed all day. They spent very little money, and left so much rubbage lying about that all his profit was taken up in cleaning his grounds, he claimed. Since he put it up he has not been bothered by Jews, he said. "One carload came but turned around and went back as soon as they saw the sign," Ducette said.

Some time go his first Jewish customer came and stayed for two weeks, he said. Then came another and another, and finally a truckload of Sunday holidayers came as a climax, he said. The sign was not intended to be personally offensive, but was necessitated by financial reasons and for the benefit of his customers. And business has improved since, was his claim.

Mounties Probe Boat Upset

Royal Canadian Mounted Police are conducting a quiet investigation into an accident on Stoney Lake near McCracken's Landing a short time ago, when it is alleged a speed boat swamped another smaller craft, endangering the lives of the occupants of the latter boat.

The speed boat is said to be owned by a Peterborough man and with him at the time was an Indian guide and another well known young fellow. The officer obtained statements from the two but no information could be obtained as to who sought the aid of police or who were in the boat which was upset by the waves of the fast travelling power boat.

Car Crashes Ditch 4 Escape Injury

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 25.—Four people had a narrow escape from injury when the car in which they were riding left the road two and one half miles east of Campbellford.

W. G. White, of Trenton, who it is alleged was driving the car was unable to make the turn on the county road which connects Campbellford and Stirling. There is a sharp "S" turn at this point and it is thought that as the driver attempted to make it the car swerved in the loose gravel and turned on its side against a steep embankment. The party was en route to Trenton at the time.

300-YEAR-OLD SCHOOL

To celebrate the tercentenary of the village school, founded in 1638 and believed to be England's oldest elementary school, Southfleet held an Old English Country Fair and raised funds to recondition the building.

Minister of Agriculture Opposes Plan To Settle Immigrants

Lillooet, B. C., Aug. 25.

HON. JAMES GARDINER, Federal Minister of Agriculture, said today he was against placing settlers from the Old Country on "raw land" and leaving them to "fight out their own destiny."

Mr. Gardiner was repying to proposals for British emigration to British Columbia. One proponent of such a policy, Sir Henry Page Croft, is at present touring British Columbia to study possibility of placing British settlers in this Province.

"If provision is made for financing the settlers over the first difficult years, and of training them and equipping them for the task, then the plans should be satisfactory," the Minister said.

He arrived by plane Thursday, accompanied by J. G. Turgeon, Liberal member of Parliament for Cariboo, and Louis Le Bourdais, Liberal member of the British Columbia Legislature for Cariboo riding.

Kin Bereaved By Death Of Heir To Motor Millions

Here are two persons to whom the tragic death of Daniel G. Dodge, drowned on the way to a doctor after being seriously injured by the explosion of a stick of dynamite, came as a special shock. One, his sister, the former Frances Dodge, now Mrs. James B. Johnston, Jr., who was married just a short time before her brother, in a wedding that was an outstanding social event, in contrast to his wedding, a quiet ceremony attended only by friends. She shared in the $18,000,000 trust fund left by their father. The picture shows Horace Dodge, uncle of victim, and co-founder of the vast automobile enterprise bearing their name.

Rare Pieces Sold On First Day Of Antique Auction

Halifax, Aug. 25

COLLECTORS, connoisseurs and curious crowded the stately Odell mansion yesterday, fingering china and glassware which once was handled by Royalty, as auctioneers shouted themselves hoarse in disposing of more than $4,000 worth of tableware, collected by two families over a period of 150 years.

Scores of rare pieces, treasures of the Odell and Bliss families, both of which left their mark on the pages of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia history, were placed on the block.

Only the silverware, china and glassware were sold on the first day of the auction which will dispose of the personal effects of Miss Mary Odell, the last of the family, who died several months ago.

One of the highest bids was that made on an early American porringer, wrought in 1737. It brought $200. A small silver tray on a oripod, dated 1771, sold for $55.

Battle Of Amiens Ended German Defensive Spirit

(Written for The Canadian Press by Capt. W. W. Murray, M.C.)

To follow the many and involved operations which featured the final activities of the Battle of Amiens, in August, 1918, would require a minute examination of each of the phases into which the action developed. It had been foreseen that once the Canadians advanced into that devastated area which had been fought over during the Somme campaign of 1916, progress must necessarily be retarded and would eventually cease. However, there were strategic positions which had to be taken and consolidated before the line stiffened to the point of finality. From August 12 onward, the engagement had degenerated into local actions.

From that date the northern portion of the Canadian line, running from a point on the Amiens-Chaulnes Railway, about half a mile from Lihons, southerly for nearly three miles to Fransart, was static. Farther to the south, however, the ebb and flow of battle bulged the line into several small salients. These had to be straightened out by the capture of Parvillers and Demery. This task fell to the 3rd Canadian Division. On August 13, the 7th and 9th Brigades were fiercely engaged and a firm foothold won in Parvillers. This was held throughout August 13 against violent counter-attacks, and next day resumption of the fight saw that village, together with Demery, in the hands of the Canadians.

On August 15 the engagement was resumed, with the Canadians battling for every yard gained. A labyrinth of old trenches covering a front of 3,000 yards, to a depth of 2,000 was cleared out by bomb and bayonet; Fransart and the tiny hamlet of La Chauvette were captured; the line was pushed forward to the outskirt sof Goyencourt on the south. At the end of that day the Canadian position was strengthened and sited along a series of low ridges, of great defensive value.

Railway Was Objective.

This conflict wrote "finis," for all practical purposes, to the great victory of Amiens. What were its achievements? The battle had opened in the early hours of August 8; its initial success had been swiftly exploited. A penetration of close to 14 miles had been made. But it was not in the area liberated, nor captures of men and material that the value of the battle was gauged. Rather was it in the supreme fulfilment of the larger expectation—the freeing of the strategic railway which was the lateral artery of both the British and French armies. To do this the Battle of Amiens had been launched; and its purpose was triumphantly accomplished.

But the statistics of the battle present a more readily understandable picture. In the 10 days' fighting the Canadian Corps captured in the neighborhood of 10,000 prisoners, nearly 170 guns, 1,000 machine guns, and more than 100 trench mortars. Vast engineering and other stores fell into their hands, and their own total casualties were fewer than the number of prisoners taken.

Amiens told another story, however, far more enlightening than the statistical record of gains and losses.

It told that the old, stubbornly defensive spirit of the German Army had passed. In his spring and summer offensives Ludendorff had massed his best troops into storm units; and these had practically withered before the fire of the defenders. He has admitted his shock on discovery that the German Army "could no longer be depended on" to resist with that determination which formerly characterized it. Amiens, in other words, was the beginning of the end. There were many vigorous and costly battles to be fought before that end came; but the Canadians faced them with high hopes—a hope which the whole story of events in the Last Hundred Days justified to the very full.

Already their immediate future was planned. On August 19 the 2nd and 3rd Divisions were moved out of the battle zone, relieved by the 4th and 1st Divisions respectively. They vanished as mysteriously as they had come. Their destination was the sector which they had left to come south to Amiens — Arras, their purpose the delivery of the next smashing blow before which the Germans were to reel on the morning of August 26.

Lord Stanley Is Welcomed By Premier King

OTTAWA, Aug. 25 (CP).—A formal welcome from the government of Canada was given Lord Stanley, British secretary of state for the Dominions and Lady Stanley, by Prime Minister Mackenzie King who was host last night at a private dinner at the Ottawa Country Club.

On the flower decked enclosed piazza of the club, overlooking the Ottawa River on the Quebec side, the Prime Minister had a small but distinguished party of guests in addition to the British minister and his wife. The list included Lord Gowrie, Governor-General of Australia who is returning from a three month visit to England.

Sir Edward Ellington, British Air Marshal and Wing Commander Robb of the British mission now surveying manufacturing and air training facilities in Canada, were also guests.

Another of the guests from overseas was Miss Jenny Morris who is making a tour of Canada from a series of reunions with veterans who found shelter and friendship at her mother's hostel for soldiers in London during the war.

Ottawa guests included former Conservative leader R. B. Bennett and his successor, Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion and Mrs. Manion; Sir Francis Floud, British High Commissioner in Canada, members of the diplomatic corps in Ottawa, and members of the government.

There were no speeches other than the Prime Minister's words of welcome and brief responses from the guests.

The Dominion's secretary and his party, including Lady Stanley, two sons and staff, left afterward for Toronto, where he will open the Canadian National Exhibition.

Two Killed 40 Injured In Subway Crash In N. Y.

Two men were killed and 49 persons injured, when a subway train smashed into the rear of another train on the upper east side of Manhattan. The engineer and a passenger standing near him were killed, when their car was telescoped five feet into the rear car of the train ahead. Firemen are shown here breaking through the wreckage of the motor-man's cab of one of the trains as they sought to release scores of passengers who were trapped in the trains as the pneumatic doors jammed. Many persons were injured as the panic-stricken passengers fought to release themselves.

Unique Shower Hastings Bride

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 25. — The Maples, the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Preston of Asphodel was the scene of a happy social event on Monday afternoon, August 22, when forty young ladies of the Hastings community gathered in honor of Miss Grace Orr, whose marriage took place on Wednesday to Donald Pollock.

A delightful program had been planned, Misses Rhea Preston and Helen Collins and Mrs. J. B. Scriver being a committee who arranged all details for the afternoon.

The bride-elect was asked to take a place under an arch, decorated with a large white wedding bell and with the pink and white color scheme continued in the streamers and other trimmings. A small bride, Margaret Scriver, attired in the proverbial wedding veil and orange blossoms and leaning on the arm of the groom (her sister Clarine), who wore long trousers, high silk hat and boutonniere, marched through the room to Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Miss Carrie Doxsee. Following them came two little brothers, Jimmy and Donald Fairman, wearing green suits. As they entered the living-room they pulled a wagon gaily decorated and laden with gifts wrapped in pink and white. Miss Helen Collins read an appropriate address and with the help of the little tots, the bride-elect placed the gifts on the table. When they were unwrapped, a complete set of cream and red kitchenware was displayed. The guest of honor gratefully acknowledged the gifts and thanked the hostess for her hospitality.

An exciting time was spent in bingo, prizes being awarded to Mrs. Bruce Trotter for first and to Miss Teressa Coveney and Mrs. Wallace Orr, who tied for second. Miss Wilhelmine Rusaw's reading entitled "The King With the Terrible Temper," kept everyone very much amused. Miss Jessie Whitred's reading "Lavinsky at the Wedding" kept everyone in laughter. Mrs. Fred Barry and Miss Carrie Doxsee contributed pleasing piano solos and Mrs. J. B. Scriver sang a lovely number, "The Little Brown Owl."

Pictures and snapshots were then taken, after which an abundant and attractive menu was served by Mrs. Preston and Misses Rhea and Ferne and helpers. Those present were: Misses Grace Orr, Helen Collins, Margaret Gorman, Angela Gorman, Kathleen Skinkle, Teresa Coveney, Irene Coveney, Alice Whitred, Jessie Whitred, Pauline Humphries, Wilhelmine Rusaw, Irene Oliver, Carrie Doxsee, Marion Phillips, Winnifred Beamish, Evelyn Moore, Marguerite Faux, Geraldine Faux, Madeline Convey, Mildred Sherwin, Winnifred Metcalfe, Pauline Scriver, Lela Mitchell, Kathleen O. Grady, Frances Barry, Audrey Pacey, Clarine and Margaret Scriver; Jimmy and Donald Fairman, and Mrs. H. Orr, Mrs. W. Orr, Mrs. H. Fairman, Mrs. J. B. Scriver, Mrs. R. King, Mrs. A. Beamish, Mrs. B. Trotter, Mrs. Fred Barry, Mrs. William McFadden, Mrs. Breithier, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Preston and Misses Ferne and Rhea.

CHAPTER 25

THE LETTER from Jimmy which Noel found in Laurie's purse read as follows:

"Dear Laurie: I can't persuade her to see reason. But even if we can't get married, there's no harm in seeing each other once in a while. Please let me see you, won't you dear?

"JIMMY."

There was no address of the letter. There wasn't even Jimmy's last name. But on the back of the envelope, Noel did find an address. Two eight-eight Bickford was written in small letters.

At last Noel was sure she would be able to find Jimmy and might be away an hour or so.

"You're very sentimental, aren't you?" Ruth Chester said superciliously.

"I believe finding Jimmy would have a lot to do with Laurie's getting well," Noel said quietly.

Ruth Chester lifted her beautifully arched dark brows. "I'm the one to do the thinking around here. You're merely supposed to carry out orders."

"I'm going to find Jimmy whether you instruct me to or not," Noel said with quiet emphasis, fighting back a wave of anger. There was something about Ruth's superior attitude that aroused her, no matter how hard she tried to control herself.

Before leaving, Noel asked Mrs. Blarsom to stay within call of the sick room until she returned. Mrs. Blarsom agreed rather ungraciously.

A few minutes later Noel was off on her errand. Bickford was on the north side of town and Court street on the south, so Noel had to go entirely across the city.

At last she found herself in front of a neat white cottage with frilly curtains in the windows, the number 288 on the curb in front of the house.

A neat, elderly woman in a big wrap-around white apron, her gray hair in curlers, answered the door.

"I want to see a young man by the name of Jimmy. I don't know his last name, but it's very important that I see him," Noel couldn't keep the eagerness from her voice.

"He isn't here," the woman said. "He lived here about a month ago, I think," the woman said, looking regretfully into Noel's anxious face.

"Do you know where he is now?" Noel asked in a voice that hoped against hope.

The woman shook her head. "No, I don't. You see, I didn't know him."

"Then you don't know his last name?" Noel asked, feeling suddenly sick at heart. She had had every confidence that she would find Jimmy, but she felt that every hope she had was now slipping away.

The woman didn't know his last name. Then Noel asked if she had any idea where he worked. The woman shook her head again:

"I just know that a man by the name of Jimmy lived in this house about a month ago, and moved away," the woman said regretfully. Then added, "Give me your name and telephone number. If I can find out anything about him, I'll let you know."

Noel gave her the information, but she didn't have much hope that she would hear from her.

There wasn't anything else to do but to go home and admit failure, and possibly hear Ruth Chester say, "I told you it was a foolish idea."

But when Noel reached home, she was in for a surprise. Julian was there. He had taken charge of the case. He and Ruth Chester were bending over Laurie's bed, their faces intent and grave. There was something about their expressions that brought a fresh chill to Noel's heart.

"I'm going to change the treatment and try the ox-blood," she heard Julian say as he straightened up. "It's our only chance," he added.

"You're exactly right, Doctor Paige," Ruth answered in her low, rich voice.

Then Julian saw Noel. He came over to her. "I hadn't any idea of being called on this case when you were in my office. Doctor Merridew has been trying to get in touch with me for several days and only succeeded after you left."

"I'm so glad, so glad you're here," Noel murmured. "I know you can save Laurie. I know you can."

"I hope I can justify your faith," Julian said gravely. Then asked, "Who is this chap Jimmy? She murmurs his name over and over. I think it might be well to have him here."

Before Noel could answer, Ruth interposed. "Nobody seems to know anything about him, Doctor Paige. I think myself we should have him here. There's a psychological effect to that sort of thing."

Noel looked at her, an expression on her face of silent disgust. But Ruth smiled sweetly and went on: "Miss Shayne has been trying to find him."

Noel explained, then, the efforts she had made and how she had failed to find any trace of Jimmy.

A thoughtful frown came to Julian's face. "There should be some way we could trace him," he said, then added, "Laurie is very ill, Noel. There's only a fighting chance."

"But you will save her. I know you will," Noel exclaimed passionately.

A little while later she went over to the nearest drug store to get a prescription filled. When she came back, Julian and Ruth were talking together, quietly and earnestly just outside the sick room door.

Noel went in and sat down beside Laurie. She could not keep the tears from her eyes when she looked at the wasted little form, the white, ravaged face. This was the first time she had ever been face to face with anything so terrible as death. Still she would not—could not believe—that Laurie would die.

Then Julian and Ruth came back to the bedside, and Noel moved away. For something like 10 minutes they stood there studying Laurie's condition, nodding at each other now and then in silent understanding.

Noel had never seen two people work together in such perfect harmoney as Julian and Ruth Chester. It seemed that the nurse anticipated his every need, even his thoughts.

Seeing them together, realizing how much they had in common, Noel relinquished every faint hope she had had that some day she and Julian would find each other.

Julian was a real man. Thoughtful, highly intelligent. He knew what he wanted. To him Ruth Chester seemed an ideal woman — the perfect mate. Noel remembered only too well that Julian had said that a marriage between himself and Ruth Chester would be most suitable, had they been attracted to each other. And it was plain enough now to see that an attraction did exist between them. They seemed to belong together.

Sitting out in a chair in the hall, so as to be close when needed, Noel was aroused from her thoughts by Julian's grave voice. "I didn't know until Ruth told me that you were helping out during the day. Are you still dancing at—that place?"

She nodded. There wasn't anything else to do but admit the truth. Then Julian said, "Miss Chester thinks we should make different arrangements."

Noel might have expected this. Ruth Chester's plan didn't include having Noel around where Julian could see her every day.

Noel's first impulse was to come out frankly and say that she wasn't going to give up staying with Laurie during the day just because Ruth Chester didn't want her. But instead she asked quietly: "Don't you think I'm capable of really helping?"

"I've not been here long enough to judge that," Julian answered frankly.

Noel's expression fell. Then she looked up at him eagerly and said: "Kitty Perry said I obeyed instructions well. And I'm not going to leave Laurie during the day, unless—unless," but she didn't finish.

Julian looked at her gravely. "But I thought you were doing it only because there didn't seem to be any other way?"

"I'm doing it because I want to, and because I know Laurie wants me near," Noel said firmly. "And if you don't think my inexperience is jeopardizing Laurie's chances I'm going to stay. If you do —" but once again Noel couldn't finish.

"I do not think that at all," Julian told her quickly. "I was afraid it—was too much for you. That's the main reason."

"Then you will let me stay?" she questioned hopefully.

"Provided you get sufficient sleep and eat the proper amount of food."

"Julian, I promise to do both," Noel agreed seriously. She knew Julian was giving her orders just as he would any other person under his care. But, somehow, it was ineffably sweet to have him thinking of her again.

The next morning, quite early, the woman who lived out on Bickford telephoned and gave Noel the name of the place where Jimmy worked.

DOROTHY DIX

Marriage Is a Business as Well as a Sentimental Proposition, So Both Prospective Bride and Bridegroom Have the Right to Know About The Qualifications of Each Other

DEAR MISS DIX—My fiance seems obsessed with the idea of finding out what sort of a wife I will make and continually asks me what I can do. What kind of a laundress am I? Can I cook? Can I scrub? Can I do this or that? What sort of a money-saver am I? If he has to know these things about me, why can't he have found out without asking me frankly? As a wife, I want to do my part, and expect to, but I want a husband who would marry me, even though I couldn't cook an egg and thought money was something to throw at the birds, just because he loved me. There are such men. Every day we see brilliant men marrying dumb girls just because they love them and poor men marrying helpless girls whom they know they will have to wait on hand and foot. I have just about decided to break my engagement because I think if my fiance really loved me he wouldn't think so much about whether I was capable or willing to do things or not. What do you think about it?

D. M.

Answer:

If you expect to be a romantic ideal instead of a working partner to your husband, you had better walk wide of the altar, because marriage isn't that-away at all. The husbands who put their wives up on a pedestal and burn incense at their feet, no matter how trifling and no-account and wasteful they may be, are simply the creations of lady novelists. They don't exist in real life. So if you wait to marry until you find a man who will still think you glamorous when he has to get his own breakfast they will carve "Miss" on your tombstone.

Marriage is a business as well as a sentimental proposition, and the success of it depends just as much upon a woman doing her part as upon a man doing his and it is just as important that the wife should be a good cook as that the husband should be a good provider.

No home can be happy if the man at the head of it is a ne'er-do-well, whose house is a hovel, whose children are in rags and hungry. Nor is any home happy where the woman at the head of it is a lazy sloven, whose floors are unswept, whose beds are unmade and who poisons her family on her cooking.

Hence I think that your young man does not show any lack of affection for you, but just plain, good, hard, horse sense in trying to find out before marriage what sort of a wife you will make and how well fitted you are for the job. He has asked for no more reference than you would have to give when applying for a position as a stenographer or clerk.

And I think that any girl should put the man she is going to marry through the same sort of questionnaire and find out just how much money he makes, what his chances of success in business are and whether he is a waster or a saver. She would do well also to make a few searching inquiries into his idea about the division of labor and money in a family and get his notion of the general status of a wife. It would save a lot of divorces if young people would find out before marriage what sort of husbands and wives they were getting instead of waiting until after they were married to discover that they have gotten misfit mates.

It is true that, carried away by a pretty face or some physical allure, men are often so infatuated that they marry girls whom they know to be totally unsuited to them and who possess none of the qualities they need in a wife. It is also true that girls become so besotted with love that they throw all reason and prudence to the winds and marry drunkards and loafers who have never supported themselves, but these marriages are never happy and seldom last. No man blesses the millstone that sinks him even if he has tied it around his neck, and no woman continues to see a Fairy Prince in the man she has to haul out of the gutter, or who sits down and lets her go out to work to support him.

So I think, D. M., that you will make a mistake if you break off your engagement with your fiance because he wants to find out what sort of a wife you will make. It looks as if he intended to stick to his bargain and be married to you for a long time.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Four years ago I left my wife. While I lived with her I lived a life of torment. She was hateful, nagging, bossy, insulting, tyrannical, absolutely refused to have children. My family were not even allowed to call and see me. Not satisfied with bossing me at home, she would come to my office and raise scenes and finally broke up my business. She has driven me to the wall, but she refuses to give me a divorce. If I had been the worthless type of husband, I would blame myself, but all the time I lived with this heartless woman I was true to her. I don't smoke, drink or gamble, and this is one case where there is no other woman involved. I dressed my wife well, gave her a fine home and a car. Never opened my pay envelope for ten years and, although she has all I worked for for fifteen years, and although she hates me, she still wants to be a dog in the manger and refuses to give me my freedom. I am tired of being in the position of being neither bound nor free, neither married nor unmarried. What is your suggestion in such a mess?

G. B. H.

Answer:

Evidently your wife is one of the venomous women who take a pleasure in torturing the husbands who have dared to rebel against their tyranny. Also she is afraid that if she sets you free her hold upon your pocketbook would be loosened.

You can never expect any generosity from her, so you will have to free yourself at whatever cost and sacrifice it may call for. Much is to be said against the easy divorce offered by Reno and Mexico and several other places, but they are the salvation of good men and women who have had the ill-luck to draw such wives and husbands as yours in the Matrimonial lottery.

But why men, who make the laws, do not do away with the abuse under which they suffer under the present marriage laws, passes comprehension. There is no crueler injustice in the world than that a man should have to go on supporting the fiendish woman who has ruined his life just because he made the mistake of marrying her.

DOROTHY DIX.

Daughter will like the idea that the jacket comes off for classroom. Another interesting thing about this navy blue cotton three-piece ensemble is that the skirt buttons "on" to the white blouse. She can have several extra blouses for variety. A red plaid gingham or a yellow cotton broadcloth would be very effective. Another fetching scheme for a little later is to make the blouse and skirt of clan plaid wool and the jacket of navy blue velveteen. Again, the ensemble in one scheme in either cotton or wool with contrasting white pique collar.

It's very quickly made with the aid of the diagrammed sewing instruction chart....the cost is so moderate.

Style No. 2077 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material for bolero and skirt. The separate blouse requires 1⅛ yards of 35-inch material with 2¼ yards of ruffling.

Minister Gets Ducked As Canoe Upsets As It Neared Shore

Pemberton, B.C., Aug. 25.

HON. J. G. GARDINER, Federal Minister of Agriculture, and J. G. Turgeon, M.P., had a cold reception at Pemberton today—but it was an accident.

The plane in which they are making a tour of the Cariboo landed on the river, but couldn't make shore. So a dugout canoe set out to bring them in.

The canoe upset as it neared the shore and the two politicians got a ducking.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

There were times when Knarf, the shadow boy with the turned-about name, was bad, and there were other times when he was good. This is one of the times when he was more than good, as you shall see.

It all happened the morning Mary Jane got her face washed. Mary Jane was a rag doll. She didn't have a very pretty face, like the china doll. But it was a nice, plain face, and everyone liked it, especially Mary Jane's mistress. She even liked Mary Jane's eyes, which were just two black shoe buttons.

When Mary Jane first came to the house, her face was fresh and clean. Her cheeks were pink and her lips were red. But by and by she began to get smudges. There was a black smudge where her mistress had once tried to make her eat a gumdrop, and a yellow smudge where some orange juice had once spilled on her, and some blue smudges where she had once tumbled into a blackberry bush. In fact, her face was full of all sorts and colors of smudges.

But Mary Jane didn't seem to mind at all.

Soldier Not Impressed.

"If my mistress likes me, I don't care how many smudges I have," she said with a smile to the Tin Soldier, who always stood on guard at the door of the children's playroom.

The Tin Soldier didn't say anything but "Humph!" What he really meant was: "Perhaps your mistress likes you with all those smudges, but I don't!"

Now it just happened that Laddie, the white poodle, trotted into the playroom at that moment, and overheard the Tin Soldier. He understood at once what the matter was. Then he bounced over to Mary Jane and said: "I'll wash those smudges off your face. I know just how to go about it. I've seen the cat do it to her kittens. It will only take a minute or two. Here, I'll show you." With that he pushed poor Mary Jane on the floor with his paw. And the next instant he was licking the smudges off her face, just as he saw the cat doing with her kittens.

But a very surprising thing happened. Oh! a very surprising thing indeed—something that had never happened to the kittens!

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By R. J. Scott

Millbrook's Oldest Resident Observes 92nd Birthday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 25.—The community's oldest citizens, Mr. Christopher Waller Weatherilt, quietly observed his ninety-second birthday this month. Another important milestone, shortly to be passed, will be reached on September 19, when Mr. and Mrs. Weatherilt will attain the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding day.

Mr. Weatherilt's father, William Varne Weatherilt, came to Canada over one hundred and ten years ago from Ireland; his mother's maiden name was Elizabeth McRae, and the marriage of his parents took place in Montreal very shortly after her arrival in this country. Miss McRae's father died of cholera soon after landing in Canada from the sailing vessel upon which the family, which included three sons and three daughters, had made the voyage across the broad Atlantic.

Last Of Family Of Nine.

Christopher Weatherilt is the last surviving member of a family of nine children, four sons and five daughters, Mrs. Weatherilt is also a member of a pioneer family, her maiden name having been Mary Johnston, and her father, Noble Johnston, having likewise come out from Ireland and established his home in Manvers township, near Lifford. She, too, is the sole surviving member of her family, being the seventh child of six sons and one daughter.

Mr. Weatherilt was born at Port Hope, where his father for a time followed the trade of a cabinet maker; later the family moved to Cobourg, where the father found it more lucrative to take up carpentry in which he was an expert. The late James Hughes, for many years well known as school inspector at Toronto, and a brother of the late Sir Sam Hughes, was the teacher under whom Christopher Weatherilt received his education, the school attended being at Osaka, and the curriculum consisting largely of "reading," "'riting," and "'rithmetic."

Mrs. Weatherilt went to school at Lifford, and her teacher was the late Sir Sam Hughes, who in the days of his young manhood successfully followed this profession. Clearly recalled by Mrs. Weatherilt is a visit made by James Hughes and his bride to a Sunday school anniversary in her home community, and the pleasant impression made upon the young folk by their fine dress, and appearance—he with his frock coat and silk hat, and his bride with her silken flounces and furbelows.

Mr. Weatherilt senior acquired over three hundred acres of land in the vicinity of Canton, on what was known as "The Mast Road," because of the tall timbers cut there, in those days of virgin bush, to supply masts for the many sailing vessels, which came regularly into Port Hope harbor. He gave his son, Christopher, a farm of one hundred and eighty acres, but when the latter had reached his thirtieth birthday he decided that returns from the land, which was of a sandy character, were too meagre, both as to crops and prices received, to warrant his remaining longer on the farm, and it was eventually sold, the former owner going to work with his brother in Manvers township, near Lifford, which was then a considerable village, with its own town hall, church, blacksmith shop, store, and quite a settlement of homes, practically all of which have now disappeared. Here he met his future bride, Mary Johnston, their marriage taking place at Millbrook on September 19, 1878, at the old Methodist parsonage, then located beside the former frame church at the east end of King street, the pastor of the local circuit, Rev. Mr. Scott, performing the ceremony.

Lived in Various Places.

Since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Weatherilt have lived in various parts of the province. In the winter following their wedding, 1879, they went to Port Hope where, for the next seven years, Mr. Weatherilt was secretary-treasurer and librarian of the Mechanics' Institute, the forerunner of the present-day public library. After that, they bought the Johnston homestead, which had belonged to Mrs. Weatherilt's father and was indeed a fine farm with fine buildings, and lived in Manvers for 20 years. In 1897 Mr. Weatherilt went to California, at the request of the late William Quay, a wealthy citizen of Port Hope, to take charge of his orange, olive, and other fruit ranches, coming back to Canada in the spring of '99. In 1906 he sold out his holdings in Manvers and went to Pickering township, where he had one of the finest farms in the county.

The next move was to Whitby, where the fine old Richardson homestead was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Weatherilt, and in 1916, to satisfy a desire on the part of one of his sisters, removal was made to Goderich, where Christopher Weatherilt, then over seventy years of age, and not from any financial necessity but because he wished to join with other workers and "do his bit for King and country," took a position in a factory where boxes were made in which pork and beans were shipped overseas to the soldiers. When the factory was burned, he leased a house with ten acres of land in the town of Goderich, and raised vegetables and other produce, as a further contribution to the supplies needed in war time.

In 1923 residence was taken up at Caesarea, on Lake Scugog, where the Weatherilts built a cosy cottage, and continued to live until eight years ago, in 1930, when this fine couple, retiring in disposition, but who, while health and strength permitted, have always contributed a worthwhile citizenship to the various communities in which they have lived, have come, in the sunset of their days, to make their home at Millbrook, purchasing the residence on Queen street, at the west end of the village, which in earlier years was owned and occupied by Wesley Fry.

Have Two Sons.

Mr. Weatherilt's family consists of two sons, Noral, who has a farm in Cavan not far from Millbrook, and Wilfrid, who lives at Caesarea; they have four grandchildren. Both husband and wife have a lifelong connection with the Methodist and United Church, and have been active and faithful members. In Sunday School work Mr. Weatherilt has given fine service both as superintendent and Bible Class teacher, and one of his cherished possessions is a framed address, given him when leaving Lifford, signed by the pastor, Rev. Dr. G. W. Marsh, speaking in the highest terms of his work in the school; in connection with this was the presentation of two Morris chairs to Mr. and Mrs. Weatherilt, and the former was also the recipient of other gifts from his Bible class members. In politics, Mr. Weatherilt is a Liberal; asked what he thinks of the present Premier of Ontario, he replied: "Well, I don't know; he did one very bad thing, and that was openng the beverage rooms."

In spite of his advanced age, Mr. Weatherilt is in good health, able to take the long walk up and down from his home to the village centre when necessary; working in his garden; enjoying conversation with friends, and neighbors, and others whom he may meet; and taking an interest in current events. His mind is clean and active, thought eyesight and hearing are somewhat impaired. His wife is his constant companion and helpmate, and though her health is not robust, she is active looking after her home and her husband, who is her senior by several years.

Millbrook's Oldest Reaches 92

Ninety-two years old this month, Christopher W. Weatherilt is Millbrook's oldest citizen. He and his wife, shown in this picture, will celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding on September 19. They are among the town's most prominent citizens, are retired and living a happy, useful life. (Examiner Correspondent's Photo.)

Citizens' Band Wins First Prize.

Noted throughout all the district is the Millbrook Citizens' Band which, under its leader, Lieutenant William Peryer of Peterborough, won first prize at the season's parade and competition at Orono, competing against such organizations as the Legion Band from Bowmanville and the Midland Regimental Band of Orono.

Members of the band in the back row, left to right, are Lieut. W. H. Peryer, E. Powell, G. McKnight, C. Wood, R. Theobald, W. Edworthy, T. Best, G. Might, M. Trick, M. Belch, J. Byam, R. Todd, T. W. Rowe, D. Lang, F. Gilmour, A. Ellis. Absent are W. Byam, G. E. Burnham, and W. Lord. (Examiner Correspondent's Photo.)

MORE ABOUT—

Germans Invoke

safe passage. I heard the tune of it hummed, and it was typical folk music, but that song is never sung now. It was simply cut off short and I do not know what would happen to one who tried to sing it now. The reason is that it was found a Jew by the name of Heine had written the words and music.

"Any other evidence of the feeling?"

"Well at Weisbaden, one of the great show places of the country and where people come to take baths and also to retire, it was said that a number of the leading places were finding business very dull and the reason was they were owned by Jewish people and the Germans who could afford to patronize them would not dare to do so."

Used a Tug Boat.

"I suppose there is more waterborne traffic along the Rhine than on any other similar body of water. The current is very swift and it is not possible to swim against it. I know because I tried it on several occasions but could make no progress at all. When one wants to go a considerable distance and has only a limited amount of money on which to go it is necessary to do as much bargaining as possible. At Bonn I went down to the dock and talked to the skipper who had a tug boat and five scows hitched behind. He was a coal carrier. He spoke a little English and I spoke a little German and between that mixture we managed to strike a bargain by which I was to ride along on his tug as far as Weisbaden for four marks, or 80 cents, and it took two days to make the trip. He stopped at several places on the way, and it was actually a splendid way to see the valley of the Rhine and to notice the intensive cultivation stretching to the very top of the mountains. There are many places where ground for the vineyards has to be held in place by a succession of stone walls. They tell me that in seasons of heavy rain that earth is apt to be all washed out, but the patient peasants go to work, pack it in bags and proceed to carry it back and put it in place.'"

They Haggle at Prices.

"The fine old custom of beating a bargain must have had its origin in Germany. I do not know whether Hitler could cure them of that and it is probabl he will never try. When a man goes into a store the process begins. The merchant asks a certain price and the customer then proceeds to tell how much he will pay. It is as though I went into a store in Peterborough and they showed me a shirt for $2. I would then proceed to tell the merchant that I would give him $1.50 for it and after that the haggling would go on until a sale was made.

"That same trait seems to run all through. I recall one night when we were going to put in at the Hostel at Backrauck for the night, and by the way that is an old castle which was erected in 1202. There were ten of us together and in the lot was one German youth. He told us, 'Now just let me attend to this.' We did, and he went to the manager and told him there were ten in his party and he wanted a special rate. What's more, he got it and the lodging for the night was cut in half.

"I noticed in so many places that American travellers when they desired to discuss HHitler referred to him as "Mr. Patterson." They did that so that if their conversation was overheard there would be no embarrassing backwash bearing down on them.

Papers Are Watched

"It was noticeable when at Weisbaden that one could secure a copy of the London Daily Mail but not of the London Times. I was told there were days when the Times was not allowed to be sold but the Mail can be sold there at any time because there is a feeling in Berlin that the Daily Mail is friendly toward Germany. It is correct enough to say that the people in Germany are not tolerant of any criticism of Hitler or what is going on in their land.

"There was one big Scot at Weisbaden and he wore kilts. When I fell in with him it made a group of about seven Americans, two Canadians and two from France. He went by the name of Wully and he was one man who should have been wearing kilts. He would be six feet and two or three inches over with shoulders lige an ox. He fairly exuded power and strength. He had this little party of ten lined up behind and marched them down toward the dock while he was singing "The Campbells Are Coming." Then when he would encounter one of the "Heil Hitler" salutes his answer would be to draw himself up stiff and straight as a poker and reply in his fine accent "God Save the King."

"Well, what would happen then?" asked the reporter. "Would the people not resent it?"

"If you had seen Wully you would understand better what they would be likely to do. If Wully undertook to throw the first twenty men he could find into the river then I would bet on Wully. He was riding a cycle all over the country, stopping at the Hostels and he was the centre of attention wherever he went. He said he was a farm worker a home and always wore the kilts.

The Scarred Faces

"The men of Germany are still proud of the scars they get on their faces when duelling in college days. It is accepted there as a mark of honor and good education. At Heidleburg, the university centre, you can see quite young fellows with fresh marks. Duelling was stopped for a time and I believe it is yet held to be illegal, but it goes on just the same.

"As near as one can judge the people of Germany like the new order of things. I was not in the great industrial centres but the report is the same all over; there is no one out of work and in recent times it has been necessary to bring in laborers from Italy. It is right enough to say Hitler has convinced Germany she did not lose the war. He keeps them thinking of the Germany of 1870, and is making them look ahead to the greater Germany of tomorrow. They like it. The girls in Germany do not wear shorts, neither do they use make-up and the reason is that Hitler does not like it. The manner in which they keep streets and roads clean is remarkable, and it is a fact that they waste nothing. When one gets such a thing as a pint of milk, there are two receptacles at the door, and in one of these you place the empty container and in the other the bit of tinfoil which was over the top of it. Many of the men's suits are now made of cloth which is the result of a mixture of wood and milk, something like rayon. Many of the people working around the docks wear wooden shoes which can be purchased for 30 cents. I bought a pair but they were stolen when I returned to London."

We Noticed

....In a shop window....one of the sweetest and most enticing of the current army of lapel ornaments we have seen. It was a silver metal mandolin, and it was incrusted with tiny porcelain roses.

◇ ◇ ◇

....That they are even making nightgown in dirndl style now. . . we saw one to-day of blue and white flannelette. It looked as cosy as could be, and the neckline was demurely squared.

◇ ◇ ◇

....That up is the really important word in hair-dos this season. Your curls may be large or small, but they must always be drawn high, away from the face, leaving it neat and tidy. If, perchance, it makes you look a trifle older, remember that nothing adds to your age more than a reluctance to keep pace with fashion!

Tinney Family Reunion Is Teld At Cobourg

A reunion of the descendants of the late William and Sara Tinney of Warkworth was held recently in Cobourg Park, and the attendance numbered over one hundred members of the family who came for the occasion from Williamstown, Vermont and Bason, N.Y., North Bay, Tomiko, Bancroft, Campbellford, Colbourne, Soldsprings, Cambourne, Cobourg and Peterborough.

The day was happily spent in renewing old friendships, and in meeting relatives, in some cases, for the first time. It is eight years since the last reunion was held, and it was a merry company who finally sat down to a delicious supper at tables placed under cool shade trees near the shores of Lake Ontario.

Rylott—Parcells

HAVELOCK, Aug. 25. — A quiet wedding of interest locally was solemnized on Saturday, August 20th at the United church parsonage in Marmora, when Evelyn Lillian Parcells, daughter of Mrs. O. Parcells of Havelock, and the late O. Parcells, was united in marriage to Demond M. Rylott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcenna Rylott, of town.

The bride looked lovely in blue sheer with white accessories. She was attended by Mrs. George Aboud, of Marmora, dressed in navy sheer. The groom was attended by Mr. George Aboud.

The happy couple left after the ceremony on a short motor trip to Kingston, Ottawa and points east. They will reside in Havelock.

◇ ◇ ◇

Davidson—Blake

HAVELOCK, Aug. 25. — A quiet wedding of much local interest was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 4.00 o'clock, when Jean Isabella Blake, of Marmora, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Blake, was united in marriage to John Alton Davidson, of Havelock, son of Mrs. Wm. Davidson of town and the late Wm. Davidson. The ceremony was performed at the United church parsonage in Marmora, by Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth.

The bride wore navy sheer with navy accessories and corsage of white roses. She was attended by Miss Dorothy Davidson, sister of the groom, dressed in rosebud sheer, with dubonnet accessories and corsage of talisman roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's mother, there being present only the intimate friends and relatives of the couple. Mrs. Davidson received dressed in grey.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson left on a motor trip to Montreal and points east and on their return will reside in Havelock.

Ferguson—Dunster

The United Church Manse, Keene, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Tuesday, August 23, when Evangeline Dunster of Brooklyn avenue, Toronto, youngest daughter of Mrs. George Dunster and the late Mr. Dunster, became the bride of Mr. Charles S. Ferguson of Bourlamaque, Quebec, son of Rev. J. S. Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson, Keene.

The bride wore an ensemble of brown and beige with matching accessories.

Rev. J. S. Ferguson, father of the groom, officiated, and the attendants were Miss Dorothy Ferguson, of Keene, and Mr. Scott Ferguson, of Toronto.

After a wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson left for a reception to be held in Toronto, and later were travelling to Buffalo and other points. They will live in Bourlamaque, Quebec.

◇ ◇ ◇

Pollock—Orr

A very lovely wedding was solemnized at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 24th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Orr, of Percy township, when thier only daughter, Margaret Grace, became the bride of Donald Maxwell, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pollock of Dartford. Rev. F. W. Newell, B.A., B.D., of Trinity United church, Hastings, officiated.

The drawing room was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the alcove was artistically arranged with asters, dahlias, gladiolus and ferns.

The bride entered the room on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Wallace Orr. She looked charming in her wedding gown of white Spanish lace, made on princess lines, ankle-length and with bolero and short sleeves. Her heirloom veil of tulle fell in soft folds into a lengthy train, and was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms. Her hand-crochet gloves and her shoes were also in white and she carried a bouquet of Premier roses, baby's breath and maiden hair fern.

The bride was attended by Miss Irene Oliver, who wore an ankle-length frock of shell pink Bemberg sheer, made with a deep sash, full skirt and short puffed sleeves. Her bandeau of flowers was of the same shade in pink. She carried a bouquet of gladiola, baby's breath and fern.

Mr. Harry Ewing of Warkworth, cousin of the groom, was best man.

During the signing of register, Miss Helen Collins and Miss Claudine Hoard sang "I Love You Truly."

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the dining room, the bride's mother wore navy blue sheer, with a corsage of sweet peas. The groom's mother chose navy in triple sheer and wore a corsage of sweet peas.

The dining room, where the wedding dinner was served, was decorated in pink and white and the bride's table was centred with a three-story wedding cake.

Rev. Mr. Newell proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by the groom.

Friends of the bride assisting in the dining room were the Misses Helen Collins, Rhea Preston, Claudine Hoard, Frances Hoard, Teresa Coveney, Kathleen Skinkle and Ruth Fairman.

The bride and groom were the recipients of very lovely gifts from the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends from Toronto, Campbellford, Warkworth and Norham.

Later the happy couple left for Ottawa and eastern points, the bride wearing navy sheer with a white sharkskin bolero white felt hat trimmed with navy, and accessories, to match, and a sable neckpiece, the gift of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Pollock will live near Dartford.

Douro Wedding Party

Agnes Condon Becomes Bride Of Ollan Leahy

A lovely late summer wedding took place at St. Joseph's church in Douro on Wednesday morning at 8.30, when Agnes Mary, youngest daughter of Mrs. Agnes Condon, 259 Reid street, and the late Mr. Maurice Condon, became the bride of Ollan Joseph Leahy, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Leahy, Douro.

The Nuptial ceremony and Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. McCarthy, served by Kevin Leahy, brother of the groom.

Gladioli, asters and sweet peas decorated the altar, and the wedding march was played by Mrs. Victor Kennedy, who also sang at the Offertory and during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Fergus Condon of Toronto, had chosen an exquisite gown of royal duchess satin made on princess lines that fell into a train at the back. It had a Peter Pan stand-up collar, and the Empire lace bodice was trimmed with a pear ornament. Her long flowing veil of Irish net which was bordered with Limerick lace, was held in place by a tiny flowered lace cap with a studded seed pearl tiarra and orange blossoms. Her cascade bouquet was of Easter lilies, lily of the valley, and maidenhair fern.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Carolyn Condon, gowned in blush-pink satin striped organdy over taffeta, made in redingote style. Her shoulder-length veil was of aquamarine blue, and was caught by a wreath of tiny blue and pink rosebuds. Her mittens and shoes were also of blue, and her bouquet was of Rapture roses, delphiniums and gypsophilia.

The little flower girl, Evelyn Doris of Keene, was dainty in a short, baby-blue frilled organdy frock, with matching veil cap trimmed with pale pink rosebuds. She carried a nosegay of Rapture roses, statice sinuata, and gypsophila.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Robert Leahy, and the ushers were Mr. Clare Condon and Mr. Joseph Leahy.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, for about sixty guests, which included Rev. E. Welch, former pastor of the young couple. The bride's mother received in a gown of navy sheer and lace, with navy accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses and baby's breath. The groom's mother, who also received, wore an ensemble of black sheer and lace with corsage of carnations and baby's breath.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver, to the bridesmaid a pearl rosary, to the best man a morocco-bound money case, and to the flower girl a yellow gold bracelet.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Leahy left for a trip to North Bay and other points, the bride travelling in navy romaine crepe with shoulder cape, a navy tricorn hat, and navy accessories. On their return they will live on the groom's farm in Douro.

Shortcakes are not married to strawberries alone, notice the little bit of ginger added to this one and then wed it to some mellow peaches, top all with some whipped cream, and there's a culinary event.

Peach Ginger Shortcake

Two cups flour, ¼ cup sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon ginger, 1 egg, one-third cup butter, one-third cup milk. Mix dry ingredients and sift twice, work in shortening with tips of fingers, egg should be well beaten and added to the milk, then added to the flour mixture. Put in layer cake tin, which is well buttered, and press to meet sides with finger backs. Bake at 500 deg. Fahr. When done, split and spread with butter, put plenty of sliced sweetened peaches between and on top, and cover with whipped cream and garnish with selected sliced peaches.

Nutmeg or cinnamon may be used in place of ginger, and brown sugar in place of white to give a different flavor.

THE AWFUL PRICE YOU PAY FOR BEING NERVOUS

Quivering nerves can make you old and haggard looking, cranky and hard to live with—can keep you awake nights and rob you of good health, good times and jobs.

What you should try is a particularly good woman's tonic—and could you ask for anything whose benefits are better proved than that world-famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Let its wholesome herbs and roots help Nature calm your shrieking nerves, tone up your system, give more energy and make life worth living again.

More than a million women have reported benefit—why not let Pinkham's Compound help YOU, too, to go "smiling thru" trying times like it has other grateful women for the past 3 generations? IT MUST BE GOOD!

RHEUMATIC PAIN AGES YOU

A pitiful sight to see him looking years older than he really is. But in most cases this is unnecessary. What causes Rheumatic twinges? Damp, Cold? No. The weather only aggravates what is already there. The cause of Rheumatic ailments, Neuritis, Lumbago, Sciatica, is often Uric Acid in your system. Uric Acid forms crystals—hard, sharp, very painful. Uric Acid is caused by congested waste matter that poisons your body. And within that poisoned body is a sluggish liver.

Now Fynnon Salt helps stimulate the liver. The combination of Sodium, Potassium and the elements of Lithium in Fynnon Salt works through your system to clear out poisons and help dissolve Uric Acid crystals. With the cause of the trouble removed you are soon fit again. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt, 75c at all druggists'. 33

Check Discharges from the Bowels

Bowel troubles, although happening at any time of the year, are most prevalent during the hot summer and early fall months.

When diarrhoea, dysentery, cramps and pains in the intestines or any looseness of the bowels occur get a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Its action is pleasant, rapid, reliable and effectual, and does not leave the bowels constipated. It has been on the market for 92 years. You do not experiment when you use it.

Play safe. Get "Dr. Fowler's."

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Fruit Salads Smile At You Especially In Autumn

All housewives are sisters under the skin—no matter what color that skin may be. I know—for last Saturday morning I went to market at 7 o'clock. The produce was grand, there was no crowd. A large Negress and I seemed to be following one another around—both of us with market baskets over our arms. I bought so much (but spent comparatively little) that I had to invite extra company to help us eat it all. When I was stowing it into the car my Mammy friend passed and chuckling said over her bundles, "How mah man an' me will hold it all ah dunno."

Sunshine Salad

(Some of the basket of peaches went into this.)

Peel, stone and halve yellow peaches. For each salad prepare one. Peel oranges with a sharp knife cutting through inner skin. Slice each orange in four thick slices—providing 2 slices for each salad. Fill cavities in peach with cottage cheese, perch a maraschino cherry or blackberry on top of cheese. Overlap slices of orange in centre of bed of lettuce—placing stuffed peaches on either side. Serve with

Banana Mayonnaise

Select a large ripe banana and mash it to a pulp using a fork—moisten it with a little fruit juice—peach, pineapple or orange will do. To it add ½ cup genuine mayonnaise and a little heavy cream—pass at table. This dressing is full flavored and delicious with pineapple or any other tart fruit salad.

Pear Porcupine Salad.

Pare large ripe pears and halve them, spread cut surfaces and fill cavities with thin white cream cheese—yellow cream cheese is good too. Put together in original shape. Stand on bottom, stick sides with halved blanched almonds. Garnish base with slices of maraschino cherries. Serve this with cheese straws or wafers and

Tart Fruit Cream Dressing

Beat 2 eggs together until very light then slowly add juice from 1 large lemon, 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 tablespoon butter. Cook stirring over hot water until it thickens. Cool well, then beaot witr rotary beater and fold in 1 cup cream whipped stiff.

14 Months Old

The bright-eyed little lassie is Beverly Anne Cooney, fourteen months old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cooney, 101 Monaghan Road, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. White, 271 Simcoe street, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Cooney, 311 McDonnel street.

Blended Fruit and Nut Salad

Pare and cut in small pieces 4 apples (red August apples will be best), add 1 cup inner celery stalks chopped finely, 1 cup imported grapes or dates or green gage plums (we prefer the tartness and color of the plums in this salad), 1 large orange cut in dice, (1 cut pineapple is optional), 1 cup sliced peaches, ½ cup pecans or almonds, 2 tablespoons sugar. Prepare these just before needed, and mix with Banana Mayonnaise (see above), or

Honey Salad Dressing

Three tablespoons salad oil, 4 tablespoons honey, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt. Mix these well, then fold into 1 cup heavy cream whipped. If you omit the cream you have a nice dressing for fruit or some vegetable salads for those who are fond of the consistency of French Dressing.

Cantaloupe Salads

Cantaloupes lend themselves to so many different shapes that I must remind you of a few of them.

1. Cut a washed cantaloupe into 1-inch rings, remove seeds and carefully pare it. Place this ring on bed of lettuce or cress and fill centre with sliced peaches and bananas blended together with

Fruit Salad Dressing

Two eggs beaten light, 2 tablespoons flour, 2-3 cup sugar, 1 lemon, juice, 1 orange juice, ½ cup cream whipped 1 cup canned pineapple juice (juice from canned peaches will do if no pineapple juice is at hand). Combine beaten eggs with the mixed flour and sugar. Add the fruit juices and cook in double boiler, stirring until thick. Cool and fold in whipped cream. This amount will serve 10 people.

To continue with cantaloupe salads:

2. Using ball cutter, cut cantaloupe into balls—about 8 for each person to be served. Cut bananas in slices—separate large organges into segments. Immerse the cantaloupe balls and banana slices into the Honey Salad Dressing (see above) without the cream for 5 minutes. Arrange the orange segments and banana slices alternately in a ring on bed of lettuce or endive. Pile cantaloupe balls in centre. Pass cheese at table and any of the above Fruit Salad Dressings.

3. Cut one cantaloupe into about 8 crescents—remove seed portion. Chill very well. Serve one crescent for each salad. Beside this serve a mould of Lime Fruit.

Lime Fruit Jelly

One tablespoon granulated gelatin, ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup cold water, 1¼ cups boiling water, ¼ cup fresh lime juice. Soak the gelatin in the cold water 5 minutes. Pour the boiling water over and stir until gelatin dissolves. Add lime juice and sugar and stir until sugar dissolves. Pour half this into small individual moulds and add sliced peaches to each mould and let set—then fill moulds with remaining jelly mixture and let set. Banana Mayonnaise is choice with this.

4. Cantaloupe and watermelon balls are fine in a fruit cup if chilled in a thin lime syrup and served in it. This makes a delicious first course.

Fruit Salad Notes

For those of you who have an eye on your waist line and must needs deny yourself the pleasures of toast and jam, your jams and jellies can be used to grand advantage on fruit salads—use them to fill the cavities in peaches and pears. Red currant jelly makes a grand garnish around the base of a pear porcupine (see above). Grape jelly is delicious as part of a banana salad—when the bananas are moistened with Honey Salad Dressing and rolled in chopped walnuts or pecans.

Never let combined fruits stand after they are moistened with mayonnaise or other dressings. If the fruits must be prepared beforehand—store them in covered separated dishes and combine them only when ready to serve with dressing.

Lettuce for fruit salads should be well cupped, and dried thoroughly.

Ripe olives are good with fruit and make an effective garnish.

Some Thoughts On Woman

The woman who is always pleasant to you is not necessarily your friend; though you should appreciate her courtesy, you should not overestimate her sincerity. Woman's envy makes her uncharitable, her vanity makes her unjust.

Most every woman is guided by her heart rather than by her head, and this is usually the cause of her mistakes and her troubles. A good woman without charity is like a sun-baked desert without an oasis—there is no element of comfort in her virtue.

No woman should feel that she has a monopoly on virtue; temptation walks with us to the grave. Evil thoughts, though unexpressed, are as dangerous as evil actions.

The woman endowed with a strong body, calm emotions and a reasoning mind, who attains success, may not be so worthy of our admiration as a frail sister lacking poise and the power of judgment, who never really achieves, yet struggles on.

Plaids Predominant in Autumn Suits

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Think how much we have to be thankful for. Few appreciate the number of every-day blessings. We look on them as trifles; we forget them because they are always with us."—Sir J. Lubbock.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes, too, when we are striving for the best we can get out of life, we turn away in disgust because the best does not seem to be for us, forgetting in our blindness that there is always the next best thing, and that maybe it will serve us better than we can hope for, maybe, too, the very thing we need.

Some will not even do the small kindness because they do so want to do the large ones, and so the ones who could use this are left without. Little kindnesses are the next best thing to big ones.

We see some, too, who want work, but what they truly want is some particular kind of work, so they turn away from the other kind never realizing that this they have turned down is the next best to what they want, and that it is easier by far to get a job when you have one, than when you don't.

It is natural and right to wish for the best, to reach out for it, to work towards it. And the thing that is next to the best is the nearest way to get your desires.

Sometimes, too, doing the next best thing is the surest way to fit ourselves for the best. If you want to help also, wishing to give a dollar, but only able to give a quarter, withholding that quarter may be the worst thing you ever did, driving someone to despair.

Often this refusal to do the next best thing is a form of dirty pride. They are not so much concerned with working or getting ahead, as they are concerned about what people will say of them. They are not so much willing to help, as they are in getting credit for what they give.

The ones who do the next best will always have their chance to do the best, be sure of that. The ones who use the next best like making over dresses, or using sugar sacks or flour sacks when they would much rather buy clothes or gowns ready made up, will always get what they wish in the long run.

While the ones who are too proud to use the next best will find they will have to use a fourth or fifth best if they don't get wise to themselves. We can take the next best, stamp our character on it, and lo, it becomes the best.

I remember when I was first married, I wanted a dresser so badly, but finances would not allow it. So I got two orange boxes, lined them with wall paper, found a couple of boards in the yard which I scrubbed and nailed to the boxes. Then I draped some cheap cretonne around them, made a scarf of the same, took some lace off something else, painted the kitchen mirror and hung it in the middle above this, and so had a nice dresser.

Now, these things are fashionable, but without the orange crates. It was the next best thing, and although my sister laughed at first, she copied it afterwards. Another time I painted a white hat black, used some white silk combined with black velvet scraps, and had an original hat. But they copied that, too, so I had to make another different one.

Why go without, when the next best is waiting to be used. Besides, it may only be in your own mind as to which is best and which is next best, and sometimes we are not very good judges. I remember a woman who said she did not get the best husband, she got the next best, but it turned out that she truly got the best in the long run.

When you can afford to be choosy, go ahead, but when you can't, use the means at hand and see how much better off you will be. Better a half loaf than no bread.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

OLD TIME ACTRESS DEAD.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25.—(AP).—Mrs. Jean Hathaway, 62, who starred in serial films in the early movie days, died Tuesday. From a small time vaudeville circuit, Mrs. Hathaway came to Hollywood in 1908 and was immediately starred in a series of one-reel adventure films.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Now I am going to bother you again. I hope you won't mind. I have lots of vegetables I want to can: marrows and squash, onions, cucumbers, beets, beans, peas, rhubarb. Could you give me any recipes for pickled onions and cucumbers, mix pickles and such like or could you tell me where I could get a good book on this? I am getting along fine. I had my youngest boy ill with tonsilitis and the nurse I had congratulated me on the way I was doing things. She was surprised to see me stuff a marrow with hamburger and onions. Thanking you in advance for any advice you could give me.—W. J. R.

P.S.—The trouble with me and my cooking was my old complaint—too much hurry. I have got over it.—W. J. R.

ANSWER: Your letters are a rare treat, and the mounting tone of optimism leads me to believe you are finding some measure of contentment in your task of being father and mother to those lucky boys of yours. Last year I virtually promised our readers a cookery pamphlet on pickling to be ready this year—I certainly hope it is ready in time this year—as soon as it is we shall insert an announcement on the cookery page. In the meantime maybe the following recipes will keep you going.

Pickled Onions

Peel small white onions, cover with brine, allowing one and one-half cups salt to 2 quarts boiling water, and let stand 2 days; drain, and cover with more brine; let stand 2 days and again drain. Make more brine and heat to boiling point; put in onions and boil 3 minutes. Put in jars, interspersing with bits of bay leaf, whole cloves, slices of red pepper. Fill jars to overflowing with white vinegar scalded with sugar allowing 1 measuring cup of sugar to each gallon vinegar—if you want your onions sweet increase amount of sugar. Seal while hot.

Pickled Gherkins (Sour)

Wipe 4 quarts small unripe cucumbers. Put in stone jar and add 1 cup salt dissolved in 2 quarts boiling water and let stand days. Drain cucumbers from brine, bring brine to boiling point, pour over cucumbers, and again let stand 3 days; repeat. Drain, wipe cucumbers dry, and pour over 1 gallon boiling water in which 1 tablespoon alum has been dissolved. Let stand 6 hours, then drain from alum water. Cook cucumbers 10 minutes, a few at a time, in one-fourth the following mixture heated to boiling point and boiled 10 minutes: 1 gallon vinegar, 4 red peppers, 2 sticks cinnamon, 2 tablespoons allspice berries, 2 tablespoons cloves. As they are cooked put pickles in clean stone jar, and when all are done, strain remaining vinegar over them until they are immersed. Cover with plate weighted down with heavy clean stone, and cover all with heavy cloth.

Pickled Gherkins (Sweet).

Fifty 3-inch or 3½-inch gherkins, 3 cups vinegar, 1 cup water, 2 cups sugar, 1 bunch dill, mixed spices. Soak pickles in very strong salt water over night (1-3 cup salt to 1 quart water). Drain well. Boil vinegar, water and sugar 10 minutes, add pickles and just keep hot until they change color. Pack them into jars, add 1 teaspoon mixed spices (whole, bought ready mixed from the grocer) and about 1 teaspoon crumbled dill blossoms to each quart, then cover with the boiling syrup and seal.

We hope you like these. Yes, I do have a book to recommend—The Home Dietitian, by Ella Mae Ives, published by David McKay Company, Washington Square, Philadelphia, Pa. I recommend this book so much it begins to get monotonous—but it and my Boston Cooking School Cook Book are the most used in my collection of cook books—and the Home Dietitian has an especially good canning and pickling department. It has been run through a new edition early this year and the price is $1.50 plus duty which is about 30 cents. Write directly to them and you can pay the duty when the book arrives.

Wife Preservers

To clean straw hats, a Chicago housewife gives them periodical baths with a paste made from lemon juice and powdered sulphur. Apply paste with toothbrush, scrub well and hang hats in the sun.

Do You Know?

If you apply a thin coat of white shellac to any grease spots that may be on the wall before papering a room, no grease will penetrate the new wallpaper?

New Feminine Salute

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—A new form of salute which women are to execute in Reichfuehrer Hitler's presence at social functions was used for the first time last night.

The new salute, used by women guests at a state banquet for Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Regent of Hungary, is delivered by raising the right hand shoulder high with a bent elbow, the saluter at the same time slightly inclining the head.

A change in the etiquette protocol provided for this modified form of the regular stiff-armed Nazi gesture.

Bitten By Dog Lindsay Boy Is Hospitalized

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Aug. 25.—Allan Burns, aged 11 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Burns, town, was taken to the Ross Hospital yesterday suffering from serious lacerations in his face, inflicted by a collie dog. The youth was on a visit to relatives in Ops Township, and while playing with a collie, the animal turned on him and made three vicious snaps at him. Gashes were inflicted on both cheeks and chin and fourteen stitches were necessary to close the wounds.

Master Bruce Cowan of Donald, Haliburton County, was bitten by a pet dog on Monday. The animal turned on him and severely lacerated his leg. He was taken to Haliburton Hospital for treatment. It is believed the dog had become affected by the heat.

A severe storm passed over a section of Victoria County on Tuesday. On the farm of Ernest Wright of Peniel, a bolt of lightning struck and killed a horse—one he had bought to replace a horse killed by lightning a year ago. Lightning also struck the house of D. McDonald, stunnning him. It killed his dog and set fire to the window curtains.

A summer cottage at Scott's Dam, six miles north of Minden, on the south shore of Cannon's Lake, was destroyed by fire on Monday. A party from Toronto had only vacated the cottage on Sunday. A bucket brigade prevented the fire from spreading to other cottages. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, was the guest speaker at the local Kiwanis luncheon. He claimed that the tourist industry was more profitable to the province than that of mines. Tourists were of great benefit to farmers and other classes of people, and every effort should be put forth to encourage the industry. The speaker also referred to the work being done for the conservation of game and fish in this district.

A resident of Harvey Township, Peterborough County, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., of Peterborough, in the local Police Court on Tuesday, and was sentenced to two months in jail on an indecent charge.

Vance Daynes of Lindsay is in the General Hospital at Oshawa in a critical condition as a result of a motor accident near Brooklin on Tuesday. The driver of a car in which Daynes was travelling got beyond control when being passed by another car and took to the ditch. The driver escaped with slight injuries.

The death is announced at Latchworth, England, of Rev. H. Leonard Phelps, a former clergyman of the Bay of Quinte Conference. The deceased was a former pastor of Queen Street United Church, Lindsay, remaining here until 1908.

Little Jimmy Schultz of Kinmount was brought to Ross Hospital this week. The youth was helping with the chores in the stable when he was kicked by a horse. He was alone at the time and it was several hours after the accident before he was found. He sustained a broken leg.

Magistrate Gee held court at Haliburton this week and disposed of a number of cases. Joseph Biagi was fined $15 for illegal possession of beer. Arvo Rennie was assessed $10.0, and costs, for permitting drunkenness in his home; John Pasquino was fined $10.00, and costs, for driving a car without an operator's licence; a young lad was charged with loitering on the streets after nine o'clock. This case was adjourned.

Golf Notes

C.L.G.U. day and in spite of the threatening storm, a good field of lady divot diggers faced the starter, to compete for the spoons at the Peterborough Club. The best net spoon went to Mrs. J. C. Green, who's score of 84 was the best for the day's play. This is Mrs. Green's second spoon.

Mrs. Reg. Turner won her first spoon of the season for the least number of putts after a four way tie, three special draws were needed to decide the winner and the putts of the 10th and 18th holes counted. Mrs. Turned winning by having 1 putt on each.

Syracuse Chiefs Defeat Bisons

TORONTO, Aug. 25—(CP)—Syracuse Chiefs, who generally show little concern for Newark Bears' success, are thankful today for a pair of Newark victories that has boosted them into second place in the International League.

The Chiefs, who have been threatening to take over the runner-up spot from the Rochester Red Wings for the past few weeks, finally moved in last night when they downed Buffalo Bisons 8-5 while the Bears were halting the Red Wings 2-1 and 5-2.

Joe Mack led a 16-hit attacked with a three-run homer and two singles to spoil Ollie Carnegie night in honor of the Bisons' home run king.

In the lone afternoon game of the day, the Jersey City-Toronto game having been played previously, the Baltimore Orioles and Montreal Royals played to a 6-all deadlock. The game was called at the end of the 11th inning to allow the Orioles to catch a train.

Star Outfielder With One Arm Is Hitting .300

MONTREAL, Aug. 25. (CP).—Handicaps mean little to Slim Peter Gray, star outfielder and .300 hitter with Three Rivers' entry in the Quebec Provincial baseball league.

Pete has only one arm. Eighteen years ago when he was a six-year-old youngster in Nanticoke, Pa., he fell from the running-board of a moving automobile to lose his right arm—and develop into one of the greatest individual attractions known to today's semi-professional diamond wars.

For five years now this young Lithuanian-American who changed his name from Wyshner to Gray because the latter was more "pronounceable" has performed in the monied ranks. And each year he has topped the .300 mark.

Breaking into the game in his school days, Gray played a good deal of sandlot ball before an offer came from Scranton of the North-Eastern Pennsylvania circuit. Pete accepted. He shifted later to Pine Grove in the Lebanon Valley League, but says he declined an invitation to join the touring House of David outfit.

Gray's fielding formula at his centre-pasture post is simple. When a high drive plummets out of the sky or a blistering grounder skims over the grass, Pete spears the ball in an unpadded, loss-fitting glove into which only his fingers fit, yanks off the glove by shoving it under his right arm stump and then whirls the pellet to the infield. The whole process takes only a second or two.

OBITUARY

ROBERT THOMPSON ELLIOTT.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Aug. 25. — One of Hungerford Township's mostly highly respected residents passed to his final reward shortly after ten o'clock on Sunday morning, when Robert Thompson Elliott, lifelong resident of this district, died at his late residence on Metcalfe Street.

Born seventy-eight years ago, in the Township of Hungerford, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Elliott, the deceased received his early education in Tweed, turning from the school books to the farm, a vocation he followed all his life. He spent practically all his life in his native township with the exception of a short time spent in Western Canada and Queensboro. He was a member of St. James' Anglican Church, Tweed, and in politics was a Conservative.

The late Mr. Elliott is survived by his wife, the former Katherine Burr, one son Clarence of Toronto, one brother John in Alberta, and three sisters, Mrs. Sarah Roberts of Toronto, and the Misses Olivia and Cassie Elliott of Carleton Place.

The funeral was held from his late residence to St. James' Anglican Church, Tweed, on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30, with the Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne officiating. Interment was made in St. James' Cemetery.

HANG LIGHTS ON CATTLE

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

LYING IN AMBUSH

DID YOU EVER pass the opponent's suit bid because you were loaded to give him trouble and only hoped you could get a crack at him upon a higher level? As he fell for the bait, did you then try to push him still higher by sticking in a supporting bid for one of your partner's suits? If he succumbed to this, soared to new levels and you then came out of your ambush and doubled him, didn't you feel smart and happy? What would become of your joy if your partner then took out the profitable double with a rebid of his own suit, which got doubled and set?

	♠ A 7 3 ♥ K Q 9 8 7 6 2 ♦ 9 7 ♣ 10
♠ Q J 9 3 2 ♥ 5 4 ♦ J 6 2 ♣ K J 2	W. N. E. S.	♠ K 10 5 4 ♥ A J 3 ♦ A K Q 10 4 ♣ 8
	♠ 6 ♥ 10 ♦ 8 5 3 ♣ A Q 9 7 6 5 4 3

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Diamond, South overcalled with 2-Clubs, West passed, North put in a bid of 2-Hearts, East 2-Spades, South 3-Clubs, West 3-Spades, North 4-Hearts, East 4-Spades and South 5-Clubs. West gleefully doubled this and North passed. When it came to East he made the mistake of taking out into 5-Spades, which North doubled.

The heart 10 lead immediately drove out East's A, and when he returned a trump, North cashed a heart and offered a club, which South was able to win. The result was East went down one trick.

The score would have been quite different if East had paid attention to his partner's double, realizing that having passed at one stage and later doubled, he probably was simply egging South on. South would have been set three tricks.

Hughes Finds Fame Fleeting As He Arrives Unnoticed

In sharp contrast to his last arrival at Floyd Bennett airport, when he ended his record-breaking trip around the world, was the arrival of Howard Hughes and his famous airplane as it reached New York after a sub-stratosphere flight across the continent from Glendale, Calif. Only a handful of press photographers were on hand to greet the famous flier who made the non-stop transcontinental flight in 10 hours, 35 minutes, flying at an altitude of 30,000 feet. The airplane with Hughes and his crew are shown ABOVE, upon their arrival at Floyd Bennett field.

Hailstones Fall Like Crab Apples Break 3 Windows

Buck Deer Giving Farmer Trouble Has Gored One Cow

Guelph, Ont., Aug. 25.

A SEVEN-YEAR-OLD buck the leader of a herd of deer on the farm of Julian Lake, near Puslinch Lake, is causing so much trouble that Game and Fisheries Department Officials have been approached. The buck has gored one of Lake's cows, has been chasing calves, and causing other damage. Lake has cared for and fed the deer for some time. He has protected the herd, and watched it grow over a period of two or three years. He is afraid that the buck's misbehavior might result in the departure of the herd.

Allendale Minister At Warsaw Services

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Aug. 25.—The funeral of little sixteen-months-old Ernest Bellows, took place from the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Frank Lonsberry on Sunday afternoon. A goodly number of sympathizers attended. Adjutant Warrender of the Salvation Army conducted the services at the house and at St. Mark's cemetery, Warsaw, where burial took place.

Little Ernest had never been a very hardy child and on Thursday, Aug. 18, he became very ill and was taken to Nicholls Hospital, but all that could be done did not save the little life and he died on Saturday morning.

Besides the bereaved parents, there is one sister, Vera, about ten years of age.

Rev. Dr. Mark, of Allendale, near Barrie, conducted a united service for Presbyterian and United church people in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening.

Dr. Mark gave an inspiring and helpful sermon on Christ's power based on the latter part of the fourth chapter of St. Mark's gospel, stressing that Christ wants us to go all the way, not half, and that he is with us.

The union service next Sunday will be in the United church.

It was unfortunate tht the meal planning and food composition class came during Peterborough Exhibition week, lessening the number who could attend Nearly all were young girls. It was hoped mothers would be there as well. The girls made a splendid class, and were much interested in the theoretical part as well as in the practical demonstration.

Health depends so much on the proper balancing of foods as well as on their selection and preparation. Miss Zavitz is a capable teacher and made it all very interesting.

Mr. Charles Adderly of McLean Publishing Co. and Mrs. Adderly, Miss Helen Lloyd of the classified ad dept., Toronto Telegram, and Miss Kathleen Dunford, returned to Toronto on Sunday evening.

During their stay in Warsaw the Adderleys and Miss Lloyd made a trip to Long Lake and rowed up the lake. They were entranced with the majestic beauty of the rugged shores.

14 Are Killed In Plane Crash

TOKYO, Aug. 25—(AP). — The Tokyo district's worst aviation disasted took 14 lives Wednesday and injured about 150 persons.

A transport plane and a training plane collided over an iron foundry in Omori, an outlying ward of the capital. Exploding gasoline set the factory afire and 10 workmen were burned to death. The transport's crew of three and the pilot of the training plane were killed.

Wreckage of the transport fell into a factory district while the twisted training ship ripped through the roof of a geisha house. A number of girls in the house were injured when struck by fragments of the plane and roof.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

Make sure the water boils

— it must be boiling you know. You should use a warmed crockery teapot - a teaspoonful for each person and one for the pot - add fresh, boiling water and steep five minutes - to get all the flavour from TEA.

Gun Contract Defended By Mackenzie

Dispute Drew Figure Of $467,000 Profit; Urges Probe

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—(CP)—An attack on the Bren machine-gun contract awarded by the Canadian Government to the John Inglis Company of Toronto and a defence of that agreement by Defence Minister Mackenzie are before the Canadian public today.

The attack was made by Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew in an article in Maclean's magazine. Charging the Inglis Company is a "virtual monopoly engaged in the public service and supported by public funds," Col. Drew demanded there be "no secrets and no mystery" and adds: "The urgent need of the nation must not provide the opportunity for large profits to friends of any government."

A reply to the article was issued in Ottawa by the Defence Department under the authority of the minister. In Kelowna, B.C., Mr. Mackenzie later termed Col. Drew's statements "wild, irresponsible" and declared when such statements are made "there should be some investigation. Personally I should like to see the strictest inquiry into all such statements."

The statement issued here said the contract, awarded last March, was for $6,500,000 with a maximum profit permitted in the Canadian share of the contract of $267,000. The Inglis Company was to produce 7,000 machine-guns for Canada and 5,000 for Great Britain on a cost-plus of 10 per cent. basis.

This was a denial of Col. Drew's statement that the total cost of the guns was expected to be $8,000,000 and that the maximum profit permitted was $467,000.

Mr. Mackenzie's Ottawa statement recalled that in the House of Commons last February he suggested all defence department contracts be referred to the public accounts committee for examination. His statement said that "the article makes many statements which are not facts and by misapplication of facts may cause readers to draw false conclusions."

Hugh Plaxton, youthful Liberal member of parliament for Toronto Trinity who was mentioned in the

Drew Asks Probe In Bren Gun Case

TORONTO, Aug. 26 (CP).—Lieut. Col. George Drew, author of a magazine article criticizing goverment contracts for manufacture of Bren machine guns, today issued a statement asking appointment af "a judicial or other non-political committee before which I may have the opportunity of fully substantiating everything I have said."

Col. Drew's statement is in reply to one issued yesterday by the department of national defence under the authority of Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie, in which certain allegations in the article were denied.

He asserts that questions regarding the financial structure of the company manufacturing the guns, and other references, were ignored in the department statement.

10,000 Applications Made For Divorce Under New Laws

Vienna, Aug. 26.

EXTENSION of the new German marriage laws to Austria has caused a rush of applications for divorces by couples who were separated, but could not be divorced under the old Austrian law.

It was estimated today that more than 10,000 applications had been received by the Vienna courts since Aug. 1, when a new decree became effective, making consistent refusal of a husband or wife to have children, adultery or serious immoral conduct grounds for divorce.

Hit-Run Victim Left Dead Near Hamilton

DESIGN—Hit and run hi

HAMILTON, Aug. 26.—(CP). — Widespread search is being made by provincial and highway police for driver of a car believed to have struck Ernest Watson, 60, of Clappison's Corners, who was found dead in a ditch beside the Dundas Highway early this morning.

A widower, Mr. Watson lived alone on a farm near Clappison's Corners. A passing motorist saw the form of a man in the ditch just a short distance from the intersection of the Dundas and Guelph Highway and swung into Wilson's service station to get help. Accompanied by employees of the station, they returned and found the body of Mr. Watson.

It was apparent, from his injuries, that the impact of a west-bound vehicle had thrown him to the ditch. Dr. H. H. Mullin, chief coroner, is collaborating in the investigation.

Lewis Would Allow Ousted Men Back

DETROIT, Aug. 26 (A.P.).—The formula of John L. Lewis for restoring peace in the United Automobile Workers will be submitted soon to the union's executive board, President Homer Martin said today.

The board will meet in Detroit, probably next week, and the case will be argued by leaders of the Martin and anti-Martin factions and either by Lewis himself or someone he delegates to represent his Committee for Industrial Organization.

Lewis' formula, revealed in Washington yesterday during his conferences with each side, calls for reinstatement of the five international officers disciplined by the board until the U.S.W. convention holds its biennial election next August, with a truce in effect between rival factions in the meantime.

This program was acceptable to the supporters of the four expelled and one suspended officer but not to Martin, who said it would be submitted to the board without recommendation. In other matters pertaining to the factionalism the board has voted 12 to 6 with Martin.

The board, Martin said, should decide the question "intelligently and in line with the constitution of the union." Richard T. Frankensteen, expelled vice-president, commented that "If they turn this down, the war will be on—definitely."

Bomb Kills 20 Arabs, Wounds 74 In Crowded Jaffa Market, Mob Raids Banks, Troops Step In

JAFFA, Palestine, Aug 26—(AP)—A deafening bomb explosion in a crowded vegetables market today killed at least 20 Arabs and wounded 74 others, 10 of them dangerously, as dawn was breaking in this biblical city. The detonation could be heard within a radius of 10 miles.

Police raced to the scene and faced an ugly Arab crowd. It attacked Barclay's Bank and the Anglo-Palestine Bank, set fire to many shops and stoned, waylaid and shot Jewish pedestrians hurrying to the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv for refuge.

Ten Jews Attacked.

Ten Jews were taken to hospitals after attacks. An automobile belonging to the manager of Barclay's Bank was turned over and set ablaze.

The situation became so threatening police were forced to fire on the crowds. Finall ythey restored a semblance of order with the aid of troops.

A strong detachment of soldiers hurried to Jaffa from outlying points and armored cars took positions on the main streets. Machine-gun posts were set up on the border line between Jaffa and Tel Aviv.

The most pathetic aspect of the bombing similar to the market place explosion at Haifa last July 16 was that five young boys were killed and seven were gravely wounded.

Immediately after the explosion authorities imposed an indefinite curfew.

When this correspondent attempted to go to the scene from Jerusalem by automobile he was halted by authorities. "We do not want you to return to Jerusalem in a coffin" they said.

He reached Jaffa, however, and found the ancient city resembled a besieged town.

Troops Dynamite Home.

Troops dynamited several houses last night in Jenin as punishment for the slaying of British district commissioner W. S. Moffat by an Arab, who later was shot when he was said to have tried to escape from the Jenin military camp.

Nearly 300 persons have died in Arab-Jewish strife in the Holy Land since July 5 when the ambushing of a bus brought a wave of rioting and tension.

Given 10 Years

DETROIT, Aug. 26 (AP).—Arrested seven weeks ago on a charge of disturbing the peace, and found to be in possession of counterfeit Canadian and United States coins, Asa T. Bentley, 45, Detroit, pleaded guilty to counterfeiting charges in federal court yesterday. He began a 10-year-term in Leavenworth penitentiary today.

Death House Empty

TRENTON, N.Y., Aug. 26 (AP).—Electrocution of two Negroes for a 76-cent robbery-slaying left New Jersey's death house empty today for the first time in four years. Smalley Burrell and William A. Brown, both 24, were executed last night for fatally beating William J. Horner, 65-year-old Paulsboro church sexton.

Victoria Farmer Is Jailed After His Brother Is Shot Off House Roof

Police Grab Their Man At Breakfast After Vain Hunt Day Before; Victim Improves In Lindsay Hospital

(Examiner Correspondence)

LINDSAY, Ont., Aug. 26.—Mark Sears, the forty-year-old Bexley township farmer, who allegedly shot his brother Thomas Sears, at the latter's home on Thursday while he was repairing the roof of his house, was arrested this morning at his home. The man had spent part of the night in the woods, and it is believed he returned to attend to his six head of live stock.

Provincial Officer Adair, Corp. Woods, of the R.C.M.P. and Traffic Officer Kennedy searched for Sears last night until dusk and returned to Lindsay last night. At seven o'clock this morning Corp. Woods and Traffic Officer Kennedy went to Bexley township to resume the search, but first visited Sears home, where they found their man. He still had the sawed-off 32 calibre rifle with him. He gave himself up freely to the officers, but outside of the information that he had spent the night in the bush, no further statement was made.

Sears was brought to Lindsay and appeared before Magistrate Gee. He was remanded for a week on a charge of occasioning actual bodily harm.

The sawed-off rifle with which Sears did the shooting is of an ancient vintage and could be safely hid about the person.

Minded His Own Business

According to the authorities Sears is highly spoken of by his neighbors They claim that he was a quiet, inoffensive man, and attended strictly to his little farm. Stories are current in the district that he had some differences with his brother, Thomas about property but these could not be verified.

Alarmist reports were circulated last night regarding the condition of Thomas Sears. The bullet from the rifle lodged in his thigh and not in the abdomen, as was reported. It is expected that he will leave the hospieal in a few days.

Gun Has 10-Inch Barrel

Police said that Sears was eating breakfast with a neighbor named Benson when they entered the home. Police said they found a .32 calibre sawed off rifle in the house. The rifle, with a 10-inch barrel, was brought to Lindsay. Thomas Sears said yesterday he had been shot with a bullet from a sawed-off rifle.

The officers made a stop with Sears at Bexley before continuing to Lindsay. J. E. McKague, Bexley storekeeper, said Sears apparently went to his farm home last night to water his stock and slept in his bed most of the night. McKague said sears looked "very hagard, quite resigned."

Sears was remanded for a week. Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson said Sears merely was being held on a holding charge, which might be changed later.

Throws His Hatchet

Interviewed in hospital, where the bullet was extracted last night, Thomas Sears said he saw his brother emerge from his home nearby with a rifle. "I saw him aim it at me and without warning he fired," said Thomas. "I threw my hatchet at him as he pulled the trigger but missed. I don't remember anything after that except falling off the roof in a faint."

Mrs. Sears helped her husband into the house, and fearing that his brother might come back, barricaded the doors and windows. Kathleen Sears, a daughter, ran to a neighbor and after phoning for a doctor summoned help. In the meantime Mr. and Mrs. Sears stood guard until some of the neighbors arrived. Dr. Ingram, of Coboconk, examined the wound inflicted by the rifle shot and had the injured man removed to the Ross Hospital at Lindsay. While Mr. Sears is suffering considerable pain, the wound is not concidered serious.

Lived By Himself

Mark Sears lives alone on his farm and did not mix up very much with the people of the district. He is unmarried. Thomas has a wife and several children.

According to J. E. McKague, who was talking to the older brother last night, Mark is regarded as an eccentric individual by those who know him. McKague said he believed the shooting was the culmination of a quarrel over land left to Thomas by the father of the men.

"The man has no extra food supplies and no money," declared McKague. "Tom told me his brother was wearing his best clothes at the time of the shooting."

Foreigners Are Sticking To Hankow, To Save "Face" and Property

HANGKOW, Aug. 26 (AP).—Ships and men of three foreign navies, consuls of eight powers, foreign business men and missionaries are remaining in Hangkow even though Chinese armies may be forced to give up defence of this provisional capital of the republic.

Foreigners hope their presence not only will save their property from damage or seizure by retreating Chinese or conquering Japanese, but also will uphold the principle that foreigners have the right to live and work in China.

Many of Hangkow's foreign residents have heeded warnings of their own authorities and have left Hankow—after Shanghai and Teintsin the most important stronghold of foreign interests in China. Many in key positions remain.

None of the powers has enough military strength in Hankow to withstand direct, organized attacks on concessions or properties.

All are determined to stand up for their rights—France, which has the only remaining foreign concession here, by a show of military force—Great Britain and the United States by a show of moral force implied in their nationals' refusal to evacuate, backed by the presence of their gunboats.

In the Forefront

Missionaries will form the majority of the foreigners who will be here when the crisis breaks. Scattered throughout the adjoining cities of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang are their hospitals, churches and schools in which Chinese civilians are expected to seek refuge.

Britain gave up her concession at Hankow during the violent anti-foreign pressure exerted by Chiang Kai-Shek's nationalist movement in 1927. Britain has turned down "unofficial" suggestions that she take it back, but is prepared to protect her property rights and interests in the former concession. Offices of large United States business concerns are in this area. Compared to Britain the United States has only a small economic stake in Hankow.

Motorist Is Beaten By Four Men On Road Near Sutton

Sutton, Ont., Aug. 25.

FOUR MEN took George Matt from his car between Ravenshoe and Sutton and gave him a severe beating yesterday, he told police. No money was taken.

The four men were standing on the road with two cars when Matt, a driver for a Sutton Dairy, approached on his way to work. As he stopped, he said, the men forced him from the car, struck several blows and searched him. They fled, overlooking about $4.50.

16,160 Ton Iron Cargo

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.)—Largest net tonnage cargo ever recorded in the port of Hamilton was brought in by the Donnacona this week. The Canada Steamship Lines' 604-foot vessel had a cargo of 16,160 tons of iron in her holds. Previous record was set by the C. S. L. freighter Lemoyne, in 1935, with 15,626 tons of coal.

Impatient Movie Mob Stampedes Leaves 8 Dead

San Luis Potosi, Mexico, Aug. 26

EIGHT PERSONS, among them women and children, were killed and a number were injured last night in a stampede from a moving picture theatre gallery.

The crowd overfilled a stairway in its efforts to reach the street quickly, and those at the bottom were knocked down and suffocated or trampled to death.

Czechs Hold Out Concession In Old 1920 Law

PRAHA, Aug. 26 (A.P.). — Disclosures of a German diplomatic demarche in several European capitals on the Sudeten German issue and of new Praha Government concessions to its autonomy-demanding Germanic minority came almost simultaneously here to-day.

Information reaching the Czechoslovak Government indicated Germany had told other Powers she might have to act "to sponsor" the Sudeten German demands if a solution were too long delayed, but that such action would not be in the nature of an attack.

The extend of the government concessions was not revealed, but it was known they formed the subject of a conference between Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator in this dispute, and a committee of the Sudeten German Party.

(Havas News Agency said it was understood the concessions would take the form of application of a 1930 law which provided for creatin of territorial districts to enjoy considerable administrative autonomy. The law was never applied, Havas added, but if it were put into effect now it probably would be tantamount to granting a form of cantonal autonomy to the German and other national groups in Czechoslovakia.)

Raise New Hopes.

Described by a government spokesman as "material" and as a likely "new basis for negotiation," they were put forward by the political ministers of the Czechoslovak government last night and raised hopes of negotiators trying to overcome the deadlock.

However, the Praha government was informed that Nazi Germany—which has assumed the role of protector of the Germanic minority of 3,500,000 in Czechoslovakia—had approached other nations on this issue, including Great Britain and Russia but excluding France, Czechoslovakia's foremost ally.

Germany was said to have assured the powers approached that she wants the Sudeten problem settled peaceably. But the German diplomats, according to the Praha account, emphasized that if the solution were too long delayed Germany would have to sponsor the Sudeten demands by every possible means short of actual attack.

In approaching the Moscow foreign office Germany's representative was said to have cited as evidence of Germany's peaceful intentions how she observed the strictest neutrality during the recent conflict between Russian and Japan on the Siberian-Manchoukuo-Korean border.

HAMILTON, Ont.—Safe-crackers opened an east-end service station safe last night and stole about $100 cash.

Trio Kidnap Young Garageman

Drop Him At Kingston With 25 Cents Of $35 Garage Loot

GANANOQUE, Ont., Aug. 26 (C. P.). — Three young gunmen robbed Gardner's Garage of $35 early today, kidnapped the attendant, Cecil Kidd, and then gave him 25 cents "for a cup of coffee" when they dropped him near Kingston.

"You're a chump to work in a garage for 10 bucks a week. Why don't you take it easy like us?" they said as they held Kidd up. After robbing the till, they forced him into their car, bearing a 1937 Quebec licence, and headed towards Kingston.

Kidd described the trio as about 25 years old and down-at-heel. Outside Kingston they demanded what money he had on him, but he said he had little enough. As they shoved him out of the car, one said:

"Here you are, Buddy. Get yourself a cup of coffee."

Rebels Hammer At Gandesa

HENDAYE, France, Aug. 26. — (AP).— Spanish government dispatches reported to-day insurgent troops were attacking in force north and south of Gandesa in an effort to bite out the heart of the Ebro river front in Eastern Spain.

The bulletins acknowledged that government lines were giving sightly near Corbera, where the insurgents were directing their main attack north of Gandesa. Corbera lies on the highway between Gandesa and Mora De Ebro near the sector where government lines were established a month ago in a suddent offensive across the Ebro.

To the south the insurgents were operating along the narrow valley of the Canaleta river in the direction of Pinell De Bray, a village on the 26 mile road between Randesa and Cherta.

The insurgents presumably hoped to pass strong government fortifications in the Caballos Range north of Gandesa, with both flanks forcing the militiamen to retire from positions which the insurgents repeatedly have been unable to take in direct attack.

In Southwestern Spain on the Estremadura front the main offensive again was being conducted by government troops, whose counter-attacks to drive insurgents away from the Almaden Mercury Mines steadily were gaining momentum.

Struck By Lightning

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug 26 (C P.).— Karl Wenborn, 18, was struck by lightning during a brief but severe electrical storm on Tuesday, it was reported at the Kingston General Hospital to-day. His condition is not serious.

Wenborn, who was delivering parcels for a local grocer, was knocked unconscious. Two houses were struck but little damage was reported.

Wife, Son Play Rustler In Oregon Badlands Till Pa Goes Down For Seven Years

ONTARIO, Ore., Aug. 26—(AP)—Out on the edge of the Owyhee breaks— jagged rimrocks on the Owyhee River in this eastern Oregon badland—the old west's pastime of cattle rustling is not dead

Deep in the breaks, Andrew Robinson, Ontario, and Win Seaward, his ranch foreman, found a hidden rock corral containing 12 cattle. The brand, they found, had been changed recently from that of Tom Cowgill, Fordon Valley stockman, to that of Henry Lambert.

Sheriff C. W. Glenn, a deputy and Seaward "staked out" their horses and hid by night near the corral.

Later in the corral the rustlers turned five more head of cattle, freshly rebranded and with earmarks altered.

Henry Lambert, his wife and stepson, Lawrence R. Franklin pleaded guilty of larceny of cattle. Lambert was sentenced to seven years in prison. Mrs. Lambert and her son were given four-year paroles.

Ranchers in the desert 100 miles southwest of Ontario hoped wholesale disappearance of cattle during recent years had been settled.

Gates Of Canada's Greatest Show Open For C.N.E.'s 60th Year

TORONTO, Aug. 26.

THE GATES OF Canada's greatest show swung open today to the hundreds of thousands who will visit the Canadian National Exhibition for its 60th showing. In today's "Founders' Day" crowds will be hundreds of specially invited guests, descendants of those who took part in the tiny provincial fair of 1879.

They will find no muddy fields and wooden sheds now. For the annual fair has flowered into the largest on earth—with 350 acres of parkland along Toronto's western waterfront and scores of permanent buildings housing for two weeks every year the myraid products of Canada's provinces, of her sister nations of the British Empire and dozens of other countries.

Focus of the ceremonies today will be the grand opening by Lord Stanley. Last night, in a preview on the Exhibition Grounds, the British Secretary for the Dominions opened the new United Kingdom Pavilion and said of the Exhibition itself:

"No one who visits the Empire Exhibits will come away without an enlivened appreciation of the vastness of the British Empire, the diversity and importance of the innumerable enterprises and the commanding position which it holds in the world's commerce, industry, transport and communications."

A great flag will run to the top of the Exhibition flagpole this afternoon and a salvo of shells will burst overhead as Lord Stanley pronounces the fair open.

Judging of Agricultural exhibits, which will range from potted geraniums to holstein bulls, got under way promptly this morning in the colseum and will continue without interruption for two weeks.

Port Rowan Editor S. H. Hardy Dies

PORT ROWAN, Ont., Aug. 26—(CP)—Samuel Henry Hardy, 83, for 45 years editor and publisher of The Port Rowan weekly News, died in hospital here last night. Mr. Hardy was active leader of his paper until less than a year ago when ill health forced his retirement.

Born in Blanchard Township Perth County, he taught public school there for many years before attending Victoria College, then situated at Cobourg. Senator Arthur Meighen, former Prime Minister of Canada, was among his pupils.

Mr. Hardy started his newspaper career as Parliamentary reporter for an Ottawa daily during Sir. John A. Macdonald's regime as Prime Minister. He was active in municipal affairs here and served for 30 years on the School Board.

His wife predeceased him several years ago and his only son Arthur, died in action in the Great War.

Half Carload Of 'Hot' Goods Ties 79 Warehouses

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—(CP).—At least 79 warehouses, including all the wholesale grocery establishments in San Francisco, were closed today by a labor dispute.

Employers predicted suspension during the day of the wholesale liquor business, which would add about 20 more warehouses to the inoperative list and involve an estimated total of 2,000 workers.

Further complicating the labor relations picture in San Francisco was the threatened walkout of 7,000 clerks in 27 major department stores because of a collapse in negotiations for a new contract.

Employers yesterday closed 36 grocery warehouses ahead of the eventual arrival of a freight car, which for more than two weeks had been refused unloading by union warehousemen, who contend it was loaded by strikebreakers. Many warehouses in neighboring Oakland also are involved.

The freight car, half-filled with school supplies from a struck F. W. Woolworth warehouse, has been shunted from building to building, where warehousemen have refused to handle the cargo. Employers have promptly discharged the men and closed the plants. Employers contend warehousemen must handle all cargo, regardless of origin, and the employees reply they will not handle "hot cargo" and thus be forced into working against brother unionists on strike.

Spokesmen for grocery distributors said there was no immediate peril of a food shortage, since retail stores were well stocked.

Zoo Expert Is Chased To Jungle To Get Ants He Wrote Of But Couldn't Show

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (CP).—New Yorker's interest in the social habits of the parasol ant is sending Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of mammals and reptiles at the New York zoological park, into Trinidad jungles on an ant safari.

Several years ago Dr. Ditmars wrote a book which included an intimate description of the home habits of the parasol ant and since then informed visitors at the park have embarrassed him and attendants by saying, "What—no parasol ants here."

Dr. Ditmars received a cable yesterday from an operative in the British West Indies which read "have located parasol ant nest in jungle." He leaves tomorrow and expects to be back soon to show the ants walking with a leaf held in their jaws, umbrella fashion. Incidentally the leaf has nothing to do with the weather, according to the zoologist, but is the individual ant's contribution to the colony larder.

Romanelli Who Accompanied Caruso Now An Old Age Pensioner

Wheatley, Ont., Aug. 26.

ROCCO ROMANELLI, uncle of the Toronto musical family of Romanelli, who claims to have accompanied Enrico Caruso and Madame Melba, lives retired and forgotten on a small farm a mile south of this Essex County town.

"Romanelli the great," whose performances as a violinist earned him as much as $250 a week, lives on an Old Age Pension and produce from his garden.

When he was 18, half a century ago, he accompanied Caruso, whom he first met drinking beer in a Toronto saloon. His first appearance with Caruso was at the Grand Opera House in Toronto.

Singing in Pagliacci, Caruso "shook the whole Opera House with his voice," Romanelli recalls. "It just hummed when he hit the strong notes." Romanelli was with the singer six months, playing violin obbligato.

Following his experience with Caruso, Rocco made concert tours for many years. He conducted his own orchestra in show places of American Cities.

On a Detroit appearance, he met Sarah Shaw of Wheatley. Later they were married, and retained the Shaw farm, where they now live. The post-war period found little favor for violin solos, Rocco laments. He found it was an age of Jazz, so 10 years ago, he retired.

"I had a few hundred dollars then and we put it all in the house," he says. "I had $10,000 or $15,000 35 years ago. Now I can't raise enough to buy a basement."

He is from a family of musicians. His nephews, Luigi, Leone and Don, of Toronto, have one of the most popular dance orchestras in Canada.

Garage and Barn Are Burned In Tweed Area

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Aug. 26.—Fire completely destroyed a large barn, a shed and other out buildings at the premises of Leslie Herbertson at Moore's school, one mile east of the village of Queensboro on Tuesday of this week. The blaze had the origin from sparks emanating from the blower of a threshing machine operated by Gary Barry, Queensboro. Most of the season's crop was destroyed and the loss will be a severe one for Mr. Herbertson.

Mr. Herbertson, who was in the straw mow, attempted to extinguish the blaze and was unsuccessful, suffering a few minor burns on the back of his head. Willing neighbors gathered to fight the fire but with no adequate fire fighting equipment, they could make little headway. The loss will be party covered by insurance. Part of the crop still remains standing in the fields. The threshing equipment was saved from the flames.

Shirley Lynn, four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lynn of Crookston, was quite seriously hurt about the head when knocked down by a horse at her father's farm. The horses which had been turned loose in the lane, were running towards the barn when the tot attempted to cross in front of them and was knocked down. She suffered painful injuries about her head.

Aged Woman Hurt

Mrs. Henry Lajoie, 86, was injured when the automobile in which she was a passenger, was involved with a Tweed Creamery truck in an accident at the entrance to the bridge on the old Madoc road at Actinolite. The car, driven by Mrs. Annie St. Charles, Actinolite, collided almost head on with the truck which was piloted by Alex Nicholson. It is said that the drivers were blinded by the dust. Both the car and the truck were badly damaged but Mrs. Lajoie was the only passenger to suffer injuries, the other escaping with a shaking up.

Victro and Charles Hermer, who conducted a garage two miles north of Ardoch, suffered a serious loss when the building was completely destroyed during an electrical storm on Tuesday afternoon. Struck by lightning, the garage was quickly reduced to ashes. Over $1,000.00 worth of tools were stored in the place at the time and these were all burned. One car, stored in the garage was removed although everything else was a complete loss. The damage will be partly covered by insurance.

Elysium Trudeau, Stoco merchant, suffered injuries to his head, a fractured ankle and a general shaking up when he was caught in the machinery at his grist mill. It appears that Mr. Trudeau was oiling some of the machinery when his clothes were caught on the head of a bolt and he was whirled around, striking his head on the floor. He was picked up by members of the family and rushed to a physician, where medical aid was given.

Cavan Ladies Hold Annual Corn Roast

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Aug. 26 — On Tuesday evening, Mr and Mrs. Lloyd Sutton extended the hospitality of their home for a corn roast under the auspices of the Cavan Women's Institute.

Their wide verandah and lawn was an ideal spot for an outdoor social. A large pot suspended from poles, over a glowing fire was where the corn was cooked. The grounds were well lighted; tables for games were placed in sheltered nooks and they were well patronized; bingo, perhaps, being the favorite and affording much merriment. The menu consisted of an abundance of corn and tarts. Socially and financially the evening was a success. Approximately one hundred were present and $12.75 was added to the Institute treasury.

Gun Contracts

Drew article, said in Toronto, "I am in no way, either directly or indirectly interested in or connected with the Inglis Company which is located in the constituency which I represent."

Asks Plaxton's Position.

Col. Drew charged that three employees of Plaxton and Company, Toronto law firm, are directors of Investment Reserves Ltd., and that five directors of Anglo Engineering are employed in the Plaxton and Company office. He said both these companies held stock in the John Inglis Company, and asked what suite of offices occupied by Plaxton and Company."

Mr. Plaxton said he "resigned from Messrs Plaxton and Company on October 12, 1935, due notice of which Drew had as per articles of dissolution which were published in the Ontario Gazette of March 14, 1936, in accordance with the Partnership Act."

Mr. Mackenzie's statement referred to the use of the word "mysterious" by Col. Drew in relation to the contract, and pointed out the contract was tabled in the House of Commons last session and given to the press.

He stressed that the British and Canadian contracts are identical and were given in accordance with the British policy of establishing "shadow factories" as a means of developing reserve manufacturing resources against an emergency.

Over Million Saving.

The British Government had developed a type of contract appropriate to the purpose and the Inglis contract was exactly of that type. The British Government had turned down a Canadian suggestion that tenders be called, refusing to countenance any delay. Mr. Mackenzie declared the saving to the Canadian Government through the contract being a dual one was estimated at $1,300,000.

The safeguards incorporated in the contract were identical with the British Government's established practice, particularly those which defined the items of cost on which profits might be earned and those on which profits might not be paid.

Col. Drew had listed a large number of items of cost, paid by the Government, which enter into cost and on which the Government, he said, also paid 10 per cent profit. Mr. Mackenzie replied that "the implication of his statement 'nothing is forgotten' is definitely misleading."

The Minister of Defence also commented on a note preceding the article which said the "author's statements are based on departmental records as of Aug. 5." Mr. Mackenzie said Col. Drew had no legitimate access to any departmental records of any date.

Col. Drew's article said the contract itself "and what lies behind the formation of Canada's new armament industry, are matters of public concern because this company accepts the responsibility of becoming the only source of the essential arms for Canada's land forces. For good or evil the stage is now set for the private manufacture in Canada of primary implements of war."

Major Hahn's Position.

He review the background of the contract and suggested that while the Government may not have appointed Major James Hahn, promoter of the Inglis Company, to go to England in 1937 and 1938 to survey munitions production, the Government obligated itself up to a maximum of $20,000 to pay the cost of preliminary investigation, planning and engineering services carried out" by the company. He suggested Major Hahn must have had some undisclosed status.

Col. Drew declared the John Inglis Company to be a concern organized in November, 1936, with Plaxton & Company acting as solicitors. The new concern obtained the use of the name of the John Inglis Company whose property it acquired,

The magazine article went into the financial structure of the compay, saying Investment Reserves Ltd. on April 26 last held 83,698 of the 258,00 shares, Anglo Engineering Co. Ltd. 33,333, Major Hahn 107,964, and the Toronto brokerage firm of Cameron, Pointon & Merritt 25,000.

In conclusion Col. Drew asked 20 questions relating to the contract, the John Inglis Company and the other companies, declaring only Prime Minister Mackenzie King can answer them satisfactorily.

Call for 12,000 Guns

Entitled "Canada's Armament Mystery," Col. Drew's article recalls that on March 31 the Canadian government contracted with the John Inglis Co. for manufacture of 7,000 Bren machine guns. A similar contract was entered into with the company by the British government for 5,000 of these weapons.

The necessary manufacturing machinery, says the article, was to be supplied by the Canadian government, and total cost of the guns "expected to be about $8,000,000." The agreement was characterized by Defence Minister Mackenzie as "one of the finest contracts that was ever signed in the public interest of Canada," and the two contracts provided for payment on a cost plus 10 per cent basis, the article continues.

The Canadian government pays two-thirds, Col. Drew says, and the British government one third of machinery installation and operation costs, with ownership of the machinery remaining with the government.

Organized by Hahn

The article revives the post-war commercial activities of Major Hahn, and declares the present John Inglis Co. to be a concern organized in November, 1936, by Major Hahn, with Plaxton and Company, a Toronto law firm, acting as his solicitors. This concern obtained permission to use the name "of the defunct John Inglis Company" whose property it acquired.

At considerable length Col. Drew analyses statements made by Mr. Mackenzie in the House of Commons relating to the Bren gun contract and to the defence department's requirements in these weapons. He suggests that while the government may not have appointed Major Hahn to go to England in 1937 and 1938 to survey munitions production, the government obligated itself to a maximum of $20,000 to pay cost of "preliminary investigation, planning and enginering services carried out" by the company. He suggests Major Hahn "must have had some undisclosed status."

Points to Licence.

Colonel Drew charges Mr. Mackenzie was not correct when he told the House of Commons that the Defence Department had no control over the Bren gun specifications, since the minister granted a licence and furnished specifications to the John Inglis Co.

The over-all limitation of profit on the 12,000 guns is $467,000, says Col. Drew, but declares other clauses written into the contract open the way "to add a very substantial figure to the profits." He declares the Government "pays the salaries of all executive officers of the John Inglis Co., although their activities are not confined to the maufacture of machine guns." The Government also pay travelling expenses—both payable from the date of the contract "whether any machine guns is delivered or not."

Col. Drew lists a large number of items of cost, paid by the Government, which enter into cost, and on which the Government, he says, also pays 10 per cent profit.

Details of production agreed upon are examined by Col. Drew, and he declares the public have a "right to know what salaries Major Hahn and his associates are receiving."

The Company Set-Up.

Col. Drew examines the financial structure of the John Inglis Co., whose capital, he says, is 250,000 shares of $6 par value. The property of the old company, he says, was brought from Stanley Nurse, officer of the brokerage firm of Cameron, Pointon and Merritt, Toronto, for $100,058 cash, and 191,662 shares of stock, the new company assuming an existing first mortgage of $150,000. He then discusses in detail the manner in which he says the company was set up.

Major Hahn's holdings are subjected to Col. Drew's scrutiny and his relation to the other companies commented upon.

"This private enterprise is a virtual monopoly engaged in the public service and supported by public funds," he says. He demands there be "no secrets and no mystery."

"The urgent need of the nation must not provide the opportunity for large profits to friends of any government," says Col. Drew. "Canada is waiting for an answer."

To Compete In Non-Stop Typing Marathon

'Round and 'round the clock in hourly shifts day and night for two weeks, these twelve typists expect to write a total of 1,500,000 words in the world's first non-stop typing marathon beginning at noon August 26 and ending at midnight Sept. 10, at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. Competing in groups against each other and successively alternating at the keyboard of the same machine, the six men and six women hope to transcribe 420,657 words three or four times on 7,500 sheets of copy paper. Clockwise from nearest the camera they are Alexander Orr, Frieda Laidlaw, Arnold Wright, Margaret Faulkner, Charles White, captain of the men's team; Irma Wright, captain of the women; Frank Livingstone, Margaret Ward, Arthur Ballard, Wilma Alexander, George Kirtley and Elda McColl.

No 'Love Nuts' For the States, 'Heaven' Loses An 'Angel'

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 — (AP) — "Love nut" may be a swell name in Father Divine's celestial domain, but it's no good in the United States, Federal Judge Matthew T. Abruzzo of Brooklyn ruled yesterday.

And because Jeanette Bourne, 40-year-old British West Indian, balked at signing her real name to her final naturalization papers, the court denied her citizenship.

"My own name is no good in 'heaven,'" she said. "If I don't sign 'Love Nut' I won't sign anything."

Then she majestically swept from the courtroom, declaring: "God will fix this."

She apparently referred to Father Divine, Negro cult leader whom his followers call "god."

"Father Divine has no legal standing under our constitution," Judge Abruzzo said.

New Calgary Well Hits 4,800 Rate

CALGARY, Aug. 26.—(CP)—R. A. Brown, president of Brown Oils Limited, announced yesterday that Vulcan-Brown Well No. 1 was producing at the rate of 4,800 barrels a day with tubing not connected for more than 12 hours Wednesday.

Production was increased by the acidization treatment, Mr. Brown said, adding previously the well had the second largest potential production in the field—3,472 barrels a day. The frontier well, largest in the field, has a potention of 5,078 barrels a day.

In accordance with new regulations of the petroleum and natural gas conservation board, a two-inch choke was applied at Vulcan-Brown No. 1. Following a test, the production rate upon which proration will be applied will be determined.

after the explosion. Police prepared to have more acts of violenc because of anger among Arabs. Troops patrolled the streets and a rigid curfew was expected. All banks were shut.

Meanwhile, at Bethlehem British troops and terrorists were reported in a brisk engagement, with British machine guns chattering incessantly.

The Jenin area was isiated from the rest of the country as troops removed residents and demolished buildings owned or occupied by suspected terrorists or terrorist sympathizers.

Sir Harold MacMichael, high commissioner for Palestine, decreed regid press restrictions. Brief reports of terroristic acts may be published, but no details may be supplied.

Hit By Tweed Truck Tot 3, Is Killed

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 26—(CP)—Jean Francis Edgar, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edgar, who reside about 1½ miles north of Selby, was killed yesterday when struck by a truck driven by Aloysius Trudeau of Tweed.

She was playing with the children of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred McCracken, whose home is nearly opposite the Edgar home and from information received the children were on the drivewdy.

According to Mr. Trudeau, the Edgar girl ran out against the side of the truck. Trudeau said that when he saw the children he blew the horn.

The truck, proceeding in a northerly direction, went into the east ditch.

Rev. Ashmore Leaves For Saskatchewan

The Rev. Horace Ashmore, who has been visiting his home in Peterborough for the last two months, is leaving at the beginning of the week for his mission at Paddockwood, Sask. He will preach at All Saints' church on Sunday evening when his many friends will have an opportunity to say farewell and to wish him Godapeed and prosperity.

A legacy of $125 to each lay choirman and $25 to each choirboy "who shall be present at both choral services at St. Andrew's Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on the Sunday after my funeral" was left by Harold Oswald of Newcastle, England.

Fall In Otonabee Nearly Fatal

Leo McCormick, 223 Woodbine Avenue, had a narrow escape from death near midnight last night when he toppled from the bank of the Otonabee River at Nassau.

McCormick, in company with several other Peterborough youths, was at a corn roast and was walking along the shore when he lost his balance. No one else was in the vicinity and he struggled in the water for five or ten minutes before others heard his calls for help. Steve Connors, Bob O'Connor, Joe Torpey, and Bob Garvey, all of this city, finally heard him and rushed to his rescue. They plunged into the water, brought him safely to shore. Completely exhausted and suffering from exposure, he was driven to his home, where his condition is reported to be good to-day.

George Sharpe Escapes Police

PEMBROKE, Ont., Aug. 26. — (CP).—George Sharpe, whose home is believed to be in Peterborough, Ont., escaped from police here yesterday when he was being taken from the police statio nto the county jail after being remanded for sentence on a theft conviction.

A cordon was thrown around the district and Sharpe was found in a shed two hours later and lodged in the jail.

CROYDON CARRIES ON

In spite of a strenuous "stop spending campaign, voters of Croydon, England, decided the city should carry out six public projects costing $4,500,000.

Tonsil-ache Rum Cure As Theft Alibi Fails To Avert 3-Month Penalty

A TONSIL OPERATION is responsible in a way for the return of William O'Connell, alias James Flynn to the reformatory.

Flynn was released from Burwash on August 10th and became ill near Peterborough while travelling to his home by train. He obtained medical care in this city and had his tonsils removed.

Charged with theft of 5 pairs of socks from the Canadian Departmental Store before Magistrate O. A. Langley K. C. today, Flynn claimed the pain from his tonsils caused him to drink heavily and while intoxicated he lifted the socks.

He pleaded guilty on a previous appearance and was adjourned to permit police to check his record. Unfortunately his record revealed a long list of previous convictions and His Worship promptly sentenced him to three months determinate and one month indeterminate in Ontario Reformatory. Flynn's request to have the sentence dated back to the time of his arrest failed.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

MONTREAL, Aug. 26. — Bacons and lambs were painted out of the picture by the strong showing calves made on Montreal livestock markets during the week ending August 25. Cattle showed plenty of color in the first two sessions of the week, but traders' persistent demand for veals caused the former to assume a duller tone at the close. Veal's outstanding performance saw prices swell at $8.25, a full half-dollar over Monday's opening. Sheep and lambs showed no recovery from light demand and rock-bottom prices, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, but a thin stream of activity prevented quotes from dipping. Bacons went from bad to worse, slipping in small bursts down to $9.25, while sows profitted by a 50-cent rally.

Receipts: Cattle, 1,736; calves, 2,217; hogs, 3,479; sheep and lambs, 3,063.

Cattle. — Good steers, $6.50 to $7.50; medium, $5.25 to $6.25; common, $4 to $5; good heifers, $5 to $5.25; medium, $4.25 to $4.75; common, $3.85 to $4. Good cows, $4.50 to $4.75; medium, $3.50 to $4.25; common, $3 to $3.25; canners and cutters, $2 to $3; butcher bulls, $3.75 to $4; common, $3 to $3.50.

Calves.—Good veals, $7.50 to $8.25; medium, $7 to $7.50; common, $5 to $5.50. Grassers, $3.50 to $4.50.

Hogs.—Bacons fed and watered, $9.25 to $9.50; selects drew $1 per hog premium, butchers and heavies were cut 50 cents per cwt, extra heavies and lights, $1. Cows, $7 to $8.50; nogs sold on rail grade, $12.65 to $13 dressed weight.

Sheep and lambs.—Good lambs, $8; bucks, $6; sheep, $3 to $3.75.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures' dealings were quiet to-day with moderate southern and overseas demand which were not offset by light hedging sales. Final quotations 1¼ to ⅝ cent lower, October 64⅝, November 64¼, December 63⅞ to 64, and May 67⅝.

Futures opened ⅝ cent lower but quickly moved to show small gains. Confidence appeared to have been restored after sharp breaks earlier in the week, and to-day only the cash wheat prices, Nos. 1 and 2 Northern showed easiness.

Canadian export sales, estimated at 300,000 bushels, firmness of outside markets, and probability of a co-operative agreement between Canada and the United States regarding marketing of this year's crop were steadying influences.

Nail Brings Death

NORTH BAY, Ont., Aug. 26—(CP)—A rusty nail which pierced Willie Pitts' foot sometimes last week was held responsible for the lockjaw death of the 12-year-old lad in hospital here today. The boy was one of twin brothers.

He stepped on the nail last week but left Sunday for a boys camp on Lake Nipissing. Wednesday he became ill and was rushed to hospital here.

Store Wheat In Lakes

GENEVA, Aug. 25.— (AP).— A member of the Swiss Federal Parliament has proposed to the National Defence Committee a plan to store reserves of wheat and gasoline at the bottom of Swiss lakes to remove them from the danger of destruction of enemy attacks.

He urged the committee to build huge tanks which would be filled with the needed supplies, then sunk in the lakes.

The plan was objected to by another speaker who suggested it would be possible to establish stores not too far from frontiers where they would be most needed.

Highway Deaths In Ontario Decline 42 p.c.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Indications that Ontario's motor vehicle accident record this year will show a marked improvement over 1937, blackest year in the Province's motor annals, were seen in a report issued yesterday by A. H. Rowan, statistician of the Department of Highways.

The report showed a 42 per cent. decrease in highway fatalities during the first seven months of this year.

Accidents this year have taken 225 lives up to July 31, according to the report, as compared with 391 deaths for the same period a year ago.

Mr. Rowan expressed satisfaction at the improvement indicated in his records.

"The decrease is particularly pleasing in view of the fact that there are at least 4,000 more licensed drivers in Ontario this year than last," he said. "We have issued a total of 684,872 licenses this year; an increase of 6.8 per cent. over 1937."

Wreckage Of Plane On Which Hawks Died

Less than a year after he had given up the speed flying which made him famous, Commander Frank Hawks dies in a flaming plane crash near East Aurora, N.Y. J. Hazard Campbell, a stock broker, also perished in the crash. Hawks had taken Campbell, of East Aurora, up in the plane for a ride after landing on the E. H. Rogers estate. Something went wrong with the ship and it crashed in flames after striking telephone wires. Both men died in a hospital shortly after.

Battle Of Amiens Prelude To Most Violent Fighting

(Written for the Canadian Press by Captain W. W. Murray, M.C.

The battle of Amiens, which opened on Aug. 8, 1918, was the prelude to a period of the most concentrated and the most violent conflict in the world's history. Not even the titanic battles of the spring and early summer, which, up to that time had registered a high-water mark, equalled the actions of the last Hundred Days of the war. Foch, generalissimo of the Allied armies, had mapped his objectives, had completed his plans; and these contemplated delivery of a series of hammer-strokes at various parts of that long battle-line which stretched from the Swiss Alps to the North Sea. He was determined to give the enemy no rest. The Germans were to be attacked again and again without forewarning of where the next blow would fall.

Eminently successful at Amiens, sustaining casualties that were light in comparison with the results they had achieved, the Canadian Corps continued to operate as the spearhead of Foch's onslaughts. In the midst of their Amiens battles, their losses were swiftly made good by reinforcements, well-trained and efficient, hurried over from England.

Even while the 1st and 4th Divisions were rounding off the fighting northwest of Roye, the 2nd and 3rd Divisions were being whisked northward, back to their old stamping ground east of Arras. Here was to begin an offensive which had for its larger purpose the complete destruction of enemy resistance and the carrying of the British line to the strategic area north and north-east of Maubeuge. Of these larger issues the Canadians had no knowledge. Their immediate task was to recapture that ground which had been lost by the Third Army in the German spring offensive, on March 28.

Opened On August 26

At 3 o'clock in the morning of Aug. 26 the new battle opened. South of the River Scarpe were the 2nd and 3rd Divisions; north of that sluggish stream was the 51st (Highland) Division, which had so often co-operated with the Canadians from the very beginning. On the Canadian front were powerfully defended heights—Orange Hill, Monchy-lePreux,, Wancourt Tower Ridge. Beyond were strong trench lines—the Vis-en-Artois and the Fresnes-Rouvroy systems, which were "outposts" to the formidable Drocourt-Queant Switch of the famous and, the enemy believed, impregnable Hindenburg line.

Few tanks were available for the attack, the artillery barrage was nothing like that which had featured the opening of the Amiens battle, but lavish use was made, in the opening stages, of the Canadian Motor Machine Gun Brigade for barrage purposes.

With swiftness and precision the Canadians drove home their attack. Orange Hill, immediately south of the Arras-Cambrai road, was overwhelmed in the first onrush by the 3rd Division. This was on the centre of the advance. On the right the 2nd Division swept toward Wancourt Tower Ridge, on the left the flank of the 3rd Division invested Monchy. This village, on a lofty eminence, fell in an encircling movement to the 8th Mounted Rifle Brigade. The 4th and 6th Brigades captured the Wancourt Ridge. These heights in their hands, the Canadians moved forward. Guemappe was taken. When night fell the two Divisions were dug into enemy position, four miles from their jumping-off line. Before them lay broken, undulating country, tangled with old wire and new, cut up with trenches and overgrown ditches. But on the Guemappe-Monchy line the Canadians had obtained an excellent vantage point from which to launch an attack that, on the morrow, was to be as successful as that of Aug. 26.

Found Dead In Prison Cells

Frank Comodeca, LEFT, James McQuade, CENTRE, and Henry Osborn are three of the four convicts who were found dead in adjoining isolation cells at the Phildelphia County prison, Holmesburg, Pa. The men had literally been boiled alive. Coroner said death was due to scalding. The affair followed a four-day hunger strike.

Sarnia Imperial Have 8,098 Pounds Of Gridiron Talent

Sarnia, Aug. 26.

SARNIA'S SENIOR football team, weighed today for the first time, tipped the scales for an aggregate weight of 8,098 pounds for the forty-six players. The weights run all the way from Orm Beach's 249 pounds to Piggy Hodgins, Sarnia Collegiate end, who weighs 142. Mike Clawson's stripped weight is 225, Bummer Stirling, 222; Fat Parsons, 221; Ellsworth Pierce, 209; Hi Living, 206, and Jack Robb, 205; Red France, at 198, is the only other player within ten pounds of the 200 mark.

Quakers Win 8-5 From The Leafs

In a close Southend Softball League semi-final tilt at the Brinton Field last night, Quakers evened up the series by taking an 8-5 win over Maple Leafs. Butcher allowed 14 hits and fanned five as he walked three while Shine, for Quakers gave 12 hits and one walk as he fanned seven. Dixon and Stanley of Quakers and Heffernan of the Leafs had three hits each. Good defensive ball was shown, with J. Corbett, Stanley, Connelly and Caccavelli especially prominent. The Leafs took a lead in the fifth on Heffernans double with three aboard, and an error, to score four. Quakers got it back in the seventh on an error, double by Caccavelli, and triples by Shine and Stanley. They won in the 8th when Shine's double figured in the difference. The teams:

Quakers.—Cournyea, 3b; Coughlin, lf; Starr, c; Dixon, cf; Shine, p; McCullough, 1b; Caccavelli, ss; Stanley, 2b; Delpellaro, rf; Townsend, rf.

Leafs.—C. Corbett, 3b; Connelly, 2b; J. Corbett, ss; Heffernan, rf; Lazure, 1b; Ashmore, c; Butcher, p; Holden, cf; Hatton, lf.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Quakers 000 100 421	8	14	3
Leafs 000 140 000	5	12	4

Umpires—Smith and Pilling.

To-night.—Keene and Little Harlem play in the third game of their semi-final series at 6.30 in the Brinton Field.

Cricket Notes

On Saturday the Peterborough C. C. play Eglington C. C. in Toronto and players are asked to meet at the Paragon at 12 o'clock.

Whitakers also go to Toronto to play the Kentish C. C.

The mammoth scoring in the recent England-Australia match, in which England made 903 for 6 wickets and the young Yorkshireman Leonard Hutton made an individual score of 364 has evoked many inquiries. As to totals up to this match the highest had been England's 849 vs. W. Indies. The highest individual socre Hammond 336 not out vs. New Zealand.

Taking the England vs. Australia match only the previous high was Australia's 729 for 6 at Lords in 1930, and the highest individual score 334 vs. England in the same match. The highest English individual score had been R. E. Foster's 287 in 1903.

The highest innings scored in first class cricket is 1107 by Victoria vs. New South Wales in 1926-27.

The highest individual score is Bradman's 452 not out made in Australia 1929-30 and the highest individual English score is A. C. Maclaren's 424 for Lancashire vs Somerset at Taunton in 1895.

The English high innings had been Yorkshire's 887 vs. Warwichshire at Birmingham, 1896.

SELWYN

Mrs. Gordon Fitgerald and Mrs. Howard Sanderson spent Thursday of last week in Peterborough visiting with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dobson, and also attending the "Ex."

Misses Aileen Young of Young's Point also Miss Nellie Greenley of Codrington visited with friends in the vicinity on Friday last.

A number of friends and relatives of the late Fern Lambert of Bobcaygeon attended the funeral of the deceased on Sunday. The sudden death of Miss Lambert, who was well-known in the vicinity because of her frequent visits to the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Dean, came as a great shock to all who knew her and the sympathy of the community goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Dean in their sad bereavement.

Mr. Roy Crapp of Hamilton piloted his plane on Saturday to Peterborough where he made a landing in Millburn's field. While here he visited with many friends and relatives.

There was no service held in Selwyn United Church on Sunday last owing to the absence of the minister, Rev. Wilkinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Bolton of Douro visited with relatives here on Friday evening.

Mr. "Ted" Pavey of Peterborough has been employed for the past two weeks by Mr. Reg. Bell, where he has been erecting a garage for the latter. Mr. Pavey will also build a hen house in the very near future for Mr. Bell.

Threshings have been in full swing for the past two weeks among the farmers of the vicinity. Reg. Bell with his tractor and threshing-mill assited by Irving Tully have been kept real busy.

Taxing The Tenant

Finance Commission George Wilson of Toronto proposes that a graduated poll tax on tenants and boarders would make an acceptable source of revenue and it would come from those who are not at present making any contribution to the cost of city government or social services. Mr. Wilson says the amount of taxation which is placed upon real estate has become oppressive and for that reason he is seeking for other sources of revenue.

We are not so certain that Mr. Wilson is right when he says a tenant is not making any contribution to the cost of civic government. The tenant is an individual who rents a house which the owner is not personally using. There is an agreement made between the owner of the place and his tenant regarding the amount of money which shall be paid per month.

The owner of the property cannot take the rent and put it in his pocket, because out of that rent he has to pay his taxes and in many cases the carrying charges on a mortgage. He depends on the money which he receives from his tenant to make such payments and if it were not for the tenant the property might possibly come into possession of the city for non-payment of taxes. So the tenant, although he has nothing to do with the assessment department and never comes into contact with the collector of taxation, is actually the individual who is handing the money to the owner out of which the taxes are being paid. If it were not for the money which is paid in rentals then the collection department of any municipality might be hard put to secure its needed revenue.

Otherwise the tenant is a taxpayer on exactly the same basis as his landlord. He is subject to all the various forms of sales tax on all his purchases, all forms of provincial or municipal or federal taxation, and in all he will work 54 days in the year on an average to pay taxation just the same as the owner of the house in which the tennant may be living.

It does seem to us that instead of looking for newer forms of taxation experts should bend their united and individual mentalities toward the goal of easing taxation by spending less money. Putting on a new tax under whatever guise it may be sponsored is merely asking an individual who is now paying all forms of taxation to pay some more, and that is a certain method of approaching the period where the law of diminishing returns will become operative.

They Killed Them

If there is only a modicum of truth in the reports coming from Philadelphia telling of the methods used to punish prisoners who participated in a hunger strike in an institution there, it is still sufficient to have established a new high mark in horror.

Four prisoners died as a result of the treatment they received at the hands of the guards, two of whom have since been arrested charged with murder. The method was to place prisoners in a cell which could be tightly closed, and then turn on the steam in the radiators. The temperature rose and kept on rising until one by one the prisoners collapsed and died.

It is said they could be heard screaming for their lives to be spared; so horrible was the air inside the closed room that the men locked in there knew well enough what the end would be, and it is likely the guards were also in possession of the same knowledge.

There has been a plethora of odd schemes used in taming prisoners who become unruly, but for downright damnable methods we have not heard or read of anything the equal of the plan adopted and put into execution in Philadelphia.

Our Farmers As Peasants?

Dr. J. B. Reynolds, President of the Toronto Milk Producers' Association, made a statement in a recent address to the effect that Ontario farmers were facing the danger of being reduced to the status of peasants by reason of the disparity between farm and city prices. That statement has been variously challenged. The editor of the Farmers Magazine is certain Dr. Reynolds put too much black in the picture; claims farmers are still buying and they do not weave their own clothes nor do they mold their own candles. R. J. Scott, president of the U.F.O. Co-operative, believed that more could be done by legislation to regulate production and prices so the condition of the farmer could be made better.

We are moved to doubt whether Canadian farmers will revert to the standard of the peasant class as it is known in Europe. The peasant class has been there for centuries; it has seldom if ever known a class of living such as we enjoy in this country. The peasant has little to offer for sale; in many cases he is paid a very small amount for his labor. No; we hesitate to believe our farming class is headed for peasantry.

Apart from that is is a fact that people in cities fail to realize often enough that the standard at which they are living is indirectly determined by what is taking place out in the country. We do not often recognize the farm influence because it is something which we cannot see; it works in a round-about way and we may never pause to think it has anything to do with us—but it has.

One has not to think long finding the reason. We have so many farmers in this country that what is happening to them has a direct bearing on what is going to happen to the rest of us. To a greater extent than we may realize a good deal of our business depends on how much the farming population can purchase from the city population. Cities are populated by people who are not primary producers. They offer services and manufactured goods for sale, and if our farmers are not in a position to purchase freely then we have forfeited many of the customers on whom we have been depending. If their purchasing power has been reduced by fifty per cent then we are going to feel it. If Dr. Reynolds were correct in his prediction that our farmers were headed toward peasantry then it would mean that our urban population would come to a lower level. We do not believe our farmers will become peasants. They are too intelligent; they have a knowledge of farming and marketing and they also have a genius for ultimately finding a solution for their own problems, and they possess produce which the urban centres must purchase from them in order to live.

Some Trade Figures

Trade between United States and Britain is growing one-sided. For the first six months of the current year United States sold to Britain goods to the extent of £50,889,834 in excess of the amount which United States purchased from Britain.

Britain increased her purchases from United States by 34 per cent over the same period last year, and while that was taking place British sales in United States were decreasing to the extent of 47 per cent.

Britain bought about $25,000,000 worth of wheat from United States during the first six months of 1938, whereas during the same period in 1937 her purchases of wheat from United States amounted to little more than nothing at all.

Canada can hardly fail to be interested in the trend of this trade between United States and Britain. This country has no desire and no right to prevent the fullest interchange of goods between those nations, but at the same time we cannot but remember that our own country has a tremendous amount of wheat to sell and the British market is where we look to dispose of a great deal of it.

The Urgency Of War Fear

France took a determined stand on the 40-hour week some time ago. It may have been, probably was, a political issue, as on that platform it was believed enough support could be secured from the workers to cause them to put Leon Blum in power.

The present premier, Edouard Daladier, has now come out plainly and with no hesitation and he says the forty-hour week must be scrapped. A fair translation of his address shows he used a word equivalent to "junked."

His argument is that production is falling away down, and while the national income of the country in 1931 was at a height of 49 billion gold francs, the figure had slumped in 1937 to 22 billion. The premier argues that this has cut well into the security behind national currency, security.

There is another urgent reason and it finds its mainspring in the war fever of Europe. The Germans are working more than forty hours a week; just how many more no one appears to know because such information is not made public property in Germany. In the hastening of war plans and the productions of munitions France is falling behind the pace which has been set and maintained by Germany. That is probably the real reason why the eight-hour day in France is threatened.

There is one way in which Germany has an advantage. In that land if the order were to be given that people must all work ten hours per day it would be done; if there were any protest it would not be audible nor would it take the form of a strike. It may be different in France because the French worker is an explosive sort of man; he is apt to claim his rights are being taken from him and he will reserve to himself the right to protest in any way he sees fit. At the moment though it looks as though the 40-hour week in France was going to be broken on the wheel of war urgency.

Oshawa Is Objecting

Business men of Oshawa are not pleased with the route of the new four-lane highway now being planned and in ---some places constructed as the successor to No. 2 Highway. The new road is not going to follow the old one which at present passes through Oshawa's business district. The plans call for the highway to be nearer the lakefront and that is the reasons for the objection of Oshawa's business men. They fear that with the new highway some distance away from the stores the traffic will just keep on going through without stopping.

As things are at the present there must be a tremendous amount of traffic going through Oshawa which is no use whatever from a business point. It is merely cluttering up the narrow streets down-town and making it more difficult for those who wish to conduct business to get the opportunity to do so.

In a recent issue this same matter was dealt with by the Springfield, Ill., Journal. We quote:

"We have remarked in recent years how cities which once fought to have highways pass through their business districts now are asking for belt lines. This is particularly so with trading centres. The unnecessary congestion from through traffic discourages shoppers who live in suburban and rural areas from going into the heart of the shopping district to do their buying.

"The notion has been that the man at the crossroads will get most of the trade, but citizens of any town can recall many at the crossroads who have gone out of business.

"In the next few years good money will be paid for a location on the most accessible instead of the 'busiest' corner. The store or firm management will stop being fooled by crowded streets and will instead demand for its customers ease in coming, going and parking."

The super-highways which are now being constructed will carry traffic—much of it which is not at all interested in Oshawa. The drivers of the great majority of the cars will want to get on as readily as possible. Those who want to stop there will have the opportunity to do so just as they have at present. The desire to have a great deal of traffic passing through a city's business section is something has been more of a delusion than a reality. The density of traffic does not indicate a similar condition in business.

NOTE AND COMMENT

This business of drawing for prizes does produce odd results. For instance there was a lady at Campbellford who won an electric razor.

One writer claims that another great war would destroy all that is good in the world. One compensating idea is that a good deal of that which is blatantly bad would also have to perish.

So many grasshoppers landed on the walls of the parliament buildings in Regina that they had to be washed off with the hose and then scooped up with shovels. Of course the House was not in session at the time.

French financial interests have made a loan to China, and Japan disapproves and warns it may have to take certain steps. Meanwhile the feeling grows that Japan has taken too many steps already.

Leonard Hutton, English cricketer, stayed at bat for a total of 13 hours to make an all-time record of 364 runs. And that of course makes it easier to understand why they knock off for tea hour at cricket matches.

Our Campbellford correspondent reports that Paul Gorman, a farmer of that district took 475 bushels of wheat from nine acres, and that is almost 53 bushels per acre. As records go we will have to allow that to stand until we hear of a better one.

A woman writes a letter to the Canadian Observer in Sarnia on "Sarnia's Problem," and fills over two columns of space. So without knowing anything more about it we come to the conclusion that Sarnia must have a huge problem of one sort or another.

There was a time when Turkey was referred to as "the sick man of Europe." Now Turkey spends 60 per cent of her revenue on armament and sits in conference with other nations as something like a world power. The world keeps on saying it deplores the increase of armament, and at the same time it keeps on calling to the front seats the nations which spend most of their revenue for armament.

CHANGED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I thought I'd visit my home-town, and see if it were up or down, I'd spend a week or two; I thought of all the folk I'd meet, how they would stop me on the street, no end of things to do.

¶ I'd drop in at the corner store, like what I used to do before, then find myself a chair; that's where we used to go and talk, a meeting place for all the block, we'd gossip too in there.

¶ And if the livery barn was there, I'd find myself another chair, and hear the people's views; I'd been away for forty years, I knew 'twould tickle much my ears, to pick up all the news.

¶ When I got off the evening train, the station didn't look the same, no station bus was there; the old hotel where I would go, was burned down twenty years ago, they had a new affair.

¶ The folk who kept the corner store, they'd never heard of me before, nor had I heard of them; and then I asked for So-and-So, the answer was they didn't know, just where they'd gone or when.

¶ I thought of all the things I'd do, and then the feeling came and grew, it sort of damped the air; the town I knew so well before, it didn't seem like home no more—I was the stranger there.

Life Story Told Lost His Riches

(Letter in Toronto Telegram)

SIR: LAST MAY I applied for relief in the city, where I had lived for nearly forty years. I was refused, as I am a widower, having lost my wife and five children (two sons in the war).

I paid taxes and income tax to the amount of $18,600. I was in my last position 15 years. I was asked to resign (reduction of staff) six years ago, and on account of my age I cannot get another one. I lost my life savings in 1929—over $100,000.

Since June I have been going round from place to place trying to find some kind of work, but cannot do so. I was offered work by a man at Prescott; he wanted an engineer, carpenter, painter, to drive truck or car and work in garden. I could do all the work he wanted done, but he could not pay any wages, give only room and board. I offered to do the work for $10 per month, and he refused, and I would not accept his offer. I am still looking for a job. I received $3,500 insurance for my two sons killed in the war. My wife gave that money to the Red Cross in 1917. I went to the Red Cross last June for a pair of shoes and was refused. I applied for a pension for my sons being killed and was refused, as they did not support me while they were overseas.

I am in good health, willing to work if I can get it. I had a college education, can speak six languages. I think it a crime that a man over 65 cannot get relief. —P. E. W.

SHIRT-TAILS GOING?

(Detroit Free Press)

THE END OF THE shirt-tail may be in sight. A patent has been issued in Washington to the inventor of "a combination coat shirt—that leaves off the tail—a sort of abbreviated shirt and collar that button into the coat."

And now it remains for conservative man to abandon the ways of his ancestors and adopt this ingenious piece of haberdashery.

A decade or so ago shirt-tails were attacked all along the line.

A shirt was patented that buttoned to the trouser tops and left nothing to be tucked in.

An elongated garter was invented that fastened high on the shirt, extended down to the socks, and rendered the shirt-tail as useless as a vermiform appendix.

A third remedy for shirt-tails was a shirt that turned into underwear when it disappeared below the belt.

The surplus material in men's shirts has survived all these efforts to discard it as an unnecessary and inexplicable appendage.

And it seems highly probably that it will continue to survive for some time yet, a boon to the cotton industry and something for inventors to play with.

SUCH IS GOVERNMENT.

(St. Catharines Standard)

CANADA WILL BE represented at the assembly of the League of Nations which opens in Geneva, September 12 by the following imposing array of delegates:

Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice; Hume Wrong, Permanent Representative of Canada at Geneva; Joseph T. Thorson, Member of Parliament for Selkirk; Paul Martin, Member of Parliament for Essex; Mrs. Nellie McClung, Victoria, B. C.; J. Scott Macdonald, First Secretary of the Department of External Affairs, and technical adviser to the delegation.

At a time when the League of Nations seems a futility, at a time of financial strain in this country with the voice being raised everywhere as to the excessively high cost of government, it might be asked in the name of commonsense, whether Canada could not be adequately represented at Geneva without providing joy trips for several people who are not any more qualified to contribute to the peace of the world than the proverbial John Smith or Jones to be found in any bailiwick of Canada.

But such is government, and the country pays.

THREE-SHIFT BEDS.

(Sault Ste. Marie Star)

"THERE IS A BIG change in boarding house conditions here as compared to the old days," said Chief Harbottle in a reminiscent mood.

Back in the days before the war, the chief observed, it was not uncommon in some areas for there to be three shifts to a bed in a boarding house.

"I even recall one six-roomed house", he said, "which had 26 roomers."

Fortunately those days appear to be a thing of the past in the Sault. Occasionally there is talk of a "housing shortage" here, but so far no congestion such as that of bygone days has developed.

A Bit of Nonsense

HARD TO FIND

"Any complaints?" asked the orderly officer.

"Yes, sir," came the voice of Private Huggins.

"Well, what is it?" asked the officer.

"This steak is underdone, sir," said Private Huggins.

"But I don't see any steak," exclaimed the officer.

"It's right here under this potato," wailed Private Huggins.

MAKING SURE

Boy: Are there any windows broken?

Neighbor: No, sonny.

Boy: It's my ball, then.

UNDERSTANDABLE

Said the would-be scientific man: "The wireless waves are hurled through the ether, strike the moon, and the moon throws them back to the earth."

Replied the listener: "You can't wonder at it sometimes."

• When the Farmer Sells Wheat

(By W. Jeffers in Globe and Mail)

BUT THERE WILL, nevertheless, it is hoped, be a large exportable surplus of these good spring wheats.

What will the farmer get? The Wheat Board's guaranteed price as spread between grades delivered at Fort William is as follows: No. 1 hard, 81 cents; No. 1 Northern, 80 cents; No. 2 Northern, 77 cents; No. 3 Northern, 74 cents; No. 1 amber durum, 70 cents, and No. 1 C.W. Garnet, 72 cents.

The estimate of R. D. Colquette, joint editor of the Country Guide, is that "on the average, under these guaranteed prices, the farmer will get in the neighborhood of 60 cents a bushel for No. 2 Northern. That means that he will get a cent a pound for the grades which in inspections so far have been shown to be in the majority.

To every man, woman and child in Eastern Canada as well as in the West, the marketing of the wheat and the prices received are all-important, because these guaranteed prices will be provided by the foreign consumer only so far as competitive values enable the Wheat Board to reimburse itself, and the rest will have to come out of the general taxpayer. The farmer is helped in the meantime and it aids all who sell him, but so long as the taxpayer has to foot the loss the problem remains unsolved.

In the United States Washington talks of their "fair share of the world's market. Of course, there is no such fair share except as determined by price and quality. Crop loans and export subsidies are barriers to world trade on the one side as much as import quotas and high duties are on the consumers' side. The psychology which produces talk of "our fair share of the world's markets" is not a favorable one to marketing anything or of getting the world back to trading sanity.

• Machinery Taking the Jobs

(Timmins Press)

INDUSTRY DOES claim that the creation of new machinery has created more jobs instead of displacing manual labor. For instance Editor Cameron of the Dearborn's Independent makes out a convincing case for the Ford Company in this respect.

However it seems that when farm labor is displaced there is a dull finality about the proceedings.

Business Week has recently emphasised the great changes which have come over farming in the decades since the War.

For example we learn that while twenty years ago it required 6½ man-hours to harvest an acre of wheat, the baby combines now in use require barely one-third that many man-hours.

In sugar beets, where the cost of hand labor is by far the largest item in production and harvesting, savings in man-hours running as high as 20 per cent, have been effected since 1915 and machinery has barely begun its work with sugar beets. Mechanical blocking, hoeing, thinning, pulling and topping, we are told, promise to work out a further and a very marked reduction in labor costs before long.

Mechanical potato diggers since 1909 have cut 6½ to 14 man-labour from the labor of harvesting an acre. The mechanical cotton picker is just over the horizon; if it were to be used on only half the acreage in the areas of big plantations it would eliminate the work of 2,000,000 hand pickers, each working 10 hours a day for 40 hours each season.

We do know what the combines have done to labor, for because of them, we no longer have harvest excursions to the Prairies.

Industry of course claims that this displaced labor does find jobs elsewhere but to the ordinary observer it does seem that machinery is superseding hand labor faster than there is any hope of hand labor finding itself new work.

• Hitler Must Know All This

THOSE WHO BELIEVE that Chancellor Hitler is just biding his time to strike in Europe should study the article which has just appeared in the financial newspaper of the famous German economist, Reichsbank President Hjalmar Schacht. Says the article:

"A great power entering a war without allies rich in raw materials and not possessing the necessary military and economic requirements to import materials from neutrals will lose the war against a group of nations which might even be inferior in a military way but which possess economic superiority, good commercial relations and credit.

"A war treasure in gold has the same importance today as it had centuries ago."

The article goes on to note that the United States, Great Britain and France together possess 76 per cent. of the gold reserves of the world; that Russia does not possess even one per cent. of the world gold stocks.

Chancellor Hitler must know all of this. Must realize what it means. It has been argued sometimes that German scientists could provide substitutes for most vital war materials. That belief, quite clearly, is not held by Dr. Schacht, who ought to know the facts.

This may be the real explanation behind Germany's recent declarations for peace. It is one thing for Chancellor Hitler to talk to his Nazi followers about Germany's "might". It is another thing to put such a boast to the test of hard world realities. Indeed, unless Hitler be a madman, he must know that a Germany arrayed against all the combined power and resources of the British Empire and France, plus the possibility of the added might and resources of the United States, would be a doomed Germany.

This does not mean, unfortunately, that Germany will not continue to be a menace. Hitler, compelled of necessity to maintain his prestige at home, must agitate abroad, must continue, perhaps, to run a bluff. The danger for some is that, as in the case of Austria, the bluff will succeed. Many are convinced, and not without grounds, that it is shortly to succeed in Czechoslovakia.

• Another Whack At the Railways

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

THAT THE LIFE of a railway president in Canada is not a happy one has been evident for some years, but there are those who wish to pile on the agony, being promoters of an oil pipe line from the Turner Valley oil fields in Alberta to the Lakehead. Representatives of British capital and of U. S. Steel are said to have been conferring at Calgary with the chiefs of the oil industry.

The distance from the oil fields to Port Arthur is about 1,200 miles and the route would be down grade, the oil fields of Alberta being 2,700 feet above sea level and Lake Superior at the Lakehead 615 feet above. There would be an intermediate elevation between Winnipeg and Kenora, the former being 766 feet above the sea and Kenora 1,091, besides which it is rock country for nearly 400 miles to the Lakehead as compared with easy laying of pipes across the prairies.

The cost of this ambitious project is estimated all the way from fifteen to thirty million dollars, and Walter S. Campbell, chairman of the Alberta Petroleum Production Association has a plan to amortize the cost over fifteen to twenty years, with the expectation that oil can be conveyed to the Lakehead for 60 cents a barrel. Notwithstanding that the route is down grade, stimulation of flow by pumping might be necessary.

It may be that pipe lines serve oil fields in the United States with a population of 130,000,000 as against our 12,000,000. The effect of this Alberta scheme would be to pile up the transportation overhead by an additional thirty millions, duplicating the railway investments by that figure, taking a lot of proper business from the railways, and generally making more crazy and top-heavy the burden upon our people; for all these ventures have in the final analysis to be carried by the public. The thirty millions will have to be borrowed, and if the scheme develops futilities, as may well be, where does the country come in? Possibly crafty promoters may reap millions out of it, but these men are not infallible, as the moribund Nipigon scheme, involving millions, demonstrates.

Whether a Dominion or a Provincial Government could be got to subvention so wanton a venture has yet to be seen, but history discourages the hope that the public money would be protected against an onslaught from the vampires promoting it. But whether or not, the burden would lie upon the country in any event.

The Northwest rushed the Dominion into one crowning folly, the Hudson Bay Railway, which does not earn its salt, and seemingly the game still attracts suckers.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND IN THE synagogue there was a man, which had a spirit of an unclean devil, and cried out with a loud voice, saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art; the Holy One of God. And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And when the devil had thrown him in the midst, he came out of him, and hurt him not.

And they were all amazed, and spake among themselves, saying, What a word is this! for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean spirits, and they come out. . . .

Now when the sun was setting, all they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto him; and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them. And devils also came out of many, crying out, and saying, Thou art Christ the Son of God. And he rebuking them suffered them not to speak: for they knew that he was Christ.

And when it was day, he departed and went into a desert place: and the people sought him, and came unto him, and stayed him, that he should not depart from them. And he said unto them, I must preach the kindom of God to other cities also: for therefore am I sent.—Luke iv, 33-36, 40-43.

Poem

My garden you may never see
But come in fancy there with me.
In the Spring the daffodils
Flaunt their sunny fluted frills.

And narcissus, paper-white
Blossom near the crocus bright.
Irises of many a hue,
Orange purple smoky blue.

Shrinking violets shyly peep
From the bed where night flowers sleep.
'Kiss me over the garden gate'
Looks down on woodland trillium
Pink and blue forget-me-nots
And hardy dear sweet William.

In the rockery bed close by
There lays a 'hen and chickens'
While summer snow and white rock cress
Run riot 'mongst the lickens.

I have a snow-white lilac bush
Beneath which bachelor flowers push
Their little yellow buttons.

Black eyed Susan casts her glance
Towards smiling pansy faces,
They turn their heads and wish they had
Some dainty Queen Anne's laces.

The tinkling of the blue bell
Sends the four o'clock to sleep.
At night the evening scented stocks
Their sweetest vigils keep.

In the Fall the salvia flaunts
Trailing scarlet banners,
Hollyhock and golden glow
Vie for highest honours.

Here bloom lilies, pure and bright
Greeting you from dawn till night.
Asters and blue love-in-a mist,
Zinnias, by the sunlight kissed.

Roses full of sweet perfume
Fairest flower neath sun or moon
My garden you may never see
But come in fancy now with me.

Training Planes To Be Built At Montreal

MONTREAL, Aug. 26 (C.P.). — Noorduyn Aviation Limited will manufacture advanced military training airplanes of the type Great Britain recently ordered 200 in the United States, R. B. C. Noorduyn, vice-president and general manger, said last night.

Noorduyn said his company had acquired Canadian manufacturing and sales rights on the training planes from North American Aviation Incorporated, Inglewood, Cal., and that the fast, trim two-seater low wing monoplanes would be manufactured at the Noorduyn factory at suburban Cartierville.

The 200 trainers ordered for the Royal Air Force will be built in California and have nothing to do with the Noorduyn Company arrangement, the veteran airplane designer said. He declined to say for whom his company would build North American trainers, declaring an announcement would be made later on that point.

Building the United States military craft here, said Mr. Noorduyn, would entail some enlargement to the plant at Cartierville and would mean work for a large number of skilled aircraft workers. The planes would be built entirely in Canada from Canadian products.

Charge Convicts Burned and Beaten To Death

Pictured ABOVE is an airview of the Philadelphia county prison where four convicts were found dead in their cells during a riotous five-day hunger strike. The men's deaths ended abruptly the rebellion against the monotony of prison fare by 659 inmates. Prison officials stated that the men must have met death while fighting between themselves, but medical authorities, who viewed the bodies, charged that the men had been burned to death with live steam and beaten so badly that they were unrecognizable. The four prisoners were in solitary confinement at the time of their death and a wide-sweeping investigation into all circumstances of their death has been promised.

Stand Taken By Oshawa Council On Road Is Backed By Business Men's Association

OSHAWA, Aug. 26. — After two hours and a half of fighting speeches that included charges of political manipulation, a mass meeting of Oshawa business men in Genosha Hotel last night voted confidence in the action of the City Council in handling the problem of the route of the new four-lane highway between Toronto and Oshawa, so far as it concerns Oshawa.

The meeting was called to protest the Government's decision of having the highway go through Oshawa on the Jackson Street route, thus diverting all through traffic that now goes through Oshawa's main section. During the meeting personal remarks were thrown at various speakers, and it was charged that a financial loss faces Oshawa because of the route.

Dr. T. E. Kaiser, former Conservative M.P. for South Ontario, said:

"I denounce this thing from every angle. It's the meanest kind of coercion; they should listen to the public and build to meet our needs in the interests of the people."

Charles Lancaster, hotel proprietor, spoke of loss of business to the Oshawa hotels, resturants, tourist homes and stores, while Norval Wilson, garage owner, predicted a loss in gasoline sales.

Ald. Finley M. Dafoe and Ald. William Walker said that the business men were too late in starting an agitation, but should have pressed their case earlier.

Both also claimed that they did not believe the people of Oshawa would vote to shoulder the huge debt that would be necessary if King Street was widened to permit the highway. R. D. Preston, former Mayor, who called the meeting and acted as chairman, outlined the loss in assessment and business through the route and pointed out the effects of such routes in the United States.

Frank Mason took exception to Dr. Kaiser's remarks on political manipulation and showed a newspaper clipping dated July 2, advertising the route of the highway and asking for tenders.

"It is unreasonable to put up with the traffic that is going through the city at the present time. Do you want ten-ton trucks holding up traffic here for ever? The route of the highway is definitely decided, and anyone can get information if he applies to the right place. Anyone who says Highway No. 2 can be made into a modern highway needs his head read."

Mayor Alex. McLeese, in a fighting speech in which he replied to almost every question argued during the meeting, told the meeting that the Oshawa City Council were doing a good job "despite how much you hate the Council and the things that you have said about individual members."

"I don't believe it's political influence that decided the Government to choose the route they have apparently decided upon. I have been over the route, not once but several times, and the Government are taking the most economical route, not for any selfish or political motive.

"I don't believe any politician would have the audacity to put a highway there to suit his own purpose. We all know King Street is out as far as modern traffic is concerned. As far as the middle route through Bishop Bethune College is concerned, it would necessitate moving more houses than the Jackson Street route, and I don't think it would mea ntiurists would cut off to go uptown to any greater extent than the southern route.

"We were told six months ago that we could have the highway wherever we wanted it if we would pay the shot, otherwise the Government would pick the route and pay the costs. The Council believed then, and still does, that this city is in no position to take on any huge expense such as that would entail. You gentlemen were asleep at the switch and missed the boat. If you weren't satisfied, that was the time to protest, the same as Pickering and Whitby, not sit idly by until the Government has decided what they are definitely going to do. Despite anything said here tonight or any resolutions, personally I don't think they will do any good whatever.

"It is my opinion that if we approach the Government properly we may be able to have two spur roads cut off into Oshawa. With a scenic route up the side of Oshawa Creek we should be able to attract tourists and any one who is interested enough to stop off. If we go after it right we won't lose as much as many of you think and we will have a much more beautiful city to live in," Mayor McLeese concluded amidst applause.

Ex-Warden Percy and Mrs. Stinson left on Saturday for an extended holiday, going by boat from Toronto through the Thousand Islands, thence down the St. Lawrence to the Saguenay, and on to Lake St. John; they will visit other points of interest while in the Eastern Provinces. This is the first vacation in eight years which Mr. and Mrs. Stinson have enjoyed together, the former's duties in municipal and counties council work making it impossible for him to plan for anything but a limited absence.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Russell are visiting Dr. A. and Miss Jean Russell at Bailieboro.

Hungary Now In World News

World attention is focused on Hungary as a result of Admiral Nicholas Horthy's visit and conversations with Fuehrer Adolf Hitler at Keil, Germany. Hitler virtually exploded the French-sponsored Little Entent, composed of Czechoslovakia, Roumania and Jugoslavia, by bringing Hungary into the Nazi camp of nations. He persuaded Admiral Horthy, the Hungarian regent, to reject a non-aggression pact with Czechoslovakia and at the same time had the satisfaction of seeing Hungary obtain from the Little Entente conference at Bled, Jugoslavia, the right to rearm without concessions.

C. O. B. L. OFFICIALS FACE TOUGH PROBLEM IN PETES' PROTEST

Local Club To Fight For Rights

A knotty problem faces the protest committee of the Central Ontario Baseball League within the next two weeks when the Peterborough protest over the third C.O.B.L. play-off game is aired. Provided this game has any bearing on the play-off series result, the league moguls must meet and make a decision on it.

The C.O.B.L. ruling on protests states: "All games protested must have notice in duplicate sent to the secretary by registered post not more than 48 hours after the game. this protest forwarded along with $25. Protested club to be given 48 hours from receipt of notice of protest from the league secretary. They must also file notice of defence by registered mail to the secretary along with a marked cheque of $25. The executive of the league shall constitute the committee to deal with all protests. Both teams will be represented at the meeting to argue protests and team winning protest will have money refunded. Teams not filing notice of defence shall forfeit all right to argue same. Under no circumstances shall the deposit of team losing protest be returned."

In all likelihood the C.O.B.L. protest committee will consist of President Max Swanston of Peterborough, Vice-president Art Casterton of Kingston, Secretary Newt Thompson of Belleville, and delegates J. A. Lane of Oshawa, Howard Byron of Kingston and James Dorris of Peterborough. These and the referees and players concerned will attend the meeting when called.

The protest arose over an incident in the third playoff game, in Oshawa last Saturday, during the eighth inning of a game that was won by Oshawa, 11 to 10. The bases were full at the time and two men were out. Matthews hit a grounder which was deflected off Pitcher Whitehill's glove toward second. Al Clark was about to field the ball when Buzz Bennett ran into him and upset the Peterborough infielder. The winning run scored and the Umpires Maurice Kinkley of Napanee and Ken Colling of Belleville refused to recognize the Petes' claim of interference. The game was then finished under protest.

Broke a Rule

The local officials base their argument upon the breaking of a rule—not a matter of the umpires' judgment—and point to Section 8 of Rule 49, stating when base-runners are out. This section of the rule follows:

"The base-runner is out if he fail to avoid a fielder attempting to field a batted ball in the manner described in Sections 6 and 7 of this rule, or in any way obstruct a fielder in attempting to field a batted ball, or intentionally interfere with a thrown ball; provided that if two or more fielders attempt to field a batted ball, and the base-runner come in contact with one or more of them, the umpire shall determine which fielder is entitled to the benefit of this rule, and shall not decide the base-runner out for coming in contact with a fielder other than the one the umpire determines to be entitled to field such batted ball. If a fair hit ball goes through an infielder and hits a runner immediately back of him, the umpire must not declare the runner out for being hit by a batted ball. In making such decision the umpire must be convinced that the ball passed through the infield and that no other infielder had the chance to make a play on the ball. If in the judgment of the umpire, the runner deliberately and intentionally kick such a hit ball on which the infielder has missed a play then the runner must be called out for interference."

Must Avoid Him.

Quoting part of Section 7 in connection with this protest, the rule says: "In case a fielder be occupying a base-runner's proper path in attempting to field a batted ball, then the base-runner shall run out of direct line to the next base and behind said fielder and shall not be declared out for so doing."

It is felt by the locals that the umpires cannot claim that Whitehill should have fielded the ball instead of Clark, since the pitcher had no chance to get it but merely touched it with his glove as it went by, and furthermore the official scorer ruled it a hit—and hence it could not be termed a pitcher's error. In reply to Umpire Kinkley's argument that Clark had changed direction, first starting toward second and then moving in a piece to field the ball, the Peterborough officials point out that there is nothing in the rules regarding changing of direction, simply a matter of "attempting to field a ball" which Clark was most certainly doing when knocked over by the Oshawa base-runner. The whole matter will give the league officials plenty to argue about before a decision is reached.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

KNUCKLE DUSTERS and elderly eggs must be checked at the gate tonight when the cash customers call around at the lacrosse arena to see the Brooklins and Petes fight it out. The boys in the padded monkey suits carry clubs and can take care of themselves, so the fans should content themselves with looking on and yelling for all they're worth. But leave the fighting to the game's gladiators. Last two Brooklin-Petes' tilts have been marked, and marred, by fist fights between players and fanatics—which may be exciting but doesn't do the game any good. We imagine it'll be quite a brawl this e'en between two clubs that are well-matched, classy and bitter enemies. No gentle jabs passed out when they check each other, not by a wash-tub full. We look for a fine fracas and a huge crowd. The senior scrap is at nine, with a midget semi-final at 8.15.

* * * * * *

ANOTHER PAIR OF HOT rivals tangle here tomorrow when Oshawa GM-men meet the Petes in the fourth C. O. B. L. play-off at three in Riverside. Their last game was featured by a free-for-all between players and fans, the locals getting a rather rough passage with no police protection. Well, we always have police at games here, and there'll be neutral umps from Toronto, Joe Oswin (instead of Sheppard) and Case Curzon. And none of the GM-men will do any bumping around on the runways like Bennett did in Oshawa, or he'll wonder what truck hit him! Yep, the Petes are going to battle 'em this time, and no nonsense.

* * * * * *

The Last Time? No, No!

IT IS JUST POSSIBLE THAT the Petes will not be seen in action here again this year. If the protest on the third game is tossed out, And the Petes lose their next two—well, that's all. However, we expect McNally will take the mound (yeah, Oshawa, we also have a mound here) and turn in a dandy hurling chore again to knock off the visitors. The game rates a big crowd of city and district fans, as it'll be a hotcha number all through. And 'tis said a flock of fans from the Motor City will meander up this way for the doings tomorrow. Turner and Biddle will probably both see action for the Oshawa outfit. With these promising fights coming up tonight and tomorrow here, we're as excited as an aldermanic candidate on New Year's afternoon!

BIG GIL PUTMAN, former classy lineman with Sarnia Imperials—who aided Bill Turnbull in coaching our Orfuns last year—put the grid prospects through a good workout last night at the Exhibition Grounds, with quite a few railbirds on deck. Folks here are beginning to wonder if maybe the Orfuns aren't, after all, going to have a pretty fair team. Well, they will, don't worry. The locals will give any of the senior O. R. F. U.-ers a battle when the Peterborough crew is at full strength and in proper shape. There are four or five good newcomers here now, and several more expected this week and this bunch, with what we've got, will round into a good squad. Publicity in the Toronto dailies have made the Beaches and Sarnia sound like world-beaters, but when you see those teams in action you get the idea that they're just a bunch of huskies who play a good game. Not invincible.

The Towering Thurstow

A COUPLE OF WOODSTOCK boys were on hand last eve for the drill, Beare and Thurstow—if we got their names right—and the latter stood about six foot three and weighs a mere 216 pounds! A big rangy lineman, and we can use his kind of poundage muchly. The other chap can kick, and we noted Ross Craig (though not in uniform) on hand, the Tigers' kicker having a chat with some of the local officials. Ross Craig, Sr., was also an hand, and the former Peterborough and Toronto star rugbyist looks fine. A big squad—minus the four ballsters who had a diamond practise—went through a smart practise. Another tonight but none on Saturday. They go again on Monday.

SARNIA SCRIBE RUNS a table of weights on the 45 prospective Imps now working out. Scale runs from the frail 144-pound Arnie McWatters up to the huge Orm Beach at 249. Average weight is 176½ pounds and the total is practically four tons! He says: "Linemen were given another session at swatting the tackling dummy with their elbows. The idea is not,the coach says, to develop an attack against opposing linemen. The unorthodoxy of forwards in dispelling enemies will not be changed. The reason for all this short-armed shadow boxing is to strengthen the muscles at the back of the neck. Physical culture sharks have proven, to Massucci's satisfaction at least, that a steady session of drum beating a dummy with the elbows practically eliminates neck and shoulder injuries. He is, however, putting in an order for the usual shoulder pad replacements."

Remember Umpire St. Denis?

AFTER THAT O. S. A. playdown brawl in Belleville, when Umpire Twigg got smacked around, the Belleville softball squad had two players suspended, Art Cole and Harold Reid. And they lost again in Kingston, now being eliminated. They have protested the action of the O. S. A. secretary, claiming permission had been granted these players to play by convenors. Just a few minutes before the game was due to commence, the Quinte crew was notified not to use Cole or Reid. And they lost out. It was an intermediate "A" team, and the Oshawa-Peterborough winner will likely meet Kingston in the next round. From what we hear of Mister Twigg, and recalling his homing tendencies as a C. O. B. L. guesser, we hope Twigg retires with his sore beak for this season. That is, if Westclox win over Oshawa and Whitely.

* * * * * *

LEN SMITH OF TORONTO, who refereed the O. L. A. tilt here Tuesday, writes in the Star: "Give Peterborough credit for their effort. They had lost plenty of beauty sleep through not arriving home from their game in Long Branch the night before till three Wednesday morning, and the wait of an hour and a half for East York did not help matters any. However, they got a bad game out of their system. The Petes lost without any effort to take it out on the visitors. However, rivalry is a bit keener with Brooklin, hence the Brooklin demand for extra help in handling Friday's fixture." The Petes have notified the O. L. A. secretary that if two referees are appointed for tonight, Brooklin must pay all expenses for one of the arbiters and half for the other. So there.

* * * * * *

DESE, DEM AND DOSE: Bob Doll's dad from the States may be on hand tomorrow to see the Petes' third-sacker in action. . . . Bob is a grid quarterback and is tempted to stay and play football here. . . . The Canadian Corps veterans have been let into the O. B. A. and will meet the northern team, Copper Cliff, in semi-finals. . . . Cubs and Pirates have a sudden-death junior ball semi-final at six tonight in the Ex. . . . Lions and Kinsmen clash at 8.15 this eve in the first of a two-game lacrosse semi-final. . . . It seems to us that Gunner Whitehill might stop the GM-men for a good part of a game, either starting or in a relief role. . . . Local boxers may be seen any night running around the Exhibition Grounds track, keeping in shape. . . . Word soon on the organization of that club for fencing, boxing, rasslin' and track events at the C. G. E. . . . Bowmanville of the Lakeshore Ball loop took a 3-0 win over Port Hope Ontarios the other eve, with one Freddy Ough on the coachig line. . . . Guess Ough of the O's was giving his rivals the double-o but not for ough-day—oh, oh, that's all!

Tennis League Playoffs Start

Last week the regular schedule of the Kawartha Tennis League was brought to a conclusion and the play-offs will get under way tonight with some of the matches being played and the rest to-morrow. The first team in the south group will be at home to the second team in the north group and vice versa. The Peterborough "A" are scheduled to play at Kawartha Crees and Kawartha Iroqnois are due for a trip to Port Hope.

Here is the standing of the teams:

North Group—

Team	Games Played	Points
Kawartha Crees	8	30
Kawartha Iroquois	8	24
Lakefield	8	23
Lindsay	8	23
Peterboro "B"	8	20
South Group—
Port Hope	6	23
Peterborough "A"	6	20½
Kawartha Hurons	6	14½
Quaker	6	14

The failure of Lakefield to gain the play-offs was largely due to their inability to take more than two points from Kawartha Crees last Saturday. Port Hope overwhelmed Quaker 6-0 to shove the latter team into the cellar and Peterborough 'A' took a 5-1 decision from Kawartha Hurons to spoil the Hurons' chances and to firmly entrench themselves in second place.

The annual Kawartha Club Tournament commences on Monday and will continue all week. Play in all events will be run off, including men's singles for the Bowness Trophy which has been put up for annual competition. There will be a consolation round as well in each event. Those who have not already signified their intention of entering should do so to-night or Saturday at the latest. Entries should be made to Rolly Hull, Bob Maybee or Al Drynan.

Baseball's No. 1 Tough Luck Guy Is Canada's Contribution To Yankee Maulers, George Selkirk

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Twink Selkrik had another collision the other day, this time with Frankie Crosetti, and happily not serious. The Yanks' ill-fated outfielder merely had to be carried from the field this time, not sealed up in a hospital. It was the first good break Twink has had—to be in a collision and not come out with nine misplaced vertebrae, torn shoulder muscles, a sprained wrist or a broken leg. Yep, Twink is beginning to get lucky.

A brief look back at the career of this amazing athlete discloses a chronicle of misfortune that rivals Hamlet.

To begin with George was in baseball seven years before he got a bark from the scouts. He played every position on the diamond in his sandlot days. The love of the game was so deep in the guy that he didn't care where they put him so long as he could walk up there and take his cut. As a matter of fact, he is an outfielder by mistake. He was catching for the Copley A.C., in Rochester, N.Y., where his family had moved from Huntsville, Ont., where George was born. There Rochester scouts picked him up. He was farmed immediately to Cambridge, Md., but when he arrived he discovered the Cambridge team expected an outfielder, not a catcher. Twinkletoes changed his life career very quickly, changing the mask and pad for an outfielder's glove.

Seven years ago the Yankees picked him up at Jersey City, not so much because they wanted Selkirk, but to satisy a debt the club owed. He was farmed back to Newark, optioned to Toronto and wound up in Columbus—all this in the season of 1932. He managed to get in a full season in the following year, part time with Newark, the rest with Rochester. Newark had him in 1934, and he hit so hard that the Bombers brought him in.

Took Ruth's Old Spot

George's tough breaks started at once. First of all, it was his job to make the fans in Ruthville, that region of the stands in right field in Yankee stadium, forget all about the Babe. That would have been a hard job for Ty Cobb, much less for George Alexander Selkirk, of Huntsville, Ont. But the guy was game. He put Ruth's No. 3 right on his back and dug in. What a struggle! First it was a bum leg, then two bum legs, then an arm injury, then a bad shoulder. It go so bad that finally Joe McCarthy, noticing that the mental strain was getting George down, suggested that he abandon the No. 3 and try his luck with some other numeral.

But George refused. His reply to Joe was that he'd like to be tried just a little longer, because he would like to do the whole job, and removal of that number would be a compromise with success. He'd do it or bust, and subsequent events proved that bust was the proper word. He has cracked up a half dozen times, but always comes back.

Sinus trouble set in two years ago. Those who have had experience with the torture of drainage treatments know what the guy suffered, taking treatments in the morning, playing ball in the afternoon. Pain-racked, he refused to miss a game. The trouble affected his eyes, and his batting average dropped.

But last year when he started the season, everything seemed all right. No tape on his legs, his head feeling clear and fine, he started slamming the ball at a terrific clip. Towards the end of June he was leading both leagues with home runs, and hitting .348. Then, diving for a fly ball, he came up with ripped shoulder muscles. Just a tear, no break, the x-ray indicated.

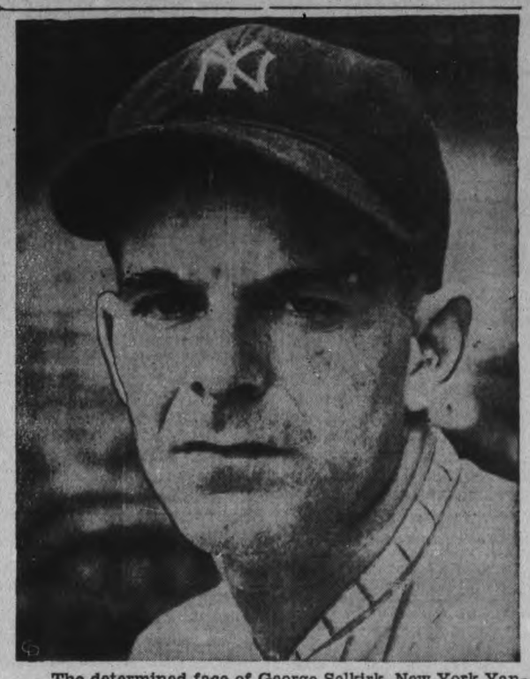
Torture On the Bench

Weeks passed with George on the bench, waiting for the muscles to heel. Perhaps you can imagine his state of mind. The Yankees have five or six star outfielders with minor league clubs, clamoring for a chance to come up. Twink was 29 last year, with not a very long major league career ahead of him at best.

Finally, he started to throw again, just tossing the ball a few feet at first, then moving back as his arm regained strength. One day he told Joe he was almost ready to play again. Joe asked him to throw a few. George grabbed a ball, only to discover that he couldn't bend his elbow. Trying to save his shoulder in the practice throwing, he had chipped a bone in his elbow. That was all for Twink—in 1937.

In spring this year at training camp, Joe shifted Twink to left field so he wouldn't have so much throwing to do. As usual, Selkirk started at a fast pace, hitting and fielding like a fool. But the season was only a few days old when he crashed into a wall in Philadelphia while pursuing a fly, cracked up a nerve in his wrist. Back to the shelf!

Well, a few weeks ago he rejoined the team, but so far has not been able to quite get back into his old batting stride. He is hitting in the neighborhood of .270, which isn't the way for a man who is succeeding Babe Ruth to attack that apple.



The determined face of George Selkirk, New York Yankee outfielder, and the major league leader by a wide margin in the matter of being put out of the game with injuries. There's no telling what he'd do over a full season's route at the plate. But when he's in there he wields a powerful shillelagh.

Phils' Butcher "Deal" Proves Gold

By Sid Feder
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

When all the returns are in from this year's baseball business, you're going to find Jimmy Wilson and Casey Stengel, have pulled the biggest rabbits out of the bag again.

Reading from left to right, you have Jimmy and his sidekick, Gerry Nugent, pulling their yearly fast one for Philadelphia on the open trading market, and Casey riding herd on a bunch of Boston Bees, who may yet land in the first division, of the National Baseball League.

Wilson and Nugent have been the two smartest buyers and sellers of ivory for the past five years or so. Whatever they get rid of promptly falls apart in new surroundings (remember Chuck Klein?) and whatever they buy up for next to nothing promptly turns to gold.

In the latest example of their hoss-trading ,they came up a few weeks ago with Max Butcher, who had been fiddling around with the Dodgers and getting nowhere for some three years. The Phils sent Chunky Lefty Lamaster to Brooklyn for him

Run Your Own Shows

Max told Wilson his previous managers tried to change his pitching until he didn't know for sure which end was up. "Why, Max, you just go ahead and throw 'em the way you want to," Jimmy told him.

So Max did. And in less than two weeks he has gone the route four times, whiffed the Giants neatly twice, lost a tough shutout to Boston, and yesterday he stopped the Pirates 2-1 with seven hits in one end of a doubleheader, both sides of which the Phils took from the league- leaders.

In the other half, wild Bill Hallahan came up with his first win of the year, a five-hitter, thereby slicing the Bucs' first-place margin in the National league race to 4½ games.

Far From Licked.

Getting along to Stengel. When he succeeded Will McKechnie at Boston this season, everyone predict he'd be lucky to wind up somewhere between sixth place and Siam. But Casey has those still stingless Bees with a 3½ game hold on fifth place right this minute, and, from the way they tore into Cincinnati Reds in both ends of a twin bill yesterday, 6-4 (in 12 innings) and 3-2, it would appear they have serious designs on a money spot.

The Reds' double defeat, coupled with the Cubs' twin win over the Dodgers, 3-2 and 5-4, boosted the Cubs into a third-place tie with Cincinnati. The 2nd-place Giants outlasted the Cardinals for a 8-7 edge in 11 frames, to pick up a game-and-a-half on the Pirates, getting the deciding run without a hit, on a walk, an error and a fly.

In the American League, the Yankees rolled merrily along to a twin win over the Indians, making 16 hits good for 20 runs to score at 5-2 and 15-3. The Red Sox stayed 12 games back in second place by whipping the White Sox twice, Jackie Wilson taking the opener 1-0 and Joe Heving the nightcap, 9-5.

The Senators tightened their hold on fourth place with an 8-2 margin over Detroit, and the Athletics hung on to seventh place by splitting with the Browns, Buck Newsom going 13 frames to win the opener 8-5 and Buck Ross' five-hitter taking the afterpiece 4-1.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

A rink of "Rotarians" skipped by R. F. Downey and supported by Rev. G. Easton, T. McArthur and E. Sackville, is attending the annual Rotary tournament in Toronto today.

It looks to us as if our men bowlers have lost interest in our club doubles. The committee can't help much if the bowlers will not come out to the greens.

Our men's week-end tournament commences to-night at 7.30 p.m. Draw from the board. 25c fee.

Next Wednesday, Aug. 31st, is the last half-holiday of the season; it is also the last half-holiday before we go back to standard time. Our season for bowling is slowly but surely passing. The committee is staging another one of those ever popular twilight doubles tournaments on this Wednesday, starting at 6.30 p.m. They are asking that a skip pair up with a lead, and a vice with a second. The fee will be $1.00 per pair. Good prizes will be given and everybody will have three 10-end games. Reserve the date and help swell the crowd. The first 32 entries will be accepted as a complete draw. As somebody wisely said: "Stay at home and get all the competition you can handle."

POLITICIANS DEFEAT BRINTON ATHLETIC IN G. N. GORDON CUP

Winners Meet C.G.E. Team In Cup Finals

Brinton Athletic were eliminated from the G. N. Gordon Cup Thursday night, by the C.C.F. by the score of 4 to 3, in a battle that was full of thrills. The winners took advantage of the locers' ten-man team to gain a close decision that resulted in them meeting the C.G.E. in the final on Saturday afternoon.

Brinton Took Lead.

Right from the kick off, a misunderstanding by the C.C.F. defense allowed the Brinton centre man to send home a long drive into the corner of the rigging. With only nine players, the Brinton team reverted to defensive tactics until Newt Downer arrived to make ten players. But throughout the early stages, Henwood and E. Jobe were harassing the losers' full-backs with their clever anticipation of positional play which caused the Brinton goal-keeper some anxiety. After ten minutes of play, Newt Downer converted from a rebound off the goalie. Shortly after the Politicians had gained the equalizer when Phil Thorn sent a rocket drive against the cross-bar where Henwood ran in quickly to score. At this point, the Brinton team were confined to their own territory endeavoring to hold back the aggressive front line of C.C.F.; while Gus McDonald and Art O'Halloran at full-back, offset any dangerous rush instituted by the Carpet boys' attack. Half-time —Brinton 2, C.C.F. 1.

Politicians Win.

On resuming, it was evident that the Brintons were not going to take things for granted but instituted a steady pressure upon the C.C.F. citadel that ultimately had to concede defeate when the Brinton pivot drove a lightning drive into the far corner of the net to make the count 3-1. A surprise was created when the Politicians took full command of the game by bombarding Adams, Brinton goalie, from all angles. A break-away by Smelt and Thorn resulted in Dyer registering to reduce the count. Not long after, following a steady attack, Jones handled inside the penalty zone. Dyer placing the ball away out of the reach of the custodian to even the count again. With only ten minutes to play, the losers forced the pace to find the Politicians' full-backs unbeatable and they made use of the break-aways. O'Halloran punted up the left wing where Smelt shot the ball across the right where Henwood connected with a first time drive across the goal mouth. Three Brinton players missed the play to allow Smelt to drive home the winning counter. Brinton again took up the attack but found it expensive because the winners were always dangerous up to the last minute. C.C.F. 4, Brinton Athl etic 3.

SMAILES TO BRADFORD

BRADFORD, England—(CP).—P. Smailes, the former Huddersfield Town and Tottenham Hotspur outside-left, has been signed by Bradford City.

Old George Uhle Whips Giants And Red Wings

(By the Associated Press.)

They've wheeled Old George Uhle out to the pitching mound and the 40-year-old ex-big leaguer is showing the International Baseball League that he can still get 'em out.

Uhle, who acted as a coach under Steve O'Neill when the latter managed Cleveland Indians and moved over to Buffalo in the same capacity when the former catcher took over the reins of the Bisons, is making a belated but successful campaign as a hurler again.

O'Neill gave him the sign to relieve Johnny Marcum on Sunday against Jersey City Giants and the bald-headed right-hander who hadn't pitched a game since 1936, put down an uprising that saved the game for the Bisons.

He got the word to go in again last night in the first game of a double-header when Marcum once more was getting his lumps, this time from Rochester Red Wings. Four doubles off "Footsie" had almost dissipated a five-run lead the Bisons had held over the Wings, when Uhle came in. He was touched for a single, but he got the next two batters, one on strikes, to end the game. The Wings came back to take the second game 2-1.

Meanwhile the champion Newark Bears moved a step nearer—clinching their second straight pennant by walloping Jersey City Giants 14-5. The win increased the Bears' lead to 15½ games over Syracuse Chiefs, who ran into something unique in the way of a postponement. Failure of the lighting system forced the Syracuse management to call off their game with Baltimore Orioles. Toronto and Montreal were not scheduled.

Lefty McNally Likely To Hurl

While no official announcement has been made, it is generally believed that Lefty McNally and Jack Turner will be the starting slabsmen when the Oshawa GM-men open at three against the Petes here tomorrow. If the local lefthander can turn in as brilliant an effort tomorrow as he did in his last showing here against Oshawa, the series will be squared at two game apiece. It is a hectic series with intense rivalry coming out now between the players and their followers. After that protested 11-10 tilt in the Motor City a week ago, when a free-for-all broke out, anything may be expected when these clubs clash in Riverside Park on Saturday. It should draw the biggest crowd of the season, with a number of Oshawa fans likely to make the trip.

Both squads will be at full strength for this game, and Moose Matthews will probably be injected into the Oshawa lineup for his hitting. Plenty of hard clouting may be anticipated after the way the boys banged the ball last weekend. The locals are set for any rough stuff this time, remembering that Bennett bumped them out of a victory before, and will protect themselves on the base-paths. There will be police protection here and two Toronto umpires. It promises to be an exciting afternoon.

Two Cogs In Blue Bombers' Football Machine

It won't be long now before pigskins will be flying thick and fast through the western Canada air, with the regular schedule of the Western Interprovincial Football Union getting under way Sept. 2, and the teams with their noses already pressed hard against the grindstone. Here are two beefy lads expected (in Winnipeg) to aid the Blue Bombers to another western Canada crown. LEFT is Benny Hatskin, whose task will be snapping the ball out to the 'Peg backs in the manner to which they have become accustomed, Lou Adelman, being the man Hatskin is replacing. Tough enough shoes to fill for anyone. The other Bomber is Percy Daigle, who plays in the backfield and who, it is hoped, will carry more than one touchdown across for the champs.

Sculling Aces Tangle Tonight

TORONTO, Aug. 26 (C.P.). — The king of professional sculling, Bobby Pearce of Hamilton, Ont., gets together with three pretenders to his throne to-night in the first of three races for Pearce's world title. The belief is general that Pearce will defend it successfully.

His opponents, headed by Evans Paddon, are all from Australia where Pearce was born and where he lived until taking up residence in Hamilton after sweeping the sculling events at the 1930 British Empire Games. They will row a quarter-mile over the Canadian National Exhibition course.

Percy See, Northern Rivers district champion, and George Cook, champion of New South Wales, will accompany Paddon and Pearce, but, according to veteran boatmen who have watched the quartette train, they'll be going along only for the boatride. A lot of people think that's all Paddon will get out of it, too, besides his share of the purse.

Just how much money the huskies are rowing after is not known. When Pearce and Paddon were signed for the races there was talk of a $2,500 personal side bet, which Pearce still is willing to post, but on which the Australian champion wants odds. Pearce won't give them.

Next Friday the quartette will race at a mile, building up for the three-mile feature event the following Friday, September 9. To-night's will be Pearce5s first competitive race since the fall of 1936 when he whipped Bill Miller, the United States champion with ease.

Montreal Maroons Are Refused Transfer To St. Louis Option Of Sale Not Sufficient

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (CP).—Chances of St. Louis being represented in the National Hockey league this winter received a setback here Thursday when the league's board of governors frowned on an application to transfer Montreal Maroons to the Missouri city on option.

President Frank Calder said the governors would have favored an outright sale of Maroons but did not consider it would be in the interests of the league for the team to operate away from home under an option agreement. The suggested option would have given the Reconstruction Investment Company of St. Louis the right to purchase the club within three years.

President Calder said the governors felt the offer did not show "much stability" on the part of St. Louis interests, who put up no cash. He said the option offer was not accompanied by a guarantee as to how long the company might be willing to operate the team in St. Louis.

Failed to Attend

Application for the transfer was made by Thomas P. Gorman and F. B. Common, K.C., representing Maroons. St. Louis interests did not attend the session.

Unless there are immediate developments in the St. Louis situation, indications are that Maroons will make a second application to suspend for one year. The governors rejected such an application at the last meeting here but now are authoritatively reported to be favorable to the idea.

Should the Maroons be given a one-season "breather," the N.H.L. will likely operate as a single seven-team league in place of two divisions as for several seasons past. The first four teams would qualify for the playoffs, instead of the first three in each group as under the present arrangement.

Besides the Montreal governors and Mr. Calder, who represented New York Americans in the absence of Mervin Dutton, those who attended were: Colonel John Reed Kilpatrick, New York Rangers; James Norris and James Norris, Jr. Detroit; Arthur H. Ross, Boston; W. J. Tobin, Chicago; Conny Smythe, Toronto and J. E. Savard, Montreal Canadiens.

Falls and Prescott Battle To 2-2 Tie

PRESCOTT, Ont., Aug. 26 (CP) —Smith's Falls and Prescott battled last night to a 2-2 tie in a playoff game of the St. Lawrence Baseball League called at the end of the ninth on account of darkness. The game was declared no contest and a second game will be played in Smith's Falls Saturday, with a final meeting next Wednesday, location to be decided later.

Fine Lacrosse Here Tonight

What is expected to be one of the most interesting lacrosse matches seen here this year is listed for Peterborough to-night at nine o'clock, weather permitting. It is between Brooklin and the Petes, an O.L.A. Senior B scheduled fixture in the George Street Arena, under the lights. In three previous meetings this season, the teams have split even, each winning a game with the other tilt being tied. And the last two scraps between these clubs have been featured by free-for-all fights with fans and players mixing it up. While to-night's tussle may be tame in comparison, the possibility of another outbreak between such keen rivals is there, and anything may happen.

The game should be classy and close, and full of action, all the way. It is likely to draw the biggest crowd of the year. The O.L.A. schedule is drawing to a close and all the clubs are in top form now, after a long, tough grind, so every fray is loaded with exciting action—and a Brooklin-Peterborough joust is exceptionally good. Both teams expect to field full teams in a determined effort to pull out a win, as these squads are liable to meet later in playoffs and the winner here to-night will have a psychological advantage.

Victor Lee Wins 2.17 Pace At Ottawa Fair

OTTAWA, Aug. 26 (CP).—Arthur Hopkins of Cooksville, Ont., Thursday drove his bay gelding, Victor Lee, to victory in the first two heats of the 2:17 pace of a harness racing program at the Central Canada Exhibition and finished behind Bert Patch in the third.

Lee Todd, Dave Dawson's brown stallion from his Port Perry, Ont., farm took the first two heats in the 2:16 trot but lost by a length to Effective, a bay stallion, in the third. The latter, owned by Dr. P. A. Locke of Williamsport, Ont., finished a head behind Lee Todd in the second heat and was third in the first.

The starter had trouble getting the trotters away in every heat and when June Evans broke in front of Effective before the start of the second heat, both sulkies were upset and June Evans harness broken. Neither driver was hurt, however, and Effective came back strong in the third to win second prize money.

Combines Beat Thistles

BURLINGTON, Aug. 26. — Fergus Thistles, minus the services of their ace scorer, Rusty White, were outscored here last night 18 to 14, in a listless Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association game. Bobby Jamieson led the homesters to victory, counting seven goals, while he drew assistance from his centre player, Bill Isaacs, who counted four. It was not a spectacular exhibition, and dragged quite a bit at times. The Combines got off on the right foot to take a 6-4 lead at the end of the first quarter, increasing their margin to 11-6 at half-time, and 14 to 9 at three-quarter time.

Yorky Jordan and Richardson were the feature players for Thistles.

Letters may now be airmailed from New Zealand to Egypt for three cents a half-ounce.

Cattle Jump 10 But Hog Prices Slip

TORONTO, August 26 — (CP). — Prices were 10 to 15 cents cwt. higher on all grades of cattle except weighty steers on the Toronto Livestock Market this week, the Dominion Livestock Branch reports. Calves opened strong but weakened by the close. Hogs were down 25 to 50 cents, while lambs recovered an early los sof 25 cents cwt.

The cattle run included 900 from the West, mostly stockers. With a better demand for killers, trade was more active and the supply was cleared out by the close with the exception of a few rough steers. Weighty steers sold from $5 to $7 with a top load at $7.35. Butcher steers and heifers brought $4 to $6.25.

Cows ranged from $3 to $4.50 for butchers, with canners and cutters at $2.25 to $2.75. Good butcher bulls traded from $3.75 to $4.25, and bolognas from $3.25 to $3.60. Fed calves ranged from $7 to $9.50, with three at $9.75. Stockers moved readily at $4 to $5.15 cwt., with a few feeders at $5.50. Milkers and springers were steady at about $65 for tested tops.

About 200 steers and bulls were shipped overseas during the week, but there were no shipments of any account to United States.

Calves Run $9.50.

Calves opened strong at $10 for tops, but ended with choice from $9 to $9.50. Common vealers sold downward to $5. Grass calves were priced from $4 to $4.75.

Hogs opened 25 to 50 cents lower at $9 to $9.25 off trucks for bacons and held the same range for the week. Sows were marked at $6.50 to $7 off trucks.

Lamos started the week 25 cents lower at $8.25 for good ewes and wethers, but closed with most sales back to $8.50. Bucks were at $1 cwt. discount, and culls ranged from $6 to $7 cwt. Sheep were unchanged for the week at $2 to $4 cwt.

When Bailiff Hooks Fish He Loses Nearly Everything Else

Omaha, Neb., Aug 26.

JOSEPH BROWN, Omaha district Court Bailiff, went fishing from a pier at San Diego, Calif. He hooked a fish—a big one—and pulled it into shallow water. Unable to land it, Joe jumped in to fight it out. He moved so fast his glasses fell off and shattered, then his false upper plate dropped out. But Joe kept going and when he bent to grab the fish his 21-jewel watch fell from a pocket into the water. Joe let the fish go and went after his watch.

Committee Plans Millbrook Reunion

MILLBROOK, Aug. 26—A public meeting was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday at 8.30 p.m. to consider further plans in connection with the proposed holding of an Old Boys' and Girls Reunion during the summer of 1939.

Over thirty were present, and the chair was taken by Reeve W. E. Ball. Among those who spoke in favor of going on with the reunion undertaking were H. D. Bigelow, Deputy-Reeve Garnet Shield, W. H. Coombe, P. I. Bentley, and R. A. Ford.

A request from the chair that all present who would, by a standing vote, promise active support, providing the reunion suggestion was proceeded with, brought a response from the entire meeting, only three remaining seated. Ex-Warden W. T. Wood, one of those who did not stand, explained that he felt the comparatively small number of business men present showed a lack of enthusiasm for the project that did not augur well for its success. In view of the heavy expense necessarily incurred with such an undertaking, he suggested that the names of one hundred men, in Cavan and Millbrook, should be secured who would guarantee five dollars each, should there for any reason be a deficit when the reunion accounts are made up. The suggestion met with general approval, but no definite action was taken, it being felt that this would lie in the hands of the finance committee when such should be appointed.

The vice-president of the Reunion Association of 1923, ex-Warden Percy Stinson, was elected general chairman.

P. I. Bentley was elected secretary, and Miss Pearl Burnham assistant. H. A. Kerr, manager of the Bank of Toronto, or his assistant should he in the meantime be moved to another branch, was elected chairman of the finance committee.

Five men from the Township of Cavan; ex-Warden J. L. McCamus, H. Tate, W. Elson, J. H. Paul, and H. G. Best; and five from Millbrook; H. D. Bigelow, R. A. Ford, Ivan L. H. Gray, C. B. Sutton, and B. B. Dawson, were appointed an executive committee who together with the four officers, will endeavor to get the feeling of the general public relative to the reunion undertaking, and go on with such further plans as they may deem advisable and necessary.

The matter of a tentative date for the reunion was discussed and the general opinion was in favor of late in August, 1939; the first reunion was on August 23-25, 1923. A request will be immediately sent out that all citizens leave with the secretary or his assistant, the names of former residents to whom invitations may be mailed, probably early in the new year, to come as guests for the reunion.

Two Gangsters Are Believed To Be Travelling Together

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Developments in police investigations yesterday led detectives to believe that Melville Campbell and Don Edwards, wanted concerning the Bank of Nova Scotia holdup at Richmond, Ont., July 19, when $12,000 was stolen, are travelling together.

On two different occasions yesterday police received tips concerning Melville Campbell's whereabouts. These proved false. While delving into another case, the detectives secured information that leads them to suspect Campbell and Edwards are together.

Edwards, in addition to being wanted for the Richmond bank holdup, is wanted for escaping from jail in Buffalo, N.Y. He escaped from jail with Oscar Campbell, now held in custody in Ottawa on a charge of armed robbery.

Detectives yesterday afternoon rushed to a building at Front and Bathurst streets, where a man suspected of being Melville Campbell was reported to be. It turned out a man had been in to sell a tip on information on a holdup. This man had disappeared when detectives arrived.

Yesterday morning detectives visited a room of a Sherbourne street house and at least found Melville Campbell's double. This man had been seen entering the house. The person telephoned the police he had seen Campbell. After looking over the room, the police admitted the man bore a close resemblance to the wanted man, apologized for entering the room and returned to headquarters.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26 (CP).—Oscar Campbell, Toronto, today was committed by Magistrate Lester Clayton to stand trial on a charge of bank robbery. Mary Donnelly, Toronto, was committed for trial on charges of conspiracy to rob and of being an accessory after the fact.

Campbell is alleged to have been one of three bandits who on July 19 took $12,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia branch at Richmond, near here. Police allege Miss Donnelly made arrangements to purchase a get-away car, and also sought to pass some of the stolen money.

Preliminary hearing of the pair took place last week, the Magistrate announcing at that time he would commit Campbell.

Decide Indian Died Of Natural Causes

PORT LAMBTON, Ont., Aug. 26—(CP)—Henry Riley, Jr., 26-year-old Indian of Walpole Island Reserve whose body was taken from the Chematoygen river August 6, died from natural causes, a coroner's jury decided here last night. Widespread police investigation followed reports of finders of the body that it was floating upright "in a posture of defence. An autopsy report said Riley did not die from drowning and Dr. E. R. Frankish, Toronto medico-legal expert, testified internal organs showed no trace of alcohol or poison.

Dr. Frankish attributed death to suffocation or asphyxiation but final evidence indicated Riley suffered from pleurisy and "reacted sharply to shock." two other Indians with Riley at the time of his death were released last night. They had been arrested on vagrancy charges as material witnesses.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM MILNE
(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug 26.—The funeral of the late Mrs. William Milne was held from the family residence on the tenth concession of Seymour on Wednesday afternoon. The deceased, who had been in poor health for some time, died at her late home on Monday morning following an illness which had confined her to bed for little more than two weeks.

She was in her 68th year and was born in Ireland a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Arnold with whom she came to this country at the age of eighteen. Formerly a member of the Presbyterian church she latter became a member of the United church in which she took considerable interest in many societies. Her many fine qualities won for her a large circle of friends in the district.

Surviving her are her husband, William Milne, to whom she was married forty-six years ago and four daughters, Mrs. Harry Wright of Seymour, Mrs. Richard Meiklejohn and Mrs. Bogart Linn of Rawdon, Mrs. William Dunk of Seymour and two sons, James of Seymour, Fred of Blackwater. The funeral service was conducted in the Riystone United Church by the Rev. Mr. Harding and the interment was at Rlystone Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. James and Fred Milne, Harry Wright, R. Meiklejohn, Bogart Linn and William Dunk.

Railways of Italy are carrying 30 per cent more passengers than a year ago.

VOL. LXXX, No. 194 PETERBOROUGH, FRDIAY, AUGUST 26 1938 PRICE THREE CENTS

Geo. Downer's Dahlias Blazon Show

A brilliant display of dahlias from George Downer's garden on Morrow street is one of the colorful features of the Peterborough Horticultural Society's flower show in the Canadian Legion Hall today. Entries were received and placed this morning, judged this afternoon, and are on exhibition to the public this evening, concluding with a draw for the prizes at 10 o'clock.

Some of the Downer dahlias have stems four feet long, and the broadest blooms exceed thirteen inches, notably Murphy's Masterpiece. "Satan" another striking variety is a dark scarlet, the petals faintly tipped with yellow, suggestive of flame.

In the class for decorative baskets of gladioli, a reportorial award would probably be given to what might be called a black and gold arrangement of two varieties, Primete a light yellow and Morocco, a dark maroon or mahogany. It was learned after that preference was noted that these "glads" are shown by William Wilks of Chamberlen street, secretary of the Society.

John A. Smith, president, set a practical example by a fine display of lillies, of which he has six entries entered, roses and gladioli. An attractive basket of a special variety of cornflowers, marked by a dominant light mauve coloration, against the ambrosia and the graceful, white gypsophela was entered by Jack Matthews of Lakefield.

Mr. Wilks told the Examiner there are more than 400 entries in the adult section and about 110 in the junior division.

The show has attracted a splendid competition in annuals, zinnias, asters, snapdragons, petunias, phlox and so on, with gladioli providing the main background. The public is invited to attend this evening. The admission is only ten cents.

Ball Player Shot

HALIFAX, Aug. 26 (C.P.). — Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials left to-day for East Lawrencetown, N.S., to investigate the accidental shooting of Sheldon Douglas Clark, well-known Halifax baseball player of the last decade.

Information received in Halifax said Clark was fatally injured as he was landing from a boat at East Lawrencetown Lake with a companion last night.

Kawartha Camp Days End For 108 Boys

The curtain was rung down on another successful year at the Kawartha Boys' Camp last week-end when the last contingent returned home and the doors were locked until next midsummer calls another flock to the lakeland vacation spot.

One hundred and eight boys spent their holidays at the camp on Clear Lake, an increase of 25 over last year, and the accommodation was not even taxed to its full capacity, although the steady gain each year indicates that in a very short time the Rotary Club will be faced with possible need to enlarge the popular camp.

The camp program which was diversified and extensive owing to the splendid equipment, included swimming, boating, hikes, field sports, campcraft, archery, fishing trips, leathercraft, soap carving, basketry, and musical appreciation. Co-recreational programs were arranged with Camp Inglestane farther up the lake.

A survey of the boys attending reveals that the following cities and smaller municipalities were represented with the number from each marked: Peterborough, 55; Oshawa, 23; Bowmanville, 4; Kitchener, 2; Toronto, 9; Montreal, 3; Lakefield, 2; Hamilton, 1; Gelph, 1; Port Hope, 2; Norwood, 1; Millbrook, 1; Westfield, N.J., 2.

The United Church was the most strongly represented with 68, and Anglicans were next with 25. There were 9 Presbyterians, 3 Roman Catholics, 2 Christians Scientists, and 1 Baptist.

Volunteer leadership at different times during the camp period was given by the following counsellors: Allan Brown, Cam Corrie, Leo Copp, Bob Parsons, John Hooper, Tom Hooper, Jack Derry, Henry Shepherd, Walter Ward, Ralph Johnston, Clegg Hall, Jim McBride. Dr. Reg. Frank, chairman of the camp committee, proved a dynamic leader and his active supervision resulted in many physicial improvements to the property, much of which was done by the chairman himself, who toiled through Wednesday afternoons and on holidays.

James C. McClenaghan, physical director of the Y.M.C.A., was camp director, and piloted the undertaking through its most successful season. His services were loaned to the Rotary Club by the Y. Board of Directors.

Friends Of '96 Meet After Long Parting

It is an old and ever recurrent story, illustrated often in the life of Everyman, that youth in its easy but seemingly serious planning for days that lie ahead takes no account of diverting circumstances and such unpredictables as the finger of destiny and whims of fate concealed behind the veil that shuts out future events, and confines us to the present moment. Usually the chart of his daily course is set with the prevailing wind.

And, in that vein, this is simply one of those little reminiscences from the past by a man recalling the light contacts of youth that seemed then so binding.

Two Peterborough young men, turning their faces homeward from the far west, parted temporarily at Regina to converge their paths again at Winnipeg, in a day or so, and continue together the long trip back to the Otonabee. It was to be only a brief separation and they were soon to reunite their interest, but forty-two years were to pass before they met again. That was only a few days ago, and those two adventuring youths of 1896 greeted each other almost as strangers, except for the memory of an incident they shared so long ago.

One of them was John Howland, proprietor of the meat shop at Douro and Rogers street in Ashburnham, and the other was George Munro of Grand Forks, North Dakota, visiting his brother, Nihill Munro, at 580 George street.

The Depression Of '96

Mr. Munro recalled the experience to an Examiner reporter last night with the understanding humor and its touch of pathos that lies beneath the surface of so much of life.

"Back in 1896 we had a serious depression," Mr. Munro said. "Everything was stagnant, but in the midst of it all news came from British Columbia of a gold strike at Rossland. The papers were featuring it. Well, one day Jack Howland and I were driving up George street on a delivery wagon. Possibly it was at the noon hour. We got to talking about the finding of gold and of the rush of men to the coast. One of us suggested that we ought to go along. Possibly we might turn up a fortune. One glittering word led to another, and by the time we had got home we had decided to "go west young man."

We bought one way tickets to Nelson, I think it was; but by the time we reached Winnipeg we began to feel that perhaps we had gone far enough west. Maybe fortune was right there in Winnipeg. We had two or three days stop-over, and we let them expire; so there we were in the new city at the gateway to Canada's prairies. I had been working for the Examiner as assistant pressman, so I went to the Winnipeg Free Press to see if I could get a job. I met George Davidson with whom I had worked on the Peterborough paper, but there wasn't an opening for me. You couldn't get a job.

Jobs On Railway

Well, they were building a section of the C.P.R. west of Moose Jaw, and advertising for men, and as that was all the world was offering us, and our funds were running low, we concluded we might as well go out there for awhile. We worked together until late in the season, and then decided to go home for the winter.

When we got to Regina I had a friend in Grand Forks, and as I was so close to him, I though I might as well go down and see him. Jack Howland wanted to spend a few days in Winnipeg, and I was to catch up on him again there, and we'd come home together."

Mr. Munro's friend in Grand Forks was engaged in the jewellry business.

"It was getting on toward Christmas, and he asked me to stay with him for a while and help him during the season, and that's what I did. That was the last man I worked for."

Honored By Jewellers

Mr. Munro said he went into the jewellry business for himself, and was past secretary of the North Dakota State Jewellers' Association and past president of the North Dakota State Optical Society. A lapse of health forced his retirement some years ago.

In a further recollection he said he began work on August 23, 1887 with the late J. R. Stratton, publisher of the Examiner when it was located on the east side of George street south of the old Commercial Hotel at Brock street.

"My brother was a compositor on the paper, and when he came at noon one day he told he had set up an 'ad' for a boy wanted at the shop; so I went down and applied for it before the paper was off the press."

Examiner Associates

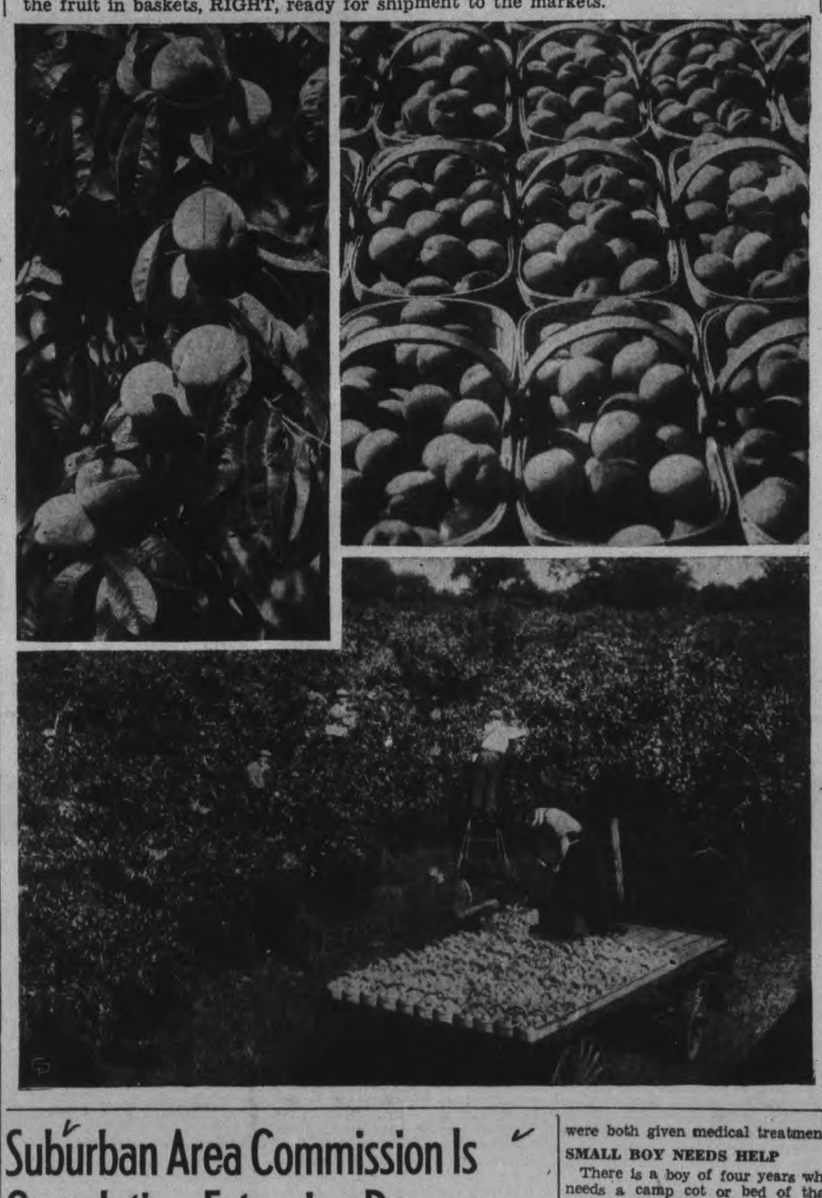
Mr. Munro recalled some of the men with whom he was associated during the eight years that promoted him to assistant pressman. F. R. Yokome was editor and J. B. VanBlaricom was a reporter; Charlie Ripley was foreman of the job department; Ernest McCabe, George Martin and Harry Donnelly were in turn foremen of the press room. R. M. Glover was later engaged as office boy.

"And 'J. R.' dictated a letter of recommendation for me. Some how I kept it and when I showed it to Mr. Glover the other day I told him I had never used it. Dexter Dawe was with the Review; Harry Lacheur with the Examiner; George Cairns and others. But, of those employed on the Examiner when I first went there only one other man is alive that I know of, and he is William Eastland, who was a pressman. John Jamieson was the business manager and William Menzies was head of the composing room. William Cowie was the bookbinder, and my first job was helping him on an order of boxes for the Lock Works. Six months later I started in the pressroom"

Mr. Munro was twice in Peterborough since 1896 but only for brief stays at his home. Since his arrival several weeks ago he met David Carlisle who at one time worked for him in Grand Forks.

One of his comments was the suggestion that the people of Peterboruogh should retain the name Ashburnham for the old community across the river, because of its historic attachment, and also because it is as easy to say Ashburnham as East City "which doesn't mean anything." Mr. Munro was born at the corner of Harvey and Dublin streets.

Bumper Crop From the peach orchards of the Niagara peninsula, a crop of more than 515,000 bushels of exceptionally excellent quality is being harvested this year and is now rolling into markets throughout Canada. This year's crop is about 10,500 bushels below that of last year, when a record crop was picked, but is well above the average in yield. The golden fruit is shown BELOW, LEFT, hanging from the heavily laden trees awaiting the pickers, BOTTOM, who place the fruit in baskets, RIGHT, ready for shipment to the markets.



Suburban Area Commission Is Completing Extensive Program

An extensive program of work on the roads of the county is being pushed to completion by the Suburban Road Commission, and included in the scheme a series of new concrete culverts at the lead ins to each avenue running west of Park street south of the Ovaltine plant.

A mulch surface is being put on the lake road running from the floating bridge at Chemong along the southeast side of the lake to the 8th line of Smith, continuing the surfacing which was started in that section a few years ago.

Considerable work is being done where the swamp road runs eastward off the Warsaw road across the Sixth Line and eastward to the Douro church. The first stretch formerly a one way, brush fringed dirt road, is being widened to the standard highway width and all bushes and trees have been removed.

Farther along where the road crosses the Sixth Line, it is the intention of the Commission to continue this road in a straight line through a swamp and woods and thus eliminate the long curving, dangerous road which now exists. Work has already been started on the eastern end. Ten miles from Peterborough on the Warsaw road a dangerous curve is being eliminated by removal of a cutbank which is located on the left side of the highway and its removal will permit straightening of that stretch.

FISHING TACKLE STOLEN

John Campbell of Toronto reported to Provincial Constable David Silvester that a thief had entered his tent on the shore of Lake Chemong this week and stolen a valuable reel and fishing line. The owner had been away the greater part of the day and when he returned he noticed the reel had been taken. The fishing pole was not carried away.

INJURES HAND.

Ralph Plumpton, Douro street, Ashburnham, received a deep cut on his right hand while playing near his home this week. The child lost considerable blood and for a time it was feared the injury was very serious, but proper dressing by a doctor and a few stitches closed the wound. Eddie Kimball, R.R. 4, who punctured the tip of his finger with a hay fork, and Donald Ackison, with an injured shoulder, were both given medical treatment.

SMALL BOY NEEDS HELP

There is a boy of four years who needs a camp cot or bed of that sort which can be used outside. This lad, according to the doctor, has lung trouble and should be out-of-doors as much as possible, and the cot is needed as a place where he can rest. The parents are on relief and not able to do much about it. If any of our readers have such a cot they can get particulars regarding where it is needed by telephoning Number 3306.

RAGWEED WAR IS ON.

An Ashburnham property owner has solved the problem of eradicating ragweed. Yesterday he carried a piece to where five small boys, including two of his own children were playing and said he would pay each five cents if they pulled all the ragweed in his garden. In less than half an hour the quintet of weed pullers had a pile two feet high in the centre of the garden. The five boys then went up and down the street and charged the residents five cents a garden to clean out the ragweed. It is reported that they did a thriving business.

Downtown False Alarm Calls Whole Crew And the Chief's Definitely Peeved

SOME FOOLHARDY boy or man is going to find himself behind bars one of these days and he's going to realize that he returned to the pump once too often, according to Fire Chief George Gimblett.

At 11.30 o'clock this morning someone pulled a fire box in the heart of the downtown section with crowds of people all about him. It was at the corner of Brock and George Streets, a favourite spot for false alarms. Twice on July 12 the same box rang in false alarms.

Three trucks dashed from the Fire Sttaion when Box 51's call came in. So heavy are the trucks that there is always the possibility of grave accident when they turn out to a fire and fire fighters are naturally nervous. When they find their jaunt has been only to the end of amusing some moronic crank their tempers are far from even.

Police are investigating this morning's alarm and will undoubtedly take strong action should they apprehend the culprit.

Had Him Puzzled

PALMERSTON, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.). — A teller in the Palmerston branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce was not quite sure of the correct procedure when an elderly resident of the town presented a cheque dated 1918. The cheque, drawn on the Bank of Hamilton for $25, was not cashed.

Loses His Truck 3 Months For Being Drunk

"I can't help you in this" Magistrate Langley remarked today, rather regretfully or so it appeared, in view of the fact that he was forced to sentence a man to seven days in jail and impound his truck for three months. It was the man's first offence and his first appearance in any court of law.

Donald McKay, of Bridgenorth, the accused was arrested on Hunter street last night by Constable Leo Murphy, in charge of a truck in an intoxicated condition. According to the officer's report as voiced by the Chief Constable, McKay was attempting to back the truck when arrested.

"I have no way of making a living except with this truck," said McKay after explaining that it was his first offence of any kind. He added that he had a wife and two children and had been able to pay his way since 1929, obtaining work with the truck.

His Worship explained that under the existing law, a Magistrate had absolutely no alternative except to sentence any person found guilty of drunk driving to a jail term and if the person owns the vehicle to impound it.

"Could you release the truck so that I may hire a man to finish some work I have to do," asked the prisoner.

"No the vehicle must be seized by the officers and impounded for a three-month period," answered His Worship.

Peter Flynn, Belmont Township resident was fined on a plea of guilty to a charge of reckless driving and assessed $10 and $3.75 costs. His permit was suspended for ten days. The information was laid by Provincial Constable Hatch of Marmora, who patrols a stretch of No. 7 Highway east from Havelock.

Max Vincent Up For Selling

Max Vincent appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning and pleaded not guilty to a charge of selling liquor. He had appeared on a summons and was allowed his freedom without bail until Tuesday next when the case is slated for disposal.

Two brothers, Basil and Clinton Reid, also faced charges, the first appearing and pleading not guilty to unlawful possession and the second brother was adjourned without plea on a charge of consuming. These two men were arrested in Jackson Park some time ago by Traffic Officer Bud Clarke while he was making the usual night patrol and are said to have had liquor in their possession. Later Max Vincent was summonsed to appear on a charge of having sold liquor. All three were laid over until Tuesday next when they will be heard.

Boys Pay $1 Each For Jumping Fence To Fair

Six boys all under 20 years of age were fined one dollar, the minimum under the Petty Trespass Act, for jumping the fence into the Exhibition Grounds during the Exhibition last week, by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning.

"Times are hard and I am going to be as easy as possible on you," said His Worship, "but there is not going to be any joking over this next year, and everyone so convicted will be severely dealt with."

His Worship expressed surprise that one of the six, Bill Rose, who had been fined on his first appearance last week, had gone back the next day and committed the same offence being caught a second time. Owing to family circumstances, he also was allowed to go on payment of the minimum fine.

Gordon Puffer, J.P., offered no objection to the Magistrate's tentative suggestion that the costs be eliminated, thus the offenders were let down without payment of an additional seventy-five cents each.

The six boys were as follows, Henry Sararis, Robt. Collins, Art Connelly, Jack Dolan, Jack Hickson, Bill Rose, all of this city.

Tourist Hooks Six Pounder Below Nassau

Dr. A. A. Brown of Carroll, Ohio, spending a few days at "We-Non-Ah," the cabin colony southwest of Nassau, proved to his own satisfaction yesterday that the Otonabee River above the city filtration plant deserves more than passing consideration in any fishing survey of the waters in this district. He hooked and landed a six-pound maskinonge in less than half an hour, and within only a short distance from the cabin where he and Mrs. Brown are staying for a few days on their way to the Rideaus. This was his first visit into the local fishing area, touching only a fringe of the Kawarthas, but he knows some of the lakes in the northern section of Hastings county from his experience in other years.

Dr. Brown is an expert caster with a reputation gained across the border especially in Michigan and Wisconsin. His ability has been more recognized for the reason that he had to overcome a serious handicap from an accident to his right hand in his boyhood, that left him the use of only his thumb and index finger. The third finger had to be removed, and the second and fourth cannot be closed on the hand. Dr. Brown remarked to a reporter that it seemed strange the people of Peterborough did not realize there is apparently good fishing right at their back door.

"I suppose," he said, "it is a case of the greenest pasture being on the other side of the fence, and they pass by their own river to go further afield."

BISHOP ABANDONS VICARAGE SAID 'MOST HAUNTED HOUSE'

University of London Expert Agrees 23-Room Mansion Is Spirited

"COME TO MY HELP"

Brighton.—Hidden away in a tiny village in Sussex is a 60-year-old vicarage with 23 rooms, which, it is claimed, is the most-haunted house in England.

Every vicar who has tried to live there in the past 16 years has been chased out by ghosts.

Now the bishop has given up the fight with the unseen — he has moved the present vicar to another village and the house, plus its ghosts, is for sale at $5,000.

Harry Price, of the University of London council for psychical investigation, and 40 other people, some of them well-known doctors, scientists, lawyers and professional ghost hunters, have spent eerie nights in the house.

"I have spent my life unmasking ghosts," Mr. Price declared, "and nobody could be more of a cynic than I am.

Has Variety of Ghosts

"Yet I am prepared to say that this house is haunted. In fact, it is the most haunted house in England."

Not only is this the most haunted house—it is the house with the biggest variety of ghosts.

And here are some of the things the investigators say they have seen or heard:

Mysterious writings appeared on the walls while every window was barred and every door locked;

Bells pealed for no reason;

Messages, one of them saying "Marianne, come to my help," and another, "Marianne, it is time for mass," appeared on the white-washed walls of a passage two minutes after the watchers had passed by;

Man Walks Passages

A man in gray clothes walked about the passages;

Perfumes suddenly wafted on the air;

Flickering lights appeared;

Piles of books left on a mantelpiece were scattered.

Mr. Price said that a vicar who tried to live in the house some years ago bricked up the study window because a ghostly vision of a nun in gray constantly peered in.

JERSEY MAY EXCEED ITS WEIGHT IN MILK

Midget's Calves Born Almost as Big as Mother

Bedford.—"Midget," world's smallest cow, has been on exhibition in the agricultural society's show at Ampthill.

A five-year-old, perfectly formed, pure-bred Jersey, she is only three feet high. Her sisters are of normal size.

"Midget's" first calves were almost as large as herself when born.

She is now in milk with her second, and her owner, D. M. Farrar, of Hillfoot Farm, Pulloxhill, Beds, thinks she will break a record by giving several times her own weight in milk.

WIFE OF INNKEEPER WAS CHILD PRODIGY

Wrote Book Which Brought $50,000 in Royalties When Nine

Reedham, Norfolk. — When a charming old-world inn, The King's Arms, changed hands here recently, it was discovered that the wife of the new licensee, Mrs. James Devlin, was at one time Daisy Ashford, authoress at the age of nine of "The Young Visiters," of which 500,000 copies were sold, bringing in about $50,000 in royalties.

After its publication in 1919, Daisy Ashford had the literary world at her feet. But, apart from another book consisting of short works, she published nothing else.

"The Young Visiters' was not published until some years after I wrote it," she explains.

"I always had a pencil in my hand as soon as I had learned to write, and I began composing stories. My mother kept them for sentimental reasons, and it was not until her death that they came to light again.

"I showed them to a friend, who was struck with their style, and they were sent to a firm of publishers."

Until a short time ago, Mr. and Mrs. Devlin, who have four children, were market gardeners in South Norfolk.

TRUMPETER RETIRES FROM ACADEMY AT 82

Plays Pastoral Symphony Over Telephone as Swan Song to Career

London.—Firm notes on a trumpet sounding the first movement of Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony were heard here the other day by a reporter with a telephone receiver to his ear.

Playing them in his Brixton home was 82-year-old John Solomon, who has just retired from the Royal Academy of Music, which he joined 66 years ago.

"Well," he said over the telephone, as he laid down his instrument, "I think that is the last time I shall play in public."

The first time was 77 years ago, when he stood on a chair on the stage of the Britannia theatre, Hoxton, and played a drum polka.

How many are still living who went to the Albert Hall in 1877 to hear Richard Wagner conducting his own works?

John Solomon played at those concerts under Wagner's baton. He didn't think much of him as a conductor, either.

"Wagner conducted only a few works," he said. "He left Richter to the rest, and he was wise there because he knew he couldn't get as much out of his own compositions as his friend."

After 77 years listening to music Mr. Solomon is of the opinion that:

"Jazz in any form is an abomination.

"Beethoven, Bach, Mozart and Haydn would hardly recognize their own work if they heard it played by modern orchestras because their music is adapted to the requirements of the orchestras instead of the orchestras being adapted to the requirements of the music."

POSING AS COUNTESS SWINDLED MERCHANTS

Woman Given Six Months for False Pretences

London.—Said to have posed as a countess and baroness, Mrs. Doreen Roach-Jackson, 33, pleaded guilty to five charges of stealing books and obtaining goods by false pretences from a west-end store, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

In June last year she married a man described as "de la Feld" and known as a count of the Holy Roman Empire. They were known as "Count and Countess de la Feld."

Since her marriage she had posed as the wife of a parson, a baroness, and a countess.

SAILORS MAKE EYES DO PECULIAR TRICKS

Plymouth.—Admiral Sir Reginald A. R. Plunkett-Ernle-Erle-Drax, commander-in-chief of the Plymouth station, is concerned because of the acrobatic evolutions performed by some sailors when obeying the order "eyes right."

In an official order he states: "I find in numerous cases that ratings turn the head stiffly as far as possible to the right and then turn the eyes still further to the right.

BRITAIN PREPARES FOR "AIR WAR"

Determined not to be found unprepared should war suddenly burst upon the European scene, Great Britain is today fortifying her cities and their defences at a surprisingly speedy pace. England's civilians are being provided with the latest type of gas-mask and bomb-proof cellars are being dug in profusion. Her armies are being equipped with the most recent inventions necessary to combat modmern war machines. In recent home defence air exercises, members of the "Westland" anti-aircraft section, above, tried out this new height and range finder, which is said to make easy prey of invading aircraft.

TRIAL OF BEAUTY DRAWS 24 JUDGES

Crowd Two Deep on Assize Bench—Tipsy Driving Is Charged

Beaumaris, Wales.—No fewer than 24 magistrates crowded two deep on the bench of the assize court here the other day when Dianna Webber was arraigned on a charge of driving a car while under the influence of drink.

Dianna is a London mannequin, tall, stately and beautiful, whose face in newspaper and magazine advertisements is familiar to British readers.

Dr. J. H. Playn, who examined Miss Webber after she had driven a car against an electric-light standard and patched a cut over the eye of her companion, Eustace Thomas, heir to Sir Robert Thompson, ex-M.P. for Anglesey, testified concerning her condition at the time, and Trevor Owen, a butcher who had induced her to drink a glass of salt water, confirmed that she had had "one over the ten".

WAS CALLED PERFECT VALET MASTER LEAVES HIM $27,500

Took Turn With Master's Sisters In Watching At His Bedside

IS GRIEF-STRICKEN

Whalley, Lancashire. — Silver-haired, kindly John Wrighthouse served his bachelor master for 14 years so well that Harry Bottomley, brewer, said: "He is the perfect valet."

Somewhere in Lancashire John Wrighthouse is taking his first holiday in six years. His master is dead, but John does not yet know he has been left £5,500 ($27,500) by Mr. Bottomley.

During the last year of his life Mr. Bottomley, who died recently, aged 59, was unwell. Wrighthouse refused to leave the bedside. He took his turn with his master's sisters, who nursed him day and night.

When Mr. Bottomley died his valet was grief-striken. Relatives of the dead man told John: "Go to a quiet place, try to forget."

"Mr. Bottomley always believed that Wrighthouse, by his perfect service, had helped him in his career," a friend said.

PHYSICAL EXERCISE HELD ASTHMA CURE

Cardiff.—Doctors at the municipal asthma clinic here are shortly to adopt treatment by physical exercises as a cure.

Dr. J. Greenwood Wilson, medical officer said: "The exercises, which will be superintended by a physical training expert, are designed to regulate the movements of the diaphragm. As the benefits of the clinic become known, the number of patients attending is increasing enormously."

The clinic has had many successes with treatment by diet, injections and other methods.

'EX-CONVICT' NOTED ON BUSINESS CARDS

Family Fails to Get Work—Tell Folks It's Their Last Chance

London.—"Messrs. W. Moore and Sons, ex-convicts," have gone into business—and there is no "trick" about the title either.

Mr. Moore and three of his sons are genuine ex-convicts recently out of prison who have decided to go straight and to put "honesty is the best policy" to a practical test.

They have started business together collecting and selling scrap. Their business cards, which they distribute themselves to householders, state that this is their "last chance" and add quite frankly that they are "ex-convicts trying to keep out of prison."

"When we came out of prison, my sons and I tried to get work, and got jobs for a short time, but they did not last," said Mr. Moore Sr. "A prison-worker gave us a small truck and a little money and we tried the scrap business.

TRIES TO MURDER GIRL, 24 THEN TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Wounds Police Inspector After Chasing Girl Who Spurned Him

THREE-HOUR HUNT

Ipswich, Suffolk — Arthur Smy, 24-year-old gardener, shot himself dead near his sweetheart's house at Kirton as 50 armed men surrounded him after he had attempted to murder her and had seriously wounded a police inspector.

His death ended a three-hour hunt with cars directed by an airplane.

The young man, desperately in love with Violet Cone, 21, had asked her to become engaged to him. She refused. "I will shoot you if you don't," he declared.

Next day at 8 a.m. he broke a window in a neighbor's house and stole a shotgun. He ran with it to Violet's home; her father had locked her in because of Smy's threats.

She was in the kitchen, doing some washing. A neighbor, 77-year-old Mrs. Surridge, saw him creep round to the back of the house.

Shot Missed Her

He smashed a window with the barrel of the gun, pointed it at Miss Cone. "I said I would shoot you," he warned her.

Violet ran screaming from the kitchen. He fired, but missed her, shattering an ornament on the mantelpiece.

She rushed out of the front door and into the grocery store 25 yards away. "Save me! He's after me with a gun," she shouted.

Smy ran into the shop after her, fired again as she bolted through a door to a warehouse at the back, missed once more.

Charles Perkins, manager of the store, shouted, "Put down that gun!" and hurled a jar of jam at him. Smy ran from the shop.

Mr. Perkins called up Felixstowe police. Inspector Rumsey and two constables came along. For 20 minutes they took a statement from Violet in the kitchen of the house attached to the grocery.

Fires at Inspector

Then Inspector Rumsey opened the door to begin the hunt for Smy. Facing him, three yards away, was the young man. He fired straight at the inspector's face.

Inspector Rumsey collapsed. Smy fled. One of the policemen called for reinforcements from Ipswich: another gave first-aid to the wounded man. Fifty police, some of them armed, streamed into Kirton on motorcycles, others borrowed guns from neighboring farmers.

An airplane was sent up from Ipswich airport to help in spotting Smy. A wide area was searched. All the time Smy was hiding in a field barely 100 yards from Miss Cone's house.

A villager saw him and gave the alarm. The police closed in. Smy put the gun to his chest and shot himself dead.

WAS HIS OWN BANK

Camberwell.—Inquest on Dick Bromley, 81, disclosed he always wore two waistcoats containing more than £159 ($795) in gold. Total weight of the money was 8¼ pounds.

PROPHECY FULFILLED KISS BISHOP'S HAND

Curate Five Years Ago Honored by Church

London.—Five years ago a young priest arrived in London from his first curacy at Romsey abbey, Hampshire.

"The time will come when we shall kiss his hand as a bishop," said his new vicar.

That prophecy has come true, for Rev. C. D. Horsley, vicar of St. John the Evangelist, Upper Norwood, has been elected bishop of Colombo. At the age of 35 he will be one of the youngest bishops in the Anglican church.

SOUTHAMPTON PICKED FOR HUGE AIR DOCK

City Expected to Become World Flying Centre in the Future

Southampton.—After years of haggling, Southampton has been chosen as the world's commercial air base—terminus of the Atlantic and Empire services of the future.

It is believed that $15,000,000 will be spent on the biggest commercial dock yet planned.

It will be built on Southampton Water, east of the main shipping channel, near Netley Castle, and will be owned by the air ministry.

Portsmouth recently refused to share the expense of a flying base with the ministry, arguing that it would bring no additional trade to the port.

Since the start of the Empire flying-boat services, Southampton Water has been the temporary headquarters of Imperial Airways, but considerable difficulty has been experienced both with tides and with shipping.

The new stretch of water chosen for the air base is one mile long and nearly a quarter of a mile wide.

The Southampton base will be the British starting point for British Atlantic flying boats, which will use Foynes, Ireland, purely as a refueling base.

French and German services across the North Atlantic are also likely to make it their European headquarters.

When the regular north and south Atlantic services are started by Britain, Southampton will be the busiest commercial flying port in the world.

DIES LEAVING STAMPS WORTH HIGH PRICES

Famed Collection, Uninsured For 25 Years, Was Valued at Quarter of Million

Chorley Wood, Herts.—A stamp collection, valued in the catalogues at $2,500,000 kept for 25 years uninsured on the bookshelves of the owner's house here, is being sold.

When a schoolboy, the late T. W. Hall was given a few stamps. Like other boys, he engaged in "swapping". In his twenties he became a solicitor, and with spare cash went in for philately in earnest.

In 60 years he collected 2,000,000 stamps. He kept them beautifully mounted and classified in dustproof albums, and estimated by not insuring them he saved $15,000. No one ever attempted to steal them.

In 1917 he bought the famous Hausberg collection for $92,500.

Shortly afterwards he sold a third of it to King George V. for $70,000.

Had he wished, he could have made $50,000 profit by selling the lot.

Robson Lowe, who is making arrangements for the sale of Empire country stamps, said, "If the collection, which is unique, were sold in small lots it would fetch anything up to $2,500,000—but it would take 20 years to sell everything.

"Sold fairly quickly it may realize up to $500,000.

"Mr. Hall's transactions will probably show a clear profit of maybe $200,000.

"One Victoria twopenny stamp with no value printed on it is now worth at least $2,500."

EX-BUS DRIVER RUNS PROFITABLE LOTTERY

Had Own Racehorses and Chauffeur-Driven Car

London.—George William King of Fulham, an ex-bus conductor, who was said to own six racehorses and a chauffeur-driven motor-car, was fined $375 and ordered to pay $125 costs for using premises for the conduct of a lottery.

Summoned with him was Francis MacNamara, a bus driver. He also was said to have a chauffeur-driven car.

MacNamara was fined $250 and ordered to pay $50 costs.

On King's behalf it was pointed out that the lottery was run with the greatest care and fairness.

DOWNED IN POOL

John o' Groats.—Reaching John o' Groats three days, 20 hours, 54 minutes after leaving Land's End (870 miles), Mrs. Lilian Dredge, professional racing cyclist, of Uxbridge, beat all endurance records for women.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

RUSH 282-MILE PIPELINE TO ENSURE WAR-TIME OIL

Could Move 2,000,000 Tons Annually From Sea to Paris Area

GOES UNDERGROUND

Paris—To ensure a supply of oil and gasoline in war-time the French government is to build a pipe line from Donges, a little port near St. Nazaire, to Montargis, 60 miles south of Paris. The line, 282 miles long, will run across five departments on a secret route. It will supply France with 1,000,000 tons of oil a year in time of peace. The supply might be doubled in war-time.

A major enterprise of this description has never before been attempted in Europe.

The line will be constructed beneath the ground for its entire length to limit the possibilities of destruction.

It may eventually be extended farther to the east. The decision to undertake this important work has been made by the newly-formed motor fuels committee, on which prominent officials of various government departments are members.

Engineering experts have already been appointed to make a preliminary study of the project, and their report is expected in October.

The Iraq Mediterranean 'pipeline is 1,200 miles in length, and cost $50,000,000 to lay.

GIPSY BRIDES GOING AT BARGAIN PRICES

A report from the annual gipsy festivities at Kraljevo, Serbia, said a vivacious brunette brought the highest bid, $6.40. Other brides went for as low as $3.60 and $4. The prices were considerably below those paid in previous years to parents of marriageable daughters.

The marriage contracts are a feature of the festivities, which are associated each year with the orthodox observance of St. John's Day.

TRIBES RAID COLONY LOOT SHOPS IN FIGHT

Pitched Battle Lasts Half Hour Near Constabulary Post

Bannu (North-West Frontier).—Nine persons were killed an 24 wounded in a raid on Bannu by 300 dacoits belonging to the Waziris and other tribes.

The raiders occupied important points near the frontier constabulary post, the police station, and outside the parade gate.

After firing had gone on for half an hour, the dacoits set fire to and looted 25 shops.

The dead include three dacoits. About a dozen were arrested.

BEAUTY HELPS BANNED

Water Instead of Tea Urged on Women of China

Hankow. — Chinese women are urged not to use powder, rouge and lipstick, and not to wear silk stockings and jewelry, under an economy decree passed by the people's political council.

The drinking of water instead of tea, in order to increase tea exports, is another feature of the measure.

FRAU DOLFUSS BACK HOME

Special Permission of Fuehrer Required For Return to Germany

Berlin. — With special permission from Herr Hitler, Frau Dollfuss, widow of the assassinated Austrian chancellor, has entered Germany from Switzerland with her two children and gone to live in Munich.

She fled to Switzerland last March after the annexation of Austria. Dr. Engelbert Dollfuss was murdered during the Nazi revolt which failed in 1934.

BAD FOR THE BATS

Berwick.—Ringing town hall bells here Robert Wetherburn was showered with charred pieces of wood. A beam supporting the five tons of bells was on fire.

MEETS HER BROTHER AFTER 37-YEAR WAIT

"Oh, Milly," Is Only Comment of Aged Ex-Clown at Reunion

Paris.—"Oh, Milly!" A little old man spoke the words, shook hands with a little woman, and kissed her. Then he fell back in his chair, crying because he was happy.

That was how John Stone, 80-year-old former clown, once famous in his profession, met after 37 years his sister, Amelia Hawthorne, at the hospital in Levallois, Paris.

Mrs. Hawthorne, 76-year-old pensioner, lives at Brockley, S.E.

Each had thought the other dead until a newspaper picture appeared showing the Queen talking to an old patient in the Paris hospital. Mrs. Hawthorne saw that picture, thought she recognized her brother.

Telephone calls between London and Paris soon revealed she was not mistaken. A reunion was arranged.

In years past Mr. Stone had set up several troupes of clowns which had toured France, Russia, Germany and the north of England.

But at last, unable to carry on clowning and turning pirouettes, he found a job in a foundry.

He kept that until a few months ago, when he had a breakdown and had to go to hospital.

GAMBLERS IN FRANCE THREATEN TO STRIKE

Protest Edict Giving Roulette Edge Over Baccarat

Paris.—Gamblers for large stakes throughout France threatened a sit-down strike in the big casinos recently as a result if the government's decree reducing by one-half the rounds of play at baccarat.

The decree applies to the casinos at Deauville, Cannes, Nice, Vichy, Biarritz and other famous pleasure resorts. It aims at stimulating roulette at the expense of baccarat, reducing the daily play of baccarat from 12 to six rounds—three in the afternoon and three at night.

The shorter period of play seriously reduces the chances of winning of the syndicates which control the tables.

FRENCH TURN FORTS INTO GIRLS' CAMPS

Still Look Impregnable and Menacing But Condemned as Obsolete

Morez, France.—A new use for fortresses on France's eastern front has been found in turning them into holiday homes for Paris children.

M. Charles Dumont, senator for the Juras, recently escorted a newspaperman round this fort, known as Fort des Rousses. The frowning bastions and massive gun emplacements may be seen by the traveller as he passes along the main road from Morez to Switzerland.

There are three heavily fortified entrances, each about 10 yards deep, and below there are subterranean chambers at one time used for the storage of shells. Inside the walls of the fortress is a barrack square covering many acres.

This fortress, which to the uninitiated appears as strong as some of the pictures shown of the fortifications of the Maginot Line, has been condemned by the French war office as obsolete. It is a pleasant surprise to find how huge barrack rooms can be converted into delightful dormitories. Up on the mountains the wind at times blows so cold that there are double windows in all the rooms and an excellent system of central heating. Not only are children received free, but girls up to the age of 18 can enjoy a holiday there at a cost, at the present rate of exchange, of about 85 cents a day.

The food is well-cooked and plentiful. The barrack square makes an excellent playground, and the children also explore the woods in the mountains.

At least three old-time fortresses in this part of France have been converted into these "colonies scolaires."

CARDS DATE BACK TO 1590

London.—British museum officials have purchased a set of Elizabethan geographical playing cards designed in 1590.

BEAT BELISHA

Ramsgate.—Ten thousand bees swarmed on a Belisha beacon here and held up traffic until Alderman Harry Stead, former mayor, could be located. A bee expert, he soon coaxed the bees away.

CRUISING AMAZONS VANISH AFTER KNIGHT BEATEN UP

Decoyed Britons to Paris Clip Joints Where Wine $37.50 a Cup

PREFECT STEPS IN

Paris—Motoring "Amazons," an unpleasant feature of Paris by night, have vanished from the opera district since they heard of the purge ordered by the prefect of police.

British visitors who were beaten up in a Montmartre night club are responsible for the cleanup.

The "Amazons," fashionably-dressed girls, used to drive after midnight in certain streets around the opera and stop near foreign looking passers-by with an innocent request for a light.

Their request granted, they would suggest a drink in some "nice little place round the corner," which later turned out to be a brigand's cave, charging guests exorbitant prices for cocktails and champagne.

One of the Britons beaten up was a knight, the other a student.

The latter, returning to his table after a dance, found on his table five half empty bottles of champagne, instead of the one he had ordered, and his bill was nearly $100.

After being beaten up, he was dragged into a taxi and thrown out in a deserted part of the Bois de Boulogne, where he was found early the next day.

The knight refused to pay $75 for two cups of champagne and was also found unconscious later in the Bois de Boulogne.

MAKE-BELIEVE DUEL CAUSES BOY'S DEATH

Budapest.—Paul Varga, 10 years old, was killed in a make-believe duel at Szombathely, near the Austrian border. He was struck by a bullet from a duelling pistol in the hands of a nine-year-old companion. The boys had pretended they were angry and playfully decided to settle their differences in the best Hungarian tradition on the field of honor. The sound of shots from a locked room brought members of their families, who found Paul dying.

NAZI SHIRTS IMPROVE NESSUS' NETTLE IDEA

Sting Removed From Fibre, Cotton Weave Simulated

Hamburg.—Nettle shirts will soon be on German backs—which will find them no hardship. Professor N. Bredemann of the University of Hamburg has succeeded in breeding a nettle yielding from 11 to 13 per cent. more fibre than previously used varieties of this plant, which has long been in use as a source of coarse textile materials. At the same time the machinery used in the industry has been so improved that the new nettle fabrics resemble cotton weaves of good quality.

PLANE FLIP IS 'FLOP' ZULUS FEAR CRASH

Pleased to Ascend, More Than Glad to Descend Chiefs Say

Durban.—War dances by Insimbini tribesmen and women at the Margate airdrome in Natal were interrupted when Victor Smith, the well-known airman, took up two Zulu Indunas, Nobongo Mkise and Mawenu Mvundhla, for a 10-minutes "flip" in his monoplane.

The crowds gathered to hear the Indunas' impressions, and it soon became evident that they were not made air-minded.

"One minute we were in the plane on the ground and the next minute we were still in the plane but the ground was not there," said one.

"And, oh, it was very bad when the plane had to turn round. We thought there was going to be a big smash then.

"We were very pleased to have been up, but we were more pleased to come down. We do not think we will go up again."

FICTION AND FEATURES

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

CHAPTER 26

"TAKE MY CAR," Julian said, as soon as he knew that Noel at last knew where she could find Jimmy. Then he added, "Hurry, but don't take any unnecessary risks."

He meant of course that Noel was not to let her anxiety to find Jimmy and bring him to Laurie make her drive too fast.

She promised him that she would be careful, and a few minutes later found her on the way to Willow street where the Barton Stave and Spoke company was located.

A policeman gave Noel careful directions. She was to follow the cross-town car tracks, turn at Riverview park, drive about five blocks west, then about three south.

It was a long way out there, and seemed endless to Noel. She found herself at last in a district of small shabby homes with the streets growing more and more narrow as she drove slowly along scanning the numbers on the houses, and then quite abruptly the numbers ended at a high board fence, which was definitely the end of the street.

Noel looked about, puzzled. She saw a sign behind the high fence: "Barton Stave and Spoke company."

So she had found it. The next thing was how to get in. She parked the car and walked around the fence looking for an entrance.

Suddenly a voice spoke to her ear. "What're you lookin' for lady?"

"I'll show you the gate," the man said and walked a few yards down a plank sidewalk which was practically hidden with weeds, to where there was a gate on which was written: "Employees Only."

"It's not locked," he said and opened it for her.

Then Noel stood inside gazing bewildredly at the huge place with its five or six buildings all with numberless windows. No doubt several hundred people worked here. Noel thought. How on earth would she find one man out of all that number when all she knew about him was that his name was Jimmy? But she was going to find nim—that was all there was to it. She would not go back this time without Jimmy.

She had heard the whirring noises before she had entered the yards. But now that she was approaching the buildings, the noise was deafening.

Nobody paid any attention to her—this small, slender girl in a much worn tweed suit and a little "beanie" thrust over her pretty curls. At last Noel timidly entered a building where there were a number of men at work in laborer's clothes.

She stood there for a moment undecidedly. Then she moved toward a man who was in the act of lifting a huge billet of wood to place it on a sort of carrier with wheels.

"I'm looking for a young man by the name of Jimmy," Noel began, trying to raise her voice above the whirr of the machinery. But she couldn't even hear here own voice in that awful din so she felt sure nobody else could hear. The man she had addressed hadn't even lifted his head.

Noel stood there growing more perplexed every minute. Then the man turned to lift up another billet and saw her an expression of surprise crossed his rough kindly face.

He came toward her, beckoned her to come out of the building. Then when he could be sure of being heard, he asked, "What would ye be wantin' miss?"

"I want to find a young man by the name of Jimmy," she said urgently. "That's all I know of his name, but I must find him at once."

The laborer scratched his head.

"'Bout half the men working around here are named Jim or Bill," he said. "Seems like when they run outa names, they always fall back on Jim, it being sorta homey-like. And them that's not named Jim or Bill are mostly Bob or Joe. That's my monicker, Bill."

"But I must find this particular Jimmy at once," Noel urged.

"I'll take ye to the office," the man said, and led the way to a small building which was like a cottage. On the door was written: "Office. No admittance Except on Business."

But Noel went in boldly after the laborer had gone back to his work. A fair-haired young man sat on a high stool behind a cage. Noel explained quickly why she had come.

When she finished, he said in a friendly voice, "Why, that ought to be easy. We'll find a man named Jimmy who knows a girl named Laurie."

Noel was almost able to smile in her great relief.

The young man left the office. He was gone about 20 minutes. When he returned, a young man was with him, red-haired and boyish looking with kind, red-brown eyes.

"I only found about two dozen Jims and Jimmy's, but this is the Jimmy who knows your friend," the fair-haired young man told her. Then added, "His name is Delevan."

"What's wrong with Laurie?" Jimmy asked in a husky voice.

"She has pneumonia," Noel told him gently.

She saw his face go white under his tan. "That's terrible," he exclaimed. Then he turned, "I'll be ready to go with you in about half a minute."

He was wearing a khaki shirt and dark trousers. He disappeared into an ajoining room, and came back wearing a neat dark suit.

"Stay as long as you're needed, Jimmy," the fair-haired man said, resuming his seat on the high stool. "I won't dock you for your time."

"Thank you so much, Mr. Fletcher," Jimmy said gratefully.

Then he and Noel were on their way. "Isn't he swell? John Fletcher, our timekeeper, I mean?" Then Jimmy's young face grew serious. "Laurie," he murmured, "little Laurie. She's one of the sweetest kids in the world. But I guess you know that, don't you?"

"Yes, I do," Noel said warmly.

She drove back rapidly, but the way seemed endless just the same. When they went in, Julian was not there, but there was a look of relief on Ruth Chester's face when she saw Noel with the red-haired young man. She took Jimmy's arm and said: "Just be very quiet and sit here by Laurie's side so in case she opens her eyes, she'll see you."

Laurie was very restless, tossing her head from one side of the bed to the other, flailing her thin little arms, using up what little reserve strength she might have had. Today had been one of her worst days. It seemed as if her frail hold on life might be loosened at any moment.

In her restlessness she turned her face toward Jimmy.

"Laurie," he whispered huskily.

It seemed as if her restlessness ceased in that moment. Her eyes opened. She looked straight into Jimmy's face. But there was no recognition in her eyes.

She was quiter, however, all during the long night, while Jimmy kept his vigil by her side.

Noel hurried back from Luigi's to find there was no change, however, in Laurie's condition, even though she was quieter.

The next morning, early, Noel was standing at the foot of the bed, Jimmy still in the chair he had occupied all night.

Laurie lay still, her eyes closed. Suddenly they opened. "Hello, Jimmy," she said weakly. "I wanted to—" but she was too weak to finish.

Her voice died away, her eyes closed wearily. A fain smile crossed her face and vanished. After which she lay motionless.

Noel had never been so frightened. Was this the end? She called Ruth, and the nurse hurried to the bed.

The Examiner Fashion Service

School and college girls "mix-your-own" with this smart two-piece dress. It affords no end of variety ....and won't strain your budget, either. The soft draped neckline blouse may be worn with other skirts. The smooth hipline gored skirt gives you lots of opportunities to wear all your sweaters and your tailored shirt blouses.

All-in-one material as a woolly-looking weave rayon crepe is particularly attractive for this model. Even your most intimate friend won't ever suspect you used the same pattern. Have your way about the sleeves....long or short.

Other fascinating suggestions are tartan color plaid woollens, alpaca and rayon wool mixture, wool jersey, etc.

Style No. 2119 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, 19 years. Size 15 requires 1⅛ yards of 39-inch material for blouse with ½ yard 2-inch ribbon for bow. The skirt requires 2 yards 39-inch material.

Looking Back On This Date

AUGUST 26

On this date in 1848 a letter from the Earl of Elgin to Earl Grey, the colonial secretary was on its way from Montreal to London, containing as an enclosure, a long and pathetic letter from W. L. Mackenzie written the previous February. In addition to the plea for pardon and the many expressions of regret for the folly of his course in having taken to arms in 1837, Mackenzie turned all the power of his vitriolic pen upon conditions in the United States at that time and asserted the British were indeed free when compared with the white Americans who were slaves of the politicians, while many of them held human beings in a slavery which Britain would not permit.

Fred Williams.

It is one of the curiosities of history that Mackenzie should thus have so strongly opposed annexation to the United States just at the time when the Tory merchants of Montreal had openly declared for absorption and many of the leading Tory politicians had joined in the demand for separation from Britain. The rebels of 1837 had become the loyalists of 1848, and the so-called loyalists who had dubbed the Mackenzie reformers in 1837 as rebels were themselves advocating armed action against Lord Elgin and openly, in press and on platform, demanding the murder of the Queen's representative.

Ogle R. Gowan, the Orange leader and fiery Tory editor, was one of the most bitter opponents of Elgin and organized a demonstration at Brockville for mid-September which, for sedition and denunciation of the governor-general, made anything that Mackenzie had said against Sir Francis Bond Head very mild indeed.

On the other hand, Mackenzie stood by Elgin's conduct in accepting the advice of his ministers. He did not see eye to eye with them; but they represented the people, and must direct; though he, like Papineau was not so much enamored with the fruits of self-government when it had come, as he had fancied. Neither of the leaders of 1837 were inclined to trust the people in 1848-9. Perhaps, having been sort of dictatory themselves, they did not appreciate a situation where a leader had to subordinate his own wishes to that of the people's will.

American Women Are Best Dressed In World, Hence There Is Little Need For Them To Adopt Continental Custom Of Having Husbands With Them When They Go Shopping

WHOM do women dress to please? Do they get their clothes with a view to attracting the masculine gaze or to turn their sister women green-eyed? It is a problem as old as which came first, the hen or the egg, and as little solved.

A famous man columnist undertook the other day to unriddle this riddle. He opines that women dress for men and such bein gthe case, he thinks that women, and especially wives, make the mistake of their lives in not taking husbands shopping with them and getting the benefit of their advice and judgment in picking out their hats and gowns. Such, he tells us is the custom of Continental Europe, where husbands take a real heart interest in their wives' clothes and do not feel, as Americans do, that they have done all that could be expected of them when they pay their bills.

But the gentleman does not go into details as to how the plan works out, which is perhaps just as well, because observation has shown those of us who have traveled much abroad that the rank and file of American women are better dressed and more smart looking than even the same class of French women. So husbands' clothes sense can't be so superior after all. Also, there is abundant evidence to show that when a husband picks out his Dolly's frocks she doesn't stay any more glamorous and alluring to him than she does when she selects them herself. So what?

There is no use in getting excited over the matter, however, for one of the foreign customs that will never be imported into America is that of a wife leaving the choice of her wardrobe to her husband. The most trusting woman wouldn't do it, unless she happened to be married to a milliner or dressmaker, and then she wouldn't think his taste was so hot.

Indeed, the one subject on which American husbands and wives universally agree is that shopping together is—well—something that shouldn't be risked unless they were seeking cause for divorce. Most men are as terrified of entering a department store with their wives as they would be of venturing into a jungle filled with ravenous animals with only a woman for protection. And most wives regard going on a buying expedition with their husbands as an ordeal that qualifies them for a martyr's crown.

Far, far better our pleasant division of the clothes proposition, where the wife has the fun of buying what she wants and the husband, having had no responsibility in the selection, has the diversion of ridiculing it and saying: "What, is that contraption your new hat? It looks like a combination epileptic fit and a case of delirium tremens." "Gosh, you don't mean to say that wisp of nothingness is an evening gown! Why, there isn't enough of it to make a pen wiper." And so on. What men would do if deprived of their jokes about their wives' sartorial blunders one trembles to think. Many a one who sets the table in a roar when he is invited out to dinner would be virtually dumb.

Now I am not contending that women invariably show good taste or judgment in the selection of their clothes. Far from it. All about us we see ladies who look as if their worst enemy had dressed them. Withered old women in frocks that would be too young for their granddaughters. Fat wowen whose backs look like a tub of lard and skinny women who are nothing but an anatomical display of ribs and vertebra in the same decolletage at parties. Tall woman and short women wearing the same "little number." Until one wonders what malign devil influences so many women to pick out the clothes that will bring out all of their worst points.

If husbands could prevent this by going shopping with their wives heaven knows it would be their sacred duty to do so, but they would make even worse blunders than their Marias do. For the average man has little imagination about dress, as witness the hideous, dull-colored, tubular garments he incases himself in. Most of them have crude taste in color, and not one man in a thousand knows that it is just as important to consider a woman's personality as her complexion in the way she dresses.

Nor do they bear suitability in mind. Every middle-aged wife has had her husbnd ask her why she didn't buy a pink chiffon like the one some pretty debutante has. And every wife has gnashed her teeth over the expensive green hat that her husband bought her as a present and that made her look like a saleratus biscuit.

So letting a husband buy his wife's clothes isn't going to solve the clothes problem for women. That is one pie out of which every wife wants her husband to keep his fingers.

DEAR MISS DIX—I do not know whether to marry or be a great artist. I am a girl of 15 and very much in love. Which would you advise me to do? UNDECIDED VICKY.

Answer:

Neither at present. Wait five years before you try to make up your mind on the subject. Art is long, you know, and so is marriage. There is plenty of time to consider the matter.

All-Year Slip Covers Modernize Your Rooms

Try Smart Cord Finish

"How shabby our living-room looks!" Mary almost wept after her week-end visit to Ann's lovely home.

Today she's laughing at her tears as faded upholstery, dingy cushions disappear beneath bright new slip covers.

When she decided to cover that big chair with beige crash, Mary took an interior decorator's tip — finished the seams with ornamental cord matching the clear burgundy tones in both rug and draperies. Our diagram shows how the cord's whipped over the seams.

It's inexpensive — and fun — to brighten rooms the modern slip-cover way. To give your covers a professional, glovelike fit, smooth material over chair, pin firmly every 3 inches, cut along pin line, allowing 1½ inches for seams. Baste and try on. Machine stitch — and the deed is done.

You'll find diagrams and step-by-step directions for making all kinds of chair and sofa slip covers in our 32-page booklet. Fabrics, color schemes, styles.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO MAKE SLIP COVERS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Now just lie very still. It will only take me a minute to lick your face clean. I've watched the cat do it to her kittens," the white poodle said to Mary Jane, the rag doll. Her face was full of smudges. "Your face will be so clean you'll never recognize it when I get through."

Dear me! The poodle didn't know how true his words were. For after he got through licking Mary Jane's face clean and looked at it, he sprang back in astonishment.

"What's the matter?" the rag doll asked in alarm.

"Your face!"

Face Is Gone!

"What's the matter with my face?"

He sprang back in astonishment.

"It's gone!"

"Gone! Oh my! Gone!"

Nothing was left of Mary Jane's face except her two shoe-button eyes. Laddie had licked the rest of it away.

He was so frightened at what he had done that he turned on his tail and scampered out of the playroom. When he reached the garden he hid under the hedge, hoping that no one would ever see him again.

Meanwhile, Mary Jane lay very still on the floor, just where Laddie had left her. She looked out through her shoe-button eyes, but she couldn't see whether she had a face or not. But the Tin Soldier, who stood guard at the door with his musket over his shoulder, glanced at her and exclaimed: "Umph! No face at all....no face!"

"I'm sorry I haven't a face," she said timidly. "I hope the children won't mind."

The geranium, which stood in its red clay pot on the little table, consoled Mary Jane. "Never mind. Faces aren't nearly as important as they say. I haven't any face, and it doesn't matter a bit. The children will love you just the same."

"Oh, thank you," Mary Jane said. But the next moment she sighed. Even though her face had been plain, she still wished she had it. It was ever so much better than not having any face at all.

And at that moment the door to the playroom suddenly opened.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, August 27.

A ratner active and prosperous day is the augury based on the lunar transits. But while there may be certain gain in business, in writings, publishing and kindred undertakings, with some advance in employment or in the good graces of superiors, there also is a sign of a sudden upset or unwelcome misadventure. It may involve small loss, or an irritating situation in which personal correspondence may play a part. Be careful with writings.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly active and progressive year, with some recognition or favors in employment, or some rather satisfactory activity in business. Yet, an irritating or upsetting situation may suddenly arise, involving a small loss, or creating much concern in relation to a private writing or letter. Discretion in this direction is enjoined.

We Noticed

....That the air carries a subtle hint of Autumn...and that feminine thoughts already are turning toward the soft, rich coloring and glamorous new styles coming into the limelight for the Fall season...and already appearing in Peterborough shops.

✧ ✧ ✧

...For instance...the romance of long ago is combined with the incomparable chic of the present in fetching little hats we saw in one shop to-day...made entirely of feathers, and just as light, was one lovely model...in a warm, rich wine, it had tiny, exotic birdlets of old rose perched lightly 'round the birm. Another was of jewel-green iridiscent feathers made in the shape of the old-fashioned fur toques once worn by our mothers. and dads. Exquisite sprays of gleaming color, bewitching little bird models...all feathers, were on display, too, and would lift any last season hat out of the common-place into the gayety of a new season.

✧ ✧ ✧

...Of special interest, also, was the tweed outfit noticed in a shop window. It was of rusty-rose. The skirt was straight and trimly tailored, and there was a plain little waistcoat zipped up the front. The coat, reaching almost to the skirt hem, had a soft, luxury-collar of beige fur.

Valentino in Death Again Stars

Rudolph Valentino, 12 years dead starred in another drama of emotions as hundreds of women stopped to pay tribute at his crypt on the anniversary of his death. Flowers and letters, from all parts of the world, filled the room where Valentino's ashes repose in a small crypt. Women admirers of the late screen star are shown, ABOVE, as they paid their respects to the memory of "the screen's greatest lover."

Jolly Corn Roast Is Held At Cavan

A jolly corn roast was held on Thursday evening at Cavan, when Miss Audrey Keene and her aunt, Mrs. Lloyd Sutton, were hostesses to the staff of Hall's Store.

A variety of outdoor games provided plenty of fun and merriment and the evening was happily completed by sing-songs around the camp fire.

Those who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Bedford, Mrs. Keegan, Mr. and Mrs. L. Sutton, and the Misses Marion Freeman, Ruth Pogue, Kay Murphy, Helen Bedford, Margaret Thompson, Wilda Saunders, Elfie Saunders, Myrtle Dark, M. Pinning, Phyllis Harris, Audrey Keene, Bryer Edmonds, Mary Tinney, Gladys Gerrard, and Messrs. L. Cassey, R. Wilson, C. Nevins, J. Clark, F. Trotter, S. Saunders, and P. McCamus.

Bride-Elect Given Miscellaneous Shower

Mrs. George Robinson and Miss Mary Trotter were hostesses Wednesday evening at Mrs. Robinson's home on Lansdowne street to about thirty-eight young people of Bethany Tabernacle, when they met to hold miscallaneous shower in honor of one of their group, Miss Jean Millen, whose wedding to Mr. Robert Armstrong takes place early in September.

The gifts were presented to the bride-elect in an unusual manner, and were concealed under each tier of a three-tiered wedding cake of white and pink crepe covered cardboard, topped by a miniature bride.

During the evening games and singing were enjoyed around a camp fire on the lawn, and later refreshments were served, picnic style.

Thursday evening Miss Millen and her fiance, Mr. Armstrong, were again entertained, when a pantry shower was given for them at the home of Mr. and Mrs .M. L. Latimer, Burnham street, and recently a kitchen shower in honor of the bride-elect was given, with Mrs. Art Millen, Murray street, as hostess.

Wash Pillows With or Without Feathers

Pillows may be washed without removing the feathers. Choose a breezy day with a hot sun. Make a strong suds and add some soda to it. Dip the pillows up and down in this and swish them about until the innermost feathers have been reached. Do this a second time in a cleaner suds and rinse in three lukewarm waters. When all excess water has been squeezed out, hang them on the line in the sun and wind. Beat and turn them end for end frequently during drying.

The most satisfactory way of washing pillows is to remove the feathers to a bag several times the size of the pillow and to wasn feathers and pillow ticking separately. To remove the feathers sew together the opening into the pillow and into the bag and shake and pull the feathers through this opening from one to the other, then sew up the bag with the feathers in it. After washing, return the feathers to the ticking in the same way.

The washing process is the same as above, but when the ticking has been washed, rub a very stiff cooked starch all over the inside of the ticking and let it dry. This will close the pores of the ticking and prevent the feathers from working through.

A Housewife Walks Eight Miles a Day

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 26.—The national association of chiropodists, in convention here, figured yesterday that the average housewife walks eight miles a day in pursuit of her duties of dusting, cooking and making for the front door to greet hubby when he's late for dinner.

All the miles afoot in one year, laid end-to-end, is the equivalent of walking from the Atlantic to the Pacific; and, in something less than nine years, is the equal to a walk around the world at the equator the pedal physicians added.

The point is, explained Dr. Herman Sonderling of New York, that women should not wear floppy bedroom slippers or run-down shoes while working around the house. "They wouldn't wear bedroom slippers for an eight mile walk in the woods, would they?" the doctor asked.

Bolivia has ruled that drunken motorists caught following accidents must bear a large scarlet hand in a conspicuous place on their cars, may be arrested at any time and are forbidden from parking within 300 feet of a liquor dispensary.

Do You Know?

That a warmed-up roast often loses its moisture? If you wrap it in grease-proof paper that has been greased heavily before you put the roast in the oven, it will reheat a better flavor and be juicier than if heated in the ordinary way?

✧ ✧ ✧

Moths can be kept out of wardrobes by wetting a cloth with spirits of turpentine and then rubbing the inside? Do not forget the hinges, hooks and hangers.

✧ ✧ ✧

Salad oil should be stored in a dry, cold place. Coffee, tea, sugar, baking powder, spices, soda, cream of tartar and cereals in a dry, dark place?

Wife Preservers

If you serve brick ice cream on a glass or china plate, you will find it does not melt so quickly if a wafer or cookie is put on the plate first. The cookie acts as insulation.

It takes a pack of energy to keep going at top speed. It takes plenty of the right kind of nourishment. Try Kellogg's Bran Flakes. Enjoy their golden toasted crispness. Full of energy-goodness. Sues a Rothschild

Mrs. Dorothy Urdang Rothschild, of Los Angeles, is asking $50,000 heart balm from her husband's mother, wealthy Mrs. Mildred Rothschild alleging that the mother-in-law broke up her marriage by "subtle contrivances." The young wife (aged 18) filed suit for divorce from Richard Moritz Rothchild, 24-year-old broker, who is a descendant of the famous Rothschild European banking family. The elder Mrs. Rothschild was accused of threatening to disinherit her son and of making slanderous references to her son's wife, according to the action.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"When Goethe says that in every human condition foes lie in wait for us, invincible only by cheerfulness and equanimity," he does not mean that he can at all times be really cheerful, or at a moment's notice; but that the endeavour to look at the better side will produce the habit, and that this habit is the surest safeguard against the danger of sudden evils."—Leigh Hunt.

Dear Friends: This is rather a hard habit to learn, sort of looking for the bright side no matter what comes along. But, often if we grumble too much, life has a way of hitting us harder, just because we have let our eyes turn inward to pity for ourselves, and so we were caught off guard.

Sometimes I go 'way down in the depths of despair. Life is not one little bit as I would like it to be, and so I let myself gloom a bit and get it over with. You know, if you fight a thing too much you are going against your natural feelings, but if you give in to them for a little, you get it sooner out of your system.

Then, when I am coming up for air, I look for all the good there is in my condition. If I am lonely (and I very often am, too ofen in fact, for my own comfort) I begin to think of the time in my life when I should have liked to be alone more often, and get some small comfort out of that.

If I am upset, I think of how stale life would be if we never had anything to upset us and stir us out of ourselves. If I am ill at ease due to the lack of money, I think of all the things I will do when I get some.

If there seems too much work to do, I think how I would hate it if there were not any at all, and I also think how much more I shall enjoy rest and change when it comes.

If I am tired with travelling, I think of how tired I was at standing still. And this way of looking at things did not come overnight but had to be learned as a safeguard against sudden evils.

Why we are not taught these things when we are young will forever be a mystery to me. We are taught so many things we never can use, but a proper way of meeting life with our head up, never seems to occur to those who teach us, neither parents nor teachers.

We are left to work out our own destiny, many times without adequate tools, for just as tools are necessary for machinery, so are they necessary to adequate living. What are they? Knowledge of ourselves first of all, whether we take things hard or light, and how to handle ourselves in either case.

Knowing how to get up gracefully when life has knocked us down, and none can say that does not happen often. Not to take ourselves and others too seriously, for that is the way we get hurt so much. Not to depend on others so much for our fun or pleasures, for sometimes they will not want us.

Learning that the one who said, "every cloud has a silver lining," knew truly what he said, and training ourselves to look for this silver lining. Learning to be DONE with things when the time comes, not to hang on to the fringes of the past, while reaching out for the fulness of the future. We get lopsided when we do that.

Teaching ourselves to get every bit of pleasure we can even in loneliness and bitter hurt, for there is always some ways in which we can do that. Getting it into our heads that cheerful ones are more welcome than woeful ones, and not to feel resentful because it is so. There are few if any, who have not said many times, "It's a heck of a life," so we are not alone, we only think we are. Going to try it this way? That's good.

Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Doll Hats Are Irresistible in Lovely Colors

(By LISBETH)

YOU MAY think the doll hats are goofy, but they are irresistible, nevertheless. And then there are the chapeaux that are not so small, to.

The wide brimmed, "picture" type of hat is being featured to wear with the first fall suits, which are not fur trimmed.

But the tiny "lid" is the newest and most attractive to women who always are intrigued by something new.

Even the beret, a never popular number, has gone high hat this autumn, as you can see by looking at the one shown here. This is a garnet-colored silky felt model. A feather emphasizes its height, and it is destined to be worn with black and gray as well as with the new blues and greens.

Fetching Tricorne

The very etching black velvet tricorne, center, is a modified version of that well-liked theme and has multi-colored ostrich tips ranging from dull blue to reddish-purple plum tones cascading down the side.

This colorful little summer-into-autumn chapeau heralds the wearing of rich colors this fall.

Very smart if you're the type to wear it is the visored cap of black velvet, right. Its Edwardian ostrich tip flutters proudly and high. It is anchored to the back of the head and shows the coiffure. All three hats are from Jeanne Tete, New York.

Worn With Bi-Color Dress

The violet shades are very much used in the new velvet hats for fall. They range from the lightest lilac and to the deepest plum and red-purples.

At this stage of the game there is more color on hats than for some seasons. And deep, rich colors are preferred.

An American airline is planning regular passenger plane service between New York and Europe by 1941, with each crossing taking 15 to 18 hours.

English Costumes From Early Ages

A study of woman's dress cannot fail to be of interest to women. The fairer sex has always been naturally anxious to array itself in the most becoming and pleasing styles, from the day of Eve, attired in a fresh, green garland of fig leaves, to the styles of 1938, when dainty, feminine dress has triumphed over the masculine styles of a few years ago.

Glancing through the pages of history at the Public Library, one comes upon most interesting data regarding costumes.

As one goes through the illustrations dealing with the past ages, it is noticed that, with the exception of a few odd centuries where feminity seems to have gone mad, the female mind has, on the whole, been fairly sensible regarding dress.

These illustrations are beautifully colored, and follow the changes of the garments reign by reign, fold by fold, button by button, reducing the wardrobe for each reign down to its simplest cuts and folds, and begun with the reign of William the First in the year 1066.

Dress of Norman Lady Plain.

Nothing could be plainer or more homely than the dress of a Norman lady of that time. Her loose gown was made with ample skirts, and the shapeless garment, made with skirts reaching to the ground, was gathered in at the waist by a belt of wool, cloth, silk, or cloth of gold web. The border was ornamented with fine needlework. Over all was worn a cloak of semi-circular shape, about three feet in diameter, which was brooched in the centre, or on the shoulder.

On the head, where the hair was closely coiled with a few curls at the forehead, a wimple was worn, which was wound about the head and thrown over the shoulder, not allowing the hair to show. Evidently the woman of that day had not learned that her crowning glory was her hair! These wimples were almost like a mantle, and fell over the shoulder below the breast. The shoes were of skin and leather shaped naturally to the foot and strapped or buckled across the instep. The tops were sometimes ornamented with colored bands.

Hats for Autumn Will Be Practical

The hat silhouettes for autumn are largely practical, and with an occasional exception in a tiny hat for formal wear, are designed for general acceptance. There are pillboxes with bright trimmings or irregular formations, tricornes which are of comfortable proportions with bows for height, and many spectator sports hats with brims that expose the hair at one side and with conical, high crowns, the height augmented by off-shooting quills.

Among the brimless styles are a number of very high fez shapes, made of suede in a combination of two or more colors, striped or in patchwork effect. Also numerous are the visor effects, which complement different small silhouettes, with or without brims.

FOUR OF A KIND

LONDON—(CP). — Two 18-year-old twin sisters were married to twin brothers in a Hackney church. They met two years ago while working for the same firm. And now they're going to live in the same house.

Do You Know?

A convenient way of keeping paraffin is in a lipped utensil or a cheap tin teapot for quick melting and convenient pouring?

◇ ◇ ◇

Soaps which contain alkali will injure linoleum, paint and varnish, as well as wool, silk and delicate fabrics, because they all contain oil?

Parchment Shades Easily Cleaned

Parchment shades will clean beautifully, but to play safe one should have clear shellac on hand to follow the cleaning so the shades will not warp or be dul. in appearance. Dampen a cloth with warm water, soap it well and then wring as dry as possible. Wipe off the shade with this rag, changing to a clean piece when soiled. Dry with a towel, although the shade really should not be very wet, then paint the surface carefully with white shellac. Your shades will look like new.

WOMAN SETS PRECEDENT

LONDON—(CP).—Precedent was set recently when the Post Office department accepted designs by a woman for the new greetings telegram form. All previous forms were designed by well-known male artists.

ENGAGEMENTS

The engagement is announced of Miss Betty Pilling, daughter of Mr. W. J. Pilling of Rochester, N.Y., to Mr. Victor Allen, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Allen of Epsom, England. The wedding will take place quietly on September second.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wood, 24 Stewart street, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Marion Eleanor, to Gerald Francis Grose of Belleville, son of Mrs. E. Grose and late Mr. Grose of Peterborough. Marriage to take place latter part of September.

IN MEMORIAM

ABRAHAM.—In loving memory of Mr. J. W. Abraham, who passed away August 26, 1936.

He had a cheery smile, a pleasant way,
A helping hand to all he knew.
He was so kind, so generous, so true.
On earth he nobly did his best;
Grant him, Jesus, heavenly rest.

—Ever remembered by Essie, Alf., and Family.

ABRAHAM.—In memory of James Abraham.

—From A. Rose and Family.

ABRAHAM.—In loving memory of J. W. Abraham, who passed away August 26, 1936.

At the going down of the Sun and in the Morning (we remember).

—By Sons and Families.

ABRAHAM.—In loving memory of J. W. Abraham, who passed away August 26, 1936.

His charming ways and smiling face
Are a pleasure to recall.
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.

—Sadly missed by his loving Wife.

GRAHAM.—In loving memory of a dear Mother, Mrs. James Graham, who passed away August 27, 1932, and a dear Father, Mr. James Graham, who passed away September 30, 1932.

They were called from this world of sorrow
Leaving sweet memories of love;
But their souls shall live on forever
In the beautiful world above.
More and more each day I miss them,
Though my thoughts are not revealed
Little do they know the sorrow
That is within my heart concealed.
A silent thought, a secert tear,
Keeps their memory ever dear;
Time takes away the edge of grief
But memory turns back every leaf.

—Sadly missed by their daughter, Mrs. J. A. McAdam.

NORLEY. — In loving memory of Harry Charles Norley, son of the late James and Mary Norley, and beloved husband of Kitty Phillips Norley, who passed away August 26th, 1937.

CARDS OF THANKS

Mr. William Adams and Miss Adams, Lakefield wish to express their sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors who have been so kind during the illness and death of their sister, and to those who sent flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lambert and family wish to thank their many friends for the many floral tributes and expressions of sympathy in their recent sad bereavement.

Mr. R. Findlay and family wish to express their appreciation for the many acts of kindness, floral tributes, expressions of sympathy and condolence, and the use of cars extended by their friends and neighbors during the recent illness and death of a beloved Wife and Mother.

Howe Holidaying

BOSTON, Aug. 26 (CP).—Clarence D. Howe, Canadian Minister of Transport, and Mrs. Howe arrived here yesterday by plane from Ottawa. He said they were going to join their five children at Rockport, Mass., where they have a summer home.

Mr. Howe said President Roosevelt's speech at Kingston, Ont., in which he indicated this country would go to the aid of Canada in the event of foreign invasion, strengthened the bond of friendship between the two countries.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

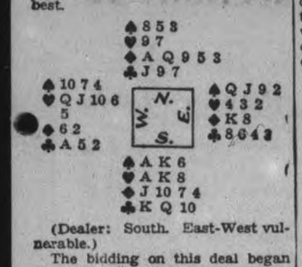
"The Authority on Authorities"

WAIT FOR THE HATCH

IT DOESN'T pay to count your chickens before they are hatched, in bridge or any other phase of life. What looks like an utterly sure thing may turn out to the contrary. Your nervous system will be spared many a shock if you prepare for the worst while striving for the best.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal began with South, who called 1-No Trump. After a 2-Diamond response by North, South took the contract to 3-No Trumps.

When the heart Q was led, South allowed the trick to hold. West continued with the heart J and declarer won with the K. He next played the diamond J, which lost to East's K. The heart return drove out South's last control in that suit. After cashing four diamonds, declarer now attempted to drive out the club A and when West took the trick he cashed two more hearts, setting South one trick.

The simple procedure of driving out the club A before he attempted to try the diamond finesse and while the other suits were well under control, would have earned declarer a very different score.

Unknown Bird Shot

WARDSVILLE, Ont., Aug. 26 (C. P.). — Flapping wings and ringing bells drew the attention of harvest hands on the farm of J. A. King, near here. A huge, unknown bird was chasing a crow across the sky, which it soon caught in its powerful claws. The bird was shot by one of the hands, and was found to have a wingspread of two and a half feet. Bluish-grey in color, it had a small bell attached to each leg. Neither bell bore markings.

Where To Put Gum

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 26—(C. P.). — When a court official warns someone in a court room to dispose of their chewing gum, it is sometimes a problem where to put it. Painters redecorating a Hamilton court room fund most persons have the old-fashioned habit of sticking the gum under the bench. They found every bench in the court room plastered with rows of discarded chicle.

Grandmother Wins Prize Institute Picnic

MILLBROOK, Aug. 26.—The annual picnic outing of the Women's Institute, postponed from an earlier date on account of rain, was held on Tuesday at 3 p.m., at the school grounds, with a good attendance and an enjoyable sports' program, the latter in charge of Mrs. E. C. Richards, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, and Mrs. G. O. Fallis.

When all had gathered, the proceedings were opened by singing the Institute Ode, after which an alphabetical contest was enjoyed, conducted by Mrs. E. C. Richards, the winner being Mrs. J. W. Hilton, who received a case containing three cakes of fine toilet soap, and perfume.

The races were entered into with enthusiasm, the list of winners including:

Children, under 12: Ronald Harkness; Children, under 8: Benny Handley; (each entrant in these two classes received a prize); Girls 12 and under: Marguerite Powell; Junior Ladies' Race: Jean Hendry (Peterborough); Marian Harkness; Paper race: Mary Widdis.

The prize to the grandmother with the largest number of grandchildren went to Mrs. Mary Sloan, who has fifteen, who was presented with a box of fine handkerchiefs.

The prize for the mother with the largest number of children on the grounds went to Mrs. David Lunn, who was given a pink crystal bowl, holding three kinds of jelly powders.

The prize to the youngest W. I. member present was awarded to Mrs. Allie Sloan her gift being a glass relish dish.

A peanut scramble in which everyone participated completed the sports' events, after the 'hopping race' had been won by Mrs. Alex Harkness, who was given a yellow bulb bowl, Mrs. D. Lunn coming second; and the draw for the prize for the babies, which was won by Caroline Harkness (the mothers doing the drawing of the numbered slips); and the novelty crawling race, the winners being Mrs. D. Olan, with Mary Widdis coming in second. Mrs. Olan's prize was a handsome china cake plate, with hunting scene in colors.

For the abundant picnic tea all sat around on the grass, an informal service on the 'pass around' style seeing that all appetites were fully satisfied, Mrs. D. Lunn making the tea at her nearby home, and bringing it over to the picnic grounds piping hot.

Two Babies Burned While Mother Visited Neighbors

La Toque, Que., Aug 26.

MRS. LOUIS BOUDREAULT'S two babies burned to death in their home at Lake Rechie, 12 miles from here, while she was visiting neighbors early today.

Mrs. Boudreault said there was no fire on in the house when she left it. The babies, aged seven months and 17 months, were alone.

She noticed the flames on her return and tried to enter the house, but the intense heat turned her back. The dwelling was burned to the ground.

Three other Boudreault children survive.

PENSIONS PAID

FREDERICTON, N.B.—(CP).—A total of 11,261 persons in New Brunswick received $158,873 as old age pensions in July. The province pays a quarter of this and the federal government the remainder. A total of 336 blind persons received $8,920.

Forgiven By Dad On His Death Bed Youth Tells His Story In Court

TORONTO, Aug. 25. — A slim, sandy-haired youngster of 17 years, convicted last week of shopbreaking, stood up in the witness box yesterday and in hushed tones told a story that touched the case-hardened court officials.

The good-looking youth, William Banks, was convicted and remanded for sentence last Thursday. Two days later his father was killed in an automobile collision.

His appearance in court yesterday as a Crown witness against two of his alleged confederates, was the outcome of a heart-to-heart talk with his father, a few hours before the father died.

In a voice so low it was inaudible a few feet from the witness box, the well-dressed boy told of his part in an escapade similar to many that have started other boys on the road of crime. He met his accomplices in a hamburger stand on Bloor street.

Had Father's Car.

"I had a car . . ." he began, when Magistrate Browne inquired, "Whose car?" The boy hesitated, dropped his chin to his chest, and said: "My dad's. . . . But I had his permission," he quickly assured the court.

Evidently until this time the Magistrate, Crown Attorney and other officials were unaware of what the boy was going through. A whispered conference worked a miracle in the tone of the proceedings. Some one revealed the boy's father had just died.

In a kinder voice, Magistrate Browne told the boy to continue his story. Obviously affected by the sympathy of his questioners, the witness told how, on the return from Sunnyside, his four companions planned to break into the Dominion Store on Bloor street. He was to be the lookout as he had the car.

Stole Cigarets.

They stole a quantity of cigarets and then drove back to the hamburger stand and parked the car in the rear. The loot was hidden underneath before the youths scattered. A few minutes later, the boy said, he was picked up while drinking a bottle of pop, and after being cautioned, made a statement, confessing his part in the affair and implicating the others.

Two of the four youths on trial yesterday were remanded a week for judgment.

Loyalist Ship Loses Sea Battle

Fights Off 4 Rebels, Gets 20 Killed, Limps To Gibraltar

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 27 (P).—Twenty men were killed and 14 wounded today aboard the Spanish government destroyer Jose Luis Diez in a thnderous 2½-hour battle with four insurgent warships in the strait of Gibraltar.

Most of the victims were drowned in the forward compartment of the destroyer. The wounded were taken to the military hospital here.

The Jose Luis Diez—of 1,650 tons normal displacement and built Aug. 25, 1928—left Le Havre, France, amid great secrecy a week ago after undergoing repairs for eight months.

She sought to reach Valencia and the insurgent warships had been trying to intercept her all week.

The battered government ship limped into this port after the battle and lay at the gun wharf. She was down at the bows and appeared to be in danger of sinking.

The thunder of heavy gunfire from batteries at Ceuta—a Spanish seaport across the strait in northern Morocco—awakened this keypoint of British naval power early this morning. Thousands watched the battle from vantage points on the famous rock of Gibraltar.

Flashes Light Strait

The strait was lighted up by the recurrent, brilliant flash of gunfire and the restless beams of searchlights from Ceuta and Carnero Point.

The insurgent cruiser Canarias and three insurgent destroyers were anchored off Algeciras, Spanish fortified seaport five miles west of Gibraltar, when they opened up on the government ship.

This was the first important Spanish naval engagement since the Spanish government fleet torpedoed the 10,000-ton insurgent cruiser Baleares off Cape Palos in the Mediterranean March 6. Six hundred of Baleares' crew of 800 went down with the vessel off Cartagena.

The engagement was in the same general area where the famous British naval hero, Viscount Nelson, defeated the French in the historic battle of Trafalgar on Oct. 21, 1903.

Describes Alaska Land Of Opportunity

SEATTLE, Aug. 27—(CP)—Rt. Rev. Peter Trible Rowe, 82-year-old Canadian-born Episcopal Missionary Bishop of Alaska, was back in Seattle today after his 43rd year in the rugged northland.

Just a visit for the oldest Bishop of his church in the United States before he returns to the 10,000 communicants in the district he covers by dog sled, boat, airplane and afoot.

"It is a land of opportunity," said Bishop Rowe, native of Meadowville, Ont. "Were I a young man today, I would settle in interior Alaska and turn to farming and cattle raising."

He was a Deacon in the church of England in Canada in 1878. Two years later he was ordained and was pastor of an Episcopal church at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., for 13 years.

Hamilton Grows

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 27 (CP).—While other centres are reporting declines in population Hamilton's increased by 1,244 during the past year. It is shown in figures of the assessment department issued today. The city's population is now 155,276.

Surrenders

Mark Sears, object of an all-night search by police officers following the shooting of his brother, Thomas, at the latter's farm near Bexley, Ont., surrendered to police after spending the night hidden in the dense woods surrounding his farm. He allegedly shot his brother through the hip as the outcome of a dispute over land and then fled.

States To Work With Canada In Wheat 'Dump'

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que., Aug. 27.—(CP)—The proposed use of an export subsidy to help move the United States' 100,000,000-bushel wheat surplus was defended today by Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace and he assured Canada the U.S. would co-operate with the Dominion fully when it threw its big exportable crop on the world's markets.

The secretary, in an address prepared for delivery before the Fifth International Conference of Agricultural Economists, denounced long-term and large scale export subsidies as a type of economic warfare he said "almost inevitably harms the nation which uses the subsidy more than it harms anyone else." He found that "in certain emergencies" they might be used for limited and temporary purposes.

"It is just such a situation that now confronts us in the case of wheat," Wallace said. It was necessary the United States' export efforts should work in the direction of eventual stability.

"In carrying out such a subsidy measure," he added, "the United States of course must do everything it can in a co-operative spirit to synchronize its efforts along this line with those of the Canadian Government."

The secretary did not say what form the co-operation with Canada might take, nor did he reveal any

Chemong District Combed For Melville Campbell Wanted For Bank Robbery

Two Strangers Are Seen Searching Cottage And Immediate Vicinity Where Gang Spent Several Days

City and Provincial Police scoured the Chemong Lake district west of Lakefield village last night and early today for two men, believed to be Melville Campbell and his friend Don Edwards, both of whom are wanted in connection with the $12,000 bank robbery at Richmond near Ottawa early in July.

For a week unknown to everybody including local police, the Provincials from Hastings County have kept watch at the Preston summer cottage where two men and two women already arrested in connection with the same robbery had spent three or four days immediately following the crime last month. Police were tipped off at that time when the woman attempted to change several bundles of one dollar bills into bank notes of larger denomination.

Sought Re-Inforcements.

Provincial Constable Palmateer of Bancroft who was keeping watch at the cabin last night spotted two men who drove up in a car and started to search the building and its immediate vicinity with flashlights. He immediately contacted Chief Constable Hendren at Lakefield who phoned this city for reinforcements. Procincial Constables Silvester, Broughton and McClure with Sgt. Wigg, and Constables Menzies and Rogers of the city force rushed to the district. Provincial Constables Hatch, Carruthers and Smith from outside points also converged on Peterborough and reached the Lakefield meeting place in short order.

The two men had disappeared but the officers broke up into four parties and continued the search for the pair until this morning. They combed the district in cars and on foot searching every possible section where they might be hidden, but the work was without success.

Several times during the past week Campbell and Edwards have been reported seen in Toronto. All of these reports have failed to result in his capture, but Toronto police are confident the two are are travelling together.

Wanted for Jail Breaking

Edwards in addition to being wanted for the Richmond Bank robbery is wanted for escaping from jail in Buffalo, N.Y. He made a getaway with Oscar Campbell now held in custody in Ottawa on a charge of armed robbery.

Police in this district refused to even discuss the affair last night but it was learned they believe the robbers may have hidden a part of the $12,000 loot in or near the Preston cottage and placed the guard at the cabin on the possible chance that Campbell and Edwards would return to pick up the money.

When the two arrived after dark last night and began their search by flashlight, police were almost certain that the pair were those wanted and knowing them to be dangerous gunmen waited for reinforcements before rushing the cabin. They found no trace of the men nor their car, and the search was practically abandoned today.

Occupied In July.

The Preston cabin is located on the eastern end of Lake Chemong, and was occupied in July by two women and two men who drove three cars, one a new Chevrolet stolen from the parking lot of the Hughes garage in this city and later recovered without markers in a cedar bush west of Lakefield. Marks at the cabin following the quick getaway of the suspects in July indicated attempts had been made to burn the building, and some damage was done by the promiscuous shooting of the visitors who riddled a building with blasts from a sawed off shotgun, a rifle and revolvers.

At that time police were rather chagrined because the robbers made their escape and the hunt was continued for several days with outside officers directing the men. Within a short time the party was surprised and captured while camping on the Ottawa River and have been charged at Ottawa court with bank robbery.

Ex-Convict Is Crucified For Refusing To Aid In Nevada "Job"

RENO, Aug. 26.—(AP)—A man found nailed to a cross near the state insane asylum at Sparks, Nev., today was identified by police as Ed Collins, released from San Quentin prison in California.

Police Captain B. R. Addenbrooke said Collins was taken to a hospital where it was said he was not in danger unless infection set in.

Collins was found nailed to a cross lying on the ground, his clothing burned.

Collins, after hospital treatment, was quoted by Captain Addenbrooke as follows:

"I was walking home tonight from the Baptist church where I had been to a meeting. Two men I knew grabbed me and asked me to help them 'pull a job.'

"'No,' I said, 'I'm going straight.'

"Then one of them said, 'All right, if you want to be a little Jesus Christ, we'll make one out of you.'

"They drove me out near where you found me and stopped the car.

"Then they took off my clothes and nailed me to the cross."

Addenbrooke reported Collins said he had known the men prior to his arrest on a robbery charge in California, for which he served a prison term. Collins said he was unable to identify them except as "Swede" and "Joe."

"It has all the marks of a grudge crime," said Captain Addenbrooke.

Miner Slips—Dies

KIMBERLEY, B.C., Aug. 27. — (CP).—Hans Anderson was killed at the Sullivan mine here yesterday when he lost his footing and plunged down a 150-foot slope. Details of the accident were not immediately available. He is survived by his wife and a 15-month-old baby.

Season Is Extended To September 15 For Speckled Trout

Toronto, Aug. 27.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made yesterday by D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, that the open season for speckled trout in Ontario will be extended until Sept. 15.

The department feels that the Provincial hatcheries have expanded their program to the point where now their annual propagation and subsequent restocking of lakes and streams with this species of fish can well justify the two weeks extension from Aug. 31.

2 British Aces Dies Fighting Arabs

JAFFA, Palestine, Aug. 27 (AP).—Two royal air force men were killed when their plane, engaged in aiding troops in a night clash with an Arab band, was forced down.

The fight took place near Tul Karm and resulted in the deaths of 11 Arabs and the wounding of scores.

British authorities took precautions to forestall Arab reprisals as the death toll of yesterday's market place bombing mounted.

Latest official figures gave 23 Arabs dead directly from the blast while one Arab was killed and several wounded in subsequent rioting against police. More than 70 were wounded by the explosion.

Troops were rushed to all danger spots and armored cars took positions in Jaffa's main street. Machine gun posts were set up to guard the border between Jaffa and the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

All business in Jaffa was suspended and an indefinite curfew imposed. Arabs called a strike throughout the Holy Land in sympathy with the victims and in protest to the government of the territory.

'Hot' Sticks Work

PORTLAND, Ore. Aug. 27 (AP)—Cowboys hereabouts have gone mechanical. Tired of proddin' cattle up chutes into railroad cars, they invented an electric pole powered by tiny batteries. Now they sit at ease on coral fences while the "hot" sticks do the heavy work.

Where Cyclone Hit

This is all that remains of the farm of Urho Piilo, 45 miles west of Port Arthur, after the Thunder Bay district experienced its first cyclone. The roof was torn from the house in the background, and seven buildings were demolished. In the foreground can be seen the remains of large trees snapped off or uprooted by the twister. Roaring across the district without warning, the cyclone inflicted heavy damage on farm buildings and forests.

Belleville Woman Is Hurled To Death As Girl's Car Roars Across Lawn

BELLEVILLE, Ont., ..Aug. 27.—(CP).—Mrs. Bernard MacNally, 69, was killed here last night as she sat on a bench on a lawn of a house when struck by an automobile driven by Miss Emma Dafoe which got out of control and jumped the curbstone. Mrs. MacNally was knocked 50 feet.

Police said Miss Dafoe, holder of a beginner's driving license, was taking a driving lesson with her father, Albert Dafoe. The accident occurred as the car driver attempted a turn. Mrs. MacNally's two-year-old granddaughter, standing beside her, was uninjured.

Line Up With Britain For Peace Is Simon's Appeal To Hitler

LANARK, Scotland, Aug. 27—(CP Cable)—Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today definitely put Great Britain on the side of peace and justice when clarifying the Chamberlain government's foreign policy to an anxious world.

The Chancellor served notice that Prime Minister Chamberlain's warning to Germany over Czechoslovakia in the House of Commons March 24 "holds good today."

An hour before the Chancellor was scheduled to speak he revised his speech to put his own punch behind Mr. Chamberlain's March warning that Britain might be forced to fight.

"The beginning of a conflict is like the beginning of a fire in a high wind," he said.

"It may be limited at the start. But who can say how far it would spread or how much destruction it would do or who may be called to beat it out?"

Grave Consequences.

In another last-minute insertion, Sir John added this warning:

"This very case of Czechoslovakia may be so critical for the future of Europe that it would be impossible to assume a limit to the disturbance that a conflict might involve and everyone in every country who considers the consequences has to bear that in mind."

Without mentioning Chancellor Hitler or Germany, Sir John issued an unmistakable plea to the Fuehrer

BULLETIN

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Aug. 27—(AP)—Captain George E. T. Eyston smashed the world's automobile speed record to shreds here today, boosting his own mark to 345.49 miles per hour.

Roaring through the measured mile in two directions within one hour, the retired British army captain far exceeded his world land speed record of 311.42, chalked up here last November.

Eyston's mighty "Thunderbolt" pointed black to overcome a glaring sun which robbed him of a new record last Wednesday, hit 347.49 miles per hour on the outward trip and 343.51 miles per hour on the return jaunt.

Czechs Act Fast On Challenge

PRAHA, Aug. 27 (C.P.).—Czechoslovakia, seething with rumors of German diplomatic action abroad against her, took steps to-day to meet the latest challenge of pro-Nazi elements.

Faced with a proclamation from the Sudeten German minority advising its followers to resort to "legitimate self-defence" if attacked by "Marxist adversaries," the government promised "the severest and most energetic police measures" if public security were endangered.

It ordered all the pro-Nazi journals printing the Sudeten German proclamation confiscated, issued a broadcast proclamation warning that the "legitimate self-defence" order was an "illegal act," and banned from Czechoslovakia for two years three German publications.

Protest Insult.

BERLIN, Aug. 27 (A.P.). — The German Minister to Praha has been instructed to protest against an alleged insult to the memory of German soldiers in the Great War by the daily newspaper, Morav-Skoslezski Denik, it was announced today.

The minister was ordered to demand punishment of the responsible editors and guarantees that such insults will not be repeated.

The Czechoslovak paper claimed German soldiers upon conquering a French city, Lille, during the Great War, acted "not like soldiers but like beasts," and gave details to support its assertion.

Charge Guards Covering Up In Steam Case

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—(AP).—Coroner Charles Hersch charged to-day there was a "definite conspiracy on the part of guards to cover up what really happened" at the Philadelphia county prison where four convicts met myterious deaths in super-heated punishment cells.

The coroner said the "conspiracy" had temporarily delayed his plans to arrest "higher ups" and a "blackjack squad" of guards who he blamed for turning steam on in a battery of large radiators outside the cells and "literally baking the prisoners to death."

"The guards obviously rehearsed their stories in an attempt to whitewash the whole affair," the coroner said.

1,400 Loyalists Fall Captive

HENDAYE, France, Aug. 27.—(AP). — Spanish government despatches reported to-day that militiamen on the Estremadura front were driving south from Puebla De Alcocer to Cascuera in an effort to cut off the spearhead of the insurgent threat against the Almaden Mercury Mines.

Purpose of the drive apeared to be to encircle Cabeza Del Buey, 20 miles west of Almaden and trap the insurgent units stalled in that south-western sector. Cascuera lies directly west of Cabeza Del Buey.

Five small towns were reported taken in the government advance, while two insurgent counter-attacks were said to have been repulsed.

On the Ebro front in Eastern Spain, a Barcelona communique said, government forces were holding their own although Franco's troops were said to have captured several hills. Insurgent dispatches said 1,400 government troops had been captured on the Ebro front.

Nerves Edgy In London Over Czechs

Hitler Asks Rumania, Slavs Be Neutral In Case He Attacks

LONDON, Aug. 27—(CP Cable)—Nervous tension gripped the average Londoner this morning while taking train or bus to his city office.

His morning paper was filled with disquieting reports from Praha and Berlin—reports going to the length of suggesting the possibility of Chancellor Hitler marching into Czecho-Slovakia.

The British Government has taken an extremely serious view of the Czech situation for the past week or 10 days, but only in the last day or two has the average London shared the tension. Heretofore the Londoner has been inclined to dismiss a threat of war as another instance of "tension over Europe."

In the maze of disquieting reports, the most alarming was the persistent but unconfirmed one that Germany has warned various European nations she was tired of waiting for a solution of the Sudeten German minority problem in Czecho-Slovakia and might be forced to take stronger steps. This was interpreted in some quarters as a veiled threat of invasion.

Germany is reported to have told the Balkan nations that support for the Sudeten Germans "with all the means in her power" should not be construed as a threat to Czecho-Slovakia. This failed to relieve the tension to any appreciable extent.

No Break for Awhile?

Informed opinion takes the view the situation will hold for a while and there is no immediate danger of open conflict. The next step in the Czechoslovak domestic quarrel seemed to be up to the Sudeten Germans and their leader, Konrad Henlein, now the czechoslovak Government has outlined a new basis to meet the grievances of the Germanic minority.

Britain issued a plea to "all quarters" to lessen the tension in Czechoslovakia.

A Government statement welcomed the "Conciliatory attitude of the Czechoslovak Government in offering a new basis for negotiations with Nazi-supported, autonomy-seeking Sudeten Germans.

Officials condemned the action of the Sudeten German party in relaxnig the discipline of its members in a proclamation yesterday that freed them to use force in "self defence."

Of the Praha Government's concessions, the statement said:—

"It is to be hoped this contribution may meet with a constructive response and that every effort will be made in all quarters concerned, directly or indirectly, to refrain any act on which may heighten the tension."

It added:

"Issue by the Sudeten Deutsch (German) party of a proclamation relaxing the admirable discipline hitherto displayed is much deplored."

See Government Anxious.

The government statement given out a few hours before the speech of Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequor, on same subject, was received with some surprise and was generally accepted as an indication of the British government's increasing anxiety over the Czechoslovak situation.

It was reported Sir John's speech would be the first of a series of speeches by British cabinet minis-

Prairie Province Manufacturing Shows Comeback To 200 Million Yearly

OTTAWA, Aug. 27 (C.P.).—Manufacturing is making a steady comeback in the Prairie Provinces after drastic declines during the depression years and gross production value now is well over $200,000,000 a year, Government figures disclosed to-day.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics survey of manufacturing industries of the Prairie Provinces, while based on 1936 figures, the latest available, show a definite improvement trend.

Gross production value was $331,601,000 in 1929 and slipped to a low of $164,889,000 in 1933. In 1935 it climbed to $219,483,000 and the next year pushed ahead to $247,707,000. Salaries and wages were knocked down during the depression from $54,915,000 in 1929 to a low of $33,109,000 in 1933. Recovery was obvious in 1937 when they totalled $42,832,000.

While no definite conclusions could be arrived at concerning the present state of manufacturing in the West because the 1937 and 1938 figures are not available, it was assumed that manufacturing was continuing to forge ahead.

Capital invested remained over the $200,000,000 mark throughout the depression. In 1929 it was $247,165,000, dropped to $208,367,000 in 1933 and two years ago was $230,795,000.

Chinese Officials In Jap Puppet States "Die Off" So Fast Progress Bogs

SHANGHAI, Aug. 27 — (AP). — The mortality rate among Chinese officials of Japanese-sponsored local governments has made Japan's task of organizing puppet administrations slow and difficult.

More than a dozen such officials have been assassinated and attempts have been made on the lives of a score of others.

Chinese, described by their countrymen as "patriots," even have made attempts on the life of the head of the Japanese-sponsored Peiping government in North China. But so far their bombs and bullets have failed to remove any member of the two major puppet regimes that at Peiping and another at Nanking, frmer capital of China.

Most of Japan's Chinese puppet officials were opponents of the National government or General Chiang Kai-Shek. Some, Chinese say, were drafted at the risk of losing their property or to save themselves and their families from harm.

Those in Shanghai live in daily fear of their lives. All know they are on the "patriots" black list and move with utmost caution.

No Immigration Jump Till Europe Cools And Things On Farm Improve

OTTAWA, Aug. 27. — (CP).—Government officials indicated here yesterday that they saw little possibility of an increase in immigration to Canada until European tension eased and Canadian farming conditions improved.

Speeches of Agriculture Minister Gardiner during his British Columbia tour brought the immigration issue back into the sphere of public discussion but it was learned here the government had no immediate intention of changing its policy of allowing people to enter Canada who are able to support themselves for a reasonable length of time and who know how to farm.

Immigration experts here said that people who could comply with Canadian requirements and would be welcomed are not anxious to come and those who are anxious to come cannot comply with the regulations. This has been the chief cause of the decline in immigration and last year only about 12,000 immigrants arrived.

The railways and manufacturing concerns seek to assist selected immigrants, officials said, but the farming organizations are opposed to immigration.

"They ask us why we should bring out more people to grow wheat when it is going to be quite a job to sell the wheat grown by the people already here," one official said.

Japs Sweat In 140 Degrees Along Yangtse To Take Hankow Before Winter

SHANGHAI, Aug. 27.—(AP).—Chinese and Japanese artillery pounded each other to-day in a terrific Yangtse Valley battle pressaging a redoubled Japanese drive toward Hankow before winter comes. Japanese aircraft, warships and infantry joined in the offensive.

An intense artillery duel raged west of Lu-Shan Mountain, miles south of Kiukiang and close to the 90-mile Kiukiang-Nanchang railway, defences of which the Japese hope to crush.

Japanese reports said Chinese resistance was strong and that severe hostilities were continuing in "terrific heat"—which has been up to 140 degrees.

Japanese aviators said they bombed a Chinese truck train filled with soldiers between Nanchang; important Chinese air base, and Teian, 50 miles to the north. Three hundred were reported killed. Chinese said the invaders' pressure was increasing.

Southwest of Hangchow, on the south-eastern coast, Chinese irregulars were said to have overwhelmed a Japanese garrison, inflicted hundreds of casualties, and capturing 22 armored cars and tanks.

Chinese artillery headquarters announced the bombardment of Jui-Chang, 100 air miles south-

Toronto Stock Buying Interest Lags

TORONTO, Aug. 27 (CP).—Buying interest lagged on the Toronto stock exchange in the last week with the public apparently holding back for some definite indication of what is in store for business.

Volume was about 100,000 shares lower than the previous week.

Wind-up of the holiday season, uncertainty over Euopean political developments and the tendency to wait for the post Labor Day indication of the business trend were given as added reasons for the lack of non-professional participation in the market.

The statistical record for the week was mixed. Industrials gained 1.15 points in the index over the previous week and base metals were .5 ahead. The gold index was off 1.79 and western oils faded .23.

Noranda provided the interest in the base metal group, spurting to 75½ for a new high. Nickel was strong and picked up a 50-cent gain. Consolidated Smelters eased a bit. Waite Amulet attracted a considerable following and yesterday hit the $6 mark it left last week following publication of a report interpreted as disappointing—held a 40-cent gain at the closing price of $5.90.

Bullish Report

Following the golds had before them a bullish Ontario mines department report that the province's July gold production of $8,894,876 was the highest monthly figure ever recorded and 18 per cent above July, 1937. They did not, however, embark on a gold-buying splurge.

McIntyre made the best showing of big gold stocks, setting a new 1938 high of 48½ for a gain of 1¾ on the week. Other gainers in senior golds included Teck Hughes, Macassa and Bralorne which improved five cents each. Dome and Hollinger were 25 cents better.

Ford's strength provided the highlight in the industrials. Said to have ben inspired by a bullish estimate of Ford's probable earnings and rumors of a new type of car, traders pushed the issue up to $20.75 Wednesday for a new 1936 high. Next day it went to $21.65 and closed yesterday at $21.50, up $1.25 for the week.

Canadian Legion Notes

August 26th was the second anniversary of the passing of our old comrade Jimmy Abraham and we who (next to his family) knew him best still have his memory in our hearts.

The garden judges, comrades F. Biddle and F. W. Ebdon, inspected the gardens entered in the garden competition and were surprised at the excellence of them all. The prize winners were Comrades J. S. Mason and A. Garner with H. Wilford a very close runner up.

The change in the decoration parade meeting place from the Legion Hall to King Edward Park was made in the interest of the marchers as so many of the men are getting on in years and find the long march to the cemeteries rather trying. The success of last Sunday's parade proves we were justified. Quite a number of our comrades were successful in procuring a job at the Peterborough Exhibition and our best thanks are due to Ald. R. M. Glover.

The carpet bowling season is drawing near and we expect the intending players to send in their names to R. Mitchell as soon as possible.

An important zone meeting will be held at Campbellford on Wednesday next Aug. 31st, at 8.30 p.m. (DST) and Comrade Max Sloan the zone representative urges as many members as possible to attend and give him their support. Will all members intending to make the journey notify the caretaker at the Legion Hall or R. Mitchell so that arrangements can be made for the cars.

On Sunday next, Sept. 4th, the decoration parade will be to St. Peter's Cemetery. The parade will fall in at King Edward Park at 2.30 p.m., ready to march to the cemetery. Berets medals and armbands will be worn.

A meeting of the combined entertainment and recreation committee will be held Thursday next, Sept. 1, to lay plans for the euchre draws and it is imperative that all the members of the committees should attend.

OBITUARY

EUGENE MOLONEY, SR.

The funeral of the late Eugene Moloney, Sr., was held on Tuesday from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Denis Sullivan of Downie street, to St. Martin's church, Ennismore. Requiem High Mass was sung there by his nephew, Rev. C. J. Moloney of Sacred Heart Parish.

Present in the sanctuary were Rev. V. J. Gillogley and Rev. Fathers Perdue and Lyons of Holy Rosary parish, Toronto. Interment was at St. Martin's Cemetery where prayers were said by Father Perdue, cousin of the deceased.

Pall bearers were his sons, Frank, Pat, Eugene, and Harry and his son-in-law, Denis Sullivan.

Left to mourn his loss are two daughters, Mrs. Denis Sullivan, Peterborough, and Mrs. Edward O'Malley, Chicago; and five sons, Capt. P. J. Moloney, R.A.F., Detroit, Frank and Harry of Peterborough and Herb and Eugene of Ennismore; also one brother, Dr. P. J. Moloney of Ottawa and a sister, Mrs. J. Brick of Ennismore. to take outside pressure off the Czech minority quarrel.

Sir John spoke at a Conservative rally in this Scottish town after two conferences during the week with the Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, after a week of alarming reports from Praha and Berlin over the Czech situation.

He emphasized Britain's position on Czechoslovakia was "fully and accurately" stated by Mr. Chamberlain March 24 in the House.

"That declaration holds good today," he added. "There is nothing to add or vary in its content."

Mr. Chamberlain at that time declined to give a prior commitment to go to war over an invasion of Czechoslovakia, but added: "Where peace or war are concerned, legal obligations are not alone involved, and if war broke out, it would be unlikely to be confined to those who have assumed such obligations. It would be quite impossible to say where it would end and what governments might become involved."

Warning Britain Will Fight.

At that time Mr. Chamberlain's speech was interpreted as a clear warning to Germany that if France went to the aid of Czechoslovakia as a result of her treaty with that war-created nation, Britain although not bound in the same way might find it extremely difficult to hold aloof.

Sir John defined British foreign policy as "a positive policy of peace."

He made this plain in his appeal ot Hitler and the German nation:

"I am convinced that all reasonable persons in every nation must desire to assist rather than to hamper him (Viscount Runciman) in his endeavors to bring several elements of the Czechoslovak problem to a just settlement.

"Meanwhile, it is the duty not only of us but of all others—and we are all concerned in world peace—to do nothing to imperil a satisfactory solution."

The Czech problem was not insoluble, he said, but to find a solution "contributions from all concerned are needed." There must, he said, be good will on both sides to the dispute, and to this end Lord Runciman went to Praha as mediator.

These sentences could be interpreted only as a direct appeal to Hitler to line up with Britain on the side of peace and let the Czech government and the Sudeten Germans settle their dispute amicably with Lord Runciman's assistance.

Sir John referred to European nations with "a system of government very different from ours, which no one of us will accept for ourselves." Bue he emphasized this difference in governmental machinery was "no reason why we should not conduct our foreign policy as though friendship was impossible."

Tension Nearing Alarm

While tension was turning to alarm over central Europe, he repudiated "the outlook which is tempted to say that war is inevitable, as though certain countries were bound to be our enemies."

For his part, he adopted the view war was never inevitable if the nations seek to remove the causes and meet their difficulties in a fair spirit.

Britain's rearmament policy was raising no distrust throughout the world, he said, because the other nations knew "our arms will never be used for an aggressive purpose."

Britain stands dedicated to a policy of "prevention of the outbreak of war in any part of the world and we shall always be ready to make our contribution to the maintenance of peace."

His speech reflected Britain's anxiety lest Hitler came to a point where he was ready to thrust armed strength across the German frontier to aid his Sudeten German followers achieve their demands by force. Unconfirmed reports that Germany had already warned other capitals such a crossroads might be near gave the speech added point.

Refers To Hull's Plea.

He said that State Secretary Cordell Hull's plea (on Aug. 17) for a return to friendly cooperation between nations and President Roosevelt's subsequent speech in Kingston, Ont., "must waken a responsive echo in many British hearts."

(In Kingston on Aug. 18, President Roosevelt said: "We are good neighbors and true friends because we maintain our own rights with frankness, because we refuse to accept the twists of secret diplomacy, because we settle our disputes by consultation and because we discuss our common problems in the spirit of the common good." He then affirmed the United States never would stand idly by were Canada attacked.)

"The British government therefore have used their influence with both sides in the Czechoslovak dispute to urge the adoption of reasonableness in efforts to reach a solution."

Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator in the German-Czechoslovak dispute over minority rights, was sent to Praha neither as "arbitrator nor judge," Sir John said, but as "mediator and friends."

The Chancellor concluded his speech with this plain call to Germany:

"The good wishes of all the world, which realizes how much hangs upon his success, are with Lord Runciman in the task of mediation that, with such public spirit, he has undertaken.

Representative of Peace.

"He is at Prague (Praha) at this moment in no sense as a representative of the British Government, but as a representative of all men who desire justice and love peace.

"I am convinced that all reasonable persons in every nation must desire to assist rather than hamper him in his endeavors to bring the several elements of the Czechoslovak problem to a just settlement.

"Meanwhile it is the duty not only of us but of all others—and we are all concerned in world peace—to do nothing to imperil a satisfactory solution.

"And as I have said, we firmly believe that if the right spirit prevails a peaceful settlement which should reconcile legitimate interests and claims should, by dint of patience and goodwill, be attained."

Sir John defined the general British foreign policy as "a policy of peace."

At another point he said:

"For our part, while there are interests and duties affecting us and our people and the people of the Empire, to protect and discharge which we would fight, we shall at all times bring the whole weight of our influence to bear with a view to the prevention of the outbreak of war in any part of the world, and we shall always be ready to make our contribution to the maintenance of peace."

Nowhere did Sir John mention Germany by name, nor was there anything in the speech in the way of direct criticism of Adolf Hitler's politics or methods in helping the Sudeten Germans.

There was, however, a moving but indirect appeal for the German Fuehrer to align himself on the side of those seeking peace and to let the Czechs and Sudeten Germans, with the help of the British mediator, find a settlement of their quarrel alone.

Winnipeg Wheat Continues To Skid

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27—(CP). — Lack of confidence pending several world wheat policies at present in formation sent Winnipeg wheat futures skidding during the last six trading sessions for the fifth consecutive week. At the close Friday values were near five-year lows, following Thursday's December price of 62¼ cents, bottom for any future since December 21, 1933.

Winnipeg led world wheat futures setbacks, closing yesterday 3½ to 2⅞ cents below quotations of a week ago, October at 64⅜, November 74¼, December 63⅞ to 64, and May 67⅝ cents. Slumps for the five weeks ranged 12¾ to 8¼ cents, with October losing the most. Cash prices basis Fort William sank 8¼ to 4¼ cents for the first four Northern grades this week. No. 1 Northern at 66⅜ Friday was 13⅜ cents below the Dominon Government set price to be paid farmers. Other grades were 12⅜ to 10⅜ cents down.

Liquidation, stop-loss selling, and mixed intermarket dealings were hinged on two major factors. Hedging sales also were reported.

Traders appeared disturbed by:

1.—Reports the six-cents-a-bushel preferential duty on wheat from the British Empire to the United Kingdom might be lifted on United States wheat under the Anglo-American trade agreement;

2.—Probability of a Canadian-U. S. export agreement regarding United States plans to subsidize large quantities of its 1938 surplus.

details of his government's subsidy policy.

(In Washington yesterday, the U.S. Agriculture Department announced it would purchase surplus wheat for export and domestic relief purposes, though there was no announcement on how much the government intended buying. The day before, U.S. Agriculture Department officials had conferred with Dominion Government officers at Ottawa.)

Too Many Farm Supplies

It was not proposed, he said, to use any type of subsidy that would result in "extensive over-plowing of our hill land or our poor land in order to send large quantities of farm products abroad with nothing coming back in return."

However, he warned, neither could the U.S. lose its "fair share" in world trade of cotton, wheat, hog products and other commodities by "failure to take fully as aggressive action as the other nations in the competitive export fields.

"We have powerful machinery for taking action along these lines," Wallace told the conference, "and we have supplies of certain farm products far beyond domestic needs."

To the more than 400 farm economists assembled from 19 countries secretary Wallace sounded an appeal for international co-operation in agriculture, and he proposed a conference of the nations' agricultural ministries to "draw up a set of principles on which all nations could agree."

An "international ever-normal granary" was urged also by the Washington farm chief. If each wheat-producing country could set up wheat reserves in good years and at the same time protect its farmers from price collapses during these years, it should be possible to stabilize each country share of the world market.

A great part of international trade Wallace said, has been stopped by high tariffs, which he termed "almost insurmountable barriers to the movement of goods."

The United States now was "following a middle course," with two co-ordinated lines of attack. Tariffs were being reduced wherever possible without damage to home industry, with reciprocal concessions from foreign countries for U.S. export products. Secondly, agriculture was being organized to adjust supplies to "reasonable market potentialities."

There was an idea that agriculture could be revived in the United States by casting of government restrictions and perhaps financing exports with large foreign loans.

Trade agreements had been completed with 18 countries, he said Negotiations were underway with four more including the United Kingdom, "Most important both as a market for our farm products and as a supplier of our industrial imports." When the U.K. agreement was completed, the United States would have pacts with countries taking 55 per cent of its exports and supplying 52 per cent of its imports.

BOY MUSICIAN

CROYDON, England—(CP). — Nine-year-old Patrick Lyndon was awarded two silver medals, a bronze medal and a silver cup as the most promising student of music at the Croydon Musical Festival here.

18 Years Old

One of Peterborough's oldest dogs celebrated his 18th birthday yesterday. He was "Teddy" a smooth haired fox terrier owner by Finley Meeks, 263 Armour Road, who celebrated a birthday on the same day although he won't tell what birthday it was. Dog and master are shown together in this picture. Teddy is becoming wobbly on his feet, finds difficulty in seeing.

Loop Handbook Raid Upsets 1,000 Does $15,000 Damage

Chicago, Aug. 27.

THE HANDBOOK demolition squad had 15 notches on their axe handles today. Spectacular raids by State's Attorney Thomas Courtney's axe wielders on six handbooks yesterday brought to 15 the number destroyed in the campaign against gambling establishments.

Intensifying the drive, Courtney sent three squads instead of one into action. The raiders topped off their day's work with an assault on a large Loop establishment at 32 North State street. They interrupted the pastime of more than 1,000 betters, including 400 women.

Lieut. Thomas Kelly estimated the axe squads did $15,000 damage in smashing furnishings in the Loop Handbook. Estimates of damage since the campaign started ranged up to $75,000.

Sir John was foreign secretary during the early days of the Hitler regime and is regarded as well qualified to make a pronouncement on foreign policy. Coming from him, observers said, it will have the weight and authority of his experience and reputation.

It was recaled Sir John was familiar with Chancellor Hitler's views, since he had a long conversation with him at Berlin at the time of the Barthou-Litvinoff efforts to make European peace "indivisible." Anthony Eden, then Lord Privy Seal, accompanied Sir John on that visit.

The press echoed to the humors that were widespread on the continent. The diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Mail (Independent) said that Germany had asked Yugoslavia and Rumania to remain neutral in the event of Reich intervention in Czechoslosvakia.

No Pledge Of Neutrality

"The terms of this request have been communciated to Paris," the correspondent said. "It is not thought Yugoslavia or Rumania will give undertakings of neutrality." The two nations with Czechoslovakia make up the Little Entente.

The Daily Mail added a note of warning, apparently directed at Sir John Simon, that this "is not the time for hasty action or a blunt declaration. The instinctive feeling of the British people is to keep clear of quarrels not concerning them directly."

The News Chronicle (Liberal) reported that Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop had summoned to Berlin all German ambassadors and ministers in North, Central and South America, for the purpose of discussing "the possible reaction of the countries to which they are accredited to an outbreak of war in Europe."

The diplomatic correspondent of the Manchester Guardian (Liberal) said no one could state precisely what the Sudeten German demands in Czechoslovakia are, so beclouded have the issues become.

She Changed Her Mind

SCHUMACHER, Ont., Aug. 27.—(CP)—Annie Oreskovich, 17, is being held by the immigration department today for deportation to her native Jugoslavia because she decided to marry Mark Oreskovich, a miner in the nearby McIntyre mine, instead of a Schumacher man. Her former suitor posted a $250 bond he would marry the girl within 30 days of her arrival in Canada but the marriage was not carried out.

She fell in love with Oreskovich soon after her arrival here, and they set August 27 for thei. wedding. Immigration authorities informed her she broke the agreement she signed in Paris to marry the other man and so she would be deported.

Production of cotton yarn in Australia has doubled in four years.

Steel Car Profit Is Over Million

MONTREAL, Aug. 27. (CP)— National Steel Car Corporation, Limited, had a record net profit of $1,205,396, equal to $9.27 cents per share, in the fiscal year ended June 30, the annual report of the company showed yesterday. This compared with a net of $160,983 or $1.24 in the preceding year, and the previous high of $1,147,807 in 1930.

Operating profit was $1,681,498, compared with $374,451 and after deduction of executive salaries there remained an operating income of $1,599,010.

"Working capital has been built up from $1,243,251 to $1,779,976 — an increase of $536,724, after deducting dividends totalling $260,000, $25,515 covering capital expenditures on our Hamilton works and $495,266 expended in buildings and equipment of a modern aircraft plant on the New Toronto-Malton Airport at Malton, Ont. This new adjunct to your corporation's activities is now in operation on the production (under a Canadian government contract) of some 26 Westland Lysander army co-operation airplanes for the Royal Canadian Air Force.

POTATOES UNCHANGED

TORONTO. — No change was noted in prices on the local potato market yesterday. Ontario new No. 1 were 50 to 55c per bag, truck loads. Prices to the retail trade are 10 to 15c per bag higher.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Hogs, 8,000, including 3,000 direct; bulk good and choice 190 to 250 lbs. $8.70 to $8.90; practical top, $8.90; small lot $8.95; 260 to 280 lbs., $8.40 to $8.65; 290 to 350 lbs., $8 to $8.30; good light packing sows, $6.75 to $7.15; few, $7.25; medium weights and heavies, $6.15 to $6.65.

Cattle, 1,500; calves, 500; buying side indifferent; slowly taking grassy and short fed steers at $6.75 to $8; well fleshed fed offerings, $8.75 to $9.50; nothing strictly choice here, but low choice 1,050 lb. bullocks at $10.50, this being top; these being comparable with $11 to $11.25 kinds on Monday; stockers and feeders very scarce; beef cows weak; cutter grades steady at $5.50 down; heifers weak; bulls dull at $7 down, and vealers steady at $11 down.

Sheep, 5,000, including 3,600 direct; $9 paid for both natives and Westerns to all interests; bulk natives $8.85 down; yesterday's trade slowed down by higher asking prices; undertone stronger to 15c higher or upward to $8.85 and $9 on natives; best held $9.10 and above; sheep steady.

MONTREAL HORSE MARKET

Trading continued light on Montreal horse markets this week, as purchasing of animals for the winter work in the lumber camps has not commenced. Prices remained steady, $85 to $120 for geenral work horses and $120 to $150 for heavies.

WOOL PRICES

Toronto dealers were paying the following prices for Ontario unwashed fleece wool delivered to Toronto: 13 to 14c per pound on a flat basis, and 8 to 9c per pound for rejects.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures' dealings were quiet yesterday wioh moderate southern and overseas demand which were not offset by light hedging sales. Final quotations 1¼ to ⅜ cent lower, October 64⅜, November 64¼, December 63⅞ to 64, and May 67⅜.

Futures opened ⅜ cent lower but quickly moved to show small gains. Confidence appeared to have been restored after sharp breaks earlier in the week, and to-day only the cash wheat prices, Nos. 1 and 2 Northern showed easiness.

Canadian export sales, estimated at 300,000 bushels, firmness of outside markets, and probability of a co-operative agreement between Canada and the United States regarding marketing of this year's crop were steadying influences.

Wheat prices sagged almost one cent a bushel in a nervous, erratic market at Chicago yesterday, while traders exercised extreme caution pending disclosure of the Government's export subsidy program. A few moments after the final bell the first step in the program was announced.

Timed apparently so as not to disturb the market, an official announcement said the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation would buy wheat for export and domestic relief purposes. The technique of disposal in export trade and the amount to be purchased were not disclosed.

It was evident the grain trade had received no hint that such an announcement would be made because the market dragged through a dreary session. The character of the plan so far divulged surprised many dealers.

Liverpool closed ¼d higher to unchanged. Firmness was attributed to advances late on Thursday in North American markets and short-covering on talk that there would be no cut-throat competition between the United States and Canada in marketing their wheats.

Buenos Aires at noon was ¼ to ⅜ cent higher.

Coarse grains were firm at Winnipeg with outside buying in rye futures a bright spot. Rye closed ½ higher there.

In Chicago oats and rye markets were quiet and prices only slightly lower. Selling of September lard contracts unsettled that market.

Rookie Barrett Scores 16th Win

Cincinnati Reds, who brought up Johnny Vander Meer from Syracuse Chiefs, have another prize rookie coming up from that International Baseball League club in 23-year-old Charlie (Red) Barrett.

The fast right-hander, second to Newark's Johnny Haley among the loop's pitchers, scored his 16th victory of the season against three defeats last night when he stopped Baltimore Orioles, 5-3, in the second game of a double-header after the Chiefs had annexed the opener, 5-4.

W. C. Wilks Is Winner Of Madill Trophy

With thirteen first prizes, W. C. Wilks, Chamberlen street, won the Dr. A. J. Madill Challenge Cup for the highest aggregate score in the Peterborough Horticultural Society's flower show last night. He had previously won for the third successive year both the H. L. Beal Cup at the Society's special rose show, and the S. T. Harris Cup at the delphinium show. And again on Friday Mrs. Wilks was awarded the James Abraham silver medal for the third successive year for the best display of pansies.

The T. Eaton Company's special prize for the most points in the annual and perennial sections of the show went to John A. Smtih.

The flower show, held in the Canadian Legion Hall, was well attended last night, and J. A. Smith, president of the Horticultural Society, expressed the opinion that the financial returns would be considerably more than in other years. Prior to the distribution of special prizes, he thanked the citizens for the support they had given the Society this year, remarking that Peterborough was widely recognized as one of the most beautiful cities in Ontario. Mr. Smith paid a gracious tribute to Alderman Walter Stocker, chairman of the Parks Committee of the city council for his unfailing support of the society, and also for his fruitful efforts in extending the beautification of Peterborough.

H. L. Beal Challenge Cup for Rose Show—Won by Mrs. J. A. Smith.

S. T. Harris Cup for Delphinium Show—Won by W. C. Wilks.

G. H. Clarke Cup for best Gladiolus Spike—Won by W. C. Wilks.

Dr. A. J. Madill Cup for largest number of points—Won by W C. Wilks.

Kiwanis Cup for school whose pupils make highest aggregate score —Won by Queen Alexandra school.

Junior Trophy for best juvenile entry—Won by Elva Sollitt.

Jas. Abraham Silver Medal best Pansy display—Won by Mrs. W. C. Wilks (third successive year)

Horticultural Society's silver medal for Vase of Cut Flowers—Won by George Benton.

Horticultural Society's bronze medal for dining table decoration—Won by Mrs. C. Plunkett, Keene.

T. Eaton Co. Trophy for most points in Annuals and Perennials—Won by John A. Smith.

Pyrex Pie Plate for best Basket of Snapdragons—Won by Geo. Downer.

China vase for Cut Flowers—Won by J. Matthews, Lakefield.

The Door Prizes

The winners of the door prizes in the draw conducted by E. W. Watson, chairman of the show committee were: 1, Jane Benton, 782 Water street; 2, H. Heath, 466 Driscall Terrace; 3, Mrs. Percy Golds, London street; 4, Howard Outram, Chamberlen street; 5, Mrs. A. E. Patterson, Simcoe street; 6, Mrs. V. R. Currie, Benson avenue; 7, O. Sugden, 21 Park street; 8, Bel Brady, 453 Mark street; 9, Harold Plunkett, Keene; 10, T. Winterbottom, Chamberlen street.

George Benton was awarded first prize for the most artistic display of flowers, other than gladioli, occupying sixteen square feet of space, receiving the honors over George Downer's gorgeous dahlias. And his granddaugter, Katherine J. Benton, daughter of W. G. P. Benton won the birdhouse prize. Katherine is only seven, but she fabricated the miniature and artistic house entirely herself with only an occasional suggestion from her grandfather.

Crowd Delighted

The crowd last night was delighted with the show, most of the men and women waiting until the draw at ten o'clok. It was virtually the city's parting salute as a community and through its horticultural organization to the flowers that have brought to nearly every home that fragrance and grace and beauty that is available to so many of them during the summer months at a negligible cost. Marigolds for instance in August represent a decidedly lighter outlay than in January, to say nothing of stocks and roses, and other flowers that are special products of the florists's not houses during winter.

And among them a little word of appreciation for the pansies, first to appear on the market when Spring is unfolding and among the last to continue blooming bravely when the frost is laying a blight on the salvia and nasturtiums and the tenderer plants in the garden. Pansies bringing a stimulating message of brightness and hope, and for those who have what seemed to be a talent for nursing them along throughout the season they often offer nearly the last farewell from the garden plots when summer is past and frowsy fall is speeding to the October days of glorious foliage in the hardwoods.

New Pastor

At the East Ontario Annual Conference of the Free Methodist Church in Canada held in Warkworth last week Rev. Wesley Armstrong was appointed pastor of the local Free Methodist church on Aylmer street, near King. Mr. Armstrong who resides on Barnardo avenue has been laboring as an independent holiness evangelist for many years. The work of this church has been supervised by Rev. S. B. Griffith, district elder of the Peterborough district, for the past three years and J. W. Sexsmith, a local preacher, has been doing the preaching.

Poyang Battle Turns Into Slaughter

SHANGHAI, Aug. 27—(AP).—In tense fighting raged on the west shore of Poyang Lake today with Chinese and Japanese suffering heavy losses but nevertheless continuing to throw contingent after contingent of reinforcements into battle.

Against the Chinese opposition, the Japanese were reported to be combining infantry, air and naval forces in a determined thrust to break through to Nanchang, Chinese air base and an immediate objective in the Japanese drive toward Hankow, 225 miles away.

Chinese reports said large Japanese landing parties met virtual "annihilation" at the hands of entrenched Chinese fighters who estimated the invaders lost 500 men at each of several sectors. Heavy losses were admitted by the Chinese.

The Chinese maintained they still held Juichang, a city 21 miles west of Kiukiang and another focal point in the Yangtse valley fight for Hankow, the provisional capital. They said Juichang was in ruins under the rain of Japanese bombs.

Kiukiang, occupied by the Japanese a month ago, lies near the northern tip of large Povang lake. Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, is about 30 miles west of the southern end of the lake.

A Japanese thrust in the Lu-Shan mountains near Kuling—a resort in which 100 British and American refugees are staying 13 miles south of Kiukiang—was said also to have been repulsed with heavy losses.

The Chinese reported they inflicted thousands of casualties west of Singtze, in the Lu-Shan mountains.

Rev. E. L. Langston Is Coming To City

The Rev. E. L. Langston, who comest to the city on Monday will address a joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs at noon. In the evening he will address a public meeting in All Saints' church at 8.30 p.m. under auspices of the Ministerial Association. He has announced his subject "Impressions of Middle Europe; religious and otherwise." At a time when conditions are so strained in Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia, this topic is of the greatest interest to Canadian people who generally have felt in the past that these places are too far away to have much interest for them. Wt hartillery passing through our own city and bombing planes being built in Toronto our opinions have somewhat changed and we are all interested but very ignorant. Mr. Langston has not only spent much time in these places but he speaks the languages of the people and has just left Vienna and Hungary to come to Canada.

The meeting has been fixed for 8.30 p.m. Daylight Saving Time, to suit friends from the country who have supported precious efforts of the Ministerial Association, to bring outstanding speakers to the city.

Corn Roasters See Fireworks

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Aug. 27. — Government Park was the scene of wide attraction on Monday night when a community corn roast, display of fireworks, was held, followed by a dance at the Pavillion, sponsored by the Fish and Game Association. A large representation of cottagers together with many outsiders were present.

While the huge kettles of corn were being cooked over two bonfires, the gathering enjoyed a treat with musical selections from a piano accordian played by Al Tucker of Toronto, who is holidaying in camp at Government Park. This talented musician has studied piano for eight years, having directed an orchestra for three or four years in the Veterans' Hall, Toronto. Master George Heath, nine-year-old son of George Heath of Tgronto, who is also in camp, played selections from a smaller piano-accordian. George has been taking lessons for five months and shows promise. A display of fireworks was given from along the Trent shore after which the crowd repaired to the Pavilion, where music for square and round dancing was held, with music supplied by Fife's Orchestra of Norwood. The association charged a small fee of admission, the proceeds to help the hockey team.

In one week, 11,482 applicants for automobile driving licenses were tested in England, and 35 per cent failed, women's failures being 38 per cent, men's 29.

The Golden Text

Proverbs 22:6—"Train up a child in the way he should go."

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

WHAT DO I KNOW OF THE BIBLE?
EXTRACTS FROM THE PROPHET JEREMIAH

JEREMIAH was perhaps the best hated man of his day. However, he prophesied that the Baylonian Captivity would last 70 years. And it was so. Accordingly his writings were deeply studied and it was the popular idea that he would return. This explains the disciples' answer to Our Lord's question as to Who He was: "Jeremiah or one of the prophets". St. Matthew 16: 13. Modern scholars place Jeremiah in the class of Demosthenes and Savanorla. Perhaps the following extracts may induce you to read further passages.

The Lord said unto me; Behold, I have put my words in thy mouth. 1:9.

My people have committed two evils; they have forsaken the fountains of living water, and have hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water. 2:13.

My people are wise to do evil, but to do good they have no knowledge. 4:22.

The prophets prophesy falsely and the priests bear rule by their means and my people love to have it so, and what will ye do in the end thereof? 5:31.

Is this house, which is called by my Name, become a den of robbers in your eyes? 7:11.

They have healed the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace. 8:11.

Is there no balm in Gilead; is there no physician there? 8:22.

Their tongue is an arrow shot out; it speaketh deceit; one speaketh peaceably to his neighbour with his mouth, but in his heart he layeth wait for him. 9:8.

Wherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper? Wherefore are all they happy that deal very treacherously?

Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots? Then may ye also do good that are accustomed to do evil. 13:23.

Thy words were found and I did eat them; and thy word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of my heart; for I am called by Thy Name, O Lord God of Hosts. 15:16.

Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous BRANCH, and a King shall reign and prosper and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. This is His Name whereby He shall be called, the LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS. 23:5,6.

Seek the peace of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captive, and pray unto the Lord God for it; for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace. 29:7.

Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the House of Judah. I will put my law in their inward parts and write it in their hearts; and I will be their God and they shall be my people. 31: 31, 33.

Six hundred and fifty years later a young Jew, the Carpenter from Nazareth, in the Upper Room said: "This cup in the New Covenant in My blood, which is shed for you". St. Luke 22:20.

All the princes and all the people entered into the covenant to let his man servant and maid servant go free. But afterwards they turned and caused the servants and the hand maids, whom they had let go free, to return and brought them into subjection for servants and for hand maids. 34: 10,11.

The word that Jeremiah the prophet spake unto Baruch the scribe: Seekest thou great things for thyself? Seek them not. 45:5.

This closing word for the young minister:

"Be not afraid of their faces, for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the Lord. Then the Lord put forth His hand and touched my mouth." 1:8.

Eli—Responsibility For Others

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for August 28 is I Samuel 2:12-4:18, especially 3:11-14, 4:12-18, the Golden Text being Proverbs 22:6 "Train up a child in the way he should go."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

ELI WAS so busy with the responsibilities of other people's children that he made a sorry mess of rearing his own disgraceful sons, Hophni and Phinehas. But after discovering his failure there he did not do so badly with little Samuel. Other ministers have made Eli's mistake with their sons, but by no means enough of them to justify the familiar slur about "preachers' sons and deacons' daughters".

Preachers' Sons In Who's Who

Those who overplay such illustrations as Eli's sons should note that the children of no other profession or trade afford so many names for the pages of "Who's Who in America" as do preachers' children. Entitled to a proportion of one name to every 220, they provide, instead, one name out of every 12. Similarly, 12 of 51 characters in the Hall of Fame in the National Capitol were ministers' sons, and of the 65 persons included in the Hall of Fame of New York university, prior to 1930 11 were such parsonage children as Ralph Waldo Emerson, Jonathan Edwards, Samuel F. B. Morse, Henry Ward Beecher Harriet Beecher Stowe, James Russel Lowell, George Bancroft Oliver Wendell Holmes and Louis Agassis. Of the signers of the Declaration of Indeendence John Hancock and eight others, less well known, were ministers' sons. During the nearly one-fourth of our nation's history a minister's son or daughter has presided over the White House, either as president or first lady of the land. Time would fail to include all the names prominent in the realms of statecraft, industry and the professions, such as E. H. Harriman, Andrew Carnegie, Cecil Rhodes, Sir Christopher Wren, Melville Stone, Justices Field, Brewer Edward Everett and Hughes. Put these names over against such names as Eli's sons if the record is to be fair and up to date.

Eli's Character.

Eli's greatness of soul is seen in the utter absence of envy or bitterness shown by him when, because of his son's unworthiness he was set aside and the youthful Samuel raised up in his stead. When after a long period of silence from heaven, God spoke to the child Samuel instead of to the aged minister, and revealed his purpose of judgment, Eli showed no jealousy or rebellion. He was willing to be a cast-away if only God's ark be kept safe and God's cause triumph over his enemies. The news of the death in battle of Hophni and Phinehas affected him far less than the news that God's holy ark of the covenant had fallen into the hands of the Philistines. Eli's neck may have been broken in his fall, but he died not of this, but of a broken heart: "He that brought the tidings said, Israel is fled before the Philistines, and there hath been also a great slaughter among the people, and thy two sons also, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead, and the ark of God is taken. And it came to pass, when he made mention of the ark of God, that Eli fell from off the seat backward by the side of the gate; and his neck brake, and he died." Oh that Eli had only "ruled well his own house, having his children in subjection with all gravity!"

Cathedral Musings

When we examine into the various conceptions of the after-life that men have held throughout the ages, we find under the surface differences, a striking similarity, in that a state of felicity is promised to the faithful and a state of unhappiness to the others. The actual differences have more to do with the ideas of the various races as to what constitutes the acmreof happiness, than the truth of after-life conditions, for if we were to take these ideas as literal truth we would find them very conflicting. Many a good man would be very bored at the orthodox Christian heaven and one could imagine the feelings of an early Puritan if he were set down into a literal version of the Mohammedan paradise. The conditions described in the Zend-Avesta would leave the average man cold and who would want the heaven of the Indian? We see therefore, that every race and every religion has used its own symbolism in expressing the utmost of felicity and also, in the opposite case, in seeking to convey the idea of unhappiness and it would be a great mistake to assume these things as literal fact. In the East, fire has always been considered the great purifying agent, which it is, hence the symbolism of the Bible, (an Oriental collection of books,) as a symbol of the purification of the evil-does. To return to our subject, other think of the after-life as a period of rest even of lethargy, somewhat like the overworked farmer's wife who composed her own epitaph: "Don't weep for me now, weep for me never. I'm going to do nothing, for ever and ever." Very few however, think of the after life as being a period of intense activity, a period where the lessons of the earth life are digested and absorbed, a period of a nearer attunement and more direct inspiration that was possible here on earth, and a period of preparation for the climbing of another rung of the ladder of life. God never rests, neither do His children and those who seek to share His work here, certainly enter into a more active participation in the spiritual world. The artist will create more wonderful interpretations, the lover will find the consummation of love in unity with the Spirit of Love. These things exist already, for they are within us and have only to be found.

MARMORA

A bowing jitney was held on the Deloro bowling greens on Monday evening with the following result: 1 F. Leal, 2 M. J. Corrigan, 3 T. Hoyle.

On the eve of their departure for their home in New Liskeard, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Auger were hosts to relatives and friends in Marmora to the number of eighty at their cottage at Crowe Lake and also at the cottage of Mrs. M. McGrath. A very enjoyable repast was enjoyed by all and the evening was spent in singing, dancing and social entertainment. Bert Kouri and Eugene Reynolds, with harmonica and guitar added to the evening's entertainment.

Dreaming the building was on fire, Yovan Chiro, a warder at the prison in Lepoglava, Croatia, jumped from a first-floor window and was badly injured.

Eli—Responsibility for Others — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Samuel 2:12-4:18.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Eli, the high priest, rebuked Hannah, thinking she was drunk. But she was praying God to give her a child and promising to dedicate him to God.

Hannah's child, Samuel, became Eli's assistant and successor. God spoke to Samuel at night telling of the judgment coming upon Eli's wicked sons.

In battle with the Philistines Israel's army was defeated, the ark of the covenant taken by their enemies and Hophni and Phinehas slain.

At the news of his son's death and the capture of the ark Eli fell backward in the city gates and died of a broken heart. (GOLDEN TEXT—Proverbs 22:6)

Who Is Going To Pay?

Lieut.-Col. George Drew is in the limelight once more. In the last issue of McLean's Magazine Mr. Drew had an article dealing with what he was pleased to call "The Mystery of the Bren Machin Gun." It consisted of many questions dealing with a contract made with the Canadian and British governments to have these guns made in the old John Inglis plant in Toronto, and a reading of the article leaves the impression that there is something profitable in it for those who undertook to get the business and arranged for a plant to turn out the gun. Mr. Drew does not make direct charges but asks his questions in such a way and makes his statements with a query so attached that one might be turned toward the belief that there had been queer work at the crossroads.

Hon. Ian McKenzie, Minister of Defence, was quick to make reply and say that Lieut.-Col. Drew was speaking without a knowledge of the facts, and that much of his information was wrong.

The next report is that Mr. Drew has issued a statement in which he asks for "a judicial or other non-political committee" before which he can have the opportunity of fully substantiating everything he has said or written.

Before this affair proceeds to any new stages we might suggest that something definite be said regarding who is going to pay for such a committee. Those who are called to serve on committees or commissions have reason to expect they will be paid and well paid for their services and the bill for such payment is always handed to the official who dispenses public funds. A somewhat long and painful experience with such matters has brought the general public to the point where they will want to know who is going to pay the bill for the committee which Lieut.-Col. Drew suggests should be appointed.

They Try It Once

Henry Helf and Frankie Pytlak, catchers of the big league, made an experiment to see what they could do with balls which were tossed from a 708-foot elevation atop the Cleveland Terminal Tower. Helf managed to catch the third ball throw, and Pytlak was successful in taking the sixth.

The catchers admitted the trick was too dangerous for frequent trials owing to the speed at which the ball was coming. Those who understand such matters say it would be travelling at the rate of 202 feet per second at the time it came in contact with the mitt of the catcher. It was not necessary to add any force to the ball when it was released as it gains its momentum and adds to it every inch it falls. The thing has been tried several times in various cities, but it is worth noting that those who try it never repeat the experiment.

The Case Of Peter Gray

It is worth pausing a moment or two to consider the case of Peter Gray. His right name is Wyshner and he was born in Lithuania coming to United States as a child. He took the name Gray because it was easier to pronounce. When he was six years old he lost his right arm.

For five years he has been playing baseball and getting paid for it. This season he is with Three Rivers, Que. in the provincial baseball league. Peter Gray plays out in the field and he has but one arm. He uses a glove which he planned for his own use. When a ball comes his way and he needs to return it quickly the glove slips off easily and he gets the ball away in time. He takes in a fly as readily with one hand as most fielders do with both.

And then he goes to bat. Just one good strong arm is all he has, and with that one arm he is hitting a little over .300. Plays ball because he always wanted to. Makes a living at it too which is something a good many with two arms could not do.

A Worth-While Effort

Efforts of the Peterborough Ministerial Association in bringing outstanding men from the Old Land to give public addresses in our city should be commended and supported by the community. No other organization seems to attempt this—at least not to any considerable extent. It is unfortunate that these visitors are available for us only at the holiday season when so many people are out of the city and when the inclination to attend an indoor meeting is not very strong in any of us.

Still the Ministerial Association should be encouraged by the turn-out which completely filled St. Andrew's Church on the occasion of the visit of Dr. England in July. Mr. Langston who comes next Monday has a colorful background and holds an honored position in the Church of England. His intimate acquaintance with Russia and Middle Europe gives him an authoritative viewpoint on the subject on which he will speak. The association is doing a good work in bringing these distinguished visitors and we commend again their efforts.

If Ottawa Handled Relief

The suggestion of Hon. Dr. Manion, now leader of the Conservative party, that relief should be made a Federal affair, has met with a variety of response. Much of it is favorable because municipalities have in many cases grown tired of the work involved and the constant difficulty in trying to raise funds. For such folk it is perhaps easy enough to fall in with the argument that relief came from the depression and the depression was not a municipal, but a national matter.

The Barrie Examiner is a good example of a thorough-going town paper which believes it would be a mistake to turn the relief matter over in its entirety to the Dominion government. Its argument is that when municipalities have a share in financing relief they also have the opportunity of careful scrutiny of relief lists. In that way they can exercise a control which no outside body could possibly approach in thoroughness. If a body such as the Dominion government were to seek to bring into existence in every municipality of the country an organization to function as the local bodies are doing it would call for an enormous machine and an enormous cost.

There is also the feeling that that the Dominion government has so much wider range of taxation avenues available than the municipal governments that it would be much easier for the central body to secure the necessary funds. It is right here that we seem to lose sight of the plain fact that the Dominion government is like a municipal council. It has no funds until it begins to take money from the people, and it takes money from the same people who pay taxes to the municipal and provincial governments.

If the Federal government takes over the cost of relief it will not be doing so as a gesture of generosity to the people because it will have to turn to the people for the money. If it has to bring into existence an elaborate piece of official machinery to handle collection and distribution, and if the cost of such machinery is greater than we are now spending on administration of relief departments, then we are going to have to pay more to the Federal government than we are now paying. The cost of relief has to be met by the people no matter under which governmental auspices it is managed, and if it did become a federal matter there are reasons to believe it would cost more for management than we are paying at present.

He Was Not Helping

Men are somewhat given to telling about ventures they have made and losses they have sustained. We listened to a gentleman the other day who didn't think much of the Canadian West; it was apparent he had a personal grudge against that country as though it had taken a bite out of him. He was certain people from the East would take no more interest in it; they had done so in other years and were sorry for it. His complaint was like this:

"The West is like a good many other places; it needs capital for development purposes, but it was not fair with those who were ready to supply the capital some years ago. I know what I am talking about because I made investments there. That was the time when there was a land boom and cities were growing. I was dealing with people who seemed to be responsible and along with several friends purchased land just on the outkirts of one of the Western cities. One of us took a trip out there and became convinced the land was right in line with the logical path of development and therefore it should increase in value.

"I am not going to tell that long story all over again, but the truth is that land is still being used for farm purposes and by getting rid of it we managed to rescue about 15 cents on each dollar of our investment. Never again would I put a dollar into anything in Western Canada."

We are certain there are others who could tell a story somewhat similar, but a statement of that kind is worth analyzing. The man who was putting up his money to purchase property near a city was doing nothing at all to develop that city or the West in general. His plan was plain as a pikestaff and so was his motive. He had reason to believe some person was going to come some day and try and purchase a piece of his property for the building a home. The man who needed the building lot would have to pay to the man who was holding it more than it cost him so there would be a profit. If the situation is well sifted it would be found that the investor from the East was actually holding up development and building rather than encouraging it. His interest was entirely in what he could take out of the West; the fact that he had put his money in there to buy property which he expected to sell at a profit did not mean a thing apart from the drawing of some papers and a commission to an agent. He had done nothing toward what he called "developing the West."

He Did His Best

It is possible a good many people in this district never heard of Samuel Henry Hardy who is dead at the age of 83 at Port Rowan, Ont. Possible too they never heard or the Port Rowan News which he published for so many years. Mr. Hardy began as a school teacher, then he went to Ottawa where he became a parliamentary reporter in the days when Sir John A. Macdonald was at the height of his career. Then he quit all that because he wanted a weekly paper of his own.

Mr. Hardy always had something to say in his paper. He was not vitriolic in his method of saying it, but he was plain spoken. If there was anything which he considered needed saying he never hesitated to print it in his paper. He never had much of a field in which to work but he was a good man in that field. We doubt if he ever made much money but he invested his years well. If it were to be his lot to influence public opinion in a small community then he was going to do it with a clean pen and a clear conscience. There will be a good many folk in the newspaper world who will be grieved to know that Sam Hardy of the Port Rowan News — subscription $1 eight pages, 6 columns 20 inches, circulation 500—has come to the end of his course.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Regina offers for sale 11 ancient street cars, but the demand for them is not brisk. Haven't they gone in for the trailer business in the West?

It is all very well to buy tomatoes at 15 cents for an 11-quart basket, but we would not care to grow them and provide the container at that price.

Report from the West tells of snow falling ten miles east of Winnipeg. The West scared us with its Hudson Bay Ry. losses and now it is at it again.

A bees' nest was taken from the wall of a store in Ridgeway and 100 pounds of honey was secured. So it is that after the bees left that amount of honey they were kicked out of their house.

Fort William district reported that it had a tornado and later reports now indicate it had a second one. And we are certain as can be no one was calling for an encore.

One summer resort the business section of which considered it was getting more than its share of women in shorts solved the problem by erecting a large sign saying: "Only Elderly Women Can Wear Shorts on This Street."

Russia is on the verge of war with Japan; Germany is on the verge of trouble with Czechoslovakia, and Franco is on the verge of victory in Spain. This place verge must be larger than we ever believed it to be.

A young Malay Prince says he will give up his title and allowance to marry a young lady in England. He admits all he has at the moment is $20. The story writer loking for a plot thus has one placed right on his doorstep.

It does look as though Italy was preparing to take action against people of the Jewish race. What has already taken place in Germany and Austria is quite sufficient without the plan being followed elsewhere.

In the absence of George James, the Rotary Club of Bowmanville provided material for the editorial page of the Statesman this week. One of the articles has the heading "Nil Desperandum." We were wondering when he arrived in town and if he intended to remain.

At a state fair in Iowa an order was given to turn out the lights in the poultry building at 10.30 so roosters would quit their crowing. That might work, but our belief is that when a rooster takes a notion to crow he never bothers to find out whether lights are on or off.

SNAP SHOTS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Alfalfa brought some pictures home, and since then they've been often shown, and she explains them too; she thumbs them over one by one, tells how they happened to be done, and tells about each view.

¶ That's me beside the basswood tree, it isn't very much to see, and not a real good print; the thing was taken by surprise, you see the light was in my eyes, and that's what made me squint.

¶ I don't recall the other two, the third one's me in that canoe, it's awful don't you think; I guess what makes me look so queer, I got filled to the brim with fear, I thought that we might sink.

¶ That's me there standing on a log, that day was damp and filled with fog, I'm almost cut in half; it's really not so very good, I wasn't looking like I should, for I was trying to laugh.

¶ That's me there with a piece of pie, the light was shining in my eye, I have a silly grin; the boy that's standing next to me, he was attentive as could be, I had a card from him.

¶ And thus Alfalfa shows her views, they seem to touch her with the blues, they don't look like they should; they don't do justice to this maid, they're sun struck or in deepest shade—don't make her look too good.

Fixing the Cost Of Cutting Hair

(Letter in Ottawa Journal)

SIR: I note that the police magistrate has fined a poor barber because he violated that Fascist legislation known as the Industrial Standards Act. Surely the Ontario Government, which calls itself Liberal, must know which way the wind is blowing. We are heading straight for state Socialism. We might exist and prosper as a democracy; we may crush freedom and personal initiative and establish a strong authoritarian government. We cannot be half one and half the other.

A democracy which legislates to give special advantages to selected groups of citizens is a democracy in name only. The first principle that must guide a really democratic government is justice, and justic says that farmers and fishermen and servant maids and cobblers and woodcutters and gardeners are just as important as plumbers and carpenters and barbers.

Justice does not say that all her children shall live in the same house, wear the same kind of clothes and eat the same food. But she does say that all her children are free to use their talents as they wish, so long as they respect the rights of others.

One barber has capital or control of credit. He rents a fine shop on a main thoroughfare. He puts in expensive plumbing, lays down a tiled floor and uses linen towels and fine lawn aprons. He attracts wealthy patrons who willingly pay 40 cents or 50 cents or more if necessary to secure service above the average.

But hair grows on the heads and chins of ordinary men—farmers, clerks, coal-cart drivers, scavengers, aldermen and men who dig sewers. A barber with small capital rents a modest shop on a side street. He is clean and tidy, but his floor is covered with cheap oilcloth and his towels plain and course. Perhaps his wife washes them. He plans to cut the hair of the ordinary men who live around him. He thinks he can do it for 25 cents and make a living for his family. His customers can barely afford the 25 cents.

The Industrial Standards Act, passed by Liberals—supposedly nurtured on the traditions of John Stuart Mill, Cobden, Gladstone, Morley, Asquith and Laurier— comes along and says: "My dear fellow, you can't cut hair for 25 cents. You must charge 40 cents. It may be your customers cannot affor to pay that much. They may go across the river for a haircut or they may cut each other's hair, but you must charge 40 cents. The farmers of the Act know what is a fair price better than you do. A haircut is a hair-cut whether the scissors are sharp or dull, whether the chair you sit in is hard or cushioned, whether the barber be skilled or an amateur, whether the shop be stuffy or air-conditioned, whether the soap be home-made or made in Paris, whether the apron about your neck be cheap and coarse or made of the finest snow-white damask. A haircut is a hair-cut, and the price is 40 cents."

How much farther is this thing to go? Have we no leaders who believe in freedom and liberty?

How can Canada become great, properous and united if we are to wrap up each citizen in swadling clothes and deprive him of freedom to bargain with his fellow-man for services and goods! Why are certain occupations and callings to be protected and sheltered by law and others left to carry the burden of this grandmotherly legislation? Aren't farmers and miners and gardeners and lumbermen and fishermen just as important as bricklayers and electricians?

Are we to move toward a greater freedom or are we to go on fixing prices and wages for all? After wheat will it be potatoes and turnips and then herring and clothes-pins? Do you believe in freedom or in control? Which will give us the more abundant life?

When does a human being put forth maximum effort? Is it when he acts under compulsion or when he tries to realize some ideal of his own? Do you want your children and grandchildren to live lives directed by some outward control or do you wish them as far as possible to direct their own lives? Do you really believe that this British freedom in which you and your forbears have been nourished is worth anything? Or has it outlived its usefulness?

Is it a matter of any importance that a barber in Ottawa may not cut your hair for 25 cents when he is quite willing to do so?

DOES WAR PAY?

Kitchener Record)

THE GREAT WAR ended almost 20 years ago, but we are still paying for it and will continue to pay for many years to come.

Pensions Minister Power revealed that at the end of July 80,051 Canadian war veterans were receiving pensions at an annual cost of $30,147,488. In addition to these 17,974 dependents were being paid Great War ensiopns. The value of these was $10,342,890, or a total of $40,472,378. No one begrudges the financial assistance given disabled veterans and their dependents. It is imperative that they should be looked after. But it all goes to show that even in victory wars are a drain on men and resources.

Canadian taxpayers are paying in war debt interest alone, nearly $300,000 every day of the year. It is estimated that Canada's debt, direct and indirect for the past wars, is around three billion dollars. This debt, on which the Canadian taxpayer pays the interest annually, will for both the present and future generations of Canadian taxpayers cost, in interest only at the low rate of three and one-third per cent. per annum one hundred million dollars per year, sufficient in war debt interest only, to maintain one hundred thousand of Canada's unemployed, at a salary of $1,000 per year each, for unlimited years to come.

From this it can be clearly seen that money, time and effort directed towards the continuance of peace constitute one of the best investments.

• U. S. Trade with British Colonies

(Montreal Star)

A HIGHLY interesting factor in the Anglo-American trade treaty negotations, according to the London Economist, is the volume of American trade with the British colonies. It is impossible that this should be otherwise so long as American supplies of tin and rubber for her automobile and other industries depend upon supplies from those colonies. It will be recalled that the United States admitted a vital concern when the Stevenson rubber restriction plan was in operation from 1922 to 1928, and that she has again and again showed her interest in the various regulatory schemes now in existence in regard to British colonial products.

Normally, the heavy surplus of imports that the United States takes from the British colonies largely counterbalances her colossal export surplus with the United Kingdom. Last year, for instance, America had an export surplus of $328,000,000 with Britain but an import surplus of $246,000,000 with the colonies. This year, so far, however, that balance has received a rude shock. American exports to Britain have risen rapidly compared with 1937, while imports from that country have been halved. Imports from the British colonies have also shrunk in value, aided by the fall in prices. For example, imports from Nigeria and the Gold Coast are only a quarter their size in 1927, due largely to a slump in the exports of cocoa.

Malaya is most deeply interested in American trade, since of the total imports from British colonies into the U. S. A. three-quarters comes from the Federated States. Last year, in fact, Malaya took second place to Canada. The preferences accorded British goods in nearly all the British colonies save those pledged to the Open Door policy have had a deleterious effect upon American trade. For example, in British Malaya, Ceylon and Jamaica, the United States has lost ground, whereas in three Open Door colonies— Nigeria the Gold Coast, and Kenya and Uganda— she has actually improved her position. A more general indication is provided by changes in the American share of the total imports of various colonies since Ottawa. Between 1931 and 1936 this fell from 29 per cent to 16 per cent. in the case of Jamaica, from 18 per cent to 16 per cent in Trinidad, from 4 per cent to 2 per cent. in Ceylon, and from 2½ per cent. to 2 per cent. in British Malaya. These are all colonies granting preferences to British goods. Yet in two Open Door colonies the American share has fallen rather more—in Nigeria from 9 per cent. to 5 per cent. and in the Gold Coast from 17 per cent to 10 per cent.

The Economist believes that the United States is seeking some modification of existing preferences granted by the British colonies to Britain and to the British Dominions, in order to readjust her balances. How this is to be brought about, however, it does not attempt to exlpain.

• Being A Policeman In Scotland

(Fronm the London Times)

MEMBERS of the police force, probably in view of the almost encyclopedic knowledge the public expect them to possess, get a good intelligence test in the examinations through which they have to pass.

There have just been issued the question papers for the last three years of the elementary and advanced examinations of the Police (Scotland) Examinations Board. Without being difficult, some of them require a certain liveliness of brain.

Here are two from the elementary section this year: "What would you reply to your nephew, aged 10, if he asked you: (A) why does a flash-lamp shine when you press the switch? (b) Why does the thermos flask keep hot things hot and cold things cold?" In the next question it is a sign of the times to discover that Sherlock Holmes is not the only detective of fiction about which a policeman is expected to know something. Little Hercule Poirot now comes into the picture.

Then there is the problem of the troublesome Brown family. Father is 45,, mother 43, John 20, Jean 18, George 13, and Kate eight. They all want to join some national or international social organization suited to their years and they "ask a policeman." The candidate is required to suggest something suitable for each of them. Many of the suggestions which first come to his mind would, of course, disqualify him.

In the advanced paper the candidate is expected to know the name of one British line of steamers principally associated with the passenger traffic on a number of given routes. The Scots, being great travellers, presumably found this a simple hurdle.

And, being great arguers, they also possibly had no trouble in proving the unsoundness of such arguments as: "The average length of life has risen from 40 to 60, so that there must be many more people in their late fifties nowadays", or "1 cat has 1 tail, 0 cats have 8 tails; therefore, by addition, 1 cat has nine tails."

• Facing the Problem of Living

(Letter in Toronto Star)

TO THE EDITOR of The Star. Sir: While the subject of married women working is on the go, I should like to state what I know about it. I know about 12 "that used to be" good, innocent, hard working single girls, who have all gone to the dogs simply because they could not find work, and when they did, they got very little pay for it, through married women working whose husbands have also got jobs. I know two girls at present working in a cafe for $3 per week. How long they will do that God only knows.

I know another case where a married woman is working in an office for $18 per week; her husband is working in the same office getting $24. They have the cheek to pay a maid $5 per month.

Only the other day I sat in a beer parlor when in walks a girl I had known for 10 years. She was a good, hard working girl who would not touch a drop of beer or smoke. I went across to her and told her how surprised I was to see her in there. She nearly cried and said she had to live, telling me about the hard times she had had. I could have cried myself to see her there. Let those married women who are working and like to gad about having a good time think about these cases.

A lot of old men who have all kinds of money are holding down a job they have had for years. They should think of giving a young man a chance. I have one man in mind now who held his job till he was 90 years of age and thought what a fine man he was.

• Lenin and Trotsky In London

(From the Manchester Guardian)

AS IN OTHER large taverns, there is an upstairs room at the Crown and Woolpack near the Angel, Islington, where the local Masonic lodges, Ancient Foresters, and similar respectable bodies hold their meetings. But there was an evening in the Winter of 1906 when a more unorthodox group rented this room. Mr Horace Moore, who has just retired after 40 years as landlord of the tavern and 30 years as a Finsbury borough councillor, told recently how he discovered the identity of this group, called the "Foreign Barbers of London," the leaders of which, he said, proved to be Lenin and Trotsky.

Dissatisfied for some reason, Mr. Moore sought the advice of a detective friend, and Scotland Yard took a hand and thought that the "foreign barbers" were probably a group of Russian conspirators. "He found it hard to persuade me to allow such people in my house," said Mr. Moore, "but he said there was no danger and that he was anxious to seize the opportunity of overhearing what went on at these meetings, so I consented."

Mr. Moore said it was like a comic opera when those meetings took place, with plain-clothes men drinking at the bar, serving behind the counter, hiding in the attics and the cellars. "Two detectives who understood Russian were shut up for hours in a tiny room from which they could see and hear the proceedings, but there were no arrests, and it was only afterwards I was told that two of the Russians were Lenin and Trotsky."

Perhaps the oddest part of Mr. Moore's story was that, unknown both to the British police and to the conspirators, there was a Russian Government spy inside the room. Stranger still, according to what Mr. Moore was told the Russian secret agent was the famous Father Gapon.

VARIATIONS OF SMITH.

(Letter in London Observer)

SIR:: YOU HAVE A reference to the notice of my mother's death which appeared in "The Times" last week on my instructions.

As you say quite rightly, my uncle reverted to the older spelling Smyth in 1916, and at his suggestion I did the same. The Smijth was inconvenient, rather pedantic, and a more modern variant of Smith than was Smyth.

My mother, who owned property in Australia, did not wish to change the spelling for fear of legal complications in title deeds. Her obituary notice is spelt Smijth therefore.

There is, I believe, in Australia, a branch of the family using the same name and descended from a very distant cousin, whose legitimacy was established in Scottish courts some years ago, but not raised in English courts.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And John calling unto him two of his disciples sent them to Jesus, saying, Art thou he that should come? or look we for another?

And in that same hour he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits: and unto many that were blind he gave sight.

Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached.—Luke vii, 19-22.

POLICE BOMBING.

(Times of India, Bombay)

THE AEROPLANE in Frontier warfare has certain specified uses. There are reconnaissance and army co-operation which are indispensable and obviously involve air action against actively hostile elements. There is proscription or blockade in which the bomb is used if necessary, but not undiscriminately. With the technical perfection which the procedure of proscription has now attained, little bombardment is necessary to keep the blockaded area clear. Finally, there is punitive bombing, which means the destruction of evacuated villages after full and adequate warning has been given. It is this particular use of the bomb which has evoked the most widespread criticism and accusation. Judging from first hand accounts, it is very open to question whether the advantage gained by battering a few empty mud dwellings to pieces is commensurate either with the effort expended or with the invidious interpretations placed upon them throughout the world. The imposition of economic sanctions from the air has been proved a success in appropriate circumstances, but it is surely not impossible to devise a less drastic method of enforcement than the high explosive bomb.

NO CHILD'S PLAY.

(Johannesburg Times)

IT WOULD COME as a shock to unthinking city dwellers to know what a variety of knowledge a successful farmer must include in his equipment before he can so much as begin to farm. He must be a chemist, a carpenter, a weather prophet, a farrier, a water diviner, a blacksmith, a doctor, a wheelwright, a bookkeeper, a veterinary surgeon, a bricklayer, a mechanic, a thatcher or tiler, a plasterer, and something of a linguist. When he has assimilated a sound working knowledge of these trades and professions the farmer may turn his attention to extracting the best from his lands. Then he has to make up his mind to specialize in whatever branch of agriculture his farm is best fitted for. If it be viticulture, or rearing slaughter cattle, or raising sheep, or growing the hundred-and-one necessities of existence, he is faced with a complexity of conditions and deterrents that a lifetime of study is all too short to exhaust. A glance through the Farmers' supplement of the Sunday Times should be enough to convince the non-farming reader that the cultural background stressed by Mr. Botha never ceases to expand, and that the most exacting profession adopted by town dwellers is child's play by comparison with the book-learning needs of the agriculturist.

A Bit of Nonsense

SORRY HE SPOKE

Father: I'm sure our boy did not inherit his silly ideas from me!

Mother (icily): No, you've still got yours complete!

He had answered an advertisement offering a second-hand car, and was being given a trial run.

"It's sound in every part," commented the would-be seller.

"So I hear," was the reply.

Mining School To Be Held At Hailiebury

An opportunity for a few lucky Peterborough men to learn mining at Hailiebury will be afforded by the Employment Service of Canada in the near future, according to Dan Douglas, manager.

All applicants must be between tne ages of 18 and 30 years, must have complete junior matriculation and have passed examinations in upper school mathematics, including trigonometry, and must be in perfect physical condition. During their three-months' course they will be paid at the rate of $10 a week and transportation to Hailiebury will be provided. At the conclusion of the course, if they have passed their examinations, all students will receive positions in the mines.

Perfect physical condition is an absolute essential to the course, Mr. Douglas warned. He said that only one or two students will be taken from the city if they fill the bill and that they will have to pass one and possibly two medical examinations before attending the school. Persons wearing glasses will be excluded because mine operators will not employ them.

Persons who can meet the qualifications should apply to Mr. Douglas at the Employment Service headquarters on King street. Last year all who passed the course received positions immediately.

Applications for the household arts course are coming in slowly despite the fact that all girls who have taken it now have positions, Mr. Douglas said. Not one Peterborough girl has yet made application for the training, and at least two homes in the city are looking for graduates of the course, he said.

The course resembles a nursing course in many ways, trains girls in all the details of housekeeping. With a keen domestic problem facing the country the girls are virtually assured of work in the best homes and better than average pay. Applicants must be keen and alert and interested in their work, not just entering it as an escape from unemployment, Mr. Douglas said.

Great Britain has a "See Britain First" campaign.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, August 28.

Sunday's horoscope holds promise of a particularly lively and intriguing day, with much occurring to frustrate, delay and mystify, both in the business and in the intimate relations. It is possible that a bereavement may be at the source of this, culminating in new arrangements, with a notable climax in love affairs or friendly associations. The end should be a happy one, after much confusion, perplexity and sorrow.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which a major anxiety or a bereavement may be instrumental in changing the smooth course of events.

A child born on this day may have a slow, plodding, retiring disposition. It may be gentle, kindly and friendly, though shy and sensitive. It may, however, be favored by its elders, from whom there might be bequests or other substantial gifts.

For Monday, August 29.

Monday's astrological forecast is a particularly happy and propitious one. There is presage of a sudden stroke of good fortune that may result in the fulfilment of a cherished heart's desire. All this involves much activity, both in a business connection and in social, domestic and romantic adjustments.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a particularly felicitous, prosperous, and progressive year, with an outstanding stroke of good fortune assisting the wheels into grooves of a long-cherished heart's desire. New projects may be pushed under such stimulus, but the heart interest seems paramount.

A child born on this day may be capable, ambitious, magnanimous and gracious, with an intellect and personal bearing that may assist it to a place of power and influence in private as well as business life. It may be religiously inclined and should have a serviceable and happy life.

Another Protest

SHANGHAI, Aug. 27—(AP). — Great Britain protested to-day against suppression of Reuter's News Agency dispatches by Japanese censors.

The protest was made by Sir Charles Archibald Kerr, the British ambassador, to Masayuki Tani, Japanese ambassador-at-large in China. It was based on censorship of Reuter's reports Wednesday from the British colony at Hong Kong of the machie-gunning of an air transport by Japanese.

Sir Archibald said the British government cannot recognize any right of Japanese authorities to interefere with messages sent by or addressed to British subjects.

Three Churches Unite For A Picnic

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FOWLER'S CORNERS, Aug. 27.—The congregations of Lakefield, Lakevale, and Omemee Presbyterian Churches, of which Rev. J. M. Young is pastor, held a joint picnic on Wednesday afternoon at the farm home of Mrs. Joe Hunter, Lindsay Highway, when about one hundred people gathered for an afternoon of sport. A softball game between Lakefield and Lakevale was won by the former, while the one between Lakefield and Omemee was won by Omemee.

Race Results.

The various foot races were keenly contested, there being a large number of entrants in each case. Rev. Mr. Young, with a number of helpers, looked after these, the winners being as follows:

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

CHAPTER 27

RUTH CHESTER needed but one look at Laurie. "She's sleeping naturally," she said. "She's going to get well."

Noel couldn't help noticing that there were tears in the nurse's eyes as she turned away from Laurie's bed. Jimmy sat for a moment with his boyish face covered with his hands. He may have been praying a prayer of gratitude because Laurie had safely passed the crisis.

Laurie slept for hours. Jimmy did not leave her except when he went out for some lunch. He wanted to be there, he said, when she awakened the next time.

It was late in the afternoon when Laurie was full awake, though she had opened her eyes once or twice during the day and smiled at Jimmy. She was smiling at him now and said weakly, "I was afraid I had dreamed you were here."

Jimmy bent his head and kissed her pallid hand now lying outside the bedspread. Noel could see that he was fighting to keep back the joyful tears.

Ruth Chester moved up to the bed then, and told Laurie she could look at Jimmy all she wanted to, but that she mustn't talk.

Laurie smiled understandingly.

Noel had lost count of the days since Laurie had been ill. But it seemed as if her convalescence was even longer. A week passd, then another. And Noel knew it wouldn't be long now before she could leave Luigi's for good. She was almost counting the minutes.

Laurie was able to sit up in the wooden rocker at last propped up with pillows. Jimmy was back at work, but he came in for a short while every evening.

One day Nel heard Ruth Chester and Julian talking in the hall. "You'll be famous for this case," Ruth said. "They'll be writing you up in the medical journals. Oh, Julian, I'm so glad."

"That's true only up to a certain point," Julian answered. "Jimmy's coming had a lot to do with Laurie's recovery. Just how much, we'll never know."

"You're too modest," Ruth retorted. "It was your treatment. Doctor Merridew is an old-fashioned doctor. If you hadn't used the new method—" but Noel didn't hear any more.

Laurie and Jimmy were very much in love. It was sweet to see them together, and heart-breaking too, for the barrier between them wasn't removed. However, Jimmy wasn't married. Noel had found that out. It was something else that had come between them.

A few more days and Ruth Chester was no longer on regular duty, although she came back once or twice a day to see that Laurie was convalescing properly. Noel couldn't help observing that she was most conscientious. No wonder Julian had said she was one of the best nurses in the city!

Laurie wasn't allowed to talk very much yet. But she and Jimmy didn't need to talk. It was enough for them just to be able to look into each other's eyes. Noel had never seen a love like this between two people. She probably wouldn't have if she had not embarked on her adventure. People in her world took love a great deal more casually. When they married, it was usually with the idea of getting a divorce if the marriage was not successful and try again with someone else. That was not the way marriage should be. Noel thought. It certainly was not the way she wanted her own marriage to be—just in case she should ever marry. But marriage for herself seemed to be growing more remote all the time. Noel was doing a lot of thinking these days. She had to admit to herself that she was beginning to find many of Julian's ideas to be right.

Laurie, at last, was ready to go back to work.

That morning Noel phoned the Garwood home. Hichens answered. She asked if the position was still open. Hichens said quickly, even a little anxiously, that it was. Noel told him then to tell Mrs. Garwood she would be ready for work on the following Monday.

Today was Wednesday. Noel didn't want to leave Laurie until she was certain she was quite able to go on with her work. She didn't know whether there might be danger of a relapse or not, but she was still a little uneasy about Laurie. And the thought of leaving her made Noel feel sad.

She tried to comfort herself in believing that Laurie and Jimmy were about to get their troubles straightened out. At last they were together often now and then seemed happier. In this, however, Noel was wrong. For Laurie and Jimmy were again telling each other that it would be best not toe each other at all under the circumstances.

Working for the Garwood's, even though it seemed to be a strange household, would be wonderful after Luigi's, Noel told herself happily.

That morning Laurie and Noel talked before Laura left. Laurie looked very happy again. Her eyes were sad. For the first time, Laurie explained the trouble between Jimmy and herself. "I made up my mind I—wouldn't ever see him again," she began, "because we couldn't hope to get married. I—didn't even answer his note." She stopped a moment then went on sadly. "It's his mother. When his father died, she made Jimmy promise her that he would never marry as long as she lived. It wasn't fair, but Jimmy gave his promise."

Laurie shook her head. "You see," she continued, "Jimmy's mother has heart trouble, or else she—she pretends to have. And when Jimmy says anything about his promise, asks her to try to understand, why she simply has an attack. It frightens him very much."

"It's just selfishness on her part, I'm afraid," Noel said, trying to keep her voice from sounding indignant.

"Yes, I'm afraid that's what it is," Laurie agreed. "Of course, if there were more money, so Jimmy's mother could live in a hotel things would be different. Jimmy makes $50 a week. He's one of the bosses out at the Barton Stave and Spoke, but his mother says that's not enough to support both his wife and his mother."

Money, Noel was thinking. It was the lack of it which seemed to cause all the trouble in the world. If Jimmy had more money, then his troubles and Laurie's probably would be over.

More and more Noel was learning how important money was to people who didn't have it. How even small amounts meant the difference to some people between happiness and despair. It didn't seem right that money should be placed before happiness, because you didn't have enough, or—had too much.

Laurie's eyes grew sad when Noel told her that she would be leaving for the Garwood's on Monday. "You've been the most wonderful friend in the world, Noel," she said feelingly. "I know what you did for me while I was ill, and I think I know how you did it. Some day—I'm going to pay you back every cent."

"Now, listen, don't you give that a thought, I—was glad to do what I could," Noel smiled tenderly. "You do not owe me a single penny."

"You got the money from Luigi, didn't you?" Laurie questioned.

Noel nodded. "He's rich—why not?" she tried to say nonchalantly.

"I'm not afraid of Luigi. And just think in a few days I won't ever see him any more." Noel made a mental reservation here. For, of course, when she found herself in position to, she was going to return all the extra money he had paid her. She thought she would just send it to him in a registered envelope, so she wouldn't have to see him.

But even though Noel insisted she wasn't afraid of Nick Luigi, she dreaded very much having to tell him she was leaving. She hadn't any idea how he would take it. Nick, with pale eyes and grim lips with the endless cigar clamped in one corner of his mouth.

The more she thought of it, the more she dreaded telling him. Sometimes she almost decided not to tell him at all, but just simply fail to appear on Monday night. In that way she would avoid what she was sure would be a hateful scene. But Noel had never been a coward. And Nick had helped her out when she had needed help so very much.

However, Noel had to have another scene with Nick, no matter how much she had hoped to avoid it. For when she reached the Peacock that night, another evening frock had been substituted for the brocade one. This one was of flame-colored chiffon, with a low, softly-draped bodice and a very full accordian-pleated skirt.

Right then and there the argument started. It was Nick in the end who won. Noel wore the new frock, telling herself happily that it wouldn't be for long. Only tonight—she would not come back!

The chiffon frock swirled gracefully and beautifully about her slender body when she began dancing. It seemed that everyone in the place had his eyes upon her, not excepting Nick, of course. And then to Noel's delight she saw Chris come up and tap her partner on the shoulder. He took her in his arms and smiled at her in his gay, boyish way. So she knew he was no longer angry.

It was lovely dancing with him again. "I'm so glad you came," she whispered. "This is my last night here."

"You bet your life it is, sweetheart," Chris said blithely. "I've got important news for you," he added.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Then Knarf, the shadow boy, came into the playroom. When he saw the rag doll his eyes opened wide in astonishment.

"Why, Mary Jane! Where is your face?"

"It was washed away, Knarf. Laddie, the puppy, thought he could lick away the smudges, and he licked away my whole face."

"All you've got left are your two shoe-button eyes."

"Yes," she sighed. And two little black drops came rolling out of her eyes and made streaks down the place where her cheeks used to be.

"Just wait till the children see her," the Tin Soldier, standing by the door with his musket over his shoulder, said at that moment.

Mr. Punch, who really felt sorry for poor Mary Jane, said: "The only thing to do is to get Mary Jane a new face before the children come in."

"A very good idea," the stuffed teddy bear said. "Only where can anyone get her a new face? That's what I'd like to know."

"Mary Jane! Where is your face?"

"Teddy Bear is right," the painted duck on wheels agreed. "You can't buy faces in a store as you can a pound of sugar. Faces have to grow on you. I've had my face ever since the day I was born."

Knarf thought and thought. At last he said: "Mary Jane didn't have a regular face. That's the reason the puppy was able to lick it off. It's got to be painted on again."

"Yes—but who's going to do it?" cried the toys. "Who can paint it on again?"

"I don't know." Then he sat down and thought some more. He couldn't do it himself, No one in the whole playroom could do.

He was about to say: "Well Mary Jane, I guess from now on—" But just then he glanced at the rag doll and saw her weeping harder than ever.

So he didn't say a word, but put his hand to his forehead and thought harder and harder.

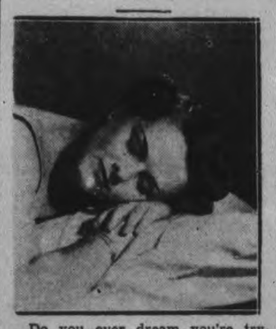
Solve the Mystery of Your Dreams



Do you ever dream you're trying to run — and find yourself unable to move?

A train rushes on you, wild animals leap at you, and you can't put one foot in front of the other. What a silly dream, you think.

Yet it tells you something you probably didn't know about yourself. You're letting some problem overwhelm you without taking steps to prevent it. The train — or wild animals — may represent debts, your fear of losing your good looks or worry over Junior's tantrums. Your subconscious mind says you're doing nothing to head off trouble.

Learn the meanings of "floating in air," "falling through space" dreams and other common ones. Our 32-page booklet gives you clues to interpret your dreams, whether simple or fantastic. Learn dream symbols, too.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of THE MEANING OF DREAMS to the Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

Jenny Morris Back

TORONTO, Aug. 27 (CP).—Jenny Morris, war-time sister of the Princess Pats, arrived here today and was acclaimed by scores of veterans, some of the thousands of Canadian soldiers entertained by Jenny Morris at her London home during war years.

"Jenny, oh Jenny, how are you, Jenny?" the soldiers shouted and smiling Jenny, her face pink with excitement, bantered with them as she distributed friendly kisses.

Until further notice the Steamer, Islinda will leave Lakefield daily at 9 a.m. standard time for Stoney Lake points, returning to Lakefield in time to connect with the C.N.R. train for Toronto.

Old Mansion Stripped

HALIFAX, Aug. 27 (C.P.). — Dust gathered to-day in the old Odell mansion, stripped of its Victorian elegance, after more than $30,000 worth of rare furnishings were auctioned to close the estate of the late Miss Mary Odell, last member of a family that wrote its name in the pages of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia history. Only a few effects went unsold as the auction concluded yesterday.

Mr. Picobac Quizzes His New Daughter-in-Law

"AND how is he treating you?" inquired Mr. Picobac, with a great show of anxiety, the genuineness of which was denied by the twinkle in his eye.

"Great," replied Betty, showing a set of even white teeth and a suspicion of a dimple in each cheek. "He dries the dishes at night and kisses me once a day—just before he goes to work . . . and don't be so inquisitive!"

"Well, well," said Mr. Picobac tapping the bowl of his pipe into the palm of his hand, and twinkling at his new daughter-in-law from under his brows, "I'm glad you've got him tamed. Pete's quite a boy. But you feed him well, and let him put his feet up at night and smoke Picobac Burley, and he'll be all right.—You know, Betty, my dear, Picobac's a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke. Never, never forget that."

C.N.E. Said Canada's Show Window

TORONTO, Aug. 27—(CP)—Canada's soldiers, visiting veterans from the United States and other foreign countries will take over the Canadian National Exhibition today as the annual Warriors' Day is observed. In their thousands they will parade through city streets to the Exhibition Grounds.

Specially for the warriors will be a military tattoo tonight before the grandstand. Massed bands, including the Royal Artillery band visiting here for the first time, will play and the evening will be topped off with a special pyrotechnic display.

The Exhibition was officially thrown open yesterday when Lord Stanley of Preston, British Dominions Secretary, pressed a button after an address in which he named Canada as a leader in Empire co-operation.

Keynoting his address at the opening ceremonies was Lord Stanley's description of the Exhibition as "the show window of Canada."

Although the opening day's attendance was, as usual, smaller than the average day when the fair gets under way—51,000 passed through the turnstiles — officials declared there was no hitch in the proceedings.

Sports attractions today include one-mile swimming races for the Ontario amateur championships and Wrigley trophies for men and women; the Canadian 15-mile tandem canoe marathon championship, sailing races for yachts and dinghies; and an exhibition softball game between a Toronto team and the worlds champion Briggs' team of Detroit.

Law Is Unchanged

OTTAWA, Aug. 27 (CP)—The position of Canada with regard to admission of German Jewish refugees is unchanged from what it has been for a considerable time, it was learned here today. A report from Basel, Switzerland, quoting Lord Duncannon, son of a former governor General to Canada, Lord Bessborough, as saying "Canada has closed its doors" was received here with surprise.

The Canadian immigration regulations have not been altered and no restrictions are placed upon the entry into Canada of any person who is able to comply with these regulations.

Is The Base Plug In The Right Place?

Why is it that the base plug never seems to be in the right place? Well, in many cases it is because it is in the wrong place. To be sure to have a base plug always at a convenient spot, there should be one at every point between door and window openings.

Another refinement that is now widely practiced is taking the plug out of the baseboard and placing it in the wal labove. If you have a table on which you want to place a lamp the plug can be placed 20 inches or so above the floor. This keeps the cords off the floor where they gather dust fuzz and look untidy. The wall plates that cover the plugs may be painted like the walls so they are scarcely noticeable.

Irma Irene Beatty Is Saturday Bride

A very pretty wedding took place to-day (August 27) at 2 p.m., in George Street United Church, when Irma Irene, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beatty, Stewart street, was united in marriage to Cedric Arthur, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Christie Robson, Waterford street, Rev. M. C. Parr officiating. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Renaud.

The bride was gowned in whote satin fashioned on princess lines, with a wide lace panel trimmed with tiny satin-covered buttons extending from neckline to hem. She wore a halo of Orange Blossoms, which held in place the floor-length tulle veil. Her gloves and shoes were white, and she carried a bouquet of red "Better Times" roses.

The best man was Mr. Donald Moore.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for about twenty guests. The bride's mother received in a gown of royal blue triple sheer with matching hat and accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore navy blue chiffon with white accessories, and a corsage of Token roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold dresser set; to the bridesmaid a necklace; to the best man a billfold, and to the organist, a compact.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Robson will live at 469 Stewart street.

SPEED IN MATRIMONY

LONDON—(CP). — F. J. Jordan, superintendent registrar for Paddington, who says registry-office marriages have increased because they are "quick ceremonies without fuss," has retired after 26 years' service.

Senator Fallis Welcomes Lady Stanley

Senator Iva Fallis, who was a guest at the Founders' Day luncheon in the Women's Building of the C.N.E. Friday, at which Lady Stanley, wife of the Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, was guest of honor, was introduced to Lady Stanley as "one of the two women who sit in the upper House of Canadian Parliament." In welcoming the distinguished guest, Senator Fallis said, "We owe a great debt to Britain at the present time. We feel that England is an achor in an unsteady world, and we look to her for leadership. We in Canada appreciate everything that is being done," she said, "and we feel from our hearts for those who are bearing the burdens, and give our utmost loyalty and support."

Lady Stanley expressed the pleasure of herself, her distinguished husband and sons, with all they had seen in Canada and the reception accorded them, in which, she said, Canada had maintained her reputation for hospitality. She regretted they "were not staying long enough in any one place to see the country thoroughly." It was a privilege, she said, to be able to bring her sons here, and although, as their masters had said, they are missing a few weeks of school, she thought "the time well lost to have these few weeks in Canada."

Happy Reunion At Log Cabin

A very happy family reunion took place at The Log Cabin, Actinolite, on August 21, when Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McDonald, Peterborough, were host and hostess to twenty-eight guests on the occasion of their tenth wedding anniversary.

The party sat down to a splendid chicken dinner prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Price. The tables were suitably decorated, and after the first course, little Donald McDonald, aged 7, climbed on a chair and called the company to order. In his inimitable, childish way, he said he wanted to sing a song, so he sang gayly "The More We Are Together, the Happier We'll Be," and then he insisted on all joining in the second verse. Speeches were given and a toast made to the bride and groom of ten years ago. A cornet solo, "The Gold Mine in the Sky," was played by Walter Affleck.

The afternoon was spent in swimming and happy reminiscing, as many of those present had not met for years. This was a particularly happy meeting, as the father and mother of host and hostesses were present.

The guests were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McDonald, Perth; Mr. and Mrs. John H Buffam, Lanark; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. P. Buffam, Carleton Place; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gordon, Dalhousie Lake; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Buffam, Glencoe, Ont.; Mr. Walter Affeck, Lanark; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Buffam, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Chivers and son Bill, Sarnia; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Robertson, Almonte; Mr. George A. Buffam, Carleton Place; Miss Jean Porterfield, Carleton Place; Miss Jean McDonald, Perth; Mr. W. Nichols, Perth; Mr. Charles McDonald and Miss Hilda Adams, Toronto, and Miss Jean Bain, Lanark.

Well-dressed Queen Was Much Admired

The great fashion truth that there is nothing more becoming than black-and-white, or white with a touch of black, has been proved again in the case of Queen Elizabeth's outfit for Paris, says a writer in the Glasgow Bulletin. Even when not in mourning, she likes to wear white or white-and-silver in the evening, and her gowns for the State functions have been masterpieces in these schemes. For her all-white daytime ensembles Her Majesty has had the sunny background that is often lacking when she wears pale colors in her own country. She has looked charming, and Paris — the most critical city in the world where dress is concerned—has admired her whole-heartedly. Pure white was the garb of Royal mourning in the old days when France had queens.

WOMEN INVADE FETE

WORMS, Hessen—(CP). — This historic city on the Rhine has been chosen as site for the "Backfischfest" — fete of fishermen — which opens August 27. In recent years women have taken a big part in the fete and the word "Backfisch" also is slang for "flapper."

Fashions

Schoolgirls will be thrilled with this school ensemble. Navy blue rayon and wool mixture made the jumper and jacket. The blouse is washable....crisp white pique. Neat white ric-rac edges the attractive collar and cuffs of the brief sleeves. Extra blouses in almost any color could be worn with the navy jumper to keep her spic and span. Think of the variety at little extra cost.

Plaid woollen or velveteen is another popular idea for autumn. The pattern may be used for separate jackets, blouses or jumpers. Easy to sew. The dress is a one-piece affair. A diagrammed sewing instruction chart is included.

Style No. 3443 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 years. Size 8 requires 1 yard of 39-inch material with 3 yards of braid for blouse; and 2¼ yards of 39-inch material for the short sleeved jacket and jumper.

Children Pay Back To Their Parents Love And Affection In The Same Measure That They Are Given In The Early Days Of Their Lives

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a neighbor in her early twenties whose husband has a good steady job. They have only one child, a bright little girl of 5, whom they send to her grandparents for six or eight months of each year so that they may not be bothered with her and may be free to do as they please. The grandparents are old people who live in another State and are very poor. The grandfather works hard, making each month less than the young husband makes in a week, but the parents not only do not pay any board for the child, but the grandparents have to supply it with clothes, shoes, etc., out of their scanty income. The grandparents have told the parents that they are not able to care for the child in any way, but they continue to dump her on them just the same. Don't you think that this child will grow up without any affection for her parents? I may be obsolete in my ideas, but I wouldn't give up the daily association with my youngster for anything in the world. What will be the result of the parents' neglect of this child, and how will it reflect in after years? A MOTHER.

DOROTHY DIX

Answer:

Evidently your neigbors have no natural parental feeling for their child and so she is probably better off with her grandparents than she would be with her cold-hearted and selfish mother and father.

No doubt her grandmother and grandfather give her the love and tenderness that the little girl needs, and they are doing the best they can to mold the little character into a form of sweetness and beauty, and start the little feet down the road of right living. But why the mother and father are willing to miss their child's babyhood passes understanding. They are cutting themselves out of one of the most thrilling and interesting experiences in life, for nothing is more fascinating than to watch a little child's mind expand, and nothing more humorous and entertaining than to hear its naive comments on the world as it sees it from its high-chair. Just as pure diversion it is worth all the night clubs and drinking places and all-night parties that you can scare up in a blue moon.

It is a mystery why these misguided parents do not realize that in sending their child away from them for more than half the time they are alienating her affections from them. Children's love is founded on habit and dependence, and if these are denied in order to be free, then the children inevitably grow up not only with no affection for their fathers and mothers, but a resentment for the wrong they have done them.

For parents to think that their children will love them because it is their duty to is nonsense. There is no obligation in love. Children pay back to their parents only the affection they receive, and in later days when these parents expect their daughters to be tender and devoted to them and find them cold and hard they will have only themselves to blame.

But the great wrong that this selfish and self-centered young couple are committing is against the old people whom they are victimizing for their own pleasure. They are old and feeble poor and hard worked, and it is an outrage that anything more should be laid upon their bent old backs when they are already staggering along under all the load they can carry.

No matter how sweet and dear a child is, it is a great care. There are a million things that have to be done for it. Special food has to be prepared for it. It has to be watched over continually and in its restlessness, its eagerness, its bubbling joy and excitement in everything it shatters the quiet and peace of a house and keeps it noisy and stirred up.

Old hands grow weary washing little faces a dozen times a day. Old feet drag trying to keep pace with a child's swift ones. Tired old people long for quiet evenings after the day's work is done, and they should have them. Children are their own parents' responsibility and they have no right to dump them on their poor old fathers and mothers when they want to take a trip or amuse themselves.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Can you help a poor brokenhearted man who has four young children whom he is anxious to bring up properly and who has to do the job alone, as their mother is in an asylum hopelessly insane? The great problem is the girl who has just passed her thirteenth birthday. She is in the eighth grade, does well at school, belongs to a 4-H club, makes her own clothes, does most of the housework and cooks when the cook has her day off, but she is getting to the boy-crazy age and thinks that I am unjust and tyrannical when I won't let her go out alone with four young lads of 15 to 17 on automobile rides. I told her that she could have as many boys come to the house as she wanted, but that she couldn't go off in a car with any boy who didn't bring along his mother or his sister or some responsible person. What would you advise me to do?

ANXIOUS FATHER.

Answer:

You are not alone in not knowing how to deal with a 13-year-old daughter. Every other father and mother in the land who have an adolescent daughter are wrestling with the same problem. When you meet old friends whom you haven't seen for two or three years and see streaks of silver in their hair and harried lines in their faces, it isn't because of the depression or because they are in bad health. It is because they don't know what to do with Jane who will paint herself up like a barn door and who thinks that she should be permitted to go to night clubs instead of having to go to school.

And nobody is wise enough to tell them how to handle the situation. For if you give Jane her head she runs wild and into dangers she is too young and ignorant to be aware of and does things she spends the remainder of her life repenting, and if you try to curb her too much and drive with too tight a rein she is likely to bolt and smash the whole family up.

Girls have a lot of respect for their fathers' opinions because they think they know the world. Make a confidant of your daughter and tell her what you know about men and boys. Sometimes I think a father is a better guide for a girl than her mother is.

The Examiner's Needlework Pattern

JIFFY KNIT BLOUSE PATTERN 1026

Get out those big needles — some Shetland floss and you'll be all set to make this lovely blouse. It's an easy stitch—you can tell that by the detail. And it's a blouse you can wear right through the fall. With short sleeves, it's lovely with a suit—with long sleeves (directions for these are given in the pattern), it makes an excellent blouse for the coldest weather. The collar, sleeves, and belt are in plain knitting, giving an excellent contrast. You can make a plain knitted skirt to go with it. Pattern 1026 contains directions for making the blouse and a skirt in sizes 16 to 18 and 38 to 40 (all given in one pattern); an illustration of blouse and of stitches; materials needed.

Send 20 cents in coins or stamps for this pattern to Examiner Needlecraft Dept., Peterborough. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Great occasions do not make heroes or cowards, they simply reveal them to the eyes of men. Silently and imperceptibly as we wake or sleep, we grow old and wax strong, we grow and wax weak; and at last, some crises shows us what we have become."
—Canon Westcott.

Dear Friends:

Every so often in our lives we find we must make decisions. Many times we do not want to make them, we would rather go on as we are with as little friction as possible, but there they are staring us in the face, and we must either do the right that is indicated, or let things slide, and weaken ourselves in doing it.

None of us like bother, we want life to flow evenly like a smooth stream. But who knows the rocks over which the stream had to pass before it became calm as we see it? Who sees the turmoil of the waters, the spray which rises like a mist before the stream got to a calmer bed?

And many times none see the turmoil within us when decisions must be made, the circumstances which govern us, the difference which doing this will bring into our lives. Our hearts turn to water, we fear the future which sometimes looks very dark to us, we hesitate yet know in our secret heart that we must either be strong or weak.

So, we torture ourselves. The thing to do is indicated quite clearly, yet we think, "what if we are wrong? What if this turns out badly for me? Shall I, or shall I not?"

But, once we make the right move, our hearts and minds are at peace. The thing is, so to speak, done with. No more are we dithery and ill at ease, no more do we straddle the fence. We have made our decision, and we will abide by it.

And it is surprising indeed how things fall into their right place when we do this. Things are at a standstill until we do, nothing gets a chance to go right, so we become short-tempered and irritable, and all because we cannot make up our mind.

Sometimes we let things slide, hoping against hope that they will right themselves, which, to be truthful, they sometimes do. But when a thing is clearly indicated, and we will not do our part, then we show ourselves for the weak thing we are for all the world to see, and we despise ourselves for this weakness.

Life is not all marked out with sign-posts saying "turn this way and you will be right, or turn that way and you will be wrong." But we all all have a hidden monitor which nags at us, which makes us vastly uncomfortable when decisions must be made, and which tortures us with our weakness when we will not make them.

So, if there is anything you ought to do, do it and get it over with, do it and get peace of mind. Don't let this weakness rule your life, else you will rue it bitterly.

For, sometimes when strength would lead you on to victory, you will not be able to call on it, because this weak streak has gone into every fiber of your being. I have said before, when you honestly do not know what to do, do nothing but leave it to God.

But, He expects you to do your part, He wants you to be strong, to cast out fear, to choose the right yourself, not always to be pushed into it by Him because you are too spineless to make up your own mind.

It is not easy sometimes, but you get an inner peace which all the shilly-shallying will never bring you. Weigh the consequences, be sure you are right as far as you see, then go ahead. You'll be glad.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Found Silver Bar

KETCHUM, Idaho—Three years ago Floyd Richardson saw a brightly glittering object in Trail Creek, did not bother to investigate. This summer he noticed; it again, took time out for a closer look. His reward—a 200 pound bar of silver worth about $1,300.

Appeal Is Made Assessment On H.I.P. Plan

First appeal to the Court of Revision for reduction of assessment of a house on which $300 borrowed under the Home Improvement Plan had been expended was heard by the Court Friday afternoon. The owner of the house had informed the city assessor, W. J. Henry, that the investment had been made with money obtained under the Dominion government's legislation providing for the borrowing of money at the banks, and the assessment was increased with a consequent boost of $10.50 in the taxes. The appeal was based on the authorized arrangement to exclude these improvements from assessment, at least for three years, but as the roll had been completed, the Court was precluded from amending the assessment for the present year. However, the owner's tax bill for this year will be reduced by $10.50, and the assessment amended for the future.

It is believed at the City Hall that there are scores of instances similar to this one in which home owners did not notify the assessor of the expenditure of money advanced for improvements under the H.I.P. If advantage is to be obtained from the amendment providing for no increases in assessment, obviously the property owners should acquaint the assessor of the fact.

Each Blames Other

FAIRFIELD, Ill., Aug. 27—(AP)—Sheriff Ernest Burkett said today two Tennessee Mountain women had made oral statements accusing each other of the murder of Felix Shannon, 56-year-old farmer.

Both women admitted being at Shannon's home, the sheriff stated, but each girl blamed the other for firing the shots that killed him.

The young women, Jean Brooks, 23, of Elizabethtown, Tenn., and Beulah Honeycutt, 25, Johnson City, Tenn., were arrested Tuesday night on a tip by the slain man's young son.

OFFERED TWO PHEASANTS.

Finley Meeks, 263 Armour Road, found newspaper publicity brought added birds to his strange collection of wild ducks, Canada geese, pheasants of half a dozen varieties, owls, and other oddities. One Toronto woman who read the story of his collection wrote to him offering to let him have two Lady Amherst pheasants. She said she would bring them to Peterborough by train and asked that he meet her at the station. A short time afterwards she changed her mind, drove with them in her car to Mr. Meeks' door. She wanted to make sure the birds were going to have a good home, she explained. Mr. Meeks has the birds, beautifully colored, in large wire cages. They are still losing this years feathers, and are not yet in

ORCHARD IS STRIPPED

A young orchard of eighty trees on the east side of the large hill on the Department of National Defence rifle ranges east of the city has been completely stripped by the ravages of tent caterpillars. The trees were stripped of leaves early in the year and then when new ones grew out, most of these were folded and shrivelled as the worms build individual cocoons on the leaves. There are no apples on the trees but in other years this orchard produced a bumper crop of winter variety apples.

DEANNARD APPLAUDED.

Jack Deannard, doing special police duty for the Peterborough Lacrosse Club at the box Friday night, drew waves of applause from the packed west side grandstand, when he made all spectators stand beyond the grandstand so that those on the lower seats would have a clear view. Many of the offenders, followers of the Brooklyn team persisted in standing on or near their team's bench, but Jack with customary firmness and his tact found them new locations. One obstreperous customer put up quite an argument, but the genial constable calmly marched him to a new section, and the crowd roared its approval. Sixteen hundred people saw the game, both stands being packed.

A FREE MAN AGAIN

George Record, 27, of Cricket Place walks the streets a little carefully today but with more freedom than he has had in months. Last week doctors removed a plaster cast which enveloped him from hips to neck, as a derangement in one of his spinal vertebrae was being corrected. Record received the injury 2 years ago while working underground at Dome Mine and spent 17 months in the cast, most of this period being confined to bed. He is feeling quite fit again and intends to return to the mining country. George is over six feet tall and stands very erect. The plaster cast forced him to walk even straighter than before, and no Guardsman could improve on his posture at the present time.

Canadian Finds Travel Easy On Continent

A Canadian travelling in Europe has a much easier time than most people because he has no national characteristics that he must leave behind him, according to Don Kennedy who spoke at the Kiwanis club's weekly luncheon on Friday.

"You can always pick out an American or an Englishman or a Frenchman or a Dutchman, but the Canadian has no national traits," he said. He can adopt rapidly the customs of other lands, nor feel ill at ease in so doing. Unlike the Englishman he does not miss his roast beef; unlike the German he does not miss his native beer. He assumes the clothing of other lands with comfort for the time being, is not conscious particularly of their being different, because he has no national costume of his own.

Mr. Kennedy told Kiwanians of his trip across the ocean on a cattle boat. "It was not a very romantic crossing," he said. Sailors did not wear natty uniforms, but overalls and rubber boots. In their spare time they did tatting. Work commenced at four o'clock in the morning and because they were slowly approaching the east, they lost forty minutes sleep every night. "Unless you went to bed earlier each night you were geting up about one in the morning by the time you got across," he explained.

A Good Trip

He advised Kiwanians to let their boys go to England in a cattle boat if they wanted to. "There is no danger and the food, if it were served in a lumbering camp, would be considered good enough." On board a ship that took two weeks to make the crossing, that tossed to and fro at every wave, it was hardly good food, but passable enough for the fortnight, he said. "Stew at seven in the morning is tough in any man's language," he said.

During summer months many of the cattlemen were university students who made the crossing pleasant. In late autumn their level drops off and a crossing is not so congenial.

He told of his stay in London and described conditions in Germany, where he found adulation of Adolph Hitler, strong Jewish persecution, great lack of freedom. On the other hand, there is no unemployment in the land and the German people seem to like living in a regimented land, he claimed. "As one American said, they have everything but peace on earth, good will toward men," he said.

The old German culture is dying out and is being replaced by a harsh militaristic outlook, he said. The young Nazis who parade around in uniform have none of the courtesy of their elders, and the feeling seems to be that culture is to be reserved for the few, unthinking obedience for the many, he recounted.

Request City Trust To Balance Budget

To cover the city's estimated deficit of between $30,000 and $40,000 at the end of this year of reduced relief assistance from the provincial and federal governments, Alderman Gordon is proposing in a resolution to be presented at the next meeting of the council that the City Trust Commission be requested to take from their surplus the amount required to balance the city's books for 1938. On several fairly memorable occasions it has been declared that the Commission has no authority to divert the moneys to other purposes than those set forth in the special legislation by which the Trust was created, but it is understood Ald. Gordon intends to renew his effort to receive substantial and timely assistance from the Commission of which Vincent Eastwood is chairman.

Crickets In Bedroom Add To Torture Of Women Kept Awake With Hay Fever

TO HAVE A cricket singing in the house is considered a lucky omen but there is one Ashburnham woman who would gladly kill every cricket living today.

The woman a victim of hay fever and worn out from three sleepeles sor practically sleepless nights thought she would at last be able to get some badly needed rest last night because it was so cool. But alas several cricyets had found their way into the downstairs bedroom and kept up an intermittent chorus that made sleep impossible. To add to her discomfort her husband, free of the distressing hay fever and undisturbed by the crickets, snoozed soundly.

After two hours of torture the woman, turned on the light and armed with a slipper explored every corner of the room until six crickets lay dead. One other defied all her attempts to locate him, and she finally fell asleep to awake this morning with the cheep-cheep of the solitary cricket ringing in her ears. He will be located before nightfall if she has to rip the walls down.

Cheddar Radium Mine Is Closed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Aug. 27.—At a session of the police court Friday a resident of Burnt River, named Sheehy, was fined $100.00 and costs for having liquor illegally. The information was laid by Provincial Constable Adair.

Death on Thursday evening claimed a popular and highly respected resident of Lindsay in the person of Miss Georgina Connolly, of the firm of Davis and Connolly. She was ill only a few days, and her demise has caused general regret. The late Miss Connolly was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Connolly, her father having been a prominent business man some years ago. She is survived by three nieces and one nephew.

The radium mine at Cheddar, 30 miles from the village of Haliburton, has been closed down, but is expected to resume operations at an early date. Large buildings have been built at this mine and a shaft house extends hundreds of feet into the air. Several families have moved into Cheddar during the past few years and built comfortable homes, which are lighted by a Delco plant situated at the mines.

Farmers in Ireland are being fined for not paying legal minimum wages to agricultural workers.

Vacuum Cleaner Repair Racket Being Extensively Worked

An urgent warning to housewives to think twice before they permit an unidentified repair man to carry off their vacuum cleaners was voiced yesterday by F. H. Patterson who has information that many women have been victimized in other cities and in Peterborough, at least three have paid exorbitant prices for repair jobs but have been lucky in that their machines have been returned.

The vacuum cleaner repair work racket is one of the simplest known and perhaps the most successful of its kind. A glib salesman with a new vacuum cleaner under his arm approaches a housewife ostensibly to sell a machine. When the woman states she already has one he seeks permission to inspect it and usually is granted this privilege. Usually he congratulates the housewife on her choice of a machine but point out that it needs, cleaning, oiling or possibly adjusting. This he claims would cost very little and would make the machine as good as new again. The owner is impressed by the man's honesty as he does not try to force a sale when he sees the woman already owns one, but suggests that he be allowed to take the machine and repair it.

Collect In Advance.

Very often the man tries to collect the price of the repairs in advance, if successful, the housewife will not only never see her machine again but will also be minus two dollars, or whatever was the repair bill.

The men are said to work in gangs and all machines "borrowed" in one city are immediately shipped away to another large centre where they are sold.

Recently a machine stolen in this manner was located through the serial number at Sudbury when the racketeer attempted to sell it and he went to jail. Machines stolen at Ottawa have been advertised for sale in Oshawa and so on.

If the owner of a machine taken out for repairs insists on an address the man will usually keep the machine for a few days, polish it and do other minor work then charge the owner an exorbitant price without doing any work that improves the efficiency of the vacuum cleaner.

Work Never Done.

In Peterborough two women were thus victimized, one paying $3.75 and the other $5.75 for repair work that was never actually done. A Lakefield woman has also been swindled out of a few dollars.

Citizens may protect themselves by asking the salesman to produce his credentials and in the case of Electrolux men, all carry stamped cards and an identification button. Legitimate agents for Hoover and other makes can also produce proper credentials which may be checked by merely calling the local office.

Any salesman who attempts to sell a machine which bears no serial number is open to suspicion as most of these nameplates which bear the number are rivetted on and can be removed only by a chisel and hammer.

The Rambling REPORTERS

DIFFERENT OUTLOOKS

Three young people in a youth hostel, one a German, another an Italian, and the third an English girl,all looking at a picture of Mussolini stripped to the waist, showed Don Kennedy the difference in outlooks in the people of the three nations.

The Italian, eyes glowing, boasted of the splendid physique of Il Duce as revealed by the newspaper picture. The German was quick to speak up for the prowess of Herr Adolph, who, he said, was second to none. "Neville Chamberlain had better not try posing for a picture like that," was the English girl's comment.—P.

Schools Open On September 6

Parents and their children are becoming school conscious once again, according to inspector Keith S. Wightman, who said people are continually telephoning to him asking what day school starts.

School opens on September 6, the day following Labor Day. This is a change from last year to the old rule. Last year school commenced on September 1. The same opening day applies to both public and high schools.

'Better Business Training'

Mr. W. J. Cameron (Ford Sunday Evening Hour) says there is always OPPORTUNITY if one is READY. This young man was ready—read his letter—it should be an inspiration to you.

Port Hope, Ontario, Aug. 16, 1938

Mr. R. M. Houston, Principal
Federal Business College
124 Hunter Street, West
Peterborough, Ontario

Dear Mr. Houston:

Since coming to Port Hope I have not been in touch with you and I thought possibly you would be anxious to know whether or not I obtained the job.

I started at the ——— on Monday, August 8. My duties consist of taking dictation and typing letters. I also take a report on the ——— and type it. During the rest of the day I stay around the factory and observe the work, learning all possible in connection with the different departments.

Mr. ——— states that by being acquainted with the operations in the different departments, I am placing myself in a position to be able to take charge of any branch of the business at any time, and he believes that within a reasonable time I should have even a better position. At the present I am learning work that is carried on by the chemist, that is in testing.

I find my work very interesting. I have had no difficulty with my work, typing, dictation or transcription. So far I have had no bookkeeping to do, but from looking over the books I found that they used very much the same style as I was taught and that they endeavor to keep everything simplified as much as possible. I found the files mixed up but I have started another system of filing and Mr. ——— states that he has found everything very satisfactory.

I learned the other day that I certainly had plenty of opposition in replying to this advertisement in the Examiner. I understand there were over ——— replies, but thanks to your help in answering the ad I got the job.

With best wishes for your success, I remain
Yours truly,
(Sgd.) J. G. CROWLEY

WITHOUT EXCEPTION, when there has been open competition for a position, a FEDERAL graduate has been chosen. Logical though, when you know FEDERAL students have been trained by instructors who have been "through the mill of business". The standard for graduation at the FEDERAL is the highest in the Dominion, and a FEDERAL Diploma is recognized everywhere as being of superior value to the holder. Many graduates of other schools come to the FEDERAL for advanced work and for better typing records—a number have written over 90 w.p.m. after FEDERAL modern typing instruction. FEDERAL equipment is practically all new; every make of typewriter used in City offices; instructors show by example how all makes of machines, including comptometer, are operated (not just from a text book); Adding Machine; Ediphone (Dictating Machine); Comptometer; Duplicating Machine; Phonograph Dictation; Modern Filing; Present-Day Office Practice; Telephone; Writing; Spelling; Geography; Bookkeeping (leading to a Degree); Shorthand (Any System—Simplex if desired); Typing (Dr. Coover—Stanford University Method), Special Legal Work. The most complete course to be found in any school. NO CLASS WORK—PERSONAL TUITION ONLY—BY TEACHERS WITH COLLEGIATE TEACHING EXPERIENCE AND ACTUAL WORK IN DIFFERENT LINES OF BUSINESS.

ARRANGE TO BEGIN A REAL TRAINING FOR YOUR OPPORTUNITY. START ANY DAY.

Six-Man Rugby Encouraged In Minor Clubs

By W. M. GLADISH
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—Canada's newest sport, six-man rugby football with variations, will shortly be the subject of playing interest among various secondary schools and minor clubs ,as well as in rural communities, under the official encouragement of the Interprovincial Rugby Football union.

A set of playing rules has been prepared and adopted through the efforts of William C. Foulds, chairman of the union's board of officials, and Arthur A. Burridge, director of physical education at McMaster University, Hamilton, has been appointed organizing supervisor for six-man football under the sponsorship of the Interprovincial. Burridge has already made a missionary tour of schools and towns in Eastern Ontario and Quebec, where the I.R.F.U. will first concentrate its work. Last fall, 72 collegiate and town club teams played standard football in junior groups under I.R.F.U. encouragement and now the pocket-size grid game will be organized as a further breeding ground for the fall pastime.

A glance at the new playing code indicates that six-man football will be the testing ground for rules in the standard 12-man game of the future. Of interest is the fact that the simplified six-man regulations prohibit the huddle which, since its adoption from the American game, has not made a tremendous hit with Canadian fans. The forward pass is retained for the miniature game, but the ball can be heaved from any place behind the line, and all players are eligible to receive the pass. The forward pass cannot be thrown on the third down.

Major Score Reduced

The score for a touchdown has been reduced from five to three points, which is also the score for a drop or placement kick from the field. The convert remains the same while the much-disputed and misunderstood "safety-touch" has been deleted altogether, the score to be the same as for a rouge, namely one point.

An interesting fact is that there is no centre-line across the field of play for six-man football, and the kick-off at the commencement of the game and after all scores is taken from the centre of a line 30 yards out from the defenders' goal. Incidentally, there is no kick-off at the beginning of the second half or third period, the ball being scrimmaged on the same relative spot where it became dead in the final down of the previous period. The teams merely change ends for each of the three succeeding periods. The playing time of the game is 48 minutes, divided into four quarters of 12 minutes each, with a "time-out" of five minutes between all periods. The first kick-off takes place from the 30-yard line of the team winning the toss of the coin while the opposing team selects the goal it wishes to defend. If the kick-off goes out of bounds, the opposing team takes the kick on its 30-yard line, and if the ball again leaves the field without touching a player, the original team scrimmages it on its 30-yard line.

The field requirements call for a distance of 80 yards between goal lines, against the 110 yards in the 12-man spot; the width from touch to touch is 40 yards, while the depth of goal area to the deadline is 15 yards.

Passing Not Necessary

Of special interest is the rule which prevents the first player receiving the ball from the snapback in a scrimmage, to cross the line of scrimmage. It is necessary for him to pass it in an "onside" direction to some other player before it can be advanced, except in the case of a kick or forward pass, when the ball does not have to change hands after leaving the snapper's clutch. At least three of the six players on a side must be on the line of scrimmage when the ball is put into play, and, on any play originating from a scrimmage, the players of the attacking side may "interfere" anywhere up to three yards in advance of the scrimmage line.

Penalties are reduced to a minimum, only four being mentioned in the condensed rules. All "distance" penalties are to be 5 yards, except in the case of rough play or where "no yards" are given in a kicked ball, when the penalty is 10 yards. Delay in putting the ball into play is to be penalized by the los sof one down or the loss of the ball in the case of third down. An illegal pass brings the loss of one down, while a forward pass on a third down entails the loss of the ball to the opposing side. The first pass of the ball after it has been snapped must be "clearly through the air", which means that it cannot be handed to a team-mate so that he can cross the line of scrimmage.

Four Substitutes Allowed

A team, of course, consists of six players, and the number of substitutes is limited to four. The men can be placed where desired, except that three must be on the scrimmage line, one being the snapback. This means there are virtually three back-division players. There is an unusual restriction with regard to equipment used in that players are not permitted to wear the usual football cleats, the footwear being restricted to "such shoes as are generally used for basketball or tennis or canvas softball shoes may be worn with soft rubber cleats," according to the wording of the clause. The rules of 12-man football are applicable to the miniature game, except where otherwise specified, it is formally stated in the new code. The rules, by the way, are announced as "the standard playing rules of the Canadian Rugby union which will govern six-man football."

In the preamble it is stated: "The purpose of six-man football is to provide an interesting game where the supply of players and equipment is limited." League groups are to be formed for the coming season; schedules will be prepared under the direction of local conveners, and playdowns will be arranged so that, come December, the sport world will be able to recognize the first Canadian champions in six-man football.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THERE WILL BE WEEPING and gnashing of molars in Brooklin when 'tis learned today that "our boys" were beaten here last eve by the Petes' lacrossers, 15-13 in overtime. Giving the locals top place in their group standing and an edge on Brooklin in their season's exchanges. But a very narrow edge. They've met four times now, one tilt being a tie, one a win for the Petes, one a Brooklin victory, and last night a close overtime nod for the locals. Yep, they're mighty well-matched outfits, good teams and real rivals. They play a hard game and didn't ease up much on checking last p.m. despite 20 penalties passed out by two referees. But there were no fights, though a few threatened. A peach of a lacrosse game all the way.

* * * * * *

BIGGEST CROWD OF the year, nearly 1500 (not all cash customers, we fear) witnessed this smart scrap. It was speedy, close and full of action every minute. Referee Thomas took quite a verbal lacing from the fans, while Referee Len Smith seemed to suit everyone. Work of Magee, Crowe and Reid on the attack, and Chute especially on defence, was outstanding. But the whole gang turned in a four-star performance, and they had to do it to grab the verdict. Players and fans were ready for an outbreak any minute but no free-for-all occurred—just a swelegant contest.

Backward, Turn Backward

GOT THE LOAN of an oldtime football photograph the other day and had it fixed up for publication. Should be of interest to many grid fans in this town as a number of the 1904 intermediate Ontario champs are still in our midst, others having moved away years ago or passed on. A starry roster it was, including Gene Hurtubise, Doc Shaw, Ed Dillon, Ross Craig, Bill Meagher, George Morgan, Ernie Green, Art Noble, Frank Burnham, Chris Graham, Bert Rickey, Bill Crowley, Fred McGrath, Alex Gillespie, Bert Cameron, Percy Gilbert, Danny Mulhern, Ernie Ford and George Macdonald—yeah, the ex-Mayor. A stalwart squad which, with a few changes, won a number of titles in the early years of the century. And few cities this size in the country can boast the football history of Peterborough.

CLYDE ENGLE AND DAN HOWLEY of Toronto Maple Leafs will be here Monday and Tuesday to conduct a baseball school in Riverside Park. It'll start at 12.30, our time, on Monday and all city and district players of any age are invited to attend and learn the proper methods of playing the diamond game, as taught by experts. No charge for it, the Leafs feeling it is a good thing to encourage correct baseball play and that there is also the odd chance of spotting a potential pro ballster in these classes.

Where Was Jake Biddle?

UP IN OSHAWA LAST gloaming, Westclox men softballers did the homesters dirt at the stadium in the first of the O. S. A. playdowns by an 11-5 count. And made 'em like it, though the fans razzed Manager George Campbell of Oshawa plenty for not starting Preem Whitely. However, after the Clockmen had hammered out the first hurler, they climbed aboard the great Preem for six lovely markers in the fourth frame. George should have borrowed Biddle for the occasion! Fine flinging by Bateman, hard timely hits by most of his buddies and classy fielding support by 'em all earned the win for Westclox. Next game will be here Tuesday at six in Riverside, with likely Whitely and Parsons pitching.

A FOUR-BOUT BOXING card was run off last e'en in Bobcaygeon before 500 noisy fans, and we hear it was a dandy show. Two local scrappers stole the show, Norm Bowler and Harry Low staging a brawl that had the folks in 'Caygeon yelling like gals on a roller-coaster. A dozen knockdowns in the short clash, both fighters being up and down so often the referee was nearly goofy. It ended with Bowler hanging a kayo on Low near the end of the second round, as the customers gasped for breath. Must have been a pip. The Rivervew A. C. plans a series of cards through the district this fall.

Harlemites Make Whoopee

LITTLE HARLEM was in a celebratin' mood last night, and we don't mean New York's colored district. Nope, Herb Payne's squad in the Southend Softball League applied an eraser to Keene here last e'en and rubbed them right out of the playoff picture in a neat fixture. Tonight at 6.30 in the Brinton Field, Quakers and Leafs clash in the deciding meeting of their semi-final, and the winner will go in against Little Harlem in the finals on Monday. These jousts are drawing better and bigger crowds lately, and some of the ossifers —who maintain they are not sneaking puffs on the opium pipe—are having roseate dreams of a bleacher stand built to accomodate a couple of hundred southend fans there next summer. It's a good league, and well handled, and we wish 'em well.

PREXY ROLLIE GLOVER of the Peterborough Hockey Club expects to have an executive meeting within the next week or so to discuss plans for the coming winter. With the loss of three players, the Petes will have to bolster a bit to make as good a showing as last winter. They are hoping Drake Jopling will stay here, though he could return to N'Yawk Rovers or head for Timmins, if he wished. No dope on imports or prospective group yet, but it's early for hockey chatter now. Pick Hines would hardly be available for coaching, if asked, as he has left this district. Frank Buckland said to us the other day with a grin: "Well, this is one summer I'm enjoying myself and not worrying about hockey all through the hot months"—and the son-ovagun looked disgustingly contented with life, having decided to take no active part, or worry, in the executive or coaching end of the club this coming winter.

* * * * * *

OBSERVATION PLATFORM: Lions midgets took a 4-1 lacrosse win over Kiwanis last eve; return tilt, of five periods, will be Monday, goals to count. . . . Winner meets the Y's Men's Club in finals. . . . Tigers and Greyhounds have a junior ball playoff at six in the Ex. Monday eve. . . . Umpire Colling of Belleville wired the Petes yesterday that he was coming here today to ump having no official word that Oswin and Sheppard would handle the game. . . . There was a hot dispute between the timers at the lacrosse match last night, the Brooklin gent wanting to let a Brooklin player out a minute before his time was up; the referee made 'em split the difference. . . . When is the next O. L. A. fray for the locals? . . . Grid workouts resume at six at the Ex. next Monday p.m. and run nightly. . . . And work on the gridiron there will commence the first of the week. . . . George Scott is still about tops in tennis around this 'burg, as some of the youngsters now realize. . . . Goom-bye, please.

Only Half a Squad But Regulation Team

This would be only half a squad in a regulation rugby game, but these lads are playing the new pint-size game that requires but six to a side. The Interprovincial Rugby Football Union will sponsor this game in the east in the hopes that it will create interest in communities unable to get together a regulation outfit. As can be seen the players wear running shoes instead of the usual set of cleats. When scrimmaging the ball, as these players are doing, three men at least must be on the line, and at least one pass must be made behind the line before the team starts its advance.

Prophets Waiting Couple of Games Before Picking Mustangs To Win Grid Championship

TORONTO, Aug. 27 (C.P.).—August's football prophets have been looking for big things from the University of Western Ontario for years and Western hasn't had the intercollegiate champions since Joe Breen's 1932 team shaded the University of Toronto.

So what they're saying about the Mustangs' 1938 possibilities won't be swallowed everywhere until Western has won a few games. Coach Bill Storen was supposed to have the strongest pack in the Union last year, but when the race had been run Queen's and Toronto were playing off for the title again.

Yet Western has suffered less from graduations than Toronto, Queen's or McGill. The Mustangs look like world-beaters on paper and at least should improve on last year's showing, which consisted of a quick fadeout.

The champion Queen's squad has been sadly depleted by graduations and examination failures. Loss of so great a kicker as Johnny Munro would be bad enough, but Ted Reeve is going to have to get along without Charlie Peck, driving middle wing; Bernie Thornton, one of the college circuit's best outsides; Marty Jones, dependable all-round veteran; Grover Dennis, running halfback and end, and Teddy Young, clever quarter-back.

Some Holdovers.

Reeve's best holdovers are Captain Art Stollery, who likely will play quarter-back; George Sprague, plunging middle wing, and Tuffy Griffiths, secondary defence bulwark. Joe Turner, half-back from Calgary, is expected to register at Queen's.

Toronto's greatest losses include Quarterback Barry Gray, Halfback Ike Edwards, and Captain Williams and Jack Casson, a couple of smashing linemen. They were the key men of Warren Stevens' finalists, and the list of capable reserves is just as badly cut. Cam Gray will be back to do the kicking, though, and with him on the half line will be Ken MacQuarrie and Don Rumford, both fine ball-carriers.

McGill expects only five regulars back, but Coach Doug Ferr will gain the services of Herb Westman, kicking ace who couldn't play last season because of ecademic trouble. Kerr has a tall task trying to build a team around a few dependable veterans like big Andy Anton, Captain Russ Ruschin and Quarterback Ronnie Perowne.

Western has lost Boyce Sherk and Charlie Box from the backfield and Fred Smith, sturdy middle wint. Doug Shales, 2nd-string kicker, is a graduate and Bill Ewener, veteran lineman, may not play again.

The western deficit ends there. The list of first stringmen remaining from last year is impressive in itself and Storen hopes to add to his array of backfield talent Lyn Thompson, from Toronto Balmy Beach, and Joe Krol, Windsor schoolboy sensation. He may have to convert Jimmy Farmer and Brian Casey into linemen to make way for such backfielders as Jack Kennedy, Alf Hurley, Joe King, Wilty Hilton, Bill Etten and Jeck Moore.

After Bluefins

LIVERPOOL, N.S., Aug. 2 (C. P.). — Eighteen anglers from three nations headed their boats seaward at dawn to-day in search of the biggest and best Atlantic bluefins as the second international tuna tournament got under way. Angling teams of the United States, Cuba, and the British Empire left here to win the trophy which the British Empire squad took last year.

Pearce Pressed Outsculls Paddon By Foot

TORONTO, August 27 — (CP). — Evans Paddon's stock boomed on the sculling mart to-day on the strength of his first performance in Canadian waters.

The young Australian champion pressed Bob Pearce of Hamilton, Ont., to the limit last night as he lost a foot decision to the world champion in a quarter-mile dash over the Canadian National Exhibition course. Pearce never has been closer to defeat in the decade he has ruled the sport.

Last night's meeting between the giant Aussies was the first of two leading to their three-mile clash for the world professional title Friday, September 9. Along with Percy See and George Cook, who lost to Paddon and Pearce respectively in the heats, they will row a mile race next Friday night.

Cook Right Behind.

Paddon was not alone in pressing Pearce, who left his native Australia to live in Hamilton eight years ago. Cook, champion of New South Wales, was less than two feet behind the world champion in the first of the heats that qualified Pearce and Paddon for their final. Fast off the mark, Cook held a slight edge until Pearce quickened his stroke, caught up and moved ahead in the final yards.

They sculled the quarter-mile, against a brisk head-wind, in one minute and 21 seconds, 3 3-5 seconds faster than Paddon's half boat-length victory over See, champion of the North Rivers district of Australia. But Paddon saved himself in his heat, and he had the extra speed ready for Pearce.

The Aussie champion beat Pearce to the start, swung into a steady 38-39 stroke beat, and challenged Pearce to catch him. Again it wasn't until the last 15 yards that Pearce made up his starting loss to finish in one minute, 20 3-5 seconds.

Locals Win On Hitting And Hurling

Westclox men softballers stepped into Oshawa last evening and copped an 11-5 decision over the Oshawa Varcoes before a fair-sized crowd in the Motor City Stadium. It was the first game of their two-in-three O.S.A. Intermediate "A" playdown series, return fray being in Riverside Park at six next Tuesday evening.

Pat Hayden's crew earned the decision with all-around good playing, getting steady hurling, good fielding and hard timely hitting. They bunched their bingles and cashed in on all opportunities to score their runs in three innings, getting three in the first, two in the second and sixth in the fourth. Only in the fifth, when they got three markers, did the home squad look dangerous.

Gerrard started for Oshawa, but was bingled freely and retired early in the second, a total of five runs being chalked up against him. Preem Whitely went in and finished in fair style, but proved no great mystery to the Clockmen. Lorne Bateman went the distance for the winners and gave a good slab showing, keeping 10 hits fairly well scattered but for two heats as he fanned seven and walked one. He had good support, whereas Oshawa kicked in with four miscues.

Get Two Hits.

O'Leary, Bateman, Currie, Mowry and Carlson had two hits apiece for the victors, with Bateman getting a homer with two aboard, Gainey a triple, and O'Leary a two-bagger. For Oshawa, Gray had three for three, one a triple, and Covert got a triple and a single, and Kitchen a three-base blow. Nice fielding was shown by Calladine, Gainey, Dormer and O'Leary for Westclox; and Covert, Hall and Atkinson of the losers, the latter's outfield looking slow. Calladine started a neat double play to Ellis in the ninth, touching a runner after fielding the ball and pegging to first. The crowd razzed the Oshawa pilot for not starting Whitely.

Strangler Divorcee

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27—(AP)—Police said today jealousy caused Ramon Lee Hughes, 32, a seaman, to strangle Jean Montgomery, 30-year-old divorcee, and to mutilate her body.

Hughes lurched up to a traffic policeman yesterday, mumbled that he had killed a woman and produced a piece of flesh from his pocket to prove his story. He was jailed on a murder charge.

"I couldn't get along without her," Inspector Harry Husted quoted Hughes. "I was drunk, I guess."

Elgins Defeat Tanners 9 to 6

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 27.—Elgin took the first game of the playoffs in the town softball league from the Tanners 9-6 last night before a large crowd. Elgin finished in last place in the schedule, winning only five games while the Tanners topped the loop.

The game was featured by Roy Richardson's heavy clouting for Elgin. He collected a home run, a double and 2 singles in four times at bat driving in 6 runs.

Elgin played nice ball all the way and deserved their win. They crossed the plate four times in the first innings to take an early lead. The Tanners scored their first run in the second innings but Elgin came back with one in the fourth, when M. Scott tripled and scored on R. Scott's single. The Tanners came close in their half of the fourth when they sent two more across. Elgin scored one in the sixth only to have the Tanners score three times to tie the game. Elgin put the game away in the sixth when Roy Richardson, star shortstop homered to deep centre with 2 men on.

Jack Richardson pitched a nice game for Elgin as he limited the Tanners to 10 well scattered hits. He struck out 5 batters and had perfect control, passing none. Elgin hammered Hahn, the Tanner's pitcher, for 15 hits, bunched mostly in the first and sixth innings. He had four strikeouts and passed one batter.

McCoy, with a double and two singles in three times up topped the Tanners' batters. Hahn got the only other extra base hit for the Tanners when he tripled in the seventh.

The fielding feature of the game fast double play, R. Richardson to E. Preston to M. Scott for Elgin in the fourth. These 2 teams will clash again Wednesday in the second game in a best 2 out of 3 game series. The Clerks and the Outlaws start Monday. The teams:

Tanners: C. Scriver, rf; Thompson, 2b; Ibey, c; Hahn, p; G. Scriver, ss; McCoy, lf; Kelly, cf; M. Scriver, 1b; Sargent, 3b.

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.— (AP).—Mike Jacobs won't get a warm welcome from Detroit and Chicago fight promoters, but the boys out there may as well make up their minutes to get use dto him. . . Next big league managerial change will occur in the American Baseball League within two weeks (or less) after the season closes....There's no truth to reports Mrs. Helen Wills Moody will change her mind....

Red Webster of Dallas Journal-Dispatch has been a caustic critic of Dallas Steers all season....The other day he took over the first basing duties against Beaumont....He went hitless in two trips to the plate, but fielded seven chances perfectly....Steve Basil, who is doing a good job of umpiring in the American League, is a Syrian and an uncle of Petey Sarron, the former featherweight champion....The old jinx is after Al Schacht....He was rained out in Worcester, Mass., the other night for the first time in the two seasons he has been ticking the minors. . . But Al has a rain check and will be back in Worcester Sept. 18.

Charley Burley showed a lot of class in winning the "negro featherweight championship of the world" from Cocoa Kid (Henry Armstrong is just an Aryan, you know) and may be worth watching....They have something down in Virginia... When three guys failed to make a winner out of the Swansboro semi-pro club near Richmond, they drafted Mrs. H. B. Bush to manage the team....She gave the boys a pep talk and they wan three in a row for her....

Harry Kimberlin, pitching for San Antonio, won a ball game and killed a rabbit the same night....The bunny came tearing from beneath the bleachers and headed for the home plate via second base....A fast ball, thrown at 20 feet, did the work.

Cricket Results

LONDON, Aug. 27. (CP Cable).—The English county cricket championship still is undecided and prospects are the race for the title this year will not be determined until the schedule closes next week.

Victor after a tight-end-of-the-season battle with Middlesex last year, Yorkshire has two matches to play before the 1938 campaign ends while Middlesex, a close second, has one. The latter county had a great chance to pass the idle Yorkshiremen Friday but inclement weather conditions necessitated an abandonment with Lancashire.

Records show the Yorkshiremen have not won the title since pre-war years while an Australian test team was in England. Relieved of international calls the White Rose county will be at full strength for its remaining contests and forecasters are picking the county to win its 20th title.

In games concluded today Nottinghamshire defeated Worcestershire by six wickets, Surrey triumphed over Hampshire by three wickets, Gloucestershire edged out a 12-run decision over Leicestershire and Sussex took first-innings points from Glamorgan.

Two matches finished yesterday. Essex defeated Derbyshire by six wickets and Somerset won by 20 runs over Kent.

The scores:

Worcestershire 73 and 399 (Perks 75, Martin 73); Nottinghamshire 364 and 109 for four (Harris 51 not out); at Nottingham.

Hampshire 82 and 180; Surrey 123 and 140 for seven (Herman four for 47; at Bournemouth.

Gloucestershire 160 and 214; Leicestershire 202 and 160 (Dempster 57, Goddard eight for 62); at Bristol.

Glamorgan 279 and 341 for seven (Dyson 170 not out, Turnbull 72, Duckfield 59); Sussex 540 for six; at Eastbourne.

War Admiral Out At Saratoga Today

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. Aug. 27 (AP).—The great War Admiral, invincible on the Saratoga track, will be in the fore to-day as the meeting comes to a close. The Admiral races two competitors in the 59th running of the Saratoga Cup at a mile and six furlongs.

Just behind the Admiral's race in interest comes the 34th Hopeful Stakes, with a dozen of the best juveniles headed by El Chico, the top two-year-old.

Samuel D. Riddle's brown colt faces two mares, William Ziegler, Jr.'s Esposa and William Woodward's Anaflame, in the Saratoga Cup. The Admiral will carry 126 pounds to Esposa's 121 and Anaflame's 111 in this weight for age affair.

SUN STOPPED GAME

HASTINGS, England — (CP). — The sun's reflection from a glass roof nearby blinded players and umpires during the Sussex-Northamtonshire county cricket game here. They all sat down until the glare subsided.

PETES BEAT BROOKLIN LACROSSERS BY 15 TO 13 IN OVERTIME

20 Penalties Handed Out In Hot Fray

Close to 1,500 fans saw the Petes pull out an overtime lacrosse victory over Brooklin by a 15-13 score last night in the best game dished up here this year. The huge crowd rocked the arena with their roars of approval at the exciting action dished up in the four regular periods and the 10-minute overtime session. Tension was high throughout, but no fights marred the fray.

It was a fast, classy contest between smart, well-matched squads, with the issued always in doubt. While checking was hard, penalties numerous, and several fights threatened, two referees kept the game under control throughout. Of the 20 penalties handed out, 11 were drawn by the visitors. One major to each was handed out for a near fight that might easily have embroiled both teams.

Brooklin took a 2-0 lead in the first quarter, but the score was deadlocked at 6-all at half-time. The Petes had an edge in the third to take a 10-6 lead, but Brooklin outplayed them in the fourth to sew it up at 12-12 at the end of regulation time. They played 10 minutes overtime, five each way, and the Petes had a 3-1 margin to cop the nod, the game breaking up 15 minutes before midnight.

Stars of Game.

While both goalies made some fine saves, there were a number of fairly easy goals scored on each side. The local defence of Chute and Jerry Creighton turned in a brilliant effort against the fast, rugged Brooklin forwards. Up front, Magee starred all the way with Crowe and Reid also playing fine lacrosse when they were on. The rest of the home squad turned in a nifty performance in checking and on the attack. For Brooklin, Lewis and Luther Vipond proved a big threat throughout, with Kivell, Cook, Saunders and Ormiston also prominent during the hectic struggle. Grice and Hendy drew the major penalties in the rough third period.

The teams:

Brooklin — Goal, Luke; defence, Grice and Stevens; centre, Lewis Vipond; wings, Kivell and Cook; rover, Saunders; alternates, Luther Vipond, W. Vipond, Ormiston, McDonald, Cooper and Armour.

Petes — Goal, R. Creighton; defence, Chute and G. Creighton; centre, Magee; wings, Crowe and E. Creighton; rover, Dallin; alternates, Loucks, Miller, Dundas, Whitton, King, Reid, and Hendy.

Setting Hot Pace

George McQuinn ABOVE, who guards first base for St. Louis Browns in the American League, has been setting a great batting pace lately, having hit safely in 32 consecutive games, for the longest streak of the season.

Little Harlem Rubs Out Keene

Little Harlem advanced to the South-end softball finals by defeating Keene in the third and deciding semi-final game played at the Brinton field last night by a 7-6 count. The winners took advantage of the visitors' errors in the early innings to build up a 3-run lead, but Keene tied things up in the first of the ninth when Manager Woods hit a homer with two mates aboard. Little Harlem, however, won the game in their half when Tomkins tripled with one on.

McCarthy of Keene and Craig of the Harlemites hooked up in a great hurling duel, the former allowing but 8 hits while walking 6 and striking out 10; while Craig allowed 9 hits, walked 3, and struck out 1. Better support with men on bases gave him the verdict. Price, Tomkins and Craig had two hits apiece for the winners, while Woods had two homers and a double, and Fleming a double and a single for the losers.

Both teams pulled off some neat defensive plays with the Maloney brothers, Tomkins and MacNabb starring for Little Harlem and Renwick and D. McCarthy for Keene.

The lineups:

Keene — Woods, ss; J. Gall, 3b; Renwick, 1b; Whalen, cf, 2b; O. McCarthy, c; Fletcher, lf; D. McCarthy p; F. Gall, rf; Fleming, 2b, cf; Robinson, rf.

Little Harlem — Price, 1b; McNabb, 2b; Dennie, lf; Craig, p; F. Maloney, ss; Tomkins, 3b; Hodgson, rf; G. Maloney, cf; Gray, c.

Score by innings:

Keene ..... 000 110 103—6 9 4
Little Harlem .. 211 110 001—7 8 3

Umpires—Coursey and Smith.

Kinsmen Lose To Lions 4-1

Lions defeated Kinsmen by a 4-1 score in a Midget lacrosse semi-final fray last night in the George Street Arena. It was the first of a two-game series, second one being on Monday night—and it will go five periods, as last night's til was cut to three. Lions will carry a three-goal lead into the return tussle. Vitarelli and Maloney notched two goals for the winners in the first period. There was no count in an even second heat, both clubs battling hard. In the third, Mattucci tallied to cut the Lions' lead to 2-1, but Detlor and Maloney both counted for the victors before the finish. The teams:

Silver Bars Is Winner Of 2.22 In Ottawa

OTTAWA, Aug. 27. (CP).—Silver Bars, a roan mare owned by the Union Packing Company, Ltd., of Calgary, Alta., Friday emerged as the outstanding performer on a harness racing program at the Central Canada Exhibition here by winning three straight heats in the 2.22 pace for a $300 purse.

Silver Bars came from behind to win the first heat in 2:12½, but showed her heels in the field all the way in the second to beat Scotty Grattan by a length in the best race of the day. Scotty Grattan, a brown gelding owned by J. E. Abott of Weston, Ont., again finished second to Silver Bars in the third heat after the smart Calgary pacer came from fourth position to overhaul the leaders and win in 2:09. She did the last half in 1:03.

J. E. Burns of Brockville, Ont., drove his Susan Hal to victory in the third heat of the gentlemen's road race for amateur drivers and scored the best percentage of the eight starters. Susan Hal finished sixth in the first heat and second in the second.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Two rinks from our club, skipped by H. Renaud and G. Gimblett, are in Toronto to-day playing in the Withrow tournament.

Up on our local greens it was a peach of a night all round—all the winners receiving a basket of peaches. The unfortunate part of this tournament was that only ten rinks competed. Too many tournaments is our answer to the falling-off of interest. The winning skips were H. Morton, H. Northrop, G. Gimblett, and E. Wall.

The ladies' section of the Cobourg Lawn Bowling Club held their second tournament of the season yesterday with an entry of 17 rinks—nine of thees rinks were from our local club. Three 12-end games were played, and between the second and third games refreshments were served by the Cobourg ladies. Two Peterborough rinks carried off the major prizes:

First—Mrs. E. Ward, Mrs. L. Yeotes, Mrs. J. Coursey, Mrs. H. Staunton—each a set of cut-glass sherbet glasses.

Second—Mrs. H. Martin, Mrs. E. DeLong, Mrs. R. Dyer, Mrs. R. Hendry—each a linen tea set.

No Louis Nemesis On Horizon As Yet

DETROIT, Aug. 27.—(CP)—James J. Braddock, aging Irishman from whom Joe Louis, Detroit negro, snatched the heavyweight boxing crown, said today that in his opinion the man who will eventually beat Louis has not yet appeared on the pugilistic horizon.

"Tommy Farr of England gave Louis a good fight, and could possibly do it again," Braddock, a Detroit visitor said. "But he's the only fighter I could even say that much for."

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Don Gutteridge, Cardinals—Hit two triples and double, driving in four runs, including the opening tally, in 7-6 defeat of Giants.

Joe Dimaggio, Yankees, and Frankie Pytlak, Indians—Dimaggio drove in seven runs with homer, two doubles and single in opener win; Pytlak sent five across in nightcap with homer, triple and single.

Gerry Walker, White Sox, and Pinky Higgins, Rel Sox—Walker hit triple, two doubles and drove in six runs in 12-2 opener win; Higgins' tenth-inning single sent deciding run across for 9-8 nightcap edge.

Al Smith, Phillies—Held Pirates to seven hits for eight innings for 6-4 victory.

Pirates and Reds Both Drop Third Straight

It is being suggested around and about that Messrs. Ford Frick and Will Harridge get those Yankees to take up tatting between April and October next year, while the 15 other so-called big league baseball clubs hold an elimination to decide the victims for Gehrig & Co. in the '39 world series.

The idea may not seem as silly as it sounds, if you take a look at what are laughingly called the American and National League pennant races this year. The way things shape up, there are still two big leagues, but one is the Yanks—and the other includes the remaining 15 outfits.

The National League chase of recent weeks finds the first four clubs separated by only 6½ games, and all of them apparently doing their best to educate the folks in how not to win the flag. In the American League—the Yankees are 12 games out in front.

And cast a glance at Pittsburg Pirates. Given an odds-on chance of winning the pennant in the last month, the Bucs not only dropped three straight to the last place Phillies, but dropped them to old men pitchers. Thursday Wild Bill Hallahan beat them and yesterday old Lefty Al Smith took a 6-4 decision.

Reds Tumble To Bees

Cincinnati Reds became just as amiable as the Bucs in going down for the third straight time before Boston's no-punch Bees, 6-1, on Johnny Lanning's seven-hitter.

And while the National League lead goes around begging, Bill Terry's second-place Giants kicked away a ball game to the Cardinals as the gas-housers came through 7-6 on a run in the ninth.

The Yankees split with Cleveland Indians in their fourth straight American League twin bill, winning the opener 15-9 on the seven runs Joe DiMaggio batted in, and dropping the nightcap 8-5 to Willis Hudlin's flinging. But Boston's second-place Red Sox did nothing about closing the gap, for their best was an even break in a pair with the White Sox. Old Ted Lyons took the opener 12-2 and Jimmy Foxx whacked two homers in Boston's 9-8 nightcap win.

Detroit Tigers came a game nearer the first division with a 9-3 margin over Washington and the Athletics retained their slim percentage hold on seventh place by splitting with the Browns, taking the opener 11-6 and giving the Brownies the afterpiece 6-4.

Births Marriages In Memoriam Cards of Thanks Deaths

DIED

WHITE, Ephrim. — At Ida, Ont., on Saturday, August 27, 1938, Ephrim White, in his 81st year. Funeral service on Monday, August 29, 1938, at 2 p.m., from his late residence, 12th Line Cavan, to Gardiner's Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Eugene Moloney, Sr., wish to express their sincere appreciation to their many friends, particularly the Sisters of the House of Providence for the many acts of kindness, spiritual bequests, floral tributes and expressions of sympathy received during their recent sad bereavement.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

BEWARE THE BIG SUIT

WHENEVER the dummy has an almost solid side suit, there is great danger that the declarer may be able to discard all of his losers on it as soon as he can get the lead. Under such circumstances it is well to demonstrate why "quick tricks" got their name. Try to rake in as many high card tricks as possible for your side before he gets a chance to operate on trumps and the big suit.

	♠ 10 8 3 ♥ 8 4 3 ♦ K 8 ♣ K Q J 7 3
♠ 5 4 ♥ A K Q 9 ♦ 6 ♣ 10 4 2 ♣ 6 5 2	W. N. E. S.	♠ J 7 2 ♥ 10 7 5 ♦ A Q 9 6 3 ♣ 9 8
	♠ A K Q 9 6 ♥ J 2 ♦ J 7 5 ♣ A 10 4

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

After a 1-Spade bid by South, North went to 2-Clubs, South 2-Spades, North 3-Spades and South 4-Spades.

The hearts K and Q were cashed by West and, even though his partner's discards of the 5 and 7 indicated that he held one more, West decided he could do no harm by forcing South to ruff a third round of the suit.

After ruffing, South drew three rounds of trumps and on the set up clubs was able to discard two diamonds, so that his losses were limited to two hearts and one diamond.

Ordinarily the forcing of declarer to trump does no harm but in this case, the presence of the almost set up suit should have warned West against that procedure. A switch through the diamonds was his correct defense and had he done so his side would have cashed four tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ J 8 7 5 ♥ 10 ♦ J 9 6 2 ♣ A J 10 9
♠ 6 ♥ K Q J 8 7 5 ♦ A K 8 3 ♣ 8 5	W. N. E. S.	♠ Q 4 3 2 ♥ 6 4 3 2 ♦ 10 7 ♣ 6 4 3
	♠ A K 10 9 ♥ A 9 ♦ Q 5 4 ♣ K Q 7 2

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

With the diamonds A and K cashed and a diamond ruffed by East, how can declarer make game? East's return was the heart 2.

CIO Fight Looms For Canadian Labor Congress

OTTAWA, Aug. 27 (CP)—As preparations go forward for the annual meeting of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada at Niagara Falls, Ont. the week of Sept. 12, rumblings are evident of an impending clash on the floor of the labor congress between the forces of the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Congress officials here decline to discuss the situation but experienced men in ranks of organized labor see nothing for it but a fight to the finish on whether the congress can continue to shelter under its wings unions which in the United States are locked in a desperate struggle.

The congress is made up of three types of unions. The largest are the international unions, A.F. of L. organizations. In its membership it has also national unions which are not affiliated with the A.F. of L., including the national organization of letter carriers and a national union of marine engineers. Then there are Canadian sections of five unions of international ramifications which have joined the C.I.O. and have had their charters revoked by the A.F. of L.

The C.I.O. unions became affiliated with the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada while they were still affiliated with the A.F. of L. since their charters have been revoked they have continued to remain in the congress and, it is understood, intend to have their delegates at Niagara.

Quarter Are C.I.. Men.

Of the approximately 120,000 workers affiliated with the Congress, about 30,000 are members of C.I.O. unions. The largest union is the United Mine Workers of America, which has about 15,000 Canadian members. Other C.I.O. unions are the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; International Union Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers; Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and the United Automobile Workers of America.

The United Rubber Workers of America, another C.I.O. organization, has some members in Canada, but has never been affiliated with the Congress. The A.F. of L. also revoked the charter of the United Textile Workers of America but before this took place it had surrendered jurisdiction over the Canadian membership of that Union and the Congress granted the Canadian locals charters direct and they now form the National Textile Council.

Largely, it is claimed, through the diplomacy of P. M. Draper, president of the Trades and Labor Congress, the various unions which compose it have been able to live along together and it was hoped a split in Canada would be avoided. However, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, an International A.F. of L. Union, has publicly announced it will withdraw from the Congress unless the C.I.O. unions are expelled. It is understood other International Unions have taken a similar position, so there seems no possibility of avoiding the issue at the convention.

Germany, Hungary Draft Closer Ties

BERLIN, Aug. 27 (AP).—Groundwork for closer economic ties than ever before between Germany and Hungary informed sources said today, is being laid during the state visit of Hungary's Regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy.

It was disclosed that Bela Imredi, the Hungarian Premier, conferred yesterday with Walther Funk, German Economics Minister, and Rudolf Brinkmann, Secretary of State in the economics ministry.

It was understood their conversations would form the basis for detailed negotiations by specialists of both countries leading to a closer economic arrangement.

That the Hungarian visitors kept an eye on the meeting of the little entente powers at Bled, Yugoslavia, while accepting German hospitality, appeared from interviews with Imredi and the Hungarian Foreign Minister, Koloman Von Kanya, published in Field Marshal Goering's mouthpiece, the Essener National Zeitung.

"Our rearmament and renunciation of the use of force, on the one hand, and protection of minorities on the other are clearly dependent one on the other," the newspaper quoted Von Kanya as saying.

"The Bled agreement can, therefore, become effective only when an accord is reached regarding a declaration anent minorities to be given Czechoslovakia.

"Furthermore, Hungary's attitude in the future will depend on how promises made in this minority declaration are kept."

Hornets In The Hay Too All-Fired Gay So Firemen Called

Fort WiWliam, Aug. 27

FORT WILLIAM firemen chalked up a new one in their list of "causes" today, and Mrs. Paul Popiel is trying to decide whether one hornet balances twenty tons of hay.

The Popiels, mother and two sons, have worked hard this week harvesting hay on their property near the city limits. Smack into a hornets' nest Mrs. Popiel stuck a pitchfork, and one insect stung her just over the right eye.

Bent on exterminating the pests, mother ignited some tar paper to smoke out the nest. The hornets are gone—but before firemen had extinguished the blaze with two lines of hose the hay was almost all burned and the near-by stable was badly scorched.

Millbrook Class Honors Newlywed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 27—A pleasant surprise was prepared for Mrs. J. Albert Brown, a bride of recent weeks, on Wednesday evening when about twenty ladies of the Boneka Bible Class, of St. Andrew's Sunday School, of which Mrs. Brown is a valued member, called at her home, Tupper street, and presented her with a 'tea towel shower.'

Though taken by surprise, Mrs. Brown warmly welcomed the unexpected guests, who arrived in a body having previously gathered at Mrs. F J. Smith's in order to go together to the bride's home, and some time was spent in conversational intercourse.

Later Mrs. J. Rowland, president of the Boneka Class, explained the object of the surprise visit, and the shower was informally made. Mrs. Brown expressed her appreciation in a few well-chosen words, and all joined in singing, "For she's a jolly good fellow," after which music and the service of lunch brought a pleasant occasion to a close.

Mr. Brown was home in time to enjoy refreshments with the guests, the work at his farm causing his absence in the earlier part of the evening. In the service of lunch Mrs. Brown was assisted by Mrs. A. Coulter, who was her guest for the afternoon and evening.

Pattullo Taboos Jobless Organizing

KELOWNA, B.C., Aug. 27—(CP)—Premier T. D. Pattullo said yesterday British Columbia motorists could anticipate a considerable reduction" in the price of gasoline, and in the same speech warned single unemployed any further organization amongst their numbers would not be tolerated by the British government.

Referring to appointment of Dr. W. A. Carruthers as fuel commissioner with power to control oil and coal industries in the province, Mr. Pattullo said valuable information had been gained, sufficient that motorists could expect "a gasoline price reduction in the near future."

The Premier referred briefly to the "sit down" occupation of two Vancouver buildings last May and June by "organized" single unemployed who remained in peaceful possession until they were evicted by police with tear gas and riot sticks.

"It devolves upon you as part of the Liberal party to see that these tactics are no longer effective," he said. "These young men have received considerable public sympathy because we (the government) have not been able to do all we could have wished in providing employment.

"But now they are going too far, and it looks like they are organizing in Vancouver again.

"We simply will not tolerate that any more."

Hunted For 13 Days Farmer Is Caught

TARA, Ont., Aug. 27 (CP)—Russell Spears, 26, farmhand how escaped handcuffed from police 13 days ago, blundered into a police trap today and was taken to Owen Sound jail. In court he was remanded to next Wednesday.

Spears, charged with an offence against an 18-year-old girl, was hunted by police continuously from the time of his escape. He was caught about four miles west of here by seven policemen hiding in tall grass and behind trees as he stepped from a swamp into an open field in Arran township.

Spears had twisted off the handcuffs by pounding them against a binder guard the day after his escape, he told police. He had also obtained a change of clothes during his freedom, wearing overalls and overcoat when arrested. His old clothes were found Monday on the bank of Arran Lake.

Lay Keel For Largest U. S. Liner

Rear-Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, is shown driving the first rivet in the keel of the new liner which is to be biggest and fastest ever constructed in America. The new liner is being built by the United States Line to replace the old Leviathan in the transatlantic trade.

War Hints Force France To Longer Hours

PARIS, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Radical-Socialist group in the Chamber of Deputies to-day voted unconditional support for Premier Daladier in his campaign to curtail the 40-hour week after a speech in which Daladier declared that nowhere had the ideal of the 40-hour week been achieved.

The Radical-Socialist is the Premier's own party. Addressing the group, Daladier asked how France would be expected, in view "of the daily more urgent needs of national defence" to adhere broadly to the 40-hour week when even the United States, "the country of perfected machine industry," could not do it.

This was done at a closed meeting on Wednesday night, after which newspapers quoted Daladier as declaring tha "Germany's mobilization of 2,000,000 men" had confronted him with "a situation no government chief has known since 1914."

The Premier said he never had any intention of entirely suspending the 40-hour week law.

But in view of the present tense situation in Europe he insisted it was necessary to extend working hours in all industries related to national defence.

No Berry Picker Ban At Severn Bridge

TORONTO, August 27 — (CP). — Dr. B. T. McGhie, Ontario Deputy Minister of Health, said to-day the department would not order blueberry pickers in the are along No. 11 Highway between Severn Bridge and Gravenhurst to leave because there was no problem there similar to the Matheson situation.

More than 500 blueberry pickers are moving from the Matheson district, 35 miles south of Timmins, under Government orders. Sanitary inspectors held lack of sanitary conditions among the Matheson blueberry pickers was resposible for spread of the disease.

"There is no similar problem in the Severn Bridge - Gravenhurst area," Dr. McGhie said. "There are single families picking berries there and conditions are not bad.

Berry pickers from many part of Ontario come to the 16-mile stretch between Severn Bridge and Gravenhurst, 100 miles north of Toronto.

Almost every city and town in Ontario is represented, even as far south as Windsor and Welland. The comparatively wealthy ones live in second-hand tents. The majority live in shacks or lean-tos constructed of cardboard, potato sacks, tar paper or even newspapers.

Earnings vary between $5 and $10 a week. Pickers average three 6-quart baskets a day.

French Flying Boat Enroute To U. S. A.

Taking off from Bordeaux, France, the huge French flying boat, Lieutenant De Vaisseau Paris, commenced an attempted flight to the United States via Lisbon and the Azores. On a previous attempt the huge seaplane was forced to turn back to its base 10 minutes after starting, owing to propeller trouble.

Men Wearing Shorts Come Under Ban Of Burbidge Police

Burbridge, Que., Aug. 27

TO THIS picturesque town on the Upper Gatineau, eighty-five miles north of Ottawa, has come the distinction of being among first Canadian municipalities to ban the wearing of shorts by men in public.

Mayor Alexander Lafrenière said today that complaints by village residents of "immodest" and "immoral" costumes worn by summer visitors, male and female, resulted in the Town Council passing a by-law banning shorts on its streets or in any public place within its limits.

Signs are posted around the town warning visitors of the Council's decree. A specially appointed constable patrols the village borders to warn visitors that they risk arrest if they wear shorts in the corporate limits.
